A solr could not, formerly, on taxation, be charged with interest on balances in hand; secus, if he had debited himself with interest in his cash account: Re Savery, 15 Beav. 58.

Taking up bills for a client was treated as an ordinary cash advance giving the solr no right to charge interest thereon: May v. Biggenden, 24 Beav. 207.

By the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, Gen. Ord. r. 7, a solr may charge interest at 4 p. c. per ann. on his disbursements and costs, whether by scale or otherwise, from the expiration of one month from demand from the client (see Blair v. Cordner, 19 Q. B. D. 516, C. A., that delivery of the bill is sufficient demand). And in cases where the same are payable by an infant, or out of a fund not presently available, such demand may be made on the parent or guardian, or the trustee or other person liable.

This rule (see r. 2) applies to non-contentious business only (not being conveyancing, but in any action: Stanford v. Roberts, 26 Ch. D. 155), and does not, in the absence of special direction, enable a party to an admon action, whose costs have been ordered to be taxed and paid out of a fund prior to distribution of such fund, to recover interest: Re Marsden, Withington v. Neumann, 40 Ch. D. 475, C. A.

SECTION X.—SOLICITORS' REMUNERATION ACT, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 44).

1. Order to Deliver and Tax Bill—Inquiry whether Special Agreement entered into as to Costs—Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 V. c. 73), ss. 37 and 41—Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, s. 8.

THE application of E. B. by originating summons, dated &c., which, upon hearing the solrs for the applicant and for the above-named T. W. B. in Chambers, was adjourned to be heard in Court, &c., And upon hearing counsel for the applicant and for the said solr,

And upon reading &c., Let the said solr on or before &c., deliver to the said E. B. a bill of fees and disbursements in all suits, causes, actions, and other matters of business in which he has been employed as the solr for the applicant, And Let it be referred, &c.—Usual directions for production and examination, and for solr to give credit for sums received and to charge sums paid by him [Form 1, p. 268]. And the taxing master is to inquire whether any and what special agreements have been entered into between the applicant and the said solr within the Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881, and if so, whether any and which of such agreements are or are not fair and reasonable; costs of application reserved.—See Re Baylis, Chitty, J., 18 March, 1896, A. 1187; (1896) 2 Ch. 107.

2. Order to Tax Bill delivered, and Certify whether Agreement fair and reasonable—6 & 7 V. c. 73, s. 41, and 44 & 45 V. c. 44, s. 8 (2), (4).

UPON motion by way of appeal from an order &c. by counsel for the above-named solr, And upon hearing counsel for F. P., And upon reading the said order, This Court Doth order that the said order be varied, and as varied be as follows:—This Court Doth order that, notwithstanding the agreement dated &c., it be referred to the taxing master to tax and settle the bills of fees and disbursements, in number and in the aggregate amounting to £—, delivered by the said solr to the said F. P.; And It is ordered that the said Master do certify whether the said agreement is a fair and reasonable agreement.—Usual directions for production and examination, and for solr to give credit for sums received and to charge sums paid by him [Form 1, p. 268]. And the said Master is to certify the amount due from the said F. P. to the said solr, or from the said solr to the said F. P., as the case may be, having regard to any sum or sums of money which have been so received or paid as aforesaid, And this Court Doth reserve the costs of this appeal, and occasioned by the adjournment of the application into Court, and of the said taxation, all such costs to be dealt with by the Judge after such taxation and certificate, And It is ordered that no proceedings be commenced against the said F. P. in respect of the said bills pending this reference.—See Re Frappe, C. A., 28 March, 1893, A. 534; (1893) 2 Ch. 284, C. A.

NOTES.

The Solicitors' Remuneration Act, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 44), s. 2, authorizes the making of General Orders for prescribing and regulating the remuneration of solrs "in respect of business connected with sales, purchases, leases, mortgages, settlements, and other matters of conveyancing, and in respect of other business not being business in any action, or transacted in any Court, or in the Chambers of any Judge or Master, and not being otherwise contentious business"; and (by sect. 5) as to the taking by a solr from his client of security for future remuneration in accordance with any such order, and the allowance of interest; and provides, by sect. 7, that "as long as any General Order under this Act is in operation, the taxation of bills of costs of solrs shall be regulated thereby," and a General Order taking effect from the 31st December, 1882, has been made in pursuance of the Act.

An agreement between contractor and town commrs for execution of sewage works has been held to be "conveyancing business" within sect. 2: Exp. Caruth, 25 L. R. Ir. 478.

The words "not being business in any action, &c." are to be read as only qualifying the words "other business," which immediately precede; and the Act and Order accordingly apply to conveyancing business transacted in an action, or under the direction of the Court: Stanford v. Roberts, 26 Ch. D. 155; In re Merchant Taylors' Co., 30 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

A mortgagor who agrees to pay a lump sum to his solr for procuring a mortgage, though such sum includes the costs of the mortgagee, is a "client," and has employed the solr within the meaning of the Act: Re Palmer, 45 Ch. D. 291, C. A.; and as to the meaning of the word "client," see sect. 1, and Re Allen, 34 Ch. D. 433, 442, C. A.; Hester v. H., Id. 607; Re Metcalfe, 36 W. R. 137; 57 L. J. Ch. 82; 57 L. T. 925.

By r. 2 of the General Order, in respect of (a) sales, purchases and mortgages completed, the remuneration of the solr having the conduct of the business is to be according to a scale of ad valorem charges on the purchase or mortgage money contained in Schedule I. Part 1; and (b) in respect of leases, agreements for leases of certain kinds, and conveyances reserving rent or agreements for same, according to a scale of charges varying with the amount of the rent contained in Schedule I. Part 2; and (c) in respect of other business, including uncompleted business, settlements, mining leases, or licences or agreements therefor, reconveyances, transfers of mortgage, or further charges, the remuneration is to be according to the existing system as altered by Schedule II., which relates to charges for instructions for and drawing and perusing deeds, wills, and other documents, for attendances, for abstracts of title, and for journeys.

Schedule I. does not apply to transactions respecting real property, title to which is registered under 25 & 26 V. co. 53, 67, and 38 & 39 V. c. 87: see Gen. Ord. r. 1.

The General Order does not apply to a sale of land not situated in England: Re Greville's Settlement, 40 Ch. D. 441; but, by virtue of sect. 7 of the Act, extends to bills of costs in respect of business commenced or completed before the order came into operation, if taxed while it is in force: Re Field, 29 Ch. D. 608, C. A.; Re Stewart, 41 Ch. D. 494; Fleming v. Hardcastle, 52 L. T. 851; 33 W. R. 776.

A grant of a new easement is not a "conveyance of property" within Sched. I. Pt. 1, and consequently the scale fee is not applicable: Re Sander's Settlement, (1896) 1 Ch. 480, C. A.; approving Re Stewart, sup., and Re Earnshaw-Wall, inf.; but an advowson in gross, though an incorporeal hereditament, is freehold property within Sched. I. Part 1, and on a purchase the scale charge applies: Re Earnshaw-Wall, (1894) 3 Ch. 156, C. A.

The scale fee under Schedule I. Part 1, for "deducing title" and "perusing and completing conveyance" is only chargeable where the whole of such business is done; where there is no deducing of title, but only perusing and completing conveyance, the remuneration must be under r. 2 (c): In re Lacey and Son, 25 Ch. D. 301, C. A.; and so where a solr to a mortgagor of leaseholds simply produces and delivers an abstract of the lease: Wellby v. Still, (1894) 3 Ch. 641; and see Re Harris, Powell, and Goodale, 56 L. T. 477; Ferguson & Co. to Buckley, 21 L. R. Ir. 392. The fee includes costs (other than money out of pocket) in respect of the registration of a memorial of the conveyance of land in a register county: Grey v. Curtice, (1899) 1 Ch. 121, C. A.; and charges for plans which are mere copies, and the preparation of which does not require skilled labour: Re Read, (1894) 3 Ch. 238.

But the schedule applies although the only investigation of title required is the perusal of a single section of a private Act of Parliament: Exp. Lord Mayor of London, 34 Ch. D. 452; or the purchase is effected under the direction of the Court, so that the responsibility of the solr is diminished: Re Merchant Taylors' Co., 30 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

The scale fee for "preparing, settling, and completing lease and counterpart" (see Schedule I. Part 2) includes costs of negotiations for the lease: Re Field, sup.; i.e., negotiations which lead up to, and the preparation of the agreement which precedes, the lease: Savery v. Enfield Local Board, (1893) A. C. 218, H. L. (approving Re Emmanuel and Simmonds, 33 Ch. D. 40, C. A.); other negotiations falling within r. 2 (c): Re Martin, 41 Ch. D. 381, C. A.; Savery v. Enfield Local Board, (1893) A. C. 218; but not costs of release of an outstanding incumbrance on property sold: Exp. Bonass, 27 L. R. Ir. 375. The costs of the lessor's solr "for preparing, settling, and completing" an agreement for a tenancy for less than three years at a rack rent are governed by the scale for "leases or agreements for leases at a rack rent": Re Negus, (1895) 1 Ch. 73.

In estimating the costs properly payable by the lessee to the lessor's solr, the cost of the counterpart or duplicate agreement must be deducted from the scale fee when ascertained: Re Negus, (1895) 1 Ch. 73; nor does the scale apply to leases following a general printed form and requiring in each case only to be filled in with the names of the parties, the parcels, a plan, the rent, and so forth: Wellby v. Still, (1895) 1 Ch. 524.

In cases of leases at a rack rent to which the scale is applicable, the lessor's solr is not entitled, where the annual rent exceeds 100*l.*, to charge any percentage on fractional amounts of 100*l.* in the rental: In re McGarel, (1897) 1 Ch. 400, C. A.; and the fee for "agreements for leases" refers to agreements intended to be relied on as regulating the tenancy, not to agreements which, though referring to the lease, are collateral to it: S. C.

Where on sale in a partition action the Plt, owner of one-fourth, had the conduct, and his solr was paid under r. 2 (a), the solrs of Defts were held entitled to costs of perusal of conveyance, and obtaining execution under r. 2 (c): Humphreys v. Jones, 31 Ch. D. 30, C. A.

Where there is a sale and a resale and conveyance of a part to sub-purchasers, the purchaser's solr is entitled to two scale fees: Re Read, (1894) 3 Ch. 238.

Where several lots having separate and distinct titles are purchased and comprised in one mortgage by the purchaser, his solr is entitled to the minimum charge of 5*l.* or 3*l.* for each lot, and is not restricted to one charge for the business as a whole: Re Margetts, (1896) 2 Ch. 263.

A covering deed to secure debentures which are never issued is not a completed mortgage entitling the solr to the scale fee. Whether it would have been a "mortgage" within the rule if the debentures had been issued, quære. Whether a mortgage for future advances is a completed mortgage within the rule, quære: Re Bircham, (1895) 2 Ch. 786, C. A.

The scale fee is chargeable where the mortgage is to secure a past debt: D'Arcy to White, 31 L. R. Ir. 142; but not in respect of possible future advances: Re Barton and Irvine (1899), 1 I. R. 515, C. A.

By r. 3, drafts and copies made in course of business are to be the property of the client.

By r. 4, the remuneration prescribed by Schedule I. does not include stamps, counsel's fees, auctioneers' or valuers' charges, travelling or hotel expenses, fees paid on searches to public officers, on registrations, or to stewards of manors, costs of extracts from any register, record, or roll or other disbursement reasonably and properly paid, nor any extra work occasioned by changes occurring in the course of business, such as death or insolvency of a party, nor business of a contentious character, nor proceedings in any Court; but includes law stationers' charges, allowances for time of solr and his clerks, and for copying and parchment, and all other similar disbursements.

By r. 5, proper additional remuneration may be allowed for special exertions in exceptional cases.

Rule 6 provides that in all cases to which the scales apply a solr may, "before undertaking any business," by writing communicated to the client, elect that his remuneration shall be according to the existing system, as altered by Schedule II.; but if no such election is made, remuneration is to be according to the scale.

The notice of election must be given before any business in the particular matter is "undertaken": Hester v. H., 34 Ch. D. 607, C. A.; as to the acts which amount to undertaking the business within the rule, see Re Allen, 34 Ch. D. 433, C. A.; Re Stewart, 41 Ch. D. 494; Re Metcalfe, M. v. Blencowe, 57 L. J. Ch. 82; 36 W. R. 137; 57 L. T. 925.

An election properly made as against the client, a first mortgagee, binds the mortgagor and subsequent mortgagees: Hester v. H., sup.; and see Re Bridewell Hospital, 57 L. T. 155.

An official liquidator should not, without the leave of the Court, employ a solr who gives notice of election under the rule: Re United Kingdom Land and Building Assoc., 37 W. R. 486; 40 Ch. 671.

Rule 7 provides that a solr may accept from his client, and a client may give to his solr, security for the amount to become due to the solr for business to be transacted by him and for interest on such amount, but so that interest is not to commence till the amount due is ascertained, either by agreement or taxation. For the provision of the same rule as to interest, v. sup. p. 308.

By r. 8, "where the prescribed remuneration would, but for this provision, amount to less than 5*l.*, the prescribed remuneration shall be 5*l.*, except on transactions under 100*l.*, in which cases the remuneration of the solr for the vendor, purchaser, mortgagor or mortgagee, is to be 3*l.*"

On a sale by auction in lots of property held under one title, each sale of one or more lots to a different purchaser forms a separate transaction; so that where the scale charge for deducing title on any of the lots sold to different purchasers does not amount to 5*l.*, the solr is entitled to charge the minimum fee prescribed by r. 8 in respect of each separate sale: In re Thomas; Evans v. Griffiths, (1900) 1 Ch. 454.

The charges to be made in case of attempted or ineffectual sales are provided for by r. 2 of the series of rules applicable to Sched. I. This rule does not apply where an attempted ineffectual sale and subsequent effectual sale are not conducted by the same solr; in such a case costs must be taxed under r. 2 (c) of Gen. Ord.: Re Dean, Ward v. Holmes, 32 Ch. D. 209; and so must costs of an attempted ineffectual sale of property where there is no probability of the sale being effected for some years to come, the money required having been raised by mortgage: Re Smith, Pinsent & Co., 44 Ch. D. 303; and, semble, if in such case the same solr afterwards conducts a successful sale, and claims to be paid on scale, he must bring into account what he has already received.

By r. 9, where a property is sold subject to incumbrances, the amount of the incumbrances is to be deemed a part of the purchase-money, except where the mortgagee purchases. The rule applies where the property of a bankrupt is sold subject to incumbrances: Re Gullard, Exp. Harris, 21 Q. B. D. 38; and to the case of a sale by a second mortgagee under his power of sale: Fortescue v. Mercantile Bank of London, (1897) 2 Q. B. 236, C. A.

By r. 10, the scale as to mortgages is not to apply to transfers or further charges where the title has been previously investigated by the same solr.

Where, under a private Act, trustees mortgaged the fee of a settled estate in order to pay off a mortgage on the life estate and other incumbrances, the mortgage was held a further charge within the rule: E. of Aylesford v. E. Poulett, (1891) 1 Ch. 248, C. A.

By r. 11 of the same series, "the scale for conducting a sale by auction shall apply only in cases where no commission is paid by the client to an auctioneer. The scale for negotiating shall apply to cases where the solr of a vendor or purchaser arranges the sale or purchase, and the price and terms and conditions thereof, and no commission is paid by the client to an auctioneer, or estate or other agent. As to a mortgagee's solr, it shall only apply to cases where he arranges and obtains the loan from a person for whom he acts. In case of sales under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, or any other private or public Act under which the vendor's charges are paid by the purchaser, the scale shall not apply."

Where commission (which includes a lump sum: Burd v. B., 40 Ch. D. 628) is paid by the client to an auctioneer, the solr is not entitled to the scale charge, though the auctioneer merely offers the property for sale: Re Sykes, S. v. S., 56 L. J. Ch. 238; 56 L. T. 425; 36 W. R. 624; Wood v. Calvert, 55 L. T. 53; 34 W. R. 732; Re Wilson, 29 Ch. D. 790, C. A.; but the solr is not in such case deprived of all remuneration, but is entitled to charge under r. 2 (c): Re Faulkner, 36 Ch. D. 566; Parker v. Blenkhorn, Newbould v. Bailward, 14 App. Ca. 1; reversing Re Newbould, 20 Q. B. D. 204, C. A. Auctioneer's fee for attending sale and receiving the bids is a commission within the rule, even though payable by the purchaser under the conditions of sale, and unless the solr himself pays such fee he cannot charge the scale fee for conducting sale: Drielsma v. Manifold, (1894) 3 Ch. 100, C. A.; Cholditch v. Jones, (1896) 1 Ch. 42. Fees paid to valuers in order to obtain the sanction of the Court to a conditional contract for sale are not commission within the rule: Re Macgowan, M. v. Murray, (1891) 1 Ch. 105, C. A.; and on such a sale the work of the solr in negotiating is completed when the terms are agreed between the parties; and if the Court sanctions the sale he will be entitled to the scale fee: Ib.

The solr's commission for "conducting" a sale is chargeable upon the total amount realized, though the sale is in lots, held under different titles and sold to different purchasers: Re Onward Bldg. Soc., (1893) 1 Q. B. 16.

A sum paid to a local agent in respect not only of the particular sale, but of work previously done, is "commission paid" within r. 11: Re Withall, 39 W. R. 529; (1891) 3 Ch. 8, C. A.

The vendor's solr was not entitled to charge purchasers with a negotiating fee where a fee had been paid by them to a surveyor: Re Harris, Powell, and Goodale, 56 L. T. 477; and the mortgagor's solr is not entitled to a negotiating fee for merely introducing a lender: Re Eley, 37 Ch. D. 40.

The scale fee to "mortgagee's solr for negotiating loan" is not confined to loans upon mortgage of freehold, copyhold, or leasehold property exclusively, but is applicable to all cases of loans on mortgage: Re Furber, (1898) 2 Ch. 538.

A re-investment in land under the Lands Clauses Act is not within the exception in the last clause of this rule, but may be charged for according to the scale: Re Merchant Taylors' Co., 30 Ch. D. 28, C. A.; S. C., 29 Ch. D. 209; and the exception extends only to vendor's, and not to the purchasers' costs: Re Stewart, 41 Ch. D. 494.

The statutory exception in case of sales under the Lands Clauses and other Acts extends to a voluntary purchase by a local authority under the Public Health Act, 1875 (which incorporates the Lands Clauses Act): Re Burdekin, (1895) 2 Ch. 136, C. A.

By r. 5 of the rules applicable to Sched. I., Part 2, where a conveyance or lease is partly in consideration of a money payment or premium, and partly of a rent, then, in addition to the remuneration thereby prescribed in respect of the rent, there is to be paid "a further sum equal to the remuneration on a purchase at a price equal to such money payment or premium."

Where a sale of leasehold property is carried out by an underlease to the purchaser at an apportioned ground rent, the solr is not entitled to a scale charge in respect of the rent as well as of the purchase-money, but quære whether such a case is not within Sched. I., and therefore regulated by the old system as modified by Sched. II.: Re Webb, Still v. Webb, (1897) 1 Ch. 144.

Where a lease is granted at a rent on payment of a fine or premium, the lessor's solr is entitled not only to the scale fee on the rent under Sched. I., Part 2 (second scale), but to an additional fee in respect of the premium under r. 5 in Part 2 and r. 8 in Part 1 of Sched. I.: Re Hellard and Bewes, (1896) 2 Ch. 229; but the negotiation fee is included in the scale fee chargeable in respect of the rent, and the solr is therefore not entitled to charge a further fee for negotiating: Re Horn and Francis, (1896) 2 Ch. 797; following Re Field, 29 Ch. D. 608; and Re Robson, 45 Ch. D. 71.

Payment for one and the same piece of business must be either according to the scale, or wholly independent of it, and when a lease is granted in consideration of premium and rent, the scale fee is applicable, even though no abstract of the lessor's title has been furnished to the lessee: Re Robson, 45 Ch. D. 71; and see Re Hickley and Steward, 54 L. J. Ch. 608; 33 W. R. 320; 52 L. T. 89; Re Hasties and Crawford, W. N. (88) 95; 36 W. R. 572; Exp. Connolly (1900), 1 I. R. 1, C. A.

Under Sched. II., the fee of 1s. per folio for perusing is not payable to a solr making advances to his client upon security of real property and perusing title deeds for that purpose: Re Robertson, 19 Q. B. D. 1; nor to the perusing of abstracts of title, as to which the old fee of 6s. 8d. for three sheets of eight folios remains: Re A. Parker, 29 Ch. D. 199.

The directions empowering the taxing master to increase or diminish the charges in Sched. II. for special reasons apply to the items for "drawing, &c.": Re Reade's Trusts, Salthouse v. R., W. N. (89) 26; and see Re Rees, R. v. R., 58 L. T. 68. And as to the way in which the discretion ought to be exercised, and the power of the taxing master to increase or diminish fees, see Re Mahon, (1893) 1 Ch. 507, O. A. The words "other documents" in the heading to the schedule are not confined to documents ejusdem generis with deeds and wills, but include a case for opinion of counsel: Re Mahon, sup.; but see Exp. Caruth, 25 L. R. Ir. 478.

In the absence of written agreement the taxing master must tax according to the scale where applicable, although an item bill has been delivered on the client's request. Delivery of an item bill in the first instance does not preclude the solr when before taxing master from consenting to taxation according to scale: Re Negus, (1895) 1 Ch. 73.

SECTION XI.—ENFORCING ORDER FOR PAYMENT OF COSTS.

1. Order, under Debtors Act, 1869, for Committal of Client for Six Weeks for Non-payment of Taxed Costs, and a Sum fixed for Costs of Application.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c., it was ordered [recite so much as directs payment, and the taxing master's certificate]. Now upon motion &c., and upon hearing counsel &c., and upon reading the said order and certificate, and an affidavit of G., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion, and the said order and certificate upon C., and an affidavit of E. filed &c., whereby it appears that the said C. has, since the date of the said order, had the means to pay the said sum of £—, and in respect of which he has made default, and has refused or neglected [or refuses or neglects] to pay the same; Let the said C. pay to the said A. the sum of £— for his costs of this application; And Let the said C. for default in payment of the said sum of £—be committed to Holloway prison for the term of six weeks from the date of his arrest, including the day of such arrest, unless he shall sooner pay the said sum of £— and the sheriff's fees for the execution of this order. And Let any sheriff or officer to whom an office copy of this order shall be directed by the Masters of the Supreme Court take the said C. for the purpose aforesaid, if he be found within his bailiwick.

This order would now, since the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 52), s. 103, and the Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, 355—362, be made by the Judge or registrar in bankruptcy, to which jurisdiction the power is transferred.

In this case an office copy of the order was endorsed with a direction to the sheriff of Staffordshire for the committal of the Defts, the præcipe for which was dated the 20th Jan. 1871. The return of the sheriff stated that the Defts were arrested by him on the 27th Jan. 1871.

The order ought to direct an immediate committal, and not a committal in default of payment within a week from service, and should direct payment of a sum in gross in lieu of taxed costs, to avoid detention in prison until the costs are taxed: see also Ord. 7, Jan. 1870, r. 13; L. R. 5 Ch. xxxvii.

For previous order directing payment by monthly instalments, and in default liberty to apply for committal, see Hewitson v. Sherwin, 10 Eq. 53.

2. Attachment against Solicitor for non-payment of Balance found due from him on Taxation.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c., It was ordered (inter alia) that A. B., the above-named solr, should, within a fortnight after service of the said order, deliver to C. D. a bill of fees and disbursements in all suits, causes, actions, and other matters of business in which he had been employed as the solr for the said C. D., and that it be referred to the taxing master to tax and settle the said bill with all usual and consequential directions; And whereas the taxing master, by his certificate dated &c., certified that there was due from the said solr to C. D. £—. Now, upon motion &c. by counsel for the said C. D., and upon hearing counsel for the said solr; And it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that the said A. B. has made default in payment of the said £—, and that such default is a default by a solr in payment of a sum of money when ordered to pay the same in his character of an officer of the Court within the meaning of the Debtors Act, 1869; Let the said C. D. be at liberty to issue a writ of attachment against the said A. B. for his contempt in not having paid the said £— to the said C. D., pursuant to the said order and taxing master's certificate.—Costs.—Re Peters, Kay, J., 6 May, 1887, B. 650.

NOTES.

As to enforcing judgment or order for payment of costs by fiery facias, writ of sequestration, or other process of execution under O. XLII., see inf. Chap. XXVII., "EXECUTION."

An order of Court for payment of costs constitutes a debt within the exceptions under sect. 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 V. c. 62), capable of being enforced by committal to prison, on application by motion on notice (Gen. Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, r. 10), for a term not exceeding six weeks, under sect. 5, in default of payment of the debt (under 50*l.*, exclusive of costs) or instalments: Hewitson v. Sherwin, 10 Eq. 53; Rogers v. R., sup. Form 1; and see Reg. v. Pratt, L. R. 5 Q. B. 178. The above rule has not been expressly repealed, but the jurisdiction under sect. 5 has now been transferred to the Judge and registrars in bankruptcy: Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 52), s. 103, and rules thereunder; Bankruptcy Rules, 1886, rr. 355—362.

Where a solr is ordered to repay to his client an amount overpaid, and subsequently is ordered to pay the (reserved) costs of taxation, the amount and the costs are alike due from him in his character of an officer of the Court within the Debtors Act, s. 4, sub-s. 4, and he can be attached for his default in payment thereof: In re A Solicitor, (1895) 2 Ch. 66.

An order on a solr for payment of costs for misconduct as a solr, or for payment of a sum of money in his character of an officer of the Court, is also within the exceptions under sect. 4, and may be enforced by sequestration (v. inf. p. 452) or by attachment, which now, under O. XLIV, 2, is not to be issued without the leave of the Court or a Judge, to be applied for on notice to the party against whom the attachment is to be issued.

The term of imprisonment is limited to one year: 32 & 33 V. c. 62, s. 4.

Cases in which an attachment has been ordered against a solr for default in payment of a balance found due from him upon taxation, are: Re Rush, 9 Eq. 147; Re White, 19 W. R. 39; 23 L. T. 387; and see Re V., 1. R. 8 Eq. 355.

The liability of a solr to attachment is for non-payment of money or costs as an officer of the Court; not as an unsuccessful litigant: Re Hope, 7 Ch. 523, overruling Re Barfield and Rush, 19 W. R. 466; 24 L. T. 240; where a solr was attached for non-payment of a balance due from him quâ client: but see Esdaile v. Visser, 13 Ch. D. 421, C. A.

A solr or other person who has been imprisoned under sect. 4 (4) will not be discharged without an order obtained in Court from the Judge by whom the attachment was granted: Re Thompson's Estate, 22 W. R. 857.

The order for payment must be personally served unless otherwise directed.

In a proper case, substituted service of an order upon a solr to pay a balance may be directed: Re Mourilyan, 13 Beav. 84; Re Stevenson, 14 Beav. 27; Re Wisewold, 16 Beav. 357.

A suit could not be revived for the purposes of costs only. But the Solicitors Act, 1870 (33 & 34 V. c. 28), s. 19, provides that whenever any decree or order shall have been made for payment of costs in any suit, and such suit shall afterwards become abated, it shall be lawful for any person interested under such decree or order to revive [continue] such suit [action], and thereupon to prosecute such decree or order. This section applied only to an abatement which took place after the Act, although the decree or order for payment of costs might have been made before: Doggett v. E. C. R. Co., 6 Ch. 474; and see Huntley v. Wortley, W. N. (73) 4.

Payment of taxed costs may be enforced, notwithstanding the solr has omitted to furnish cash accounts of money received in respect of separate transactions of which the client was at the time aware: Re Lee, Exp. Neville, 4 Ch. 43. The Court will enforce against a firm of solrs an undertaking to pay a sum for costs: Re Woodfin and Wray, 30 W. R. 422; 51 L. J. Ch. 427.

An undertaking by a solr to repay costs if an appeal succeeds may be enforced by the Court in a summary manner: Swyny v. Harland, (1894) 1 Q. B. 707, C. A.

Under the Solicitors Acts, 1843 and 1860 (6 & 7 V. c. 73, s. 26, and 23 & 24 V. c. 127, s. 22), a solr's debt for costs was not extinguished by his being uncertificated, but only his remedy; and the want of a certificate did not exempt the client from payment of costs: Re Hope, 7 Ch. 766.

And items would not be disallowed solely on the ground that at the particular time the solr was uncertificated: Re Jones, 9 Eq. 63.

The Attorneys and Solicitors Act, 1874 (37 & 38 V. c. 68), s. 12, imposes a penalty not exceeding 10*l.* for wilfully and falsely pretending to be duly qualified to act as an attorney or solr; and provides that no costs, fee, reward, or disbursement on account of, or in relation to, any act or proceeding done or taken by any person who acts as an attorney or solr without being duly qualified shall be recoverable in any action, suit, or matter by any person or persons whomsoever.

In taxing a solicitor's bill of costs items relating to business done while the solr had not a certificate must be disallowed: Re Sweeting, (1898) 1 Ch. 268 (treating Re Jones as superseded since 37 & 38 V. c. 68, s. 12); and fees paid after the solr has taken out his certificate in respect of work done while he was uncertificated are "disbursements on account of an act or proceeding done or taken" while the solr was not duly qualified and ought to be struck out of the bill on taxation: Kent v. Ward, 70 L. T. 612, C. A.

Under this section, not only an uncertificated solr, but also his client is prevented from recovering costs from the party otherwise liable: Fowler v. Monmouth, &c. Co., 4 Q. B. D. 334; Verlander v. Eddolls, 51 L. J. Q. B. 55; 45 L. T. 543; 30 W. R. 104; Irvin v. Sanger, 58 L. J. Q. B. 64; 59 L. T. 894; 5 Times L. R. 171, C. A.

If on adjournment into Court, vary introduction as in Form 4; and as to costs, see inf. pp. 323, 329.

APPLICATIONS AND PROCEEDINGS IN CHAMBERS.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 39, any Judge of the High Court may, subject to any rules of Court, exercise in Court or in Chambers all or any part of the jurisdiction by the Act vested in the High Court, in all such proceedings as before the passing of the Act might have been heard in Court or in Chambers respectively by a single Judge, or as may be directed or authorized to be so heard by any rules of Court.

By the Court of Chancery Act, 1855 (18 & 19 V. c. 134), s. 16, the jurisdiction of the Judge in Chambers comprised such of the matters, in respect of which the Court was empowered by Act of Parliament to make orders in a summary way on petition or motion, as the L. C., with the advice of the Master of the Rolls and Vice-Chancellors, or any two of them, might by general order direct. But by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 17, all rules of Court must now be made in the mode there prescribed.

By Jud. Act, 1884, s. 13, the provisions of sect. 16 of 18 & 19 V. c. 134, are extended to all applications under any Act passed or thereafter to be passed under or by virtue of which the High Court of Justice or any Judge thereof is empowered to make any orders in respect of trust funds, or any other matters upon petition or motion in a summary way.

The section preserves the general jurisdiction of a single Judge to act for the Court: Re Howell Thomas, (1893) 1 Q. B. 670; Clover v. Adams, 6 Q. B. D. 622, 624.

Applications and proceedings in Chambers are now regulated by O. LIV and O. LV.

By O. LIV, 1, every application at Chambers not made ex parte is to be by summons; and by r. 2, every application for payment or transfer out of Court made ex parte, and every other application made ex parte in which the Judge or proper officer shall think fit so to require, is to be made by summons. Summonses are not to be altered after they are sealed except upon application at Chambers: r. 3.

R. 5 provides as to proceeding ex parte when any of the parties fail to attend; and r. 6 for the re-consideration of ex parte proceedings, and as to costs caused by the non-attendance of the party failing to attend; and r. 7 for costs thrown away by such non-attendance when the Judge does not think it expedient to proceed ex parte.

A female Plt to an originating summons should be described as spinster, or otherwise: Re Poinons, Sutton v. Martin, W. N. (91) 139.

By r. 8, where matters in respect of which summonses have been issued are not disposed of, the parties are to attend again from time to time without further summons.

A party making an application in Chambers may include in it all matters upon which he then requires an order or the directions of the Judge; any such application may be adjourned by the Judge from Chambers into Court, or from Court into Chambers: r. 9; and as to the power of one official to dispose of business for another, see r. 9a.

PROCEEDINGS IN CHAMBERS IN THE CHANCERY DIVISION—APPLICATIONS TO BE MADE THERE.

By O. LV, 1, the business in Chambers in the Chancery Division is to be carried on by the Judges to whom Chambers are attached in conjunction with their Court business, and, by r. 1a, in any proceeding in Chambers any party may, if he so desires, be represented by counsel.

The business to be disposed of in Chambers by Judges of the Chancery Division, in addition to the matters which by any other rule or by statute may be disposed of there, consists of the following matters, as set forth in O. LV, 2:—

“(1.) Applications for payment or transfer to any person of any cash or securities standing to the credit of any cause or matter where there has been a judgment or order declaring the rights, or where the title depends only upon proof of the identity, or the birth, marriage or death of any person.”

The generality of this clause is not qualified by those which follow: Re Brandram, 25 Ch. D. 366; Re Broadwood, 55 L. J. Ch. 646; 55 L. T. 312; so that an application under the Trustee Relief Act (now Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42) for payment of a fund exceeding 1,000*l.* to a person whose title depends merely upon proof of his birth must be made by summons: Re Broadwood, sup.

It has been held that the rule does not apply to a case of construction even by consent: Re Hicks, 63 L. J. Ch. 568; 70 L. T. 529; W. N. (94) 55, per Kekewich, J.; nor, semble, unless the fund is carried over to the separate account of the person to be identified: Re Birkin, W. N. (01) 33.

The rule applies to an application to carry over a fund to another action: Re Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. Co., W. N. (95) 85; 64 L. J. Ch. 688; 72 L. T. 627.

As to what amounts to an “order declaring rights,” see Re Brandram, sup.

The mere fact that the fund exceeds 1,000*l.* is not sufficient ground for presenting a petition: Bates v. Moore, 38 Ch. D. 381; commenting on Re Rhodes, 31 Ch. D. 499.

As to the safeguards afforded by the mode of procedure by petition, see Re Rhodes, sup.; Re Broadwood, sup.; Slater v. S., (1896) 1 Ch. 222, n.; 58 L. T. 149; 59 L. T. 315; Marsh v. Joseph, (1897) 1 Ch. 213, C. A.

“(2.) Applications for payment or transfer to any person of any cash or securities standing to the credit of any cause or matter, where the cash does not exceed 1,000*l.*, or the securities do not exceed 1,000*l.* nominal value.”

This sub-section (like sub-sect. 1) is of general application: Exp. Maidstone and Ashford Ry. Co.; Exp. Bala and Festiniog Ry. Co., 25 Ch. D. 168; and extends to applications for payment out of Court under the Lands Clauses Act, 1845: S. C.; Re Calton's Will, 25 Ch. D. 240; Re Madgwick, 25 Ch. D. 371; and the summons, if under sect. 85, should be sealed by the co. as a petition formerly was: Exp. Maidstone and Ashford Ry. Co., sup.; Re Madgwick, sup. But where the fund exceeds 1,000*l.*, application for payment out of a share less than 1,000*l.* must be by petition: May v. Dowse, W. N. (84) 122; and see Re Evan Evans, 54 L. T. 527; Re Haworth, W. N. (85) 48.

As to the necessity of an affidavit of no incumbrances on payment out of Court of money representing real estate, see Williams v. Ware, 57 L. J. Ch. 497; 58 L. T. 786.

“(3.) Applications for payment to any person of the dividend or interest on any securities standing to the credit of any cause or matter, whether to a separate account or otherwise.”

Clauses (4) and (5), relating to applications under the Legacy Duty Act, 1796, and the Trustee Relief Acts, have been repealed, and replaced by rules under the Trustee Act (O. LIVB, 6, and O. LV, 13A), as to which, v. inf. Chap. XLI., “TRUSTEES,” pp. 1188, 1194.

“(6.) Applications under 9 & 10 V. c. 20 (the Parliamentary Deposits Act, 1846), or any other Act relating to Parliamentary deposits, for investment, payment of dividends, and payment out of Court.”

As to procedure under the Parliamentary Deposits Acts, v. inf. Chap. LV.

“(7.) Applications for interim and permanent investment and for payment of dividends, under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and any other Act whereby the purchase-money of any property sold is directed to be paid into Court.”

As to the practice under the Lands Clauses Acts, v. inf. Chap. LIV.

That this clause is not ultra vires, see Exp. Lord Mayor of London, 25 Ch. D. 384.

Clause (8), relating to applications under the Trustee Acts, 1850 and 1852, has been repealed, and replaced by rules under the Trustee Act, 1893 (O. LIVB, 6, and O. LV, 13A), as to which v. inf. Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES."

"(9.) Applications on behalf of infants under 1 W. IV. c. 65, ss. 12, 16, 17, when the infant is a ward of Court, or the admon of the estate of the infant, or the maintenance of the infant, is under the direction of the Court."

As to applications in reference to infants, v. inf. Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

"(10.) Applications under 18 & 19 V. c. 43 (Infants Settlement Act, 1855), for the settlement of any property of any infant on marriage."

As to the procedure under the Infants Settlement Act, v. inf. Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

"(11.) Applications under the Copyhold Acts respecting any securities or money in Court. Notice of any such application is not to be given to the Copyhold Commissioners unless the Judge shall so direct."

As to the Copyhold Acts, v. inf. Chap. LVII.

"(12.) Applications as to the guardianship and maintenance or advancement of infants." See Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

"(13.) Applications connected with the management of property."

"(14.) Applications for or relating to the sale by auction or private contract of property, and as to the manner in which the sale is to be conducted, and for payment into Court and investment of the purchase-money."

"(15.) All applications under the Solicitors Act, 1843 (6 & 7 V. c. 73) (not being applications for orders of course), for the taxation and delivery of bills of costs, and for the delivery by any solr of deeds, documents and papers."

"(16.) Applications for orders on the further consideration of any cause or matter where the order to be made is for the distribution of an insolvent estate, or for the distribution of the estate of an intestate, or for the distribution of a fund among creditors or debenture holders."

As to further consideration, v. inf. Chap. XX.

"(17.) Applications for time to plead, for leave to amend pleadings, for discovery and production of documents, and, generally, all applications relating to the conduct of any cause or matter."

"(18.) Such other matters as the Judge may think fit to dispose of at Chambers."

By r. 3, any of the following persons—(1) the exors or admors of a deceased person; (2) trustees under any deed or instrument; (3) persons claiming as creditor, devisee, legatee, next of kin, or heir-at-law or customary heir, or as c. q. t., or by assignment or otherwise under any such creditor or other person, may take out, as of course, an originating summons for the determination, without an admon of the estate or trust, of any of the following questions or matters:—

"(a.) Any question affecting the rights or interests of the person claiming to be creditor, devisee, legatee, next of kin, or heir-at-law or c. q. t.

"(b.) The ascertainment of any class of creditors, legatees, devisees, next of kin, or others;

"(c.) The furnishing of any particular accounts by the exors or admors or trustees, and the vouching (when necessary) of such accounts;

"(d.) The payment into Court of any money in the hands of the exors or admors or trustees;

"(e.) Directing the exors or admors or trustees to do or abstain from doing any particular act in their character as such exors or admors or trustees;

"(f.) The approval of any sale, purchase, compromise, or other transaction;

"(g.) The determination of any question arising in the admon of the estate or trust."

Questions should be stated in the summons categorically and not in general terms: Re Harman, Lloyd v. Tardy, (1894) 3 Ch. 607. For forms of summons, see D. C. F. 516 et seq.

And by r. 4, "any of the persons named in the last preceding rule may in like manner apply for and obtain an order for:—

"(a.) The admon of the personal estate of the deceased;

"(b.) The admon of the real estate of the deceased;

"(c.) The admon of the trust."

Upon a summons under r. 3 there is no jurisdiction to determine questions which could not formerly have been determined in an action for the admon of an estate or execution of a trust: Re Davies, D. v. D., 38 Ch. D. 210; Re Carlyon, C. v. C., 56 L. J. Ch. 219; 56 L. T. 151; 35 W. R. 159; Re Royle, R. v. Hayes, 43 Ch. D. 18, C. A.; Conway v. Fenton, 40 Ch. D. 512; ex. gr. a question arising between legal devisees: Re Davies, sup.; or between a person claiming under the will and a person claiming adversely: Re Bridge, Franks v. Worth, 56 L. J. Ch. 779; 56 L. T. 726; 35 W. R. 663; unless the person so claiming submits to have the case heard on summons: Re Royle, sup.; or a proceeding seeking to render trustees liable for a breach of trust: Dowse v. Gorton, (1891) A. C. 202, H. L.; Re Weall, 37 W. R. 779, and see Re Stuart, 74 L. T. 546; Lewin on Trusts, 10th ed., p. 405; but a claim by heir-at-law, named as devisee, to real estate as undisposed of by the will, could be tried on originating summons: Re Hargreaves, Midgley v. Tatley, 43 Ch. D. 401, C. A.

This procedure is only intended for the decision of simple questions: Re Giles, Real and Personal Advance Co. v. Mitchell, 43 Ch. D. 391, C. A.; and the Court will not, on originating summons, try such questions as priority between mortgagees: S. C.; a dispute as to a debt turning on matters of fact; secus, where before the Court merely on a point of law: Re Powers, Lindsell v. Phillips, 30 Ch. D. 291, C. A.; a claim by ca. q. t. involving the setting aside of a release: Re Ellis's Trusts, Kelson v. Ellis, 37 W. R. 91; 59 L. T. 924; Re Garnett, Gandy v. Macaulay, 31 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; whether Deft was co-trustee with Plt: Elworthy v. Harvey, 60 L. T. 30; 37 W. R. 164; whether there has been a complete declaration of trust of additions to an existing trust fund: Re Walter's Trusts, Nelson v. W., W. N. (90) 132; 61 L. T. 872. And an application for relief against forfeiture of lease under s. 14 of the Conveyancing Act cannot be made by a lessee by originating summons, which is not an "action" within the meaning of sub-sect. 2: Lock v. Pearce, (1893) 2 Ch. 271.

Upon such a summons there is jurisdiction to give costs out of the estate, provided the proper parties are before the Court: Re Medland, Eland v. M., 41 Ch. D. 476, C. A.; and where the summons was for general admon new trustees might (previously to r. 13a) be appointed: Re Allen, Simes v. S., 56 L. T. 611; 56 L. J. Ch. 779; distinguishing Smith v. Gill, 53 L. T. 623; 34 W. R. 134; and a receiver may be appointed: Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; Barr v. Harding, 36 W. R. 216; 58 L. T. 74; before final judgment: Re Francke, Drake v. F., 58 L. T. 305; 57 L. J. Ch. 437.

An objection to the jurisdiction ought to be taken in Chambers: Re Davies, D. v. D., 38 Ch. D. 210; Re Turcan, 58 L. J. Ch. 101.

As to the power of the Court to make a declaration on originating summons under O. LIVA, v. sup. p. 165, and Dan. 774; and that the Court under that Order can determine whether a right of way passed by conveyance, Nicholls v. N., 81 L. T. 811; W. N. (00) 4.

By O. LV, 4a, "If for the purposes of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, it is desirable to ascertain the heir-at-law, or any devisee or legatee of the person who has died, having real estate vested in him, within the meaning of that Act, the same may be ascertained, and all necessary directions with regard to carrying out the provisions of that Act may be given, on any originating summons taken out under rr. 3 or 4 of this Order." R. 5 specifies the persons who are to be served with the summons under rr. 3 and 4.

By r. 5a, the procedure by originating summons is extended to the following relief sought in respect of mortgages, viz., sale, foreclosure, delivery of possession by the mortgagor, redemption, reconveyance, delivery of possession by the mortgagee; and by r. 5b, the persons to be served in such cases are those who, under the existing practice in the Chancery Division, would be proper Defts to an action for the like relief. And see Dan. 805, 806; D. C. F. 523 et seq.

The Court refused under this rule to decide a question of priority between mortgagees; and quære whether it has jurisdiction to do so: Re Giles, Real and Personal Advance Co. v. Michell, 43 Ch. D. 391, C. A.

As to proceedings in Chambers in admons, foreclosures, and redemption, see inf. Ch. XLIV., "ADMINISTRATION," and Ch. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

By r. 13, any application to a Judge in Chambers under the Charitable Trusts Act, 1853, s. 28, is to be made by summons; but no order under the Act by the Judge in Chambers, where the gross annual income of the charity has not been declared by the Charity Commrs to exceed £100, is to be subject to appeal except by leave of the Judge: r. 14.

For the limits of the jurisdiction of the Masters in the Queen's Bench Division, and of the registrars in the Probate Division, see O. LIV, 12.

Injunctions are not granted in Chambers in the Chancery Division (see English v. Vestry of Camberwell, W. N. (75) 256), except by consent.

By O. XIV, 2, applications for leave to enter final judgment are to be by summons in Chambers.

By O. XV, 2, an application for an account where the writ is indorsed under O. III, 8, is to be by summons in Chambers.

By O. XXXV, 6, 7, in actions "proceeding" in district registries, the registrar may exercise the jurisdiction of a Judge in Chambers, except such as the Masters are by O. LIV, 12, precluded from exercising, and the procedure is the same as in Chambers: v. sup. pp. 175—177.

By r. 6a, where a cause is proceeding in the Liverpool or Manchester district registries, the district registrar is to act as chief clerk (Master), and as registrar and taxing master according to directions to be given by the Judge; but no order for payment out of Court to an amount exceeding £50 is to be made except by the Judge in person, and no district registrar, who is a practising solicitor, is to tax costs.

On an application by petition for a stop-order the costs were disallowed, on the ground that it should have been by summons, though the mortgagor did not concur: Walsh v. Wason, 22 W. R. 676; 80 L. T. 743; and where Defts offered to submit to a perpetual injunction to be obtained on summons, and the Plt set the action down on motion for judgment, costs of summons only were allowed: London Steam Dyeing Co. v. Digby, 57 L. J. Ch. 505; 58 L. T. 724; 36 W. R. 497; Allen v. Oakley, 62 L. T. 724; W. N. (90) 121; and Defts having offered proper terms in Chambers, the Plts had to pay costs of an adjournment into Court: Real and Personal Advance Co. v. M'Carthy, 14 Ch. D. 188.

An application for a further affidavit in answer should be by summons: Chesterfield, &c. Co. v. Black, 24 W. R. 783.

ADJOURNING TO AND FROM CHAMBERS.

The power to adjourn matters for consideration in Chambers given by 15 & 16 V. c. 80, s. 27 (now repealed), is still frequently exercised.

By O. LIV, 9, in any cause or matter where any party thereto makes any application at Chambers, either by way of summons or otherwise, he shall be at liberty to include in one and the same application all matters upon which he then desires the order or directions of the Court or Judge. Upon the hearing the Court or Judge may make any order, and give any directions relative to or consequential on the matter of such application as may be just; "any such application may, if the Judge thinks fit, be adjourned from Chambers into Court, or from Court into Chambers"; and by r. 9a, on the application of any party, any Master, registrar, or taxing master, may, and, if the circumstances require it, shall, hear and dispose of any application on behalf of any other Master, registrar, or taxing master respectively by whom the application would otherwise have been heard; and any taxing master may tax costs under O. XIV, or other short bills of costs, in all causes or matters, whether assigned to him or to any other taxing officer of the same Division.

As to obtaining the registrar's note on adjournment to Chambers, when no order is drawn up, v. inf. p. 390, and O. LV, 29.

As to the adjournment of petitions for consideration in Chambers, see Chap. XXV., "PETITIONS."

The course of adjourning the whole matter to Chambers is also sometimes conveniently adopted in other cases.

An adjournment from Chambers into Court is not an appeal from the decision of the Master, but a continuation of the hearing in Chambers, and any party has a right to go before the Judge at the risk of costs, at any time before the Master's order becomes operative: Scott v. Homer, 60 L. J. Ch. 238; 63 L. T. 618; but if the Master makes an order which is drawn up, then a motion may be made to discharge it: Leeds v. Lewis, 3 Jur. N. S. 1290.

On the hearing of a summons adjourned into Court, where the Master has fixed a time for filing evidence, affidavits subsequently filed cannot be used: Re Chifferiel, C. v. Watson, 58 L. J. Ch. 177; 58 L. T. 877; 36 W. R. 806.

Where accounts are being taken, particular items ought not to be adjourned before the Judge unless a question of principle is involved, and a solr unreasonably insisting on an adjournment may be made to pay costs: Upton v. Brown, 20 Ch. D. 731, C. A.

When the further consideration of an admon summons is adjourned into Court, the course is to send a note to the registrar to the effect that the further consideration of the matter and cause is adjourned into Court, to be set down in the cause book, after the causes already set down; and if the parties desire to have it heard as a short cause, the note directs it to be put in the paper on a short cause day. See O. xxxvi, 21.

For form of summons for further consideration in Chambers, see O. LV, 72.

COSTS OF ADJOURNMENT.

Any objection to the jurisdiction on an originating summons should be taken in Chambers, or the costs of the adjournment, even though the summons be dismissed with costs, will not be allowed: Re Davies, 38 Ch. D. 210; and a solr will be ordered personally to pay the costs of an unnecessary adjournment on which he insists: Barnard v. Scoles, 37 W. R. 668; Upton v. Brown, sup. The costs of adjournment into Court are in the discretion of the Judge, and if the adjournment is unnecessary the party causing it may have to pay costs: Lloyd's Bank, Ltd. v. Princess Royal Colliery Co., W. N. (90) 99; 82 L. T. 559; 48 W. R. 427; D. C. F. 502.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MASTERS IN CHANCERY DIVISION.

By O. LV, 15, the Judges of the Chancery Division have power, subject to the rules, to order what matters shall be heard by the Masters, and what matters shall be heard by themselves, and particularly if the Judge shall so direct, his Masters shall take such accounts and make such inquiries as have usually been taken and made by the Masters, and the Judge shall give such aid and directions as he thinks fit, subject to the suitor's right to bring any point before him; but "no order appointing a new trustee, or for general admon, or for the execution of a trust, or for accounts or inquiries concerning the property of a deceased person, or other property held upon any trust, or concerning the parties entitled thereto, and no vesting or other order consequential on the appointment of new trustees, shall be made, except by the Judge in person," and summonses under O. LV, 3, for the opinion of the Court or a Judge upon the construction of a document or any question of law, and any application for the appointment of a provisional liquidator, and applications for substituted service, and for service out of the jurisdiction, are to be brought before the Judge in person.

Summonses are generally disposed of in Chambers by the Master, but every suitor has the right, under this rule and r. 69, to be heard before the Judge personally: Re Agricultural, &c. Co., 3 D. F. & J. 194; Hayward v. H., Kay, 31; Re London, &c. Assurance Co., 5 W. R. 794; Re Mitchell, 12 W. R. 39; Re Watts, Smith v. W., 22 Ch. D. 5, C. A.; Scott v. Homer, 60 L. J. Ch. 238; 63 L. T. 618.

As to the powers of the Masters, see r. 16, and by r. 17, parties and witnesses summoned to attend before a Master are bound to attend, and are liable to process of contempt for disobedience.

As a general rule, Masters should not personally take examinations, but should send them to the examiners of the Court: McAlister v. Walters, W. N. (90) 204; et v. Ib. 224, and sup. p. 111.

In prosecuting inquiries under an admon decree, any person able to give information as to the assets may be summoned as a witness, and must answer the receiver's questions, but not so as to make himself liable in a pending action brought by the receiver: Venables v. Schweitzer, 16 Eq. 76.

But after attending before an examiner appointed with his consent, under the Companies Act, 1862, s. 115, a witness could not refuse to attend because his depositions were being used against him in an action by a shareholder: Re Lisbon, &c. Co., 2 Ch. D. 785.

A party summoned as a witness cannot refuse to be sworn because he cannot have the aid of counsel: Re Electric Telegraph Co., 24 Beav. 137.

A practice excluding further evidence by a party after cross-examining on the evidence on the other side may, as a convenient general rule, be properly adopted in Chambers: Issard v. Lambert, 44 Ch. D. 253, C. A.

If a witness, summoned by the Master, refuses to attend, an order for his attendance, under O. xxxvii, 13, must be made before attachment can issue: Powell v. Nevitt, 55 L. T. 728.

As to whether a Judge at Chambers can commit for a contempt committed before him there, see Re Johnson, 20 Q. B. D. 68, C. A.

ASSISTANCE OF EXPERTS.

The Judge in Chambers may, in such way as he thinks fit, obtain the assistance of accountants, merchants, engineers, actuaries, and other scientific persons the better to enable any matter at once to be determined, and he may act upon the certificate of any such persons: r. 19, in substitution for the Court of Chancery Act, 1852 (15 & 16 V. c. 80), s. 42. For instances, see A. G. v. Chambers, 4 D. & J. 58; Case v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 27 Beav. 427.

The report of such an expert was merely to inform the Court, and evidence in opposition could be received: Ford v. Tynte, 2 D. J. & S. 127; Morris v. Llanelly Ry. Co., W. N. (68) 46; and the chief clerk could not refer the whole case to an accountant and adopt his report as part of the certificate: Hill v. King, 3 D. J. & S. 418.

Though the provision in the repealed Act giving this power to the Court as well as the Judge has not been repeated, the Court still directs experts to inquire and report to it, and the report is filed and entered in the order: Charlton Chalk, Land and Ballast Co., Ltd. v. Fuller, M. R., 18 June, 1877; but such an order can apparently be made only by consent. The expert has often been treated as a special referee, and so described in the order appointing him: Bond v. Tone, 8 Feb. 1884 (G. L. Reg. fo. 131). But (notwithstanding the suggestion of Fry, L. J., in the case of Lady Wenlock v. River Dee, 19 Q. B. D. 159, C. A.) semble, this is not correct, as the procedure laid down in the rules applying to the report of a special referee is not applicable when a report from an expert is required to assist the Court in arriving at a decision based on other evidence besides the report.

In Bendelow v. Wortley Union, 15 Nov. 1887, Stirling, J., considered that it was not proper to describe an expert so nominated as a special referee, and it was not necessary to draw up the order directing him to report. The report was filed and entered in the order as "The report of S. F. M., the person nominated by consent of the Plts and Defts to inquire and report whether, by reason of the situation of the place called 'The Hirst,' and now used as a small-pox hospital, or the management thereof or otherwise, there is danger created to the Plts, or any of them, which report is filed at the Central Office." See form of order, inf. p. 605.

And as to referring questions to official or special referees, see Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 V. c. 49), and O. xxxvi, 43—55, and inf. Chap. XXVI., "ARBITRATIONS."

SUMMONSES IN CHAMBERS.

By O. liv, 3, "Summonses shall not be altered after they are sealed, except upon application at Chambers."

4B, "An originating summons (i.e., every summons other than one in a pending cause or matter, O. lxxi, 1 (a)) shall be in the Form No. 1A or 1B, App. K., or in the Forms G. or H., App. K. to the Rules, with such variations as circumstances may require. It shall be prepared by the applicant or his solr, and shall be sealed in the Central Office, and when so sealed shall be deemed to be issued. The person obtaining the summons shall leave at the Central Office a copy thereof, which shall be filed and stamped in the manner required by law."

For forms, see D. C. F. 481 et seq., and for note as to the four different forms of originating summons now in use, Ibid. p. 482.

4C, "The parties served with an originating summons shall, except as hereinafter provided, before they are heard, enter appearances at the Central Office. A party so served may appear at any time before the hearing of the summons. If he appears at any time after the time limited by the summons for appearance, he shall not, unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order, be entitled to any further time for any purpose, than if he had appeared according to the summons."

4D, "The day and hour for attendance under an originating summons to which an appearance is required to be entered shall, after appearance, be fixed by notice, sealed with the seal of the Chambers of the Judge to whom such summons is assigned in the case of a summons issued in the Chanc. Div. Such notice shall be in Form No. 1F, App. K. The notice shall be served on the Deft or respondent by delivering a copy thereof at the address for service named in the memorandum of appearance of such Deft or respondent not less than four clear days before the return day. The day and hour for the hearing of an ex parte summons shall, in the Chanc. Div., be fixed at the Chambers of the Judge to whom the matter is assigned on production of the originating summons."

4E, "Every summons, not being an originating summons to which an appearance is required to be entered, shall be served two clear days before the return thereof, unless in any case it shall be otherwise ordered. Provided that in case of summonses for time only, the summons may be served on the day previous to the return thereof."

4F, "A respondent to an originating summons—

- (1.) Under the Solicitors Act, 1843;
- (2.) For solicitor to deliver papers or a cash account, or securities, or to pay money (July, 1901);
- (3.) Under the Arbitration Act, 1889;
- (4.) Under O. LVII, 1, for interpleader relief;
- (5.) Under O. LXI, 27, to enter memorandum of satisfaction;
- (6.) Relating to parliamentary or municipal election petitions;
- (7.) For inspection of register of joint stock company;
- (8.) For relief under Bills of Sale Act, 1882, by grantor of bill of sale;
- (9.) Under sect. 17 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882; shall not be required to enter an appearance."

O. XXX, r. 1 (v. sup. p. 24), provides that a summons for directions shall be returnable in not less than four days. Although no express mention is made as to the time for service, it is the practice to require a summons for directions to be served four days before the return day.

The third party procedure under O. XVI, 48—55, is not applicable to proceedings by originating summons: Re Wilson, A. G. v. Woodall, 45 Ch. D. 266.

As to amendment of originating summons, see Dan. 787; D. C. F. 499, 500.

SECTION II.—PROCEEDINGS UNDER JUDGMENT OR ORDER.

1. Leave to attend Proceedings under Judgment or Order—

O. XVI, 47.

UPON the application of &c., and it being alleged that the applicant is a claimant upon [or interested in] the estate of B., the testator [or intestate] in the pleadings named, and that the Plts on the — obtained a judgment [or order] for the admon of the estate of the said testator [or intestate], that the said A. hath not been served with a copy of the said judgment [or order], and is desirous of having liberty to attend the proceedings under the same, and upon reading the said judgment [or order], It is ordered that the said A. be at liberty to attend the proceedings under the said judgment [or order], dated &c.

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 542.

2. Classification Order—O. LV, 40.

UPON the application of the Plt &c., and upon hearing the solrs for the Plt, and for the Defts, and for C., D., and E., who have been served with notice of the Judgment, and have entered appearances, and upon reading the judgment [or order] dated &c., It is ordered that, for the purposes of the proceedings in Chambers, except proceedings in reference to the accounts of the said A., Mr. X. [solicitor] be nominated to represent the class of [describe the class].

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 543.

3. Another Form.

UPON the application of &c., Let, for the purposes of the future proceedings in this action before the Judge in Chambers under the judgment dated &c., Mr. P. [solicitor] be nominated, in pursuance of O. LV, 40, to represent the following persons who are residuary legatees under the will of D., that is to say &c.—Re Docwra, D. v. Faith, V.-C. B. at Chambers, 17 July, 1884, A. 1468.

This order was altered and framed as it now stands by the Court of Appeal.

4. Conduct of Action given to Plt in a prior Action.

UPON the application of L., the Plt in the first above-mentioned action &c., and upon hearing &c., and upon reading &c., It is ordered that all further proceedings in the firstly mentioned action be stayed, and that the costs of such action be costs in the secondly mentioned action, And it is ordered that the conduct of the secondly mentioned action be committed to the said L.—Costs of application to be included in costs of the second action.

As to the conduct of admon proceedings, see Chap. XLIV., “ADMINISTRATION.”

5. Service of Notice of Judgment on Infants or Persons of Unsound Mind—O. XVI, 40, 44.

UPON the application of the Plt &c., and upon hearing the solr for the applicant, and it being alleged that A., B., and C., who are respectively required to be served with notice of the judgment [or order], dated &c., pursuant to r. 40 of O. XVI, are respectively infants [or persons of unsound mind not so found by inquisition], as by the affidavit &c. appears; And upon reading the said judgment [or order] and affidavit, It is ordered that notice of the said judgment [or order] be served upon the said A., B., and C. respectively, and that a copy of this order be also served with each of the said notices.

This notice is to be served in the same manner as a writ of summons in an action: O. XVI, 44.

6. Order to bring in Accounts and Answers to Inquiries within a Time limited.

UPON the application of (the Plt) A. &c., and upon hearing the solr for the applicant, and for (the Deft) B., and upon reading the judgment [or order], dated &c., It is ordered that the said (Deft) B. do within — days after service of this order [or on or before &c., or subsequently, within — days after service of this order], leave in the Chambers of Mr. Justice N., situate &c., the following accounts and statements, duly verified by affidavit, that is to say &c. [state them from the judgment or order].

For such orders, see Russell v. R., M. R. at Chambers, 3 Dec. 1853, B. 172; Price v. P., M. R. at Chambers, Aug. 1853, B. 1241; Reece v. Grimley, M. R., 5 June, 1854. For like order to leave further account, Paterson v. P., M. R., 2 Dec. 1861, B. 2307. And see D. C. F. 594, 595.

NOTES.

By O. XVI, 40, “wherever, in any action for the admon of the estate of a deceased person, or the execution of the trusts of any deed or instrument, or for the partition or sale of any hereditaments, a judgment or an order has been pronounced or made—

(a) Under O. XV;

(b) Under O. XXXIII;

(c) Affecting the rights or interests of persons not parties to the action; the Court or a Judge may direct that any persons interested in the estate or under the trust or in the hereditaments, shall be served with notice of the judgment or order; and after such notice such person shall be bound by the proceedings, in the same manner as if they had originally been made parties, and shall be at liberty to attend the proceedings under the judgment or order. Any person so served may, within one month after such service, apply to the Court or Judge to discharge, vary, or add to the judgment or order.”

By r. 41, “it shall not be necessary for any person served with notice of any judgment or order to obtain an order for liberty to attend the proceedings under such judgment or order, but such person shall be at liberty to attend the proceedings upon entering an appearance in the Central Office in the same manner, and subject to the same provisions, as a Deft entering an appearance.”

And as to leave to attend admon proceedings, see inf. Chap. XLIV., “ADMINISTRATION.”

Where notice was served by Plts on a person not affected by the judgment, he was held right in appearing, and Plts paid all costs in Court below and Court of Appeal: Re Symons, Betts v. B., 54 L. T. 501; Dan. 811.

CONDUCT OF PROCEEDINGS.

By O. XVI, 39, the Judge may give the conduct of the action or proceeding to such person as he may think fit.

As to the conduct of proceedings in admon actions, v. inf. Chap. XLIV., “ADMINISTRATION;” and in the case of concurrent actions, inf. Chap. XXXIV., “TRANSFER AND CONSOLIDATION.”

Where the conduct is taken away from one party and given to another, the former will not be allowed costs of proceedings taken subsequent to the date of the order, but before it is drawn up: Re Minter, Slater v. Callaway, W. N. (81) 31.

SUMMONS TO PROCEED.

By O. LV, 32, every judgment or order directing accounts or inquiries to be taken or made is to be brought into Chambers by the party entitled to prosecute the same within ten days after the same shall have been passed and entered, and in default thereof any other party to the cause or matter shall be at liberty to bring in the same, and such party shall have the prosecution of such judgment or order unless the Judge shall otherwise direct.

Upon the judgment or order being left, a summons to proceed (r. 33) is to be issued, and upon its return the Judge, if satisfied by proper evidence that all necessary parties have been served, will give directions as to the manner of prosecuting the accounts and inquiries, the evidence to be adduced, the parties who are to attend, and the time within which each proceeding is to be taken, and will from time to time give any further necessary directions.

Where the judgment or order directs a deed to be settled, the party entitled to prepare the draft deed is, on the return of the summons to proceed, directed to deliver a copy of the draft to the party entitled to object thereto, who is to deliver his objections, if any, within eight days, for which period the proceeding is adjourned: r. 34.

By r. 35, the Judge may dispense with service of notice of the judgment or order, or may direct substituted service.

If all necessary parties are not parties to the action, advertisements for creditors may be issued, but no proceeding is to be taken until all necessary parties are bound: r. 36.

The chief clerk (Master) may decide all questions necessary under the inquiry: Wadham v. Rigg, 2 Dr. & S. 78.

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 540; and as to dispensing with summons in ex parte or trifling cases, see Dan. 906, note.

PROCEDURE ON SUMMONS IN CHAMBERS.

By O. XXXVIII, 1, the evidence on any summons may be given by affidavit, subject to the deponents being ordered to be cross-examined on the application of either party; and as to giving evidence, see O. XXXVII, 28, and O. XXXVIII, 20, 21.

By O. XXXIII, 7, any directions for accounts or inquiries are to be numbered as in R. S. C., App. L., Form 28. The object of this order is that the answers in the Master's certificate may be numbered to correspond. And so directions for sale of estates ought to be numbered, but other directions ought not. By O. XXXIII, 8, in taking any account directed, all just allowances are to be made, without any direction for that purpose in the judgment or order.

It is not usual to send to Chambers an inquiry merely involving a point of law: Sladen v. Whitting, V.-C. W., 26 April, 1860, Reg. Min.: but see Prichard v. Norris, 10 Ha. lii; Duffield v. Lenny, 1 W. R. 74; and mixed questions of law and fact are often so sent.

By O. XXXIII, 2, the Court or a Judge may, at any stage of the proceedings, direct any necessary inquiries or accounts to be made or taken: Dan. 486.

By O. LV, 40, the Judge may direct classes of persons to be represented by one solr whom he may nominate; and by r. 41, may require any parties to be represented by distinct solrs. By O. XXXIII, 9, in case of delay, the Judge may give directions for the better prosecution of the proceedings by the official solr.

By O. LV, 37, the ordinary course of proceeding is to be as in Court on motions. Copies, abstracts, or extracts of or from accounts, deeds, or other documents and pedigrees, &c., are to be supplied for the use of the Judge and chief clerk, and, where so directed, copies are to be handed to the other parties; but no copies are to be made where the originals can be brought in, without special directions.

O. XXXVIII, 20, 21, relate to notice of using affidavits, and O. XXXVII, 28, relates to compelling witnesses to attend.

By O. XXXIII, 4, accounts are to be verified by affidavit, and the items on each side of the account to be numbered, and the account referred to as an exhibit.

By O. XXXIII, 5, notice of surcharging is to be given.

O. LV, 44—59, provide for advertisements, and the mode of making and disposing of claims.

Under O. LV, 73, notes are to be kept of all proceedings in Chambers; and by O. XXXVIII, 11, any scandalous matter contained in any affidavit may be struck out by the Judge with costs as between solr and client.

By O. LI, 7, the Judge at Chambers may receive and act on the opinion of the conveyancing counsel of the Court; but (r. 8) any party may object to such opinion, and the Judge may decide thereon in Court or at Chambers.

By O. LV, 1a, it is provided that in any proceedings before the Judge in Chambers any party may, if he so desire, be represented by counsel.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 50, every order made by a Judge in Chambers (except orders by consent, or as to costs only, which by law are left to the discretion of the Court, see sect. 49) may be set aside or discharged upon notice by any Divisional Court, or by the Judge in Court, according to the course and practice of the particular division, and no appeal shall lie from any such order, to set aside or discharge which no such motion has been made, unless by special leave of the Judge by whom such order was made, or of the C. A.

The time for moving to discharge an order made in Chambers is (subject to the discretion of the Judge) fourteen days, by analogy to O. LVIII, 15; see Re Hardwidge, 52 L. T. 40; Re Munns and Longden, 50 L. T. 356; 32 W. R. 675; Heatley v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 326; Re Lewis, L. v. Williams, 31 Ch. D. 623, C. A.; 54 L. T. 198. And the rule is the same whether the order be final or interlocutory: Re Johnson, Manchester and Liverpool Banking Co. v. Beales, 42 Ch. D. 505.

The Court will, as far as possible, discourage motions to discharge orders made in Chambers: Boake v. Stevenson, (1895) 1 Ch. 358.

As to appeals from orders made in Chambers, see Chap. XXXVI., "APPEALS," p. 858.

COSTS OF PROCEEDINGS IN CHAMBERS.

By O. LXV, 27 (12), costs of proceedings in Chambers on the higher scale may be allowed on account of the difficulty of the case, &c.

By r. 27 (13), parties may be made to pay costs caused by their own neglect or non-attendance, and are not to be allowed to charge such costs.

By r. 27 (16), no costs of counsel attending in Chambers are to be allowed, unless the Judge certifies it to be a proper case, and this rule has been held to apply to solr and client taxations in Q. B. D.: Re Chapman, 9 Q. B. D. 254; 10 Q. B. D. 54, C. A.; but as to Ch. D., see O. LV, r. 1a, sup. p. 319.

By r. 27 (23), a party appearing upon any application in Court or at Chambers, in which he is not interested, or upon which, according to the practice of the Court, he ought not to attend, is not to be allowed the costs without express direction. Persons attending proceedings in Chambers under the common order without special leave may be ordered not only to bear their own costs, but to pay the extra costs occasioned by their unnecessary attendance: see Sharp v. Lush, 10 Ch. D. 468; Re Marshall, Bowyer v. M., W. N. (79) 12.

By r. 27 (24), the costs of only one application for further time are to be allowed without special order.

As to costs of creditors establishing their debts in Chambers under any judgment or order, see O. LV, 58.

A claimant failing in Chambers to make out his claim may be ordered to pay costs: Re Knight, 57 L. T. 238; Hatch v. Searles, 2 S. & G. 157, L. JJ., 16 Nov. 1854, B. 106; though not applied for at the time: Yeomans v. Haynes, 24 Beav. 127; Colyer v. C., 10 W. R. 748.

As to costs of proceedings in Chambers generally, see Dan. 811 et seq.; Lister v. Bell, 5 Jur. N. S. 115; 28 L. J. Ch. 162; Halliley v. Henderson, 4 Jur. N. S. 202. By O. LXV, 20, 21, the Master is, on the taxing master's request, to transmit to him any books, papers, or documents relating to the proceedings.

Mere liberty to attend proceedings in Chambers does not entitle the persons having such liberty to their costs of attendance as a matter of course; and to entitle them to such costs the order giving liberty to attend should make express provision to that effect: Day v. Batty, 21 Ch. D. 830.

Costs of action include the costs of properly working out the judgment: Krehl v. Park, 10 Ch. 334, sup. pp. 257—260.

SECTION III.—CERTIFICATE AND APPLICATIONS TO VARY SAME.

1. Order on Summons to vary Certificate heard in Chambers.

High Court, &c.

Mr. Justice X. &c. at Chambers.

[Date and Title.]

UPON the application of (the Plt, or Deft) A. &c. to vary the Master's certificate dated the — day of —, and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, and for &c., and upon reading &c., It is ordered &c.

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 710.

2. The like Order—on Summons Adjourned to Court.

THE application of (the Plt, or Deft) A. &c. to vary the Master's certificate dated the — day of —, which upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, and for &c. in Chambers, was adjourned to be heard in Court, coming on (the — day of — and) this day to be heard accordingly, and upon hearing counsel for the said (Plt, or Deft) A. and for &c., and upon reading the judgment [or order] dated the — day of —, and the said certificate, This Court doth &c.

If application refused, see p. 317.

3. Order on Motion to vary the Certificate.

UPON motion this day made unto this Court by &c., counsel for (the Plt, or Deft) A. to vary the Master's certificate dated the — day of —, and upon hearing counsel for (the Plt, or Deft) A., and for &c., and upon reading &c., This Court doth &c.

If application refused, see p. 317.

4. If Certificate is to be reviewed.

THIS Court doth order that the Master's certificate, dated &c. [If as to part only, as to that part which is contained in the — paragraph thereof, or, so far as it is thereby certified that &c.] be reviewed.—Wakefield v. Jones, V.-C. S., 14 Feb. 1857, B. 562; Willoughby v. Sanders, V.-C. K., 20 Dec. 1856; and see White v. Coram, 3 K. & J. 652.

5. Where Certificate varied without referring back to Chambers, or Discharged—O. LV, 71.

THIS Court being of opinion that &c., doth order that the Master's said certificate be varied so far as the same certifies that &c., and that the said certificate, as varied, be as follows &c., or be discharged.

MASTER'S CERTIFICATE.

By O. LV, 65, the result of the proceedings is to be stated in the shape of a certificate, which is to be signed by the Master, and, unless an order to discharge or vary is made, is to be deemed to be approved and adopted by the Judge.

By r. 69, any person may, before the proceedings before the Master are concluded, take the opinion of the Judge.

By r. 70, the certificate is to be filed at the Central Office, and shall thenceforth be binding on all parties to the proceedings, unless discharged or varied.

By O. LV, 68, where an account is directed, the certificate is to state the result, not set it out by schedule, but refer to the account verified by the affidavit filed, and specify by number any items disallowed or varied, and any additions by surcharge, and, if necessary, a fair transcript is to be made; the accounts and transcripts, if any, are to be filed with the certificate.

By r. 66, unless the circumstances require it, the judgment or order, or any documents, or evidence, or reasons, are only to be referred to, and not set out.

Special circumstances may be stated without a direction to that effect in the judgment or order: Dan. 935.

If the Judge shall so direct, the certificate shall be prepared by the solr of one of the parties, who shall obtain an appointment to settle the certificate and give notice to the other parties: r. 66a.

The certificate is not an order for payment of money within the 1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 18, so as to make a sum certified to be due carry interest: E. Mansfield v. Ogle, 4 D. & J. 38.

By O. LXIII, 13, "any Judge of the Chancery Division whose Chambers may be open for business during any vacation, or any vacation Judge acting on his behalf, may issue summonses for the purpose of any proceeding before any other Judge of that division at Chambers after the vacation."

By r. 14, "in the interval between the close of any sittings and the commencement of the next sittings, the judgments or orders of any Judge may be prosecuted at the Chambers of any other Judge by his permission; and in case the prosecution thereof shall not be completed during such interval, the prosecution may be continued at the Chambers of the same Judge if and so far as he shall think fit."

By O. LV, 70, the time within which an application may be made by summons to discharge or vary any certificate is eight clear days after the filing of such certificate. But in the case of certificates to be acted on by the Paymaster, without further order, or certificates on passing receivers' accounts, the time limited is two clear days.

A party who has not taken out a summons to vary the certificate cannot dispute it: Smith v. Armstrong, 6 D. M. & G. 150; Jaquet v. J., 7 W. R. 543; Mackintosh v. G. W. Ry., 4 Giff. 683; 11 Jur. N. S. 681; 29 L. J. Ch. 283; 1 L. T. 113; Lambe v. Orton, 6 Jur. N. S. 61; 8 W. R. 111; even as to matters appearing on the record: Leigh v. Turner, 14 W. R. 361; 14 L. T. 8.

A motion for payment into Court of money found due by the certificate should not be made until the eight days have expired: Douthwaite v. Hensley, 18 Beav. 74; and motion for leave to receiver to distrain for rent fixed by the certificate was adjourned to come on with a summons to vary the finding: Craven v. Ingham, 58 L. T. 486; W. N. (88) 83.

Leave to apply after the time has expired will be granted only under special circumstances: Howell v. Keightley, 3 D. G. M. & G. 325; Aspinall v. Bourne, 29 Beav. 462; Smith v. Armstrong, 6 D. G. M. & G. 150; Re Brier, 26 Ch. D. 238. Leave was refused where Plt allowed time to elapse in reliance on another appointment to sign the certificate being made: Re Ingham, W. N. (96) 12; 74 L. T. 21.

By r. 71, if the special circumstances require it, a certificate may, upon an application by motion or summons, be discharged or varied at any time.

By O. LV, 70, the certificate (with the accounts, if any, to be filed therewith) is to be transmitted by the Master to the Central Office, to be there filed.

Where the application to vary a certificate is by summons, which is the more usual way (see D. C. F. 711, note), it will be disposed of in Chambers or adjourned into Court, according to circumstances. If the cause is about to come on for further consideration, and the application to vary the certificate involves any point requiring to be argued by counsel, the summons is usually adjourned into Court to come on with the cause: see Mackintosh v. G. W. Ry., 4 Giff. 683; Cooper v. Everett, 2 W. R. 388; Hudson v. Carmichael, 18 Jur. 851; 23 L. J. Ch. 893; see 1 Kay, 613; 2 W. R. 503. It is set down in the cause book upon a note from the Master for that purpose, and is placed in the paper for hearing with the cause. Notice of the summons having been so set down must be given by the solr of the applicant to the solrs of the other parties. If the cause is not about to come on for further consideration, the application by summons to vary the certificate will either be disposed of by the Judge in Chambers, or if any of the parties desire to have it argued in Court, the summons will be adjourned into Court without discussion, and placed in the paper for hearing by the registrar on a note from the Master. An application to vary the Master's certificate cannot be made on the hearing on further consideration unless a summons has been taken out for that purpose: Re Dove, Bousfield v. D., 27 Ch. D. 687.

Upon a summons to vary the certificate it is competent for the Judge in Court to reconsider and reverse the decision of another Judge in Chambers: Hewlings v. Graham, 70 L. J. Ch. 568.

An irregularity in the certificate may be waived by attending to settle it with knowledge of the irregularity: Buckeridge v. Whalley, 23 W. R. 224.

Where a certificate has been discharged for irregularity, a summons to proceed must be taken out on the original judgment and not on the order discharging the certificate: Cross v. Maltby, 8 W. R. 646.

Where by a slip the cause was set down on further consideration without a summons to vary the certificate being taken out, notice of motion was allowed to be given after the time: Ashton v. Wood, 8 D. M. & G. 698.

In the winding up of a co. the certificate found a large sum due to certain policy-holders; and a summons to vary the certificate, though not taken out till six months afterwards, when a call was about to be made, was allowed to be heard: In re Arthur Average Association, 10 Ch. 545, 562.

As to proceedings to vary Master's certificate, see D. C. F. 710, 711; Dan. 937 et seq.

The physical act of varying the Master's certificate by striking out and altering portions of the original will not be ordered: Fox v. Bearblock (2), 30 W. R. 119, 342; W. N. (81) 159; Ib. (82) 9.

Upon a summons to vary, the Court will regard only the evidence entered in the certificate as that upon which the finding is based; but where the finding was not warranted by the evidence, and further evidence was adduced, the Court dealt with the matter on the whole evidence instead of sending it back to Chambers: Re Miller, Chapman v. M., 58 L. J. Ch. 728; 60 L. T. 634.

A summons to vary the certificate usually comes on for hearing with the further consideration. Where the rights of the parties on any point require to be immediately dealt with, a separate certificate is sometimes obtained from the Master.

CHAPTER XIX.

NOTES.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 34, all causes and matters involving the sale of real estates are assigned to the Chancery Division of the High Court.

By the Court of Chancery Act, 1852 (15 & 16 V. c. 86), s. 55, the Court was empowered to order real estate to be sold at any time after the institution of a cause relating to real estate, where it appeared to be necessary or expedient that it should be sold for the purposes of the suit.

For the protection of property or other like cause, sales under the section were made at any time with the same effect as on the hearing: see Tulloch v. T., 3 Eq. 574; Heath v. Fisher, 17 W. R. 69; 19 L. T. 805; 38 L. J. Ch. 14; Bell v. Turner, 2 Ch. D. 411; on showing a case upon which such an order would be made at the trial: Davis v. Ashwin, 47 L. J. Ch. 70; 26 W. R. 139; Mandeno v. M., Kay, ii.

By O. LI, 1 (which has been substituted for the repealed 15 & 16 V. c. 86, s. 55), "if in any cause or matter relating to any real estate it shall appear necessary or expedient that the real estate or any part thereof should be sold, the Court or a Judge may order the same to be sold, and any party bound by the order and in possession of the estate, or in receipt of the rents and profits thereof, shall be compelled to deliver up such possession or receipt to the purchaser, or such other person as may be thereby directed."

It has been held that the rule does not give the Court any power to direct a sale where it had none previously; and that, notwithstanding the omission in the rule of the words "for the purposes of the suit," contained in the repealed section, a sale of real estate can only be ordered when necessary or expedient for the purposes of the particular action: Re Robinson, Pickard v. Wheeler, 31 Ch. D. 247. The words were held to show that the section applied only to admon suits: London and County Bank v. Dyer, 11 Ch. D. 204; but in Davis v. Ashwin, 47 L. J. Ch. 70; 26 W. R. 139, an order for sale was made on the application of debenture holders. See now O. LI, 1b, inf. p. 339.

An action to administer personal estate and rents and profits of real estate is not a "cause or matter relating to any real estate" within the rule: Re Staines, S. v. S., 33 Ch. D. 172.

The order was made on the application of persons beneficially interested under a trust for sale, pending an inquiry and before certificate: Martin v. Hadlow, 1 W. R. 101; even where infants were interested: Mandeno v. M., sup.; Mars v. Best, 10 Ha. li.; but not when the object was to obtain a decision of the material question before the hearing: Prince v. Cooper, 16 Beav. 546; nor in an admon action against the will of a person beneficially interested who submitted to pay his share of the costs for raising which the sale was proposed: Lees v. L., 15 Eq. 150.

By O. LI, 1b, "In debenture holders' actions, where the debenture holders are entitled to a charge by virtue of the debentures, or of a trust deed, or otherwise, and the Plt is suing on behalf of himself and other debenture holders, and where the Judge in person is of opinion that there must eventually be a sale, he may in his discretion direct a sale before judgment, and also after judgment, before all the persons interested are ascertained, whether served or not." See Re Day and Night Advertising Co., 48 W. R. 362.

By 15 & 16 V. c. 86, s. 48, the Court was empowered to direct a sale instead of a foreclosure of mortgaged property, and now by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 41), s. 25, (1) any person entitled to redeem mortgaged property may have an order for sale, and (2) in any action for foreclosure, redemption, sale or raising and payment of mortgage money, on the request of the mortgagee, or of any person interested in the mortgage money or right of redemption, and notwithstanding the dissent of any other person, and that the mortgagee or any other person interested does not appear, and without allowing any time for redemption or payment of mortgage money, the Court may direct a sale on such terms as it thinks fit, including deposit in Court of a reasonable sum fixed by the Court to meet expenses of sale, and secure performance of the terms; but (3) in an action by a person interested in the right of redemption, the Court may, on the application of any Deft, direct the Plt to give security for costs, and give the conduct of the sale to any Deft, and give directions respecting the Deft's costs; and (4) a sale may be ordered without previously determining priorities of incumbrancers; and (Woolley v. Colman, 21 Ch. D. 169) at any stage of a redemption action. As to sales generally in actions for foreclosure and redemption, and as to orders under the Judgment Law Amendment Act, 1864, on the application of judgment creditors for the sale of their debtor's interest in lands delivered to them in execution by virtue of the judgment, see inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES"; and as to sales in lieu of partition under the Partition Acts, Chap. XLVI., "PARTITION."

As to the procedure by originating summons under O. LV, 5a, b, v. sup. Chap. XVIII., p. 321.

Power is also given by O. L, 2, for the Court or a Judge, on the application of any party to any action, to make any order for the sale, by any person named in the order, in such manner, &c., as may seem desirable, of any goods, wares, or merchandise of a perishable nature or likely to injure from keeping, or which for any other just and sufficient reason it may be desirable to have sold at once: see Bartholomew v. Freeman, 3 C. P. D. 316; and, upon admission of the facts in the pleadings, an immediate sale of Florida State bonds was directed under O. XXXII, 6: see Coddington v. Jacksonville, &c. Rail. Co., 39 L. T. 12; O. A., 27 Mar. 1878, A. 1232; and a sale of a foreign ship has been ordered: The Hercules, 11 P. D. 10; and shares in a limited company are "goods, wares, or merchandise" within O. L, 2: Evans v. Davies, (1893) 2 Ch. 216.

By O. LI, 3, a sale of property under an order of the Court, unless otherwise ordered, is to be with the approbation of the Judge, to the best purchaser that can be got, the same to be allowed by the Judge, and all proper parties are to join in the sale and conveyance as the Judge shall direct.

Although the usual practice in Chambers is to direct a sale in the ordinary way by an auctioneer, the property may still be sold by auction before the Master: see Pemberton v. Barnes, 13 Eq. 349; Waterhouse v. Wilkinson, 1 H. & M. 636; Sugd. V. & P. 98; Dart, V. & P. 1313.

PARTICULARS AND CONDITIONS.

By O. LI, 7, "the Court or a Judge may refer to the conveyancing counsel of the Court any matter relating to the investigation of the title to an estate with a view to an investment of money in the purchase or on mortgage thereof, or with a view to a sale thereof, or to the settlement of a draft of a conveyance, mortgage, settlement, or other instrument, or any other matter which the Court or Judge may think fit to refer, and may receive and act upon the opinion given."

By O. LI, 2, before a sale by the Court an abstract of the title is, unless otherwise ordered, to be laid before a conveyancing counsel for his opinion, to enable the Court to give the necessary directions respecting the conditions, and other matters connected with the sale; and a time for delivery of the abstract is to be specified in the conditions; but the Court has discretion to dispense with his assistance: see Gibson v. Horton, 19 W. R. 220.

When the Court or a Judge in Chambers has directed the abstract to be laid before one of the conveyancing counsel, a short memorandum of the direction is prepared by the registrar if given in Court, or by the Master if given in Chambers, and the party prosecuting the direction, or his solicitor, takes the memorandum to the registrar's clerk, who names the conveyancing counsel in rotation (ascertained by ballot) in a note at the foot, and that memorandum when left with the counsel is a sufficient authority for him to act: see O. L. 9-13.

The conveyancing counsel must, as between vendor and purchaser, be treated as the agent of the vendor: Re Banister, Broad v. Munton, 12 Ch. D. 131, C. A.

As to allowing the costs of a private counsel, in addition to the conveyancing counsel of the Court, in advising upon the title, see Re Jones' Estate, 6 W. R. 762, 814; 31 L. T. O. S. 291; O. LXV. 22; and sup. Chap. XVII. "Costs."

The formal conditions are prepared by the solicitor of the party having the conduct of the sale, and are, together with the abstract and memorandum of conditions, laid before the conveyancing counsel, by whom the special conditions are prepared and settled.

For the ordinary conditions of sale as to an estate sold under an order of the Ch. D., see R. S. C., App. L., Form 15.

It is the practice in sales by the Court to fix a reserved bidding for each lot: see Dart, V. & P. 1327; and see Re Peyton, 10 W. R. 515, that a power of sale given to trustees authorizes them to fix a reserved bidding.

By the Sale of Land by Auction Act, 1867 (30 & 31 V. c. 48), s. 5, the particulars or conditions of sale must state whether the land will be sold without reserve or subject to a reserved price, or whether a right to bid is reserved.

Where, therefore, the particulars merely state that the sale is subject to a reserved bidding, the employment of a person to bid up to the reserved price is illegal: see v. G., 9 Eq. 60; and see as to the former practice in Equity, Mortimer v. Ball, 1 Ch. 10; et v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

The Court will not knowingly pass off a bad title by the aid of special or misleading conditions: see v. E., 13 Eq. 196; Williams v. Wood, 16 W. R. 110; see v. G., 1 Ch. 13; Horne v. Bentley, 5 D. & S. 517; Re Jones' Estate, 6 W. R. 762, 814; 31 L. T. O. S. 291; Re Scott and Alcorn, 1895; 2 Ch. D. C. A.; Dart, V. & P. 1326; and a purchaser cannot be required to assume what is known to be untrue; but where the conditions on the face of them appear to give only a good holding title, the purchaser, if relieved from that, will only be entitled to such a title: see Banister, Broad v. Munton, 12 Ch. D. 131.

As to the manner of the preparation of conditions and particulars of sale, see Dart, V. & P. 1327; see v. G., 9 Eq. 60; and see sup. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

CONDUCT OF SALE.

The conduct of the sale has (except in cases of admon, where the property ordered to be sold is vested in an exor, admor, or trustee) been usually given to the Plt or other person having the carriage of the judgment: Knott v. Cottee, 27 Beav. 33; though but for the action he might not have been entitled to interfere in the sale: Dale v. Hamilton, 10 Ha. vii.; unless he has leave to bid: Domville v. Berrington, 2 Y. & C. 723; Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118.

But the Court will give the conduct to another where a probable benefit, by saving expense, &c., will result to the parties: Diron v. Pyner, 7 Ha. 331; Knott v. Cottee, 27 Beav. 33; e.g., under 15 & 16 V. c. 86, s. 48, to first mortgagee in a suit by puisne mortgagee: Hewitt v. Nanson, 7 W. R. 5; 28 L. J. Ch. 49; 32 L. T. O. S. 100; and in an action to foreclose an equitable mortgage, the conduct was, in the absence of contest, given to the Defts, because it was most to their interest to obtain the best price: Davies v. Wright, 32 Ch. D. 220; and as they would alone be liable for the costs of sale, they were not required, as was done in Woulley v. Colman, 21 Ch. D. 169, to give security. As a rule conduct is given to mortgagee, unless mortgagor will provide costs of sale and agree to a reserve sufficient to cover mortgagee's principal, interest and costs.

By O. L. 10, "whenever in an action for the admon of the estate of a deceased person, or execution of the trusts of a written instrument, a sale is ordered of any property vested in any exor, admor, or trustee, the conduct of such sale shall be given to such exor, admor, or trustee, unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise direct."

If the sale directed is, as in the case of shares, to be made out of Court, the trustee or exor is the proper person to have the conduct: Cobden v. Muynard, 1 N. R. 354.

If the conduct of the sale has been given to some independent person, neither Plt nor Deft, with liberty to bid, will be allowed to interfere by advertising the sale, without leave of the Court: Dean v. Wilson, 10 Ch. D. 136.

The solr of the party having the conduct is considered, as between vendor and purchaser, to be the agent of all parties to the sale: Dalby v. Pullen, 1 Russ. & M. 296; Dale v. Hamilton, sup.

Every party having the title deeds is bound to facilitate the sale: Knott v. Cottee, sup.; Livesey v. Harding, 1 Beav. 343.

LEAVE TO BID.

In general, a party to the action will not be allowed to bid at the sale, or become the purchaser without previously obtaining leave: Elworthy v. Billing, 10 Sim. 98; but the sale will not necessarily be set aside because a party to the action has without leave bid and become the purchaser: Wilson v. Greenwood, Ib. 101, n.; and see Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118.

By the Partition Act, 1868, s. 6, on any sale under the Act the Court may allow any of the parties interested in the property to bid at the sale on such terms as to the Court seem reasonable.

For orders under this section, see Chap. XLVI., "PARTITION."

Leave to bid is sometimes contained in the judgment or order for sale, but an order for that purpose is usually obtained at Chambers on notice to the other parties.

Leave to bid will not in general be given to the party having the conduct of the sale: Domville v. Berrington, 2 Y. & C. 723; Sidney v. Ranger, sup.; and see Verrull v. Cathcart, 27 W. R. 645, where (not following Pennington v. Dulbiac, 18 W. R. 684) leave to the party having the conduct of the sale in a partition action was refused;

—nor to an exor in an admon action: Geldard v. Randall, 9 Jur. 1085; and quære whether to the solr for the exor: Cvaks v. Boswell, 11 App. Ca. 232, 242, 245;

—nor to a receiver: Alvine v. Bond, 1 Flan. & K. 196;

—nor to a guardian ad litem: Dodson v. Bishop, V.-C. W. at Chambers, 29 May, 1862;

—nor to a trustee, unless all the cs. q. t., who are sui juris consent, and no other purchaser at an adequate price can be found: Tennant v. Trenchard, 4 Ch. 537, 547; Farmer v. Dean, 32 Beav. 327; and see Lewin, 556, 557.

Generally the solr of a party who cannot buy, is equally unable to buy; but where the client is at liberty to buy, his solr will not be disqualified from buying by the mere fact of his name appearing on the particulars: Guest v. Smythe, 5 Ch. 551.

As to the effect of leave to bid in putting an end to disability to purchase, see Coaks v. Boswell, 11 App. Ca. 232, sup.

CONSENT OF INCUMBRANCERS.

When the estate is subject to a mortgage or other incumbrance it cannot be sold free therefrom unless the incumbrancer consents, and if a party, he must elect at once whether it shall be so sold: Langton v. L., 1 Jur. N. S. 1078; Wickenden v. Rayson, 6 D. M. & G. 210.

An incumbrancer electing that the sale should be free from his incumbrance was ordered to produce and leave the title deeds necessary for the sale; but notice was to be given to him before their delivery to the purchaser: Livesey v. Harding, 1 Beav. 343.

Unless the estate has been ascertained to be free from incumbrances, the order for sale usually directs a preliminary inquiry what incumbrances affect it, and what are their priorities: v. inf. Chap. XLIV., "ADMINISTRATION," p. 1428; and the estate is ordered to be sold free from the incumbrances, if any, of such of the incumbrancers as shall consent to the sale, and subject to the incumbrances of such of them as shall not consent, leaving the incumbrancers to consent at Chambers to the sale, if they think fit.

By the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 5, (1) where land subject to any incumbrance is sold by or out of the Court, the Court is empowered, on the application of any party to the sale, to "direct or allow" payment into Court, in case of an annual sum charged on the land, or of a capital sum charged on a determinable interest in the land, of such amount as, when invested in Government securities, will be sufficient by the dividends to provide for that charge, "and in any other case of capital money charged on the land, of the amount sufficient to meet the incumbrance and any interest due thereon; but in either case there shall also be paid into Court such additional amount as the Court considers will be sufficient to meet the contingency of further costs, expenses, and interest, and any other contingency, except depreciation of investments, not exceeding one-tenth part of the original amount to be paid in, unless the Court for special reason thinks fit to require a larger additional amount." (2) Thereupon the Court may, either after or without notice to the incumbrancer, declare the land to be freed from the incumbrance, and make any order for conveyance, or vesting order, proper for giving effect to the sale, and give directions for the retention and investment of the money in Court. (3) After notice served on the persons interested, the Court may direct payment or transfer of the money or fund in Court to the persons entitled, and give directions respecting the application and distribution of the capital or income thereof.

Applications under the section should be made in Chambers: Patching v. Barnett, 30 W. R. 244; and see O. LV, 2 (14). For forms, see D. C. F. 670, 671.

On an application under the section the Court will decide a question of construction involving the determination of interests in future, if so to do is necessary in order to ascertain what sum ought to be set aside to answer incumbrances: Re Freme's Contract, (1895) 2 Ch. 256; Ib. 778, C. A.

On a sale of land charged with legacies, where releases could not be procured from all the legatees, and the purchase-money largely exceeded the incumbrances, the Court made an order under the section: Archdale v. Anderson, 21 L. R. Ir. 527.

The Court will not (even if it can) oblige a vendor to pay money into Court for the purpose of discharging an incumbrance, where so to do would inflict great hardship; e.g., where the amount necessary to procure discharge of a rent-charge far exceeded the amount of the purchase-money: Re G. N. Rail Co. & Sanderson, 25 Ch. D. 788; and (semble) the words "direct and allow" apply respectively to sales by and out of Court: Ibid.

DEPOSIT.

The ordinary conditions of sale provide that the purchaser is at the time of sale to pay a deposit on the amount of his purchase-money to the person appointed by the Judge to receive it.

The person appointed to receive the deposit is usually required to enter into a recognizance with one or more sureties duly to account for and pay what he may receive, or to transfer into Court a fund as security for the deposit to be received: see Form 8, sup. p. 335. From the expense of giving security it is not often required on the sale of small properties, or where the parties being all sui juris agree to waive it: see Dan. 880. For form of recognizance, see D. C. F. 646 seq.

Where a deposit has been received at the sale the certificate appoints a day for its payment into Court without further order; and the recipient making default in paying it in may be compelled, by an order to be obtained at Chambers on summons, to pay it in within a limited time: see Form 9, sup. p. 335.

Auctioneers were held justified in handing over deposit, less their charges, to the vendor's solr, he, and not they, being the proper person to pay it into Court: Brown v. Farebrother, 58 L. J. Ch. 3; 59 L. T. 822.

SALE OUT OF COURT.

By O. LI, 1a, "in all cases where a sale, mortgage, partition, or exchange is ordered, the Court or a Judge shall have power, in addition to the powers already existing, with a view to avoiding expense or delay, or for other good reason, to authorize the same to be carried out, either as at present (a) by laying proposals before the Judge in Chambers for his sanction; or (b) by proceedings altogether out of Court, any moneys produced thereby being paid into Court or to trustees, or otherwise dealt with as the Judge in Chambers may order. Provided that the Judge shall not authorize the said proceedings altogether out of Court, unless and until he is satisfied, by such evidence as he shall deem sufficient, that all persons interested in the estate to be sold, mortgaged, or exchanged, are before the Court, or are bound by the order for sale, mortgage, partition, or exchange, and every order authorizing the said proceedings altogether out of Court shall be prefaced by a declaration that the Judge is so satisfied as aforesaid, and a statement of the evidence upon which such declaration is made." For O. LI, 1 (b), v. sup. p. 339.

Kay, J., in directing a sale out of Court, required that the reserved bid and the auctioneer's remuneration be fixed by the Master, and the purchase-money paid directly into Court: Pitt v. White, 57 L. T. 659; Re Stedman, 58 L. T. 709.

Where at an auction a stranger, having no intention to buy, made several biddings, and ran up the price, the vendors, having no knowledge of these dishonest biddings, were able to enforce the contract: Union Bank of London v. Munster, 37 Ch. D. 51; 36 W. R. 72.

Where infants were interested, the Court required the allegations in the claim to be verified by affidavit: Willis v. W., 38 W. R. 7; 61 L. T. 610.

SALE BY PRIVATE CONTRACT.

Under a judgment for sale, the sale is as a rule by public auction; but proposals may be carried in for sale by private contract: O. LI, 1a. An advantageous offer will be at once accepted: Dowle v. Lucy, 4 Ha. 311; and without inquiry in Chambers, if the evidence is satisfactory: Pimm v. Insall, 10 Ha. lxxiv.; Dart, V. & P. 1313.

Property, which the Plt was authorized to sell by auction, could not, after an attempt, which failed, to sell in that way, be sold by tender in Chambers, without an express order to that effect: Berry v. Gibbons, 25 Eq. 150; but where the sale by auction which failed was one of the terms of a compromise which had been sanctioned by the Court, and was not pursuant to any actual direction, a subsequent sale by private contract was not invalid: Bousfield v. Hodges, 33 Beav. 90.

As to the duty of a person in a fiduciary position purchasing property which is being sold under the direction of the Court to make fair disclosure of information in his possession, and that it does not follow that because information on some material point is offered or given on request by the purchaser, it must therefore be given on all others, as to which it is neither offered nor requested, and concerning which there is no implied representation, positive or negative, direct or indirect, in what is actually stated, see Coaks v. Boswell, 11 App. Ca. 232; rev. S. C., 27 Ch. D. 424, C. A.

CERTIFYING RESULT.

The ordinary conditions of sale (see R. S. C., App. L. 15) fix a time at which the Master will proceed to certify the result of the sale when the purchaser or his solrs may attend. For forms, see D. C. F. 652 et seq.

By O. LI, 6a (R. S. C. Dec. 1885), the particulars of sale are to be signed by, and the result of the sale certified under the hands of, the auctioneer and the solr of the party having the conduct of the sale, and it is not necessary to file any affidavit verifying the particulars or the result of the sale. See Dan. 883. Such certificate, with the particulars and bidding paper, which are to be referred to therein (see Form 16, R. S. C. App. L., as substituted by r. 6a), are to be left at Chambers at least a clear day before the day appointed for settling the Master's certificate: O. LI, 6.

As to preparing and signing the certificate, see O. LV, 66a and 67, sup. Chap. XVIII., "CHAMBERS"; and it need not be signed by the Judge; and unless an order to discharge or vary the certificate is made, is to be deemed to be approved and adopted by the Judge: r. 65.

The certificate is transmitted by the Master to the Central Office to be there filed, and thenceforth becomes binding on all parties to the proceedings, unless discharged or varied on application by summons, within eight clear days after the filing; subject to the power of the Court, on motion or summons, to open any such certificate at any time after the same has become binding: O. LV, 70, 71; and see Bridger v. Penfold, 1 K. & J. 28; Barlow v. Osborne, 6 H. L. C. 556.

Until the certificate becomes binding, the highest bidder has not become the purchaser with the rights or liabilities of an owner; and any loss to the property by fire or otherwise falls on the vendor: Exp. Minor, 11 Ves. 559; Twiggy v. Fifield, 13 Ves. 518; and see Palmer v. Goren, 4 W. R. 688.

After the certificate becomes binding, any loss arising from accident, without fault of the vendor, falls on the purchaser, who is regarded in equity as the owner: Robertson v. Skelton, 12 Beav. 260; and the sale may be enforced against his reprieve, though not, as has been said, without suit for specific performance: see Sugd. V. & P. 109.

The purchaser of a mere life estate is in a different position, and must complete, though the life drops in the interval before the certificate becomes absolute: Anson v. Towgood, 1 J. & W. 637; Vesey v. Elwood, 3 Dr. & War. 74; and see Millican v. Vanderplank, 11 Ha. 136, 140.

Formerly, in the case of sales, under a decree or order of the Court, by public auction or by sealed tenders (though not by private contract, see Millican v. Vanderplank, 11 Ha. 136), one common ground of application before the expiration of the eight days was to have the biddings opened, i. e., that an intending purchaser might be allowed to offer an advance upon the price for which the estate was originally sold, and for this purpose, that the property might again be submitted to public competition: see Waterhouse v. Wilkinson, 1 H. & M. 636; Barlow v. Osborne, 6 H. L. C. 556; Re Jones, 1 Giff. 284; 8 W. R. 56; Ewing v. Waite, 1 Eq. 440. And for the practice in such cases, see Seton, 3rd ed. 1202-7; Dart, V. & P. 1330, 1331.

But by the Sale of Land by Auction Act, 1867 (30 & 31 V. c. 48), s. 7, the highest bond fide bidder at a sale by auction of land under an order of the Court, provided he has bid a sum equal to or higher than the reserved price (if any), will be declared and allowed the purchaser, unless the Court or Judge, on the ground of improper conduct in the management of the sale, upon the application of any person interested in the land (such application to be made before the Master's certificate of the result of the sale has become binding) either opens the biddings, holding such purchaser bound by his bidding, or discharges him from being the purchaser, and orders the property to be resold upon such terms, as to costs or otherwise, as the Court or Judge shall think fit,

The principle of the Act, preventing the opening of biddings, applies as much to sales by private contract as by public auction : Re Bartlett, Newman v. Hook, 16 Ch. D. 561.

To open biddings since this Act there must have been unfair or grossly improper conduct, bordering on fraud, in the management of the sale, not merely error of judgment : Delves v. D., 20 Eq. 77 ; Brown v. Oakshott, 38 L. J. Ch. 717 ; Griffiths v. Jones, 15 Eq. 279 ; Re Bartlett, sup. ; Re Oriental Bank Corporation, 56 L. T. 868.

Mortgagees selling under the direction of the Court are not prejudiced by the acts of other parties in employing a person to make fictitious biddings : Union Bank of London v. Munster, 37 Ch. D. 51.

SECTION II.—COMPLETION OF SALE.

1. Inquiry as to Title.

LET an inquiry be made whether a good title can be made to the hereditaments (comprised in Lot —) whereof A. has been allowed the purchaser by the Master's certificate [or the order], dated &c., and being (part of) the estates directed to be sold by the judgment or order, dated &c.

For inquiries as to title in specific performance actions, see Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

2. Order to pay in Purchase-Money on Purchaser's Application—Deposit—Timber—Interest—Title accepted.

UPON the application by summons dated &c., of A., the person by the Master's certificate dated &c., certified to be [or by the order dated &c., allowed] the purchaser of (the hereditaments comprised in Lot — part of) the estates sold under the judgment [or order] dated &c. ; and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, and for the Plt [or Deft B., the party having the conduct of the sale], requesting the investment of the purchase-money ; and upon reading the said judgment [or order] and certificate (and the conditions of sale and the certificate of the fund) ; and the applicant by his solr declaring himself content with the title to the premises, Let the applicant A., on or before the — day of — lodge into Court, as directed in the schedule hereto, £—, being the purchase-money for the premises [If deposit made, being the balance of the purchase-money for the premises, after deducting the sum of £—, paid as a deposit at the time of sale ; If timber, and the sum of £—, the amount of the valuation of the timber on the premises ; If interest, and the sum of £— for interest on the said sum of £— at the rate of £— p. c. per ann. from the — day of — to the said — day of — after deducting income tax] ; And Let, upon such payment being made, the applicant be let into possession of the premises, and into receipt of the rents and profits thereof, from the — day of —, and all proper parties are to join in and execute a proper conveyance of the premises to the applicant, or as he shall direct, such conveyance to be settled by the Judge, in case the parties differ; And the said sum of £— is [If so, and the said sums of £— and £— are] not to be paid out [except for the purchase of such anns, and such anns are not to be sold, transferred, or otherwise disposed of] without notice to the applicant.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 3, p. 206.]

N.B.—This order is now rarely made, the money being lodged in Court on a Master's schedule under O. LI, 3a: see D. C. F. 659, and infra, p. 351, notes.

For orders to pay in balance of purchase-money, after paying off incumbrances, or where mortgage debts are to be kept on foot, see Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

For order to pay in purchase-money of a life policy, and thereupon the purchaser "to be entitled to the benefits of the said policy from the — day of —," with directions to assign and assure the same to him, see Cobbold v. Fisk, V.-C. W. at Chambers, 19 Jan. 1854, A. 337.

Where there are several purchasers, they may all be comprised in one schedule. See D. C. F. 661, 662.

3. Paying in Purchase-Money by Instalments.

UPON the application of B. &c. [Form 2, sup.], and the applicants, by their solr, declaring themselves content with the title to &c., Let the said B. &c., on or before &c., lodge the sum of £16,200 (being the balance of £21,600, the purchase-money for the hereditaments comprised in Lot 1, in the conditions of sale mentioned, after deducting £5,400, the first instalment already paid into Court, pursuant to the order dated &c.), and interest, as after mentioned, into Court &c., by the instalments, and within the respective times mentioned in the schedule hereto, together with interest as therein mentioned.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 3, p. 206.]

4. Order to enforce Payment into Court, on Vendor's Application— Title held to be accepted.

UPON the application of the Plt, and upon reading an affidavit of &c. of service on A., the purchaser, "And it appearing to the satisfaction of the Judge that the said A., the purchaser of the said lots, has not taken any objection to the title to the hereditaments comprised in the said lots respectively, within the time limited by the conditions of sale, and that the only requisitions upon or with respect to the same, or the abstract thereof made by the said A. have been fully and satisfactorily complied with, and the Judge being of opinion that the said A. is to be deemed to have approved of and accepted the title to the said lots."—Directions to lodge the purchase-money, with interest; and thereupon for possession, conveyance, and notice [sup., Form 2]; and Let the said A. pay to the Plt B. his costs of this application, to be taxed &c.—Jones v. Gloster, V.-C. K. at Chambers, 28 Nov. 1861, A. 2239.

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 671.

5. Order for Purchaser to leave Conveyance to be settled.

LET D. (the purchaser), within four days after service of this order, leave at the Chambers of the Judge, situate &c., the draft of the conveyance of &c., to the intent that such draft may be settled by the Judge pursuant to the order dated &c.—Leach v. Westall, V.-C. M. at Chambers, 18 March, 1870, B. 732; Goodwin v. Lanceman, V.-C. M. at Chambers, 23 Nov. 1876, A. 1981.

NOTES.

DELIVERY OF ABSTRACT—INVESTIGATION OF TITLE.

The general conditions of sale provide (R. S. C. App. L. 15) that the vendor within a specified time (usually eight days) after the certificate has become binding shall deliver to each purchaser or his solicitor an abstract of the title to the lot purchased, and also that each purchaser shall within four days after actual delivery of the abstract deliver his objections and requisitions, and upon the expiration of such last-mentioned time (and in this respect time is to be of the essence of the contract) the title shall be considered as approved of and accepted, subject only to such objections and requisitions, if any.

Delivery of the abstract by the vendor may be compelled by order on summons: see Dan. 885.

If objections and requisitions are not delivered, or, being delivered, are satisfactorily disposed of, a direction signed by the Master for the payment of the purchase-money into Court may be obtained at Chambers, and such direction is a sufficient authority for the Paymaster to receive the money: O. LI, 3a; or an order for payment in of the purchase-money may, on the expiration of the time fixed for payment by the conditions, and without referring the title, be obtained at Chambers, at the cost of the purchaser, and such order may be enforced by sequestration: O. XLII, 4.

If the purchaser's objections or requisitions cannot be satisfactorily disposed of between him and the vendor, the proper course is to raise the objections to the title either on summons obtained by the purchaser for an inquiry into the title (the mode also provided by the V. & P. Act, 1874, s. 9, as to which v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE"), or on summons obtained by the vendor for payment into Court of the purchase-money: see Dan. 886. If the vendor cannot in Chambers remove the objections, the matter is adjourned for argument in Court: Pegg v. Wisden, 16 Jur. 1105. A reference upon the title may also be directed to the conveyancing counsel.

If after such inquiry the title is found good, the purchaser may be ordered to pay his purchase-money into Court, and in default process of execution, by sequestration or otherwise, under O. XLII, 4, 6 (and see Robinson v. Galland, 37 W. R. 396; 60 L. T. 697; Bell v. Denver, 54 L. T. 729; 34 W. R. 638), may issue or a resale be ordered.

If the title is found bad, he may apply by summons to be discharged, and for his costs: see inf. Sect. III., p. 359.

In investigating the title, the purchaser should ascertain not only that the title is good, but that the Court, from all proper persons being parties to the action or bound by the judgment, had jurisdiction to direct a sale: Lechmere v. Brasier, 2 J. & W. 287; Calvert v. Godfrey, 6 Beav. 97; Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Sch. & Lef. 577; Pigott v. P., 2 N. R. 14; and that the sale was in accordance with the judgment: Colclough v. Sterum, 3 Bli. 181; Talbott v. Minett, 6 Ir. Ch. 83; and see Waters v. W., 15 W. R. 191; 36 L. J. Ch. 195; 15 L. T. 406; Beioley v. Carter, 4 Ch. 230. The purchaser will be protected against parties to the action, and all persons coming in under the judgment: Tommey v. White, 3 H. L. C. 63; Sugd. V. & P. 111; but not against persons of whom the purchaser has actual notice that they ought to have been, but are not, parties: Dart, V. & P. 1350, 1352; and therefore he should see that he obtains a discharge from all judgment creditors, or that they are bound by the judgment, whether he obtains the legal or equitable estate; and is entitled to require their concurrence: Grey Coat Sc. v. Westminster Improvement Commrs, 1 D. & J. 531; Sugd. V. & P. 111; Dart, V. & P. 1346; or a release of the estate from their charge, with costs occasioned by their refusal: Moscrop v. Sandeman, 9 Jur. N.S. 1147; 9 L. T. 352.

By the V. & P. Act, 1874 (37 & 38 V. c. 78), s. 1, in the completion of any contract of sale of land after 31 Dec. 1874, subject to any stipulation to the contrary in the contract, forty years is substituted for sixty years as the root of title, but earlier title than forty years may be required in cases similar to those in which earlier title than sixty years might before the Act be required.

A purchaser under a judgment will be compelled to take an equitable title provided the legal estate can be got in, e.g. when outstanding in an infant: Freeland v. Pearson, 7 Eq. 247; Sugd. V. & P. 397; but will not be compelled to take a doubtful title: Ib. (s); and see Palmer v. Locke, 15 Ch. D. 294, C. A.; and inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

The purchaser is entitled to his costs of the inquiry when the title proves good on grounds not appearing on the abstract: Fielder v. Higginson, 3 V. & B. 142; and will not be ordered to pay the vendor's costs though the title proves good according to the abstract: Flinver v. Hartopp, 8 Beav. 200; Holland v. King, 1 W. R. 80; Dart, V. & P. 1336; but see Osborn v. O., 18 W. R. 421; unless the objections are frivolous and vexatious: Thorpe v. Freer, 4 Madd. 466; Peers v. Sneyd, 17 Beav. 151.

If the title prove bad, and the purchaser is discharged, he is entitled to a return of any deposit, and to his costs, charges, and expenses consequent upon his having become a purchaser: see Sect. III., inf. p. 359.

PAYING IN PURCHASE-MONEY—INTEREST—PROPERTY TAX.

It is provided by the ordinary conditions of sale (R. S. C. App. L. 15), that each purchaser is, under an order for that purpose, to be obtained by him, or, in case of his neglect, by the vendors at his costs, upon application at Chambers, to pay the amount of his purchase-money (after deducting the amount paid as a deposit), together with the amount of any valuation of timber, into Court to the credit of the cause, on or before a day to be specified (which must be subsequent to the time fixed for delivering the abstract, see Dav. Conv. vol. i. p. 506); and if the same is not so paid, then the purchaser is to pay interest on his purchase-money, including the amount of the valuation, from the day specified to the day on which the same is actually paid (if so, deducting property tax). Upon payment of the purchase-money the purchaser is to be entitled to possession, or to the rents and profits, as from (usually the last rent day), down to which time all outgoings are to be paid by the vendor. The order to lodge purchase-money is now rarely made, the money being generally lodged on a direction under O. LI, 3a.

Two or more separate purchasers may join in one application, but their purchase-money must be paid in separately. Two or more purchasers of one lot must pay in an entire sum: Darke v. Marye, 1 Anst. 22.

Where the lots are very small, it is not unusual for the conditions to provide that no abstract shall be delivered or title shown unless specially requested by the purchaser: see Huish v. Sweet, V.-C. W. at Chambers, 12 Nov. 1872, A. 2637.

The purchaser should not ordinarily apply for leave to pay in his purchase-money until he has approved the title: Sugd. V. & P. 103.

Except under special circumstances, he will not be allowed to pay in without accepting the title: De Visme v. De V., 1 Mac. & G. 336, 344; Rutley v. Gill, 3 D. & S. 640; Denning v. Henderson, 1 D. & S. 689; nor will he in any case be let into possession without accepting the title: Hutton v. Mansell, 2 Beav. 260; Rutter v. Marriott, 10 Beav. 33; Dempsey v. D., 1 D. & S. 691.

On taking possession without authority from the Court he will be treated as having accepted the title, and be compelled at once to pay in: Wilding v. Andrews, 1 C. P. Coop. 380; but if he take possession after delivery of the abstract he will not be bound as to objections not disclosed thereby: Bown v. Stenson, 24 Beav. 631. See also Miller v. Pridden, 5 W. R. 171; 3 Jur. N. S. 78, that payment in, and acceptance of a conveyance, with knowledge of an incumbrance, will have the effect of waiving any objection thereon.

A purchaser, after he has paid his money into Court and obtained a conveyance, is not bound to see to the application or apportionment of the fund: Todd v. Studholme, 3 K. & J. 324; Cavendish v. C., 10 Ch. 319; and see Morris v. Debenham, 2 Ch. D. 540; Cooper and Allen's Contract, 4 Ch. D. 802, 807, 816.

The rate of interest as a general rule is 4 p. c. per ann. : Dart, V. & P. 708 ; Dav. vol. i. p. 507.

As to the effect of the condition now in general use (see Dav. Conv., vol. i. p. 576 ; Prid. Conv. vol. i. p. 49), that the purchaser shall pay interest on his purchase-money if "from any cause whatever" the purchase shall not be completed by the day fixed for completion, see Williams v. Glenton, 1 Ch. 200 ; Sherwin v. Shakspear, 5 D. M. & G. 517 ; Sugd. V. & P. 633—637 ; Dart, 143 ; et sup. p. 351.

The condition as to interest now usually adopted enables the purchaser to deduct the property tax on the interest payable : see D. C. F. 640 ; where it does not he must pay in full without deduction : Dawson v. D., 11 Jur. 984 ; Humble v. H., 12 Beav. 43 ; Flight v. Comac, 2 W. R. 437 ; Goslings and Sharpe v. Blake, 23 Q. B. D. 324, 330, C. A. ; but may apply for its return when the money is dealt with by the Court : see Bebb v. Bunny, 1 K. & J. 216, 219 ; Sugd. V. & P. 99.

Where a vendor went abroad two days before the day for completion, he was held not entitled to interest on the purchase-money during the delay caused by his absence : Re Young and Harston's Contract, 31 Ch. D. 168, C. A.

A purchaser cannot relieve himself from liability to pay interest by setting apart the unpaid purchase-money and giving notice thereof to the vendor : Re Riley and Streetfield, 34 Ch. D. 386.

Upon a purchase under the ordinary condition, the order for payment of purchase-money will not be made with a direction for deduction of rents received after the date for completion : Re Smith, Day v. Bonaini, 54 L. T. 627 ; but a receiver being in possession, a direction was inserted that he should pay such rents to the purchaser : S. C., 55 L. T. 329.

INVESTMENT AND DEALING WITH PURCHASE-MONEY IN COURT.

By O. LI, 3a, no order for payment of purchase-money into Court shall be necessary, but a direction for that purpose signed by the Master shall be sufficient authority for the Paymaster-General to receive the money.

An order for investment of the purchase-money when paid in should always state at whose instance such investment is directed : see Form 2, p. 345. If the investment is on the application of the purchaser, he must, if the purchase be rescinded, take the stock, whether the funds have fallen or risen since the investment ; secus, if made on the vendor's application : Sugd. V. & P. 119, 640 ; Tompsett v. Wickens, 3 Sm. & G. 171 ; Humphries v. Home, 3 Ha. 376 ; and see Dart, V. & P. 1333. To give the full effect of a stop order to the concluding direction that the purchase-money is not to be dealt with without notice to the purchaser (see Form 2, sup. p. 345), the order should be lodged at the Chancery Pay Office for the express purpose of being entered on the books as a stop order, and giving the purchaser a lien upon the purchase-money until completion.

By S. C. F. R. 1894, r. 5, it is provided that when an order has directed the sale of any property and the lodgment of the proceeds thereof in Court, the authority for such lodgment may be a lodgment schedule signed by the Master ; and such lodgment schedule shall operate in the same manner as a lodgment schedule annexed to an order.

Plt's solr was held personally responsible for loss caused by his omission to request investment of purchase-money : Batten v. Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co., 31 Ch. D. 346.

On delivery of the conveyance to the purchaser, the vendor's solr should obtain from him a written acknowledgment thereof, and an authority to concur in his name to such distribution of the purchase-money as the Court may direct : see Dan. 897 ; otherwise the purchaser must be served with notice of any application to deal with the money, whether the order be entered at the Pay Office or not.

If he does not appear, an affidavit of such service is required, and of delivery of his conveyance.

If he has not obtained his conveyance, he will be entitled to his costs of appearing, though merely for the purpose of consenting to the application : Bamford v. Watts, 2 Beav. 201 ; Noble v. Stow, 30 Beav. 272.

If he has obtained his conveyance, his costs of appearing will not be allowed: Barton v. Latour, 18 Beav. 526, except, perhaps, under special circumstances: Rowley v. Adams, 16 Beav. 312; and see sup. p. 329.

SUCCESSION DUTY.

By the Succession Duty Act, 16 & 17 V. c. 51, s. 42, the duty is made a first charge on the property; but where powers of sale, exchange, or partition are exercised, the duty will be shifted to the substituted property, or interim moneys or investments.

By s. 44, every person in whom the property chargeable shall be vested, by alienation or other derivative title, at the time of the succession becoming an interest in possession, is made personally accountable for the duty to the extent of the property.

By s. 52, every receipt and certificate, purporting to be in discharge of the whole duty payable for the time being in respect of any succession, is to exonerate therefrom a bond fide purchaser for value without notice, notwithstanding any suppression or misstatement in the account rendered for, or any insufficiency of the assessment; and no such purchaser, under a title not appearing to confer a succession, is to be subject to any duty chargeable by reason of extrinsic circumstances of which he has no notice at the time of his purchase.

As between himself and the purchaser of a fee simple, the vendor must pay all duties (including succession duty) which have or will become payable under any settlement or disposition of the property prior to the sale of the fee simple, but the purchaser of a reversion expectant on an intermediate life estate is liable to the duty on the reversion: Cooper v. Trewby, 28 Beav. 194; Re Langham's Contract, 39 W. R. 156; 60 L. J. Ch. 110; Re Kidd and Gibbon's Contract, (1893) 1 Ch. 695; secus, on a purchase from trustees of an estate in settlement subject to a jointure, the duty in such case being chargeable upon the proceeds of the sale: Dugdale v. Meadows, 6 Ch. 501; and see Cooper and Allen's Contract, 4 Ch. D. 802. That the devisee from the purchaser in fee of an estate in settlement having paid succession duty on the death of his testator is not again liable for duty on the death of the vendor tenant for life: see Hanson, 332; Dart, V. & P. 667, 668, 958; Dav. Conv. vol. ii. 253, 313.

On purchase of a fee simple subject to leases where payment of duty on the increased value at the determination of the leases has been postponed under sect. 20, such duty must be paid by the vendor: Re Kidd and Gibbon's Contract, (1893) 1 Ch. 695.

As to valuation of real successions and incidence of duty under s. 18 of the Finance Act, 1894, v. inf. Vol. II. p. 1414.

INCUMBRANCERS.

A mortgagee concurring in the sale of the mortgaged estate does not in general postpone his rights over the purchase-money, and is entitled to be paid his principal, interest, and costs thereout in priority to the Plt's costs of suit: Hepworth v. Heslop, 3 Ha. 485; Wood v. Mackinlay, 2 D. J. & S. 358.

This priority extends to the costs of the sale, and where the proceeds were sufficient to pay the first mortgagee in full, but not the second mortgagee (the Plt), a third mortgagee who had joined in the conveyances to purchasers under the decree was held not entitled to any costs in respect of his concurrence: Wonham v. Machin, 10 Eq. 447; et v. inf. Chap. XLIV., "ADMINISTRATION."

Under the usual direction for sale in such a case an account is taken in Chambers of what is due to the incumbrancers, and if incumbrances appear by the certificate, or semble, though not so appearing, if they are known to exist, the purchaser may on summons obtain an order to pay the amount out of the purchase-money on the incumbrancers executing the conveyance to him, and to pay the balance into Court; see D. C. F. 668; or the application may be delayed until the purchase-money has been paid: see Form 7, sup. p. 347, or by consent the mortgage may be kept on foot as against the estate and the purchaser only: see Form 10, sup. p. 348.

CONVEYANCE.

Where an order for payment in of purchase-money is made it ordinarily provides for the execution of a conveyance by all proper parties; but semble, a direction that the vendor shall convey includes in effect all necessary conveying parties: Minton v. Kirwood, 3 Ch. 614, et v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

If infants or persons under disability were necessary conveying parties, or interested in the property sold, the conveyance was formerly directed to be settled by the Judge, and the words "in case the parties differ" were not inserted in the order.

In practice, however, except in orders for sale under the Settled Estates Act, these words are now always used, and accordingly the conveyance, even where infants, &c. are interested as conveying parties, is not necessarily settled by the Judge.

The words "in case the parties differ" should, it seems, be omitted where judgment is in default of defence in a purchaser's action for specific performance. The omission of the words does not necessitate a reference to the conveyancing counsel: Baxendale v. Lucas, W. N. (95) 30, per Kekewich, J.

In sales under the Settled Estates Act, the practice of requiring the conveyance to be settled by the Judge, whether the parties differ or not, has been adhered to: see Re Eyre, 4 K. & J. 268; and has not been changed by the Settled Estates Act, 1877, or the Orders under that Act.

Under the usual qualification "in case the parties differ," a purchaser will have to pay the costs of applying at Chambers respecting his conveyance, unless a special case is made: Hodgson v. Shaw, 11 Jur. 95; 16 L. J. Ch. 56.

The order of a Judge settling the form of a conveyance is subject to appeal: Pollock v. Rabbits, 21 Ch. D. 466.

As to the procedure on settling a deed in case the parties differ, see O. LV, 34.

As to vesting lands or contingent rights of infants, or parties under disability, on sales by the Court, see inf. Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES."

All persons having a legal title to or remedy against the property, whether parties to the action or not, should concur in the conveyance, but persons having only equitable interests, who are parties to the action, are bound by the order for sale, and the purchaser cannot, even at his own expense, insist upon their concurrence: Re Williams, 5 D. & S. 515; Dart, V. & P. 1346; Dav. Conv. vol. ii. p. 271 (a); nor is he entitled to covenants for title from them: Cottrell v. C., 2 Eq. 330.

Where delay in completion occurs owing to defect of conveyance, the vendor is entitled to have a reasonable time within which to remove the defect: Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D. 334.

When the conveyance has been settled, the necessary parties may be compelled to execute it by summons served upon them, and the order, upon service and non-compliance, may be enforced by writ of attachment or by committal: O. XLII, 7; but the better course is to obtain an order on summons at Chambers under the Trustee Acts and O. LV, 13a (c), appointing a person to convey to the purchaser, or vesting the estate at once in him, or an order under sect. 14 of the Jud. Act, 1884, appointing a person to execute.

Execution of the conveyance by a party may be ordered, although it has not been settled in Chambers: Dougherty v. Teay, 21 L. R. Ir. 379.

POSSESSION.

Under O. LI, 1, any party to the action (in which a sale has been directed) in possession of the estate, or in receipt of the rents and profits of the estate directed to be sold, may be ordered to deliver up such possession or receipt to the purchaser or such other person as the Court shall direct.

To enforce possession the purchaser should apply by summons or motion on notice for an order for delivery of possession within a limited time. If possession be withheld after due service of the order the purchaser may proceed to enforce delivery of possession by writ of possession: O. XLII, 3, 5, XLVII; which since the Jud. Acts, has, so far as relates to land, been substituted for the writ of assistance, whether between the parties to the action or as against strangers: see Hall v. H., 47 L. J. Ch. 680; but as to the writ of assistance being still available in special cases, see Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165.

The purchaser will be entitled, out of the purchase-money, to his costs of obtaining possession, occupation rent during the time he has been kept out of possession, compensation for deterioration, and arrears of charges (e.g., tithe) which he may have been compelled to pay, the amount, if not agreed upon, to be ascertained by inquiry: see Thomas v. Buxton, 8 Eq. 120.

COMPENSATION.

The ordinary conditions provide that any error or misstatement in the particulars shall not annul the sale nor entitle the purchaser to be discharged from his purchase, but that a compensation is to be made to or by the purchaser, the amount of which is to be settled by the Judge at Chambers.

Notwithstanding this condition, misrepresentation in the particulars may be so material as to entitle the purchaser to be discharged: see Dimmock v. Hallett, 2 Ch. 21; Else v. E., 13 Eq. 196; and for instances of the right to compensation, or e cont. to a discharge from the purchase, v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

A purchaser has been allowed compensation under this condition for misdescription or misstatement of rent in the particulars, discovered after conveyance: Cann v. C., 3 Sim. 447; Bos v. Helsham, L. R. 2 Ex. 72; Re Turner and Skelton, 13 Ch. D. 130; Palmer v. Johnson, 13 Q. B. D. 351, C. A., not following Manson v. Thacker, 7 Ch. D. 620; Besley v. B., 9 Ch. D. 103; and Allen v. Richardson, 13 Ch. D. 524; and commenting on Joliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; and see Dart, V. & P. 904; Dav. Con. vol. i. p. 467; but not in the absence of such a condition for a defect of title which might have been discovered: Clayton v. Leech, 41 Ch. D. 103, C. A.; and see Soper v. Arnold, 14 App. Ca. 429; nor for innocent misrepresentation made by the auctioneer: Brett v. Clowser, 5 C. P. D. 376; and as to the right to specific performance with compensation or abatement, v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

TITLE-DEEDS.

The conditions of sale usually contain provisions for the delivery to the purchaser of such of the title-deeds in the vendor's possession as relate exclusively to the lots purchased, and for the giving of an acknowledgment or undertaking as the case may require, under sect. 9 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, in reference to title-deeds which do not relate exclusively to the lots purchased, and which are either not delivered to the purchaser, or delivered to him subject to the right of other persons to production of them.

When the vendor retains any part of an estate to which any documents of title relate, he is entitled to retain such documents: see V. & P. Act, 1874, s. 2, sub-s. 8; Dart, V. & P. 162, 163, 762.

In the absence of any stipulation, the purchaser of the lot largest in value is entitled to the custody of the title-deeds, and must enter into a covenant for their production to the other purchasers, who will be entitled to attested copies at the expense of the vendor: see Peterson v. Elwes, 6 W. R. 611; Griffiths v. Hatchard, 1 K. & J. 17; Sugd. V. & P. 34, 451; Dart, V. & P. 763, 1349; and see Conveyancing Act, s. 9.

A condition that the purchaser of "the largest lot" shall have the deeds has been differently construed. In Scott v. Jackman, 21 Beav. 110 (citing and following L. Kinnaird v. Christie, Form 12, sup., p. 349), the purchaser of the lot largest in price was held entitled to the deeds, as against the purchaser of several lesser lots though of greater aggregate amount.

In Griffiths v. Hatchard, sup., the words "largest lot" were held to mean largest in superficial extent; but see on this case Sugd. V. & P. 34.

Where on a sale in lots the conditions provided that the largest purchaser should have the deeds and covenant to produce them to the others, it was held that each purchaser requiring a covenant must bear his own costs of it:

Strong v. S., 4 Jur. N. S. 942; 6 W. R. 455; and see the V. & P. Act, 1874, s. 2 (4).

If the deeds are in Court they may be ordered to be delivered out to the vendor for the purpose of completion: Lee v. Flood, V.-C. S., at Chambers, 7 Jan. 1853; or the purchaser may apply by summons at Chambers for delivery to him of such as he is entitled to; or, with consent of all parties, by petition of course: see Dan. 896.

SUBSTITUTING PURCHASER.

Either before or after the certificate has become binding, the Court will discharge the purchaser and substitute another, upon the latter first bringing in the purchase-money: Miller v. Smith, 6 Ha. 609. If the sub-sale was at a profit and before certificate, the advanced and not the original price must formerly have been brought in: Hodder v. Ruffin, Tam. 341. If the sub-sale was after certificate, any increased price belonged to the original purchaser, who from that period has been regarded in Equity as the owner: Dewell v. Tuffnell, 1 K. & J. 324; Sugd. V. & P. 100.

The order to substitute is made on application by summons. The original and sub-purchaser must either join as applicants, or appear and consent; and before the certificate has become binding, the order will not be made when neither the vendor nor the original purchaser consent. The application, without such consent, of a sub-purchaser before the certificate became binding was refused, and a resale directed, upon an undertaking by the original purchaser to bid at the resale the advanced price: Re Goodwin's Estate, 1 N. R. 46; 8 Jur. N. S. 1173.

If the subsale took place before the certificate had become binding, the application must formerly have been supported by an affidavit of no collusion or under-bargain: Rigby v. M'Namara, Vale v. Davenport, 6 Ves. 515, 615; and see Holroyd v. Wyatt, 2 Coll. 327; 9 Jur. 1072; or disclosing the terms of the under-bargain, if any. Such affidavit is not, however, since the Sales by Auction Act, 1867, in practice required at Chambers, even when the application to substitute is made before the certificate has been signed and approved: and see Dart, V. & P. 1334. But whether the present practice so affects the purchaser's position between the contract and certificate as to give him all the rights and liabilities of equitable owner seems doubtful; and it is submitted that, having regard to the preamble of sect. 7 of the Act, that section was directed to protecting the bidder from the risk of losing his bargain between contract and certificate, and does not so change his position as to give him complete ownership for all purposes from the date of the contract.

The order to substitute has been made when the original purchaser, after agreeing to sell the lots of which his purchase had been confirmed, died, his heir being abroad: Pearce v. P., 7 Sim. 138.

SECTION III.—DISCHARGE OF PURCHASER—RESALE.

1. Purchaser discharged on his Application—Repayment of Deposit—Costs.

UPON the application by summons dated &c., of A., the person by the Master's certificate dated &c. certified to be [or by the order dated &c. allowed] the purchaser of (the hereditaments comprised in Lot —, part of) the estates directed to be sold by the order dated &c., and upon hearing &c., and upon reading &c., Let the said A. be discharged

Greenslade*, V.-C. W., 1 June, 1848, B. 1196; Alchin v. Rogers, V.-C. S., 27 March, 1871, A. 875.

For form of application for resale, see D. C. F. 672.

For order to resell at not less than former bidding, and, if the estate shall not be resold, for the original purchaser to pay in his purchase-money, see Walond v. W., M. R., 14 Nov. 1844, B. 224.

3. Purchaser having accepted Title—Resale in Default of Payment of Purchase-money.

Usual directions for payment in of purchase-money and for conveyance: And Let, in default of A. B. lodging the said £— in Court by the time aforesaid, the said hereditaments be resold with the approbation of the Judge, And in case no purchaser shall be found for the same at such resale, or in case the same shall be sold for less than the said £—, Let the said A. B. within eight days after service of the Master's certificate of the result of such resale lodge in Court &c., the said £— in case the said hereditaments shall not be resold or the difference between the said £— and the amount for which the said hereditaments shall be so resold in case the same shall be resold for less than the said £—, the amount to be lodged to be certified. And Let A. B. pay to the Plt his costs and expenses occasioned by such default as aforesaid to be taxed &c.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 3, p. 206, sup.]—See Johnson v. Mosley, V.-C. H., 15 Jan. 1879, A. 391.

N., and A., B., and C., the purchasers (on behalf of a company afterwards in liquidation) for the sale of the leasehold colliery &c., fixed and loose plant, machinery, and other effects, be rescinded; And Let the deposit paid by the said purchasers be forfeited, but this order is to be without prejudice to the directions contained in the order dated &c. as to the costs thereby directed to be taxed and paid by the said purchasers.”—Costs of the Plts and the Defts, and the official liquidators, of this application to be costs in the action. “And the summons, so far as it seeks that the said leasehold colliery, fixed and loose plant &c. might be resold, or dealt with as the Judge might direct, stands over.”—Nowell v. N., V.-C. H., at Chambers, 13 March, 1877, B. 1492.

5. Bankrupt Purchaser—Resale—Forfeiture of Deposit.

“AND the said E. as (the trustee) of C. (the purchaser) declining to elect to complete the purchase of the estate and premises comprised in Lots &c., of which the said C. has been allowed the purchaser, Let the sum of £—, being the amount paid by the said C. as a deposit on his bidding, or the New Consols now representing the same, be forfeited, and disallow the said C. as the purchaser thereof; And Let the premises comprised in the said lots be resold with the approbation of the Judge.”—Depree v. Bedborough, V.-C. S., 4 Dec. 1863, A. 2370; 4 Giff. 479.

DISCHARGE OF PURCHASER.

A purchaser under a judgment, if upon inquiry the title is certified to be bad, may apply by summons, served upon the parties to the action, to be discharged from being such purchaser, and that his costs, charges, and expenses occasioned by his bidding for, and being allowed the purchaser, and of the application, may be taxed and paid: see D. C. F. 673; and unless precluded by the conditions he will be entitled, on being discharged, to his costs, charges, and expenses (including those of investigating the title: see Barton v. Downes, 1 Flan. & K. 633; Re Hargreaves and Thompson, 32 Ch. D. 454, C. A.; Re Ebsworth and Tidy, 42 Ch. D. 23, C. A.; Re Bryant and Burningham, 44 Ch. D. 218, C. A.; Sugd. V. & P. 107) out of the fund in Court, if any: Reynolds v. Blake, 2 S. & S. 117; Calvert v. Godfrey, 6 Beav. 97; Perkins v. Ede, 16 Beav. 268; and if no fund in Court, from the Plt, without prejudice as to how they are to be ultimately borne: Smith v. Nelson, 2 S. & S. 557; Bury v. Johnson, 2 Y. & O. 564; but not in the first instance from a Deft having the conduct of the sale: Mullins v. Hussey, 1 Eq. 488.

He is also entitled to a return of any deposit, with interest at 4l. p. c.: Re Hargreaves and Thompson, sup.; Re Ebsworth and Tidy, sup.; Re Bryant and Burningham, sup.; and, if the deposit has been invested, to receive the stock in which it has been invested and the dividends that have accrued thereon, or the actual sum deposited, and all dividends that have arisen from the investment: see Powell v. P., 19 Eq. 422; and as to return of deposit in cases of specific performance, and under the V. & P. Act, 1870, v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

Independently of the title being found bad on inquiry, a purchaser has been discharged where the contract is inequitable, on submitting to forfeit his deposit: Savile v. S., 1 P. W. 745; Gregg v. Glover, 1 Ir. Ch. 211; and also, in one instance, where by mistake he had given an unreasonable price: Morshead v. Frederick, Sugd. V. & P. 120.

A purchaser has been also discharged and his deposit returned when the vendors, knowing that the occupation was adverse, represented it as the occupation of their own tenant: Lachlan v. Reynolds, Kay, 52.

So also where, after acceptance of title and payment into Court, the purchaser discovered, from a will having been incorrectly abstracted, or from an undisclosed deed, that the title was bad: M'Culloch v. Gregory, 1 K. & J. 286; Ward v. Trathen, 14 Sim. 82; and also when the title has been rendered bad by the vendor's omission, after the day fixed for completion, to keep the property (leasehold) insured: Palmer v. Goren, 4 W. R. 688.

Inaccurate recitals, misleading conditions, or substantial misrepresentations as to the value or rental of the property will also entitle a purchaser to be discharged: Dimmock v. Hallett, 2 Ch. 21; Else v. E., 13 Eq. 196; and see Torrance v. Bolton, 8 Ch. 118; Bromage v. Davies, 4 Jur. N. S. 683; et inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

A purchaser insane at the time of his bidding has also been discharged, and a resale directed on the vendor's application: Blackbeard v. Lindigren, 1 Cox, 205.

The purchaser may also be discharged and the sale set aside when the judgment has been obtained fraudulently, or the purchase fraudulently effected: L. Bandon v. Becher, 9 Bli. N. S. 532; 3 Cl. & F. 479; Thornhill v. Glover, 3 D. & W. 195; Bowen v. Evans, 2 H. L. C. 257; 1 Jo. & Lat. 178.

A purchaser under a judgment who participates in, or is cognizant of, the fraud cannot avail himself of his purchase, which is a nullity; nor, semble, though innocent of the fraud, where it appears on the proceedings, or might have been ascertained on inquiry: see Gore v. Stacpoole, 1 Dow, 18, 30; Colclough v. Bolger, 4 Dow, 54; and see Sugd. V. & P. 110; Sugd. H. L. 679—721.

In the absence of fraud, and provided the Court had jurisdiction (from all parties interested being before the Court), mere irregularity in the proceedings did not operate to set aside the sale, nor affect the purchaser's title: see Lutwyche v. Winford, 2 Bro. C. C. 248; Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Sch. & Lef.

577; Colclough v. Sterum, 3 Bli. 181; Curtis v. Price, 12 Ves. 105; Lloyd v. Johnes, 9 Ves. 65; secus, where, as under the Partition Acts, the jurisdiction to sell depended upon the result of the inquiries directed, and the sale had been before certificate: Powell v. P., 19 Eq. 422; 10 Ch. 131; or where error in the judgment under which the purchase was directed had been shown: Lechmere v. Brasier, 2 J. & W. 287.

Now by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 70, "an order of the Court under any statutory or other jurisdiction shall not, as against a purchaser, be invalidated on the ground of want of jurisdiction, or of want of any concurrence, consent, notice, or service, whether the purchaser has notice of any such want or not." The section applies to leases, sales, &c., under the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (as to which, v. inf. Chap. XLV., "SETTLEMENT"), notwithstanding the exception in sect. 40, or under the former Acts repealed by the Act of 1877, and to all orders made before or after the commencement of the Act, except any previously set aside or determined to be invalid, or as to which proceedings impeaching it were then pending. This protection extends to any impropriety, even though apparent on the face of the order: Re Hall Dare's Contract, 21 Ch. D. 41, C. A.; and is good against puisne incumbrancers whose equitable interests are bound by the order for sale, but who are not parties to the proceedings: Mostyn v. M., (1893) 3 Ch. 376, C. A. (q. v., that conveyance in such case should be absolute without any qualifying words, and there should be a declaration that the puisne incumbrancers are bound by the order of the Court); and see Re Whitham, 84 L. T. 585; 49 W. R. 597; but will not give a good title to a purchaser where the Court, in making the order, erroneously supposed that it was dealing with a particular interest, ex. gr. that of a judgment debtor, whereas in truth the property belonged to a person not a party and not bound: Jones v. Barnett, (1900) 1 Ch. 370, C. A.; (1899) 1 Ch. 611.

And see Sherwood v. Beveridge, 3 D. & S. 425; Whitfield v. Lequentre, ib. 464, that the conduct of the purchaser, or the nature of the irregularity, may be such as to entitle him not to be at once discharged, but to a reference as to title.

RESALE.

It is provided by the general conditions (R. S. C. App. L. 15) that if the purchaser does not pay in his purchase-money in due course, and otherwise perform the conditions, an order may be made at Chambers for a resale, and for payment by him of any deficiency in the price thereat, and of all costs and expenses occasioned by such default.

Upon the purchaser making default in paying his purchase-money, the vendor may either obtain upon summons a simple order for payment into Court, which may be enforced by writ of sequestration: O. XLII, 4; or he may obtain an order for payment in, and in default a resale, and that the purchaser make good the deficiency, and the costs and expenses occasioned by such default.

In order, it seems, to preserve the remedy against a purchaser who does not complete, of making him liable for any deficiency of price, the order for resale does not direct the purchaser to be discharged: Harding v. H., 4 My. & C. 514; and until the resale takes place he may complete his contract upon payment of all costs occasioned by his default: Robertson v. Skelton, 13 Beav. 91; but where the purchaser is bankrupt, and unable on that ground to complete, an order may be obtained by the vendor rescinding the contract and forfeiting the deposit: see Nowell v. N., Depree v. Bedborough, Forms 4, 5, sup. p. 358; and see Powell v. Marshall, (1899) 1 Q. B. 710, C. A.

A purchaser under a judgment being, from subsequent bankruptcy, unable, and his assignees declining, to complete the purchase, the deposit was forfeited on a resale, but without any order against the bankrupt's estate to indemnify the vendors as to any deficiency: Depree v. Bedborough, 4 Giff. 479.

CHAPTER XX.

1. Order on further Consideration (and Motion, or adjourned Summons, to vary Certificate).

For forms as to setting down, &c., see D. O. F. 713 et seq.

2. Order on Summons for further Consideration (and Summons to vary Certificate) heard in Chambers.

Mr. Justice —, in Chambers.

NOTES.

SETTING DOWN ACTION OR CAUSE FOR FURTHER CONSIDERATION.

When any cause or matter in the Chancery Division has been adjourned for further consideration, it may, after eight days and within fourteen days from the filing of the certificate, be set down for further consideration, on the written request of the solr for the Plt or party having the conduct of the proceedings, and after the expiration of such fourteen days it may be set down on the written request of the solr for the Plt, or for any other party, and in either case on production of the judgment or order adjourning further consideration, or an office copy thereof, and an office copy of the Master's certificate, or a memorandum of the date when it was filed, endorsed on the request above referred to by the proper officer. The cause, when set down, is not to be put into the paper for ten days, and to be so marked. Notice of setting down is to be given to the other parties at least six days before the day for which the cause is marked: O. xxxvi, 21. And for the forms of the request and notice, see R. S. C. App. L, 26, 27; D. C. F. 713, 714.

By O. XL, 10, upon a motion for judgment, or upon an application for a new trial, the Court may, if of opinion that it has not sufficient material before it, direct the motion to stand over for further consideration, and direct issues or questions to be tried or determined, and accounts and inquiries to be taken.

Where on further consideration further accounts and inquiries were directed, but no question of law remained for decision, the Court refused to adjourn further consideration in Court, but gave liberty to apply in Chambers after certificate: Gilbert v. Russell, W. N. (75) 225.

The action may be marked short as on the original hearing or trial, but not, except by consent, so as to be in the paper until after ten days from the date of setting down. And as to short causes, v. sup. p. 182.

On a question reserved by the Master for the Court's opinion counsel for the affirmative proposition have the right to begin: Lyle v. Ellwood, 23 W. R. 157.

By O. xxxvi, 39 (Feb. 1892), the Judge shall, at or after the trial, direct judgment to be entered as he shall think right, and no motion for judgment shall be necessary in order to obtain such judgment. The original rule contained a provision that the Judge might adjourn further consideration, or leave any party to move for judgment.

SERVICE—APPEARANCE BY PERSONS NOT PARTIES.

All parties to the action, including any persons who may have entered appearances pursuant to O. XVI, 41, must be served with notice that the action has been set down for further consideration.

As to affidavit of service, see sup. pp. 19, 175.

If it is intended to deal with the proceeds of any estates sold in the action, the purchaser must be served, and if he does not appear, an affidavit not only of service, but that his conveyance has been delivered to him, must be produced and entered as read. If the purchaser has obtained his conveyance, he should not appear; and doing so was refused his costs: Barton v. Latour, 18 Beav. 526. If it appears on the proceedings that he has obtained his conveyance, he need not be served: Noble v. Stow (No. 2), 30 Beav. 272. If any stop order affects the funds to be dealt with, the person who obtained it must be served with notice, and if he does not appear, an affidavit of service must be produced. If such purchaser or incumbrancer appear, his appearance must be noticed in the order.

Persons against whom a personal order for payment of money is required should be served, though they have not obtained an order to attend proceedings: Re Rees, R. v. George, 15 Ch. D. 490.

If the persons served do not appear, it is not necessary in the absence of some special reason to give them notice of setting the case down on further consideration: Re Rolfe, W. N. (94) 77; 70 L. T. 624.

By O. LXVII, 8, "where a person who is not a party appears in any proceeding, either before the Court or in Chambers, service on the London solr, by whom such person appears, whether acting as principal or agent, is good service except in matters requiring personal service."

As to the right of a person not served with the judgment to obtain leave to appear to contest a point on further consideration, see Samuel v. S., 12 Ch. D. 152, 161.

EVIDENCE.

An affidavit as to matters directly in issue, filed after the certificate, could not formerly have been read, but the Court, on counsel's statement of the facts, has sent an inquiry: Fleming v. East, Kay, lii; and see Howard v. Chaffers, 11 W. R. 585; but now, under O. XXXVII, 1, further evidence by affidavit may be received by leave of the Court: Muy v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347; and see Re Chifferiel, C. v. Watson, 57 L. J. Ch. 137; 58 L. T. 877; 36 W. R. 806; Re Rouse, R. v. Tribble, W. N. (88) 231; 59 L. T. 887; Re Michael, Dessau v. Lewin, 52 L. T. 609; Beaney v. Elliott, W. N. (80) 99. Further evidence as to the conduct of the Deft between judgment and further consideration was received on the question of costs, but not as to his conduct before action: Re Revill, Leigh v. Rumney, 55 L. T. 542.

Notice ought to be given of reading evidence entered in the certificate: per M. R. (Sir G. Jessel), in Re Chennell, Jones v. C., 8 Ch. D. 504, C. A. In Re Brier, B. v. Evison, 26 Ch. D. 242, C. A., the question was raised whether the evidence could be read where there was no summons to vary, but was not decided.

PRINCIPLE OF JUDGMENT NOT TO BE VARIED.

The Court will not, on the further consideration of the action, entertain questions raised on the pleadings, but with respect to which no direction or reservation is contained in the original judgment: Legrand v. Whitehead, 1 Rus. 309; and see Morgan v. M., 13 Beav. 441; and as to raising on further consideration questions not raised in the pleading, see Hughes v. Jones, 3 D. F. & J. 307.

Interest may, on further consideration, be directed to be computed on balances certified to be due, if grounds for it appear by the certificate: see Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES," and Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES."

But though grounds for it may appear, the Court will not, on further consideration, direct a party to be charged with wilful default: see Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES;" and where a decree was framed so as to give the Plts compensation for the value of minerals wrongfully taken, the Court declined, on further consideration, to entertain a claim for interest thereon: Phillips v. Homfray, 44 Ch. D. 694, 701.

The principle on which costs have by the original judgment been directed to be taxed will not be varied: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Rus. 530; Quarrell v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 286; but where by a decretal order directing an inquiry what damage Plt had sustained, with liberty to apply, no further consideration was adjourned, but costs of suit were ordered to be paid by Deft, the Plt, though entitled to the costs of all matters properly within the inquiry, notwithstanding he failed to prove any damage, was ordered to pay the costs of questions improperly raised by him in prosecuting such inquiry: Krehl v. Park, 10 Ch. 434.

Where a receiver has been appointed generally, it is unnecessary, on further consideration, to insert a direction to continue him: Re Underwood, U. v. U., 60 L. T. 384; 37 W. R. 428; and see Davies v. Vale of Evesham, W. N. (95) 105; 43 W. R. 647; 73 L. T. 150.

Although an order on further consideration directing payment of costs in a particular way did not reserve subsequent further consideration, nor the question how the costs should ultimately be borne, the Court treated the directions as to costs as being made for the purpose of convenience, and on petition for payment out of the fund, readjusted the incidence of the costs: In re Roper, Taylor v. Bland, 45 Ch. D. 126, C. A.; and that it is right in such a case to reserve the question how the costs are ultimately to be borne, v. Ib. p. 136.

As to adoption or variation of report of a referee on further consideration of the action, see O. XXXVI, 54, inf. p. 419.

FURTHER CONSIDERATION IN CHAMBERS.

By O. LV, 2 (16), applications for orders on the further consideration of any cause or matter, where the order to be made is for the distribution of an insolvent estate, or for the distribution of the estate of an intestate, or for the distribution of a fund among creditors or debenture holders, may be disposed of in Chambers.

Where questions of difficulty arose in the distribution of an insolvent estate the Plt was allowed costs of further consideration in Court: Re Barber, Burgess v. Vinnicome, 31 Ch. D. 665, 670.

As to the admon of insolvent estates, v. inf. Chap. XLIV., "ADMINISTRATION."

In Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686, C. A., on an order on admissions in pleadings for the usual inquiries in a partition action, the Court reserved further consideration, and gave liberty to any of the parties to apply that the hearing on further consideration should be in Chambers.

It has been held that where an order is made on originating summons in Chambers, adjourning further consideration, the action ought to be heard on further consideration in Chambers: Re Glasson, G. v. G., W. N. (93) 85; but see D. C. F. 715, note; Dan. 943, note.

ON ORIGINATING SUMMONS UNDER O. LV, 72.

By O. LV, 72, where any matter originating in Chambers shall have been adjourned for further consideration in Chambers, such matter may, after eight and within fourteen days from the filing of the Master's certificate, be brought on for further consideration by a summons, to be taken out by the party having the conduct of the matter, and after the fourteen days, by a summons to be taken out by any other party. The summons is to be in the form prescribed by the rule, and is to be served six clear days before the return.

The order will in simple cases be made in Chambers, but if both sides desire the case to be argued by counsel, or if it appears to the Judge that the questions arising are such as to require the assistance of counsel, the case is adjourned to Court. For the course taken on such adjournment, see Chap. XVIII., "CHAMBERS," p. 323.

CHAPTER XXI.

SPECIAL CASE.

1. Form of Order on Special Case which decides the whole Action.

THIS special case, stated for the opinion of this Court, and filed on the &c., coming on this day to be heard before this Court in the presence of counsel for the Plt and for the Deft, and upon hearing the said special case read, and what was alleged by counsel on both [all] sides, This Court is of opinion that &c., and that &c., and that &c. And that the costs of this special case and of this action ought to be borne out of &c. And counsel for the [Plt or Deft] moving for judgment in accordance with the foregoing opinion, This Court doth order and adjudge accordingly; And it is ordered that it be referred to the taxing master to tax the said costs [in case the parties differ].—Liberty to apply.

This form was settled after the hearing of Harrison v. The Cornwall Minerals Co., V.-C. H., 16 Ch. D. 66.

Where the decision on a special case will decide all questions in the action, it is not necessary that the action should be separately set down on motion for judgment: In re Cune, Ruff v. Sivers, 60 L. J. Ch. 36; 63 L. T. 746, where the Court made a declaration in terms of its answer to the case, and (according to the reports) ordered further proceedings in the action to be stayed. The reports, however, appear to be incorrect, as a reference to the Reg. Lib. 30 Oct. 1890, A. 1425, shows that the order was in the above form with no stay of proceedings.

2. If the Special Case stands for Judgment.

THIS Court did order that this special case should stand for judgment, and the same standing for judgment this day in the paper in the presence of counsel for &c., this Court doth declare &c.

3. The like—Court Declining to answer the Question.

THIS special case coming on &c. [Form 1, sup.], and this Court being of opinion that the question submitted for the opinion of the Court cannot properly be decided during the life of the Deft B., doth decline to decide the same.—See Moore v. M., V.-C. W., 8 Dec. 1856, B. 320; followed by V.-C. M., in Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189, 199.

4. Order to set down Special Case—O. XXXIV, 4.

UPON the application of the Plt, who alleged that the parties have concurred in stating the questions of law arising in this action in the form of a special case; that the Deft A. is a married woman [or an infant, or a lunatic]; and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, and for [if a lunatic, add and for O. his committee]; and upon reading an affidavit of &c., filed &c. [Enter evidence], It is ordered that the Plt be at liberty to set down the said special case for hearing.

On application to set down a special case under O. XXXIV, 4, notice to a married woman (not being a party thereto in respect of her separate property, or of any separate right of action by or against her), infant, or non compos, who may be interested in the case, is not required, though such a notice is necessary on an application to set down a special case under 13 & 14 V. c. 35: see Re Smith, Lambert v. Lange, M. R., 6 Dec. 1878, B. 2077.

For order to amend special case by stating the question differently, and thereon declaring rights, see Bell v. Cade, 2 J. & H. 125.

For order stating facts assumed from but not stated in the case, and declaring the Court's opinion, see Lane v. Debenham, 11 Ha. 195.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 1030.

5. Order directing Question of Law to be set down for Argument without stating Special Case—O. XXXIV, 2.

UPON the application of the Plts, and upon hearing &c., It is ordered that the following question of law be set down to be argued before the Court, viz., Whether &c.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 1028.

6. Order on Questions of Law set down under O. XXXIV, 2.

THE questions of law directed to be set down to be argued before this Court by the order, dated &c., coming on this day to be argued before this Court in the presence of counsel for the Plt and for the Deft, and upon hearing counsel on both sides, This Court doth declare &c.

7. Order directing Point of Law raised by Pleadings to be set down under O. XXV, 2.

UPON the application of the Plt, and upon hearing &c., It is ordered that the point of law raised by the statement of defence be set down to be argued before this Court.

8. Order on Point of Law.

THE point of law raised by the statement of defence, and by the order, dated &c., directed to be set down to be argued before this Court, coming on &c.—See Form 7.

NOTES.

The procedure by special case is now regulated by O. XXXIV, which provides, by r. 1, that the parties to any cause or matter may concur in stating the questions of law arising therein in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, stating concisely such facts and documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the questions thereby raised. Upon the argument of such case the Court and the parties may refer to the whole contents of such documents, and the Court may, from the facts and documents stated, draw any inference, whether of fact or law, which might have been drawn from them if proved at a trial.

A special case which raises questions of fact only is a proceeding extra cursum curiæ, and from it no appeal will lie: Burgess v. Morton, (1896) A. C. 136, H. L.

The rules as to parties (as to which v. sup. Chap. IX.) apply to a special case.

As to amendment of special case, see Dan. 1681.

Under Sir G. Turner's Act (13 & 14 V. c. 35), the special case might be amended by adding parties after it was set down: Thistlethwaite v. Garnier, 5 D. & S. 73; or at the hearing, the case being set down again: Barnaby v. Tassell, 11 Eq. 363; Savage v. Snell, 11 Eq. 264; Attey v. Etough, 13 Eq. 462; but in Johnston v. Brown, 8 Eq. 584, where a female Deft had married after the setting down, it was held that the case need not be set down again. Where a material fact was omitted, but admitted by all parties at the hearing, prefacing the order with a recital to that effect was sufficient: Lane v. Debenham, 11 Ha. 188; 17 Jur. 1005.

A special case cannot be amended under O. XXVIII, 6; but when a decision has been given under a mistake of fact, the Court is not thereby bound, but, unless the decision has been carried into effect by any subsequent order, may direct the action to go on to trial, and then direct inquiries to ascertain the real facts: Re Taylor's Estate; Tomlin v. Underhay, 22 Ch. D. 495.

Upon special case under these rules, the Court has decided questions as to title in an action for recovery of possession of land: General Finance, &c. Co. v. Liberator Building Society, 10 Ch. D. 15; as to whether estates, subject of an action for specific performance, were comprised in a devise of trust estates: Lysaght v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 499; as to construction of a power of appointment: Marshall v. Aizlewood, W. N. (81) 3; and as to validity in law of objections to letters patent: Rolls v. Isaacs, 19 Ch. D. 268.

As to special case stated by arbitrator or referee, v. inf. Chap. XXVII., "ARBITRATORS"; and in interpleader proceedings, Chap. XXIX., "INTERPLEADER."

By r. 2, if it appear to the Court or a Judge that there is in any cause or matter a question of law which it would be convenient to have decided before any evidence is given or any question or issue of fact is tried, or reference made to a referee or an arbitrator, the Court or Judge may make an order accordingly, and may direct such question to be raised by special case or in such other manner as may be deemed expedient, and may stay all proceedings in the meantime.

The rule is applicable only to such questions of law as must necessarily arise in the action: Republic of Bolivia v. National Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361; and as to the Court declining to entertain fictitious questions, see Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189, 197; Pryse v. P., 15 Eq. 86; Key v. K., 4 D. M. & G. 73; or questions submitted in such a form that the real rights of the parties cannot be determined: Bulkeley v. Hope, 4 W. R. 280; 8 D. G. M. & G. 361; 25 L. J. Ch. 240; or to make declaration of future rights: Lady Langdale v. Briggs, 8 D. M. & G. 426; 26 L. J. Ch. 45; 4 W. R. 703; Dawson v. D., 4 Eq. 508; Gosling v. G., John. 265; Moore v. M., sup. Form 3; and as to the Court declining to answer, see Ewart v. E., 11 Ha. 276; Pryse v. P., sup.; and that the Court would not act on inferences drawn by the parties, but required that necessary facts should be verified by affidavit, Domville v. Lamb, 9 Ha. lv.

As to the time when application should be made under the rule, see Met. Bd. of Works v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; 2 Q. B. D. 67, C. A.; Tattersall v. National Steamship Co., W. N. (84) 32; and for form of motion or summons, D. C. F. 1028.

By r. 3, every special case is to be printed and signed by the several parties, or their counsel or solrs, and filed.

By r. 4, a special case in a cause or matter to which a married woman (not being a party thereto in respect of her separate property, or of any separate right of action by or against her), infant, or person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition is a party, is not to be set down for argument without leave of the Court or a Judge, the application for which must be supported by sufficient evidence that the statements contained in such special case, so far as the same affect the interest of such married woman, infant, or person of unsound mind, are true.

The application under this rule is now usually by summons in Chambers: see O. LV, 2 (17), sup. p. 320; and Dan. 1681.

By r. 5, either party may enter a special case for argument by delivering to the proper officer a memorandum of entry (see Form, R. S. C. App. G., No. 25), and also producing a copy of any order made under r. 4.

SETTING DOWN THE SPECIAL CASE.

A special case cannot now be set down before the C. A. in the first instance; it will not be placed in the paper for one month after being set down unless by consent; and it must not be marked short: see Anon., M. R., 1 W. R. 10.

By O. XXXIV, r. 6, the parties to a special case may enter into an agreement (not liable to stamp duty) that upon the judgment of the Court a sum of money shall be paid by one party to the other, and that execution shall issue forthwith, unless otherwise agreed, and unless stayed on appeal.

SPECIAL CASE UNDER 13 & 14 V. c. 35.

By r. 8, a special case may be stated for the same purposes and in the same manner as was provided by the 13 & 14 V. c. 35, and the same shall be deemed to be a special case stated in a matter within the meaning of O. XXXIV.

The effect of this rule is to keep alive the provisions of Sir G. Turner's Act (repealed by 46 & 47 V. c. 49), under which, by sect. 1, persons interested in any question as to the construction of any Act of Parliament, will, deed, &c., or as to the title, &c., to any real or personal estate contracted to be sold, or as to any other matter falling within the jurisdiction of Equity, might concur in stating a special case for the opinion of the Court; and exors, admors, and trustees might concur therein. By sect. 2, the committee of a lunatic's estate might concur, with the sanction of the L. C., or of the Lords Justices.

By sect. 14, the Court, upon the hearing, might determine the questions raised, or any of them, and by decree declare its opinion, without proceeding to administer any relief consequent thereon, or might decline to decide. By sect. 15, the declaration was to indemnify trustees, and this protection still subsists: Re Benzon, Forster v. Schlesinger, 54 L. T. 51; W. N. (86) 19. By sect. 17, the special case was to be a lis pendens, and might be registered as such. On a special case under a will, the costs were payable out of the general residue: Armitage v. Coates, 35 Beav. 1; Cowley v. Wellesley, Ib. 635; or, if none, from the specific property: Cookson v. Bingham, 17 Beav. 262. The estate having been administered, except 100*l.*, the trustees took their costs thereout in priority, and the residue went to the other parties rateably: Hindle v. Taylor, 5 D. M. & G. 577. As to costs under the old practice, see Morg. & Wurtz., 92; Dan. 5th ed., pp. 1710, 1711.

These orders are subject to appeal: see sect. 33.

The Court could decide disputed rights, on a special case: sect. 14; Schroeder v. S., Kay, 578; affir. 24 L. J. Ch. 510; 3 Eq. Rep. 97; 18 Jur. 987; 3 W. R. 55; but see Bailey v. Collett, 23 L. J. Ch. 230; 2 W. R. 216.

All persons interested beneficially were required to be parties: Entwistle v. Cannon, 4 W. R. 450; but where one of the parties was out of the jurisdiction, and there were others before the Court having identical interests, his presence was dispensed with: Re Brown, 29 Beav. 401; and the trustees were necessary parties to a case for construing the trust deed: Vorley v. Richardson, 8 D. M. & G. 126.

It must, however, be borne in mind that the procedure under the Act is in most cases superseded or rendered unnecessary by the procedure by way of originating summons (v. sup. Chap. XVIII., "CHAMBERS"), which should, it is conceived, be always resorted to where practicable.

CHAPTER XXII.

NOTES.

DIRECTING ISSUES—RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY—DISCRETION OF COURT.

The right of suitors to a jury was in general unaffected by the Judicature Acts; but by the Rules of 1883 has been greatly modified, especially in the Chancery Division.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 29, “any party to any cause or matter involving the trial of a question or issue of fact, or partly of fact and partly of law,” may, with the leave of the Judge or Judges of the Court or Division, have the question or issue tried at the assizes or at the sittings in London or Middlesex, as provided for by sect. 30.

By Jud. Act, 1875, s. 21, the methods of procedure previously existing in the different Courts are preserved in similar cases when not inconsistent with the Acts and Rules. And see O. LXXII, 2.

By O. XXXVI, 3, “causes or matters assigned by the principal Act to the Chancery Division shall be tried by a Judge without a jury, unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order.”

By r. 4, “the Court or a Judge may, if it shall appear desirable, direct a trial without a jury of any question or issue of fact, or partly of fact and partly of law, arising in any cause or matter which previously to the passing of the principal Act could, without any consent of parties, have been tried without a jury.” The rule extends to a cause which previously to the Act could have been brought either in Chancery or at common law: Baring Bros. v. N. W. of Uruguay Ry. Co., (1893) 2 Q. B. 406, C. A.

By r. 5, “the Court or a Judge may direct the trial without a jury of any cause, matter, or issue requiring any prolonged examination of documents or accounts, or any scientific or local investigation which cannot in their or his opinion conveniently be made with a jury": see Shafto v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., 35 W. R. 686; 57 L. T. 17; Swyny v. N. E. Ry. Co., 74 L. T. 88, C. A.

By r. 6, "in any other cause or matter, upon the application, within ten days after notice of trial has been given, of any party thereto for a trial with a jury of the cause or matter or any issue of fact, an order shall be made for a trial with a jury."

As to the meaning of the words "in any other cause or matter," see The Temple Bar, 11 P. D. 6, C. A.; Coote v. Ingram, 35 Ch. D. 117; Jenkins v. Bushby, (1891) 1 Ch. 484, C. A.

By r. 7, "(a) in every cause or matter, unless under the provisions of r. 6 of this order a trial with a jury is ordered, or under r. 2 of this order either party has signified a desire to have a trial with a jury, the mode of trial shall be by a Judge without a jury, provided that in any such case the Court or a Judge may at any time order any cause, matter, or issue to be tried by a Judge with a jury, or by a Judge sitting with assessors, or by an official referee or special referee, with or without assessors:

"(b) The Plt, in any cause or matter in which he is entitled to a jury, may have the issues tried by a special jury, upon giving notice in writing to that effect to the Deft at the time when he gives notice of trial:

"(c) The Deft, in any cause or matter in which he is entitled to a jury, may have the issues tried by a special jury, on giving notice in writing to that effect at any time after the close of the pleadings or settlement of the issues and before notice of trial, or if notice of trial has been given, then not less than six clear days before the day for which notice of trial has been given:

"(d) Provided that a Judge may at any time make an order for a special jury upon such terms, if any, as to costs and otherwise as may be just."

By r. 8, "subject to the provisions of the preceding rules of this order, the Court or a Judge may, in any cause or matter, at any time or from time to time, order that different questions of fact arising therein be tried by different modes of trial, or that one or more questions of fact be tried before the others, and may appoint the places for such trials, and in all cases may order that one or more issues of fact be tried before any other or others."

Before the Jud. Act, all questions of fact arising in suits properly instituted in Chancery could, without any consent of parties, be tried without a jury. If the Court thought fit, a jury could be had either by summoning a jury in Chancery (21 & 22 V. c. 27, s. 2), or by directing issues at law; but neither party could claim a jury as a matter of right: Bovill v. Hitchcock, 3 Ch. 417; Patent Marine Inventions Co. v. Chadburn, 16 Eq. 447. But at law questions of fact were tried with a jury as a matter of course, except such questions as, under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, ss. 3, 6, could without consent be referred to arbitration. The Jud. Act, 1873, s. 57, continued this exception under the new practice, and somewhat extended the class of cases which might be referred without consent; and it is now provided by the Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 V. c. 49), s. 13, that, "subject to rules of Court, and to any right to have particular cases tried by a jury, the Court or a Judge may refer any question arising in any cause or matter (other than a criminal proceeding by the Crown) for inquiry and report to any official or special referee."

The effect of the above rules is to make trial without jury the normal mode of trial in the Chancery Division, except where trial with a jury is ordered under rr. 3, 6, or 7 (a): Timson v. Wilson, 38 Ch. D. 72, 76, C. A.; The Temple Bar, 11 P. D. 6, C. A.; Jenkins v. Bushby, sup.; Baring Bros. v. N. W. of Uruguay Ry. Co., (1893) 2 Q. B. 406, C. A., sup.; and for the discretion formerly given to the Court by r. 26 of O. xxxvi of 1875, to direct a trial without a jury, is now substituted the converse discretion to direct trial with a jury.

Under the new rules the Court has declined to direct a trial with a jury in an action for injunction and damages for infringement of copyright: Coote v. Ingram, 35 Ch. D. 117; in an action for specific performance and injunction against infringement of ancient lights: Sheppard v. Gilmore, 34 W. R. 179; 53 L. T. 625; in an action claiming declaration that Deft was trustee for Plt, an account and damages for detention of chattels: Gardner v. Jay, 29 Ch. D. 50, C. A.; in an action claiming a declaration that Plt's bonds were deposited with the Defts in fraud of the Plt, and that they took them with notice: Thornton v. Union Discount Co. of London, 7 Times Rep. 322.

And in general an action will not be sent for trial with a jury, unless it involves a simple issue of fact, determination of which will decide the case: Cardinall v. C., 25 Ch. D. 772; and see Gardner v. Jay, 29 Ch. D. 50, 56, C. A.; and one Deft cannot insist upon having one issue relating to a matter not assigned to the Chancery Division tried with a jury: Sheppard v. Gilmore, sup.; nor a Plt in a redemption action, merely because Deft counter-claims for damages for fraudulent misrepresentation: Lynch v. Macdonald, 37 Ch. D. 227, C. A.; and the mere fact that the action will be more quickly tried at the assizes is not a ground for sending it there: Cardinall v. C., sup. But where a view of the locus in quo is all-important, a trial with a jury will be directed: Jenkins v. Bushby, (1891) 1 Ch. 484, C. A.; but see Mangan v. Met. Electric Supply Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 551, C. A.

The Court declined to direct a trial of selected issues the determination of which would not necessarily involve a determination of the main issue in the action: Ehrmann v. E., 72 L. T. 352, 548.

The discretion of the Court under O. XXX (v. sup., p. 25) has been generally exercised in accordance with the existing practice.

Under the previous rules, a trial with a jury has been refused where there were mixed questions of law and fact: Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Loog, 11 Ch. D. 656; Garling v. Royds, 25 W. R. 125; and see Cardinall v. C., sup.; in an action for infringement of trade mark, where only one issue of small importance was appropriate for a jury: Spratt's Patent v. Ward, 11 Ch. D. 241; in an action to restrain publication of a trade libel: Thomas v. Williams, 14 Ch. D. 864; where the question was mainly one of title, and depended on construction of documents: Wedderburn v. Pickering, 13 Ch. D. 769; and see A. G. v. Arkcoll, W. N. (82) 182; Garling v. Royds, 25 W. R. 123; or, under the Lands Clauses Act, whether lands had become superfluous: Smith v. N. Staffordshire Ry. Co., 44 L. T. 85; in actions for specific performance: Usil v. Whelpton, 50 L. J. Ch. 511; 45 L. T. 39; 29 W. R. 799; Sykes v. Firth, 46 L. J. Ch. 627; Pilley v. Baylis, 5 Ch. D. 241; Swindell v. Birmingham Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127, C. A.; on the application of a Plt who had delayed giving notice of trial, or in taking other steps: Lloyd v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 390.

In cases which, before the new procedure, would not have been essentially Chancery cases (see Swindell v. Birmingham Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127, C. A.), the fact that the Deft desired a trial by jury at the assizes was held a sufficient reason to be stated on the order: West v. White, 4 Ch. D. 631; but see, contra, Wood, &c. v. Hamlet, 6 Ch. D. 113, that the mere desire of the parties is not sufficient, and that the reasons should be stated on the order; and see Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234, 239.

The refusal of one Deft did not prevent an action from being tried with a jury, but it imposed on the Deft who desired it the duty of showing that it was more convenient: Mirehouse v. Barnett, 47 L. J. Ch. 689; 26 W. R. 690; Moss v. Bradburn, 32 W. R. 368; and see Bach v. Hay, 5 Ch. D. 235.

Where the parties had by agreement taken the evidence by affidavit, the Court refused to direct a trial with a jury, even in a case peculiarly adapted for such trial: Brook v. Wigg, 8 Ch. D. 510, C. A.

And an application by the Plt has been the less readily entertained, because by bringing his action in the Chancery Division he has selected his forum: Bach v. Hay, 5 Ch. D. 235; Pilley v. Davis, ib. 241; Sykes v. Firth, sup.; Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558, C. A.; and see Spratt's Patent v. Ward, 11 Ch. D. 241; Wedderburn v. Pickering, sup.; Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234.

Issues of fact at the instance of the Deft have been directed to be tried with a jury in cases of injunction to restrain nuisance: Clarke v. Skipper, 21 Ch. D. 134; Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234; obstruction of lights: Bordier v. Burrell, 5 Ch. D. 512; interference with watercourse: Petar v. Lailey, W. N. (81) 22; in creditors' actions for admon where the Plt's debt was disputed: Clarke v. Cookson, 2 Ch. D. 746; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365, C. A.; in an action for infringement of patent: Sugg v. Silber, 1 Q. B. D. 362; and for dissolution of partnership on the ground of breaches in the articles: Clements v. Norris, 6 Ch. D. 129.

In Re Moordaff, Burgoine v. M., 8 P. D. 205, after two abortive trials with a jury, a trial without jury was directed.

Where all the issues are appropriate for trial with a jury, and there is no necessity that the matter should come back to the Chancery Division, the most convenient course is to transfer the whole action to the Queen's Bench Division: Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, sup.; Fennessy v. Rabbits, 56 L. T. 138.

A Deft did not lose his right to have his case tried before a jury by entering into an arrangement for a motion for injunction to stand to the trial: Clarke v. Skipper, 21 Ch. D. 134.

As the jurisdiction to direct a trial with or without a jury is discretionary, the C. A. has been reluctant to interfere, unless the discretion has been exercised in a manner clearly erroneous: Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558, 565, C. A.; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365, C. A.; Ormerod v. Todmorden Mill Co., 8 Q. B. D., 664, 679, 684, C. A.; A. G. v. Vyner, 38 W. R. 194; Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 551.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

By O. XXXVI, 44, the Court or Judge may, "at any time, or from time to time," order the determination of an issue, and, under the former practice, an issue might be sent before the hearing: Kent v. Burgess, 11 Sim. 361; Townley v. Deare, 3 Beav. 213.

As to the duty of the parties to put their legal right in a course of trial at an early stage of their proceedings, and not wait till the hearing, see Bacon v. Jones, 4 M. & C. 433; and as to the effect of delay in applying for a trial by jury, see Thomas v. Williams, 14 Ch. D. 864, 871; Brooke v. Wigg, 8 Ch. D. 510.

After the disclosure of the Plt's evidence, the Court did not willingly direct issues on the Deft's motion: Roskell v. Whitworth, 5 Ch. 459.

After the jury had found against the validity of a deed, the order being submitted to, the parties claiming under the deed could not at the hearing insist on the Statute of Limitations: Lewis v. Thomas, 3 Ha. 26.

In Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234, it was held that notice by Deft of desire to have issues tried by a jury should be given out of Court, and should be in general terms, and not specify particular issues.

An advance from a fund in Court to enable parties to try an issue was refused in Johnston v. Todd, 3 Beav. 218; and in Nye v. Maule, 4 M. & C. 342; but in Coombs v. Brooks, 3 D. & S. 452, was allowed.

Leave to bring an action was given, instead of sending inquiries: Watson v. Parker, 2 Ph. 5; and see Lockhart v. Hardy, 5 Beav. 305.

Issues as to matters not suggested on the pleadings were not directed: Morgan v. Fuller (1), 2 Eq. 296; but an issue as to fraud was not defective because it threw on the Deft the onus of showing bona fides: Browne v. McClintock, L. R. 6 H. L. 456.

By O. LIV, 12, the settlement of issues, except by consent, is excluded from the jurisdiction of the Masters of the Queen's Bench Division, and from that of the Registrar of the Probate, &c. Division. There may be a reference to Chambers to settle issues: Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234.

TRIAL OF SOME ISSUES BEFORE OTHERS.

An application to have one issue in action tried before others can only be granted on very special grounds; as, for instance, where there is reason to believe that the trial of such issue will put an end to the action: per Jessel, M. R., Piercy v. Young, 15 Ch. D. 475, 480; Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 918, 926; and see Dent v. Sovereign Life Ass., 27 W. R. 378; Tasmanian Main Line Co. v. Clark, 27 W. R. 677.

Where liability and amount of damages are both disputed, and the question of damages is such that it will probably be referred to some tribunal other than a jury, the question of liability may be directed to be tried first: Smith v. Hargrove, &c. Co., 16 Q. B. D. 183.

PLACE AND MODE OF TRIAL BY JURY UNDER THE JUD. ACTS.

By Jud. Act, 1875, s. 21, and by the rules (see O. LXXII, 2), the existing procedure is preserved, except where otherwise provided by the Acts and Rules.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 29, the Queen may issue commissions of assize for the trial of "any causes or matters, or any questions or issues of fact or of law, or partly of fact and partly of law"; and any party to a cause or matter may, with the leave of the Judge or Judges to whom or to whose Division the cause or matter is assigned, require the question or issue to be tried before a commr. And by consent a cause or matter not involving any question or issue of fact may be tried in like manner.

Sect. 30 (as amended by 46 & 47 V. c. 39), provides that, "subject to rules of Court, sittings for the trial by jury of causes and questions or issues of fact, shall be held in Middlesex or London" continuously; and, by sect. 37, trials by jury, whether in London or Middlesex, or under commissions of assize, &c., shall, subject to the arrangements of the Judges, be held by or before Judges of the Queen's Bench Division; but there is a proviso for including other persons in any such commissions.

In Redmayne v. Vaughan, 24 W. R. 983, an issue from the Chancery Division was tried at Liverpool.

By O. XXXVI, 9, "every trial of any question or issue of fact by a jury shall be by a single Judge, unless such trial be specially ordered to be by two or more Judges." And see Jud. Act, 1873, s. 40, which is now modified by the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 59), s. 17, by which all actions and proceedings are to be before a single Judge, subject to rules of Court.

By r. 13, the notice of trial is to state whether it is for the trial of the action or of issues therein, and the place and day for which it is to be entered for trial (for Form, see R. S. C. App. B., No. 16); and, by r. 17, is to be deemed to be, as to trials in London and Middlesex, not for any particular sittings, but for any day after the expiration of the notice on which the action may come on for trial in its order; and by r. 18, as to trials elsewhere, is to be deemed to be for the first day of the then next assizes.

As to the jurisdiction of the Judge upon a summons for directions under O. XXX, 1, in an action to be tried at assizes, to order that the Dft shall take notice of trial at a period less than ten days before the commission day, and that the case shall not come on for trial at the assizes until a day which will make the notice so given a ten days' notice of trial, see Baxter v. Holdsworth, (1899) 1 Q. B. 266, C. A.

Jud. Act, 1875, s. 20, provides that, save as far as relates to the power of the Court for special reasons to allow depositions or affidavits to be read, the mode of giving evidence by the oral examination of witnesses in trials by jury shall not be affected, nor the rules of evidence, nor the law relating to jury-men or juries.

Sect. 22, after reciting the 46th section of the principal Act (enabling any Judge to direct any case or point in a case to be argued before a Divisional Court), enacts that nothing in that Act, nor in any rule or order, shall take away or prejudice the right of any party to any action to have the issues for trial by jury submitted and left by the Judge to the jury before whom the same shall come for trial, with a proper and complete direction to the jury upon the law, and as to the evidence applicable to such issues, and that such right may be enforced either by motion in the High Court of Justice or by motion in the C. A. founded upon an exception entered upon or annexed to the record.

By O. XXXVI, 39, "the Judge shall, at or after trial, direct judgment to be entered as he shall think right, and no motion for judgment shall be necessary in order to obtain such judgment."

By the Jud. Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 44), s. 2, "every motion for judgment in any cause or matter in which there has been a trial of any issue therein with a jury," shall be heard and determined before the Judge before whom such trial with a jury took place, and not by a Divisional Court, unless it be impossible or inconvenient that such Judge should act, in which case such motion shall be heard and determined by some other Judge to be nominated by the President of the Division to which the cause or matter belongs.

By O. XXXVI, 41, upon every trial at the assizes, or at the London and Middlesex sittings of the Q. B. Division, "where the officer present at the trial is not the officer by whom judgments ought to be entered, the associate or master shall enter all such findings of fact as the Judge may direct to be entered, and the directions, if any, of the Judge as to judgment, and the certificates, if any, granted by the Judge, in a book to be kept for the purpose."

By r. 42, "if the Judge shall direct that any judgment be entered for any party absolutely, the certificate of the associate or Master to that effect shall be a sufficient authority to the proper officer to enter judgment accordingly." The certificate may be in the Form No. 17 in App. (B.) to R. S. O.; and see Form 6, sup. p. 370.

If such trials are those of actions in the Chancery Division, the registrar will be the proper officer.

As to irregularities in impannelling the jury, see Irwin v. Grey, L. R. 2 H. L. 20; Mulcahy v. The Queen, L. R. 3 H. L. 306.

As to qualifications, summoning, attendance, and remuneration of jurors, see 33 & 34 V. c. 77.

POSTPONING TRIAL.

Notice of trial cannot now be countermanded except by consent or by leave, on such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just: O. xxxvi, 19; Clarke v. Cookson, 24 W. R. 535.

By r. 34, the Judge may postpone or adjourn the trial on such terms, if any, as he shall think fit.

Under special circumstances leave was given to postpone: Bearblock v. Tyler, 1 J. & W. 226; Kebel v. Philpot, 9 Sim. 614; the application being made to the Court which directed the issue: S. C.; it was refused in Hargrave v. H., 9 Beav. 153, and Wright v. McGuffie, 4 C. B. N. S. 441; and motion by Plt for stay of trial, till Deft had cleared his contempt in non-payment of costs, was refused; Bickford v. Skewes, 10 Sim. 193; S. C., 4 M. & C. 498; and see Reeve v. Hodson, 10 Ha. xxiv.

That the House of Lords might be influenced on an appeal case by the result of a trial was no ground for postponing it: Boyse v. Colclough, 1 K. & J. 140.

DEFAULT AT TRIAL.

Where the Plt or party having the conduct of the issue fails to bring it on, the other side may now do so: O. xxxvi, 12, v. sup. p. 147.

By O. xxxvi, 31, "if, when a trial is called on, the Plt appears, and the Deft does not appear, then the Plt may prove his claim so far as the burden of proof lies upon him."

By r. 32, "if, when a trial is called on, the Deft appears, and the Plt does not appear, the Deft, if he has no counter-claim, shall be entitled to judgment dismissing the action, but if he has a counter-claim, then he may prove such claim so far as the burden of proof lies upon him."

By r. 33, "any verdict or judgment obtained where one party does not appear at the trial, may be set aside by the Court or a Judge upon such terms as may seem fit, upon an application made within six days after the trial: such application may be made either at the assizes or in Middlesex."

Where judgment goes by default, the jury need not be sworn: Lane v. Eve, W. N. (76) 86.

As to default of either side in appearing at the trial, v. sup. p. 150.

COSTS OF ISSUE.

By O. LXV, 1, costs are to be in the discretion of the Court, but the costs of any action or issue tried by a jury are to follow the event, unless upon application made at the trial for good cause shown the Judge before whom such action or issue is tried or the Court shall otherwise order.

As to the operation of this rule generally, v. sup. p. 255.

Formerly, costs of an issue were discretionary, but generally followed the event as at law: see Corp. Rochester v. Lee, 2 D. M. & G. 427; Duncan v. Varty, 2 Ph. 696. But see Wright v. W., 5 Sim. 449.

Success on the material issue carried all the costs at law, notwithstanding failure on another issue: Blackburn v. Gregson, 1 B. C. C. 425.

The costs of an issue directed on an interlocutory application could be disposed of after the issue was decided, without waiting for the hearing of the cause: Duncan v. Varty, 2 Ph. 696; overruling Malins v. Price, 2 Col. 190; but where, on appeal, an order directing an issue was reversed, and a new issue directed, the costs of the appeal were reserved: Parker v. Morrell, 2 Ph. 453.

And as to costs of issue, and actions, and appeal, where an action was allowed, on appeal from an order refusing a new trial of an issue found for Deft, and from an order dismissing the bill, and Plt succeeded in the action, and in a second action allowed at law, see Corp. Rochester v. Lee, 2 D. M. & G. 427; and see Martin v. Pycroft, Ib. 806.

Where Defts obtained an order for a new trial on their paying costs of the former one, and they did not go to trial, they were not bound to pay the costs: Lambert v. Fisher, 7 Sim. 525.

As to costs of an issue under the Inclosure Act, 1845 (8 & 9 V. c. 118), s. 56, see Hardy v. Fetherstonhaugh, L. R. 4 Q. B. 725.

SECTION II.—SPECIAL DIRECTIONS AS TO TRIAL OF ISSUES AND QUESTIONS OF FACT.

1. Directions for Special Jury—O. xxxvi, 7 (d).

AND Let such trial be, at the request of either party, before a special jury.

For similar order reserving the costs of the application until after the trial of the issue, see Butlin v. Allibone, 13 L. J. Ch. 216.

2. Order for View by Special Jury—O. L, 5.

UPON the application of the Deft, and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant and for the Plt, Let the sheriff of M. cause the premises known as &c. in the county of M., to be shown to six or more of the first twelve special jurors to be summoned and impannelled to try the question between the said parties, or as many more of them as he shall think fit, to take a view of the place in question, at a time to be fixed by the said sheriff. But that no evidence be then and there given to the said jurors. And that the sheriff of M. do return the names of such jurors as shall view the said place to the Associate of the Queen's Bench Division [of the X. circuit], for the purpose of their being called as special jurymen upon the trial of the said question.—Newman v. Worley, V.-O. B. at Chambers, 12 Feb. 1883, B. 194.

The order to try by a special jury may be included in this Form. For similar order in which the time to view is fixed, see March v. Bailey, Pearson, J., at Chambers, 20 July, 1885, B. 938.

NOTES.

VENUE.

For order fixing particular venue, see Chapman v. Smith, 2 Ves. 516; and with directions as to special jury, Layburn v. Crisp, 1 Dec. 1837; S. C., in Exch. 4 M. & W. 320.

By O. xxxvi, 1, "there shall be no local venue for the trial of any action, except where otherwise provided by statute. Every action in every division shall, unless the Court or a Judge otherwise orders, be tried in the county or place named on the statement of claim, or (where no statement of claim has been delivered or required) by a notice in writing to be served on the Deft, or his solr, within six days after appearance. Where no place of trial is named, the place of trial shall, unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order, be the county of Middlesex."

These provisions apply to every action, notwithstanding that it may have been assigned to any Judge: r. 1a.

The words "except where otherwise provided by statute," do not revive local venues abolished by the Jud. Act, 1875, but extend only to local venues created by statutes passed since that Act: Buckley v. Hull Docks Co., (1893) 2 Q. B. 93.

The rules of this order do not confer any new jurisdiction so as to enable the Court to entertain an action for trespass to foreign land: British South Africa Co. v. Companhia de Mocambique, (1893) A. C. 602, H. L.

O. xxxvi, 1, is precise, and a Plt is entitled under it to place the venue of his action at county assizes, although it is assigned to the Chancery Division by s. 34 of the Jud. Act, 1873, and although it has been commenced in that Division: Philips v. Beall, 26 Ch. D. 621, C. A.

Change of venue.]—A Plt who wishes to name some place other than in Middlesex must do so in the original statement of claim, if not the venue is in Middlesex, and once fixed must there remain unless there is an order to the contrary: Locke v. White, 33 Ch. D. 308, C. A.; and see Ridge v. R., 35 L. T. 428.

An application for change of venue made before notice of trial or issue joined was held not premature, the pleadings having disclosed the issues to be tried: Powell v. Cobb, 29 Ch. D. 486, C. A.; but an order for change of venue ought not to be made until the Judge can see what the issues are: Ibid. p. 494.

Change of venue from Cardigan was ordered, on application of Deft, in action to set aside deeds for fraud: Powell v. Cobb, sup.; and for other cases in which the venue has been changed from country to London on the ground of convenience, see Green v. Bennett, 54 L. J. Ch. 85; 32 W. R. 848; 50 L. T. 706; Old Mill Co. v. Dukinfield Local Board, 54 L. J. Ch. 160; 51 L. T. 414; and that the Deft, applying for a change, must show serious injury to his case if the venue is not changed, see Schroeder & Co. v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261.

The influence which the reputation of a material witness may have upon jurors' minds, in affecting the relative credit to be given to him and other witnesses, is no ground for changing the venue: McGregor v. Topham, 3 Ha. 488; nor that a party whose conduct is impeached is lord lieutenant of the county: Hopwood v. E. Derby, 1 K. & J. 255.

ISSUES OF FACT WITHOUT PLEADINGS.

By O. xxxiv, 9, when the parties to a cause or matter are agreed as to the questions of fact to be decided between them, they may, after writ issued and before judgment, by consent and order of the Court or a Judge, proceed to the trial of any such questions of fact without formal pleadings; and such questions may be stated for trial in an issue which may be entered for trial and tried in the same manner as any issue joined in an ordinary action, and the proceedings are to be under the control and jurisdiction of the Court or Judge, in the same way as the proceedings in an action. And by r. 10, the Court is empowered by consent to direct that, upon the finding of the issue, a sum of money, fixed or to be ascertained upon a question in the issue, is to be paid by one party to the other either with or without costs.

As to trial by jury, see Dan. 611.

SECTION III.—VARIOUS ISSUES.

1. Issues (alternative) as to Heirship.

1. WHETHER E. is the heir-at-law of the testatrix ; in which E. is to be Plt, and the Defts L. and W. are to be Defts ; 2ndly. Whether the said L. and W., or one and which of them, are or is the heirs or heir-at-law of the testatrix ; in which the Deft L. is to be Plt, and the Deft W. is to be Deft ; But in case on the trial of the first issue the said E. shall be found to be the heir-at-law of the testatrix, then the second issue is not to be tried.—Hartopp v. Boothby, L. C., 17 Nov. 1775, A. 124.

2. Issues as to Heir-at-Law ex parte paternâ and ex parte maternâ, and Customary Heir.

1. WHETHER Plt was or was not at the time of the death of Ann F. in &c. the heir-at-law ex parte paternâ of the said Ann F. ; 2. Whether Plt is or is not now the heir-at-law ex parte paternâ of the said Ann F. ; 3 and 4, similar issues whether the Plt was the heir of Ann F., ex parte maternâ at her death, and is now. 5. Whether the Plt was or was not the customary heir of the said Ann F. according to the custom of any manor whereof the said Ann F. had copyholds of inheritance. 6. Whether the Plt is or is not now the customary heir of the said Ann F. as last mentioned. 7. Whether the Plt was or was not at the time of the death of Ann F. the heir-at-law of any and what ancestor ex parte paternâ of Sarah F. in the (bill) named, which ancestor was the last purchaser of any and what hereditaments which the said Ann F. died seised of by descent, or in any manner entitled to by descent from the said Sarah F., or of any and what hereditaments whatsoever which the said Ann F. died seised of or entitled to. 8. Whether the Plt is or is not now such heir of &c. (as above). 9. Whether the Plt is not lineally descended from the great grandfather of the said Ann F.—Kettlewell v. Barstow, V.-C. J., 30 June, 1870, A. 2440 ; S. C., 7 Ch. 686.

As to evidence admissible in pedigree case, see Haines v. Guthrie, 13 Q. B. D. 818 ; Murray v. Milner, 12 Ch. D. 845.

3. Issue as to Eldest or only Son.

WHETHER J., in the pleadings named, is the eldest or only son of M., the wife of P., by the said P. lawfully begotten.—Cooke v. Lloyd, M. R., 7 March, 1803, B. 522.

SECTION IV.—JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS AFTER TRIAL OF ISSUES OR QUESTIONS OF FACT.

1. Judgment after Trial of Issues or Questions of Fact, or Fact and Law, without a Jury, where Judgment pronounced at the Trial.

THE parties having on the — day of — (and this day) proceeded to a trial of the issues [or questions of fact &c.] directed by the order dated &c. to be tried before this Court without a jury, This Court doth decide in favour of the Plt [or Deft], and doth find &c. [State the findings], and doth &c.

For form of notice of motion, see Dan. 353.

3. After Issue, as to Right of Way.

THIS action coming on for trial the — and — before this Court in the presence of counsel for the Plt and for the Deft, and upon hearing &c., This Court did find that the Plt was and is entitled to such right of way and other rights over W. court as claimed in this action by the Plt, and that the same had been obstructed by the Deft and the building erected by him, and did direct that a verdict be entered for the Plt accordingly; And upon motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for the Plt for judgment in accordance with such finding and verdict, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft, Let the Deft B. forthwith pull down and remove all buildings and structures erected so or in such manner as to interfere with or obstruct the Plt's right of way and passage over and along W. court &c., as the same existed before the commencement of the Deft's building, so as to hinder or prevent the Plt, his servants &c., coming or going to or from the messuages and Court &c., as the same existed before the commencement of the Deft's building, so as to hinder or prevent the Plt, his servants &c., coming or going to or from the said messuages and premises, No. —, — Street, or exercising, using, or enjoying the free access to the rear of the Plt's said messuage, No. —, — Street, over and along the said W. Court.—See Krehl v. Burrell, M. R., 28 Jan. 1878, A. 226; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A., Form 10, p. 565.

NOTES.

PROCEEDINGS AFTER THE TRIAL OF ISSUES, ETC.

By O. XL, 7, "where issues have been ordered to be tried, or issues or questions of fact to be determined in any manner, the Plt may set down a motion for judgment as soon as such issues or questions have been determined. If he does not set down such a motion, and give notice thereof to the other parties within ten days after his right so to do has arisen, any Deft may set down a motion for judgment, and give notice thereof to the other parties."

By r. 8, "where issues have been ordered to be tried, or issues or questions of fact to be determined in any manner, and some only of such issues or questions of fact have been tried or determined, any party who considers that the result of such trial or determination renders the trial or determination of the others of them unnecessary, or renders it desirable that the trial or determination thereof should be postponed, may apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to set down a motion for judgment, without waiting for such trial or determination. And the Court or Judge may, if satisfied of the expediency thereof, give such leave, upon such terms, if any, as shall appear just, and may give any directions which may appear desirable as to postponing the trial of the other issues of fact."

By the Jud. Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vic. c. 44), s. 1, every motion for a new trial, or to set aside a verdict, finding, or judgment, in any cause or matter in the High Court in which there has been a trial thereof, or of any issue therein with a jury, is to be heard and determined by the C. A. and not by a Divisional Court of the High Court.

By s. 2, every motion for judgment in any such cause or matter is to be heard and determined by the Judge before whom such trial with a jury took place, and not by a Divisional Court, unless it be impossible or inconvenient that such Judge should act, in which case such motion shall be heard and determined by some other Judge to be nominated by the President of the Division to which the cause or matter belongs.

In Evans v. Merthyr Tydfil District Council, (1899) 1 Ch. 241, where admissible evidence of reputation had been rejected on both sides at the trial of an issue, the C. A. remitted the action to Romer, J., for a new trial.

Where a rider appended to the verdict of the jury explained but did not affect the verdict on the main issue a new trial was refused: Farrelly v. Corrigan, (1899) A. C. 563, P. C.

Under the former practice the cause could be set down immediately after the trial of an action allowed: Rodgers v. Nowill, 6 Ha. 338. Where the issues were tried without a jury, and the bill dismissed at once, the order was not to be drawn up until the time for moving for a new trial had expired: Macdougall v. Gen. Sewage, &c. Co., 23 W. R. 435.

At the hearing after the trial of issues, the Court was bound by the findings, and to give effect to them, or order a new trial: Browne v. McClintock, L. R. 6 H. L. 434; although they left the question undecided: Exp. Freeman of Sunderland, 1 Drew. 184; or were against the weight of evidence: Exp. Morgan, 2 Ch. D. 72, C. A.; or founded on evidence which ought not to have been admitted: Evans v. Prothero, 1 D. M. & G. 572; or on questions wrongly put: Exp. Morgan, sup.; and see Fulton v. Andrew, L. R. 7 H. L. 448. As to whether this rule applied to issues directed on interlocutory motion, see Kent v. Burgess, 11 Sim. 361, 372. It did apply where the facts had by consent been found by the Judge himself acting as a jury: Fernie v. Young, L. R. 1 H. L. 63; Simpson v. Holliday, L. R. 1 H. L. 315; but see Curtis v. Platt, L. R. 1 H. L. 337; Exp. Gillebrand, 10 Ch. 52.

But if there was no evidence to go to the jury (S. C., Exp. Morgan, 2 Ch. Div. 72); or on appeal the view taken of the law was such as to make the findings immaterial (Simpson v. Holliday, L. R. 1 H. L. 315; Exp. Bolland, 7 Ch. 24; Morrison v. Barrow, 1 D. F. & J. 633); or they became so because of facts happening since (Armstrong v. A., 3 My. & K. 45; 1 D. F. & J. 640, n.; and see 2 Ch. D. 81, 82, C. A.); or the jury had evidently been misled by the wording of one of the issues (Exp. Bolland, 7 Ch. 24), the verdict might be disregarded or set aside without a new trial and an order made in favour of the side against whom the verdict was given: Exp. Morgan, 2 Ch. D. 72, 98, C. A.

The Court was not bound by the decision of another Court as a jury on similar facts in another case: Dent v. Auction Mart Co., 2 Eq. 238, 254.

Before the trial of an issue, Plt might dismiss his bill, with costs, on motion; but Deft, after trial and verdict for him, was entitled to have the cause set down for further consideration, in order that the dismissal might be pleadable: Carrington v. Holly, 1 Dick. 280; cited 2 Dick. 612.

After the issues had been tried, and a new trial refused, an appeal might be brought against the order directing the issues: Butlin v. Masters, 2 Ph. 290; Browne v. McClintock, L. R. 6 H. L. 463; Malone v. M., 8 Cl. & F. 179. As to the costs in such a case, see Rochester v. Lee, 2 D. M. & G. 427.

ISSUES OF FACT WITHOUT PLEADINGS.

By O. xxxiv, 11, upon the finding on any such issue, as in rule 9 mentioned (v. sup. p. 377), judgment may be entered for the sum agreed or ascertained, with or without costs, as the case may be, and execution may issue upon such judgment forthwith, unless otherwise agreed, or unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order for the purpose of giving either party an opportunity for moving to set aside the finding or for a new trial.

By r. 12, the proceedings upon such issue, as in rule 9 mentioned, may be recorded at the instance of either party, and the judgment, whether actually recorded or not, shall have the same effect as any other judgment in a contested action.

4. Order on Petition dismissed.

UPON the petition of &c., preferred &c. [Form 1, And recite prayer of petition], and upon hearing counsel for the Petr and for &c., and upon reading the said petition [enter evidence], This Court doth order that this petition do stand dismissed out of this Court [if with costs, see Chap. XVII., "Costs," p. 247].

For forms of orders for substituted service of petition, and for service out of the jurisdiction, v. sup. Chap. II., "SERVICE OF WRIT AND PROCEEDINGS," p. 9.

For formal parts of petitions, see D. C. F. 826 et seq.

NOTES.

PROCEDURE BY PETITION.

By O. 1, 1, 2, all suits hitherto commenced by bill or information are to be by action, and all other proceedings in and applications to the High Court may, subject to the rules, be taken and made in the same manner and in the same Court in which any proceeding or application of the like kind could have been taken or made if the Jud. Acts had not been passed.

By O. v, 9 (a), where a matter is commenced by petition, such petition is to be brought to the office of the registrars of the Chancery Division, and marked by the officer charged by the registrars with that duty, with the name of one of the Judges of that Division (to be ascertained in the manner used in the distribution of business amongst the conveyancing counsel of the Court: see O. LI, 9; and sup. Chap. XIX., "SALES BY THE COURT," p. 340).

Every subsequent petition relating to or connected with the same matter is to be marked with the name of the same Judge: O. v, 9 (e).

Petitions are transferred in the same manner as actions, as to which v. inf. Chap. XXXIV.

Petitions are either special or of course, orders on the latter being drawn up, passed and entered by the registrars of the Chancery Division (O. LXII, 18) without any direct application to the Judge.

By O. LXI, 19, petitions in causes are to be distinguished by year, letter, and number; and by O. XIX, 9, petitions are excepted from the rule as to printing pleadings. The former practice has not been altered as to service of petitions, whether in actions, or in matters, notwithstanding r. 10; and by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 100, "pleading" includes "petition."

The C. A. has no jurisdiction to hear petitions, except on appeal: see Re Dunraven Coal, &c. Co., 24 W. R. 37; 33 L. T. 371; Jud. Act, 1873, s. 18; O. LVIII, 4, 17.

The petition should be addressed to the High Court of Justice, and should contain, as concisely as possible, a statement of the material facts, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved, and is to be divided into paragraphs, numbered consecutively, and each paragraph containing as nearly as may be a separate allegation. Dates, sums, and numbers are to be expressed in figures, and not in words. Signature of counsel is not necessary: see O. XIX, 4.

The effect of documents ought to be stated without setting them out at length (r. 21), except where the precise words are material, as, for instance, in the case of wills or settlements on applications for payment out of Court. In such cases the gift ought to be set out verbatim; and as to the form of alleging certain facts, see rr. 22—25.

As to the effect of these rules, see Hammer v. Flight, 24 W. R. 346; 35 L. T. 127; Herring v. Bischoffsheim, W. N. (76) 77.

As to striking out pleadings calculated to embarrass from prolixity and statement of immaterial facts, v. sup. Chap. V., "PLEADINGS," p. 35.

The petitioner, if not a party to the cause, must give his name, residence, and description: Glazbrook v. Gillatt, 9 Beav. 492; and if abroad may be required to give security for costs: Atkins v. Cooke, 3 Drew. 694; 5 W. R. 384; and so on petition under the statutory jurisdiction, and though respondent had filed affidavits: Anon., 12 Sim. 262; Exp. Seidler, 12 Sim. 106; Re Dolman, 11 Jur. 1095. As to giving security for costs generally, v. sup. Chap. IV., pp. 26 et seq. The order for security to be given was refused as to a petitioner residing abroad, who was a Deft in the suit in which the petition was presented: Cochrane v. Fearon, 18 Jur. 568; 2 Eq. Rep. 813. Secus, where he came in under the decree: Partington v. Reynolds, 4 Drew. 253; 6 W. R. 307; et v. sup. Chap. XVII., "COSTS."

Infants must petition by a next friend; and the Court will require a guardian to be appointed to an infant respondent in a matter: Re Barrington, 27 Beav. 272; Re Ward, 6 Jur. N. S. 441. As to the mode of appointing a guardian for an infant respondent to a petition, see O. XVI, 19. In Re Mitchell, 23 Jan. 1866, V.-C. K. allowed an infant respondent to appear by her testamentary guardian, but under the circumstances required an affidavit that the guardian had no adverse interest; and v. inf. Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

By O. LXI, 15, no order on petition is to be passed till the petition is filed in the Central Office. By r. 17, proper indexes of the petitions are to be kept there. The original petition having been lost, leave was given to file the copy left with the Judge: Sanderson v. Walker, 1 M. & C. 359; Smith v. Harwood, 1 S. & G. 137. And where a petition was dismissed, and the petitioner's solr would not produce it to be filed, the copy served on the respondent was ordered to be filed instead: Re Devonshire, 32 Beav. 241; Re Anglo-Greek, &c. Co. (No. 2), 35 Beav. 419, where the petitioners were ordered to pay the costs of the applications.

A petition under sect. 39 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, seeking to bind the interest of a married woman restrained from anticipation, need not be entitled in the matter of the Act: Re Landfield, L. v. L., Fry, J., 30 W. R. 377; 46 L. T. 227.

Petitions are answered in the name of the senior registrar: O. LXII, 18, and the list thereof prepared in the Cause Book Room. As to the practice in reference to answering winding-up petitions, see Re Building Societies Trust, 44 Ch. D. 140, 142.

SERVICE.

By O. LII, 16, at the foot of every petition and copy thereof, a statement is to be made of the persons, if any, intended to be served, or, if so, that no person is to be served. The respondents ought to be named, and not merely described as Plts or Defts: per M. R. in W. N. (76) 219.

By r. 17, unless by special leave, the time for service is two clear days; and as to the computation of a limited time of less than six days, see O. LXIV, 2, 3.

As to service of petition out of the jurisdiction, v. sup. Chap. II., p. 18.

Substituted service of a petition in a suit was ordered on the ground that the bill could have been so served: Shurmer v. Hodge, W. N. (66) 304; but see Anon., W. N. (76) 105, per Denman, J.

As to service of the writ of summons on infants (and the service of petitions in actions may probably follow the same rules), see O. IX, 4; O. XIII, 1; and generally O. IX; and by O. LII, 8, the plaintiff may, without any special leave, serve any petition upon any Deft, who, having been duly served with a writ of summons to appear in the action, has not appeared within the time limited for that purpose.

By O. XIX, 10, every "pleading (which by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 100, includes petitions) or other document required to be delivered to a party or between parties," shall be delivered to a party for whom no appearance has been entered by being filed.

This seems to apply to petitions in actions, but in many cases, having regard to the subject-matter of such petitions, the Court would require service: see Re Battersby's Trusts, 10 Ch. D. 228.

If a respondent does not appear, the order may be made as against him, on affidavit of service; if the petitioner does not appear when the petition is called on in regular order as an opposed petition, the respondent may have the petition dismissed with costs on producing an affidavit of having been served, or the copy of the petition served upon him. For order to dismiss petition, see Form 4, sup.

As to affidavits of service, v. sup. pp. 19, 175.

AMENDMENT.

Leave to amend the petition is almost of course; and an amendment is often required by the Court before granting the order: and see Matson v. Swift, 8 Beav. 378, 379; 9 Jur. 521; Re Humphrys, 1 Jur. N. S. 921.

Petitions have been amended after the hearing and the passing and entry of the order: Hislop v. Wykeham, 3 W. R. 286; Re Bunnett, 1 Jur. N. S. 921; Re Havelock, 14 W. R. 26, 174; 11 Jur. N. S. 906; Re Savage, 15 Ch. D. 557, sup. Chap. VI., "AMENDMENT," p. 41 (but see Re Marrow, C. & P. 142); and after service and advertisement under the Settled Estates Acts: Re Wilkinson, 9 Eq. 71.

The petition will be amended in the Cause Book Room on a note from the registrar.

Facts occurring after leave to attend was given may be stated in the amendments: Re Westbrook, 11 Eq. 252.

An amended petition does not in general require re-answering: Re Medow, 12 W. R. 595; 10 Jur. N. S. 536; Robinson v. Harrison, 1 Drew. 307.

A petition on which an order had been made, which had not been worked out, was revived on the application of the exor of the petitioner: Re Youl, 16 Eq. 107.

By O. xxviii, 6, application for leave to amend any pleading (which includes petitions, Jud. Act, 1873, s. 100) may be made by either party to the Court or a Judge; and may be given on such terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just; in practice, however, petitions are amended upon the direction of the Court upon a fiat signed by the registrar, as before stated, without the imposition of any terms.

By O. lii, 6, if on the hearing of a motion or other application the Court or Judge shall be of opinion that any person to whom notice has not been given ought to have or to have had such notice, the Court or Judge may either dismiss the motion or application, or adjourn the hearing thereof, in order that such notice may be given, upon such terms, if any, as the Court or Judge may think fit to impose.

And by r. 7, the hearing of any motion or application may from time to time be adjourned upon such terms, if any, as the Court or Judge shall think fit.

EVIDENCE.

By O. xxxviii, 1, the evidence upon any motion, petition, or summons may be by affidavit, but the Court or a Judge may, on the application of either party, order the attendance for cross-examination of the person making any such affidavit; and the Court has power to direct the depositions of witnesses to be taken before an examiner: see O. xxxvii, 5.

The Court has a discretion to refuse to order a witness to attend for cross-examination: La Trinidad v. Browne, 36 W. R. 138.

As to the form, contents, and mode of swearing affidavits, and as to evidence generally, v. sup. Chap. VIII., "EVIDENCE."

The petitioner intending to use affidavits previously filed in the action, should give notice thereof to the respondents. When the title of a petition is amended, affidavits need not be resworn, but may be made exhibits to a short affidavit: Re Varteg Chapel, 10 Ha. xxxvii. The petition must be entitled in the cause or matter to which the fund is standing, but a slight variation between the title of the petition and that of the account to which the fund was standing, was immaterial: Re Harris, 8 Jur. N. S. 166; and see Re Varley, 14 W. R. 98; in which case, and in Re Gombault, W. N. (68) 243, the affidavits were sworn before the petition was presented; and as to an affidavit wrongly intituled in an action, see Fisher v. Coffey, 1 Jur. N. S. 956.

ORDER ON PETITION.

In Sharshaw v. Gibbs, 18 Jur. 330; 1 Kay, 333; 2 Eq. R. 314; 23 L. J. Ch. 451, it was said that the Court makes no declaration on petition, but, if necessary, prefaces its order with the statement of its opinion; but this rule is not adhered to: see Re Walker, 16 Jur. 1154; and by O. xxv, 5, no action or proceeding is to be open to objection on the ground that a merely declaratory judgment or order is sought thereby, and the Court may make binding declarations of right whether any consequential relief is or could be claimed, or not: and see Re St. Nazaire Co., sup. Chap. XII., "TRIAL AND JUDGMENT," p. 165.

COSTS.

A respondent who appears unnecessarily after service and tender of a sufficient sum to enable him to get legal advice, will not have his costs: Re Duggan, 6 Eq. 697; Boucher v. Wood, 6 Ch. 77, and cases there cited: Carey v. Whittingham, T. & R. 405; Re Gore Langton's Estate, 10 Ch. 328.

And by O. lxxv, 27 (19), where any petition in a cause or matter assigned to the Chancery Division is served, with notice to the party served that if he appear his costs will be objected to, the tender of costs for perusing the same is to be £1 10s., which is to be allowed to the party making the payment if the service was proper, but not otherwise. This is without prejudice to the rights of either party to costs or to object to costs where no such tender is made, or where the Court or Judge shall consider the party entitled, notwithstanding such notice or tender, to appear in Court. In any other case in which a solr of a party served necessarily or properly peruses any such petition without appearing thereon, he is to be allowed a fee not exceeding £1 10s.: see Re Sutton, 21 Ch. D. 855.

And by r. 27 (23), any party appearing on any application or proceeding in which he is not interested, or which he ought not to attend, will not be allowed costs unless expressly directed. Where no tender for costs was made to respondents who had no interest, they were allowed £2 2s. (the amount specified in the corresponding Rules of 1875): Somes v. Martin, W. N. (82) 113.

Where in consequence of an error in a petition, procedure by summons being inapplicable, a supplemental petition became necessary, the costs of both petitions were allowed against a co.: Re Sanders, 70 L. T. 755.

For costs of perusal of a petition in a pending cause or matter by the solr of the party to whom the same is delivered, such sum, if any, is to be allowed as the taxing officer may in his discretion think reasonable: R. S. C. App. N., 136A (Oct. 1899).

PETITIONS ADJOURNED TO CHAMBERS.

By O. LV, 29, when any matter is adjourned to Chambers, or any directions are given to be acted upon at Chambers, without an order being drawn up, a note signed by the registrar, stating the purpose of the adjournment or directions, is to be left at Chambers.

Adjournment from Court to Chambers is often directed on petitions for payment of funds out of Court, where the evidence is complicated, or the persons representing a class or family are numerous, and much time would be occupied in investigating their title in Court. By this course, the expense of a certificate and of a further order and attendance in Court is saved. If a petition is thus adjourned to Chambers, that the matter may be looked into there, and is then to be brought on again to be disposed of in Court, without a formal certificate being made, a minute of the result is annexed to the Judge's copy of the petition and sent to the Judge in Court, and a note of the evidence used will be made by the Master for the registrar, on the fold of the original petition: see Dan. 907.

A petition for payment out of Court under the Trustee Relief Act (now Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42) may be adjourned into Chambers: Re Moate's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 635.

Where matters adjourned to Chambers may be prosecuted without drawing up the order, see Kelson v. K., Ha. lxxxvi; but semble, it is discretionary.

CHAPTER XXIV.

MOTION.

1. Order on Motion.

UPON motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for &c., and upon hearing counsel for &c. [If so, and upon reading an affidavit of &c. filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on &c., Enter any evidence], This Court doth order &c.

For forms of notice of motion, &c., see D. C. F. 822 et seq.

2. The like—and on Cross Motion.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for &c. that [Recite Plt's notice], and upon motion &c., by counsel for &c., that &c. [Recite the cross notice], and upon reading &c. [Enter any evidence], and upon hearing what was alleged by the counsel on both sides, This Court doth order &c.

3. Order on Motion refused.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for A. &c. [Recite notice], and upon hearing counsel for B. [Enter evidence], This Court doth not think fit to make any order upon this motion [if with costs, but doth order that A. do pay to B. his costs of this motion, to be taxed by the taxing master, if so, in case the parties differ].

4. Order on Abandoned Motion.

WHEREAS the Plt A. did on the — day of &c., give notice that this Court would be moved, on Thursday, the — day of &c., or so soon after as counsel could be heard, by counsel for the Plt A. that [Recite notice]; Now upon motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for the Deft B., who alleged that the Plt A. had not moved this Court pursuant to the said notice, This Court doth order that the Plt A. do pay to the Deft B. his costs occasioned by the said notice of motion, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master.

5. Order on Motion under O. XXXII, 6.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt for such order as upon the admissions of fact in the statement of defence the Plt is entitled to, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft, and upon reading the Plt's statement of claim and the Deft's statement of defence &c., as the case may be, This Court doth order &c. [If further consideration adjourned, v. sup. Chap. XX., "FURTHER CONSIDERATION," p. 361.]

For form of application, see D. C. F. 270.

NOTES.

By O. LII, 1, applications in an action to a Divisional Court or to a Judge in Court, shall be made by motion. By O. LVIII, 1 and 18, all applications to the Appeal Court shall be by motion, and by O. LIV, 28, in the Q. B. D. appeals to the Court from any decision at Chambers shall be by motion.

A motion in any cause or matter must be made before the Judge to whose Court the cause or matter is attached: Jud. Act, 1873, s. 42; and the notice should state the Judge before whom it is intended to be made. As to form of notice of motion, see R. S. C. App. B., Form 18; D. C. F. 26, 27.

By O. I, 1, 2, motions (subject to the rules of Court) are to be made in the same manner as if the Judicature Acts had not been passed. Motions not in actions must follow the old practice: Re Phillips and Gill, 24 W. R. 158; 1 Q. B. D. 78.

A notice of motion stating that the Court will be moved at the Royal Courts of Justice is sufficient: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172. A notice for a day not in the sittings is good: Re Coulton, Hamling v. Elliott, 34 Ch. D. 22, C. A., overruling Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53; and in Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180, amendment of such a notice was allowed.

A Deft may, at any time after he has appeared, move for an injunction and receiver on notice to the Plt: O. L, 6; if the relief so sought is incident to or arises out of the relief sought by the Plt, but not otherwise, unless he has counter-claimed: Carter v. Fey, (1894) 2 Ch. 541, C. A.; Collison v. Warren, (1901) 1 Ch. 812. He may do so although Plt has served notice of motion for the like purpose. One order will be made on the two motions, and the Plt will in general have the carriage of the order: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600.

By O. LII, 2, no rule or order nisi to show cause is to be granted in any action, or to set aside, remit, or enforce an award, or for attachment, or to answer the matters in any affidavit, or to strike off the rolls, or against the sheriff to pay money.

The corresponding rule of 1875 only applied to actions: see Phillips and Gill, 1 Q. B. D. 78.

By O. LII, 3, no motion is to be made without notice, except where by the previous practice any order or rule has theretofore been made ex parte absolute in the first instance, and except where, notwithstanding r. 2, an application may be made for an order to show cause only. But the Court or Judge, if satisfied that the delay caused by proceeding in the ordinary way would or might entail irreparable or serious mischief, may make any order ex parte, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise, and subject to such undertaking, if any, as the Court may think just; and any party affected by such order may move to set it aside.

A notice of motion may be served on a party who has failed to appear by being filed with the proper officer: O. XIX, 10; Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 513.

An application to discharge an ex parte order must be made to the Judge with whose name the order is marked, or in vacation to a vacation Judge, and not to the Court of Appeal, the application not involving a rehearing: Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249, C. A.

Under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), mandamus, injunction, or receiver may be granted ex parte, but orders for preservation or sale of property under O. L, 2, 3, must be made on notice: r. 6.

The indorsement of the writ was amended on ex parte application: Colebourne v. C., 1 Ch. D. 690; 24 W. R. 235.

As to motions for receivers and injunctions, see Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS," and Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

Orders for attachment must now be obtained on notice: O. XLIV, 2.

By O. LII, 6, the Court or a Judge, if of opinion on the hearing of a motion or other application that any other person ought to have notice, may either dismiss it or adjourn it in order that such notice may be given, upon such terms as may be thought fit; and by r. 7 may adjourn the hearing generally.

A technical defect in the notice may be amended in Court, and the notice re-served then and there: Heywood v. Wait, 18 W. R. 205; and see Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180; and an irregularity in service, by which the party had not been injured, was disregarded, and the motion heard on the merits: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504, C. A.

An agreement for stay of proceedings or dismissal of the bill may be enforced by motion in the suit, even if involving equities distinct from those on the record: Eden v. Naish, 7 Ch. D. 781; Scully v. Ld. Dundonald, 8 Ch. D. 658; Re Gaudet Co., 12 Ch. D. 882; and see per James, L. J., in Pryer v. Gribble, 10 Ch. 534.

But an agreement for compromise cannot be set aside on motion or summons in the original action: Emeris v. Woodward, 43 Ch. D. 185.

An immediate admon decree was made by consent on motion in a creditor's suit, another creditor having taken out an admon summons returnable before the first day on which the cause could be heard as short: Furze v. Hennes, 2 D. & J. 125; Scaffold v. Hampton, 22 W. R. 182; 43 L. J. Ch. 137; 29 L. T. 575.

As to moving for orders on admissions of fact in the pleadings under O. XXXII, 6, v. sup. Chap. XIII., "MOTION FOR JUDGMENT." Inquiries and accounts may also be directed at any stage of the proceedings: O. XXXIII, 2.

But where the priorities of mortgagees depend on questions of fraud, the inquiries cannot be sent to Chambers before the questions of fraud have been tried: Garnham v. Skipper, 29 Ch. D. 566, C. A.

No new evidence could be filed on a motion ordered to stand over on certain terms until the hearing: Singer v. Audsley, 13 Eq. 401.

An affidavit used on a motion, but not filed until afterwards, may be entered in the order as read, even though the fact of its not having been filed has not been brought to the notice of the Court, provided it does not interfere with the date of the order, as when the filing is on the same day: Re King & Co.'s Trade Mark, (1892) 2 Ch. 462.

As to what is sufficient notice of intention to use affidavits on appeal, see Bloxam v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 16 W. R. 492, n.

As to saving motions, see Banwen Iron Co., 17 Jur. 127; Wedderburne v. Llewellyn, 13 W. R. 939; Yapp v. Williams, W. N. (01) 91.

SERVICE.

By O. LII, 5, unless the Court or Judge give special leave to the contrary, there must be at least two clear days between the service of a notice of motion and the day named in the notice for hearing the motion: but on applications to answer matters in an affidavit, or to strike off the rolls, there must be ten days' notice. As to days not to be reckoned, see O. LXIV, 2.

If special leave be given to move on short notice, or on a day not appointed for motions, the notice must so state: Hill v. Rimill, 8 Sim. 632; Harris v. Lewis, 8 Jur. 1063; Chambers v. Toynbee, 12 W. R. 1100; Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504, C. A.; and leave to move before appearance does not authorize short notice: Newton v. Charlton, 10 Ha. xxxi.; Hart v. Tulk, 6 Ha. 611. Counsel on applying should state that he asks to serve on short notice: Dawson v. Beeson, sup.; but in case of omission it is not merely of course to give costs: see Newton v. Charlton, sup. Where notice was given for the wrong Court, such Court gave costs, but only two guineas: Yearsley v. Y., 19 Beav. 1.

Leave to serve short notice of motion cannot be given by the Master even during the long vacation: Conacher v. C., 29 W. R. 230.

Motions for assignment of guardians under O. XIII, 1, must be on at least six days' notice.

Notice by a pauper must be signed by his solr, except for discharge of his solr: O. XVI, 29; but if no solr has been assigned to him, he is entitled to move the Court without the notice of motion being signed by a solr: Jacobs v. Crusha, (1894) 2 Q. B. 37, C. A.

By O. LII, 8, a Plt may, without leave, serve notice of motion upon a Deft who, having been duly served with a writ of summons, has not appeared in due time.

By Cons. Ord. 3, r. 8, which was similar, service might be effected personally, or at the dwelling-house or office of any Deft who, having been served with the bill, had not appeared within the time limited. Substituted service was ordered in fit cases under the old practice: Maclaren v. Stainton, 16 Beav. 279; or service abroad: Green v. Pledger, 3 Ha. 165. And by O. IX, 2, substituted or other service may be ordered of the writ of summons whenever "the Plt is from any cause unable to effect prompt personal service," the grounds of the application being set forth in an affidavit: O. x.

Service of notice of motion for leave to issue writ of attachment against a party who has not appeared, in a case where personal service is not required, may be made by filing same pursuant to O. LXVII, 4: Re Morris, M. v. Fowler, 44 Ch. D. 151; but an application for the appointment of a receiver must in such a case be served personally, or leave obtained for substituted service: Tilling, Ltd. v. Blythe, (1899) 1 Q. B. 557, C. A.

By O. LII, 9, the Plt may, by leave to be obtained ex parte, serve notice of motion with the writ of summons, or after service of it and before the time for appearance.

As to granting leave to serve notice of motion with the writ out of the jurisdiction, see Manitoba & N. W. Land Corp. v. Allan, (1893) 3 Ch. 432 (not allowed); Overton v. Burn, 74 L. T. 776 (allowed without prejudice); Hersey v. Young, W. N. (94) 18.

As to service on the solrs of the parties, see O. IV, 1, and O. XII, 10.

And on parties suing or defending in person, O. IV, 2, and O. XII, 11.

By O. LXVII, 8, where a person who is not a party appears on any proceeding before the Court or in Chambers, service on his solr or agent in London is good; except in matters requiring personal service.

As to affidavits of service, see sup. pp. 19, 175.

By O. LII, 4, "every notice of motion to remit or enforce an award, or for attachment, or to strike off the roll, shall state in general terms the grounds of the application; and where any such motion is founded on evidence by affidavit, a copy of any affidavit intended to be used shall be served with the notice of motion." Under this rule the affidavits and copies of exhibits, if any, must be served with the notice, and cannot be served on the country solr when the notice is served in London: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; Rosenbaum v. Belson, W. N. (01) 124.

COSTS.

The Court may give costs of a special motion, though not asked by the notice: Clark v. Jaques, 11 Beav. 623; but not unless the respondent appears: Pratt v. Walker, 19 Beav. 261.

Where a motion was adjourned to the trial, and by mistake no provision as to the costs was made in the subsequent judgment, the Court ordered payment on motion after the judgment was entered: Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; following Viney v. Chaplin, 3 D. & J. 282.

The rules as to costs of motions as costs in the cause, where the order is silent respecting costs, are as follows:—(1) The party making a successful motion is entitled to his costs as costs in the cause, but the party opposing is not. (2) The party making a motion which fails is not entitled to his costs as costs in the cause, but the party opposing is. (3) When a motion is made by one party and not opposed by the other the costs of both parties are costs in the cause: per Leach, V.-C., 1 S. & S. 357; 1 M. & G. 659, 667.

As to whether costs of correspondence before motion are to be regarded as costs of motion, or of action, see Norton v. Fenwick, 54 L. J. Ch. 632; 52 L. T. 341.

If a motion for an interim injunction stands over till the trial, it is not only unnecessary but improper to reserve the costs: Bournemouth Commrs. v. Holden, W. N. (88) 205.

An order made on notice continuing an injunction with costs carries the costs of an interim injunction obtained ex parte: Blakey v. Hall, 56 L. J. Ch. 568; 56 L. T. 400; 35 W. R. 592.

As to party not interested not being entitled to appear merely to ask for costs, see Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; O. LXV, 27 (23).

Where a party is ordered to pay the costs up to a certain day, the usual rules do not apply, and the costs of motions made during that time may be included in costs of action: Webster v. Manby, 4 Ch. 372.

The costs of a motion for an injunction ordered to stand over until the hearing, although not mentioned in the decree, were allowed to the Plt as being the costs of a substantially successful motion: Mounsey v. E. of Lonsdale, 6 Ch. 141; and so, where the bill was eventually dismissed, the Deft had the costs of a motion which stood over to the hearing: Corcoran v. Witt, 13 Eq. 53; and where a motion stood to the trial, and no mention was made as to the costs then or at the trial, judgment dismissing the action with costs carried the costs of the motion: Gosnell v. Bishop, 38 Ch. D. 385.

As to costs when interlocutory applications have been ordered to stand to the trial, v. sup. p. 258.

If nothing is said to the contrary, the successful party gets his costs in any event: per Jessel, M. R., in Jackson v. Wood, 12 Mar. 1880.

If the motion is to obtain an indulgence, the party applying must pay the costs: A. G. v. Corp. of Halifax, 18 W. R. 37; and see Dan. 1315; and as to costs of motions for injunctions, see Kerr, 30 et seq.; and see inf. Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

The costs of an abandoned motion may be applied for at the rising of the Court on the day for which the notice is given, but the usual course is not to apply for them until next motion day, and a later application will not in general be entertained: Woodstock v. Oxford Rail Co., 17 Jur. 33; Yapp v. Williams, W. N. (01) 91. It is usual to give notice of the application to the other side. The notice of motion must be produced to the registrar before he draws up the order: Withey v. Haigh, 3 Mad. 437; and see Berry v. The Exchange Trading Co., 1 Q. B. D. 77. Where the notice of motion was invalid, it was held that the Defts need not have appeared, and were not entitled to their costs of doing so, the Plts not appearing: Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53. For form of order, v. sup. Form 4.

In taxing the costs of an abandoned motion the costs of all work down to the time of any notice which stops the work are allowed if reasonable, and the same rule applies to discontinuance of action and dismissal: Harrison v. Leutner, 16 Ch. D. 559.

The costs of a motion were disallowed where a summons in Chambers would have sufficed: Allen v. Oakey, 62 L. T. 724; W. N. (90) 121.

Where a motion by Plt stands over, and proceedings are stayed until security for costs is given by him, the costs of the affidavits prepared by the Deft during the stay ought not to be disallowed: Whiteley Exerciser, Ltd. v. Gamage, (1898) 2 Ch. 405.

A copy of notice of motion must be supplied for the use of the Judge: Bartlett v. West Met. Tram. Co., W. N. (93) 189.

As to the practice generally, see Dan. 1300 et seq. As to appeals from orders made on motion, v. inf. Chap. XXXVI., "APPEALS."

CHAPTER XXV.

PETITION OF RIGHT.

1. Order on Petition of Right—Costs to be paid by the Crown.

THE petition of right of J. and M. &c., by Messrs. P. & G. of &c., copartners, their solrs, coming on this day to be argued before this Court upon her Majesty's command that right be done, in the presence of counsel for the suppliants and for her Majesty's A. G., and upon reading [enter evidence] and (upon hearing) what was alleged by counsel for the suppliant and for her Majesty's A. G., This Court doth declare that &c. was entitled to &c. Tax the costs of the suppliants of the said petition, And Let the same, when taxed, be paid to the suppliants J. and M., in the manner directed by the Act of Parliament of the 23 & 24 V. c. 34.—See James v. The Queen, V.-C. M., 14 June, 1876, A. 1188; and see S. C., V.-C. M., 11 Feb. 1874, A. 338; 17 Eq. 502, where the demurrer of the A. G. was overruled with costs.

Where relief was refused and costs given to the Crown, see Re Brain, V.-C. M., 1 July, 1874, A. 1770; 18 Eq. 389.

2. Two Demurrers to Petition of Right, one allowed, one overruled.

THE demurrer put in by her Majesty's A. G. on behalf of her Majesty, and the demurrer put in by the Secretary of State for India in Council (served with the petition), to the petition of right of K. of &c., on behalf of himself and all other the persons who under the Royal grant of the 10 June, 1864, are entitled to share in the booty of Banda and Kirwee, coming on this day to be argued before this Court in the presence of the said K. in person, and of counsel for her Majesty, and the Secretary of State for India in Council, Upon opening and debate of the matter, and upon hearing what was alleged by the said K. and by counsel for her Majesty and for the Secretary of State for India in Council. This Court held the demurrer of her Majesty's A. G. on behalf of her Majesty to be good and sufficient, and that the suppliant is not entitled to any portion of the relief sought by his petition; And, therefore, Let the said demurrer stand and be allowed; And Let the said K. pay to her Majesty's A. G. his costs of his said demurrer, to be taxed by the taxing master, And this Court held the demurrer of the Secretary of State for India in Council to be insufficient as being out of time; And, therefore, Let the same be overruled; And Let the Secretary of State for India in Council pay to the said K. his costs of the said demurrer to be taxed by the taxing master, costs to be set off.—Kinlock v. The Queen, Kay, J., 27 Nov. 1882, A. 2257.

For order allowing demurrer, and for suppliant to pay costs of demurrer and petition, see Re Tufnell, 15 June, 1876, B. 1093.

For forms of petition of right and consequential thereon, see D. C. F. 817 et seq.

As to petitions of right, before and independently of the Petition of Right Act, 1860, see Dan. 1296; 3 Steph. Com. 11th ed. 680; Clode on Petition of Right; Clayton v. A. G., 1 C. P. D. 97; Taylor v. A. G., 8 Sim. 413; Monckton v. A. G., 2 Mac. & G. 402; Re Von Frantzius, 2 D. & J. 126; Re Rolt, 4 D. & J. 44; and see the practice explained by Wickens, V.-C., in Kirk v. The Queen, 14 Eq. 563.

That Act (23 & 24 V. c. 34) provides that a petition of right may be instituted in any of the Superior Courts of Law or Equity, and by the following sections the fiat of his Majesty that right be done being obtained through the Home Secretary (see s. 2), the proceedings are assimilated to those in an ordinary suit or action between subjects (see Gen. Ord. 1 Feb. 1862; Dan. 1297; Clode, 192); and are to be prosecuted in the Court in which the petition is entitled, or such other Court as the L. C. may direct.

By ss. 11, 12, costs may be given to (Re Brain, 18 Eq. 389) and against (James v. The Queen, sup. Form 1, and S. C. on demurrer, 17 Eq. 502) the Crown and other parties.

By s. 18, suppliants may still proceed as if the Act had not passed.

The Crown may, notwithstanding the Act, plead and demur without leave: Tobin v. The Queen, 14 C. B. N. S. 505; 11 W. R. 701; and see S. C., Ib. 915.

It seems doubtful whether any person can be joined with the Crown as respondent to the petition. If not, another suit may be commenced against the Sovereign and others after the fiat has been given: Kirk v. The Queen, 14 Eq. 558; and as to joining a Secretary of State, see S. C.

A petition of right will lie:—For unliquidated damages for breach of contract: Thomas v. The Queen, L. R. 10 Q. B. 31; Windsor and Annapolis Rail. Co. v. Reg., 11 App. Ca. 607, P. C.; or otherwise in respect of matters of contract: Macbeath v. Haldimand, 1 T. R. 176; Oldham v. The Lords of the Treasury, cited 6 Sim. 220; or to enforce an agreement for a lease: James v. The Queen, 17 Eq. 502; Davis v. Adams, W. N. (76) 202; and, semble, the Crown's advisers cannot capriciously refuse to allow investigation: Ryves v. D. of Wellington, 9 Beav. 579; Clode, 164. But not for unliquidated damages for a trespass: Tobin v. Reg., 16 C. B. N. S. 310; 12 W. R. 838; Canterbury v. A. G., 1 Ph. 306. Nor for compensation for a wrongful act done by a servant of the Crown in the supposed performance of his duty: Tobin v. Reg., sup. Nor as to lands in a colony: Holmes v. The Queen, 2 Johns. & H. 527; 8 Jur. N. S. 76; 10 W. R. 39. Nor an engagement made by the Crown with any of its military or naval officers in respect of services either present, past or future: Mitchell v. The Queen, (1896) 1 Q. B. 121, n., C. A. And a suppliant, or intending suppliant, is not entitled to discovery, nor to production of documents as against the Crown: Thomas v. The Queen, L. R. 10 Q. B. 44; Reiner v. M. of Salisbury, 2 Ch. D. 378, 386. And communications as to State matters between officers of State, as such, are absolutely privileged: Chatterton v. Secretary of State for India in Council, (1895) 2 Q. B. 189, C. A.; though the Crown, by the combined effect of 23 & 24 V. c. 34, and O. xxxi, 12, is entitled to discovery from the suppliant: Tomline v. The Queen, 4 Ex. D. 225, C. A.; and as to the right of the Crown to discovery generally, v. sup. pp. 67, 71.

The Crown cannot be made to account for money paid by a foreign government as compensation to English subjects: Rustomjee v. The Queen, 2 Q. B. D. 69, C. A.

An action for trespass against the Lords of the Admiralty in their official capacity will not lie: Raleigh v. Goschen, (1898) 1 Ch. 73.

Relief against a forfeiture of a Crown lease or gale for nonpayment of rent was refused after six months in Re Brain, 18 Eq. 389.

Demurrer was allowed to a petition of right by an army doctor, who, having been forced to retire, claimed that the office was tenable for life: Re Tufnell, 3 Ch. D. 164; also to a petition of right for an increase of a superannuation allowance, such an allowance being, under 4 & 5 W. 4, c. 24, s. 30, and the Superannuation Act, 1859, ss. 2, 18, a mere bounty: Cooper v. The Queen, V.-C. M., 28 W. R. 611; 14 Ch. D. 311; and as to contracts by the Crown being conditional on the funds being voted by Parliament, see Re Tufnell, sup., and Churchward v. The Queen, L. R. 1 Q. B. 173.

An action for breach of contract will lie by contractors against H. M. Commrs for Works and Public Buildings: Graham v. Works, &c. Commrs, 70 L. J. K. B. 860.

The Statutes of Limitation have no application as between the Crown and a subject, and should not be pleaded by the Crown, but the fiat may be refused: Rustomjee v. The Queen, 2 Q. B. D. 69, C. A.

And the Crown not being named in the Prescription Act, 1832 (2 & 3 W. IV. c. 71), s. 3, is not bound by that section: Perry v. Eames, (1891) 1 Ch. 658; nor are the lessees of the Crown, as there can be no easement by prescription for a limited time: Wheaton v. Maple, (1893) 3 Ch. 48, C. A.

No mention of petitions of right is made in the Judicature Acts or Rules, but the Gen. Ord. of 1st Feb. 1862, is not annulled, and the prerogative of the Crown to intervene in actions affecting its rights is not affected by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5): A. G. v. Constable, 4 Ex. D. 172; and as to the right of the Crown to have an action of trespass in a County Court, affecting the rights of the Crown over land, transferred to the revenue side of the Q. B. D., see Ld. Stanley of Alderley v. Wild, (1900) 1 Q. B. 256, C. A.; A. G. v. Wilson, W. N. (00) 263; W. N. (01) 5; and notwithstanding those Acts and O. xxv, 1, a demurrer may be put in by the A. G.: Northam Bridge Co. v. The Queen, 23 Nov. 1886, B. 1373; Clode, 178.

And for forms, and as to the practice generally, see Clode, passim.

CHAPTER XXVI.

ARBITRATIONS AND REFERENCES.

E.*, V.-C. S., 28 July, 1856, A. 1589.

For like order to refer all matters in question in the suit (including the question whether the alleged partnership was or was not constituted, and also including all questions between the parties relating to the Plt's annuity, and to the distress levied by him, and to the Deft's proceedings in replevin, and also who is to have possession of the farm in the pleadings mentioned, and upon what terms as to payment of moneys or otherwise), see *Oslar v. THIS action having &c. [Forms 8 and 10, sup.], now upon motion &c., This Court doth order that the said report be remitted to the said Referee in order that this action [or the following questions, that is to say &c.] be reheard.

NOTES.

All arbitrations, whether by consent out of Court or by reference under order of Court, are now governed by the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 V. c. 49), which repeals the Acts 9 W. III. c. 15; 3 & 4 W. IV. c. 42, ss. 39—41; the C. L. P. Act, 1854, ss. 3—17; the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 56 (except the portion relating to assessors), and ss. 57—59; and the Jud. Act, 1884, ss. 9—11.

Sects. 1—12 of the new Act relate more particularly to references by consent out of Court; sects. 13—17 also extend to references under order of Court; and the remaining sections are of general application.

SUBMISSION TO ARBITRATION.

By the interpretation clause, sect. 27, “‘submission’ means a written agreement to submit present or future differences to arbitration, whether an arbitrator is named therein or not.” As to the ambiguous use of the expression “submission” previously to the Act, see Re Smith and Service and Nelson, 25 Q. B. D. 545, C. A.

Indorsements signed by counsel on their briefs at the trial of an action agreeing with each other, and stating that claims were to be referred, were held to constitute a “submission” within the section: Aitken v. Bachelor, 62 L. J. Q. B. 193.

A policy, containing an arbitration clause, though not signed by the Plt, may amount to a submission within sects. 4 and 27: Baker v. Yorkshire Ass. Co., (1892) 1 Q. B. 44; explaining Caerleon Tin Plate Co. v. Hughes, 60 L. J. Q. B. 640; 65 L. T. 118.

In order to constitute an “arbitration” there must be some dispute which requires a judicial determination: Re Dawdy, 15 Q. B. D. 426, 430, C. A.; L. & N. W. & G. W. Ry. Cos. v. Billington, (1899) A. C. 79, H. L.; and a mere agreement for a sale at a price to be fixed by a valuer is not an arbitration, but a valuation: Collins v. C., 26 Beav. 306; and see Bos v. Helsham, L. R. 2 Ex. 72; Re Dawdy, sup.; and so where a purchaser agrees to take timber at a valuation, such valuation is not in the nature of an award: Re Carus-Wilson and Greene, 18 Q. B. D. 7, C. A.; and the assessment under contract of compensation to tenant giving up land to a purchaser is a valuation: Re Hammond and Waterton, 62 L. T. 808; but if it is necessary to hold a judicial inquiry, and to decide a point of law or right arising out of the facts (Vickers v. V., 4 Eq. 536; Re Hopper, 8 B. & S. 100), or settle a dispute (In re Evans, Davies and Caddick, 18 W. R. 723), there is an arbitration.

As to when the architect, &c. is made an arbitrator by a building contract, see Kimberley v. Dick, 13 Eq. 1; Wadsworth v. Smith, L. R. 6 Q. B. 332; Jones v. St. John’s Coll., L. R. 6 Q. B. 115; Sharpe v. San Paulo Ry., 8 Ch. 597; Walker v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1 C. P. D. 518.

Where it is intended that the parties should be deprived of any legal right, the submission should so state: see Re Green and Balfour, 63 L. T. 97; W. N. (90) 139, 156.

As to the meaning of the expression “differences,” see Randegger v. Holmes, 1 C. P. 679; Re Carlisle, Clegg v. C., 44 Ch. D. 200; L. & N. W. and G. W. Ry. Cos. v. Billington, (1899) A. C. 79, H. L. (where in the absence of a “difference” within a local Act before action brought it was held that the arbitrator had not and the Court had jurisdiction).

It is competent for parties to agree that the question of fraud on the part of the arbitrator shall not be raised by either of them: Tullis v. Jacson, (1892) 3 Ch. 441.

By s. 1, "a submission, unless a contrary intention is expressed therein, shall be irrevocable, except by leave of the Court or a Judge, and shall have the same effect in all respects as if it had been made an order of the Court."

Formerly, unless the submission was made or agreed to be made a rule of Court, the appointment of the arbitrator was revocable until an award had actually been made: Randell v. Thompson, 1 Q. B. D. 748, C. A.; Thomson v. Anderson, 9 Eq. 523; Re Rouse and Meier, L. R. 6 C. P. 212; Mills v. Bayley, 2 H. & C. 36; Fraser v. Ehrensperger, 12 Q. B. D. 310, C. A.; Deutsche, &c. Gesellschaft v. Brisac, 20 Q. B. D. 177; but the general agreement to refer could not be revoked, and an action lay for breach of it: Re Smith and Service and Nelson, 25 Q. B. D. 545, 550, 553, C. A.; Piercy v. Young, 14 Ch. D. 200, C. A.; Christie v. Noble, 14 Ch. D. 203, n.

A stipulation in a contract, that the provisions of the C. L. P. Act, 1854, with regard to arbitration should apply, was held to be equivalent to an agreement that the submission should be made a rule of Court, and thus to render it irrevocable under the provision to that effect in 3 & 4 W. IV. c. 42, s. 39: Re Mitchell and Izard, 21 Q. B. D. 408, C. A.

Leave to revoke a submission on the ground that an arbitrator is making a mistake of law in a matter within his jurisdiction will only be granted under exceptional circumstances: James v. J., 23 Q. B. D. 12, C. A.; S. C., 22 Q. B. D. 673; D. C. F. 1130; ex. gr., where the arbitrator was receiving evidence which was objected to as tending to vary the contract: E. and W. India Docks Co. v. Kirk and Randall, 12 App. Ca. 738.

The meaning of the last clause of the section is that the submission, whether it be a general agreement to refer or not, is to have the same effect as would have been given to it before the statute by an act of the parties making it a rule of Court: Re Smith and Service and Nelson, 25 Q. B. D. 545, 554, C. A. The clause in effect supersedes the provisions of 9 & 10 W. III. c. 15, s. 1, whereby any agreement for reference might be made a rule of Court, and could then be enforced accordingly, and of 3 & 4 W. IV. c. 42, s. 39, whereby any submission made a rule of Court was irrevocable.

As to enforcing awards, v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE," Russ. Arb. 342; and as to pleading an award as a defence to a suit, Ib. 314, 315.

By sect. 2, "a submission, unless the contrary is expressed therein, shall be deemed to include the provisions set forth in the first schedule to the Act, so far as they are applicable to the reference under the submission." The provisions which are thus to be implied are as follows:—

"a. If no other mode of reference is provided, the reference shall be to a single arbitrator.

b. If the reference is to two arbitrators, the two arbitrators may appoint an umpire at any time within the period during which they have power to make an award.

c. The arbitrators shall make their award in writing within three months after entering on the reference, or after having been called on to act by notice in writing from any party to the submission, or on or before any later day to which the arbitrators, by any writing signed by them, may from time to time enlarge the time for making the award.

[When notice to appoint an umpire is served upon arbitrators by one of the parties, they are "called on to act" within this clause: Baring Gould v. Sharpington Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80, C. A.; (1898) 2 Ch. 833.]

d. If the arbitrators have allowed their time or extended time to expire without making an award, or have delivered to any party to the submission, or to the umpire, a notice in writing, stating that they cannot agree, the umpire may forthwith enter on the reference in lieu of the arbitrators.

e. The umpire shall make his award within one month after the original or extended time appointed for making the award of the arbitrators has expired, or on or before any later day to which the umpire by any writing signed by him may from time to time enlarge the time for making his award.

f. The parties to the reference, and all persons claiming through them respectively, shall, subject to any legal objection, submit to be examined by the arbitrators or umpire, on oath or affirmation, in relation to the matters in dispute, and shall, subject as aforesaid, produce before the arbitrators or umpire all books, deeds, papers, accounts, writings, and documents within their possession or power respectively which may be required or called for, and do all other things which during the proceedings on the reference the arbitrators or umpire may require.

g. The witnesses on the reference shall, if the arbitrators or umpire think fit, be examined on oath or affirmation.

h. The award to be made by the arbitrators or umpire shall be final and binding on the parties and the persons claiming under them respectively.

i. The costs of the reference and award shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators or umpire, who may direct to and by whom and in what manner those costs or any part thereof shall be paid, and may tax or settle the amount of costs to be so paid or any part thereof, and may award costs to be paid as between solr and client."

By sect. 3, when a submission provides that a reference shall be to an official referee, any official referee to whom application is made shall, subject to any order of the Court or a Judge as to transfer or otherwise, hear and determine the matters agreed to be referred.

The Act applies to an arbitration commenced after, on a submission made before, the commencement of the Act: Re Williams and Stepney, (1891) 2 Q. B. 257, reversing S. C., (1891) 1 Q. B. 700.

STAYING PROCEEDINGS WHERE THERE IS A SUBMISSION.

By sect. 4, "if any party to a submission, or any person claiming through or under him, commences any legal proceedings in any Court against any other party to the submission, or any person claiming through or under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such legal proceedings may at any time after appearance, and before delivering any pleadings or taking any other steps in the proceedings, apply to that Court to stay the proceedings, and that Court or a Judge thereof, if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the submission" [as to the meaning of these words, see Denton v. Legge, W. N. (95) 46; 72 L. T. 626], "and that the applicant was, at the time when the proceedings were commenced, and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the proceedings."

Under sect. 11 of the C. L. P. Act, 1854, for which this section has been substituted, two methods of compelling the prosecution of the agreed reference were commonly adopted:—first, where a time had been fixed for making the award, by staying proceedings until further order, with liberty to apply if no award should be made within the time fixed: Kitchen v. Turnbull, 20 W. R. 253; or enlarging time to name an arbitrator where that had not been done: Form 4, sup. p. 400; secondly, by staying proceedings and appointing arbitrators, and giving the necessary directions: Form 3, p. 400.

A "step in the proceedings" means some application to the Court by summons or motion, and does not include an application by letter or notice from one party to another, or by correspondence between their respective solrs: Ives & Barker v. Willans, (1894) 1 Ch. 68; (1894) 2 Ch. 478, C. A.; such as the giving of notice by a Deft that he requires the delivery of a statement of claim: Ives & Barker v. Willans; or the obtaining time by consent, without order of the Court, under O. LXIV, 8: Brighton Marine, &c. Co. v. Woodhouse, (1893) 2 Ch. 486; Chappell v. North, (1891) 2 Q. B. 252; or the mere filing of affidavits in answer to a motion for a receiver in an action for dissolution of partnership: Zalinoff v. Hammond, (1898) 2 Ch. 92; but the obtaining an order for extension of time for delivery of defence: Bartlett v. Ford's Hotel Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 850, C. A., in H. L. nom. Ford's Hotel Co. v. Bartlett, (1896) A. C. 1; or an application for leave to administer interrogatories, or for security for costs, is "a step in the proceedings," and (semble) the delivery of a counter-claim is "the commencement of a legal proceeding" within sect. 4: Chappell v. North, (1891) 2 Q. B. 252; Adams v. Cattley, 40 W. R. 570; 66 L. T. 687.

Where there is a bonâ fide suggestion of fraud, the Court has declined to interfere to stay proceedings, where it could not be supposed that the parties contemplated a reference of a case of fraud: Wallis v. Hirsch, 1 C. B. N. S. 316; Cook v. Catchpole, 34 L. J. Ch. 60; 13 W. R. 42; 43 L. T. 425; Workman v. Belfast Harbour Commrs, (1899) 2 I. R. 234; Barnes v. Youngs, (1898) 1 Ch. 414; Hoch v. Boor, 49 L. J. C. P. 665; 10 Jur. N. S. 1068; 11 L. T. 264; but see Horton v. Sayer, 4 H. & N. 643; but where the objection to arbitration is by the party charging the fraud, the Court will not necessarily accede to it, and will never do so unless a prima facie case of fraud is proved: Russell v. R., 14 Ch. D. 471; approved in Walmsley v. White, 40 W. R. 675; and see Russell v. Harris, 65 L. T. 572.

The fraud alleged must be such as to affect the questions referred: Hirsch v. Im Thurm, 6 W. R. 605; Birmingham, &c. Gas Co. v. Ratcliffe, L. R. 6 Ex. 224; not merely one item in an account: Imhof v. Sutton, L. R. 2 C. P. 406. S. 4 applies though the reference is to three arbitrators: Manchester Ship Canal Co. v. Pearson, (1900) 2 Q. B. 606, distinguishing Re Smith and Service, inf. p. 409.

The following matters have been held to be within agreements to refer:—The construction of the partnership deed and all other matters: Willesford v. Watson, 8 Ch. 473; the validity of a notice of dissolution: Plews v. Baker, 16 Eq. 364 (but see Witt v. Corcoran, 21 W. R. 47, 48; 8 Ch. 476, n.); the partnership accounts: Gillett v. Thornton, 19 Eq. 599; questions of law, as well as of fact, arising on construction of contract: Forwood & Co. v. Watney, 49 L. J. Q. B. 447; an action for wrongful dismissal, under a general clause in a contract for service referring disputes touching the rights and liabilities under the contract: Renshaw v. Queen Anne Residential Mansions and Hotel Co., (1897) 1 Q. B. 662, C. A.; Parry v. Liverpool Malt Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 339, C. A.; secus, semble, a question whether a custom ought to be imported into a contract: Hutcheson v. Eaton, 11 Q. B. D. 861, C. A.

The question whether the matters in dispute are included in the reference is one for the decision of the Court: Piercy v. Young, 14 Ch. D. 200, 208, C. A., explaining Willesford v. Watson, sup., on this point; and see Barnes v. Youngs, (1898) 1 Ch. 414.

The question whether a reference to arbitration and an award thereunder is a condition precedent to the right to sue depends on the terms of the particular contract between the parties, as to which see Collins v. Locke, 4 App. Ca. 674; Viney v. Bignold, 20 Q. B. D. 172; Trainor v. Phoenix Fire Ass. Co., 65 L. T. 825; Scott v. Mercantile, &c. Ins. Co., 65 L. T. 811; Dan. 1875.

In the exercise of its discretion the Court declined to stay proceedings where one of the parties had acted contrary to the agreement to refer: Davis v. Starr, 41 Ch. D. 247, C. A.; or where there was a question of construction which was specially appropriate for the decision of a Court: Lyon v. Johnson, 40 Ch. D. 579; or a question of law which, if sent to the arbitrator, ought to be referred back by him to the Court: Re Carlisle, Clegg v. C., 44 Ch. D. 200 (where the application for a stay was ordered to stand over until after delivery of defences); and see Workman v. Belfast Harbour Commrs, (1899) 2 I. R. 234; and a stay was refused where the party applying had obtained time to plead and was under terms to take short notice of trial: Smith & Co. v. British Mar. Mutual Ins. Assoc., W. N. (83) 176; but if the main object of the action is within the arbitration clause, the fact that a small portion of the relief claimed is not within it is not a sufficient reason for refusing a stay: Ives & Barker v. Willans, (1894) 2 Ch. 478, C. A.

Where the partnership was being carried on after the term fixed by the articles containing the submission had expired, an arbitration clause in the articles was held applicable: Gillett v. Thornton, 19 Eq. 599; and see Cope v. C., 52 L. T. 607.

Where partnership articles contain the usual arbitration clause, the arbitrator has power to award a dissolution, or a return of premium as incidental to a dissolution, and a stay of proceedings in a partnership action may be granted accordingly: Vawdrey v. Simpson, (1896) 1 Ch. 166, following Walmsley v. White, 40 W. R. 675; Belfield v. Bourne, (1894) 1 Ch. 521; but the Court has a discretion to refuse a stay and leave the dispute to be tried out in the action: Vawdrey v. Simpson, sup.; and see Joplin v. Postlethwaite, 61 L. T. 629, where the motion for a stay was ordered to stand to the trial; Turnell v. Sanderson, W. N. (91) 71; 64 L. T. 654; 60 L. J. Ch. 703; and where the preliminary question arose whether a notice of expulsion was valid, and there was a suggestion of fraud or unfairness in springing the notice upon the partner, the Court refused to order a stay: Barnes v. Youngs, (1898) 1 Ch. 414; and in Dennehy v. Jolly, 22 W. R. 449 (Ir. M. R.), the fact that the applicants had carried on the business after dissolution of partnership was held a ground for not staying proceedings.

Where proceedings had been stayed and an award had been made, it was held at law that the costs of the action could be dealt with by a subsequent order: Bustros v. Lenders, L. R. 6 C. P. 259.

As to the meaning of the requirement that the applicant should "be ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the reference," and that he must be ready to refer the whole matter, see Davis v. Starr, 41 Ch. D. 247, C. A.

As to the onus probandi whether there exists "sufficient reason" why the dispute should not be referred, see Hodgson v. Railway Passengers' Ass. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 188, C. A.; Fox v. Railway Passengers' Ass. Co., 52 L. T. 672; 55 L. J. Q. B. 505.

As to the difference between a covenant not to do an act, followed by an agreement to refer the amount of damages, and a covenant to pay such a sum as shall be settled by arbitration, see Dawson v. Fitzgerald, 1 Ex. D. 261.

If the submission to arbitration is not substantially co-extensive with the object of the action the action will not be stayed: Wheatley v. Westminster, &c. Co., 2 Dr. & Sm. 347; Turnock v. Sartoris, 43 Ch. D. 150, C. A. (distinguishing Wade-Gery v. Morison, 37 L. T. 270); Ives v. Willans, (1894) 2 Ch. 478, C. A.; and see Workman v. Belfast Harbour Commrs, (1899) 2 L. R. 134; nor if something different from what a referee can do is required, such as the appointment of a receiver: Cook v. Catchpole, 13 W. R. 42; 34 L. J. Ch. 60; but the fact that an injunction is asked for and may be required is not enough: Willesford v. Watson, 8 Ch. 473.

And where a case is made out for the appointment of a receiver, the Court may nevertheless refer the action to arbitration, and still protect the property pending the award: Compagnie du Sénégal v. Smith, 32 W. R. 111; 53 L. J. Ch. 166; 46 L. T. 527; Pini v. Roncoroni, (1892) 1 Ch. 633; and see Halsey v. Windham, W. N. (82) 108.

The Court has declined to stay proceedings on the application of Defts, a building society, who had neglected to appoint a standing body of arbitrators as contemplated by their rules: Christie v. Northern Counties B. Soc., 43 Ch. D. 62; Norton v. Counties Conservative B. B. Soc., (1895) 1 Q. B. 246, C. A.; inf. p. 415.

Primâ facie it is the duty of the Court to act upon an agreement to refer: Willesford v. Watson, 8 Ch. at p. 480; but the Court has a discretion as well under the new as under the old section: see Re Curlisle, Clegg v. C., 44 Ch. D. 200; and its jurisdiction is not ousted by the agreement so as to make the action demurrable: Sharpe v. San Paulo Ry., 8 Ch. 597, 612; Pickering v. Cape Town Ry., 1 Eq. 89; Cooke v. C., 4 Eq. 77; Lyon v. Johnson, 40 Ch. D. 579; secus, under an agreement confirmed by statute binding two railways to settle all differences by arbitration: Caledonian Ry. v. Greenock, &c. Ry., L. R. 2 H. L., Sc. 347; but see L. C. & D. Ry. Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 40 Ch. D. 100, C. A.; or under the Ry. Co.'s Arb. Act, 1859: Watford, &c. Ry. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 8 Eq. 231; and as to that Act, v. inf. Chap. LIV.

Under the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 308, a party claiming compensation has a right to go to arbitration, although there is a dispute as to the liability to pay: Brierley Hill Local Board v. Pearsall, 9 App. Ca. 595.

PROCEEDINGS UNDER A REFERENCE TO ARBITRATION.

By sect. 5 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, "In any of the following cases:—

- "(a) Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to a single arbitrator, and all the parties do not, after differences have arisen, concur in the appointment of an arbitrator:
- "(b) If an appointed arbitrator refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, and the submission does not show that it was intended that the vacancy should not be supplied, and the parties do not supply the vacancy:
- "(c) Where the parties or two arbitrators are at liberty to appoint an umpire or third arbitrator and do not appoint him:
- "(d) Where an appointed umpire or third arbitrator refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, and the submission does not show that it was intended that the vacancy should not be supplied, and the parties or arbitrators do not supply the vacancy :

any party may serve the other parties or the arbitrators, as the case may be, with a written notice to appoint an arbitrator, umpire, or third arbitrator.

“ If the appointment is not made within seven clear days after the service of the notice, the Court or a Judge may, on application by the party who gave the notice, appoint an arbitrator, umpire, or third arbitrator, who shall have the like powers to act in the reference and make an award as if he had been appointed by consent of all parties.”

A notice “ to concur in the appointment ” of a sole arbitrator is sufficient. In general, where the section applies, the Court has no discretion to refuse to appoint : Re Eyre and Corp. of Leicester, (1892) 1 Q. B. 136, C. A.

By sect. 6, “ Where a submission provides that the reference shall be to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party, then, unless the submission expresses a contrary intention—

“(a) If either of the appointed arbitrators refuses to act, or is incapable of acting, or dies, the party who appointed him may appoint a new arbitrator in his place :

“(b) If, on such a reference, one party fails to appoint an arbitrator, either originally or by way of substitution as aforesaid, for seven clear days after the other party, having appointed his arbitrator, has served the party making default with notice to make the appointment, the party who has appointed an arbitrator may appoint that arbitrator to act as sole arbitrator in the reference, and his award shall be binding on both parties as if he had been appointed by consent.”

These sections correspond with sects. 12 and 13 of the C. L. P. Act, 1854, and do not apply where the submission provides for a reference to three arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party, and the third by the first two : Gumm v. Hallett, 14 Eq. 555 ; Re Smith and Service and Nelson, 25 Q. B. D. 545, 552, C. A.

By sect. 7, the arbitrators or umpire acting under a submission shall, unless the submission expresses a contrary intention, have (inter alia) power to administer oaths or to take affirmations of the parties and witnesses appearing.

By sect. 8, “ Any party to a submission may sue out a writ of subpœna ad testificandum, or a writ of subpœna duces tecum, but no person shall be compelled under any such writ to produce any document which he could not be compelled to produce on the trial of an action.”

For the practice as to suing out subpœna and subpœna duces tecum, see O. XXXVII, 26—34.

An order for attendance of witnesses before an arbitrator was an order of course : Re Ricketts, 3 N. R. 56 ; and might be made on summons in the Chancery Division : Clarbrough v. Toothill, 17 Ch. D. 787. Forms of order are given in R. S. O. App. K., 25, 26, but are now disused, attendance being enforced by subpœna : see D. C. F.

As to enforcing attendance of witnesses, see Russ. on Arb. 125. As to the power of the Court to compel attendance of witnesses out of the jurisdiction, and that there is no such power where the action and all matters in difference have been referred, see Hall v. Brand, 12 Q. B. D. 39, C. A.

By sect. 22, “ any person who wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence before any referee, arbitrator, or umpire, shall be guilty of perjury, as if the evidence had been given in open Court, and may be dealt with, prosecuted, and punished accordingly.”

By s. 19, “ any referee, arbitrator, or umpire may, at any stage of the proceedings, under a reference, and shall, if so directed by the Court or a Judge, state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court any question of law arising in the course of the reference ” : Jackson v. Barry Ry. Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 238, 246, C. A.

Where a substantial and serious question of law arises on the construction of the contract, the Court, in the exercise of its discretion, will direct the arbitrators to state a special case : Re Nuttall and Lynton and Barnstaple Ry. Co., 82 L. T. 17, C. A.

The section applies to arbitrations under the Building Societies Act, 1874 : Tabernacle Building Soc. v. Knight, (1892) A. C. 298,

It is no bar to the right to a special case that the arbitrator has expressed no opinion adverse to the party making the application: Re Spillers & Baker and Leetham & Sims, (1896) 1 Q. B. 312, C. A.

It is a breach of duty for an arbitrator to refuse or obstruct the statement of a special case on material questions by delay, or by summarily making his award, unless the application is frivolous or made merely for delay; and such a breach of duty is prima facie misconduct within sect. 11: Re Palmer and Hosken, (1898) 1 Q. B. 131, C. A.

If necessary a completed award may be remitted with a direction to reconsider it, and in a certain event to state a special case: Re Palmer and Hosken, sup.

By sect. 11, where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself, the Court may remove him or set his award aside.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to restrain an arbitrator from making an award, see Beddow v. B., 9 Ch. D. 89; Pickering v. Cape Town Ry. Co., 1 Eq. 84; Malmesbury Ry. v. Budd, 2 Ch. D. 113; Jackson v. Barry Ry. Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 238, 246, 249, C. A.; and as to the reluctance of the Court to treat a named arbitrator as disqualified on suspicion of bias, see Bright v. River Plate Construction Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 835.

Though the Court can in a proper case (e.g., where injury to the applicant would otherwise result) restrain a party from proceeding to arbitration, it will not exercise the jurisdiction where the result of the arbitration would be futile: Farrar v. Cooper, 44 Ch. D. 323; L. & Blackwall Ry. Co. v. Cross, 31 Ch. D. 354, 368, C. A.; N. L. Ry. Co. v. G. N. Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Ch. 158; and v. inf. Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

An injunction has been granted restraining a person, appointed by arbitrators drawing lots, from acting as umpire: Pescod v. P., 58 L. T. 76; W. N. (88) 2; but see contra Smith v. Liverpool, London and Globe Ins. Co., 14 Court of Sess. Cas. 931.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to restrain the Deft from proceeding to arbitration where an action has been brought impeaching the instrument containing the agreement for reference, see Kitts v. Moore, (1895) 1 Q. B. 253, C. A., post, p. 524.

AWARD.

Time.]—By sect. 9, "the time for making an award may from time to time be enlarged by order of the Court or a Judge, whether the time for making the award has expired or not."

By O. LXIV, 14a, "where the time for making an award is enlarged, the enlargement shall be deemed to be for one month unless a different time is specified in the order."

For the provisions implied in a submission as to time for award of arbitrators or umpire and extension of time, v. sup. p. 405.

Under the similar provision in the C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 11, the Court could enlarge the time beyond that to which the arbitrator had power to enlarge, and had enlarged it: Denton v. Strong, L. R. 9 Q. B. 117; and might enlarge it after the award had been made: Lord v. Lee, 3 Q. B. 404; May v. Harcourt, 13 Q. B. D. 688.

Irregularity of an enlargement of time might be waived by subsequent attendance before the arbitrator, but the party so attending did not thereby lose the right to complain of a further enlargement: Dudson v. Norton, W. N. (66) 58.

Under sect. 9 the Court has jurisdiction to extend the time for making an award under the Public Health Act, 1875, although the time for making the award has expired: Knowles v. Bolton, (1900) 2 Q. B. 253, C. A., overruling Re Mackenzie, 17 Q. B. D. 114; and see Re Dare Valley Ry. Co., 4 Ch. 554; Re Yeadon Local Board, 41 Ch. D. 52, C. A.

And s. 24 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, excludes the operation of that Act so far as it is inconsistent with other Acts regulating arbitrations. As to the effect of this section, see Re Knight and Tabernacle Building Soc., (1891) 2 Q. B. 63.

Where the time had expired except as to an isolated dispute arising in the course of other differences, the Court refused to direct a reference: Young v. Buckett, 51 L. J. Ch. 504; 46 L. T. 226; 30 W. R. 110.

Enlargement of time was refused where there had been great delay: Re Dare Valley Ry. Co., 4 Ch. 554.

Form.]—By sect. 7, the arbitrators or umpire (unless the submission expresses a contrary intention) are empowered to state an award as to the whole or part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court; and to correct in an award any clerical mistake or error arising from any accidental slip or omission.

The provision as to the statement of a special case supersedes and simplifies sect. 5 of the C. L. P. Act, 1854, under which it was held that an umpire appointed to ascertain compensation under the Lands Clauses Act, 1845, had power to state a special case: Rhodes v. Airedale Commrs., 1 C. P. D. 402.

The provision as to correction of the award overrules Mordue v. Palmer, 6 Ch. 22, where it was held that even a clerical error could not be corrected by the arbitrator, but application must be made to the Court. The wording is similar to O. XXVIII, 11, in reference to mistakes in judgments or orders, as to which v. sup. p. 191.

Enforcement.]—By sect. 12, “an award on a submission may, by leave of the Court or a Judge, be enforced in the same way as a judgment or order to the same effect.” An application under this section is a “civil proceeding in the High Court” within s. 1 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890: Exp. Caucasian Trading Corp., (1896) 1 Q. B. 368, C. A. For form of application, see D. C. F. 1137.

Leave to enforce the award may be given under the section in the case of a reference to arbitration between landlord and tenant comprising matters partly within and partly not within the Agricultural Holdings (England) Act, 1883: In re Lloyd and Tooth, (1899) 1 Q. B. 559, C. A. The section does not apply to an award for amount enforceable by summary proceedings under sect. 150 of the Public Health Act, 1875: Re Willesden Local Board and Wright, (1896) 2 Q. B. 412, C. A.

As to process for enforcement of judgments and orders, v. inf. Chap. XXVII., “EXECUTION.” As to suing for enforcement of award, see inf. Chap. L., “SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE,” and Russ. Arb. 342; and as to pleading an award as a defence, Ib. 314, 315.

Where an arbitrator awarded compensation under an Act, but said nothing as to costs to which a right was given by the Act, an action could be maintained for the costs, though not taxed or ascertained: Met. Dist. Ry. Co. v. Sharpe, 5 App. Ca. 425.

Setting aside and remitting.]—By sect. 10 (1), “in all cases of reference to arbitration the Court or a Judge may from time to time remit the matters referred, or any of them, to the reconsideration of the arbitrators or umpire. (2) Where an award is remitted, the arbitrators or umpire shall, unless the order otherwise directs, make their award within three months after the date of the order.” By sect. 11, “where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself, or an arbitration or award has been improperly procured, the Court may set the award aside.”

By O. LXIV, 14, an application to set aside an award may be made at any time before the last day of the sittings next after such award has been made and published to the parties.

The application should be by motion: see O. LII, 1; D. C. F. 1135; and is to be considered as made when the notice of motion is given: Re Gallop, 25 Q. B. D. 230; and see Re Corp. of Huddersfield and Jacomb, 10 Ch. 92; Smith v. Purkside Mining Co., 6 Q. B. D. 67.

The notice of motion should specify the grounds of objection to the award; a notice stating objections “on good grounds” is insufficient: Mercier v. Pepperell, 19 Ch. D. 58.

Under O. LXIV, 7, the Court has jurisdiction, on good cause shown, to extend the time for moving to set aside an award, although the time limited by r. 14 has expired: Re Oliver and Scott's Arbitration, 43 Ch. D. 310; and see Re Wiggston Hospital, 54 L. J. Q. B. 248.

As to referring the award back to the arbitrator and his duties thereon, see Russ. Arb. 278 et seq.; and that the Court can remit although the arbitrator be functus officio, see Re Stringer and Riley, (1900) 1 Q. B. 105.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to remit back to the arbitrator an award under the Public Health Act, 1875, see Warburton v. Haslingden Local Bd., 48 L. J. C. P. 451.

Under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, the Court would not set aside the award or remit it to the arbitrators, except for reasons which before the Act would have induced the Court to set it aside, or treat it as a nullity: Mills v. Bowyers' Co., 3 K. & J. 66. But would refer it back when there had been a clear mistake by the arbitrators: S. C.; Flynn v. Robertson, L. R. 4 C. P. 324; though the mistake only affected part of the award: Re Aitken, 6 W. R. 145; 3 Jur. N. S. 1296; and as to awards being bad in part only, see Lewis v. Rossiter, 23 W. R. 832; 44 L. J. Ex. 136; 33 L. T. 260.

Evidence of an admission out of Court by an arbitrator that he made his award improperly, as, for example, by collusion or in consequence of a bribe, is not admissible in support of an application to set aside the award: In re Whiteley and Roberts, (1891) 1 Ch. 558.

Where by mistake the award had been signed after the time fixed by the agreement, the Court enlarged the time and remitted it: Re Warner and Powell's Arb., 3 Eq. 261.

But the parties to an arbitration having selected their own Judge on a question of law, are bound by his decision: Adams v. Gt. North of Scotland Ry. Co., (1891) A. C. 31, 40; Stimpson v. Emmerson, 9 L. T. 199; Knox v. Symmonds, 1 Ves. 369; and it is competent for them to agree that the question of fraud on his part shall not be raised: Tullis v. Jackson, (1892) 3 Ch. 441; and a mistake as to the legal principle on which the award was founded, or as to the mode of treating evidence, had to be admitted by the arbitrator: The Imperial, &c. v. Funder, 21 W. R. 67, 116; Dinn v. Blake, L. R. 10 C. P. 388; Russ. Arb. 198; and see Re Keighley, Maxsted & Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 405, C. A.; Falkingham v. Victorian Rys. Comm., (1900) A. C. 452, P. C.

In order to disqualify an arbitrator on the ground of bias, circumstances must be shown to exist which establish at least a probability that he will favour one of the parties in giving his decision: Eckersley v. Mersey Docks, (1894) 2 Q. B. 667, C. A.; and see Bright v. River Plate Construction Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 835; and, in the absence of suspicion, he will not be disqualified because he is the engineer or servant of one of them: Ives and Barker v. Willans, (1894) 2 Ch. 478, C. A.; even though he may have to decide disputes involving questions as to his skill and competence in advising his employers in respect to the contract: Eckersley v. Mersey Docks, sup. (commenting on Nuttall v. Mayor of Manchester, 8 Times L. R. 513); or because, being arbitrator under the Lands Clauses Act, he has given evidence on behalf of one of the parties in another arbitration as to the value of other land taken under the same parliamentary powers: In re Haigh and L. N. W. & G. W. Ry. Cos., (1896) 1 Q. B. 649.

Awards were set aside or remitted where the arbitrator had decided on certain bills of costs without giving the other side an opportunity of examining them, and had without authority appointed an accountant: Re Tidswell, 33 Beav. 213; or obtained and acted on an accountant's report without conferring with the parties thereon: Re E. C. Ry., 3 D. J. & S. 610; and see Haigh v. H., 8 Jur. N. S. 983; 3 D. F. & J. 157; or improperly excluded some of the parties from the proceedings: S. C.; or obtained information from one party in the absence of the other: Re Gregson and Armstrong, 70 L. T. 106; or refused to hear evidence: Russ. Arb. 192; Re Maunder, 49 L. T. 535; or improperly delegated his authority: Russ. Arb. 355, 357; or did not make his award within the appointed time: Re Yeadon Waterworks Co., and Yeadon L. B., 37 W. R. 360; or in effect made a new contract for the parties; e.g., where under a contract stipulating for "customary allowances" for deficient weight the arbitrator had increased the allowance beyond the customary sum: Hooper v. Balfour, 62 L. T. 646; or where evidence material for the consideration of the arbitrator (not necessarily such as would be good in a Court of law) was discovered after the award was made: Re Keighley, Maxsted & Co., sup.; or where the question referred being whether goods were up to guaranty, the arbitrators awarded that the buyer should accept them with allowance by way of compensation: Re Green and Balfour, W. N. (90) 139, 156; 63 L. T. 97, 325; or where costs were to follow event, and the arbitrator failed to find specific issues: Ellis v. Desilva, 6 Q. B. Div. 521; or the arbitrator in construing the contract erroneously imported into it a custom relieving a party from liability: Hutcheson v. Eaton, 11 Q. B. D. 861, C. A.; or where the award left some of the questions undecided, or ambiguously decided: Wakefield v. Llanelly Ry. &c. Co., 13 W. R. 823; Re Palmer and Hosken, (1898) 1 Q. B. 131, C. A.; secus, where the ambiguity was explained: Lord Blantyre v. Babbie, 13 App.

Cas. 631; or where evidence was taken on matters not referred but not shown to be irrelevant: Falkingham v. Victorian Rys. Comm., (1900) A. C. 452; and where the umpire heard the two arbitrators, but not the parties or witnesses, his award was upheld: Bottomley v. Ambler, 26 W. R. 566; 38 L. T. 545.

And "no award, when there is anything like fraud, can stand for a moment": per Giffard, V.-C., in Re Dare Valley Ry., 6 Eq. 435; Greenhill v. Church, 3 Ch. Rep. 49 [89]: see Story, Eq. Jur. s. 1451.

And generally, as to the duties and powers of an arbitrator in the conduct of the reference, see Russ. Arb. 118 et seq.

An arbitrator's evidence in explanation of his award will be admitted on a motion to set it aside, or refer it back for mistake: Re Dare Valley Ry. Co., 6 Eq. 429; Brown v. B., 1 Vern. 157; or in an action on the award: D. of Buccleuch v. Met. Bd. of Works, L. R. 5 Ex. 221; 5 H. L. 418; Rhodes v. Airedale Drainage Commrs., 1 C. P. D. 380; but a mere admission of misconduct made by an arbitrator after award is not admissible on motion to set it aside: Re Whiteley, (1891) 1 Ch. 558.

A Plt who had accepted the money awarded "under protest," was precluded by a delay of nine months from disputing the award: Parrott v. Shellard, 16 W. R. 928.

When an award is set aside it will be sent back to the same arbitrators, unless they have shown themselves untrustworthy: Re Dare Valley Ry. Co., 6 Eq. 429; Anning v. Hartley, 27 L. J. Ex. 145.

When an umpire has once been summoned the jurisdiction of the arbitrators is gone, and the Court in referring back the award will send it to the umpire: The Westminster, &c. Co. v. Clayton, 13 W. R. 134; 11 L. T. 366.

As to waiver of irregularities, see Russ. Arb. 136 et seq.; Moseley v. Simpson, 16 Eq. 226.

The Court of Chancery could not review the award of a Master of a common law Court to whom an action had been referred: Grafham v. Turnbull, 23 W. R. 645; 44 L. J. Ch. 538; nor, semble, an inclosure award: Bateman v. Boynton, 1 Ch. 359.

On a reference in an action of tort, a direction that the arbitrator should publish his award ready to be delivered to the parties or their represves, "if either should die before the making of the award," did not make the cause of action continue on the death of a party before award made: Bowker v. Evans, 15 Q. B. D. 565, C. A.

Actions for negligence cannot be brought against referees who have acted bonâ fide and to the best of their judgment: Pappa v. Rose, L. R. 7 C. P. 32, 525; Tharsis, &c. Co. v. Loftus, L. R. 8 C. P. 1; Stevenson v. Watson, 4 C. P. D. 148; Chambers v. Goldthorpe, (1901) 1 K. B. 624, C. A. (extending the principle to the case of an architect as against the building owner).

COSTS OF ARBITRATIONS GENERALLY.

By sect. 20, "any order made under this Act may be made on such terms as to costs, or otherwise, as the authority making the order thinks just."

And it is an implied term of every submission, unless a contrary intention is expressed, that the costs of the reference and award are to be in the discretion of the arbitrators or umpire, who may give directions as to payment, may tax and settle the amount to be paid, and award costs as between solr and client: v. sup. p. 406.

The power to give costs extends to an arbitration commenced after the Act under a submission made before the Act, and silent as to costs: Re Williams & Stepney, (1891) 2 Q. B. 257, C. A.; reversing S. C., (1891) 1 Q. B. 700.

An arbitrator appointed by the Court, and empowered to deal with the costs of the action, has jurisdiction to give costs as between solr and client: Mordue v. Palmer, 6 Ch. 22; and see Andrews v. Barnes, 39 Ch. D. 133.

Where an arbitrator having power over costs has not awarded any, the Court may deal with them, but ought to remit the case to him: Harland v. Mayor of Newcastle, L. R. 5 Q. B. 47; and see Fearon v. Flinn, L. R. 5 C. P. 34. As to allowing fees of two counsel, see Sinclair v. G. E. Ry., Ib. 135.

After reference of partnership questions and award, the general rule as to costs in partnership cases was followed: Newton v. Taylor, 19 Eq. 14.

Where the order of reference made no provision as to the costs of the action, it was varied after award made: Bustros v. Lenders, L. R. 6 C. P. 259.

The arbitrator had formerly no power over the costs of the reference and award unless specially given to him : Boodle v. Davies, 3 A. & E. 200. But where a cause was referred he had an implied power over the costs of the cause, though not of the reference or award : Russ. Arb. 224, 381.

By s. 15 (3), the remuneration to be paid to any special referee or arbitrator to whom any matter is referred under order of the Court or a Judge shall be determined by the Court or a Judge.

Semble, where a mercantile dispute is referred to arbitration, there is an implied contract by the parties jointly to pay to the arbitrators and umpire reasonable remuneration : Crompton v. Ridley, 20 Q. B. D. 48.

Power to arbitrator over "cost of reference" includes power to give costs of award : Re Walker and Brown, 9 Q. B. D. 434.

Costs of negotiating and settling terms of submission upon reference by consent may be allowed on taxation as "costs of reference" : Re Autothreptic Steam Boiler Co., 21 Q. B. D. 182.

The costs of a reference (semble, whether by consent or compulsory) are distinct from the costs of the cause, and therefore O. LXV, r. 12 (v. sup. p. 261, as to scale of taxation where not more than 50% is recovered), does not apply to costs awarded by the arbitrator in the exercise of his discretion : Street v. S., (1900) 2 Q. B. 57, C. A. (disapproving Moore v. Watson, L. R. 2 C. P. 314); and see Hyde v. Beardsley, 18 Q. B. D. 244; Emmett v. Heyes, 36 W. R. 237; W. N. (87) 243.

Where costs are to follow the event, the word "event" must be read distributively : Ellis v. Desilva, 6 Q. B. D. 521, C. A.; Hawke v. Brear, 14 Q. B. D. 841.

And Defts having judgment for balance on claim and counter-claim were entitled to costs of action, reference, and award, and Plt to costs of issues found in his favour; Lund v. Campbell, 14 Q. B. D. 821, C. A.; explaining Baines v. Bromley, 6 Q. B. D. 691; and vice versa; Waring v. Pearman, 50 L. T. 633; 32 W. R. 429; Pearson v. Ripley, 50 L. T. 629; 32 W. R. 463; and see Ahrbecker v. Frost, 17 Q. B. D. 606.

As to costs of reference under Public Health Act, 1875, see Peake v. Finchley Local Board, 57 L. T. 882.

Where a question submitted is referred to the Court by special case, the Court has jurisdiction as to the costs of the award, although the question of costs was not submitted : Portishead, &c. Co. v. Bristol, &c. Co., W. N. (87) 75; and as to costs of references before official or special referees, v. inf. p. 420.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES.

In the case of these societies the settlement of disputes is now regulated by the Friendly Societies Act, 1896 (59 & 60 V. c. 25), which provides that—

"(1) Every dispute between—

(a) a member or person claiming through a member or under the rules of a registered society or branch, and the society or branch or an officer thereof; or

(b) any person aggrieved who has not for not more than six months ceased to be a member of a registered society or branch, or any person claiming through such person aggrieved, and the society or branch, or an officer thereof; or

(c) any registered branch of any society or branch and the society or branch of which it is a branch; or

(d) an officer of any such registered branch and the society or branch of which that registered branch is a branch; or

(e) any two or more registered branches of any society or branch, or any officers thereof respectively, shall be decided in manner directed by the rules of the society or branch, and the decision so given shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal, and shall not be removable into any Court of law or restrainable by injunction; and application for the enforcement thereof may be made to the County Court."

Under the repealed enactments the Friendly Societies Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 60), s. 22, and the Friendly Societies Act, 1895 (58 & 59 V. c. 26), s. 10, sub-s. 1, only disputes between the co. and a member as such were provided for, and if the co. denied the membership the rules did not apply: Prentice v. London, L. R. 10 C. P. 679; Willis v. Wells, (1892) 2 Q. B. 225; Palliser v. Dale, (1897) 2 Q. B. 257, C. A.; and see further, Russ. on Arb. 33.

BUILDING SOCIETIES.

For order staying proceedings by a member of a building society, the rules of which provided that disputes between the society and its members should be referred to arbitration pursuant to the Building Societies Act, 1874, s. 16 (9), see Wright v. Monarch, &c. Soc., M. R., 23 March, 1877, B. 693, 5 Ch. D. 726; followed in Huck v. London Provident Bldg. Soc., 23 Ch. D. 103, C. A.; and see Municipal Permanent, &c. Soc. v. Kent, H. L. 9 App. Ca. 260, where the principle of the decision was affirmed.

As to the effect of arbitration clauses in the rules of building societies as respects disputes between the societies and their members in the capacity of mortgagors of the society, see Building Societies Act, 1884 (47 & 48 V. c. 41); Western Suburban Bldg. Soc. v. Martin, 17 Q. B. D. 609; and inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES"; as respects an impeached sale by the society to a member of property mortgaged to it by other members: French v. Municipal Permanent Bldg Soc., 53 L. J. Ch. 743; 50 L. T. 566; and as to the applicability of such a clause to a retiring member: Walker v. Gen. Mutual Bldg. Soc., 36 Ch. D. 777, C. A.; Davies v. Chatham Bldg. Soc., 61 L. T. 680.

The Court has power to order arbitrators under the Building Societies Act, 1874, to state a special case; sect. 36 of that Act not being "inconsistent" (within s. 24 of the Arbitration Act, 1889) with the exercise of such a power: Re Knight and Tabernacle Bldg. Soc., (1891) 2 Q. B. 63, C. A.; (1892) A. C. 298.

By the Building Societies Act, 1894 (57 & 58 V. c. 47), s. 20: "notwithstanding anything contained in the Arbitration Act, 1889, or in any other Act, the arbitrators, registrar, or Court to whom a dispute is referred in pursuance of the Building Societies Act, 1874, shall not be compelled to state a special case on any question of law arising in the case, but may do so on the request of either party as provided in sect. 36 of the Building Societies Act, 1874": S. C., Tabernacle Bldg. Soc. v. Knight, (1892) A. C. 298, H. L.

Where the arbitrator has stated his final award in the form of a special case, and has not merely asked the opinion of the Court by way of interlocutory proceeding, there is an appeal from the Q. B. D. to the C. A.: Re Kirkleatham Local Bd., (1893) 1 Q. B. 375, 380; (1893) A. C. 444, H. L.

Where the rules of a building society provided for the appointment of a specified number of arbitrators, and the prescribed number had not been appointed, the Court nevertheless stayed proceedings in an action brought by a member. If in such a case the society neglects to appoint arbitrators the proper course of proceeding is by mandamus: Norton v. Counties Conservative Permanent B. B. Soc., (1895) 1 Q. B. 246, C. A., not approving Christie v. Northern Counties B. B. Soc., 43 Ch. D. 62.

REFERENCE TO OFFICIAL OR SPECIAL REFEREE.

The Jud. Act, 1873, s. 83, provides for the appointment of officers to be called official referees, for the trial of such questions as shall under the Act be directed to be tried by such referees. Official referees have accordingly been appointed.

By O. xxxvi, 7, actions may (amongst other modes) be tried before an official or special referee, with or without assessors.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 V. c. 49), s. 3, where a submission provides that the reference shall be to an official referee, any official referee to whom application is made shall, subject to any order of the Court or Judge as to transfer or otherwise, hear and determine the matters agreed to be referred.

By sect. 13, "(1) subject to rules of Court and to any right to have particular cases tried by a jury, the Court or a Judge may refer any question arising in any cause or matter (other than a criminal proceeding by the Crown) for inquiry or report to any official or special referee.

"(2) The report of an official or special referee may be adopted wholly or partially by the Court or a Judge, and if so adopted may be enforced as a judgment or order to the same effect."

A question "arising" in the cause was held to be one which must necessarily arise: Weed v. Ward, 40 Ch. D. 555, C. A.; and see Asser v. Goetze, W. N. (80) 204.

As to the meaning of the word "inquiry," see Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155, 158, 159, C. A.; Weed v. Ward, sup.

As to the report being of no effect until adopted by the Court, see Serle v. Fardell, 44 Ch. D. 299, 301; Dyke v. Cannell, 11 Q. B. D. 180.

By sect. 14, "In any cause or matter (other than a criminal proceeding by the Crown),—

"(a) If all the parties interested who are not under disability consent; or,

"(b) If the cause or matter requires any prolonged examination of documents or any scientific or local investigation which cannot in the opinion of the Court or a Judge conveniently be made before a jury or conducted by the Court through its other ordinary officers; or,

"(c) If the question in dispute consists wholly or in part of matters of account; the Court or a Judge may at any time order the whole cause or matter, or any question or issue of fact arising therein, to be tried before a special referee or arbitrator respectively agreed on by the parties, or before an official referee or officer of the Court."

Sub-sect. (c) applies when any part of the dispute relates to a matter of account, although in certain events it might become unnecessary to determine such matter of account: Hurlbatt v. Barnett & Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 77, C. A.

The reference under the section is not a compulsory reference within sect. 8 of the Jud. Act, 1884, and therefore an appeal lies without leave from the decision of a Divisional Court on an application for a new trial before an official referee: Munday v. Norton, (1892) 1 Q. B. 403, C. A.

This section in substance follows sect. 57 of the Jud. Act, 1873, under which the Court declined to refer cases involving charges of fraud and matters affecting personal character, which the Deft was entitled to have tried in open Court: Leigh v. Brooks, 5 Ch. D. 592, C. A.; Russell v. Harris, 65 L. T. 752; and see Clow v. Harper, 26 W. R. 364; 3 Ex. D. 198.

A large construction was to be given to the word "account": Re Leigh, Rowcliffe v. L., 3 Ch. D. 292, where a claim in an admon suit for a large sum for pictures sold to the testator was referred, though consisting only of twenty-four items and no cross claims.

Any question of account which might be referred compulsorily to a Master under sect. 3 of the C. L. P. Act, 1854, might also be referred to an official referee under sect. 57: Knight v. Coales, 19 Q. B. D. at p. 302, C. A.; Ward v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 427, C. A.

An order of the Court for reference to a special referee may be in one of the Forms 32 and 33a in R. S. C., Appendix K.: see White v. Peto, W. N. (86) 165; Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155, 159, C. A.

Semble, the prolonged examination of documents intended in this section is such as is necessary in order to enable the Judge to determine questions of fact, not legal rights: Ormerod v. Todmorden Mill Co., 8 Q. B. D. 664, 667, C. A., per Brett, M. R.

In Pember v. Fames, W. N. (90) 143, questions of law and issues of fact were referred with direction to state a special case under sect. 19 of the Arbitration Act, 1899; and issues of fact in a patent case requiring scientific investigation were referred: Saxby v. Gloucester Wagon Co., W. N. (80) 28; Dan. 617.

Where the issue was whether or not a particular twist in a ship was caused by perils of the sea, and the evidence taken on commission filled 300 printed pages, and six scientific witnesses were to be examined, it was held that the case ought not to be withheld from a jury: Hamilton v. Merchants' Mar. Ins. Co., 58 L. J. Q. B. 544; and see Swyny v. N. E. Ry. Co., 74 L. T. 88.

A very difficult account was directed to be taken by an official referee instead of in Chambers, on account of the great saving of time which would thus be effected: Rochevoucauld v. Boustead, (1897) 1 Ch. 196, C. A.; and see S. C. (No. 2), (1898) 1 Ch. 550, C. A.

After a reference under sect. 14, the Court or Judge can still make an order for inspection of property the subject of the action; but, semble, it is more convenient that application should be made to the referee or arbitrator: Macalpine v. Calder, (1893) 1 Q. B. 545, C. A.

By O. xxxvi, 45, the business to be referred to the official referees is to be distributed among them in rotation by the clerk to the senior official referee in rotation, or in such other manner as the L. C. may from time to time direct.

By r. 47 (b), "the L. C. and the Lord Chief Justice of England, or either of them, shall have power to order the transfer of any causes or matters from any one or more of the official referees to any other or others of them, whenever, in his opinion, it shall be expedient so to do, having regard to the state of the business pending before the referees."

As to appeals from orders of reference, and that the discretion of the Judge will not as a rule be interfered with, see Ormerod v. Todmorden Mill Co., 8 Q. B. D. 664, C. A.; Hoch v. Boor, 49 L. J. Q. B. 667; 43 L. T. 245; Knight v. Coales, 19 Q. B. D. 296.

PROCEEDINGS UNDER SUCH REFERENCE.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 15 (1), "in all cases of reference to an official or special referee or arbitrator under an order of the Court or a Judge in any cause or matter the official or special referee or arbitrator shall be deemed to be an officer of the Court, and shall have such authority and shall conduct the reference in such manner as may be prescribed by rules of Court, and subject thereto as the Court or a Judge may direct."

The provision that the referee is to be deemed an officer of the Court applies to references under sect. 14 as well as to those under sect. 13: Re Palmer, P. v. Hardwick, 63 L. T. 302.

By O. xxxvi, 48, "where any cause or matter, or any question in any cause or matter, is referred to a referee, he may, subject to the order of the Court or a Judge, hold the trial at or adjourn it to any place which he may deem most convenient, and have any inspection or view, either by himself or with his assessors (if any), which he may deem expedient for the better disposal of the controversy before him. He shall, unless otherwise directed by the Court or a Judge, proceed with the trial de die in diem, in a similar manner as in actions tried with a jury."

The provision as to sitting de die in diem is merely directory, and non-compliance with it is not per se a ground for setting aside an award: Robinson v. R., 24 W. R. 675; 35 L. T. 337. By r. 55 (c), the provision is not applicable where the arbitrator is appointed otherwise than by an order of Court.

As to the power of a referee to make a peremptory appointment for the hearing, see Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 53 L. J. Q. B. 208; 32 W. R. 220; 49 L. T. 617.

Sect. 18 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, provides that, "(1) the Court or a Judge may order that a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum shall issue to compel the attendance, before an official or special referee, or before any arbitrator or umpire, of a witness wherever he may be within the United Kingdom.

"(2) The Court or a Judge may also order that a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum shall issue to bring up a prisoner for examination before an official or special referee, or before any arbitrator or umpire."

For the practice as to suing out subpoena ad testificandum or duces tecum, see O. xxxvii, 26—34.

The evidence before a referee is to be taken, the attendance of witnesses enforced, and the trial to be conducted, as nearly as circumstances will admit, as trials are conducted before a Judge: O. xxxvi, 49.

Under this rule, an official referee to whom an action has been referred for trial has power to grant a commission to examine witnesses abroad, and his decision is subject to review by the Judge at Chambers: Hayward v. Mutual Reserve Assoc., (1891) 2 Q. B. 236; 39 W. R. 624.

Where voluminous correspondence is produced before a referee and counsel propose to cross-examine seriatim upon it, the proper course is to adjourn for selection of what is material: Re Maplin Sands, W. N. (94) 41, 184, C. A.; 71 L. T. 56, 594.

By r. 50, subject to any order to be made by the Court or Judge, the referee shall have the same authority with respect to discovery and production of documents, and in the conduct of any reference or trial, and the same power to direct that judgment be entered for any or either party as a Judge of the High Court.

An official referee has power to make an order for addition of parties under O. XVI, 11: Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657, C. A. As to appeal to Judge at Chambers from official referee declining to postpone hearing, see Richard v. Talbot, 38 W. R. 478.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 22, any person who wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence before any referee shall be guilty of perjury as if the evidence had been given in open Court, and may be dealt with, prosecuted, and punished accordingly.

By O. XXXVI, 51, "nothing in these rules contained shall authorize any referee to commit any person to prison or to enforce any order by attachment or otherwise."

By r. 52, "the referee may, before the conclusion of any trial before him, or by his report under the reference made to him, submit any question arising therein for the decision of the Court, or state any facts specially, with power to the Court to draw inferences therefrom, and in any such case the order to be made on such submission or statement shall be entered as the Court may direct; and the Court shall have power to require any explanation or reasons from the referee, and to remit the cause or matter, or any part thereof, for re-trial or further consideration to the same or any other referee; or the Court may decide the question referred to any referee on the evidence taken before him, either with or without additional evidence as the Court may direct."

A motion under this rule to remit issues to a referee need not be made within the time limited for moving against the verdict of a jury: Dyke v. Cannell, 11 Q. B. D. 180, explaining Sullivan v. Rivington, 28 W. R. 372.

The Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 19, provides that, "any referee, arbitrator, or umpire may at any stage of the proceedings under a reference, and shall, if so directed by the Court or a Judge, state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court any question of law arising in the course of the reference."

By O. XXXVI, 55 (c), the provisions of the above rules, and of rr. 53 to 55 (v. inf.), are to apply, where any cause or matter or any question or issue of fact therein is referred to an officer of the Court or to a special referee or arbitrator.

Where the report of a referee does not direct any act to be done, two days' notice of motion for judgment dismissing the action is sufficient under O. XL, 7: Larkin v. Lloyd, 64 L. T. 507.

REPORT OF REFEREE.

By sect. 15, sub-sect. 2, of the Arbitration Act, 1889, the report or award of an official or special referee or arbitrator on any reference under an order of the Court or a Judge is, unless set aside by the Court or a Judge, to be equivalent to the verdict of a jury.

The section does not affect the finality of the award of an arbitrator under a reference by consent of the parties, including matters other than the action, and owing its validity to such consent: Darlington Wagon Co. v. Harding, (1891) 1 Q. B. 245, C. A.

A referee acting under sect. 57 of the Jud. Act, 1873 (corresponding with sect. 14 of the Arbitration Act, 1889), was not bound to set out in his report the reasons or grounds for his findings of fact: Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 736, C. A.; and so where a preliminary account was referred: Walker v. Bunkell, 22 Ch. D. 722, C. A. (per Kay, J.); but the report should state what items of an account have been allowed and what disallowed: Burrard v. Calisher, 19 Ch. D. 644.

And a referee is not bound to take accounts and inquiries in the strict way usual before the Master, though he may adopt that course if he thinks it expedient: In re Taylor, Turpin v. Pain, 44 Ch. D. 128; q. v. as to the practice and method of taking accounts before an official referee.

By O. xxxvi, 53, "whenever a report shall be made by a referee, he shall on the same day cause notice thereof to be given to all the parties to the trial or reference before him, by prepaid post letter, directed to the address for service of each party, who shall in due course of post be deemed to have notice of such report."

By r. 54, "where, under sect. 13 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, the report of the referee has been made in a cause or matter the further consideration of which has been adjourned, it shall be lawful for any party, on the hearing of such further consideration, without notice of motion or summons, to apply to the Court or Judge to adopt the report, or without leave of the Court or a Judge to give not less than four days' notice of motion, to come on with the further consideration, to vary the report or to remit the cause or matter or any part thereof for re-hearing or further consideration to the same or any other referee."

By r. 55, "where, under sect. 13 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, the report of the referee has been made in a cause or matter the further consideration of which has not been adjourned, it shall be lawful for any party by an eight days' notice of motion to apply to the Court to adopt and carry into effect the report of the referee, or to vary the report, or to remit the cause or matter or any part thereof for re-hearing or further consideration to the same or any other referee."

No summons to confirm the report is required before the case is restored to the paper: Deacon v. Dolby, 51 L. J. Ch. 248; 30 W. R. 317. As to the object of the rule, see Larkin v. Lloyd, W. N. (91) 71. In order to vary the report on the ground of rejection of evidence, substantial wrong must be shown: Re Maplin Sands, W. N. (94) 41, 184, C. A.; 71 L. T. 56, 594.

In the absence of notice of motion to vary or remit the report the Court will not on further consideration review the referee's finding on the evidence: Re Fitton, 63 L. J. Ch. 164; 70 L. T. 397; 42 W. R. 281.

For the practice on motion to vary the report, see Burrard v. Calisher, 19 Ch. D. 644; Re Taylor, Turpin v. Pain, 44 Ch. D. 128.

The Court may differ from the referee as to any finding which is an inference from the facts reported: Longman v. East, 3 O. P. D. 142, 155, C. A.; and see further, Russ. on Arb. 217 et seq.

JUDGMENT ON TRIAL BEFORE REFEREE.

By O. XL, 2, every referee to whom a cause or matter shall be referred shall direct how judgment shall be entered, and such judgment shall be entered accordingly by a master or registrar, as the case may be; and by r. 6, where at a trial by a referee he has directed that any judgment be entered, any party may move to set aside such judgment, and to enter any other judgment, on the ground that upon the finding as entered the judgment is wrong, "provided that in the Q. B. D. such motion shall be made to a Divisional Court."

Judgment when entered takes effect from the date when the requisite documents are left with the proper officer for the purpose of such entry, not (as in the case of a judgment by a Judge in Court) from the time when it is pronounced: see O. XLI, 3, 4.

Where judgment has been actually entered, pursuant to the official referee's report and direction, any motion to set aside the judgment must be made not to the Ch. D., but to the Court of Appeal: Serle v. Fardell, 44 Ch. D. 299; Russ. on Arb. 375; but see Palmer v. Hardwicke, W. N. (90) 162; 63 L. T. 302; Russ. on Arb. 144.

But in Q. B. D. it was held that, though judgment had been entered, application might be made to the Divisional Court to set aside the findings on which it was based: Proudfoot v. Hart, 25 Q. B. D. 43.

On appeal the Court has power not only to set aside the judgment which the referee has ordered to be entered for the Plt, but to enter judgment for the Deft: Clark v. Sonnenschein, 25 Q. B. D. 464, C. A.; affirming S. C., ib. 226.

In the Ch. D. judgments which any official or special referee has directed to be entered will be entered by the registrars; and in Chancery cases the report is filed in the Central Office.

Where there has been a trial before an official referee, a motion for a new trial must be made in the High Court, the Jud. Act, 1890, s. 1, not being applicable to such a case: Gower v. Tobitt, 39 W. R. 193; Russ. on Arb. 2220.

Where the reference is as to nuisance, and the referee reports that no nuisance exists, the Deft may move, under O. XL, 7 (v. sup. p. 384), for judgment dismissing the action with costs: Larkin v. Lloyd, W. N. (91) 71; 64 L. T. 507.

COSTS OF REFERENCE BEFORE OFFICIAL OR SPECIAL REFEREE.

By O. XXXVI, 55b, where the whole of any cause or matter is referred to an official referee under an order of Court, he may, subject to any directions in the order, exercise the same discretion as to costs as the Court or a Judge could have exercised.

Under sect. 15, sub-sect. 2 (v. sup. p. 418), if the award and order of reference are both silent as to costs, the costs follow the event: Carr Bros. v. Dougherty, 67 L. J. Q. B. 371.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 15 (3), the remuneration to be paid to any special referee or arbitrator to whom any matter is referred under order of the Court or a Judge shall be determined by the Court or Judge.

In Wallis v. Lichfield, W. N. (76) 130; and in Re Perrin, Court v. P., M. R., 31 Jan. 1876, B. 127, where the referees were Queen's counsel, the remuneration allowed was five guineas a sitting. In the latter case a fee of two guineas for a conference was allowed.

As to the power of the Judge to order that extra costs occasioned by trial before official, instead of special, referee be reserved, see London and Lanc. Fire Ins. Co. v. British American Assoc., 54 L. J. Q. B. 302; 52 L. T. 385.

CHAPTER XXVII.

EXECUTION AND CONTEMPT.

SECTION I.—EXECUTION GENERALLY.

(I.) ENFORCING DECREES, JUDGMENTS, AND ORDERS.

PROCESS AGAINST PERSONS NOT PRIVILEGED.

By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 100, the word judgment includes decree.

By O. XLII, 24, "every order of the Court or a Judge, in any cause or matter, may be enforced (which includes enforcement by action: see Pritchett v. English Syndicate, (1899) 2 Q. B. 428, C. A.; Godfrey v. George, (1896) 1 Q. B. 48, C. A.; Norton v. Gregory, 73 L. T. 10) against all persons bound thereby in the same manner as a judgment to the same effect." But the word judgment in other Acts of Parliament does not of necessity include order: Exp. Chinery, 12 Q. B. D. 342, C. A.

By r. 26, any person not being a party to a cause or matter who obtains any order, or in whose favour any order is made, shall be entitled to enforce obedience to such order by the same process as if he were a party; and any person, not being a party to a cause or matter, against whom obedience to any judgment or order may be enforced, is liable to the same process for enforcing obedience to such judgment or order as if he were a party.

A judgment or order requiring a person to do an act is to state a time, or time after service, within which the act is to be done: O. XLI, 5; or a limit of time may be supplied by an order on motion: see Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. D. 259, 266; and the copy judgment or order which is to be served is to bear an indorsement warning the person served that if he neglects to obey he will be liable to process of execution: O. XLI, 5.

Where the person liable (by O. LXXI, 1, person includes a body corporate) is not a body corporate, and is not privileged:—

1. A judgment for recovery by or payment to a person of money may be enforced by any of the modes by which a judgment or decree for the payment of money of any Court, whose jurisdiction was transferred by the Jud. Act, 1873, might have been enforced at the commencement of the Act: O. XLII, 3; that is to say:—

- (a.) A judgment for recovery of money may be enforced immediately, or on the expiration of any time allowed for payment,

- (1.) By writ of fi. fa. or elegit; and on return of these writs, by the other writs in aid: O. XLIII, 2, 3, 5; —and, in the case of lands actually delivered in execution, by proceedings for sale after process of execution has been registered: v. inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

- (2.) By proceedings for attachment of debts; O. XLV; v. inf. Chap. XXVIII., "CHARGING ORDERS."

- (3.) Upon proof of means, and neglect or refusal to pay, by an order on notice for . . . committal for six weeks; 32 & 33 V. c. 62, s. 5. As to this section, see Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 52), s. 103; and Bankruptcy Rules, 1883, r. 265. The jurisdiction to commit for six weeks is transferred to bankruptcy.
- (4.) Where there is any impediment in the way of execution at law, by the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution: v. inf. Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS."
- (b.) A judgment for payment to a person of money may be enforced
- (1.) Whether a time be limited or not—without service (see Land Credit Co. of Ireland v. Fermoy, 5 Ch. 323), by any of the modes by which a judgment for the recovery of money is enforced.
- (2.) Where by the judgment or any subsequent order a time is limited, Upon proof of due service of the judgment (or order) limiting time and of non-compliance:—
- (a) In the case of a trustee or person in a fiduciary capacity, or a solr in his character as an officer of the Court: Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 V. c. 62), s. 4; by leave of the Court or a Judge on notice, by . . . writ of attachment; O. XLIV, 2; inf. SECT. III., p. 438.
[A return by the sheriff is enforced by order for . . . committal or attachment of the sheriff; see inf. p. 446; O. LII, 11.]
On return by the sheriff non est inventus on motion ex parte by the . . . serjeant-at-arms;
- (β) After attachment, by leave of the Court on motion ex parte, or
- (γ) Where no attachment has issued, without leave by . . . writ of sequestration; v. inf. Sect. VI., p. 450.
2. A judgment for payment of money into Court may be enforced: O. XLII, 4; upon proof of due service of the judgment (or order) limiting time, and of non-payment—
- (a.) Without further order: O. XLIII, 6; see Sprunt v. Pugh, 7 Ch. D. 567: by . . . writ of sequestration;
- (b.) In the case of a trustee or person in a fiduciary capacity, or a solr in his character as an officer of the Court: 32 & 33 V. c. 62, s. 4; by order of the Court or a Judge on notice, by . . . writ of attachment;
- (c.) By equitable execution, as in No. 1: Re Coney, C. v. Bennett, 29 Ch. D. 993.
3. A judgment for the recovery or for delivery of possession of land may be enforced: O. XLII, 5;
- (a.) If to the effect that a party do recover possession, without service: O. XLVII, 1; and
- (b.) If to the effect that any person do deliver possession upon proof of due service of the judgment (or order) limiting time, and of non-compliance: r. 2; by writ of possession; inf. p. 436.
- (c.) In the latter case the judgment may also be enforced as a judgment to do any act: inf. No. 6.
4. A judgment for the delivery of any property (other than land or money) may be enforced: O. XLII, 6;
- (a.) Without service by . . . writ of delivery; O. XLVIII, v. inf. p. 437.

Or in special circumstances by order of Court, by writ of assistance;

v. inf. pp. 431, 436.

(b.) Upon proof of due service, &c. :—

As a judgment to do any act: inf. No. 5.

5. A judgment to do any act

(other than payment of money) may be enforced upon proof of due service, &c.; O. XLII, 7;

(a.) Where a time is limited by the judgment, without further order by writ of sequestration;
 O. XLIII, 6.

(b.) By order of the Court or a Judge on notice by writ of attachment;

And subsequent process as in No. 1; O. XLIV.

(c.) By order on notice for committal;
inf. SECT. III., p. 438, and SECT. VII., p. 463.

6. A judgment to abstain from doing any act may be enforced: O. XLII, 7.

(a.) By order of the Court or a Judge on notice by writ of attachment;

O. XLIV.

(b.) By order on notice for committal.

7. An order to answer interrogatories or to give discovery or inspection of documents upon proof of service on the person liable or his solr:

O. XXXI, 21, 22; and of non-compliance, may be enforced by order of the Court or a Judge on notice, by . writ of attachment;

And as to other remedies in default, v. sup., Chap. VII.,

"DISCOVERY," pp. 96, 97.

8. A judgment or order for payment of costs:—

If ascertained, so soon as the costs are payable, or after any time limited: O. XLII, 17; and,

If not ascertained, on filing the taxing master's certificate, and,

If not ascertained, where a time is limited after taxation, on filing the taxing master's certificate and on proof of service of the order and certificate, may be enforced—

(a.) Without service, or on proof of due service where a time is limited to run from service, or service of the order and certificate is requisite as above mentioned, by writ of fi. fa. or elegit;

(b.) Upon proof of due service of the order limiting time, and (if the costs are not ascertained) of the certificate.

(i.) In the case of a solr ordered to pay costs for misconduct as such, by order of the Court, or a Judge on notice, by writ of attachment;
 O. XLIV; and subsequent process as in No. 1;

Or, at the option of the person entitled, by leave of the Court or a Judge (without any previous four-day order: Re Lumley, Exp. Cathcart, (1894) 2 Ch. 271, C.A.; Re Deakin, Exp. Cathcart, (1900) 2 Q. B. 478, C.A.):
 O. XLIII, 7; by writ of sequestration;
 see Snow v. Bolton, 17 Ch. D. 433.

(ii.) In the case of any other person, by writ of attachment, committal, or attachment of debts, as in the case of an order for payment of money, or (by leave of the Court) sequestration: O. XLIII, 7; v. sup. No. 1.

PROCESS AGAINST PARTICULAR PERSONS OR PARTIES.

1. Against Partners :—

By O. XLVIII (June, 1891), r. 8, “where a judgment is against a firm, execution may issue :—

- (a.) Against any property of the partnership within the jurisdiction :
- (b.) Against any person who has appeared in his own name under r. 5 or 6” (substituted for O. XII, 15), “or who has admitted on the pleadings that he is, or who has been adjudged to be, a partner :
- (c.) Against any person who has been individually served, as a partner, with the writ of summons, and has failed to appear.

If the party who has obtained judgment or an order claims to be entitled to issue execution against any other person as being a member of the firm, he may apply to the Court or a Judge for leave so to do ; and the Court or Judge may give such leave if the liability be not disputed, or, if such liability be disputed, may order that the liability of such person be tried and determined in any manner in which any issue or question in an action may be tried and determined. But except as against any property of the partnership, a judgment against a firm shall not render liable, release, or otherwise affect any member thereof, who was out of the jurisdiction when the writ was issued, and who has not appeared to the writ, unless he has been made a party to the action under O. XI, or has been served within the jurisdiction after the writ in the action was issued.”

And see O. XLVIII, 4, 5, 6, obviating difficulties which formerly arose in cases of default in appearance, as indicated in Davies & Co. v. André & Co., 24 Q. B. D. 598, C. A.

By O. XLVIII, 10, the above rules are to apply “to actions between a firm and one or more of its members, and to actions between firms having one or more members in common, provided such firm or firms carry on business within the jurisdiction ; but no execution shall be issued in such actions without leave of the Court or a Judge, and on an application for leave to issue such execution all such accounts and inquiries may be directed to be taken and made, and directions given, as may be just.”

By the Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 39), s. 23, after the commencement of that Act (1st January, 1891), a writ of execution is not to issue against any partnership property, except on a judgment against the firm. The Court or a Judge “may, on the application by summons of any judgment creditor of a partner, make an order charging that partner’s interest in the partnership property and profits with payment of the amount of the judgment debt and interest thereon, and may by the same or a subsequent order appoint a receiver of that partner’s share of profits (whether already declared or accruing) and of any other money which may be coming to him in respect of the partnership, and direct all accounts and inquiries, and give all other orders and directions which might have been directed or given if the charge had been made in favour of the judgment creditor by the partner, or which the circumstances of the case may require.” The other partner or partners are to be at liberty at any time to redeem the interest charged, or, in case of a sale being directed, to purchase the same.

By O. XLVI, 1a, “every summons by a separate judgment creditor of a partner for an order charging his interest in the partnership property and profits under sect. 23 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 39), and for such other orders as are thereby authorized to be made, shall be served in the case of a partnership other than a cost book co. on the judgment debtor and on his partners, or such of them as are within the jurisdiction, or, in the case of a cost book co., on the judgment debtor and the purser of the co. ; and such service shall be good service on all the partners or on the cost book co. as the case may be, and all orders made on such summons shall be similarly served.”

1b : “Every application which shall be made by any partner of the judgment debtor under the same section shall be made by summons, and such summons shall be served in the case of a partnership other than a cost book co. on the judgment creditor and on the judgment debtor, and on such of the other partners as shall not concur in the application and as shall be within the jurisdiction, or, in the case of a cost book co., on the judgment creditor and on the judgment debtor and on the purser of the co., and such service shall be good service on all the partners or on the cost book co., as the case may be, and all orders made on such summons shall be similarly served."

The remedies of a separate judgment creditor of a partner under the section are in general such only as he would have had if the charge had been made by the partner; and therefore, in the absence of special circumstances, he cannot obtain an order directing the other partners to render partnership accounts: Brown, Janson & Co. v. Hutchinson & Co. (No. 2), (1895) 2 Q. B. 126, C. A.

The section applies to a foreign firm having a branch house of business in England: Brown, Janson & Co. v. Hutchinson & Co. (No. 1), (1895) 1 Q. B. 737, C. A.

A charging order under the section, being a proceeding in invitum, is not a "transaction" protected by sect. 49 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883: Wild v. Southwood, (1897) 1 Q. B. 317.

As to the procedure generally where one partner is an infant, see Lovell v. Beauchamp, (1894) A. C. 607, H. L., varying decision of C. A., (1894) 1 Q. B. 801.

O. XLVIII, r. 1, applies to a firm which carries on business within the jurisdiction, although it be a foreign or colonial firm, the members of which are resident out of the jurisdiction: Worcester City and County Banking Co. v. Firbank, Pauling & Co., (1894) 1 Q. B. 784, C. A.

Where judgment is recovered against co-partners in the firm name, if one of the members has left the firm to the knowledge of the Plt before the commencement of the action, and has not appeared to the writ in his own name, or been admitted or adjudged to be a partner, the Plt—in order to be entitled to obtain leave to issue execution under r. 8 of O. XLVIII, sup.—must have served him with the writ in accordance with the proviso to r. 3: Wigram v. Cox, Sons, Buckley & Co., (1894) 1 Q. B. 792.

Under O. XLVIII, an action can be brought against a firm after its dissolution, if the cause of action accrued previously thereto: Re Wenham; Exp. Battams, (1900) 2 Q. B. 698, C. A.

2. Against Bodies Corporate or Politic:—

By O. XLII, 31, any judgment or order against a corp. wilfully disobeyed may, by leave of the Court or a Judge, be enforced by sequestration against the corporate property, or by attachment against the directors or other officers thereof, or by writ of sequestration against their property.

The writ of distringas, formerly necessary before making an order for the writ of sequestration to issue against a corporate body, and in case of a return nulla bona, the subsequent writs of alias and pluries distringas are not now necessary, since the word "person," by O. LXXI, includes a body corporate or politic; and for the purpose of enforcing a judgment or order for payment of money into Court, or doing any act, sequestration may be issued as against an ordinary Deft.

By O. XLII, 23, a party alleging himself to be entitled to execution against shareholders of a joint stock co. upon a judgment recorded against such co., or against a public officer or other person representing such co., may apply for leave to issue execution, and the Court, if satisfied that he is entitled, may either make an order to that effect, or order the trial of any issue or question necessary to determine the rights of the parties; and in either case may impose terms as to costs or otherwise.

The writs of feri facias and elegit, and the writs in aid, may also be issued against such parties: v. inf. p. 431.

Land held by a local authority in trust for a contributory place under the Public Health Act, 1875, can only be taken in execution for judgment debts exclusively chargeable against that contributory place: Earl of Jersey v. Uxbridge Rural Sanitary Authority, (1891) 3 Ch. 183.

3. Against Peers, Members of Parliament, and other Privileged Persons:—

O. XLIII, 6, 7, as interpreted by O. LXXI, applies to "any person," and therefore it seems that sequestration may be issued against such persons as above mentioned without further order, and that the former practice of obtaining orders nisi, and absolute, for that purpose against such persons is superseded. It may be observed that the privilege of such persons (as to which, see further, inf. Sect. VII., p. 468) is a privilege from arrest, and not from any other process.

The writs of fiery facias and elegit, and writs in aid, may therefore also be issued for non-payment of money or costs in such cases; as to which, v. inf. p. 421. For process against beneficed clergymen, v. inf. p. 455.

ISSUE OF WRITS.

By O. XLII, 9, "where a judgment or order is to the effect that any party is entitled to any relief subject to or upon the fulfilment of any condition or contingency, such party may, upon the fulfilment of the condition or contingency and demand made upon the party against whom he is entitled to relief, apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to issue execution (which, by r. 8, includes all the processes for enforcing orders) against such party. And the Court or Judge may, if satisfied that the right to relief has arisen according to the terms of the judgment or order, order that execution issue accordingly, or may direct that any issue or question necessary for determination of the rights of the parties be tried in any of the ways in which questions arising in an action may be tried."

By r. 11, no writ of execution is to issue without production of the judgment or order, or an office copy thereof; and the officer is to be satisfied that the proper time has elapsed.

Rules 12, 13, 14, and 16, relate to the præcipe and the indorsements and date of the writ. Rule 18, to issue of two separate writs of execution for money and costs respectively, the second not less than eight days after the first.

Every writ of execution is in force for a year, but it may be renewed by the leave of the Court or Judge, and on resealing the writ, or on notice of renewal signed by the party or his attorney and sealed: rr. 20, 21.

"As between original parties to a judgment or order, execution may issue at any time within six years from the recovery of the judgment or the date of the order": r. 22.

O. LXIV, 13 (v. sup. p. 172), does not apply to proceedings after judgment: Taylor v. Roe, W. N. (91) 26; 62 L. J. Ch. 391; 68 L. T. 253.

By r. 23, where six years have elapsed, or any change has taken place by death, or otherwise, in the parties entitled, or liable to execution, or where a husband is entitled or liable to execution upon a judgment or order for or against a wife; or a party is entitled to execution upon a judgment of assets in futuro; or to execution against shareholders, &c. (v. sup. p. 425), the party alleging himself to be entitled to it may apply to the Court or Judge for leave to issue it. And the Court or Judge may, if satisfied that the party applying is entitled thereto, make an order to that effect, or direct any question or issue to be tried, and in either case may impose terms as to costs or otherwise. Whether the rule applies to attachment of debts, quære: Fellows v. Thornton, 14 Q. B. D. 335.

The appointment of a receiver of the property or interest of a judgment debtor is not execution within O. XLII, rr. 8, 23, and therefore the exors of a deceased judgment creditor cannot obtain an order for the appointment of a receiver of the judgment debtor's property: Norburn v. N., (1894) 1 Q. B. 448.

Leave given under r. 23 of O. XLII to issue execution against the executor of a deceased judgment debtor does not operate as a judgment against the executor; it dispenses with the necessity of recovering judgment against him, and consequently does not satisfy the requirements of sects. 14 and 15 of 1 & 2 V. c. 110: Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. 386, C. A. (commenting on Haly v. Barry, L. R. 3 Ch. 432, and Finney v. Hinde, 4 Q. B. D. 102).

A trustee in bankruptcy of a judgment creditor cannot apply under the rule unless he has first made himself a party under O. XVII, 4: Re Clements, (1901) 1 K. B. 200.

Judgment having been given with costs for a Plt who died before payment of the amount, his exors obtained leave to issue execution on an ex parte application, but without costs: Mercer v. Lawrence, 26 W. R. 506.

Leave of the Court to issue execution is also necessary in cases coming within O. XLII, 9, 22, 23; O. XLVIII, 8; and in all cases of attachment: O. XLIV, 2, inf. p. 440.

By r. 28, "nothing in this order shall take away or curtail any right heretofore existing to enforce or give effect to any judgment or order in any manner, or against any property whatsoever." As to the effect of this rule, see Re Coney, C. v. Bennett, 29 Ch. D. 793.

By the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 51), s. 6, writs affecting land are void as against a purchaser for value of the land unless registered as required by sect. 5, except in the case of writs previously registered under 27 & 28 V. c. 112, or where the proceeding in which the writ is issued is registered as a lis pendens in the name of the person whose land is affected.

The issue of a writ not being a judicial act, the Court can inquire at what period of the day it was issued: Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 18 Q. B. D. 63, C. A.

An application for stay of execution under a judgment, unless made immediately after the judgment has been pronounced, must be supported by affidavit showing special circumstances: Tuck v. Southern Counties Deposit Bank, 42 Ch. D. 471, C. A.

DISCOVERY IN AID OF EXECUTION.

By O. XLII, 32, the party entitled to enforce a judgment or order for the recovery or payment of money may apply to the Judge for an order that the debtor liable, or in the case of a corporation that any officer thereof, be orally examined, as to whether any and what debts are owing to the debtor, and whether he has any and what other property or means of satisfying the judgment or order, before a Judge or an officer of the Court as the Judge shall appoint; and the Judge may make an order for the attendance and examination of such debtor, or of "any other person," and for the production of any books or documents.

By r. 33, in case of any judgment or order other than for the recovery or payment of money, if any difficulty arises in or about the execution or enforcement thereof, any party interested may apply to the Judge, who may make such order thereon for the attendance and examination of any party or otherwise as may be just.

By r. 34, the costs of any application under the last two preceding rules, or either of them, and of any proceedings arising from or incidental thereto, are to be in the discretion of the Judge, or of such officer as in r. 32 mentioned, if the Judge shall so direct.

The examination under r. 32 is intended to be of the severest kind, and the debtor must answer all questions and give all particulars necessary to enable the interrogating party to recover under garnishee proceedings: Republic of Costa Rica v. Strousberg, 16 Ch. D. 8, C. A.

A garnishee against whom an order absolute has been made is liable to be examined under the rule: Cowan v. Carlill, 33 W. R. 583; 52 L. T. 431.

The words "any other person," in r. 32, refer to the case of a corporation, and do not authorize the examination of the manager of the debtor's business in place of the debtor himself: Irwell v. Eden, 18 Q. B. D. 588, C. A.

The debtor is only entitled to a reasonable sum for conduct money, and not to payment for expenses and loss of time upon attendance at the examination, under O. XXXVII, 9: Rendell v. Grundy, (1895) 1 Q. B. 16, C. A.

On taxation of costs, the costs of the examination ought not to be treated as "luxuries": Adlington v. Conyngham, (1898) 2 Q. B. 492, C. A. And as to discovery in aid of execution, see further Dan. 756, 757; D. C. F. 465, 466; Edw. Exton., 64 et seq.

(II.) SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

1. Substituted Service of Judgment or Order.

WHEREAS by the judgment [or order] dated &c., it was ordered [Recite directions required to be performed]; Now upon motion &c., or (upon the application &c., and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant) who alleged [state from affidavit to the effect] that the Plt hath been unable to serve the Deft B. with the said judgment [or order], although due diligence hath been used for that purpose, as by the affidavit of &c. filed &c. appears; and upon reading the said judgment [or order], and affidavit, This Court doth order, that service of the said judgment [or order], dated &c., together with a copy of this order, upon — at — [or upon C. D. &c., members of the firm of &c., or one of them], be deemed good service on the said Deft B.

For order for service of the judgment with a copy of the order for service on the Deft's solr, and also by sending copies thereof through the post in a registered letter addressed to the Deft's place of business, see Nichols v. Pedder, M. R., 14 March, 1879, B. 482.

NOTES.

An order (other than an order for discovery: O. xxxi, 22; and see Joy v. Hadley, 22 Ch. D. 572, and inf. p. 443) requiring any act to be done, the non-performance of which will be a contempt of Court, must be personally served on the party required to perform the act, by delivering and producing a true copy duly indorsed, and producing the original judgment or order duly passed and entered, unless substituted service is expressly authorized.

Where the order is for payment of money, or delivery or transfer of any property, actual demand on effecting service has been rendered unnecessary by O. XLII, 1.

The rule does not make service on the judgment debtor necessary before suing out fi. fa. or elegit under r. 17: Land Credit Co. of Ireland v. Fermoy, 5 Ch. 323.

Where an order for payment of costs was served on the solr acting in the taxation, the applicant was allowed to sue out a fi. fa. against the client at his own risk: Re A Solicitor, 33 W. R. 131.

Service of an order for discovery or inspection made against any party on his solr shall be sufficient service to found an application for attachment for disobedience to the order: O. xxxi, 22.

Service of a judgment or order requiring personal service cannot be effected by filing it with the proper officer under O. XIX, 10: Cunliffe v. Ashworth, V.-C. H., at Chambers, 1 Aug. 1878; and see O. LXVII, 5.

The order for substituted service may be obtained at Chambers. For form of summons, see D. C. F. 432, and for the practice, see Dan. 809 et seq.; Skegg v. Simpson, 2 D. & S. 454; Burlton v. Carpenter, 11 Beav. 33; Re Mourilyan, 13 Beav. 84; Griffiths v. Cowper, 2 D. F. & J. 208; 2 Gif. 230; Rider v. Kidder, 12 Ves. 202; De Mandeville v. De M., Ib. 203; Deanes v. Kitchen, 13 Eq. 461; Lechmere v. Clamp, 9 W. R. 355; 30 L. J. Ch. 651; Bland v. B., L. R. 3 P. & M. 233; Exp. Chatteris, 10 Ch. 227.

The affidavit in support should show how service is proposed to be substituted, and that every effort has been made to effect personal service.

SECTION II.—RECOVERY OF MONEY, LAND, OR OTHER PROPERTY.

1. Order under Sect. 14 of Judicature Act, 1884, to execute Deed.

UPON the application &c., And the Deft M. having refused or neglected to execute a settlement in pursuance of the order dated &c., Let a proper settlement in accordance with the order dated &c., be settled by the Judge, And Let the Deft M. within four days after service of this order and tender to him of such proper settlement for execution, execute the same; costs of application to be costs in the cause.—Mitchell v. M., Pearson, J., at Chambers, 4 May, 1885, B. 619.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 477.

2. Master nominated under sect. 14 of Judicature Act, 1884, to execute Deed.

UPON motion &c., and upon reading an order dated &c., whereby it was ordered that the Deft G. should within ten days after service of the order execute such transfers, authorities, and documents as should be necessary or proper for the purpose of vesting the property mentioned in the schedule thereto, and the right to demand delivery of, sue for, and recover and transfer the said property, or any part thereof, so far as relates to the property numbered &c., in the first part of the said schedule to B. and K., and so far as regards the remainder of the said property in the same schedule to G., and carrying out the directions contained in the judgment dated &c., such documents to be settled by the Judge in duplicate, the Master's certificate dated, &c., and setting forth a description of the transfers, authorities, and documents settled pursuant to the said order dated &c., an affidavit of &c., filed &c., whereby it appears that the said G. has not executed the said transfers, authorities, and documents, This Court doth nominate W., one of the Masters of the Supreme Court, to execute on behalf of G. the transfers, authorities, and documents, in the Master's certificate dated &c., mentioned; G. to pay Plt's costs of motion.—Gudin v. G., Pearson, J., 24 July, 1885, A. 1091; and see Re Edwards, Owen v. Edwards, 33 W. R. 578.

3. Registrar nominated to execute Deed.

WHEREAS by the order dated &c., the Deft was directed within — days after service thereof and tender of a conveyance of the therein-mentioned mortgaged premises and hereditaments to convey to the Plts, or as they might direct, the said mortgaged premises and hereditaments; And whereas it appears by an affidavit of — filed &c., that on the — day of —, Messrs. H. and H., the Plt's solrs, sent to Mr. S., the Deft's solr, a draft of the conveyance to be executed by the Deft pursuant to the said order for perusal, which the said Mr. S. has not returned, and that on the — day of — a true copy of the said order was served upon the Deft's said solr, and at the same time an engrossment of the said draft conveyance was handed to him for execution by the Deft, and that the Deft has neglected to execute the said conveyance in compliance with the said order. Now upon motion &c. by counsel for the Plts, And upon reading &c., This Court Doth, in pursuance of the 14th section of the Supreme Court of Judicature

Act, 1884, appoint C. C., the Registrar of the Supreme Court in attendance on this Court, to execute such conveyance instead of the Deft. And Let such conveyance be executed by the said C. C. accordingly.—Hoare and Co. v. Gray, Stirling, J., 9 Sep. 1887, A. 1456; 31 Sol. J. 744.

4. Official Solicitor nominated to execute Transfer of Stock standing in the name of a Married Woman.

WHEREAS by the order dated &c., made upon motion by counsel for L. C. L., W. L. and T. L., It was ordered that M. C. should within &c. after service of that order and of an order in C. v. C., 18—, &c. permitting the transfer thereby directed, execute a transfer to the applicants of so much of the £—, £— and £— New Consols standing in her name as in the said order mentioned as should be equal to the sum of New Consols to be certified by the taxing master as by the said order directed; And whereas the sum of £— is the sum of New Consols so certified by the taxing master's certificate dated &c. Now upon the application of H. H. H. B. of, &c., transferee from the said L. C. L., W. L. and T. L.; And upon hearing counsel for the applicant and for the said L. C. L., W. L. and T. L., and M. C. and the solrs for T. G. P. and E. C., the assignees of the said H. H. H. B.; And upon reading the said orders and taxing master's certificate &c., an affidavit of — of service of the said order dated &c., and of the said order in C. v. C. therein referred to upon the said M. C., and the order of the C. A. dated &c.; And the said L. C. L., W. L. and T. L., by their counsel consenting, the Judge Doth nominate Mr. H. L. P., the official solr of the Supreme Court, to execute on behalf of the said M. C. a transfer to the said T. G. P. and E. C., the assignee of the said H. H. H. B., of the said sum of £— New Consols, part of the said sum of £—, £— and £— New Consols standing in the name of the said M. C. in the books &c. of the Bank of England mentioned in the injunction granted on the — day of &c. in the action of C. v. C.; And Let the said Mr. H. L. P. execute such transfer accordingly;—Costs.—See Re Lumley, North, J., 16 Jan. 1893, B. 35; S. C., 27 Jan. 1893, (1893) W. N. 13.

In this case the married woman M. C. appeared by counsel, and no recital of disobedience to order was inserted.

5. The like, where Stock standing in the name of a Person formerly alleged to be Lunatic.

UPON the application by summons &c. of J. T. C. &c., the Petr for an order for inquiry in the matter of M. C., a person alleged to be of unsound mind, and heard before me this day in my private room in the presence of counsel for the applicant and for M. C.; And upon reading &c., an order dated &c., made in the matter of M. C., a person formerly alleged to be of unsound mind, a certificate dated &c.; Let H. L. P., the official solr to the Supreme Court, be nominated to execute on behalf of the said M. C. a transfer to C. T. A. of £— New Consols, part of the £—New Consols standing in the name of the said M. C. in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, mentioned in the injunction granted on the — day of —, in an action in the Chancery Division C. v. Knight, Chitty, J., 6 July, 1888, B. 797; 39 Ch. D. 165.

For form of writ, see D. C. F. 472.

NOTES.

RECOVERY OF MONEY OR COSTS BY WRITS OF FIERI FACIAS AND ELEGIT.

By O. XLIII, 1, 5, these writs, and also writs of venditioni exponas, fi. fa. de bonis ecclesiasticis, and all other writs in aid of a writ of fi. fa. or of elegit, shall have the same force and effect, and are to be executed in the same manner as heretofore.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 146, “the sheriff shall not, under a writ of elegit, deliver the goods of a debtor, nor shall a writ of elegit extend to goods;” and by s. 169, 13 Edw. 1, c. 18, is repealed with the usual saving.

By O. XLII, 17, every person to whom any sum of money, or any costs, shall be payable under a judgment or order, shall, as soon as the money or costs shall be payable, be entitled to sue out one or more writ or writs of fi. fa. or of elegit to enforce payment thereof. If, however, the judgment or order is for payment within a period therein mentioned, the writ shall not be issued until after the expiration of such period; and the Court or a Judge may stay execution until any time after the expiration of the prescribed period.

The writ of venditioni exponas may, where it appears upon the return of the writ of fi. fa. that the sheriff has seized but not sold any goods of the person against whom execution is issued, for want of buyers, be obtained after the writ with such return shall have been filed as of record: O. XLIII, 5; for form of writ, see R. S. C. App. H., Form 4.

If after the issue of this writ the sheriff goes out of office, he may be compelled to proceed to sale by the writ distringas nuper vice-comitem: see Chit. Archb. 867.

The writ of fieri facias de bonis ecclesiasticis, or sequestrari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis, may be obtained upon the return (after it has been filed as of record) of any writ of fi. fa. or of elegit, that the person against whom such writ is issued is a beneficed clerk, and has no goods or chattels, nor any lay fee within the jurisdiction of the sheriff: O. XLIII, 3.

To obtain this writ there must have been an actual return of nulla bona under the former writ; it will not be issued upon a mere recital that the property returned under the former writ (e.g., a life estate in real estate of small value) was insufficient to pay the balance: see Rabbitts v. Woodward, 20 L. T. 693, 778; Norton v. Pritchard, 2 Sm. & G. 455, n.

For the form of these writs, see B. S. C. App. H., Forms 4—6; D. C. F. 407—427; Chit. Forms, 575, 576.

By O. XLII, 15, in every case of execution the party entitled to execution may levy the poundage fees and expenses beyond the sum recovered.

The sheriff is entitled to poundage where the judgment debt has been recovered by compulsion of the writ of fi. fa. (i.e., actual levy and seizure), although no actual sale has taken place: Mortimore v. Cragg, 3 C. P. D. 216 (overruling Roe v. Hammond, 2 C. P. D. 300); Bissicks v. Bath Coll. Co., 2 Ex. D. 459; Smith v. Darlow, 26 Ch. D. 605, C. A.; Re Ludmore, 13 Q. B. D. 415; secus, if before actual seizure the debt, &c. has been paid under protest on mere production of the warrant: Nash v. Dickenson, L. R. 2 C. P. 252.

Where bankruptcy supervened after seizure, but before sale, the sheriff was not entitled to poundage as “costs of execution” under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 46, sub-s. 1 (see now Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 11, sub-s. 1): Re Ludmore, 13 Q. B. D. 415; and see Re Woodham, Exp. Conder, 20 Q. B. D. 40.

If the right of the execution creditor to recover the judgment debt under the fi. fa. has ceased after seizure, the sheriff is not entitled to proceed to a sale of the goods seized in order to obtain his fees and possession money: Sneary v. Abdy, 1 Ex. D. 299; but, after seizure, the bankruptcy of the debtor and injunction against further proceedings under the fi. fa. will not affect the right of the sheriff to payment by the trustee in liquidation of the necessary expenses of possession and preparing to sell: Re Craycraft, Exp. Browning, 8 Ch. D. 596, or his right to retain possession until the debt and costs, including possession money, are satisfied: Exp. Lithgow, 10 Ch. D. 169; and see further, as to the sheriff’s poundage, Chit. Archb. p. 824; Edwards on Execution, 155 et seq.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 11 (1), where any goods of a debtor are taken in execution, and before the sale thereof, or the completion of execution by the receipt or recovery of the full amount of the levy, notice is served on the sheriff that a receiving order has been made against the debtor, the sheriff is, on request, to deliver the goods and any money seized or received in part satisfaction of the execution to the official receiver, but the costs of the execution are to be a first charge on the goods or money so delivered.

By the Sheriffs Act, 1887 (50 & 51 V. c. 55), s. 20, a sheriff may demand such fees and poundage as may from time to time be fixed by the L. C., with consent of Judges and concurrence of the Treasury. By order of August 31, 1888, the fees were fixed and provision made for taxation of the amount payable by a master or district registrar, and from such taxation there is no appeal: Townend v. Sheriff of Yorkshire, 24 Q. B. D. 621. As to the non-application of the table of fees to a subject-matter such as a ship sold under a fi. fa., see Cohen v. De Las Rivas, 39 W. R. 539; 64 L. T. 661.

Where a receiving order is made against the judgment debtor, and the goods previously seized under a fi. fa. are delivered to the official receiver or trustee in bankruptcy under sect. 11, sub-sect. 1, of the Act of 1890 (In re Thomas, Exp. Sheriff of Middlesex, (1899) 1 Q. B. 460, C. A.), the sheriff’s officer is not entitled to poundage.

A solr who delivers a writ to the sheriff for execution does not thereby contract to pay the fees; secus, if he requests that a particular bailiff may be employed: Royle v. Busby, 6 Q. B. D. 171; Maybery v. Mansfield, 9 Q. B. 754. The sheriff should, in executing the writ, have reasonable regard to the interests and instructions of the execution creditor: Re Crook, Exp. Sheriff of Southampton, 63 L. J. Q. B. 756; 71 L. T. 236; 42 W. R. 650; but it is not within the implied authority of a solr to tell the sheriff how to perform his duty; e.g., by seizing particular goods: Smith v. Veal, 9 Q. B. D. 340, C. A.

The writ must be indorsed with a direction to the sheriff to levy the money really due and payable and sought to be recovered, and also to levy interest, if sought for, at 4*l.* p. c. per ann. from judgment, unless there be an agreement to pay more: r. 16. For Form of Writ, see App. H., Form 1.

As to the liability of the sheriff or his officer for penalties under sect. 29, see Lee v. Dangar, (1892) 1 Q. B. 231; (1892) 2 Q. B. 337, C. A.; Bagge v. Whitehead, Ib. 355; Shoppée v. Nathan, (1892) 1 Q. B. 245; Woolford's Trustee v. Levy, (1892) 1 Q. B. 772, C. A.

Service of the judgment or order directing payment of money or costs is not necessary as a preliminary to issuing these writs: Land Credit Co. of Ireland v. Fermoy, 5 Ch. 323; Streeten v. Whitmore, 5 Beav. 228; unless the judgment or order expressly limits a time after service within which payment is to be made.

The order must direct payment to some person, and it is not enough to direct payment to his account at a banker's: Re Leeds Banking Co., 1 Ch. 150.

It is a question of fact whether a seizure of particular goods was directed by the execution creditor, so as to make him liable if the seizure is wrongful: Smith v. Veal, sup.; but he will be held liable for a misleading indorsement on the writ made by his solr: Morris v. Salberg, 22 Q. B. D. 614, C. A.

As to the protection of the rolling stock and plant of a railway company from execution, see the Railway Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 V. c. 127), s. 3, and the Railway Rolling Stock Protection Act, 1872 (35 & 36 V. c. 50), s. 3; the protection extends to a dock co. having power to make a railway: G. N. Ry. Co. v. Tahourdin, 13 Q. B. D. 320, C. A.; In re East and West India Dock Co., 38 Ch. D. 576, C. A.; and continues though the railway is closed for traffic: Midland Waggon Co. v. Potteries Ry. Co., 6 Q. B. D. 36. As to the meaning of the expression "work" in the Act of 1872, see Easton Estate and Mining Co. v. Western Waggon and Property Co., 54 L. T. 735; and that the substituted right to the appointment of a receiver, which the Act of 1867 confers on a judgment creditor, is independent of the fact whether the co. has rolling stock, see Re Manchester and Milford Ry. Co., Exp. Cambrian Ry. Co., 14 Ch. D. 645, C. A.; and as to the appointment of a receiver under the Acts, v. inf. Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS."

Neither the C. L. P. Act, 1860, s. 13, nor O. LVII, 12 (which is substituted for it), empowering the Court to order the sale of goods seized, and application of the proceeds, enables the sheriff to seize the equitable interests of the debtor in goods assigned by way of security: Scarlett v. Hanson, 12 Q. B. D. 213, C. A.; nor could the sheriff sell a partner's interest in goodwill or book debts, or anything else which he cannot seize: Helmors v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 436, C. A.; but a pawnbroker's interest in redeemable pledges may be taken in execution: Re Rollason, R. v. R., 34 Ch. D. 495.

And where an exor carries on the testator's business in his own name, a trade creditor of the exor cannot take in execution assets of the testator employed in the business; though lapse of time and enjoyment of the assets in a manner inconsistent with the will, coupled with consent of beneficiaries, might raise an inference that the assets had been given to the exor: Re Morgan, Pillgrem v. P., 18 Ch. D. 93, C. A.; and as to the right of trustee in bankruptcy to succeed to the right of indemnity of the exor or trustee in such case against the assets, see Jennings v. Mather, (1901) 1 K. B. 108.

EFFECT OF BANKRUPTCY—SALE BY SHERIFF, ETC.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 9, on the making of a receiving order, an official receiver is constituted receiver of the debtor's property, "and thereafter, except as directed by this Act, no creditor to whom the debtor is indebted in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy shall have any remedy against the property or person of the debtor in respect of the debt, or shall commence any action or other legal proceedings unless with the leave of the Court" (of bankruptcy), "and on such terms as the Court may impose;" but the section is not to affect the power of a secured creditor to realize or deal with his security.

The section is not made applicable to the admon of insolvent estates by sect. 10 of the Jud. Act, 1875: Pratt v. Inman, 43 Ch. D. 175.

The word "remedy" extends to process of commitment to enforce payment of a debt: Re Ryley, Exp. Official Receiver, 15 Q. B. D. 329; but not to process of contempt, so that there is jurisdiction to issue an attachment against an undischarged bankrupt solr, who is a defaulting trustee, for disobedience to an order for payment in his character of officer of the Court: Re Smith, Hands v. Andrews, (1893) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.; dissenting from Cobham v. Dalton, 10 Ch. 655, 657; Re Edye, 63 L. T. 762; 39 W. R. 198; following In re Wray, 36 Ch. D. 138, 143, and disapproving Re Simes, S. v. Newbery, W. N. (90) 114; 38 W. R. 570; 62 L. T. 721; and see In re Mackintosh, Exp. M., 13 Q. B. D. 235.

The receiving order is "made" on the day when it is pronounced. A debtor arrested under an attachment after the order was pronounced, but before it was drawn up, was ordered to be discharged, although he had by his counsel submitted to the order for attachment: Re Manning, 30 Ch. D. 480, C. A.

By sect. 10 (2), "the Court may at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition stay any action, execution, or other legal process against the property or person of the debtor, and any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor, may, on proof that a bankruptcy petition has been presented by or against the debtor, either stay the proceedings, or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just."

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 71), s. 1, a debtor commits an act of bankruptcy if execution against him has been levied by seizure of his goods, and the goods have been either sold or held by the sheriff for twenty-one days; but where an interpleader summons has been taken out the time between the date of taking out such summons, and that at which the sheriff is ordered to withdraw, or any interpleader issue is finally disposed of, is not to be counted in the twenty-one days.

The act of bankruptcy created by this section consists of, first, the seizure by the sheriff, and secondly, his remaining in possession for twenty-one days, and his subsequent continuance in possession under the same seizure does not constitute a further or continuing act of bankruptcy; and after the lapse of three months, the act of bankruptcy being no longer available, the sheriff is entitled to possession money for the full period during which he has been in possession: In re Beeston, (1899) 1 Q. B. 626, C. A.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 45, a creditor who has issued execution against goods or lands of a debtor, or has attached any debt due to him, cannot retain the benefit against the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy, unless execution or attachment is completed before the receiving order, and before notice of presentation of a bankruptcy petition, or of the commission of an available act of bankruptcy; and for the purposes of the Act an execution against goods is completed by seizure and sale, an attachment of a debt by receipt of the debt, and an execution against land by seizure, or, in the case of an equitable interest, by the appointment of a receiver.

The delivery of the land in execution under an elegit is "seizure," so that a receiving order made subsequently, though before the return of the writ, does not oust the right of the judgment creditor: Re Hobson, 33 Ch. D. 493.

Under the above enactments the act of bankruptcy committed by reason of the sheriff's holding for twenty-one days makes the execution itself void as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor: Trustee of John Burns-Burns v. Brown, (1895) 1 Q. B. 324, C. A., approving Figg v. Moore, (1894) 2 Q. B. 690, and distinguishing Exp. Villars, L. R. 9 Ch. 432.

An order for the admon of the estate of a deceased debtor under sect. 125 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, is not equivalent to a receiving order for the purposes of the section: Hasluck v. Clark, (1899) 1 Q. B. 699, C. A.

Where, after a charging order against a partner under the Partnership Act, 1890, s. 23, the partners by direction of the Court pay into Court a sum of money in redemption or purchase of the interest charged, the transaction is not a "completed execution" within the section: Wild v. Southwood, (1897) 1 Q. B. 317; but (semble) if the money had been paid out to the execution creditor, or the partners had paid him the money direct, he would have had a good title: S. C.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 11 (2) (amending sect. 46, sub-sect. 2, of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883), where, under an execution in respect of a judgment for a sum exceeding 20*l.*, the goods of a debtor are sold, or money is paid in order to avoid sale, the sheriff is to deduct his costs of the execution from the proceeds of sale, or the money paid, and retain the balance for fourteen days; and if within that time notice is served on him of a bankruptcy petition having been presented against or by the debtor, and a receiving order is made thereon, or on any other petition of which the sheriff has notice, he is to pay the balance retained to the official receiver or trustee in bankruptcy, who is to be entitled to retain the same as against the execution creditor.

The notice must be served on the sheriff or his recognized agent, not on an ordinary bailiff or man in possession: Exp. Warren, Re Holland, 15 Q. B. D. 48, C. A. The effect of it is to deprive the creditor of the fruits of the execution, and transfer them to the trustee in bankruptcy for the benefit of the creditors at large; and where the sheriff is in possession under several writs, he must, on receiving the notice, apply the proceeds of sale in satisfaction of those under 20*l.* according to their priorities: Re Pearce, Exp. Crosthwaite, 14 Q. B. D. 266; and so, where the debtor has paid a sum on account and the execution has not been completed as to the balance, the execution creditor cannot retain the amount paid: In re Ford, Exp. Official Receiver, (1900) 1 Q. B. 264.

The sheriff (notwithstanding that interpleader proceedings are pending) is entitled to costs of execution up to, but not after, the receipt of the official receiver's notice, as any further costs of possession are no longer costs of execution: Re Harrison, Exp. Sheriff of Essex, (1893) 2 Q. B. 111.

The effect of the sub-section is to place a temporary stop on the money in the hands of the sheriff, and the right of the execution creditor to the money is not contingent but vested, liable to be divested in the event of bankruptcy supervening within the fourteen days: Re Greer, Napper v. Fanshawe, (1895) 2 Ch. 217.

The sub-section does not apply where execution is levied by seizure and sale against the goods of a firm for a partnership debt, and within fourteen days from the sale a receiving order is made against one of the partners: Dibb v. Brooke, (1894) 2 Q. B. 338; and the provision as to money paid under an execution to avoid sale does not apply to the case of money paid to prevent seizure: Bower v. Hett, (1895) 2 Q. B. 51; (1895) 2 Q. B. 337, C. A.

If a sale takes place, sect. 8 of the Small Debts Act, 1845, applies, and the debtor is entitled to his tools of trade to the value of 5*l.* only, and not 20*l.* as provided by sect. 44 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883: In re Dawson, Exp. D., (1899) 2 Q. B. 54.

The right of the landlord is not affected by sect. 11 (2) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890. The expression "the goods of a debtor" does not include the goods by the statute of Anne (8 Ann. c. 14 or 18), s. 1, impounded until the landlord is paid; and the sheriff is justified in retaining and paying the landlord one year's rent though notice of the landlord's claim was not received until after the sale: In re Mackenzie, Exp. Sheriff of Hertfordshire, (1899) 2 Q. B. 566, C. A.

Sect. 10 of the Jud. Act, 1875, does not extend these provisions to the winding up of a co.: Re Richards & Co., 11 Ch. D. 676.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 145, where the sheriff sells under an execution for a sum exceeding 20*l.* (including legal incidental expenses), the sale is to be by public auction, publicly advertised, and not by bill of sale or private contract, unless the Court otherwise orders.

A sale by private contract might be ordered under this section upon an ex parte application by the execution creditor: Hunt v. Frensham, 12 Q. B. D. 162.

Now, by the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 12, where the sheriff has notice of other executions, the Court is not to consider an application for leave to sell privately until notice has been given to the execution creditors who may appear and be heard on the application. The procedure upon such application (which is to be made by summons in Chambers) is regulated by O. XLIII, 8—15.

The sheriff cannot make a valid contract for sale until he has actually seized the goods: Exp. Hall, Re Townsend, 14 Ch. D. 132, C. A.

Where the effects of a partnership are seized, and a partner buys his share back out of partnership moneys, there is no dissolution of the partnership; quære whether there would be if he bought with his own money: Helmores v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 436, C. A.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 46 (3), a person who purchases the goods in good faith under a sale by the sheriff shall, in all cases, acquire a good title to them against the trustee in bankruptcy.

As to the duty of a sheriff's officer who receives notice by telegram of an injunction granted by the Court of Bankruptcy to restrain a sale, see Exp. Langley, Re Bishop, 13 Ch. D. 110, C. A.

Rejection of proof for debt by judgment creditor in the debtor's bankruptcy remains valid though the bankruptcy is annulled: Brandon v. McHenry, (1891) 1 Q. B. 538, C. A.

RECOVERY OF LAND BY WRIT OF POSSESSION.

By O. XLVII, 1, a judgment or order that a party recover possession of any land may be enforced by writ of possession in manner heretofore in use in actions of ejectment in the Superior Courts of Common Law.

By r. 2, where by any judgment or order any person therein named is directed to deliver possession of any lands to some other person, the person prosecuting such judgment or order may without order sue out a writ of possession on filing an affidavit of due service of the judgment or order, and that it has not been obeyed.

The writ of possession was by this rule introduced in substitution for the former writ of assistance: Hall v. H., 47 L. J. Ch. 680; following Re Holden, M. R., 7 May, 1878. The writ of assistance, however (which is more extensive in terms than the writ of possession, and which was not issued without an order for that purpose: Cons. Ord. 29, r. 5, and see O. LXXII, 2), may still be required, and has been issued for the purpose of recovering possession of and preserving chattels which had been ordered to be delivered to a receiver: Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165; sup. Form 6, p. 431.

An order for the issue of the writ of possession is not now necessary in any case; but where there is a judgment for recovery of possession under O. XLVII, 1 (which affects parties only), the writ will be sealed, according to the practice at law, on production of the judgment only. And in cases under r. 2 (which includes persons as well as parties), the writ will be sealed on production of the affidavit mentioned in that rule.

For the form of judgment for the possession of land upon Deft's default, see p. 170, Forms 13 and 14; and R. S. C. App. F., Form 3. And for the form of the writ, see Ib., App. H., Form 7a.

A judgment for foreclosure absolute is not a judgment for recovery of possession of land enforceable by writ of possession: Wood v. Wheeler, 22 Ch. D. 281; secus, if it contain an order for delivery of possession; and see O. XVIII, 2. An order for delivery of possession by the mortgagor should contain a description of the property, so that the same may be indicated in the writ of possession: Thynne v. Sarl, (1891) 1 Ch. 79.

Where a lessee recovered judgment for possession against sub-lessee, and the lessee's estate expired after action and before trial, writ of possession was allowed to issue, it not being shown that the issuing of it would be futile or unjust: Knight v. Clarke, 15 Q. B. D. 294, C. A.; Gibbons v. Buckland, 1 H. & C. 736.

Under the old practice, where the Deft had refused to allow the sequestrators to enter into possession, an order was granted for an injunction enjoining the Deft to cause possession of a house, and premises belonging to it, to be delivered to them: see Bird v. Littlehales, L. C., 18 Feb. 1743, A. 177; S. C., 3 Sw. 300, n. And for the further order for the writ of assistance to issue, see S. C., 19 March, 1743, A. 235.

And orders for the writ of assistance to put the sequestrators into possession were granted in Barkley v. B., 7 June, 1849, A. 1720; Pelham v. Duchess of Newcastle, 3 Sw. 289, n.

The same remedy might be obtained by a receiver: Cazet de la Borde v. Othon, 23 W. R. 110; Sharp v. Carter, 3 P. Wms. 379, n.; A. G. v. De Tastet, V.-C. K., 31 Jan. 1855; or by a purchaser who was kept out of possession of property sold by the Court: see Toynbee v. Ducknell, V.-C. W., 19 July, 1856, B. 1437; Wilson v. Angus, V.-C. S., 28 June, 1858, B. 1089; and his costs of proceedings for the purpose of obtaining possession were payable out of the purchase-money in Court: Thomas v. Buxton, 8 Eq. 120; et v. sup. Chap. XIX., "SALES BY THE COURT."

Where, after a writ of possession executed, the Deft forcibly re-took possession, the Court made an order renewing the writ: Stackpoole v. Walsh, 7 L. R. Ir. 444.

As to form of order, in action where judgment was given for recovery of land against the Deft who was not in possession, and possession was given to the Plt under a writ of possession, setting aside the judgment on application of the person in possession who did not derive title from the Deft, see Minet v. Johnson, 63 L. T. 507.

Issue of execution for possession is not necessarily a waiver of right to costs: Harrold v. Daly, 24 L. R. Ir. 412.

And as to the writ of possession, see Edw. Exton. 93 et seq.; and for forms, see D. C. F. 468—471.

ENFORCING CONVEYANCE OF LAND.

A direction in a judgment or order for the execution of a deed or conveyance may be enforced, as a judgment to do any act, by writ of attachment or by committal: see O. XLII, 7.

The provisions of 11 Geo. IV. & 1 Will. IV. c. 36, s. 15, for enforcing a conveyance by compulsory process, were superseded by the Trustee Acts, 1850 and 1852 (now repealed and replaced by the Trustee Act, 1893), enabling the Court to vest lands and other property in the cases therein mentioned; and by the Jud. Act, 1884 (47 & 48 V. c. 61), s. 14, which provides that where any person neglects or refuses to comply with a judgment or order directing him to execute any conveyance, contract, or other document, or to indorse any negotiable instrument, the Court may, on such terms and conditions (if any) as may be just, order that such conveyance, &c. be executed, or such negotiable instrument indorsed by such person as the Court may nominate for that purpose; and in such case the conveyance, &c. so executed or indorsed shall operate and be for all purposes available as if it had been executed or indorsed by the person originally directed to execute or indorse it. And for instance of the appointment under this section of the chief clerk (Master) to execute, see Re Edwards, Owen v. Edwards, 33 W. R. 578; and see Form 2, sup. 429.

The jurisdiction might be exercised by the P. D.: see Howarth v. H., 11 P. D. 95, where an order for execution by the registrar was made on a simple motion for attachment for non-compliance, the person in default having by himself or his solr received notice that the application to the Court would be made in the alternative.

In Re Cathcart, (1893) 1 Ch. 466, Form 5, sup. p. 430, the official solr was directed to transfer consols standing in the name of a lunatic, and see Re Lumley, W. N. (93) 13, Form 4, sup. p. 430; Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, 39 Sol. J. 639, as to directing Bank of England to transfer.

RECOVERY OF PROPERTY, OTHER THAN LAND OR MONEY, BY WRIT OF DELIVERY.

By O. XLVIII, 2, a writ of delivery of property other than land or money (which is mentioned in O. XLII, 6, as one of the modes in which a judgment for that purpose may be enforced) may be issued and enforced in the manner heretofore in use in actions of detinue in the Superior Courts of Common Law.

The writ (forms of which are given in R. S. C. App. H., Nos. 10, 11, and D. C. F. 474) is either (1) for the return of the chattels, and a distress of all the lands and chattels of the Deft until they are returned, without giving him the option of retaining them, and paying their assessed value, or (2) for the return of the chattels, or if they cannot be found, the levying of their assessed value. In the latter case, the writ issues without order; in the former, an order is required. See further as to the writ, Edw. Exton. 195 et seq.

Where it was necessary to give a receiver actual delivery of specific chattels, a writ of assistance was ordered to issue: Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165.

SECTION III.—ATTACHMENT OR COMMITTAL.

1. Order for Attachment for Default other than for non-payment of Money—O. XLII, 6, 7; O. XLIV, 2.

3. Order for Attachment for Default in not transferring Stock into Court.

For an order for attachment against the Defts for not leaving at the Chambers of the Judge an abstract of their title to the lands in question, pursuant to an order, see Peacock v. Morgan, M. R. 16 March, 1877, B. 320.

For an order for attachment against solrs for non-compliance with an order to procure certain deeds to be registered and stamped at their own expense, and to rectify any omissions, and for delivery of the deeds duly rectified and stamped to their clients, see Re Scard, M. R., 21 Aug. 1878, B. 1734.

4. The like—for not obeying an Order to make Affidavit as to Documents—O. xxxi, 21.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c., it was ordered that [Recite order to make affidavit as to documents]; Now upon motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for the Plt, who alleged that the Deft B. has been guilty of a contempt of this Court in not complying with the said order, as by an affidavit of &c., filed &c., appears, and [upon hearing counsel for the said Deft], and upon reading the said order and affidavit [or, if the Deft does not appear, and an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the said Deft]; This Court doth order that the Plt be at liberty to issue a writ of attachment against the said Deft B., for his contempt in not complying with the said order, dated &c.

For order for attachment for default in leaving at Chambers accounts pursuant to a four-day order, see Whitaker v. Thurston, M. R. 21 July, 1876, B. 1347; and see Caulcutt v. C., 30 March, 1876, A. 636.

It has been held that the provision in O. xxxi, 21, as to attachment does not apply to orders for delivery of the names of a firm under O. xvi, 14 (see now O. XLVIII, 1, June, 1891); or for an account claimed, to be verified by affidavit (O. xv, 1): Pike v. Keene, 24 W. R. 322, 35 L. T. 341; but in the Ch. D. it is the usual practice to direct an attachment to be issued in default of bringing in accounts, or making a sufficient affidavit of documents. For forms, see D. C. F. 595, 596.

5. The like for non-payment of Money by a Trustee under the Debtors Act (32 & 33 V. c. 62), s. 4.

WHEREAS by the judgment [or order], dated &c., It was ordered that (the Deft) B. should, within — days after service thereof, pay to (the Plt) A. the sum of £— as therein mentioned [or lodge in Court to the credit of &c., as directed by the schedule thereto, the sum of £— by the Master's certificate, dated &c., certified to be due from him on the account of &c. by the said judgment [or order] directed]; Now upon motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for the (Plt) A., and upon reading the said judgment [or order], an affidavit &c., filed &c., of service of the said judgment [or order] upon the (Deft) B., an affidavit of the (Plt) A., filed &c., of non-payment of the said sum of £— [or if so, the paymaster's certificate, whereby it appears that the (Deft) B. has made default in payment of the said sum of £— into Court pursuant to the said judgment [or order], an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the (Deft) B.]; And it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that the (Deft) B. has made default in payment of the said sum of £— as directed by the said judgment [or order], and that such default is a default made by a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity, and ordered to pay a sum in his possession, or under his control, within the meaning of the Debtors Act, 1869, This Court doth order that the (Plt) A. be at liberty to issue a writ or writs of attachment against the (Deft) B. for his contempt in not having paid the said sum of £— to the (Plt) A. [or into Court] as aforesaid, pursuant to the said judgment [or order]. [If so, And it is ordered that the (Deft) B. do pay to the (Plt) A. his costs of this application and of the said attachment, such costs to be taxed &c.]—See Young v. Dallimore, V.-C. S., 28 Feb. 1870, B. 549; Moorhouse v. M., M. R. 12 July, 1878, B. 1394; European Assurance Co. v. Lee, M. R. 13 Dec. 1878, A. 2217.

For order for attachment to issue against a solr for non-payment of a sum certified to be due from him on the taxation of his bill of fees and disbursements, see Re Peters, Form 2, Chap. XVII., Sect. XI., p. 315, "Costs"; and see Re Rush, 9 Eq. 147.

NOTES.

WRIT OF ATTACHMENT—COMMITTAL.

By O. XLII, 7, "a judgment requiring any person to do any act other than the payment of money, or to abstain from doing anything, may be enforced by writ of attachment or by committal."

By O. XLIV, 1, a writ of attachment is to have the same effect as a writ of attachment issued out of the Ch. D. theretofore had; and by r. 2, no such writ is to be issued without the leave of the Court or a Judge, to be applied for on notice to the party against whom the attachment is to be issued.

An important change has been introduced by r. 2, the former practice in Chancery (though not at Common Law) having been that an attachment might be obtained without further order, or notice to the party, on proof of service and non-compliance: see Abud v. Riches, 2 Ch. D. 528.

Notice is necessary upon an application for attachment against a sheriff for not returning a writ of fi. fa.: Jupp v. Cooper, 5 C. P. D. 26; or against persons removing goods out of the sheriff's custody: Eynde v. Gould, 9 Q. B. D. 335.

An order for attachment, if now obtained without notice to the party, will be discharged: Dallas v. Glyn, 3 Ch. D. 190; but not an order for committal after leave has been obtained to issue a writ of attachment: Buest v. Bridge, 29 W. R. 117; but see Callow v. Bridge, 56 L. J. Ch. 690.

A writ of attachment may be ordered to issue on a notice of motion to commit for contempt: Piper v. P., W. N. (76) 202.

An application for leave to issue the writ may be properly made in Chambers and dealt with by the Master, unless it becomes necessary to give the leave, in which case it will be adjourned to the Judge: Davis v. Galmoye, 39 Ch. D. 322; explaining S. C., 40 Ch. D. 355.

An order for payment of money, whether interlocutory or final, can only be enforced by attachment in cases within the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4 (3) and (4): Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, 25 W. R. 743; and this applies equally where the order is for payment into Court: see Hutchinson v. Hartmont, W. N. (77) 29.

An order directing attachment or sequestration on a future uncertain event, e.g., on default of payment within a specified time, is wrong in form: Re Lumley, Ex parte Cathcart, (1894) 2 Ch. 271, C. A.

Attachment will go against a married woman administratrix disobeying an order to pay into Court a sum of money shown by her account of the intestate's personal estate to be in her possession; but semble, if the object of the order had been to compel her to make good a devastavit, the order should have been made in the form prescribed in Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. 120; attachment would not go: In re Turnbull, Turnbull v. Nicholas, (1900) 1 Ch. 180.

As to committal for breach of injunction or undertaking, v. inf., pp. 746, 747.

For forms in reference to writ of attachment, see D. C. F. 433 et seq.

DEBTORS ACT.

Under the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 V. c. 62), s. 4, arrest and imprisonment for making default in payment of money have been abolished, except in the following cases inter alia:—(3) Default by a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity, and ordered to pay by a Court of Equity any sum "in his possession or under his control." (4) Default by a solr in payment of costs, when ordered to pay costs for misconduct as such, or in payment of a sum of money when ordered to pay the same in his character of an officer of the Court; and in these instances (by this section) the imprisonment is limited to one year.

A trustee who, by carelessness or wilful default, without moral delinquency, has lost trust moneys in his possession or under his control, is a defaulting trustee within the Debtors Act, s. 4 (3): Middleton v. Chichester, 6 Ch. 152; secus, if he has merely omitted to get in trust moneys: Ferguson v. F., 10 Ch. 661; or it is not shown that he ever had them in his actual possession: Exp. Cuddeford, 45 L. J. Bkcy. 127; 34 L. T. 666; 24 W. R. 931; Re Fewster, (1901) 1 Ch. 447.

A trustee is not fraudulent and dishonest merely because he neglects his trust and thereby wrongs those whom it is his duty to protect: Re Smith, Hands v. Andrews, (1893) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.

And a writ of attachment cannot be issued where the order directs payment of a sum, part of which was not in the possession or control of the trustee, e.g., a sum consisting of a principal debt due from an executor with interest thereon, as the interest cannot be said to have been in his possession or control: Re Hickey, H. v. Colmer, 55 L. T. 588; 35 W. R. 53; and v. sup., p. 200, Chap. XVI., Form 3; or the existing market value of bonds improperly sold by trustees, as the difference between such value and the amount produced by the sale never came to their hands: Re Walker's Estate, W. v. W., 38 W. R. 766; 60 L. J. Ch. 25; 63 L. T. 237; and see Cronin v. Twinberrow, W. N. (87) 201.

A trustee is liable under sect. 4 (3), though personally innocent, where the trust money has been misapplied and lost from being placed in the sole name of his co-trustee: Evans v. Bear, 10 Ch. 76.

The promoter of a co. is not "a trustee or person acting in a fiduciary capacity" within sect. 4 (3); see Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, 25 W. R.

743; nor is a person ordered to repay money received by way of fraudulent preference: Exp. Hooson, 8 Ch. 231; nor one co-partner who receives assets of the partnership on account of himself and his co-partners: Piddocke v. Burt, (1894) 1 Ch. 343; and as to a trustee receiving commission on policies effected as security for trust money, see Re Berwick, B. v. Lane, 81 L. T. 797, C. A.

Secus, an agent; as a son managing a farm for his father: Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338; or a London agent indebted on account of his agency: Litchfield v. Jones, 36 Ch. D. 530; and see Reid v. Burrows, (1892) 2 Ch. 413, 415; or an auctioneer as to the proceeds of property sold by him: Crowther v. Elgood, 34 Ch. D. 691, C. A.; or a debtor who has admitted that a sum is due from him, and submitted to an order directing that he should hold it upon certain trusts: Preston v. Etherington, 37 Ch. D. 104, C. A.; or an administratrix ordered to pay assets received by her into Court in a subsequent action propounding a will, under which she was not an executrix: Tinnuchi v. Smart, 10 P. D. 184.

But the remedy provided by the section is only available by c. q. t., not by a mere creditor: Re Firmin, London Banking Co. v. F., 57 L. T. 45.

Under sect. 4 (4), a solr is liable to attachment for non-payment of a balance found due from him on taxing his bill of costs: Re Rush, 9 Eq. 147; Re White, 19 W. R. 39; 23 L. T. 387; and also of the taxed costs of the bill which he has subsequently been ordered to pay: In re a Solicitor, (1895) 2 Ch. 66; or of money of his client which he has improperly dealt with: In re Dudley, 12 Q. B. D. 44, C. A.

And as disobedience by a solr to an order made on him as such is in the nature of an offence, he cannot claim privilege from arrest under an attachment for such disobedience: Re Freston, 11 Q. B. D. 545, C. A.

But this liability to attachment is for non-payment of money or costs as an officer of the Court, not as an unsuccessful litigant: Re Hope, 7 Ch. 523 (overruling Re Barfield and Rush, 19 W. R. 466; 24 L. T. 248).

The liability remains though the solr be struck off the roll after the order against him is made, or (semble) previously: Re Strong, 32 Ch. D. 342, C. A.

Although in cases of contempt generally an order to commit for non-compliance with an order was in the discretion of the Court (see Ashworth v. Outram (2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.), in cases coming within sect. 4 (3) or (4) attachment was a matter of right, and the Court had no discretion to refuse the order for attachment: see Evans v. Bear, 10 Ch. 76; nor to discharge a defaulting trustee where he had not cleared his contempt: Ransom v. Boyd, W. N. (77) 236.

At common law, however, it was held that to warrant an attachment for non-payment of money under the exceptions mentioned in sect. 4, it must be shown that the party had the means of paying, as well as that he had refused or neglected to do so: Re Ball, L. R. 8 C. P. 104; and see Re Robinson, 10 B. & S. 75.

And now by the Debtors Act, 1878 (41 & 42 V. c. 54), in any case coming within the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4 (3) and (4), the Court or Judge making the order for payment, or having jurisdiction in the action or proceeding in which the order for payment is made, may inquire into the case, and (subject to the provisos contained in sect. 4) may grant or refuse, either absolutely or upon terms, any application for a writ of attachment, or other process, or order for arrest and imprisonment, and any application to stay the operation of any such writ, or process, or order, or for discharge from arrest, or imprisonment, thereunder.

Under the discretion given by this Act, the Court has declined to grant a writ of attachment against a defaulting trustee where it appeared that he had no present means, and that there was no prospect of future payment: Barrett v. Hammond, 10 Ch. D. 285; Street v. Hope, ib. 286 (n.); and that he had derived no personal benefit from the breach of trust: Earl of Aylesford v. Earl Poulett, (1892) 2 Ch. 60; or where the misapplication of money had been erroneous, but not fraudulent: Holroyde v. Garnett, 20 Ch. D. 532; but, per M. R., mere inability to pay is not, alone, sufficient ground for refusing an attachment or granting a discharge under the Acts: Simpson v. Bell, 1 May, 1879, ex rel.; which are intended for the punishment of a fraudulent or dishonest debtor, and are in that sense vindictive: Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338; Re Knowles, Doodson v. Turner, 52 L. J. Ch. 685; 48 L. T. 760; and see Earl of Aylesford v. Earl Poulett, sup.

Where the discretion has been exercised on an erroneous view of the law, the Court of Appeal will review it: Re Smith, Hands v. Andrews, (1893) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.

The Debtors Act, 1869, does not affect the power of imprisonment for contempt of Court in not complying with an order to do any act, even though payment of money is directed as an alternative: Harvey v. Hall, 11 Eq. 31; but the Court has no power to commit to prison for non-payment of the costs of a motion to commit on which no other order is made: Micklethwaite v. Fletcher, 27 W. R. 793; nor, when the contempt has been cleared, to detain the contemnor in prison for non-payment of the costs of his contempt: Jackson v. Mawby, 1 Ch. D. 87.

The Debtors Act does not apply to Crown debts, including an estreated recognizance for payment of the respondent's costs of an appeal to the House of Lords if unsuccessful; and the appellant making default was not entitled to be discharged from custody: Re Smith, 2 Ex. D. 47.

A Plt who has levied execution, in an action against a trustee of a will for a sum of money admitted to have been received by such trustee, cannot, by obtaining an order absolute for payment within a limited time, avail himself of the remedy given by the Debtors Act, s. 4 (3): Drewitt v. Edwards, 26 W. R. 60, 122, C. A.; 37 L. T. 622.

An order is no longer necessary for the discharge of a person who has been imprisoned under s. 4 (3) or (4), as the practice is to indorse on the writ a note that the writ does not authorize an imprisonment for any longer period than one year: and see Re Edwards, Brooke v. E., 21 Ch. D. 236.

SERVICE—EVIDENCE.

Service of the order for payment, &c., on which the attachment is sought to be grounded, must, unless substituted service has been authorized, be personal, v. sup., p. 428; except in cases under O. XXXI, 22, by which service on the solr of an order for discovery or inspection (failure to comply with which renders a party liable to attachment: r. 21) shall be sufficient service to found an application for attachment for disobedience to the order. But the party, against whom the application is made, may show that he has had no notice or knowledge of the order.

Personal service is not waived by the party, whose solr is served, taking out a summons for further time: Hampden v. Wallis, 26 Ch. D. 746, C. A.; nor by correspondence by the party, a solr, promising performance of the required act, the delivery of a bill of costs: Re Cunningham, W. N. (86) 176; 55 L. T. 766.

By the appearance of counsel for the contemnor, personal service of a rule nisi for his attachment was held to be waived: Exp. Alcock, 1 C. P. D. 68.

A true copy of the order, for non-compliance with which the writ of attachment has issued, must have been served; otherwise the writ may be set aside and the party discharged out of custody: Re Holt, 11 Ch. D. 168.

Personal service of the notice of motion or other application for attachment under O. XLIV, 2, is not indispensable: Browning v. Sabin, 5 Ch. D. 511; Richards v. Kitchen, 25 W. R. 602; 36 L. T. 730; when there is no difficulty in effecting personal service the Court insists upon it, and will not make an order for substituted service unless every endeavour has been made to effect personal service: Mander v. Falcke, (1891) 3 Ch. 488; but when there was difficulty, and the original order had been personally served, the Court acted on proof of service in ordinary form on the party's solr: Howarth v. H., 11 P. D. 95, C. A.; Mann v. Perry, 50 L. J. Ch. 251; 44 L. T. 248; Re Luxmore, Gordon v. Woods, W. N. (88) 63; and under O. XXXI, 21, the writ issued though both the order for discovery and the notice of motion were served only on the solr: Joy v. Hadley, 22 Ch. D. 571; Re Mulcaster, Dalston v. Nanson, 47 L. J. Ch. 609; 26 W. R. 435. Service at the residence of the party has been held sufficient: Re A Solicitor, 14 Ch. D. 152; 49 L. J. Ch. 295.

And where the party has not appeared, the notice may be served by filing with the proper officer pursuant to O. LXVII, 4; Re Morris, M. v. Fowler, 44

Ch. D. 151; Evans v. Noton, (1893) 1 Ch. 252, C. A.; but the notice of motion should be personally served wherever it is practicable to do so, and where the Plt evidently knew where to find the Deft, the Court declined to allow an attachment to issue unless the notice of motion was served on the Deft: In re Bassett, B. v. B., (1894) 3 Ch. 179.

Appearance of the party on the motion to commit is not a waiver by him of any objection for want of personal service or irregularity: Mander v. Falcke, (1891) 3 Ch. 488.

By giving time and accepting part payment a client does not waive his right to enforce a writ of attachment against his solr: Re Fereday, (1895) 2 Ch. 437.

Obedience to an order made against a corporation will not be enforced under O. XLII, 31, by the attachment of a director of the corporation, unless the order has been served personally upon the director: McKeown v. Joint Stock Institute, Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 671.

An application for attachment against a solr for breach of undertaking to enter appearance should be entitled in the matter of the solr, under the general jurisdiction: Re Kerly, Son & Verden, (1901) 1 Ch. 467, C. A.

By O. LII, 4, every notice of motion for attachment is to state in general terms the grounds of the application; and where any such motion is founded on evidence by affidavit, a copy of any affidavit is to be served with the notice of motion.

The rule applies to a motion to commit for disobedience to an order for discovery: Litchfield v. Jones, 25 Ch. D. 64.

The copy affidavits and notice of motion should be served together, and if not personally, at the address for service; and service of the affidavits separately on the country solr, though two clear days before the hearing, is irregular: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; but see contra, Hampden v. Wallis, 26 Ch. D. 746, C. A.

Marking the notice of motion with the name of the wrong Judge is not a fatal irregularity; secus, omission to serve the affidavits with the original notice of motion, or to notify the grounds of the application: Taylor v. Roe (1). W. N. (93) 14.

The order must be brought in its exact form to the attention of the contemnor contemporaneously with, though not necessarily attached to, the notice of motion, on the usual affidavit of service, unless the Court is satisfied that the order has been brought to his knowledge in some other way, as by his appearing in Court and personally consenting or opposing, and the fact is stated on the face of the order itself, and this is so where the order has been made by consent of counsel: Hall & Co. v. Trigg, (1897) 2 Ch. 219.

The copy of affidavit intended to be used in support of the motion for attachment must state that the order is indorsed with the memorandum required by O. XLI, 5, and, if such statement is omitted, the service is defective: Stockton Football Co. v. Gaston, (1895) 1 Q. B. 453.

The objection that affidavits have not been served with the summons or notice of motion in accordance with O. LII, 4, cannot be insisted on by a party who, by attending by his solr, and admitting that he cannot answer the affidavits, has accepted what is equivalent to the advantages intended to be conferred by the provisions of the rule: Rendell v. Grundy, (1895) 1 Q. B. 16, C. A.

As to what is a sufficient statement of the grounds of the application, see Treherne v. Dale, 27 Ch. D. 66, C. A.

The certificate of the Paymaster-General that the money is not in Court must be dated on a day subsequent to the last day for payment pursuant to the order. The want of such evidence may be cured by the appearance of the party, and his not disputing the fact: Treherne v. Dale, sup.

An order made in Chambers cannot be enforced by attachment until after entry: Ballard v. Tomlinson, 52 L. J. Ch. 656; 48 L. T. 515; 31 W. R. 563; secus, procedure orders drawn up in Chambers: O. LXII, 2 (1), sup. p. 187.

Where the time for payment limited by the order was enlarged by a subsequent order, it was sufficient that the indorsement required by O. XLI, 5, was on the first order: Treherne v. Dale, 27 Ch. D. 66, C. A.; but where an order for possession named no time within which possession was to be given, and no memorandum could be indorsed, attachment was ordered to issue, but to lie in the office for a week: Re Higgs' Mortgage, W. N. (94) 73; but notwithstanding the absence of the indorsement the Deft was liable for a contempt in retaking possession: S. C.

To obtain the attachment of a judgment debtor for non-compliance with an order under O. XLII, 32, for his attendance for oral examination at Chambers, it must be shown that conduct money has been tendered, and that there is some necessity for bringing him up from his place of residence: see Protector Endowment Co. v. Whittam, 36 L. T. 467; and an order for payment of the debt by instalments need not be abandoned by the creditor, as the two processes can run simultaneously: Hayter v. Beall, 44 L. T. 131, C. A., reversing S. C., 29 W. R. 333.

APPEAL.

An appeal has been held to lie from an order to commit, or a refusal to commit, involving a finding: Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 491, C. A.; Witt v. Corcoran, 2 Ch. D. 69; but see Reg. v. Jordan, W. N. (88) 152, per Lindley, L. J. The Court of Appeal, however, is reluctant to interfere with the discretion of the Court below: Ashworth v. Outram (No. 2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.; Esdaile v. Visser, 13 Ch. D. 421, C. A.; Chard v. Jervis, 9 Q. B. D. 178, C. A.

But an application for attachment for contempt in publishing comments calculated to prejudice the fair trial of an action is "a criminal cause or matter" within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 47, so that no appeal will lie: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59, C. A.; secus, semble, an attachment for disobedience to an order to attend for examination: Re Evans, E. v. Noton, (1893) 1 Ch. 252; and see Rendell v. Grundy, (1895) 1 Q. B. 16, C. A., sup., p. 444.

An attachment for disobedience to an order of Court, being a coercive process in a civil action, is not an offence within sect. 19 of the Extradition Act, 1870: Pooley v. Whetham, 15 Ch. D. 435, C. A.

BANKRUPTCY OF CONTEMNOR.

Under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, a person liable to arrest within s. 4 (3) or (4) of the Debtors Act, might, if he became bankrupt, be protected pending such bankruptcy from attachment for non-payment, &c.: Cobham v. Dalton, 10 Ch. 655; Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, 25 W. R. 743; but in such case the application to discharge the attachment ought, it seems, to have been made to the Court in which the writ was issued, and not to the Court of Bankruptcy: Re Deere, 10 Ch. 658.

But bankruptcy subsequent to the issue of the writ would not protect him from arrest, nor entitle him, if already in custody, to his discharge: E. Lewes v. Barnett, 6 Ch. D. 252; and see Re Wray, 36 Ch. D. 138, C. A.

And the protection from process of attachment pending bankruptcy proceedings given to a bankrupt debtor by s. 12, and the rules of 1870, r. 282, did not extend to the case of a compounding debtor: Pashler v. Vincent, 8 Ch. D. 825.

As to the effect of bankruptcy generally, under the Act of 1883, v. sup., p. 433.

COSTS.

The costs of an executed attachment are no longer a fixed sum of 13s. 4d. (as under the former practice, except where directed to be taxed, see Dan. 5th ed., 431, n.), but are now, as of any other proceedings, in the discretion of the Court under O. LXV, 1: Abud v. Riches, 2 Ch. D. 528; and should be asked for upon the application for the writ: S. C.

EXECUTION OF WRIT.

The officer charged with the execution of a writ of attachment for contempt in non-compliance with an order for discovery may break open the outer door of a house: Harvey v. H., 26 Ch. D. 644; but for the purpose of executing a writ of fi. fa., he can only break open the outer door of a workshop or other building of the judgment debtor, not being his dwelling-house or connected therewith: Hodder v. Williams, (1895) 2 Q. B. 663, C. A.

For committal in cases of special contempt, privilege from arrest, and discharge on clearing the contempt, v. inf., Sects. vii. and viii.

COMMITTAL UNDER DEBTORS ACT, 1869, s. 5—ARREST UNDER SECT. 6.

The jurisdiction by the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 5, given to any Court to commit to prison, for a term not exceeding six weeks, or until payment of the sum due, any person who makes default in payment of any debt, or instalment of any debt, due from him in pursuance of any order or judgment of that or any other competent Court, is now, by the operation of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 52), s. 103, and the Bankruptcy Rules (1886), 355—362, transferred to the Judge in bankruptcy.

Where judgment has been given for payment of a past debt by instalments in futuro, an order for commitment for default in payment of an instalment is not an anticipatory order, and may be validly made: Stonor v. Fowle, 13 App. Ca. 20.

A creditor who having recovered judgment in the High Court, afterwards obtains from a County Court Judge an order under s. 5 of the Debtors Act, 1869, for payment by instalments, cannot, so long as that order is in force, issue execution upon his judgment in the High Court: Montgomery & Co. v. De Bulmes, (1898) 2 Q. B. 420, C. A. (dissenting from dicta of Cave, J., in Re Ives, Exr. Addington, 16 Q. B. D. 670, 671, and approving the principle of Jones v. Jenner, 25 L. J. Exch. 319).

Sect. 14 (1) of the Sheriffs Act, 1887 (50 & 51 V. c. 55), does not apply to commitment under s. 5 of the Debtors Act, and does not prevent the imprisonment of the debtor within twenty-four hours after his arrest: Mitchell v. Simpson, 52 Q. B. D. 183, C. A.

By sect. 6 of the Debtors Act, 1869 (which abolished arrest on mesne process in any action), power was given to the Superior Courts of Law to order the arrest of the Deft against whom the Plt before final judgment proves a good cause of action of 50*l.* and upwards, and that the Deft intends to leave England, and his absence will materially prejudice the Plt in the prosecution of his action. But in general no order is granted unless the Deft is a material witness, or is taking away material documents.

But after final judgment a Deft could not be detained in prison under sect. 6, as the prosecution of the Plt's action could not then be prejudiced by the Deft's absence: see Hume v. Druyff, L. R. 8 Ex. 214.

SECTION IV.—ENFORCING RETURN OF WRITS.

1. Order for Sheriff's Committal—O. LII, 11.

WHEREAS the solr for the Plt on the — day of —, gave notice to the sheriff of —, calling upon him to return the writ of attachment issued against the Deft B. for his contempt in not &c. [State the contempt]; Now upon motion &c., by counsel &c., who alleged that notwithstanding the said notice the said sheriff has not returned the said writ of attachment; and upon reading the affidavit of &c., This Court doth order that the said sheriff of — do stand committed to prison for his said contempt.

NOTES.

By O. LII, 2, no motion or application for a rule nisi or order to show cause shall hereafter be made in an action against a sheriff to pay money levied under an execution. O. LII, 11, provides that no order shall issue for the return of any writ, or to bring in the body of a person ordered to be attached or committed; but a notice from the person issuing the writ or obtaining the order for attachment or committal (if not represented by a solr), or by his solr, calling upon the sheriff to return such writ, or to bring in the body within a given time, if not complied with, shall entitle such person to apply for an order for the committal of such sheriff.

The notice is substituted for the former order of course.

Upon application ex parte for order nisi, the sheriff was ordered to pay both the costs of the order nisi and of the previous order of course: Re Heiron's Estate, Hall v. Fry, 12 Ch. D. 795.

It seems that under O. XLII, 7, 26, the applicant may move on notice (see Jupp v. Cooper, 5 C. P. D. 26) for his committal, or for an attachment.

If the attachment is to go against the late sheriff, it will be directed to the present sheriff, but if against the present sheriff it will be directed to the coroner: see Chitt. Archb. pt. i. p. 823.

Pending an interpleader issue, the sheriff cannot be compelled to make his return immediately: Angell v. Baddeley, 3 Ex. D. 49, C. A.

Since the Jud. Acts came into operation (Nov. 1875) no particular return day has been inserted in writs of attachment issued out of the Central Office. The form of that writ given in R. S. C. App. H., Form 12, does not suggest the insertion of a date of return; but when a reasonable interval has elapsed the sheriff may be required to make a return to the writ: see Owen v. Pritchard, W. N. (76) 147.

The sheriff may in like manner be ordered to return the writs of fiery facias, elegit, and other writs directed to him.

For the practice as to the returns of the writs in the Q. B. and other Common Law Divisions, see Chitt. Archb. pt. i. pp. 815—822.

The seizure of land by the sheriff is complete when he delivers in execution, and is not governed by the formal return of the writ: Re Hobson, 33 Ch. D. 493.

By the Sheriffs Act, 1887 (50 & 51 V. c. 55), s. 28, sub-s. 3, a sheriff shall not be called upon to make a return of any writ after the expiration of six months from the date at which he ceases to hold his office.

SECTION V.—SERJEANT-AT-ARMS—HABEAS CORPUS.

1. Order for Serjeant-at-Arms, on return of Attachment Non est Inventus—Gen. Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, r. 6.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c., it was ordered, &c. [Recite the direction required to be performed]; Now, upon motion &c. by counsel &c., who alleged that a writ of attachment issued against the said

(Deft) B. for not, &c. [State the default], directed to the sheriff of —, and that the said sheriff hath returned non est inventus thereon; and upon reading the said order, writ, and return, This Court doth order that the Serjeant-at-Arms attending this Court do apprehend the said (Deft) B., and bring him to the bar of this Court to answer his said contempt; and thereupon such further order shall be made as shall be just.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 437.

NOTES.

Where an attachment is issued and returned non est inventus, the party prosecuting will still be entitled to an order for the Serjeant-at-Arms: Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, rr. 6, 7 and 8; O. XLII, 28. It is, however, believed that an application for Serjeant-at-Arms is rarely made in modern practice: see D. C. F. 437; Dan. 713.

For the practice as to the Serjeant-at-Arms, and as to his powers, see Cons. Ord. 29, r. 4, and 30, rr. 1, 2; O. XLII, 1; Gen. Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, r. 6; Dan. 6th ed. 889; G. v. L., (1891) 3 Ch. 126; where he was directed to deliver the person of an infant to the guardian having the right of custody under the order of the Court.

The order for the serjeant must be delivered to him, or to his deputy by the Registrar: Cons. Ord. 30, r. 2.

The same order (rr. 4, 5) abolished the former writs of execution under the Great Seal, attachment with proclamation, and writ of rebellion, which were preliminary to the order of the Court for the Serjeant-at-Arms, and the subsequent process of sequestration: See Gilb. For. Rom. 77, 166.

But where the party was proved to be abroad, the attachment was not required to be issued pro formâ as a foundation for subsequent process: Hodgson v. H., 23 Beav. 604; Butler v. Mathews, 19 Beav. 549; Re East of England Bk., 2 Dr. & Sm. 284.

2. Order to turn over Prisoner brought up by Serjeant-at-Arms to Holloway Prison.

THE (Deft) A. being this day brought to the bar of this Court by the Serjeant-at-Arms attending this Court to answer his contempt in not &c. [State the default], and still persisting in his said contempt, It is upon motion &c., ordered that the said (Deft) A. be turned over to Holloway Prison, and do remain there until he shall &c. [State what he is required to do] clear his contempt, and this Court make other order to the contrary.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 438.

3. Order for Habeas to bring up Prisoner on his own Application.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the (Plt or Deft) A., who alleged that an attachment issued against him for his contempt in not &c. [State the default], pursuant to the judgment [or order] dated &c., directed to the sheriff of &c., and that the said (Plt or Deft) A. is now a prisoner in the custody of the said sheriff; and upon reading the said judgment [or order] &c., This Court doth order that a writ of habeas corpus cum causis do issue directed to the said sheriff, at the return thereof, commanding him to bring the said (Plt or Deft) A. to the bar of this Court; whereupon such further order shall be made as shall be just.

4. Order for Habeas to bring up Prisoner to make Application touching his Contempt.

UPON the humble petition of S., a prisoner for contempt of Court in the prison at W., in the county of &c., this day preferred unto &c. for the reasons therein contained, It is ordered that a writ of habeas corpus cum causis do issue directed to the keeper of the W. prison, commanding him to bring the body of the Petr S. to the bar of this Court before the Hon. Mr. Justice —, on (Friday) the — day of —, to make any application touching his said contempt, and to be dealt with as the Court may direct.—Re Scard, M. R., 11 March, 1879, on petition of course.

For forms of application, see D. O. F. 438.

5. To turn over a Prisoner brought up on Habeas obtained by himself.

(THE Deft) B. against whom a writ of attachment hath been issued for not &c. [State contempt], being this day brought to the bar of this Court by virtue of a writ of habeas corpus cum causis directed to the sheriff of &c. and issued pursuant to an order made upon the application of the said (Deft) B., It is upon motion by counsel for the said (Deft) B. ordered that the said (Deft) B. be turned over to (Holloway) prison, and do remain there until he shall [State what he is required to do] clear his contempt and this Court make other order to the contrary.

For the alternative order where, on being brought up, the prisoner obtains his discharge, see Form 1, inf. p. 471.

6. To bring up a Prisoner before the Court.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Deft, And upon reading &c., This Court doth order that the Governor of H. M. Prison at H. do produce the said Deft A. G. D., a prisoner in the said prison under an order of the Q. B. D. of this Court, before Mr. Justice —, in his Lordship's Court, at the Royal Courts of Justice, Strand, London, on — the — day of — at — o'clock in the forenoon precisely.—See Jenks v. Ditton, Stirling, J., 21 May, 1897, A. 2615.

NOTES.

The order to turn over is made on motion of course.

Where, on the party being brought up, the matter is postponed, and a new writ is directed to issue (which, if the Court shall so direct, may be without payment of any fee), the registrar indorses the order for the habeas "Let another habeas issue, returnable on the &c., at — o'clock in the — noon of the — day of —": see O. XXXVI, 35.

A person taken to prison under an attachment need not be brought up to the bar of the Court, to be turned over to Holloway Prison (substituted for Whitecross Street Prison by order of the Home Secretary under 25 & 26 V. c. 104, s. 12), but where the person in contempt himself desires to be brought before the Court in reference to his contempt, or where he has been taken to a country prison and wishes to be turned over to Holloway Prison, the habeas will still be necessary.

For form of writ of habeas corpus, see R. S. C., App. J., Form 2; D. C. F. 439.

If the prisoner is already imprisoned or detained in Holloway Prison, the order will remand him there: Davies v. Nixon, V.-C. K., 25 Nov. 1862, A. 2116.

The Court cannot grant a habeas corpus to a party to an action in custody to enable him to appear in Court merely for the purpose of arguing his case in person: Weldon v. Neal, 15 Q. B. D. 471; Benns v. Moseley, 2 C. B. N. S. 116; Short's Crown Office Practice, 366.

Since the commencement of the Jud. Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 44), the Court, when granting an application for a habeas corpus, has jurisdiction, by sect. 5 of that Act, to order payment by the Deft of the costs of the application, and such jurisdiction is not affected by the provisions of sect. 4: The Queen v. Jones, (1894) 2 Q. B. 382.

As to the power of the Secretary of State to order production of a prisoner, see Prison Act, 1898 (61 & 62 V. c. 41), s. 11; and see Dan. 548.

SECTION VI.—SEQUESTRATION.

(1.)—ISSUE OF SEQUESTRATION.

1. Order for Sequestration on return of Attachment.

WHEREAS by the judgment [or order] dated &c., it was ordered [Recite the direction required to be performed]; Now upon motion by counsel &c., who alleged that an attachment issued against (the Deft) B. for his contempt in not &c. [State the default] directed to the sheriff of —, and that the said sheriff hath returned that the said (Deft) B. is a prisoner in his custody [or, non est inventus thereon]; And upon reading the said judgment [or order], and the said writ and return thereon, This Court doth order, that a commission of sequestration do issue, directed to certain commissioners to be therein named, to sequester the said (Deft) B.'s personal estate, and the rents, profits, and issues of his real estate, until the said (Deft) B. shall [State the act required to be done] clear his contempt, and this Court make other order to the contrary.—See Morgan v. Davies, V.-C. E., 3 Dec. 1847, B. 117.

For orders for sequestration against a local board and against railway co. for breach of an injunction and for breach of an undertaking, see Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

For the form of the writs of sequestration, see R. S. C., App. H., Form 13; and for the præcipe, Ib. App. G., Form 6; and of the writ of sequestrari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis issuable upon return of the ordinary writ of fieri facias, see App. H., Form 7; and see O. XLII, 3, 4; Allen v. Williams, 2 S. & G. 455; Norton v. Pritchard, V.-C. E., 7 Oct. 1845, B. 1568; D. C. F. 445—448.

2. The like—on return of Serjeant-at-Arms Non est Inventus.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c. it was ordered &c. [Recite direction required to be performed]: And whereas the (Deft) B. sits out all process of contempt to a Serjeant-at-Arms for not &c. [State the default] pursuant to the said order, and cannot be found to be taken thereon, as by the return of the Serjeant-at-Arms appears; And upon reading the said order and return, This Court doth order that a commission of sequestration &c. [Form 1, sup.]

3. The like—on return against a Prisoner.

WHEREAS by the judgment [or order] dated &c., it was ordered &c. [Recite the direction required to be performed]; Now upon motion &c., by counsel &c., who alleged &c. [State the process of contempt issued], that it appears by the certificate of the Governor of Holloway Prison that the said (Deft) B. is a prisoner in the said prison for his said contempt, and upon reading the said judgment [or order] and certificate, This Court doth order that a commission of sequestration &c. [Form 1, sup.]

The order is made on ex parte motion, and on producing the Governor's certificate of the prisoner being in custody.

4. The like—in aid of Decree of the Arches Court—2 & 3 W. IV. c. 93, s. 2.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for W. &c., who alleged that pursuant to the order made in this matter dated &c., a copy of the exemplification of the decree of the Arches Court of Canterbury dated &c. and of the several proceedings thereunder, has been inrolled in the rolls of the (now Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice) pursuant to the Act of the 2 & 3 W. IV. c. 93, s. 2, and that C. (in the said order named) has not paid the sum of £—, being the taxed costs mentioned in the said decree and the said several proceedings thereunder, It is thereupon ordered that a commission of sequestration do issue, directed to certain commissioners to be therein named, to sequester the said C.'s personal estate, and the rents, issues, and profits of his real estate until the said C. shall pay to the said W. &c. the said sum of £—, and this Court make other order to the contrary.—Craig v. Watson, L.JJ., 1 Aug. 1871, A. 2378.

For the preceding order in Craig v. Watson, to inrol the decree of the Arches Court, see Chap. XV., Sect. IV., Form 2, sup. p. 196. The order for sequestration was entitled in the matter of the Act as well as in the cause.

And for an order for sequestration for non-payment of costs after inrolment of a decree of the Court of Arches, see Marriner v. Bp. of Bath and Wells, L. C., 12 Feb. 1879, B. 379.

For order for an injunction in aid of a sequestration against a retired County Court Judge, restraining him from receiving the moneys payable to him in respect of the pension granted to him by Government, to the extent of the arrears of the instalments of the judgment debt; and for the sequestrators to receive that amount from the Treasury or Paymaster General out of the payments due in respect of the pension, and to pay over the same to the Plt, with liberty to apply at Chambers, in case of further default, for similar orders as against any future sums payable in respect of the pension, see Willcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 332; and see Knight v. Bulkeley, 4 Jur. N. S. 527; 6 Ib. 817; 27 L. J. Ch. 592; 6 W. R. 610.

For order against a City corp., which had notice of the application, for payment to sequestrators of the arrears and future payments of a life annuity granted by the corp. to the Deft, see Rees v. Williams, V.-C. K. B., 1848, B. 1106.

NOTES.

PROCESS OF SEQUESTRATION.

By O. XLIII, 6, upon refusal or neglect, after due service of a judgment or order directing payment of money into Court or any other act in a limited time, to obey the same, the person prosecuting the judgment shall, at the expiration of the time limited for the performance thereof, be entitled, without obtaining any order for that purpose, to obtain a writ of sequestration against the estate and effects of such disobedient person: see Sprunt v. Pugh, 7 Ch. D. 567; Sykes v. Dyson, 9 Eq. 228.

The rule applies to things which are to be done within a limited time, and not to things which are prohibited from being done at all, as in the case of an injunction against sewer nuisance by a corp.: Selous v. Croydon Local Board, 53 L. T. 209.

By the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 8, sequestration against the property of a debtor may, after the commencement of that Act, be issued by a Court of Equity in the same manner as if such debtor had been actually arrested.

By O. XLIII, 7, no sequestration for the payment of costs is to be issued unless by leave of the Court or a Judge.

Under Gen. Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, r. 6, in case the disobedient person, after he has been taken or detained in custody, persists in his disobedience, the person prosecuting shall, upon the sheriff's return of capture, be entitled to a writ of sequestration against the estate and effects of the disobedient person; and upon a return of non est inventus the person prosecuting shall be entitled at his option either to a commission of sequestration in the first instance or otherwise to an order for the Serjeant-at-Arms, and to such other process as he was formerly entitled to upon a return of non est inventus to a commission of rebellion: and see O. XLIII, 6.

Where an order has been made for payment of costs without limiting any time for payment, the provisions of O. XLI, 5, and O. XLIII, 6, do not apply, and an immediate sequestration to enforce payment can be issued by leave of a Judge, without any previous four-day order: Re Lumley, Exp. Cathcart, (1894) 2 Ch. 271, C. A.; Re Deakin, Exp. Cathcart, (1900) 2 Q. B. 478, C. A.; but an order directing a sequestration on a future uncertain event, e.g., on default of payment within a specified time, is irregular: Re Lumley, sup.

A sequestration for costs was granted when it was shown that the debtor had no property other than a military pension, so that a fi. fa. was useless: Snow v. Bolton, 17 Ch. D. 433. In order to obtain such sequestration it is not necessary that any particular available property should be indicated: Hulbert v. Cathcart, (1896) A. C. 470, H. L.

It is questionable whether a writ of sequestration can be properly issued to enforce a simple judgment for payment of debt: see Ex parte Nelson, Re Hoare, 14 Ch. D. 41, C. A.; though sequestrations have been issued in cases where no time for payment was limited; or where the order was to pay by instalments: Wilcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 323; and see Dan. 731.

The present practice appears to be to issue the writ, without order, only on judgments or orders for payment into Court, or performance of any other act in a limited time (O. XLII, 4; O. XLIII, 6); recovery of any property other than land or money (O. XLII, 6); and payment of money or costs within a limited time (Chan. Gen. Ord., 7 Jan. 1870, r. 3); and, by order, on judgments or orders for costs (O. XLIII, 7), and against a corp. (O. XLII, 31).

In the case of a judgment requiring the party to abstain from doing any act, the mode of enforcing a judgment to that effect being as prescribed by O. XLII, 7, by writ of attachment or by committal, sequestration does not seem applicable (Selous v. Croydon Local Board, sup.); but in other cases it may be available either instead of, or upon any return to, a writ of attachment, and, as distinguished from attachment, it is also the proper remedy when the persons disobeying the order, from being members of a corp.

aggregate (v. sup. p. 425; Spokes v. Banbury Board, 1 Eq. 42; Sutton v. Barnet Board, W. N. (77) 167; A. G. v. Walthamstow Board, W. N. (78) 90; 11 Times L. R. 220), or from privilege of Parliament (see Sect. VII., inf. p. 468), are not liable to process of attachment.

O. LII, 4, as to service of copies of affidavits (v. sup. p. 444), is not applicable to sequestration: Selous v. Croydon Local Board, 53 L. T. 209.

For form of order for sequestration against a corp., v. inf. p. 745.

If the writ of attachment has been already issued, an order for the commission of sequestration must be obtained: Form 1, sup.

For form of writ of sequestration, see R. S. C., App. H., Form 13.

NATURE OF SEQUESTRATION.

The commission of sequestration, which is a process of contempt in rem, and not in personam (see Tatham v. Parker, 1 Sm. & G. pp. 513, 514), should be directed to not less than four commrs, nominated by the person prosecuting the judgment or order, and empowers the commrs to enter upon all the messuages, lands, tenements, and real estate of the person disobeying the order and in contempt, and to collect, receive, and sequester not only all the rents and profits of such real estate, but also all his goods, chattels, and personal estate, and keep the same under sequestration until the person disobeying the order of the Court shall have cleared his contempt. For form of writ, see R. S. C., App. H., Form 13; D. C. F. p. 446.

Sequestration to compel payment into Court is not determined by the death of the person against whose property it has been issued, and proceedings may be continued against his legal personal represves: Pratt v. Inman, 43 Ch. D. 175; following Hyde v. Greenhill, 1 Dick. 106.

For the practice before the Jud. Acts as to sequestration continuing against the heir or personal reprieve, see Burdett v. Rockley, 1 Vern. 58, 118; Wharam v. Broughton, 1 Vez. 180; Coulston v. Gardiner, 2 Ch. Ca. 43; 3 Swa. 283, n.

Sequestration upon mesne process, e.g., to compel appearance or an answer, has been superseded: O. XXXI, 21, 22. For remedies on such default since the Jud. Acts, see O. XXVII; O. XXXI, 21, 22; and see sup. Chap. VII., "DISCOVERY," and Chap. XII., "TRIAL AND JUDGMENT." Although the writ might be executed in a proper case (see Goldsmith v. G., 5 Ha. 123, and cases there cited), it was usually only resorted to as a step to a decree pro confesso under the old practice.

Sequestration will issue for non-compliance by a non compos with an order for payment of money made against him when sane, provided the order has been served as directed by O. LXVII, 5, and O. IX, 5: Robinson v. Galland, W. N. (89) 108.

Where a respondent in a restitution suit was evading service of decree, and an order as to custody of children, though she was not abroad, sequestration issued without previous writ of attachment or service of the decree or order: Allen v. A., 10 P. D. 187; and see Hyde v. H., 13 P. D. 166, C. A.

PROPERTY LIABLE TO SEQUESTRATION.

Personalty :—

All goods and chattels in the possession of the contemnor, or which can be reached by the sequestrators without suit or action are liable to sequestration; and if the keys are denied them, the sequestrators may open boxes and rooms that are locked, to schedule the goods in them, though they may remove nothing from the house without special order of the Court: L. Pelham v. Ds. Newcastle, 3 Swa. 290, n.; and see Form 1, sup.

It has been doubted whether the books and papers of a corp. could be seized under a sequestration on mesne process: see Lowten v. Colchester Corp., 2 Mer. 395; but by 11 G. IV. & 1 W. IV. c. 36 (Contempt of Court Act, 1830), s. 15, r. 16, sequestrators have the same power to seize books, papers, writings, or other things in the custody or power of a contemnor who has been committed for not delivering them or depositing them in Court, as they would have over the contemnor's own property.

For an order under this rule, see Dodd v. Turnbull, V.-C. H. at Chambers, 15 May, 1879, A. 1092.

Separate estate of a married woman is liable to sequestration: Miller v. M., L. R. 2 P. & M. 54; and also dividends on a fund in Court or other arrears of income of property to which she is entitled for her separate use without power of anticipation: Claydon v. Finch, 15 Eq. 266; Hyde v. H., 13 P. D. 166; but not future income where she is so restrained: Hyde v. H., sup.

A trust fund belonging to the contemnor being in Court in an admon action in the Ch. Div. was ordered to be transferred to sequestrators in an action in the Divorce Div.: Re Slade, S. v. Hulme, 18 Ch. D. 653 (and see Form, ib. at p. 654).

Choses in Action :—

If a third person has money or any chose in action in his hands belonging to the party against whom sequestration has issued, it may, provided the holder who should have notice of the application, admits possession and submits to the order of the Court, be directed to be seized by the sequestrators and paid into Court: see Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Beav. 263; Crispin v. Cumano, L. R. 1 P. & M. 622; Rees v. Williams, sup. p. 452; Miller v. Huddleston, 22 Ch. D. 233 (where bankers, upon motion in the action, were required to verify the amount of, or admit, the balance due from them and pay same into Court); and such third person's costs of appearing have been allowed: see White v. Wood, 7 Jur. 1123.

But if the stakeholder, or person indebted, does not consent to the order, or disputes the title of the contemnor and the amount, the Court cannot, it seems, order payment to the sequestrators: Simmons v. L. Kinnaird, 4 Ves. 735; Crispin v. Cumano, L. R. 1 P. & M. 622; Johnson v. Chippendall, 2 Sim. 55, 65; Craig v. C. and Hamp, (1896) P. 171; and see Franklyn v. Colhoun, 3 Swa. pp. 309, 310.

Pensions :—

Pensions granted by the Crown entirely for past services may be seized under a writ of sequestration: Willcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 323, C. A.; Dent v. D., L. R. 1 P. & M. 366; McCarthy v. Gould, 1 Ba. & B. 387; Sansom v. S., 27 W. R. 692; Exp. Huggins, 21 Ch. D. 85, C. A.

But where the services are still being rendered, as in the case of an equerry: Fenton v. Lowther, 1 Cox, 315; or of a naval officer on active service: Apthorpe v. A., 12 P. D. 122; 57 L. T. 518; 35 W. R. 728; or may be again required, as in the case of an officer on half-pay: McCarthy v. Gould, sup.; Stone v. Lidderdale, 2 Anst. 533; Collyer v. Fallon, 1 T. & B. 459; Spooner v. Payne, 1 D. M. & G. 388; Crowe v. Price, 22 Q. B. D. 429; the salary or half-pay cannot be sequestered; and see Lloyd v. Cheetham, 3 Gif. 171; nor can the pension of an officer in the army, which is rendered inalienable by the Army Act, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 58): Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 127, C. A.; Birch v. B., 8 P. D. 163; secus, money received from commutation of such pension: Crowe v. Price, 22 Q. B. D. 429; and as to a pension which is made inalienable by Indian legislation, under the Indian Pensions Act, 1871, see In re Saunders; Exp. Saunders, (1895) 2 Q. B. 117; (1895) 2 Q. B. 424, C. A.

Where the pension is charged on and payable out of the Consolidated Fund (15 & 16 V. c. 54, s. 5), the Court has no jurisdiction to order the Lords of the Treasury or the Paymaster General to pay the pension to the sequestrators; but the pensioner may be restrained from receiving, and the sequestrators authorized to receive it, the writ of sequestration being served on the Lords of the Treasury; but it is understood that the Treasury decline to be bound by such an order, and will exercise their discretion as to the extent to which they will recognise and act upon it: Willcock v. Terrell, sup. at p. 451.

Real Estate and Chattels Real :—

Rents and profits of real estate paid in kind, or the natural produce of a farm are liable under a sequestration and may be applied; but the land itself, whether freehold, copyhold, or leasehold, or property which passes by title and not by delivery, cannot be sold, as the writ, though it confers a right to take possession, does not transfer the land or the term to the sequestrators: Shaw v. Wright, 4 Ves. 22; and see Sutton v. Stone, 1 Dick. 187; et inf. (II.) p. 458.

Bonu Ecclesiastica:—

Where the contemnor is a beneficed clerk, and has no lay property, a writ of sequestrari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis and other writs in aid may, on the commrs' return to the ordinary writ of sequestration of nulla bona, and that the contemnor is a beneficed clerk, be issued to the bishop of the diocese, and the benefice sequestered thereunder: Norton v. Pritchard, 2 Sm. & G. 455, n.; Rabbitts v. Woodward, 20 L. T. 693; Braith. 239, 242; Dan. 730; D. C. F. 447, 448; et v. sup. p. 431.

As to the right of an incumbent pending sequestration to appoint a parish clerk, and as to the effect of the Sequestration Act, 1871 (34 & 35 V. c. 45), see Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) 1 Ch. 144.

As to avoidance of benefice on sequestration, see Benefices Act, 1898 (61 & 62 V. c. 48), s. 10, and as to execution against clergymen generally, see Edw. Exton. 199—209.

(II.) PROCEEDINGS UNDER SEQUESTRATION.

1. Order for Sequestrators to sell and pay in Proceeds—Taxation and Payment of Costs—Power to remove Effects saleable and unsaleable.

“UPON the application of D. &c. [names], the sequestrators acting under the sequestration issued in this action on the — day of — against the Deft H., and of the Plts; and upon hearing the solrs for the applicants, and for the Deft H.; and upon reading the order dated &c., an affidavit of &c., filed &c., Let the said [names], the sequestrators acting under the said commission, or any three or two of them, be at liberty to sell, or cause to be sold, either by public auction or private contract, the household furniture, goods, chattels, and personal estate of the said H., now at his residence situate &c., and also all the share and interest of the said H. as partner with one J. of and in all the book debts, materials, tools, implements, goods, chattels, personal estate, goodwill, and stock in trade used in the partnership business of &c. carried on by the said H. and J. at &c. aforesaid, under the style or firm of J. and H., all of which household furniture, goods, chattels, personal estate, and property are now under control of the said sequestrators; And Let, for the purpose aforesaid, the said sequestrators, or any three or two of them, be at liberty to remove the same household furniture, goods, chattels, personal estate, and property from the said residence and place of business of the said H. or elsewhere soever the same may have been deposited by or on his behalf to any convenient place in the discretion of the said sequestrators.”—Sequestrators to pay proceeds into Court, and the costs of executing the writ to be taxed and paid thereout to their solrs, and the balance to be invested.—“And Let the said sequestrators, or any three or two of them, be at liberty to remove all unsaleable effects and property of the said H. from his said residence and place of business or elsewhere soever the same may have been deposited by or on behalf of the said H., to a convenient place under the control of the said sequestrators.”—Street v. Hope, V.-C. M., 21 June, 1875, B. 1584.

For similar order, on the relator's application, and on affidavit of notice to Defts, for sequestrators to sell the effects of a corp. under a sequestration, and pay proceeds and rents and profits of realty into Court, deducting expenses, see A. G. v. Mayor, &c. of Newbury, M. R., 27 April, 1839, A. 882.

And for further order for the sequestrators to apply the proceeds of personality in part satisfaction of the decree and in payment of the costs, and to pay into Court the subsequent rents, see S. C., M. R., 2 Dec. 1839.

For order ex parte for sale, under a sequestration after a return of non est inventus to an attachment, of personal chattels belonging to the contemnor in the custody of third parties, and for removal of books and documents in his custody as solr to a place under the control of the sequestrators, see Re Rush, M. R., 10 Feb. 1870, B. 337; 19 W. R. 417; 22 L. T. 116.

2. The like—and to account and arrange Claims for Dilapidations, and Tenant Right—Application of Proceeds.

UPON the application of the Plt, and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, for the Deft B. and for D., the trustee in bankruptcy of the said Deft, and upon reading &c.—“Let the sequestrators acting under the commissions of sequestration issued in this cause and dated &c. sell at such convenient time or times as they may determine upon (but so that such sale be carried out on or before the — day of —), all the goods, furniture, plate, chattels, stock, implements, and personal estate of the Deft B., sequestered by them and now remaining in their possession; And Let them also settle and arrange with the incoming tenant as to the amount to be paid by him in respect of the tenant rights upon the Deft's farm, and receive such amount, and give a discharge for the same, and also settle with the landlord, or his incoming tenant, all (if any) claims for dilapidations in and about the farmhouse, buildings, and lands occupied by the Deft; And Let an account be taken of the moneys received and paid by the said sequestrators under and by virtue of the said commissions, including the moneys to be received or paid in pursuance of the directions hereinbefore contained; And Let &c. [names] as such sequestrators, within — days after the filing of the Master's certificate, lodge in Court as directed in the schedule hereto, the balance which shall be certified to be due from them on taking the said account; And Let the taxing master tax the costs (as between solr and client) of the Plt and Deft, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the said sequestrators properly incurred of and relating to the execution of the said commissions of sequestration, including a proper allowance to them for their time and trouble.”—[Add schedule containing directions for payment of such costs &c. out of the proceeds when paid in, and for carrying over the sum mentioned in the said sequestration dated &c., to the credit of the action &c.; and payment of part of the sum of £— mentioned in the said sequestration, to the Plt, and the residue of such money to D. as the trustee in bankruptcy of the said Deft B.]—See Re Burkill, Godfrey v. B., V.-C. M., at Chambers, 3 March, 1873, A. 721.

For orders for sequestrators to account, see Shaw v. Wright, L. C., 21 July, 1796, B. 650; Const v. Barr, 1825, A. 1285; Kinsey v. K., 1769,

A. 172; to tax the costs and expenses of sequestration, and the sequestrators to pass their accounts, Bray v. Hooper, 1784, A. 1; and for sequestrator to pass his accounts, and have an allowance for his care and trouble, Trigge v. T., 1784, B. 271.

3. Order for Tenants to attorn to Sequestrators.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plts, who alleged that a commission of sequestration issued on &c. against the Deft directed to A. &c., authorizing them, or any two of them, to enter upon all the real estate of the Deft, and to collect, receive, and sequester into their hands all the rents and profits thereof; and that, pursuant to the said commission of sequestration, A. and B., two of the commrs therein named, entered upon all the lands comprised in the said real estate, and situate &c., and in the holding of &c., who refuse to attorn tenants to the said commrs, as by the return of the said commrs of sequestration now produced and read appears; And upon reading an affidavit of &c. of service of notice of this application on the said (tenants) [or, and upon hearing counsel for the said (tenants)], This Court doth order, that the said (tenants) do, within — days after service of this order, attorn to and become the tenants of the said A. and B., the said commrs of sequestration, and pay their rents in arrear and growing rents to the said commrs, until further order.

The return need not be filed, but notice of the application should be given to the tenants: Goldsmith v. G., 5 Ha. 123.

For such orders, see Rowley v. Ridley, L. C., 26 Jan. 1784, B. 153; 3 Swa. 306; 4 Ves. 738; Hammond v. Maber, V.-C., 25 July, 1821, A. 1740; Duncombe v. Lewis, V.-C. K., 2 Nov. 1853, A. 29; in which cases the order was on notice; and in Duncombe v. Lewis limited a time; and under O. XLI, 5, the order to attorn tenant should limit a time, and may then be enforced by attachment and sequestration, or, on the return of the attachment non est inventus, at the option of the party prosecuting, by sequestration: O. XLIII, 6; or by an order for the Serjeant-at-Arms, and subsequent process: Gen. Ord. 7 Jan. 1870, 6.

For order for sequestrators to be at liberty to let and set the real estate, see Rees v. Williams, V.-C. K. B., 27 April, 1848, B. 842.

For orders for tenants to attorn to receiver, see inf. Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS."

For forms of proceedings under sequestration, see D. C. F. 448—453.

NOTES.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF SEQUESTRATORS.

Sequestrators are authorized by the writ to enter into possession of lands, &c. in the possession of the contemnor, and to receive the rents and profits of such of his estates as are in the occupation of tenants, who should be served with notice in writing to attorn and pay their arrears and growing rents to them; and upon refusal to attorn, &c., the sequestrators may upon motion or summons obtain an order for them to attorn, &c.: see Form 3, sup.; Rowley v. Ridley, 3 Swa. 306; S. C., 4 Ves. 738—740.

Sequestrators will be ordered to account for whatever comes to their hands by virtue of their office, and are bound from time to time to make returns to the Court: Howell v. Lord Coningsby, 1 Fowl. Ex. Pr. 161; Dan. 738; Form 2, sup.

The sequestrator of a benefice was disallowed expenditure for repairs in excess of the sum estimated by the surveyor's report, under the Ecclesiastical Dilapidations Act, 1871 (34 & 35 V. c. 43): Kimber v. Paravicini, 15 Q. B. D. 222.

Under a sequestration for non-performance of an order for payment of money, the proceeds of the goods seized will be applied in satisfaction of the Plt's demand: Davis v. D., 2 Atk. 24.

The sequestrators ought not so to apply the proceeds on their own authority, but should pay them into Court upon leave obtained on motion, or now, unless in special cases, by summons in Chambers; and see Dan. 734.

Sequestrators under an interlocutory order for the non-performance of a duty have the same power as under a final judgment: Cadell v. Smith, 3 Swa. 308, n.; Dunkley v. Scribnor, 2 Mad. 443.

Sequestrators abusing their powers may be committed: Lord Pelham v. Lord Harley, 3 Swa. 291, n.; and see Sykes v. Dyson, W. N. (70) 81.

And obstructing sequestrators is a contempt of Court: Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. 336; Lord Pelham v. Duke of Newcastle, 3 Swa. 289, n.; and see Franklin v. Colhoun, 3 Swa. 276; Dan. 739.

The title of sequestrators will prevail over that of mortgagees with full notice of the proceedings: Ward v. Booth, 14 Eq. 195.

As to the priority of a sequestration issued by a trustee in bankruptcy, see Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 52 (corresponding with sect. 88 of the Act of 1869); and Exp. Chicks, Re Meredith, 11 Ch. D. 731, C. A.

When necessary, a sale may, on the application of the sequestrators, be ordered:

—of rents in kind, or the natural produce of a farm: Shaw v. Wright, 3 Ves. 22.

—of household goods and furniture: Mitchell v. Draper, 9 Ves. 208.

—of a Deft's reversionary interest in a fund in Court: Cowper v. Taylor, 16 Sim. 314.

But sequestrators cannot sell the estates themselves, as distinguished from the profits, whether freehold, copyhold, or leasehold, as neither the estate nor the term is vested in them by virtue of the writ: see Shaw v. Wright, 3 Ves. 22; sup. pp. 454, 455.

The application for a sale should be made by summons in Chambers (see Turner v. Clifford, W. N. (70) 199); or on motion (see Wharam v. Broughton, 1 Ves. 184), upon notice (Mitchell v. Draper, 9 Ves. 208); but where service of the notice could not be effected, an order for sale was granted upon an ex parte motion: Re Rush, 19 W. R. 417; 10 Eq. 442.

The execution by the sequestrators of the writ by taking possession of such parts of the lands of a Deft, who had failed to comply with an order duly registered for payment of money into Court, as were in his possession, and by procuring an attornment from the tenants of the other parts, does not constitute the Plt, by whom the writ has been issued, a creditor to whom the lands of the debtor have been actually delivered in execution, so as to entitle him to a sale of the land under 27 & 28 V. c. 112 (Judgments Act, 1864): Johnson v. Burgess, 15 Eq. 398; not following Re Rush, 10 Eq. 442; and as to the effect of the Judgment Acts, 1838—1864, v. inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES." And the mere issuing of a sequestration against a Deft, and service of it on his debtor or trustee, did not make the Plt a secured creditor within the Bankruptcy Act, 1869: Exp. Nelson, Re Hoare, 14 Ch. D. 41, C. A.

On a sequestration under a judgment, leave will be given to the sequestrators to let: Harvey v. H., 4 Rep. in Ch. 49; and sequestrators in possession and in receipt of the rents and profits were allowed to let and set the estate, as there should be occasion: Rees v. Williams, V.-C. K. B., 27 April, 1848, B. 842; S. C., sup. p. 393; Neale v. Bealing, L. C., March, 1744, B. 214; 3 Swa. 304, n.; and see Dunkley v. Scribnor, 2 Mad. 443.

(III.) EXAMINATION PRO INTERESSE SUO.

1. Inquiry as to Claimant's Interest.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for S., of &c. [claimant], and upon hearing counsel for the Plts, and for the Deft; and upon reading &c.

[enter any evidence]; This Court doth order that an inquiry be made whether the said S. hath any and what interest in the lands and hereditaments specified in the schedules to the return to the commission of sequestration issued in this action, and other the real estates comprised in the indentures dated &c. [describe the property] sequestered by &c., the sequestrators acting under the said commission of sequestration, or any and what part thereof; And it is ordered that this motion do stand over until after the Master shall have made his certificate of the result of the said inquiry (but this order is to be without prejudice to any question as to the rents of the said lands &c.).—Liberty to apply.—See Alton v. Harrison, V.-C. S., 22 June, 1869, A. 1740.

For like order, see Jacob v. De Morgan, M. R., 1 Feb. 1878, A. 222.

For order under former practice for claimant to come in and be examined, see Hamlyn v. Ley, L. C., 12 Feb. 1743, A. 194; 1 Dick. 94; 3 Swa. 301, n.; for order of reference to see if title made out, S. C., M. R., 9 June, 1743, A. 474; for final order, with declaration in favour of claimant, Cooper v. Thornton, L. C., 22 July, 1738, A. 629; 1 Dick. 73.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 452.

2. The like—On Motion that the Sequestrators withdraw, and for Damages, and Cross Motion that they sell.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for S. of &c., and H. of &c. [claimants], that the sequestrators might be discharged and ordered to withdraw from possession, and for an inquiry as to damage, and that the Plts might be ordered to pay the amount of such damage, or for an inquiry as to the claimant's interest; and upon hearing counsel for the Plts and the Deft H.; and upon motion &c., by counsel for the Plts &c. that the said sequestrators might sell the several goods, chattels &c., and articles of personalty in and about the house &c., situate &c., sequestered by the said sequestrators; and upon hearing counsel for the Deft H.; and upon reading &c., This Court doth order that an inquiry be made whether the said S. and H. [claimants] have any and what interest in the several goods, chattels &c., and articles of personalty in and about the house &c., situate &c., sequestered by the said sequestrators, or any and what part thereof; and also in the lands and hereditaments comprised in the indenture dated &c.—Rest of motion to stand adjourned until after the result of the inquiry.—Alton v. Harrison, V.-C. S., 28 Jan. 1869, A. 262.

3. Sequestrators to withdraw upon Undertaking by Claimant as to Damages, to keep an Account, and to allow Sequestrators to take Inventory—Inquiry.

UPON motion &c., that sequestrators withdraw, and for inquiry as to damage and claimant's interest; And the said H. [claimant] by his counsel at the bar undertaking to permit the sequestrators acting under the commission of sequestration issued in these actions on the — day of — to take an inventory of the stock in trade, chattels, and effects in and about the warehouse &c., situate &c., sequestered by the said sequestrators, and also not to deal with or dispose of any of the said stock in trade &c., except in the ordinary course of business, and to keep an account of all moneys he shall receive and pay in respect of the said stock in trade &c., and of any disposition thereof in the ordinary course of business, and also submitting to be bound by any order this Court may make as to damages, or with respect to the proceeds of any of the stock in trade &c. dealt with in the ordinary course of business, and to restore possession of the said warehouse &c., if this Court should so order, Let such inventory be taken accordingly ; And Let the said sequestrators withdraw from possession of the said stock in trade &c., and also from all interference with the said premises, goods, chattels, and effects, until the inquiry hereinafter directed has been answered, or until further order ; And Let an inquiry be made whether the applicant is in any and what manner interested in the said premises, stock in trade, &c., or any and what part or parts thereof.—Rest of motion to stand over until after the result of the inquiry.—Alton v. Harrison, V.-C. S., 11 Jan. 1869, A. 112.

The inquiry in this case was directed before the return, on a sufficient case being shown by the affidavits in support of the application : see Dan. 740.

4. Declaration that Claimants have an interest against which Sequestrators cannot hold—Direction to withdraw—Costs.

UPON the application of &c. [claiming as mortgagees] to vary the Master's certificate adjourned into Court, and upon the adjourned motion &c. ; Let the said certificate, so far as it is thereby certified that the applicants have not any interest in the several goods, chattels &c., and articles of personalty in and about the house &c., situate &c., sequestered by the said sequestrators, nor in the lands and hereditaments comprised in the indenture dated &c., be varied, And Declare that the said [claimants] have under and by virtue of the said indenture an interest in the said several goods &c., and articles of personalty, lands, and hereditaments, against which the said sequestrators cannot hold ; And Let the said sequestrators withdraw from the possession of the said several goods &c., and articles of personalty, and from the possession and receipt of the rents and profits of all such parts of such lands and hereditaments of which they are in possession or in receipt of the rents and profits, and they are not hereafter to receive any further rents.—Costs of claimants of this and their former applications, and of the reference, to be added to the amount due to them under their security, such costs to be taxed &c.—See Alton v. Harrison, V.-C. S., 24 June, 1869, A. 1741 ; W. N. (69) 81.

NOTES.

When any person claims to be interested in or entitled to property, whether personal or real, which has been sequestered, either he, or the party issuing the writ, may apply to the Court to direct an inquiry as to his interest therein. The application is now usually made by summons, but may be on motion.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 452.

The examination and inquiry as to the title of the adverse claimant is before the Judge at Chambers.

In Kaye v. Cunningham, 5 Mad. 406, it was held that an order for the examination of a party pro interesse suo could only be made upon his application or by his consent; but the current of cases is not in favour of this decision: see Hamblyn v. Ley, 3 Swa. 301, n.; Bird v. Littlehales, 3 Swa. 300, n.; Mitchell v. Draper, 2 Mad. Ch. 305.

The order cannot usually be made until the return of the sequestration: for until then "it cannot appear to the Court what is sequestered": L. Pelham v. Ds. Newcastle, 3 Swa. 290, n.; but see Alton v. Harrison, Form 3, sup.

The person obtaining the order for an inquiry may be required to make an affidavit of the documents in his possession: Alton v. Harrison, W. N. (69) 81.

It was said that a mortgagee must always come in and be examined: Anon., 6 Ves. 288; but where the right is clear, the Court will give relief, without compelling the party to be examined: Dixon v. Smith, 1 Swa. 457; and see A. G. v. Mayor of Coventry, 1 P. W. 308.

And a person cannot claim, though by an adverse title, in any other way than by coming to be examined pro interesse suo: Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. 336; though leave to bring an ejectment has sometimes been given: see Brooks v. Greathed, 1 Jac. & W. 177; Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. p. 340; A. G. v. Mayor of Coventry, 1 P. Wms. 308; or the Court, by directing an issue, has put the question of right in course of trial: Empringham v. Short, 3 Ha. 461.

In Hunt v. Priest, 2 Dick. 540, the Court refused to interfere on petition; but in Walker v. Bell, 2 Mad. 21, on the petition of mortgagees, directed an inquiry into their title; and on the report a further order was made.

The mode of proceeding was the same where the property was in the possession of a receiver: Anon., 6 Ves. 287; Angel v. Smith; Brooks v. Greathed, sup.; Oswald v. Landes, V.-C., 25 March, 1840, B. 546; and in Hammond v. Maber, L. C., 4 Aug. 1821, A. 1905, on motion to commit a person for ousting the receiver, he was ordered to deliver up possession and pay costs, and to go in and be examined pro interesse suo; and see inf. Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS."

If it shall appear that the party examined pro interesse suo has a title paramount to the sequestration, it will be discharged as against him, with or without costs, according to the circumstances of the case: see A. G. v. Mayor of Coventry, 1 P. Wms. 307, n. (citing Gilb. For. Rom. 80; Wharam v. Broughton, 1 Ves. 180); Cooper v. Thornton, 1 Dick. 72; and in Copeland v. Mape, 2 Ba. & B. 67, the goods taken having been ascertained to be the property of the person examined pro interesse suo, were directed to be specifically restored, with an inquiry as to damages.

Rents received by sequestrators were ordered to be paid to mortgagees who had been prevented by the sequestrators from taking possession, their title being ascertained under an examination pro interesse suo: Tatham v. Parker, 1 S. & G. 506; but money in the hands of a receiver in a creditor's action went to the exor for the benefit of the creditors generally: Re Hoare, H. v. Owen, (1892) 3 Ch. 94.

The inquiry may be applied for by the guardian of an infant, or by a person in formâ pauperis: Dan. 89; Pelham v. Ds. Newcastle, 3 Swa. 290, n.; James v. Dore, 2 Dick. 788.

And see Dan. 739 et seq.

(IV.) DISCHARGE OF SEQUESTRATION.

Order to discharge Attachment and dissolve Sequestration.

UPON the application of &c.; and all parties, by their solrs, consenting to the following order, discharge attachment and dissolve sequestration issued against the Deft S. on &c., for not &c.; And Let the costs of the Plt and of the sequestrators of and incidental to the attachment, and the costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the sequestration, including their costs of the application by the mortgagees for the order dated &c. (for inquiry pro interesse suo), and all usual and proper allowances to the sequestrators in respect of their office, and of this application, and of and incidental thereto, be taxed (as between solr and client), in case the parties differ, and be respectively retained and paid by the sequestrators as hereinafter mentioned; And Let D. &c., the said sequestrators, withdraw from possession of the said estate of the Deft S. situate at &c., and from receipt of the rents and profits thereof within &c. from the service of this order, and within the time aforesaid give notice of their withdrawal (to the tenants) and be paid their costs thereof (to be taxed as between solr and client), and included in the costs hereinbefore directed to be taxed and retained. Sequestrators to leave accounts in Chambers, and to retain their costs, and costs, charges, and expenses when taxed or agreed to, out of the moneys in their hands; and the mortgagees consenting and abandoning the inquiry as to their interest directed by the said order, sequestrators to pay what shall be found due from them, on the balance of their account, to Deft S., within &c.; and thereupon the sequestrators to be released and discharged from all liability in respect of their office.—See Rawlinson v. Stringer, M. R., for V.-C. S., at Chambers, 11 Sept. 1868, B. 2507.

For the order in this case for an inquiry pro interesse suo, S. C., 17 July, 1868, B. 2157.

For form of notice of motion or summons, see D. C. F. 452.

NOTES.

SEQUESTRATION DISCHARGED.

Where the contemnor has cleared his contempt, an order for the discharge of the sequestration may be obtained on summons, or by motion, with directions for the sequestrators to withdraw from possession, and to pass their final accounts, and after retaining their costs, charges, and expenses, and any payments properly made by them, to pay the balance to the contemnor: see Rawlinson v. Stringer, sup.; Dan. 742.

Where a sequestration is issued to compel payment into Court, the death of the contemnor is no ground for restraining the sequestrators from selling as previously authorized: Pratt v. Inman, 43 Ch. D. 175.

Unless by consent, upon discharge of the sequestration, the costs of the sequestrators will be allowed as between party and party, and not as between solr and client: Re Shapland, W. N. (74) 202; 23 W. R. 40; but the sequestrators are entitled to their expenses and proper allowances for executing the commission.

Where the contemnor desires to discharge the sequestration on the ground of irregularity of process, he should apply by motion on notice.

A sequestration is discharged by the appointment of a receiver in the same action: Shaw v. Wright, 3 Ves. 22; semble, the order appointing the receiver should discharge the sequestrators.

An order for sequestration will not be made where there has been any irregularity in the issue of an attachment under which the contemnor is already in prison; Martin v. Kerridge, 3 P. Wms. 241; Re Brown, 16 W. R. 962 (where the writ of sequestration was quashed),

But any irregularity in the issue of a sequestration may be waived by the consent of the contemnor, so as to prevent him from afterwards setting aside the sequestration: Const v. Barr, 2 Russ. 161 (discharging an order of V.-C., setting aside a sequestration on the ground of irregularity: S. C., 2 S. & S. 452).

Where a writ of sequestration had been registered under the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 51), s. 5, there was no power to order such registration to be vacated: Cook v. C., 15 P. D. 116; but now by the Settled Land Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 69), s. 19, the registration of a writ or order affecting land may be vacated pursuant to an order of the High Court or any Judge thereof.

SECTION VII.—SPECIAL CONTEMPTS OF COURT.

1. Committal of the Deft, and another Person, for obstructing the Receiver.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon reading the judgment dated &c., an order dated &c., an affidavit of &c., filed &c., and an affidavit of service of notice of this motion on the Deft J. G.; And it appearing by the said affidavits that the Deft J. G. and W. G. her son have obstructed —, the receiver appointed in this action to receive the rents and profits of the real estates, and to collect and get in the outstanding personal estate of &c., the testator &c., pursuant to the said order dated &c., in receiving such rents and profits, and have persuaded and induced the tenants of the said estates to abstain from attorning and paying the rents of the said estates to the said — as such receiver, and have distrained for rent upon the effects of H. a tenant on part of the said estates after the date of the said order; This Court being of opinion that the Deft J. G. and the said W. G. have, by such conduct, been guilty of a contempt of this Court, doth order that the said J. G. and W. G. do stand committed to prison for their said contempt.—Marsh v. Goodall, M. R., 13 Jan. 1857, B. 288.

2. Committal of Deft and Another for Violence and abusive Language to a Person effecting Service.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft H. and for C. of &c.; and upon reading an affidavit of V., filed &c., whereby it appears that the said Deft H. and C. have assaulted and imprisoned and used violence and abusive language to the said V., a clerk in the employment of the Plt's solrs, whilst serving the said Deft H. with the (Plt's bill) in this cause [insert any further evidence]; And this Court being of opinion, upon consideration of the facts disclosed by the said affidavit, that the said Deft H. and the said C. have been guilty of contempt of this Court, doth order that the said Deft H. and the said C. do respectively stand committed to prison for their said contempt.—Price v. Hutchinson, V.-C. M., 16 Dec. 1869, B. 2992; 9 Eq. 534.

3. Committal of a Newspaper Editor for publishing an Article reflecting on Witnesses.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Defts B. and I., that R. of &c., might stand committed to prison for a contempt of this Court in printing and publishing on the — day of —, in a certain newspaper called &c., an article contained therein commencing with the words &c., and concluding with the words &c., and that the said R. might be directed to pay the costs of and occasioned by this application; and upon hearing counsel for the said R. and upon reading &c.; And this Court having taken the matter into consideration, and deeming the conduct of the said R. in printing and publishing the said article in the said newspaper called &c., a contempt of this Court, doth order that the said R. do stand committed to prison for his said contempt.—Felkin v. Herbert, V.-C. K., 19 Dec. 1863, A. 2359.

4. Newspaper Editor fined for publishing an Article reflecting on Petrs.

(Title Re Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, and Re the C— Bank Ltd.) UPON motion &c., by counsel for the C— Bank Ltd., and upon hearing counsel for W. O'M., of — in the city of —, the publisher of the newspaper called “The S—,” and upon reading &c., And this Court being of opinion that the said W. O'M. has committed a contempt of this Court in publishing in the said S— newspaper of the — day of —, a certain paragraph headed, “The C— Bank letting light in,” and describing the C— Bank Ltd. as “a so-called bank” and “a fraudulent concern,” and stating that the examination of the chairman of the bank and Mr. G. upon the pending petition would result in interesting revelations, doth order that the said W. O'M. do pay to Her Majesty the Queen a fine of (50) pounds, and do pay to the said C— Bank Ltd. their costs of this motion as between solr and client, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master.—See Re The Crown Bank Ltd., North, J., 1 May, 1890, A. 606.

5. Contemnors apologising, and Plt not insisting on Committal, Contempt condoned, on payment of Costs.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, that &c. [Recite the notice]; and upon hearing counsel for the said B. and A., and upon reading

&c.; And this Court being of opinion that the said B. and A. have committed a contempt of this Court by &c., and they now by their counsel apologising and expressing their regret for such contempt, and the Plt by his counsel not insisting on their actual committal, This Court doth order that the said B. and A. do respectively pay to the Plt J. his costs of the said motion, to be taxed &c., and doth not think fit to make any other order upon this motion.—Jackson v. Brighton Aquarium Co., V.-C. M., 8 Feb. 1872, A. 287.

For the like order, see Bigg v. Mayor of London, V.-C. B., 17 Nov. 1870, A. 2828, Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

In cases of contempt by breach of an injunction, an order for actual committal is not generally pressed for or directed, the more usual order being for Deft to pay the costs of the application, though not committed. And such order, being an adjudication against him upon the question of contempt, is not an order as to costs only, so as to prevent an appeal by the Deft: see Witt v. Corcoran, 2 Ch. D. 69. But an appeal by the applicant will only lie where there has been some miscarriage: Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493, C. A.; not where the matter is trifling and fairly within the discretion of the Court below: Ashworth v. Outram (2), 5 Ch. D. 943; v. inf. Chap. XXXVI., "APPEALS."

For an order to commit a member of Parliament for writing a threatening letter to the Master to influence his judgment, see Lechmere Charlton's case, L. C., 25 Nov. 1836, B. 34; S. C., 2 Sand. Ord. 828; 2 My. & C. 316; and for order to commit a person for writing a letter to the L. C., enclosing money; and for his subsequent discharge on submission, asking pardon, and payment of costs, the money being applied for the relief of poor prisoners in the Fleet Prison, see Re Martin, 2 Russ. & M. 674, n.

For order nisi to strike solr off the roll for writing an insulting letter to the Master, see Re Keane, Chap. XL., "SOLICITORS."

For order to commit Plt for writing a threatening letter to Deft to deter him from defending the suit, see Smith v. Lakeman, V.-C. S., 2 Jur. N. S. 1202; and for his discharge on paying full costs, and an apology: S. C., V.-C. S., 20 Nov. 1856, Reg. Min. M. T. 110.

For order to commit a member of Parliament for removing his children from the custody of the person appointed to act as their guardian, see Wellesley v. D. Beaufort, L. C., 16 July, 1831, B. 1852; S. C., 2 Russ. & M. 639; and for his discharge, S. C., 20 Aug. 1831, B. 2332.

For order for Serjeant-at-Arms to bring infant before the Court, see Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

For order to commit a person under whose care an infant had been placed, for opposing the delivery by the officer in Court of the infant to its guardian, see Re Kimmings, V.-C. S., 11 July, 1853, A. 1118; and for his subsequent discharge, S. C., V.-C. S., 2 Nov. 1853, A. 1.

For orders to commit the husband for marrying a ward of Court, with inquiry as to abettors, and for discharge, v. inf. Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

For orders to commit for breach of an injunction, and for sequestration, against a co. or public body, see Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS."

For an order for the committal of a person (native of the U. S. of America) for throwing a missile at the Judge in open Court, see Re Cosgrave, V.-C. M., 16 March, 1877, A. 450; and for the subsequent order for his discharge on his being placed on board a ship bound for New York, S. C., 22 Aug. 1877, A. 1717.

In a similar case of an assault by firing a pistol at the M. R. at the entrance to the Rolls House, the offender was given into the charge of the police, committed, tried, and convicted for a criminal offence, and was afterwards detained at Her Majesty's pleasure as a lunatic: Re Dodwell, Feb. 1878.

For order that the publisher of a newspaper containing improper comments on pending proceedings should pay a fine of 50*l.*, and costs of application as between solr and client, see Re Crown Bank; Re O'Malley, 44 Ch. D. 649, 653.

For forms of proceedings in reference to committal, see D. C. F. 439 et seq.

NOTES.

SPECIAL CONTEMPTS.

In cases of special contempt it has been held that the order for committal should contain an adjudication of the contempt, and a declaration of the guilt of the party, see Exp. Van Sandau, 1 Ph. 445, 605; but such adjudication is not essential: S. C., et v. inf. Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS," s. xxii.

For contempt of subpoena, and assault on the party serving it, if established by two witnesses, the order to commit was absolute: if by one witness only, nisi: Elliot v. Halmarack, 1 Mer. 302; Van v. Price, 1 Dick. 91; and the course is the same where the contempt is for violence or abusive or scandalous words against the Court or the process thereof: see Re Johnson, 36 W. R. 51.

The power of the Court to commit to prison for contempt of Court is not affected by the Debtors Act, 1869: Harvey v. Hall, 11 Eq. 31; except in cases when the contempt consists in default of payment of money: Esdaile v. Visser, 13 Ch. D. 421, C. A.; Micklethwaite v. Fletcher, 27 W. R. 793; Tilney v. Stamford, 28 W. R. 582.

As to when proceedings should be by way of committal, and when by way of attachment, see Memorandum of Mr. Lavie, Registrar, note to Re Evans, E. v. Noton, (1893) 1 Ch. 259 et seq.; D. v. A. & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 484; Oswald on Contempt, pp. 239—245.

To publish, with or without comments, the statement of claim, pleadings, or evidence in any pending action or matter, or any ex parte or defamatory statement tending to prejudice the minds of the public against persons concerned as parties, or to prevent a fair trial, before the action, &c. is finally heard, is a contempt of Court which will be restrained by injunction (see inf. Chap. XXXI., "INJUNCTIONS," s. xi.), and may be punished by imprisonment or fine: Tichborne v. Mostyn, 7 Eq. 55, n.; Daw v. Eley, Ib. 49; Re Cheltenham and Swansea Wagon Co., 8 Eq. 580; Bowden v. Russell, W. N. (77) 55; Gen. Exch. Bk. v. Horner, W. N. (68) 259; Roach v. Garvan, 2 Dick. 794; S. C., 2 Atk. 469; Re Crown Bank, Ltd., 44 Ch. D. 649; and such a contempt is of a "criminal" nature within sect. 47 of the Jud. Act, 1873, so that there is no appeal: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59, C. A.

Secus, pending a winding-up petition, the issue, and distribution amongst the shareholders, of a circular stating the charges against the directors on which the petition was based: Re London Flour Co., 16 W. R. 474; and pending an action for infringing a trade mark, the Plts are at liberty to warn the trade by circular, but to introduce discussion of the merits of the action is a contempt: Coates v. Chadwick, (1894) 1 Ch. 347; and innocently lending a newspaper containing scandalous matter is not such a publication as to amount to a contempt: McLeod v. St. Aubyn, (1899) A. C. 549, P. C.

So, also, it is a contempt to address public meetings, and allege that a Deft, against whom a true bill has been found, is innocent and the victim of a conspiracy: Onslow and Whalley's Case, L. R. 9 Q. B. 219; or to advertise the intended delivery of a sermon "with special reference to the trial in which the town is so deeply interested": Mackett v. Herne Bay Commrs, 24 W. R. 845; or prematurely to publish reports of an examination under the Companies Act, 1862, s. 115: American Exchange v. Gillig, 58 L. J. Ch. 706.

The Court refused to commit a Deft who published an accurate account of what passed in Court, and who had undertaken not to publish trade "cautions": Buenos Ayres Gas Co. v. Wilde, 29 W. R. 43; or where reports of proceedings in camera in reference to a ward constituted a contempt which was not serious and was unintentional: Re Martindale, (1894) 3 Ch. 193; or where articles in a newspaper which referred to a pending prosecution were not intended or calculated to prejudice the fair trial of the charges: Reg. v. Payne and Cooper, (1896) 1 Q. B. 577; and motions to commit the publishers of newspapers who have inadvertently been guilty of a mere technical contempt, may be treated as vexatious and an abuse of the process of the Court: S. C.

Contempt of Court may be committed by publication of scandalous matter respecting the Court after adjudication as well as pending a case before it. In this country (as distinguished from the colonies) committals for such contempts are rarely resorted to: McLeod v. St. Aubyn, (1899) A. C. 549, P. C.; but the summary jurisdiction will still be exercised in the case of scurrilous personal abuse of a Judge: Reg. v. Gray, (1900) 2 Q. B. 36; 69 L. J. Q. B. 502.

Sending letters threatening exposure, using intimidating language, or publication of articles in a newspaper calculated to deter parties from prosecuting their action, or to prevent witnesses from coming forward to give their evidence, is also a contempt of Court: Smith v. Lukeman, 2 Jur. N. S. 1202; Exp. Chetwynd, 10 Jur. N. S. 1188; Shaw v. S., 2 Sw. & Tr. 517; Re Tyrone Election Petn., 1. R. 7 C. L. 242; Welby v. Still, 66 L. T. 523; or slander of title of the business carried on by a receiver and manager appointed by the Court: Helmore v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 449, C. A.; or to publish an advertisement offering a reward for evidence in terms tending to prejudice and discredit a petitioner for divorce: Butler v. B., 13 P. D. 73; or denying charges in divorce petition, and offering reward for information which would lead to the conviction of their authors: Brodribb v. B., 11 P. D. 66; but to advertise for witnesses is not per se a contempt: Plating Co. v. Farquharson, 17 Ch. D. 49, C. A. (per Jessel, M. R., questioning Pool v. Sacheverel, 1 P. Wms. 675); nor advertisements, pending appeal in a patent case, for funds, on the ground that it was of general interest to the trade, and offering reward for evidence of anticipations: S. C.; and see Re New Gold Coast Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 860.

A Plt was committed for endeavouring to intimidate a witness, and to deter the Deft from calling a witness: Bromilow v. Phillips, 40 W. R. 220; but the Court declined to order payment of costs as between solr and client: Ib.

It is not of course that the contemnor in such a case should be ordered to pay costs as between solr and client: Bromilow v. Phillips, 40 W. R. 220: Welby v. Still, sup.

After verdict, leave having been reserved to move for a non-suit or new trial on technical grounds, an action is not still pending so as to make the publication of any comments thereon a contempt: Metzler v. Gounod, 30 L. T. 264.

Defiant disobedience of a Judge in the legitimate exercise of his jurisdiction may be punished by immediate committal: Watt v. Ligertwood, L. R. 2 H. L. Sc. 361; as also violent conduct and abusive language to a person engaged in serving the process of the Court: Price v. Hutchinson, 9 Eq. 534.

Addressing a contemptuous letter to a Judge reflecting upon, or tending to interfere with, the administration of justice in his Court, is a contempt, which in the case of a solr, as an officer of the Court, renders him liable to be struck off the roll, or to suspension from practice: see Re Keane, inf. Chap. XL., "SOLICITORS"; though not punishable by this extraordinary penalty if the letter is written by the practitioner not as an officer of the Court, but in his capacity as a suitor: Re Wallace, L. R. 1 P. C. 283.

An action for libel against the author of a pamphlet which was published pending a motion for new trial of an action for false imprisonment, and severely censured the proceedings and course of trial in such action, is not a bar to a motion by the Plt to commit for contempt of Court in publishing the pamphlet: Corkery v. Hickson, 1. R. 10 C. L. 174.

The warrant may be for absolute committal, and not necessarily until a fine be paid: Reg. v. Jordan, W. N. (88) 152; 36 W. R. 796.

Though a party be in contempt, he may move to discharge an adverse order: Futvoye v. Kennard, 2 Giff. 110, 533; or may take any steps necessary for his defence: Fry v. Ernest, 12 W. R. 97; 9 Jur. N. S. 1151.

As to contempt in cases of interference, or marriage without leave of the Court, with a ward, see inf. Chap. XXXVIII., "INFANTS."

As to the necessity of proving scienter, see Lake v. Metropolitan Music Hall Co., 58 L. J. Ch. 513, where an application for committal in respect of comments in a newspaper on the subject-matter of an action was refused, in the absence of proof that the alleged contemnor knew of the existence of the action.

For a case in which counsel was ordered to pay costs, and committed for obstructing the course of justice by conniving at a fraud on the Court, see Linwood v. Andrews, 58 L. T. 612; W. N. (88) 81; Dan. 715.

PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

Although a peer or M. P. is not liable in ordinary cases to be attached or proceeded against by any civil process involving personal arrest (see D. Newcastle v. Morris, L. R. 4 H. L. 661), this privilege of Parliament is no protection against arrest for a contempt of a gross or criminal nature: Onslow and Whalley's case, L. R. 9 Q. B. 219; Wellesley v. D. Beaufort; Lechmere Charlton's case, sup. p. 465; or for breach of an order against a receiver to pay money into Court: Re Gent, Gent-Davis v. Harris, 40 Ch. D. 190.

The privilege extends for forty days before and after prorogation or dissolution of Parliament, and although, after dissolution, the member is not re-elected: Re Anglo-French Co-operative Society, 14 Ch. D. 533.

Officers and attendants upon the Court, suitors and witnesses, have privilege eundo, redeundo, et morando for their necessary attendance, but not otherwise; and the arrest of any of them at such times of necessary attendance is a contempt of Court.

This privilege from arrest extends to witnesses and jurymen: see Gibbs v. Phillipson, 1 Russ. & My. 19; to parties to an action: Andrews v. Walton, 1 Mac. & G. 380; Plomer v. Macdonough, 1 D. & S. 232; to prosecutors, and also to accused persons admitted to bail and attending on their recognizances: Gilpin v. Cohen, L. R. 4 Ex. 131.

A solr is privileged from arrest in, and on his way to or from, Court or Judge's Chambers on business of his client: Dodd v. Holbrook, 11 Jur. N. S. 969; 12 Jur. N. S. 19; Re Jewitt, 33 Beav. 959; Eyre v. Barrow, 6 W. R. 767; and see Cordery, Solrs. 236—239; and a barrister is entitled to the same privilege: Anon., 1 Y. & C. Ex. 331.

But the privilege does not extend to arrest for disobedience to an order of a punitive and disciplinary character: Re Freston, 11 Q. B. D. 545, C. A.; and see Re Dudley, 12 Q. B. D. 44, C. A.; Hoborn v. Fowler, 62 L. J. Q. B. 49.

A bankrupt is privileged from arrest under an attachment for debt issued pending the proceedings in bankruptcy: Cobham v. Dalton, 10 Ch. 665; and see Re Deere, 10 Ch. 650; secus, where the solr is a defaulting trustee, and so amenable to the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court under the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4: Re Smith, Hands v. Andrews, (1893) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.; Re Edye, W. N. (91) 1; 63 L. T. 762; 39 W. R. 198.

But a person who has been attached and committed to prison under the Debtors Act, s. 4 (3) or (4), does not by subsequent adjudication of bankruptcy acquire privilege from arrest, or become entitled to his discharge from prison: E. Lewes v. Barnett, 6 Ch. D. 252.

6. Committal for Trial for Perjury.

UPON the trial of this action on the — day of —, and this day before the Court, and upon reading an affidavit of the Plt, filed &c., and the Plt and W. A. having been duly sworn, and upon hearing the evidence of the Plt in his own behalf, and the evidence of the said W. A. on behalf of the Defts, taken upon their respective oral examinations, this Court being of opinion that the Plt has been guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury in his evidence given as aforesaid before this Court, and that there is a reasonable cause for the prosecution of the Plt for perjury, doth order that the Plt [name] be prosecuted for such perjury and be committed until the next session of oyer and terminer or gaol delivery for the county of M.; And this Court doth require the Deft [name] to enter into a recognizance, conditioned to prosecute, or give evidence against, the said Plt.—S. v. W., V.-C. B., 19 Feb. 1877, B. 207.

7. Recognizance by Person directed to prosecute.

You [insert the name or names, and if more than one add, and each of you] shall acknowledge yourself [yourselves and each of you] to owe to our Sovereign Lady the Queen the sum of one hundred pounds [each] of good and lawful money of G. B., to be made and levied of your goods and chattels, lands, and tenements to the use of our said Lady the Queen, her heirs and successors; the condition of the recognizance being that if you shall appear at the next session of the Central Criminal Court to be holden in the City of London, and there prefer, or cause to be preferred, a bill of indictment for the offence of perjury against one [name], and there also duly prosecute such indictment, then this recognizance to be void, or else to stand in full force and virtue. Question.—Are you contented to be so bound? Answer.—I am.—S. v. W., sup.

“ This is to be read by the registrar; and the obligee is not required to sign any document.

8. Record of the Recognizance to prosecute.

B., to be made and levied of his [or their] goods and chattels, lands and tenements, to the use of our said Lady the Queen, her heirs and successors, if he [or they] the said [name] shall fail in the condition indorsed.—Taken and acknowledged the day and year first above mentioned at Lincoln's Inn, in the county of M.

	Before me,
By the Court,	(Signed) —, — J.
(Signed and sealed), —,
Registrar.

THE condition of the within written recognizance is such that whereas one [name] was on the — day of —, by virtue of an Act passed in the 14 & 15 V. intituled “An Act for further improving the administration of criminal justice” directed by &c. [name and title of Judge] to be prosecuted for perjury at the next session of the Central Criminal Court, if therefore he the said [name] shall appear at the next session of the Central Criminal Court, and there prefer or cause to be preferred a bill of indictment for the offence aforesaid against the said [name], and there also duly prosecute such indictment, then the said recognizance to be void, or else to stand in full force and virtue.—S. v. W., sup.

(Signed) —, Registrar.

The recognizance is engrossed on parchment and sent to the chief clerk at the Old Bailey.

9. Certificate signed by the Judge after the Prosecutor has been bound to enter into a Recognizance.

I [name and title of Judge] do hereby certify that it appears to me that the (Plt) [name] has been guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury in his evidence given orally (and by affidavit) before this Court on the trial of this action, and that there is reasonable cause for the prosecution of the said (Plt) for such perjury, and that I have directed the said (Plt) to be prosecuted for such perjury, and have committed him until the next session of oyer and terminer, or gaol delivery for the county of M.; and I have required the (Deft) [name] to enter into a recognizance conditioned to prosecute or give evidence against the said — accordingly.—S. v. W., V.-C. B., 19 Feb. 1877.

— J.

This certificate is given to the prosecutor under 14 & 15 V. c. 100, so as to entitle him to costs.

10. Appointment of Usher to take Person into Custody in absence of Tipstaff.

I [name and title of Judge] do appoint [name] one of the ushers of my Court to execute the orders made by me in the action of &c., on this day directing that [name] do stand committed to — prison.

Dated &c.,
(Signed) —,
— J.

A prisoner committed for perjury should be sent to Holloway Prison.

In the Q. B. Division, when a Deft is committed for contempt, a memorandum headed in the action in the following terms is signed by the Master: "The Deft C. D. is, for contempt in disobeying an injunction made in this action by Mr. Justice —, on the — day of —, committed to the custody of the keeper of Her Majesty's gaol at Holloway, to be kept in safe custody until the further order of this Court." This is handed to the tipstaff, who leaves the same with the keeper. On the following day the order is drawn up, and a copy sent to the keeper.

NOTES.

COMMITTAL AND PROSECUTION FOR PERJURY.

By the Criminal Procedure Act, 1851 (14 & 15 V.), c. 100, s. 19, the Judges or a Judge of the Superior Courts of Law and Equity, and other judicial persons, are empowered, in case it shall appear to him or them that any person has been guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury, in any evidence given, or in any affidavit, deposition, or examination, answer, or other proceeding, made or taken before him or them, to direct such person to be prosecuted for such perjury, in case there shall appear to him or them a reasonable cause for such prosecution; and to commit such person so directed to be prosecuted until the next session of oyer and terminer or gaol delivery for the county or other district within which such perjury was committed, unless such person shall enter into a recognizance, with one or more sufficient surety or sureties, conditioned for the appearance of such person at such next session of oyer and terminer or gaol delivery, and that he will then surrender and take his trial, and not depart the Court without leave; and to require any person he or they may think fit to enter into a recognizance conditioned to prosecute and give evidence against such person so directed to be prosecuted, and to give to the party so bound to prosecute a certificate of the same being directed, which certificate shall be given without fee or charge, and shall be deemed sufficient proof of such prosecution having been directed as aforesaid; and on production thereof the costs of the prosecution are to be allowed by the Court before whom the person is tried, unless that Court otherwise specially directs.

These provisions were acted upon by V.-C. Bacon, in S. v. W., 19 Feb. 1877: see Forms 6—9, sup. pp. 468—470.

SECTION VIII.—DISCHARGE OF CONTEMPT.

1. Order to discharge Prisoner in Custody under Attachment upon compliance with the Order.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for (the Deft) B., who alleged that the said B. is a prisoner in (Holloway) prison, in the custody of the sheriff of M., under an attachment issued against him pursuant to the order, dated &c., for his contempt in not [state the default], and that the said (Deft) B. hath since [state the compliance], and upon hearing counsel for the Plt, and upon reading [if so, an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion upon the Plt—enter any other evidence], This Court doth order that the said (Deft) B. be discharged out of the custody of the said sheriff as to his said contempt; And it is ordered that the said (Deft) B. do pay to the Plt A. his costs of this application, to be taxed &c.

For order to discharge a prisoner in custody for his contempt in not leaving certain accounts and a statement at Chambers pursuant to order upon payment of the Plt's costs occasioned by the said contempt, see Re Hoggett's Estate, Hoggett v. H., M. R., 17 April, 1878, A. 705.

2. Discharge of Prisoner in Custody for not attorning to Receiver—Plaintiff consenting.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for A., who alleged that the said A. is a prisoner in (Holloway) prison, as by the return of the governor of the said prison appears, for his contempt of this Court in not attorning to and becoming the tenant of S., the receiver appointed in this action in respect of &c., occupied by him, situate at &c., being premises comprised in the Plt's securities, as by the order, dated &c., directed; that the said A. has since attorned to and become the tenant of the Plt, and that the said A. is desirous of clearing his said contempt, and the Plt by his counsel consenting, It is ordered that the said A. be discharged out of custody as to his said contempt.—Smith v. Keene, V.-C. B., 4 May, 1878, B. 708.

3. Contempt condoned, and Prisoner discharged on payment of Sum on Account of Costs.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Deft H., who alleged that the Deft H. has been by virtue of the order, dated &c., a prisoner in (Holloway) prison since the — day of — for his contempt in the said order mentioned, and that he hath apologised for such contempt, as by his affidavit filed this day appears; and upon hearing counsel for the Plts, and upon reading the said order and affidavit, This Court doth order that the Deft H. do pay to Messrs. —, the Plt's solrs, the sum of £— on account of their costs of the said order, dated &c., and of this application; And it is ordered that upon such payment being made the Deft H. be discharged out of custody (as to his said contempt); And it is ordered that the costs of and relating to the said order and consequent thereon, and of this application, be taxed &c.; the Plts by their counsel undertaking to refund to the Deft H. the excess, if any, in case such costs when taxed shall amount to less than the sum of £—, so to be paid on account thereof; And it is ordered that the Deft H. do pay to the Plts the amount of their taxed costs, if any, beyond the said sum of £—.—See Price v. Hutchinson, V.-C. M., 12 Jan. 1870, B. 7; S. C., Sect. VII., Form 2, sup. p. 463.

The discharge should be limited to the particular contempt in question, because there may be other causes of detention.

4. Discharge of Prisoner under the Debtors Act, 1878 (41 & 42 V. c. 54).

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Deft B., and upon hearing counsel for the Plt, and upon reading the order dated &c., whereby it was ordered [state direction for payment]; the order dated &c., whereby it was ordered [state the leave to issue writ of attachment and the nature of the contempt]; an affidavit of &c., filed &c., and it appearing by the return of the sheriff of M. that the said (Deft) B. is a prisoner in Holloway prison in the custody of the sheriff of M. under a writ of attachment for his said contempt; and this Court having, pursuant to the Debtors Act, 1878, inquired into the case (and also ascertained that the said (Deft) B. is wholly unable to pay the said sum of £—), doth order that the said Deft B. be discharged out of the custody of the said sheriff of M. as to his said contempt.—See Michell v. Malings, V.-C. H., 6 Nov. 1878, B. 1852.

Mere inability to pay is not, in the absence of other circumstances, admitted as sufficient ground for refusing an attachment, or discharging out of custody: see Simpson v. Bell, sup. p. 442.

5. The like Order.

WHEREAS by an order dated the 2nd day of August, 1878, made upon the application of C., It was ordered that the said C. should be at liberty to issue a writ of attachment against the above-named S. for his contempt in not paying to the said C. the sum of £30 for costs, as in the said order mentioned, and an attachment was accordingly issued against the said S. directed to the sheriff of Surrey, and the said sheriff hath returned that the said S. is a prisoner in Wandsworth prison under his custody; And the said S. being this day brought to the bar of this Court, by virtue of a writ of habeas corpus issued pursuant to an order made upon his application, dated the 11th day of March, 1879, and now moving in person that he might be discharged out of custody under the said writ of attachment; And upon hearing counsel for the said C., and upon reading the said order, an affidavit filed &c., and the return of the said sheriff of Surrey, This Court, having inquired into the case, doth order that the said S. be discharged out of the custody of the said sheriff of Surrey as to his contempt in not complying with the said order dated the 2nd day of August, 1878; And it is ordered that the said S. do pay to the said C. his costs of this application, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master.—Re Scard, M. R., 14 March, 1879, B. 476.

There is now no necessity for an order to discharge a prisoner in custody for a year under the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4, as the writ of attachment is indorsed with a note that it does not authorize imprisonment beyond one year: Re Edwards, Brooke v. E., 21 Ch. D. 230; R. S. O., Appendix H., Form 12.

6. Discharge of Order for Attachment, and Attachment for Irregularity.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c. [Recite order to be discharged]; Now upon motion &c., of counsel for the (Deft) A., who alleged that a writ of attachment was issued against the said (Deft) A., pursuant to the said order directed to the sheriff of &c., and that it appears by the return of the said sheriff to the said writ, that the said A. is a prisoner in his custody for not &c. [State default for which the process issued], and that the said A. is advised that the said order and writ of attachment are irregular; And upon hearing counsel for the (Plt), and upon reading the said order and return, an affidavit of &c., filed &c. [and if so, an affidavit of service of notice of this motion on the (Plt)], This Court doth order that the said order dated &c., be discharged, and that the writ of attachment issued in pursuance thereof be set aside, and that the said A. be discharged out of custody as to his said contempt.

For such order, see Re Holt, L. J. James for V.-C. M., 6 March, 1879, A. 385; 11 Ch. D. 168, C. A.

7. Discharge of Prisoner on Letter from the Home Secretary.

THIS Court having been informed by a letter from the Secretary of State for the Home Department dated &c., enclosing reports relative to the Deft F., who was committed to prison for contempt on &c., and who is now a prisoner in Her Majesty's prison at Oxford, in the custody of the sheriff of the county of Oxford under writ of attachment issued against him pursuant to an order dated &c., for his contempt in not having lodged the sum of £— in Court pursuant to the said order, and also enclosing a doctor's certificate that it would endanger the life of the said Deft if he remained in prison, and counsel for the Plts being present, Let the Deft F. be forthwith discharged out of the custody of the said sheriff on the ground of his state of ill-health; but this order is to be without prejudice to his said contempt, and the Plts are to be at liberty at any time to apply to the Court with respect to the said contempt as they may be advised.—Scarlett v. Fletcher, Kay, J., 7 Nov. 1885, B. 1386.

For forms of proceedings in reference to discharge from custody and clearing contempt, see D. C. F. 442, 443.

NOTES.

DISCHARGE FROM CUSTODY.

A person who has been imprisoned for special contempt will be detained in prison until he has cleared his contempt by performing the act required and paying the costs, or by making an adequate submission, upon which the Court may think fit to release him, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as shall seem proper.

The form of writ of attachment now in use (see R. S. C., App. H., No. 12) bears an indorsement (added under O. LXI, 33), giving notice to the sheriff that the writ, if issued for default in payment of money, under s. 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869, does not authorize imprisonment for any longer period than one year, and it is the duty of the sheriff to act on this direction and discharge the prisoner at the end of the year, without further order: Re Edwards, Brooke v. E., 21 Ch. D. 230 (as to the mode of computation of time, see Migotti v. Colville, 4 C. P. D. 233). In cases not covered by the indorsement, the order of the Court for discharge must be obtained: see Edmonson v. Keyton, 2 Y. & C. Ex. 3; Gray v. Campbell, 2 Russ. & My. 223; and until such order has been obtained, the gaoler, whose duty is to obey the warrant, is not liable in damages for detaining a prisoner who is in custody under the ordinary writ of attachment: Greaves v. Keene, 4 Ex. D. 73; secus, if the time of detention is expressed in the warrant of committal: Moore v. Rose, L. R. 4 Q. B. 486.

Unless compliance with the order or performance of the act required shall have been certified by some officer of the Court, whose certificate is received as evidence thereof (e.g., the certificate of the paymaster), the application for discharge must, unless the party prosecuting the order (who should be served with notice) consents, be supported by affidavit.

In the case of committal for contempt in marrying a ward of Court, the contemnor will not be discharged until the certificate of solemnization of the marriage has been produced, and a settlement has been prepared and approved; but when these requisites have been complied with, he will not be kept in prison until the costs have been taxed: Cox v. Bennett, 31 L. T. 83; 22 W. R. 819.

So also in Felkin v. Herbert, 12 W. R. 333; 10 Jur. N. S. 62; 9 L. T. 635, the contemnor, after purging his contempt by ten days' imprisonment and a humble apology to the Court, was discharged on payment of the fees and paying a sum to be named for costs, subject to taxation, without awaiting taxation.

In cases of contempt for non-payment of money, a year's imprisonment should (semble) be treated as purging the contempt: M'Combe v. Gray, 4 L. R. Ir. 432.

A Deft who has cleared his contempt by performing the act required cannot, since the Debtors Act, 1869, be detained in prison for non-payment of the costs of his contempt: Jackson v. Mawby, 1 Ch. D. 87; and see Re Jarvis, Ward v. J., W. N. (86) 118.

But where the committal has been for breach of an order of the Court, and payment of costs has been imposed as the condition of his discharge, mere inability to pay those costs does not purge the contempt, nor entitle him to be discharged: Re M., 46 L. J. Ch. 24; S. C., nom. S. v. L., W. N. (76) 220.

Inability to pay was no ground for discharging a defaulting trustee or solr who had been committed under the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4 (3) or (4): Ransom v. Boyd, W. N. (77) 236; or for declining to commit in cases within these exceptions: see Evans v. Bear, 10 Ch. 75; et sup. p. 442.

But by the Debtors Act, 1878 (41 & 42 V. c. 54), in cases coming within the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 4 (3) or (4), the Court has jurisdiction to inquire into the circumstances of the case, and to grant or refuse the application for attachment or other process, or the application for discharge from arrest or imprisonment.

Under this Act (which is retrospective, and therefore extends to a trustee or solr committed before 13th Aug. 1878) a defaulting trustee already in prison under the Act of 1869, s. 4 (3), has been discharged upon inquiry into the circumstances of the case: see Michell v. Malings, Form 4, sup. p. 472; as also a solr, after three months' imprisonment, upon his making compensation to the client whose money he had misapplied: see Re Scard, Form 5, sup. p. 473; secus, where the conduct of the trustee was shown to have been grossly dishonest: Re A Solicitor, M. R., 6 Dec. 1878.

For terms of order of discharge where the contempt consisted in asserting a claim to houses, and endeavouring to take possession of them and declining to abandon claim, see In re Maria Anna Davies, 21 Q. B. D. 236; but as to the jurisdiction to make such order, quære.

DISCHARGE ON THE GROUND OF IRREGULARITY IN PROCESS.

Irregularity in the order on which the attachment is grounded, or in the notice of motion to commit, and semble, for leave to issue attachment, or in the affidavits in support, or in the issuing of the writ of attachment, are grounds for discharging an attachment, and for releasing from custody the person imprisoned.

An attachment has been discharged in the following instances:—

—where the indorsement on the copy of the order served stated that in default of payment the Deft would be liable to be arrested by the "Serjeant-at-Arms," instead of "under a writ of attachment": Hinde v. Blake, 5 Beav. 431; and see O. XLI, 5; but where the usual four-day order against a solr, who had not brought in his bill of costs, omitted the indorsement directed by O. XLI, 5, leave was given to serve the original order with the indorsement: Re Bowen, 11 W. R. 607;

—where the copy of the order on which the attachment had issued was wrongly intituled: Re Holt, 11 Ch. D. 168;

—where the copy of the taxing master's certificate, which had been served with an order to pay certain sums found due thereby, contained a clerical error by omitting the word "pounds:" Re Reynolds, 10 W. R. 709; and see Rex v. Calvert, 4 Tyr. 77; Reg. v. Burgess, 3 Nev. & P. 366;

—where the title of the affidavit of service of the order on which the attachment issued varied, though slightly, from the title of the order itself: McKenzie v. M., 5 D. G. & Sm. 338;

—where execution was issued prematurely: Bartlett v. Stinton, L. R. 1 C. P. 483; but in this case the Court imposed terms upon the contemnor; —where the order had been complied with, and notice of such compliance given to the Plt's solrs after issue of the writ, but before it was enforced by imprisonment: Gay v. Hancock, 56 L. T. 726.

Although the indorsement directed by O. XLI, 5, has not been inserted, yet if the order is served a second time, properly indorsed, the attachment thereunder will hold good, though the time limited by the first order has elapsed: Re Gregg, 9 Eq. 137; and see Re Belton, 25 Beav. 368.

Where the time for payment is extended by a subsequent order, it is sufficient if the indorsement is on the first order: Treherne v. Dale, 27 Ch. D. 66, C. A.

As to bringing actions at law for damages for wrongful attachment or improper use of the process of the Court, see Goucher v. Clayton, 14 L. T. 494; Whitehead v. Lynes, 34 Beav. 161. In such a case, since the Jud. Act, an inquiry as to damages might be directed in Chambers.

Applications to discharge or set aside a process of contempt, on the ground that it was irregularly issued, are made by motion on notice, and supported by affidavit (see Dan. 726; D. C. F. 443), and the application must be made before there has been any waiver by the contemnor of the irregularity by compliance with the order (e.g., in the case of sequestration), by permitting the sequestrators to deal with his property, by his direction and with his approbation: see Const v. Barr, 2 Russ. 161, 168; Dan. 727.

Although a person actually in custody on an attachment irregularly issued will not by any waiver on his part of the irregularity forfeit his right to be discharged (Haynes v. Ball, 4 Beav. 101), such waiver, if he is not in custody, is available in answer to his application to set aside proceedings founded on the attachment: Needham v. N., 1 Ph. 640.

An order of course exp. discharging an attachment and made on an insufficient affidavit was discharged so as to revive the original order for attachment: Price v. P., 48 L. J. Ch. 215.

NOTES.

CHARGING ORDER—PROCEDURE.

By the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 V. c. 110), s. 14, as extended by the Judgments Act, 1840 (3 & 4 V. c. 82), s. 1; and by O. XLVI, 1, on the application of any judgment creditor, an order may be made by any Divisional Court, or by any Judge, charging with payment of the amount for which judgment has been recovered, and interest thereon, any Government stock, funds, or annuities, or any stock or shares in any public co. in England (whether incorporated or not) standing in the judgment debtor's name in his own right, or in the name of any person in trust for him, or (3 & 4 V. c. 82, s. 1) in the name of the Acc. G. (since the Chancery Funds Act, 1872 (35 & 36 V. c. 44), s. 6, the Paymaster-General), or in which the judgment debtor has a vested or contingent interest, whether in possession, remainder, or reversion, and the dividends, interest, or annual produce of any such stock, &c. Such order entitles the judgment creditor to all such remedies as he would have been entitled to if the charge had been made in his favour by the judgment debtor; but no proceedings can be taken to have the benefit of the charge until after the expiration of six calendar months from the date of the order. As to stock, &c., standing in the name of the paymaster it is provided, by 3 & 4 V. c. 82, s. 1, that no such order is to prevent the Bank of England or any other public co. from permitting any transfer of such stock, &c., or payment of the interest, &c. thereof in such manner as the Court (of Chancery) may direct, or have any greater effect than if such debtor had charged such stock, &c., or interest, &c., in favour of the judgment creditor with the amount to be mentioned in such order. The meaning of this enactment is that the charge is to be as effectual as if the debtor had power to charge, and had charged, his interest on the stock, and therefore a charging order may be valid although the judgment debtor is a lunatic: Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. 1. A charging order is not a "transaction" protected by s. 49 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883: In re O'Shea's Settlement, Courage v. O'Shea, (1895) 1 Ch. 325, C. A.; and see Wild v. Southwood, (1897) 1 Q. B. 317. There is no power under the section to make a charging order against the exor of a deceased judgment debtor, and quære whether judgment on which to ground a charging order can be obtained against such exor: Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. 386, C. A. Leave to issue execution under O. XLII, r. 23 (v. sup. p. 426), is not equivalent to a judgment for this purpose: S. C.

By 1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 15, the charging order is to be made in the first instance ex parte and without any notice to the judgment debtor, and should be an order to show cause only; and such order, if any Government stock, funds, or annuities, or any stock or shares in any public co. standing in the name of the judgment creditor in his own right or in the name of any person in trust for him, are to be affected by such order, shall restrain the Bank of England or the public co. from permitting a transfer thereof in the meantime and until such order shall be made absolute or be discharged. If after notice of such order to the persons to be restrained thereby, or in case of corporations to any authorized agent of such corporation, and before the order shall be discharged or made absolute, such corporation or person shall permit any such transfer to be made, then and in such case the corporation or person so permitting such transfer shall be liable to the judgment creditor for the value or amount of the property so charged and so transferred, or such part thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy his judgment. No disposition of the judgment debtor in the meantime shall be valid as against the judgment creditor; and unless the debtor shall within a time to be mentioned in such order show cause to the contrary, the order shall, after proof of notice thereof to the debtor, his attorney, or agent, be made absolute; provided that the Judge shall, on application of the judgment debtor, or any person interested, have full power to discharge or vary such order and to award such costs upon such application as he may think fit.

The judgment debtor is the only person who can show cause; his exor cannot: Stewart v. Rhodes, sup.

By O. XLVI, 1, an order charging stock or shares may be made by any Divisional Court, or by any Judge, and the proceedings for obtaining such order shall be such as are directed, and the effect such as is provided by the above Acts, 1 & 2 V. c. 110, ss. 14, 15, and 3 & 4 V. c. 82, s. 1.

An order enforcing payment of costs in lunacy by directing a transfer of Consols is not a charging order within the rule: Re Cathcart, (1893) 1 Ch. 466, C. A.

By r. 2, the writ of distringas under the Court of Chancery Act, 1841 (5 V. c. 5), s. 5, is no longer to issue; and rr. 4—11 contain provisions substituting for such writ, and with the same force and effect, service by any person claiming to be interested in any stock (including shares, securities, and dividends thereon: rr. 3, 3a), standing in the books of a co. (including the Bank of England, and any other public co., whether incorporated or not: r. 3), of an office copy of the affidavit and duplicate of the notice made in form therein prescribed (R. S. O., App. B., Forms 22, 27), and filed as therein directed.

By 1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 18, the effect of judgments was extended to all decrees or orders of Courts of Equity, and all rules of Courts of Common Law, and all orders of the L. C. or of the Court of review in Chancery, and orders of the L. C. in Lunacy, whereby any sum of money, or any costs, charges, or expenses should be payable to any person; and by 27 & 28 V. c. 112, s. 2 (which enables the creditor to whom any land of his debtor shall have been actually delivered in execution to obtain upon petition a summary order for sale), the term "judgment" includes registered decrees and orders of Courts of Equity and Bankruptcy, and other orders having the operation of a judgment (sect. 2); but the Act is not retrospective: Re Isle of Wight Ferry Co., 11 Jur. N. S. 279; 34 L. J. Ch. 194; 12 L. T. 263.

For an order to operate as a judgment, so as to give the right to a charging order, it must be an order for payment of a specific sum of money to some person: Dan. 751; Fisher on Mortgage, 237; and a mere order for an account of what is due in respect of an annuity and payment is not, pending the account, and until the amount has been ascertained, an order for payment so as to entitle the party to a charging order: Widgery v. Tepper, 6 Ch. D. 364, C. A.; Chadwick v. Holt, 8 D. M. & G. 584; nor is the Master's certificate finding money to be due, though (according to former practice) adopted by the Judge: E. Mansfield v. Ogle, 4 D. & J. 38; nor an order for payment of money to the credit of an action: Ward v. Shakeshaft, 1 Dr. & S. 269.

But a charging order may be presently made though the judgment is for payment on or before a future day named: Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 Ch. D. 130; Younghusband v. Gisborne, 1 D. & S. 209.

In order to give effect to a decree or order of the Court of Chancery a charging order might be made by a Chancery Judge: Stanley v. Bond, 7 Beav. 386; but in order to give effect to a judgment at law upon a fund in the Court of Chancery, the practice was first to obtain a charging order from a Common Law Judge in Chambers, and then to apply in Chancery for a stop order as ancillary to the charging order: Miles v. Presland, 4 M. & Cr. 431; Hulkes v. Day, 10 Sim. 41; and see Re Nowell, 11 W. R. 897.

Under the new procedure a preliminary charging order need not be obtained by a person who has obtained judgment in another Division of the High Court before application for a stop order in the Ch. Div.: Hopewell v. Barnes, 1 Ch. D. 630; Shaw v. Hudson, 48 L. J. Ch. 689.

Sect. 14 of 1 & 2 V. c. 110, does not extend to money, and O. XLVI, 3, whereby the expression "stock" was defined as including "shares, securities, and money," has been altered (August, 1888) by substituting the words "the dividends thereon" for "money."

But by way of equitable execution, and in aid of the power conferred by sect. 12 of 1 & 2 V. c. 110, of taking money, &c. under a fi. fa., a charging order can be made by a Judge of the Q. B. Div. upon cash standing to the credit of the debtor in the Ch. Div.: Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. 488, C. A. Such an order may, in a fit case, be made ex parte, and notice to the paymaster is sufficient without obtaining a stop order or the appointment of a receiver: Ib.; and v. sup. Form 3.

Applications for charging orders are now usually made by summons. For forms of summons and affidavit in support, see D. C. F. 461—463.

A charging order need not have been intituled in any cause or matter, but was sufficiently intituled "In the matter of the Act 1 & 2 V. c. 110, and of the Act 3 & 4 V. c. 82": L. Hastings v. Beavan, 10 W. R. 206; but a charging order made in the Ch. Div. on a fund in Court is intituled either in the action or matter to the credit of which the fund stands.

By O. LIV, 12, applications by summons for charging orders are excepted from the jurisdiction exercised by a Master in the Q. B. Div., and by a registrar in the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division.

The six months' proviso in sect. 14 does not prevent the creditor from obtaining a stop order against receipt by the debtor within the six months of dividends on the stock charged: Watts v. Jefferyes, 3 Mac. & G. 372.

And within this period the judgment creditor might, it seems, file a bill for protection of his interest in the fund: Bristed v. Wilkins, 3 Ha. 235; but payment to the judgment creditor who has obtained a charging order would not, without consent of the debtor, be ordered on petition: Whitfield v. Prickett, 13 Sim. 259.

By the Partnership Act, 1890, s. 23 (v. sup. p. 424), a judgment creditor of a partner may obtain a charging order on the interest of the partner in the partnership property and profits. The procedure under the section is now regulated by O. XLVI, 1a, 1b, for which v. sup. p. 424.

EFFECT OF CHARGING ORDER.

After the charging order has been made absolute the Court has no jurisdiction to rescind or vary it: Drew v. Willis, (1891) 1 Q. B. 456; Jeffreyes v. Reynolds, 52 L. J. Q. B. 55; 48 L. T. 358.

A charging order, when made absolute, operates from the date of the order nisi, and can only be defeated by some prior charge, showing that it ought not to have been made; and a subsequent admon judgment, or order on a summons in an admon action directing payment out of a fund affected by the previous order nisi, will not have this effect: Haly v. Barry, 3 Ch. 452 (explaining Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 470); Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. 488, 495, C. A.; Re Womersley, Etheridge v. W., 29 Ch. D. 557; Re Bell, Carter v. Stadden, 54 L. T. 370; 34 W. R. 363; Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. 386, C. A.

But when an assignment has been perfected by notice to the trustees before paying the fund into Court, a subsequent judgment creditor does not, by obtaining a charging order on the fund in Court, get priority over the assignee who has not obtained such order: Re Bell, 34 W. R. 363; 54 L. T. 370; Brearcliff v. Dorrington, 4 D. & S. 122.

A charging order under sect. 14 creates such an incumbrance as will determine a life interest, limited to A. until he executes some assignment or act whereby the interest may be incumbered: Montefiore v. Behrens, 1 Eq. 171; or "until he should do or suffer any act" whereby the dividends shall become payable to another person: Roffey v. Bent, 3 Eq. 759; and see Hurst v. H., 21 Ch. D. 278; but it is an involuntary alienation: Re Kelly's Settlement, West v. Turner, 59 L. T. 494 (and see Wild v. Southwood, (1897) 1 Q. B. 317), not a contract; and therefore the incumbrancer desiring to enforce it cannot obtain leave for service out of the jurisdiction: Moritz v. Stephen, 36 W. R. 779; 58 L. T. 850.

An order nisi charging shares under 1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 14, is not, as between the creditor and the debtor's trustee in bankruptcy, an "execution against the goods of a debtor" within the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 45: Re Hutchinson, 16 Q. B. D. 515.

And a charging order against the debtor will not affect property assigned by the debtor between the date of the judgment on which the charging order was obtained and the charging order: Scott v. L. Hastings, 4 K. & J. 633.

And see Fish. Mort. 620; and inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

Mere notice of the charging order, though left and entered in the pay office (formerly office of the Acc. Gen.), did not operate as a stop order to prevent a transfer of the fund; and was of no avail against a stop order on the fund afterwards obtained: Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 470; but now under the Jud. Acts, and S. C. F. R., r. 99, notice is sufficient, and a stop order is no longer necessary: Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. 488, C. A.

On the question whether a charging order on stock standing in the name of a trustee in trust for the judgment debtor, gives the judgment creditor priority over a prior assignment without notice to the trustee, see Watts v. Porter, 3 E. & B. 743.

The opinion of the majority of the Q. B. that the assignment without notice was inoperative as against the subsequent charging order, has been disapproved, and that of Erle, J., followed, in Beavan v. L. Oxford, 6 D. M. & G. 492; Kinderley v. Jervis, 22 Beav. 1; Scott v. L. Hastings, 4 K. & J. 633; Pickering v. Ilfracombe Ry., L. R. 3 C. P. 235; Robinson v. Nesbitt, Ib. 264; Gill v. Continental Gas Co., L. R. 7 Ex. 332; Punchard v. Tomkins, 31 W. R. 286; Re Bell, Carter v. Stadden, 54 L. T. 370; 34 W. R. 363; Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. 1.

It has been held that a charging order may be made on shares standing in the name of a mere trustee: Cragg v. Taylor, L. R. 1 Ex. 148; Fuller v. Earle, 7 Ex. 796; and where the judgment debtor is not the only person beneficially interested: S. W. Loan Co. v. Robertson, 8 Q. B. D. 17; Fowler v. Churchill, 11 M. & W. 57, 323.

And qualification shares of a director, of which other persons are beneficial owners, though held by him "in his own right" within sect. 14, cannot be charged: Howard v. Sadler, (1893) 1 Q. B. 1; Cooper v. Griffin, (1892) 1 Q. B. 740, C. A.; Pulbrook v. Richmond Cons. Mining Co., 9 Ch. D. 610.

It has been also held that if the judgment debtor in whose name the shares stand has no beneficial interest in them, the charging order nisi will not prevent a transfer: Gill v. Continental Gas Co., L. R. 7 Ex. 332.

As stated by Erle, J., in Watts v. Porter, 3 Ell. & Bl. 758, a judgment creditor with a charging order gets all such remedies as (and no more than) he would have been entitled to if such charge had been made in his favour by the judgment debtor; and see Re Blakely Ordnance Co., 25 W. R. 111; 35 L. T. 617; 46 L. J. Ch. 367; Onslow's Trusts, 20 Eq. 677; Gill v. Continental Gas Co., L. R. 7 Ex. 332, 338; and the Court has no jurisdiction to order a sale, which can only be obtained in separate proceedings: Leggott v. Western, 12 Q. B. D. 287.

The interest of a legatee in the residuary produce of stocks and shares bequeathed to him, subject to a trust for payment of debts and legacies and conversion, is not an interest which can be charged by him with his judgment debt, under 1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 14, and 3 & 4 V. c. 82, s. 1; Dixon v. Wrench, L. R. 4 Ex. 154. And see Cragg v. Taylor, L. R. 2 Ex. 131; Re Ashton, W. N. (00) 109.

A charging order on a fund standing to the credit of a lunatic, ought to be in form unconditional, and as to a specified amount, and not leaving the amount to be charged to be determined by the Lords Justices: Horne v. Pountain, 23 Q. B. D. 264.

Charging orders on stock in Court to the credit of a lunatic, worded so as not to be enforceable until his death, prevail over any claim by his administratrix: Re Leavesley, (1891) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.

Maintenance for a lunatic will be allowed out of his fund in Court although the capital is thereby rendered insufficient for payment of creditors who have obtained charging orders: Re Plenderleith, (1893) 3 Ch. 332, C. A.; but this rule does not affect funds in the High Court, and in such case only the balance of the fund after satisfying the charge will be transferred to lunacy: Re Brown, Llewellyn v. B., (1900) 1 Ch. 489.

A charging order upon the next accruing dividends of property settled to the separate use of a married woman with restraint on anticipation is inoperative: Stanley v. S., 7 Ch. D. 589; as also a charging order in respect of a debt which is void by reason of the contractor's infancy: Onslow's Trusts, 20 Eq. 677; or upon a pension granted to the judgment debtor by the E. I. Co.: Morris v. Manesty, 7 Q. B. 674; or Government life annuities and the arrears: Taylor v. Turnbull, 4 H. & N. 495.

The order nisi could not be made absolute where the judgment debtor was dead when it was obtained: Finney v. Hinde, 4 Q. B. D. 102; and see Stewart v. Rhodes, (1900) 1 Ch. 386, C. A.; v. sup. p. 481.

A bankruptcy notice was not set aside, because during the seven days of pendency the creditor had obtained a charging order on shares of the debtor, as the shares could be sold subject to notice to the creditor: Re Sedgwick, Exp. McMurdo, 60 L. T. 9; 37 W. R. 72.

A judgment creditor could not, by analogy to an attachment of a legal debt under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, ss. 60—67, obtain a charging order in Equity on property which, from being in the name of trustees, was a mere equitable debt to the judgment debtor: Horsley v. Cox, 4 Ch. 92.

Service of a charging order nisi on shares upon the solr and the broker, and also at the last address of the contributory, was held sufficient service before applying to draw up the order absolute: The Paragon and Spero Mining Co., 8 Jur. N. S. 11; 10 W. R. 76.

Transfer of Consols was ordered, though not claimed or provided for by the order nisi: Ricketts v. R., W. N. (91) 29.

And as to charging orders, see Dan. 749 et seq.; Lewin, 987 et seq.; Fish. Mort. 239 et seq.; Edwards on Exton., 331 et seq.

SECTION II.—ATTACHMENT OF DEBTS.

1. Garnishee Order Nisi.

UPON the application of the Plts (creditors), and upon hearing the solrs for the applicants, and upon reading an affidavit of &c., Let all debts due and owing or accruing due from the Deft C. A. and J. S., of &c., as trustees of the will of L., late of &c. (the garnishees), to the said Deft C. A. (debtor) in respect of her share of the annual income of the estate of the said testator, be attached to answer the sum of £—, being the amount of a judgment recovered against the said Deft C. A. by the said Plts on the — day of —, under the judgment dated &c.; And Let the said Deft C. A. and the said J. S., their solrs or agents, attend before Mr. Justice —, at his Chambers in &c., on the — day of —, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why they should not pay to the said Plts the debt due to them from the said Deft C. A., or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the said judgment.—Birch v. Anderton, M. R. at Chambers, 11 Dec. 1875, A. 1822.

For like order, that “all debts due and owing or accruing due from — (the garnishees) to the Deft be attached to answer the sum of &c., ordered to be paid to the Plt by the said Deft,” &c., see Gillot v. Ker, M. R., in Chambers, 5 May, 1876, A. 743.

2. Garnishee Order Absolute for Attachment of Debts.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c. (Recite former order, Form 1)—And the applicants by their solrs attending this day, and the said C. A. and J. S. not appearing in person nor by their solr, though they have been duly served with the said order as by the affidavit of &c. appears, and upon reading &c.; It is ordered that the Deft C. A. and the said J. S., the garnishees, do pay any sum or sums of money now in their hands as trustees of the will of L., the testator &c., in respect of the interest which the said C. A. takes under the said will, to the Plts B. &c., not exceeding the said sum of £—, being the (amount of the) judgment recovered by the said Plts against the said Deft C. A., together with interest thereon at the rate of £4 p. c. per ann. until payment.

3. Attachment of Moneys in the Hands of a Receiver on Application of a Judgment Creditor.

UPON the application &c., It is ordered that any sum or sums of money now in the hands of the receiver payable or accruing due to the Deft E. G. be (subject to any prior incumbrances thereon) attached to answer the sum of £—, being the amount of the judgment recovered against the said Deft E. G. by the applicant on the — day of —, with interest at £4 p. c. per ann. from the date of the said judgment; And it is ordered that the said receiver do after payment of any prior incumbrances thereon pay any sum or sums of money in his hands, payable or accruing due to the said Deft E. G., to the applicant, not exceeding the amount of the said judgment debt with interest.

For forms of summons and affidavit in support, see D. C. F. 466, 467.

NOTES.

By O. XLII, 32, the party entitled to enforce a judgment or order for the recovery or payment of money may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order that the debtor liable under such judgment or order, or, in the case of a corporation, that any officer thereof be orally examined as to whether any and what debts are owing to the debtor, and whether the debtor has any and what other property or means of satisfying the judgment or order, before a Judge or an officer of the Court, as the Court or a Judge shall appoint; and the Court or Judge may make an order for the examination of such judgment debtor, and for the production of any books or documents.

The examination under this rule is intended to be of the most stringent character: Republic of Costa Rica v. Strousberg, 16 Ch. D. 8, C. A.; et v. sup. p. 427.

By O. XLV, 1, "the Court or a Judge may, upon the ex parte application of any person who has obtained a judgment or order for the recovery or payment of money, either before or after any oral examination of the debtor liable under such judgment or order, and upon affidavit by himself or his solicitor stating that judgment has been recovered, or the order made, and that it is still unsatisfied, and to what amount, and that any other person is indebted to the judgment debtor, and is within the jurisdiction, order that all debts owing or accruing from such third person (hereinafter called the garnishee) to such debtor shall be attached to answer the judgment or order; and by the same or any subsequent order it may be ordered that the garnishee shall appear before the Court or a Judge or an officer of the Court as such Court or Judge shall appoint, to show cause why he should not pay the person who has obtained such judgment or order the debt due from him to such debtor, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the judgment or order."

By r. 2, "service of an order that debts due or accruing to a debtor liable under a judgment or order shall be attached, or notice thereof to the garnishee in such manner as the Court or Judge shall direct, shall bind such debts in his hands."

By r. 3, "if the garnishee does not forthwith pay into Court the amount due from him to the debtor liable under a judgment or order, or an amount equal to the judgment or order, and does not dispute the debt due or claimed to be due from him to such debtor, or if he does not appear upon summons, then the Court or Judge may order execution to issue, and it may issue accordingly, without any previous writ or process, to levy the amount due from such garnishee, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the judgment or order."

By r. 4, "if the garnishee disputes his liability, the Court or Judge, instead of making an order that execution shall issue, may order that any issue or question necessary for determining his liability be tried or determined in any manner in which any issue or question in an action may be tried or determined."

By r. 5, "whenever in proceedings to obtain an attachment of debts it is suggested by the garnishee that the debt sought to be attached belongs to some third person, or that any third person has a lien or charge upon it, the Court or Judge may order such third person to appear, and state the nature and particulars of his claim upon such debt."

By r. 6, "after hearing the allegations of any third person under such order as in r. 5 mentioned, and of any other person whom by the same or any subsequent order the Court or Judge may order to appear, or in case of such third person not appearing when ordered, the Court or Judge may order execution to issue to levy the amount due from such garnishee, or any issue or question to be tried or determined according to the preceding rules of this order, and may bar the claim of such third person, or make such other order as such Court or Judge shall think fit, upon such terms, in all cases, with respect to the lien or charge (if any) of such third person, and to costs, as the Court or Judge shall think just and reasonable."

By r. 7, "payment made by or execution levied upon the garnishee under any such proceeding as aforesaid shall be a valid discharge to him as against the debtor, to the amount paid or levied, although such proceedings may be set aside, or the judgment or order reversed."

By r. 8, "there shall be kept by the proper officer a debt attachment book, and in such book entries shall be made of the attachment and proceedings thereon, with names, dates, and statements of the amount recovered, and otherwise; and copies of any entries made therein may be taken by any person upon application to the proper officer."

By r. 9, "the costs of any application for an attachment of debts, and of any proceedings arising from or incidental to such application, shall be in the discretion of the Court or a Judge, and as regards the costs of the judgment creditor shall, unless otherwise directed, be retained out of the money recovered by him under the garnishee order, and in priority to the amount of the judgment debt." (July, 1901.)

With the exception of r. 4, which is varied from sect. 64, these rules are in substance identical with the garnishee clauses which were introduced as a new remedy against the property of the judgment debtor by the C. L. P. Acts, 1854 (17 & 18 V. c. 125), ss. 60—67; 1860 (23 & 24 V. c. 126), ss. 29, 30; both repealed by 46 & 47 V. c. 49.

By O. XLVIII, r. 9, debts owing from a firm carrying on business within the jurisdiction may be attached under O. XLV, although one or more members of such firm may be resident abroad: provided that any person having the control or management of the partnership business or any member of the firm within the jurisdiction is served with the garnishee order. An appearance by any member pursuant to an order shall be a sufficient appearance by the firm.

The object of sect. 61 (corresponding with r. 1), was to give a judgment creditor, who cannot levy upon the chattels of his debtor, a remedy against his debts by attaching both existing and accruing debts, and by enforcing the attachment by order for payment of debts as and when they become payable, making a fresh order for payment when each debt has become actually payable: Tapp v. Jones, L. R. 10 Q. B. 591; and see Sampson v. Seaton Ry. Co., Ib. 28.

Under the former procedure the power of attaching debts was only exercised in favour of persons who had obtained judgment in a superior Court of Common Law, and not a mere order for payment in Equity: see Exp. Financial Corp., L. R. 4 C. P. 155.

But this distinction has been abolished by the Jud. Acts, and any person who has obtained a judgment or order in any Division of the High Court, for the recovery or payment of money, may apply for a garnishee order, as provided by O. XLV, 1, 2.

The assignee of a judgment debt is a person who has "obtained" a judgment within O. XLV, 1, and entitled as such to a garnishee order: Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332.

An affidavit of information and belief is sufficient on an application for a garnishee order: Coren v. Barne, 22 Q. B. D. 249; De Pass v. Capital and Industries Corp., (1891) 1 Q. B. 216, C. A.; S. C., nom. Vinall v. De Pass, (1892) A. C. 90; and though the affidavit specifies a particular debt the inquiry is not limited to that, but the garnishee may be called upon to deny that he owes any debt to the judgment debtor, and if he refuses to do so, an order absolute will go.

DEBTS CAPABLE OF BEING ATTACHED.

A debt, in order to be capable of attachment, under O. XLV, 1, 2, must be one in which the judgment debtor is beneficially interested, and for which he is in a position to sue: Chatterton v. Watney, 16 Ch. D. 378; and only so much of the debt can be affected as the judgment debtor can honestly deal with at the time when the garnishee order is obtained: Davis v. Freethy, 24 Q. B. D. 519, C. A.; Re General Horticultural Co., Exp. Whitehouse, 32 Ch. D. 512; Badeley v. Consolidated Bank, 38 Ch. D. 238, C. A.; and see Hancock v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 456, C. A.; Re Greenwood, Sutcliffe v. Gledhill, (1901) 1 Ch. 887.

A merely conditional debt, which may or may not become due, cannot be attached, e.g., a claim for compensation money under a notice to treat: Richardson v. Elmit, 2 C. P. D. 9; Howell v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., 19 Ch. D. 508; or income arising from a trust fund which has not come to the hands of the trustee: Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518, C. A.; and per Brett, L. J., "accruing debt" means no more than debitum in præsentis solvendum in futuro: S. C.; or a legacy settled by the legatee before the garnishee order, though the settlement be impeachable: Vyse v. Brown, 13 Q. B. D. 199; and see Re Hayson, Booth v. Trail, 12 Q. B. D. 8, 10; and money paid by a debtor to an agent for the benefit of his creditors, the debtor having taken no step to revoke the trust, cannot be attached: Roberts v. Jones, 61 L. J. Q. B. 523; 66 L. T. 617; 40 W. R. 573.

Salary accruing is not a "debt owing or accruing" capable of being attached: Hall v. Pritchett, 3 Q. B. D. 215; Jones v. Thompson, E. B. & E. 63; and see Holmes v. Millage, (1893) 1 Q. B. 551, C. A.; secus, a sum already accrued due in respect of a superannuation pension to a retired police constable: Booth v. Trail, sup.

As to the effect of the Wages Attachment Abolition Act, 1870 (33 & 34 V. c. 30), see Gordon v. Jennings, 9 Q. B. D. 45; Booth v. Trail, sup.; and that the pay of an officer on service in the army or navy cannot be attached, see Apthorpe v. A., 12 P. D. 192; 35 W. R. 728; citing Flarty v. Odum, 3 T. R. 681; and that an assignment of the salary of the chaplain to a workhouse and workhouse infirmary is not void as against public policy, see Re Miram, (1891) 1 Q. B. 594.

A debt due to A. and B. jointly cannot be attached to answer the judgment debt of A. alone: O'Donovan v. Goggin, 30 L. R. Ir. 579; Macdonald v. Tacquah Co., 13 Q. B. D. 535; questioning Nash v. Pease, 47 L. J. Exch. 766, where an annuity to which a widow was entitled for the maintenance of herself and her infant son was held attachable in the hands of trustees, subject to inquiry what ought to be allowed for the son's maintenance.

Proceeds of a judgment paid into a County Court are not attachable as a "debt" due from the registrar of the Court: Dolphin v. Layton, 4 C. P. D. 130; and an absent shareholder's share of surplus assets paid by the liquidator to the Bank of England under Cos (Winding-up) Act, 1890, s. 15, is not a "debt": Spence v. Coleman, (1901) 2 K. B. 199, C. A.

Arrears of income which have accrued due to a married woman restrained from anticipation, and suing under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, may be retained by trustees to answer costs which she has been ordered personally to pay to them: Cox v. Bennett, (1891) 1 Ch. 617, C. A., distinguishing Re Glanvill, 31 Ch. D. 532, C. A. A judgment against a married woman, though limited to her separate estate, is still a judgment under O. XLV, 1: Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 103, C. A.; but a judgment against a married woman restrained from anticipation cannot be enforced by any kind of process against arrears of income accruing after the judgment: Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, (1894) 2 Q. B. 559, C. A.

And money recovered by a married woman in an action, as damages, could be garnished, although the judgment in such action was not in fact entered until after the commencement of the garnishee proceedings: Holtby v. Hodgson, sup.

As to the right to attach surplus proceeds of mortgaged property in the hands of a mortgagee, and that there can be no such right where the sale has taken place after the garnishee order, see Chatterton v. Watney, sup.; and for particular instances of debts which could or could not be attached, see Dan. 759—762; Chitty, Archbold, 928—933.

An equitable as well as a legal debt can now be attached: Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. (75) 232; Stumore v. Campbell, (1892) 1 Q. B. 314, C. A.; also money in the hands of a receiver and payable under order of the Court to the debtor: Cowan's Estate, Rapier v. Wright, 14 Ch. D. 638.

In Cremetti v. Crom, 4 Q. B. D. 225, it was held that an order of dismissal with costs for want of prosecution could not be enforced by attachment of debts due to Plt.

EFFECT OF GARNISHEE ORDER.

It has been held that a garnishee order nisi is a right much more specific than is created by the mere delivery of a writ of execution to the sheriff: Emanuel v. Bridger, L. R. 9 Q. B. 286; and see Holmes v. Tutton, 5 E. & B. 65; but until served on the garnishee it does not create a charge: Hamer v. Giles, 11 Ch. D. 942.

A garnishee order has not the effect of transferring the debt, nor does it give to the person obtaining the order any right to the securities for it, or any claim to the land comprised therein: Chatterton v. Watney, 17 Ch. D. 259, C. A.; nor convert him into a creditor who can present a winding-up petition: Re Combined Weighing Co., 43 Ch. D. 99, C. A.; but see Pritchett v. English and Colonial Syndicate, (1899) 2 Q. B. 428, C. A., per Romer, L. J.; nor is notice necessary to complete the title of a previous incumbrancer as against the garnishor: Re General Horticultural Co., 32 Ch. D. 512; Arden v. A., 29 Ch. D. 702; Badeley v. Consolidated Bank, 38 Ch. D. 238, C. A.

A Scotch arrestment, being equivalent to assignment with notice, may give the arrester of calls due from Scotch shareholders priority over debenture holders who have not given notice to such shareholders: Re Queensland Mercantile Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 536; and as to the effect of such arrestment against the property of a co. which is afterwards wound up, see Re W. Cumberland Iron and Steel Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 713.

A judgment creditor who had obtained and served on the garnishee a garnishee order nisi under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 61, before a liquidation petition had been presented, was a creditor "holding a security" upon the property of the bankrupt within the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 12: Lowe v. Blakemore, L. R. 10 Q. B. 485; Emanuel v. Bridger, L. R. 9 Q. B. 286; Slater v. Pinder, L. R. 6 Ex. 228; 7 Ex. 95; Exp. Roche, 6 Ch. 795; and see Stevens v. Phelps, 10 Ch. 417, 422.

A garnishee order nisi ought not to be made absolute if there is a reasonable suggestion that the judgment debtor is a trustee of the debt sought to be attached, but the money should be paid into Court to abide the event of inquiry: Roberts v. Death, 8 Q. B. D. 319, C. A.

An order attaching a debt due from exors should show on its face that they are charged in their representative capacity: Burton v. Roberts, 29 L. J. Ex. 484; and see Stevens v. Phelps, 10 Ch. 417.

A garnishee order, whether in the High Court or a County Court, attaches the whole money due, and bankers on whom such an order is served are justified in declining to honour their customers' cheques until the order is discharged: Rogers v. Whiteley, 23 Q. B. D. 236; S. C., (1892) A. C. 118, H. L.; Yates v. Terry, (1901) 1 Q. B. 102; (q. v. also as to the powers of the Court to restrict the operation of the order).

Notwithstanding O. XLII, 22, a garnishee may be ordered to pay although more than six years have elapsed since the judgment: Fellows v. Thornton, 14 Q. B. D. 335.

Where the debt attached is the subject of an action, the judgment creditor is entitled to be added as co-Plt, but not necessarily to the conduct of the action: Wallis v. Smith, 51 L. J. Ch. 577; 46 L. T. 473.

Execution was allowed to issue under a garnishee order, though there was in fact no attachable debt at the time when the order was made: Randall v. Lithgow, 12 Q. B. D. 525.

A foreign attachment, being merely a personal process to compel appearance in an action of debt (under the custom of London in the Mayor's Court: see London Joint Stock Bank v. London Corp., 5 C. P. D. 494, C. A.; Mayor of London v. London Joint Stock Bank, 6 App. Ca. 393; at Bristol in the Tolsey Court: see Exp. Sear, Re Price, 17 Ch. D. 74, C. A.), did not, when not perfected by judgment in the action before the commencement of the Deft's bankruptcy, give the creditor a charge or security on the bankrupt's property within sect. 12 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869: Levy v. Lovell, 14 Ch. D. 234, 238, C. A. (reversing 11 Ch. D. 220); Richter v. Laxton, 27 W. R. 214; 48 L. J. Q. B. 184; 39 L. T. 499; not following London Cotton Mills Co., 25 W. R. 109; and see as to the effect under this section of the issue and service of a writ of sequestration, Exp. Nelson, Re Hoare, 14 Ch. D. 41.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 45, a garnishee order or attachment of debt will not be valid as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the judgment debtor, unless completed by the receipt of the debt before the date of the receiving order: see on this section, Robson, pp. 176 et seq.; Yate Lee, p. 409; Re Trehearne, Exp. Ealing Local Board, 39 W. R. 116; 60 L. J. Q. B. 50. Actual receipt is necessary; mere payment into Court is not sufficient: Butler v. Wearing, 17 Q. B. D. 182; and that a garnishee order absolute is not a "final judgment" against the garnishee within sect. 4, sub-sect. 1 (g), of this Act, see Exp. Chinery, 12 Q. B. D. 342, C. A.

The duties of the garnishee as to paying over the fund to the judgment creditor, where there has been an intervening adjudication in bankruptcy or registration of a deed of arrangement, are discussed in Wood v. Dunn, L. R. 2 Q. B. 73 (reversing L. R. 1 Q. B. 77), from which it appears that he will be protected if the payment has been made without notice of the adjudication, &c., or if with notice, under such circumstances that he was unable to get the order set aside, and payment was made to avoid levy of execution.

Payment into Court under a Judge's order operates as a discharge to the garnishee under sect. 65 of the C. L. P. Act, 1854 (corresponding with O. XLV, 7), and the subsequent execution of a composition deed will not affect the right of the judgment creditor to the fund in Court: Culverhouse v. Wickens, L. R. 3 C. P. 295; but if the order is not filed, the judgment creditor may have to refund to a trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor: Exp. Smith, Re Brown, 20 Q. B. D. 321, C. A.

A person compelled by process to pay to the sheriff could not be called upon to pay a second time to the garnishor: Turnbull v. Robertson, 47 L. J. C. P. 294; 38 L. T. 389; 26 W. R. 557.

In the absence of fraud, payment by the garnishee discharges him, though the judgment is afterwards set aside: Exp. Smith, sup.

The effect of a garnishee order nisi on debts due to a co., obtained before presentation of a winding-up petition, is, upon service of the order, to bind the property in the hands of the garnishee, so as to prevent it from being handed over to the co., or, after the winding-up, to the official liquidator: Exp. Hawkins, 3 Ch. 787; Re Great Ship Co., 4 D. J. & S. 63.

If a petition to wind up has been presented before service of a garnishee order nisi, the creditor's inchoate charge is defeated by the winding-up: Stanhope, &c. Collieries Co., 11 Ch. D. 160, C. A.; secus, after service: Re National United Ins. Corp., (1901) 1 Ch. 950.

Sums set apart by a co. for payment of guaranteed interest to preference stockholders of another co. may, before payment, be attached by a judgment creditor of the latter: Bouch v. Sevenoaks Rail. Co., 4 Ex. D. 133; and the proceeds of a call to provide for payment of a debt due by the co. may be attached in the hands of the liquidator to answer a judgment obtained against the creditor of the co.: Exp. Turner, 2 D. F. & J. 354.

A creditor of a testator who has, before an admon decree, obtained a garnishee order nisi will not be restrained from proceeding to issue execution: Fowler v. Roberts, 2 Giff. 226.

And see Burton v. Roberts, 29 L. J. Ex. 484, giving the judgment creditor in that case a rule absolute for payment of the debt by the exor, the garnishee.

But when the assets available for testator's debts have been removed out of the hands of the exors by an admon decree, a garnishee order nisi obtained after such decree will not be enforced against them: Stevens v. Phelps, 10 Ch. 417.

The attachment of a judgment debt overrides the general lien, or control, of an attorney over the judgment in respect of general costs due to him from the garnishee: Hough v. Edwards, 1 H. & N. 171. But the lien given to a solr by 23 & 24 V. c. 127, s. 28, upon property recovered or preserved through his instrumentality, is not prejudiced by a garnishee order attaching an amount agreed to be paid: The Jeff. Davis, L. R. 2 A. & E. 1; The Leader, Ib. 314; and see Simpson v. Prothero, 5 W. R. 814; 26 L. J. Ch. 671; 3 Jur. N. S. 711; Shippey v. Grey, 49 L. J. C. P. 524; 28 W. R. 877; 42 L. T. 673; and see Cole v. Eley, (1894) 2 Q. B. 140; Ib. 350, C. A.; Goodfellow v. Gray, (1898) 2 Q. B. 498, C. A.

A charging order in favour of Plt's solr gave priority over a previous attachment of proceeds of a fi. fa. in the hands of the sheriff: Dallow v. Garrold, 14 Q. B. D. 543, C. A.

A garnishee order which has been improperly obtained will not be enforced: Leese v. Martin, 17 Eq. 224; and an order made by mutual mistake of judgment creditor and garnishee was set aside: Moore v. Peachey, 66 L. T. 198.

ENFORCEMENT OF GARNISHEE ORDER.

An action of debt will lie to "enforce" a garnishee order (see O. XLII, 24, sup. p. 421), but the Plt may be saddled with costs if the amount could be recovered by execution under O. XLV, 3: Pritchett v. English and Colonial Syndicate, (1899) 2 Q. B. 428, C. A.

And for practice as to attachment of debts, see Chitty, Archbold, 927—940; Edwards on Execution, 349 et seq.

15. The like—on Terms as to Costs of Plts' Solicitor.

costs when taxed, as by the order dated &c., directed, should be paid to the said R., their solr, out of the money, cash, and dividends in the said order mentioned in Court to the credit of &c., should not be paid out to the said R. until the further order of this Court, and that such further order should not be made without notice to the said Y.; Now, upon the application of the said Y. and R., and upon hearing the applicants in person, and upon reading the said orders dated &c., and the taxing master's certificate dated &c., It is ordered that the said order dated &c. be discharged; And it appearing that the Plts' costs by the said order dated &c., directed to be taxed have been taxed at £—, It is ordered that, notwithstanding the last-mentioned order, and in substitution for the direction therein contained for payment of such costs to the said R., the said costs be paid as directed in the schedule hereto [Add payment schedule directing £— part of the costs to be paid to Y., and the balance thereof to the said R.].—See Beswick v. B., V.-C. B., at Chambers, 19 May, 1876, A. 1170.

16. Stop Order on Petition where Fund over £1,000 and paid into Court under Trustee Relief Acts (10 & 11 V. c. 96, and 12 & 13 V. c. 74, now replaced by s. 42 of Trustee Act, 1893), and no prior Application made in the matter of the Fund—
O. XLVI, 12, 13.

UPON the petition of W. B. B. of — (assignee) &c., And upon hearing counsel for the petitioner, And upon reading &c., Let no part of the capital sum of £— (£3 p. c. Consolidated Bank Anns) in Court to the credit of —, be sold, transferred, or otherwise dealt with, and Let no part of any dividends to accrue in respect of the said sum be paid out or otherwise dealt with without notice to the petitioner; And this order is to be without prejudice to any question of the priority or rights of any other person.—Re Toogood's Trusts, Chitty, J., 21 May, 1887, B. 618; 56 L. T. 703.

17. Stop Order on Fund about to be paid into Court.

LET no part of the share of the Deft A. H. in the sum of £— by the order dated &c. to be paid into Court to the credit of this action, S. v. H. &c., by W. P. of —, when so paid in, be paid out except for the purchase of New Consols, and no part of any of such anns to be purchased therewith, and any dividends to accrue on such anns be transferred, sold, paid out, or otherwise dealt with without notice to the petitioners.—See Shaw v. Hudson, V.-C. Hall, 4 July, 1879, B. 1845; 48 L. J. Ch. 689.

18. Stop Order on Funds lodged in Court by Trustees who had notice of Assignee's Charge.

THIS cause coming on this day for subsequent further consideration &c., This Court being of opinion that notwithstanding the notice given by W. L. D. (assignee) on the — day of —, to the trustee of the settlement of the — day of —, in the pleadings mentioned, the Deft J. B. and W. C. named in the Master's certificate dated &c, are by virtue of the stop orders obtained by them on the — day of —, and the — day of —, both entitled to priority over the said W. L. D. in respect of their incumbrances mentioned in the said stop orders, and that the Deft J. B. and the said W. C. are inter se entitled to priority according to the date of their stop orders, Let &c.—See Pinnock v. Bailey, V.-C. Bacon, 29 May, 1883, B. 2272; 23 Ch. 497.

(33 & 34 V. c. 93), s. 12.

UPON the petition of A. D. K. and W. H. L. &c., And upon hearing counsel for the petitioners, and for W. J. H. and J. his wife, And upon reading &c., Let the said W. J. H. and the Deft Jane his wife be restrained from receiving the £73 15s. cash in the bank to the credit of this cause, "The Deft J. S.'s annuity account," or any dividend or interest to accrue due on the £5,000 Reduced Anns, and £5,000 Bank £3 p. c. Anns respectively standing in trust in this cause to the said account until further order, And Let no part of the said £5,000 Reduced Anns and £5,000 Bank £3 p. c. Anns, or of the interest to accrue due on such Reduced Anns and Bank Anns or either of them, be sold, transferred, paid out, or otherwise dealt with without notice to the petitioners.—Sanger v. S., M. R., 24 April, 1871, B. 948; 11 Eq. 470.

NOTES.

STOP ORDERS.

Jurisdiction to restrain by what are called "stop orders" the transfer or payment of funds or securities standing in Court in the name of the paymaster to the general credit of any cause or matter, or to the account of any person entitled in expectancy or otherwise, without notice to an assignee of the fund, or a person having a lien or charge thereon, is exercised by the Ch. Div. on the application of the assignee or incumbrancer on the fund: see O. XLVI, 12, 13. Stop orders were formerly obtained on petition; and if the assignor did not join in the petition, or consent, he must have been served: Parsons v. Groome, 4 Beav. 521; but not the other parties to the cause: Glazbrook v. Gillatt, 9 Beav. 611; and by O. XLVI, 13, service of "the petition or summons" upon the parties to the cause or matter, or upon the persons interested in any part of the moneys or securities not sought to be affected by the order, is not required.

Persons who have obtained stop orders upon contingent interests in a fund which, in the event, have never vested, are not necessary parties to and need not be served with a petition for payment out of the fund: Vernon v. Croft, 36 W. R. 778; 58 L. T. 919.

Since 15 & 16 V. c. 86, applications for stop orders, where the assignor and assignee concur, have been made in Chambers: Edmondson v. Harrison, 1 W. R. 140; and see Lister v. Tidd, 15 W. R. 917; and even where the assignor opposes: Wrench v. Wynne, 17 W. R. 198; 47 L. J. Ch. 543; Walsh v. Wason, 22 W. R. 676; 30 L. T. 743; and the costs of a petition will not be allowed: Walsh v. Wason, sup.; and the petitioner may be ordered to pay the difference between the costs of obtaining the order in Chambers and the costs of the petition: Wellesley v. Mornington, 41 L. J. Ch. 776.

But if the fund has been paid into Court under the Trustee Act, and exceeds £1,000, and there has been no prior application in the matter of the fund, a petition and not a summons is the proper form of application: Re Toogood's Trusts, 56 L. T. 703; Re Day's Trusts, 49 L. T. 499.

The title generally of the assignor, and the assignment, either by proving its execution in the regular way, or by the assignor's appearing and admitting it, must be shown: Wood v. Vincent, 4 Beav. 419; Quarman v. Williams, 5 Beav. 133; Lambert v. Hutchinson, 13 L. J. Ch. 336.

The stop order should express in distinct terms that it affects only the share or interest of the assignor: Macleod v. Buchanan, 4 D. J. & S. 265; 33 Beav. 234. And the limit or extent of the share or interest of the person whose share or interest is the subject of the restraint should also be shown on the face of the order: Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449; v. sup. p. 491.

The practice in the Paymaster General's office being to treat stop orders on funds in Court as not affecting income unless income is mentioned on the face of such orders, care should be taken in drawing up stop orders to express on the face of them plainly whether capital or income or both are to be the subjects of restraint: Mack v. Postle, sup. See Forms 1—6, sup. pp. 491, 492; and Dan. 1382 et seq.

In ascertaining the effect of a stop order upon a fund in Court, the Court is not bound to confine its attention to the language of the order itself, but may have recourse to what appears from any part of the order: S. C.

It is considered that an assignee or incumbrancer of a life interest in a fund (whether on the general credit of a matter or action, or carried to a separate account) is entitled to notice of any dealing with the capital of the fund, whether for change of investment or otherwise: per Stirling, J., by notice for use in Chambers.

A stop order will not be granted where there is neither any fund in Court, nor any order to bring a fund into Court: Wellesley v. Mornington, 11 W. R. 17; 7 L. T. 590; 1 N. R. 13; but may be where a fund of specified amount is about to be paid into Court under an order: Shaw v. Hudson, 48 L. J. Ch. 689.

It does not take effect until the original or an office copy has been lodged with the paymaster, but on notice of an intended application he will not immediately part with the fund.

It does not affect any other right or decide any question of title: Lucas v. Peacock, 9 Beav. 177; and accordingly may be made on a fund, the title to which is in dispute: Hawkesley v. Gowan, 12 W. R. 1100; 11 L. T. 34.

And though it is said, in Lucas v. Peacock, sup., that the order need not be made "without prejudice," the order on a fund paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act was expressed to be without prejudice to a lien for costs claimed by the trustee: Re Blunt, 10 W. R. 379.

It may be obtained by a judgment creditor in respect of a fund in Court in the Ch. Div. without obtaining a charging order in the Division where judgment was recovered: Shaw v. Hudson, 48 L. J. Ch. 689; Hopewell v. Barnes, 1 Ch. D. 630.

A stop order on a wife's reversionary chose in action assigned by husband and wife previously to 20 & 21 V. c. 57, was limited in operation to the husband's life: Moreau v. Polley, 1 D. & S. 143.

Under the Married Women's Property Act, 1870 (33 & 34 V. c. 93), effect has been given by a stop order to a charge on a married woman's interest in a fund in Court, to which she was entitled for her separate use without restraint on anticipation: Sanger v. S., 11 Eq. 470.

Stop orders on funds transferred into Court in lunacy will not be granted on the application of a next of kin of the lunatic, and the assignee of his expectant interest: Re Wilkinson, 10 Ch. 73 (overruling Re Pigott, 3 Mac. & G. 268; Re Moore, 1 Mac. & G. 103).

As to inspection and delivery out of documents impounded by the Court, see O. XLII, 33a. And that the Court cannot part with such documents, and will not allow copies to be taken, see Re A Solr, Exp. Incorp. Law Soc., 65 L. T. 584.

For forms of application and affidavit in support, see D. C. F. 841, 842.

PRIORITIES.

So long as a fund charged is in the hands of the trustees, notice to them is sufficient, but when paid into Court, and therefore no longer under their control, a stop order must be obtained in order to perfect the charge: Pinnock v. Bailey, 23 Ch. D. 497; and so also where part of the fund only is in Court: Mutual Life Soc. v. Langley, 32 Ch. D. 460, C. A.; and for the purpose of determining priority, a stop order obtained in an admon action has no greater effect than notice to the trustee would have had if there had been no action: Stephens v. Green; Green v. Knight, (1895) 2 Ch. 148, C. A.

As a general rule the priorities on a fund in Court are determined by the priorities of the respective stop orders rather than by the date or nature of the charge: Elder v. Maclean, 3 Jur. N. S. 283; Swayne v. S., 11 Beav. 463; Greening v. Beckford, 5 Sim. 195; Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & S. 423.

Accordingly an assignee who has obtained a stop order after the bankruptcy of his assignor is entitled to priority over the trustee in bankruptcy: Stuart v. Cockerell, 8 Eq. 607; Palmer v. Locke, 18 Ch. D. 381, C. A.; or the trustees of a composition deed who have not: Birm., &c. Co. v. Carter, 20 W. R. 354.

An incumbrancer who has given due notice to the trustee before the fund was brought into Court will not be postponed to a subsequent incumbrancer who first obtains a stop order: Livesey v. Harding, 23 Beav. 141; Brearcliff v. Dorrington, 4 Dr. & S. 122; Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & Sm. 423; nor can an incumbrancer, who has notice of a prior incumbrance at the time when he makes his advance, gain priority by obtaining a stop order: Re Holmes, 29 Ch. D. 786, C. A.; Mutual Life Assurance Soc. v. Langley, 32 Ch. D. 460, 468, C. A.; but the priority will not be prejudiced by notice of a prior incumbrance received after the date of the advance, and before the stop order: Mutual Life Assurance Soc. v. Langley, sup.

A stop order obtained by mortgagees of a life interest, general in terms, upon "the share" of the mortgagor, gave priority over the trustees of a prior settlement, not disclosed by the mortgagor, who had obtained no stop order over the fund: Mack v. Postle, (1894) 2 Ch. 449.

In Thompson v. Tomkins, 2 Dr. & S. 8, notice to the exor of a charge on the interest of a residuary legatee, after payment into Court of the fund (forming part of the estate), was held valid without a stop order, as against the legatee's subsequent assignees in bankruptcy: but see Mutual Life Assurance Soc. v. Langley, sup.

See also on this question Bartlett v. B., 1 D. & J. 127 (deciding that the assignees in bankruptcy of A., who had obtained a stop order on a reversionary interest, were entitled in priority to A.'s mortgagee of the reversionary interest who did not obtain a stop order): Grainge v. Warner, 13 W. R. 883; 12 L. T. 564; Day v. D., 1 D. & J. 144; 23 Beav. 391.

And see Warburton v. Hill, Kay, 470, sup. Sect. I., "CHARGING ORDERS"; and as to notice, Lloyd v. Banks, 4 Eq. 222; Brown's Trusts, Re, 5 Eq. 88.

Where a fund has been carried over to a separate account it is released from the general questions in the cause, so that a stop order by a bonâ fide creditor of the person entitled to the fund may prevail over a liability of such person to the estate of the testator: Re Eyton, Bartlett v. Charles, 45 Ch. D. 458; Re Jervoise, 12 Beav. 209; and see Edgar v. Plomley, (1900) A. C. 431.

Equitable execution obtained by a receivership order does not require to be perfected by a stop order; and therefore where both A. and B., judgment creditors, had obtained receivership orders and stop orders, the priority obtained by A.'s prior equitable execution was not lost by B.'s stop order, second in date, having been the first formally lodged with the paymaster: Re Galland, W. N. (86) 96.

The priority obtained by a stop order is not affected by a subsequent distribution and carrying over the fund to a separate account: Lister v. Tidd, 4 Eq. 462; and see Fish. Mort. 596. But the restraint should be continued: see Form 10, sup.

Such priority extends only to the charge in respect of which the stop order was obtained: Macleod v. Buchanan, 33 Beav. 234; 4 D. J. & S. 265.

A solr's lien on a fund in Court recovered by his exertions has priority over a stop order obtained by an assignee from the client: Haymes v. Cooper, 33 Beav. 431.

If a person becoming interested in a fund in Court standing to an account in the name of another does not obtain any stop order against the fund, and the fund is subsequently paid out in disregard of his interest to a person apparently, but not in fact, entitled to it, the Paymaster-General is not guilty of default within the meaning of sect. 5 of the Court of Chancery (Funds) Act, 1872, so as to make the Treasury liable to make good the fund out of the Consolidated Fund: Bath v. Bath, (1901) 1 Ch. 460; following Jones v. Jones, (1901) 1 Ch. 464, n. (Lord Cairns).

COSTS.

Parties are not entitled as a general rule and in all cases to the costs of obtaining a stop order: Grimsby v. Webster, 8 W. R. 725; though in that case the costs of obtaining it and of appearance were allowed.

A mortgagee is entitled to the costs of a stop order, out of the fund, where the mortgage deed authorizes him to apply to the Court, but they should be specially mentioned in the direction for taxation: Waddilove v. Taylor, 6 Ha. 307.

By O. XLVI, 12, the person by whom any order preventing the transfer or payment of money or securities without notice to the assignee of any person entitled in expectancy or otherwise is obtained, is to be liable, at the discretion of the Court or a Judge, to pay any costs, charges, and expenses which, by reason of such order having been obtained, shall be occasioned to any party to the cause or matter, or any persons interested in the particular moneys or securities.

CHAPTER XXIX.

[mention the property or sum in question], for which this action is brought, or any damages for or in respect of the same; And Let the said Deft retain possession of the said &c. until further order [or on or before &c. lodge in Court to the credit of &c. the said sum of £—]; And Let the following issue be tried &c. [see Forms 2 and 3, sup. p. 369) whether the said &c. for which this action is brought is the property of the Plt [add, if so, Adjourn &c.].—Liberty to apply [add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 1].

2. Interpleader Order in Chambers in the First Instance—Issue directed without Jury—O. LVII, 8.

DIRECTIONS that the Defts (stakeholders) lodge the sum of £—, being the subject-matter of the action, in Court, and for taxation and payment of their costs thereout, and for the investment of the residue—
“ And Let, upon such lodgment in Court as aforesaid being made, all further proceedings in this action be stayed as against the Defts; And Let C. (the claimant) be restrained from commencing any proceedings against the Defts in respect of the subject-matter of this action; And Let the following question of fact between the Plt and the said C. be tried before this Court without a jury, that is to say, ‘ Whether the said sum of £— belongs to the Plt or the said C.’ ”—Question of costs reserved [add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 1].—See Buckmaster v. Lockhart, M. R., at Chambers, 26 May, 1876, A. 1633.

In the Ch. Div., if the parties, on being served with a summons, appear, the order will be made in the first instance.

For like order at the instance of an assurance co., with directions for the trial of an issue before the Court without a jury between the Plt and the claimant, whether the Plt has any interest in moneys secured by policies, see Cutler v. Reliance, &c. Assurance Co., M. R. in Chambers, 1 Aug. 1876, A. 2244.

3. Order staying Proceedings against the Original Deft, and substituting the Claimant—O. LVII, 7.

LET all further proceedings in this action against the Deft B. be stayed; And Let the said C. (claimant) be substituted as Deft in this action instead of the present Deft B.—Directions for bringing money into Court or for otherwise dealing with the property in question, and as to costs [see Form 2, sup.].

4. Order barring Claim against the Claimant not appearing—O. LVII, 10.

AND C., the party named in the said order dated &c., not appearing thereon to maintain or relinquish his claim as thereby directed, and having been duly served with the said orders, Let the said C. and all persons claiming from or under him be, and they are hereby, for ever barred from prosecuting the claim mentioned and referred to in the said order and the affidavit of &c. against the said Deft — his exors or admors, hereby saving nevertheless the said C.'s right or claim against the Plt. [Add consequent directions, if any.]

For the forms of the affidavit of Deft to obtain a rule or order for the claimant to appear at law; of the affidavit of the claimant in support of his claim; and of the affidavit of service of the rule where the third party does not appear, see Chit. Forms 664—672.

And for the forms of orders in the Q. B. Div., see R. S. C., App. K., Forms 50—56a.

5. In Case of Adverse Claims to Ship, Freight, and Earnings—Accounts and Inquiries—Costs.

(Defts R. & Co. and S. were co-owners of the ship; S. was also ship's master; Plt chartered the ship in Dec. 1858, to take troops to India; Defts K. &c., advanced sums to R. & Co. on security of consignment of ship to their agent, and powers of attorney from R. & Co. and S. to receive freight and earnings payable on the ship's arrival; R. & Co. stopped payment and were made bankrupts; Defts F. & Co. took possession as mortgagees for supplies and outfit for the voyage, and repairs and disbursements during the voyage, paid by them for S., who had assigned his claim and shares to them, and they alleged misrepresentation; K. &c. sued Plts at law for the freight.)

"And C., the official assignee of R. & Co., by his counsel appearing and consenting to be bound by the proceedings in this action, Let the judgment dated &c. be discharged; And the Defts by their counsel respectively consenting that their respective claims to the freight and earnings in question in this action shall be dealt with and be subject to adjudication in the first-mentioned action, as between or among them, upon the evidence now before the Court, but without prejudice to their respective rights of appeal to the House of Lords on the merits, Declare, that before the bankruptcy of R. & Co. in the pleadings mentioned, the freight and earnings in question became and was and were, as between them and the Deft S., subject to pay and discharge the costs of the outfit of the ship B. in the pleadings mentioned, for the voyage mentioned in the articles of charterparty of the — day of —, and of the repairs during the said voyage, and of the disbursements properly incurred for the said ship during the said voyage, in and for the purposes thereof, which are in the pleadings mentioned; And that such their respective rights continued down to and at the time of the said bankruptcy, and are not as against the Deft. S. varied by the powers of attorney dated &c., in the pleadings mentioned, or by any dealings between R. & Co. and the Defts K. &c.; And Let the following accounts and inquiries be taken and made, that is to say,—1. An account of the whole freight and earnings of the said ship B., for the said outward voyage, including the proceeds of the sale of goods and stores, and by whom the same have been received, and how the same have been applied; 2. An inquiry, what expenditure was incurred for outfit in respect of the said voyage, and for repairs during the said voyage, and for disbursements properly incurred in or for the said ship during the said voyage for the purposes thereof; and whether any and what part of such expenditure has been defrayed, and when, and by whom, and out of what moneys, and by whom and under what circumstances provided; 3. An inquiry, whether any and what part of the costs of the said outfit, and of the said repairs and disbursements remain unpaid, and who is liable for such part thereof (if any) as remains unpaid, and to whom; 4. An inquiry, what, if anything, is due to F. & Co. on their respective mortgage securities in the pleadings mentioned; 5. An inquiry, whether F. & Co. had notice of the claim in the pleadings mentioned of the Defts K. &c. at the date of their respective securities in the pleadings also mentioned, and if so, when they first had such notice.”—Direction for taxation of Plt’s costs out of fund in Court, without prejudice to the question how the same are to be ultimately borne; Other costs to be costs in the action, and question which Defts are ultimately to bear Plt’s costs reserved.—Adjourn &c. [add Payment Schedule, Forms 32 and 71].—See Sec. of State, &c. for India v. Kelson, L.JJ., 6 Aug. 1861, B. 2011, on appeal.

For form of decree where the bill was dismissed as to one policy of insurance, with costs as to the trustee to whom it ought to have been paid without question; and as to a mortgagee whose claim was not disputed; the bill to be retained as to another policy, a valid claim to which had been made, but withdrawn, Plts to have the costs relating thereto up to such withdrawal, with special directions as to such costs, see Glynn v. Locke, 3 D. & War. 25.

For decree in interpleader suit in Chancery by the exor of a judgment debtor making injunction for stay of execution for the judgment debt and costs perpetual, and for payment of the Plt’s costs out of the fund (judgment debt) in Court, and then the costs of the Defts, or rateably, if found insufficient, and any residue to one of the Defts, see Jones v. Thomas, V.-C. S., 9 Feb. 1854, A. 575; S. C., 2 Sm. & G. 186.

For order dismissing bill in Chancery suit with costs against one of three Defts, and directing payment out of money paid in on his behalf, and dissolving injunction as to that Deft, but continuing it as to the others, and payment of Plt's other costs from fund in Court, without prejudice, and for one of the remaining Defts to prosecute the suit, see Hoggart v. Cutts, Cr. & P. 206.

For forms of proceedings in interpleader by stakeholder, see D. C. F. 810 et seq.

NOTES.

INTERPLEADER GENERALLY.

The former practice in interpleader in Chancery was as follows: Where several persons claimed the same debt, duty, or property under different titles or in separate interests, and the person owing the debt or duty, or holding the property, claimed no interest himself, and was in fact a mere stakeholder, he might, if proceedings at Law or in Equity (Prud. Assee. Co. v. Thomas, 3 Ch. 74) were taken by any of the claimants, or if he were harassed by conflicting claims, file a bill of interpleader against the several claimants, calling upon them to interplead (Story, Eq. J. § 806), and then, upon an affidavit of no collusion, and (in the case of a debt or sum of money) payment into Court of the amount due, all actions and suits, if any, were stayed by injunction, and the rights of the claimants decided, or put in course of decision: see Sec. of State for India v. Kelson, sup., Form 5, and notes.

The stakeholder was entitled to an order of interpleader though no action had been brought, if conflicting claims had been made: Langston v. Boylston, 2 Ves. jun. 101, 107, and cases cited in note thereto: Jones v. Thomas, 2 Sm. & G. 186; Mealor v. E. Talbot, 27 L. J. Ch. 165.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (6), any absolute assignment, by writing (not by way of charge only), of any debt or other legal chose in action, of which express notice in writing shall have been given to the debtor, trustee, or other person from whom the assignor would have been entitled to receive or claim such debt or chose in action, is to be and be deemed to have been effectual in law (subject to prior equities), to pass and transfer the legal right to and remedies for the same, and the power to give a good discharge without the concurrence of the assignor; but if the debtor, trustee, or other person liable shall have had notice that such assignment is disputed, or of any other opposing or conflicting claims to such debt or chose in action, he may call upon the several claimants to interplead, or may pay the same into Court under s. 42 of the Trustee Act, 1893.

The sub-section is retrospective, and applies to a debt assigned before the Act was passed: Dibb v. Walker, (1893) 2 Ch. 429. As to the general effect of the sub-section, see Marchant v. Morton, 70 L. J. K. B. 820.

A cheque is not an assignment within this sub-section: Schroeder v. Central Bank of London, 24 W. R. 710. An agreement to advance money to a builder is not a debt or other chose in action capable of assignment within the sub-section: May v. Lane, 64 L. J. Q. B. 236, C. A.

A mortgage of debts made in the ordinary form with proviso for redemption and reassignment on repayment is "an absolute assignment not purporting to be by way of charge only" within s. 25, sub-s. 6, of Jud. Act, 1873: Durham Bros. v. Robertson, (1898) 1 Q. B. 765, C. A.; approving Tancred v. Delagoa Bay Co., 23 Q. B. D. 239; and disapproving Nat. Prov. Bk. v. Harle, 6 Q. B. D. 626.

Secus, an assignment, in consideration of and "as security for advances," of money to become due on completion of buildings; or an assignment of rights under an agreement as security for repayment of money advanced, coupled with the appointment of attorneys to exercise all such rights: Mercantile Bank of London v. Evans, (1899) 2 Q. B. 613, C. A.

Quære, whether an assignment of part of a debt is within the enactment: Durham Bros. v. Robertson, sup.

And further as to the meaning of the expression "absolute assignment not purporting to be by way of charge," see National Provincial Bank v. Harle, 6 Q. B. D. 626; and that the existence of a resulting trust for the assignor does not prevent the assignment being absolute, Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347.

Notice of assignment of "all moneys now or hereafter" standing to the credit of the assignor at a bank could be effectually given after his death, and the bank could not set up the objection that the assignment was voluntary: Walker v. Bradford Old Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511.

A written direction by c. q. t. to trustees to pay a specified balance to a third person is a sufficient assignment in writing: Harding v. H., 17 Q. B. D. 442.

The proviso was held inapplicable where there had been no assignment in writing, but money deposited with a bank was claimed by the exor of the depositor and her husband's administrator; but the money having been paid in under the Trustee Relief Act, claimant petitioning for payment out, thereby submitted to the jurisdiction: Re Sutton's Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 175.

Before the Jud. Act, 1873, an insurance co. could properly only pay in, under the Trustee Relief Act (now the Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42), policy moneys which were subject to a trust: Re Haycock's Policy, 1 Ch. D. 611; Matthew v. Northern Assec. Co., 9 Ch. D. 80.

By the Policies of Assurance Act, 1867 (30 & 31 V. c. 144), any assignee of a policy of life assurance may sue in his own name if written notice of the assignment has been given to the office, the date of such notice determining the priorities.

By 31 & 32 V. c. 86, the assignee of a marine policy may sue in his own name: see N. of E. Oilcake Co. v. Archangel Ins. Co., 24 W. R. 162; 44 L. J. Q. B. 121; L. R. 10 Q. B. 249.

As to the procedure in an action where a Deft claims to be entitled to contribution or indemnity over against a person not a party, and to the bringing in of such person as a third party, v. O. XVI, 48—54, sup. Chap. XII., pp. 148, 149; and as to procedure where Deft claims contribution or indemnity against co-Deft, O. XVI, 55.

The Interpleader Act (1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 58), and the C. L. P. Act, 1860 (except sect. 17), having been repealed, the general practice as to interpleader in all Divisions of the Court is now regulated by O. LVII.

NEW PRACTICE—RIGHT TO RELIEF BY WAY OF INTERPLEADER.

By O. LVII, 1, "Relief by way of interpleader may be granted,—

"(a) Where the person seeking relief (in this order called the applicant) is under liability for any debt, money, goods, or chattels, for or in respect of which he is, or expects to be, sued by two or more parties (in this order called the claimants) making adverse claims thereto:

"(b) Where the applicant is a sheriff or other officer charged with the execution of process by or under the authority of the High Court, and claim is made to any money, goods, or chattels taken or intended to be taken in execution under any process, or to the proceeds or value of any such goods or chattels by any person other than the person against whom the process issued."

As to interpleader by the sheriff, v. inf. Sect. II., p. 509.

Under the former practice, the Plt in interpleader was entitled to protection not only from double liability, but from double vexation; so that it was sufficient that a bonâ fide claim had been made, and he was not required to show that it had any substantial foundation: E. & W. India Dock Co. v. Littledale, 7 Ha. 59, 60; and see Angell v. Hadden, 15 Ves. 244.

But there must have been more than a mere pretext of a claim: Cochrane v. O'Brien, 2 J. & Lat. 380; Re New Hamburg & Brazilian Ry., W. N. (75) 239; and mere refusal to assent to the payment of the fund to another claimant was not enough: Desborough v. Harris, 5 D. M. & G. 439, 459, overruling Fenn v. Edmonds, 5 Ha. 314.

Where a sum of money had been deposited with a stakeholder to abide the result of a bet, he was bound to repay to either of the parties the amount received from him unless it had been paid to the other before any demand: Hampden v. Walsh, 1 Q. B. D. 189; Batson v. Newman, 1 C. P. D. 573, C. A.; 25 W. R. 85; Shoulbred v. Roberts, (1899) 2 Q. B. 560; S. C., (1900) 2 Q. B. 497, C. A.; and see Diggle v. Higgs, 2 Ex. D. 422; Trimble v. Hill, 5 App. Ca. 342.

An insurance co. might be entitled to interpleader after the sum due had been ascertained by judgment in favour of one of the claimants: Hamilton v. Marks, 5 D. & S. 638; but not after award: Myers v. U. Guar. Co., 7 D. M. & G. 112, 123.

On an issue as to the right to furniture claimed by an execution creditor and a c. q. t., in whose possession it was, the trustees were not required to be parties: Schroeder v. Hanrott, 28 L. T. 704.

Interpleader lay against Defts out of the jurisdiction, the fund being within it: Stevenson v. Anderson, 2 V. & B. 407; Martinius v. Helmuth, G. Coop. 245; and against a judgment creditor and his solr claiming a lien for costs on the debt: — v. Bolton, 18 Ves. 292; but whether the Crown could be made to interplead, quære: Candy v. Maughan, 1 D. & L. 745; Reid v. Stearn, 6 Jur. N. S. 267.

Interpleader would not lie where the stakeholder disputed the amount payable: Diplock v. Hammond, 2 Sm. & G. 141; 5 D. M. & G. 320; nor where he had handed over the property to one claimant on an indemnity: Burnett v. Anderson, 1 Mer. 405; and see Sablicich v. Russell, 2 Eq. 441; nor where the Plt claimed an interest in the fund: Mitchell v. Hayne, 2 S. & S. 63; nor against the claimants to two separate independent funds, e.g., by an auctioneer who, having sold A.'s property to B., and resold it to C., and received a deposit from each of them, made A., B., and C. Defts: Hoggart v. Cutts, Cr. & P. 197; nor where the claims were not conflicting: Myers v. United, &c. Co., 7 D. M. & G. 112; Greator v. Shackle, (1895) 2 Q. B. 249 (concurrent claims for commission by auctioneers separately employed); Glynn v. Locke, 3 D. & War. 11, where policy moneys were claimed by a trustee with power to give receipts, and also by the cs. q. t. Secus, where the trust fund had not been validly transferred to the trustee: S. C. But where Plt had pleaded a lien on the goods in defence to an action at law, the order was made on his withdrawing the plea and paying costs at Law and in Equity up to that time: Jacobson v. Blackhurst, 2 J. & H. 486.

For references to various decisions as to interpleader under the former practice, see Seton, 4th edit., pp. 366, 367.

Where a debtor, sued for the debt, has received notice of assignment, he may interplead as to part and dispute the residue, and his application may be either under r. 1, or by separate proceedings under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (sub-s. 6): sup. p. 503. If an interpleader order is made in separate proceedings, there is no power to stay proceedings in an action already commenced against the debtor: Reading v. London School Board, 16 Q. B. D. 686.

Warehouse keepers were held entitled to relief in respect of goods, though one of the rival claimants also claimed damages for detention: Attenborough v. St. Katharine Docks Co., 3 C. P. D. 450; and that the existence of the contract of bailment does not prevent interpleader proceedings by the bailee, see Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q. B. 318, C. A.

A warehouseman, having attorned to one of the claimants, is in general estopped from impeaching his title: Henderson & Co. v. Williams, (1895) 1 Q. B. 521, C. A., discussing Kingsford v. Merry (1 H. & N. 503), Attenborough v. London & St. Katharine's Dock Co. (3 C. P. D. 450), Biddle v. Bond (6 B. & S. 225); but where wharfingers wrote a letter stating that they held the goods to the order of one of the claimants, an interpleader order could, nevertheless, be made restraining the claimants from proceeding against the wharfingers except in respect of any claim upon the letter: exp. Mersey Docks and Harbour Board, (1899) 1 Q. B. 546, C. A.; following dicta in Attenborough v. St. Katharine's Dock Co., 3 C. P. D. 450.

Interpleader was refused where the question was substantially as to priorities of bills of lading: Victor Söhne v. British, &c. Steam. Co., W. N. (88) 84.

Certificates of shares and, semble, a chose in action may be the subject of interpleader: Robinson v. Jenkins, 24 Q. B. D. 275, C. A.

Interpleader will not lie as between parties to a wager; secus, semble as between one of the parties and a stranger: Shoolbred v. Roberts, (1900) 2 Q. B. 497, C. A.

By r. 2, "the applicant must satisfy the Court or a Judge, by affidavit or otherwise, (a) that the applicant claims no interest in the subject-matter in dispute, other than for charges or costs; and (b) that the applicant does not collude with any of the claimants; and (c) that the applicant, except where he is a sheriff or other officer charged with the execution of process by or under the authority of the High Court, who has seized goods and who has withdrawn from possession in consequence of the execution creditor admitting the claim of the claimant" under r. 16, v. inf., "is willing to pay or transfer the subject-matter into Court, or to dispose of it as the Court or a Judge may direct."

Under the former practice the affidavit had in general to be made by the applicant himself: Wood v. Lyne, 4 D. & S. 16; but an affidavit by two only out of four Plts has been accepted: Glover v. Reynolds, W. N. (67) 97; 16 L. T. 84; and under special circumstances leave was given to the solr to make it quantum valeat: Larabrie v. Brown, 1 D. & J. 204. In Nelson v. Barter, 2 H. & M. 334, an interim injunction for a fortnight was granted on the affidavit of the agent of the Plts, to be extended to the hearing on Plts filing their affidavit before then. If not, Defts to be at liberty to proceed.

In the case of a co. suing by its registered public officer, he should make the affidavit, stating that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the co. does not collude: Bignold v. Audland, 11 Sim. 23.

Where the affidavit was met by evidence charging collusion, the Plt had to give an undertaking as to damages: Manby v. Robinson, 4 Ch. 347; and Deft could at the hearing show that there was collusion, or that it was not a proper case for interpleader: Toulmin v. Reid, 14 Beav. 499.

The affidavit need not state the facts: Walbanke v. Sparks, 1 Sim. 385; nor will the claimants be allowed the costs of affidavits which go solely into the merits as between themselves: Poland v. Coall, Ir. Rep. 7 C. L. 108.

A bill by the owner of land subject to a charge to which conflicting claims were made, but no proceedings taken, was held not to be an interpleader bill, nor to require an affidavit of no collusion: Vyryan v. V., 4 D. F. & J. 183.

On paying into Court the deposit, an auctioneer was allowed to have interpleader, and to deduct his charges without prejudice: Annesley v. Muggridge, 1 Madd. 593; but in Mitchell v. Hayne, 2 S. & S. 63, the auctioneer's interest in the deposit was held an objection to the suit. In Farebrother v. Prattent, 5 Pri. 303, the auction duty alone was deducted.

The word "charges" in r. 2 is not confined to the charges of the sheriff, but includes those of a wharfinger: De Rothschilds v. Morrison, Kekewich & Co., 24 Q. B. D. 750, C. A.

Collusion within clause (b) of the rule does not imply moral delinquency, but extends to a case where the stakeholder identifies himself in interest with, or has necessarily a preponderating interest in favour of, one of the parties: Murietta v. South American Co., 62 L. J. Q. B. 396.

Where a stakeholder takes an indemnity from one of two rival claimants, an objection on the score of collusion cannot be taken by that claimant: Thompson v. Wright, 13 Q. B. D. 632; distinguishing Tucker v. Morris, 1 Cr. & M. 73; and Belcher v. Smith, 9 Bing. 82.

By r. 3, "the applicant shall not be disentitled to relief by reason only that the titles of the claimants have not a common origin, but are adverse to and independent of one another."

Formerly interpleader did not lie in Equity, except for the same debt claimed by several persons in privity of contract or tenure as mortgagor and mortgagee, trustee and c. q. t.: Dungey v. Angove, 2 Ves. jun. 310; Story, Eq. J. § 812.

And the debt must have been the same in amount: Bignold v. Audland, 11 Sim. 23; and also the same in fact: Glyn v. Duesbury, 11 Sim. 139; Dungey v. Angove, 2 Ves. jun. 307; Cochrane v. O'Brien, 2 J. & Lat. 380.

But interpleader would lie in a case where the debtor had notice of claims and liens of various amounts on the debt: Hamilton v. Marks, 5 D. & S. 638.

An agent or tenant, being unable to dispute the title of his principal or landlord, was not entitled to interpleader on claims by his principal or by his landlord for rent, another claiming it under an adverse or paramount title: Dungey v. Angove, 2 Ves. jun. 304, 310; Cook v. E. Rosslyn, 1 Gif. 167, 170; 7 W. R. 537; Crawford v. Fisher, 1 Ha. 436; Crawshay v. Thornton, 2 My. & C. 1, 20; except where the principal or landlord had created a subsequent interest in another: Ib. 21; Clarke v. Byne, 13 Ves. 383 b; Pearson v. Cardon, 2 Russ. & M. 606; Smith v. Hammond, 6 Sim. 10; or where the agent did not know whom he ought to treat as his principal: Suart v. Welch, 4 My. & C. 305.

But any estoppel binding the execution debtor will not bind the execution creditor, who may set up the right of a third person even though superior to his own, e. g., that hired goods in the possession of the debtor, and claimed by the letter, were in fact vested in the letter's trustee in bankruptcy: Richards v. Jenkins, 18 Q. B. D. 451, C. A.; and see Robinson v. Jenkins, 24 Q. B. D. 275, C. A., where stockbrokers, though precluded from setting up the jus tertii against their principal, were nevertheless allowed to interplead; and Rogers v. Lambert, (1891) 1 Q. B. 318, C. A., pointing out that the provision in sect. 12 of the O. L. P. Act, 1860, has materially modified the principle on which Crawshay v. Thornton, sup., was decided.

PROCEDURE IN INTERPLEADER.

By r. 4, where the applicant is a Deft, application for relief may be made at any time after service of the writ of summons.

By r. 5, the applicant may take out a summons calling on the claimants to appear and state the nature and particulars of their claims, and either to maintain or relinquish them.

As to form of interpleader summons, see D. C. F. 810 et seq.; and as to service out of jurisdiction, v. sup. Chap. II. p. 13.

By r. 6, if the application is made by a Deft in an action, the Court or a Judge may stay all further proceedings in the action.

By r. 7, if the claimants appear in pursuance of the summons, the Court or a Judge may order either that any claimant be made a Deft in any action already commenced, in respect of the subject-matter in dispute in lieu of or in addition to the applicant, or that an issue between the claimants be stated and tried, and in the latter case may direct which of the claimants is to be Plt, and which Deft.

There is no jurisdiction to limit the defences of the substituted Deft to those available to the original Deft: Gerhard v. Montague & Co., 61 L. T. 564; 38 W. R. 76.

Having regard to r. 13, an issue must apparently be tried before a Judge alone unless trial by jury is expressly ordered: Hamlyn v. Betteley, 6 Q. B. D. 63, C. A., being in effect overruled.

For forms of order, see App. K., Nos. 50 to 56; and for forms of issue, v. sup. pp. 378—383.

Where the claimant is a receiver, he may be directed to hold the goods instead of paying the value into Court: Purkiss v. Holland, 31 S. J. 702.

By r. 8, "the Court or a Judge may, with the consent of both claimants, or on the request of any claimant, if, having regard to the value of the subject-matter in dispute, it seems desirable so to do, dispose of the merits of their claims and decide the same in a summary manner and on such terms as may be just."

That such summary decision cannot be appealed from even by consent, see Dodds v. Shepherd, 1 Ex. D. 75; 24 W. R. 322; Lyon v. Morris, 19 Q. B. D. 139, C. A.

As to the limit of £50 being adopted in the absence of consent, see Topham v. Greenside, &c. Co., 37 Ch. D. 294.

By r. 9, "where the question is a question of law, and the facts are not in dispute, the Court or a Judge may either decide the question without directing the trial of an issue, or order that a special case be stated for the opinion of the Court. If a special case is stated, O. XXXIV shall, as far as applicable, apply thereto."

As to special case under O. XXXIV, v. sup. Chap. XXI.

By r. 10, "if a claimant, having been duly served with a summons calling on him to appear and maintain, or relinquish, his claim, does not appear in pursuance of the summons, or, having appeared, neglects or refuses to comply with any order made after his appearance, the Court or a Judge may make an order declaring him, and all persons claiming under him, for ever barred against the applicant, and persons claiming under him, but the order shall not affect the rights of the claimants as between themselves."

It will be thus seen that the Court, when making the order for interpleader, may adopt any of the following courses:—

1. It may make any claimant a Deft in any action commenced in respect of the subject-matter: O. LVII, 7.
2. It may direct an issue: O. LVII, 7.
3. It may dispose of the merits summarily: (a) by consent; or (b) where the amount is small: O. LVII, 8; or (c) where the question is one of law, and the facts are not in dispute: O. LVII, 9.
4. Where a claimant does not appear, or appears and refuses to comply with any order, it may make an order barring his claim: O. LVII, 10.
5. Where the question is one of law only, it may order a special case to be stated: O. LVII, 9.

By r. 14, "where in any interpleader proceeding it is necessary or expedient to make one order in several causes or matters pending in several divisions, or before different Judges of the same division, such order may be made by the Court or Judge before whom the interpleader proceeding may be taken, and shall be entitled in all such causes or matters; and any such order (subject to the right of appeal) shall be binding on the parties in all such causes or matters."

APPEALS.

By r. 11, "except where otherwise provided by statute, the judgment in any action or on any issue ordered to be tried or stated in an interpleader proceeding, and the decision of the Court or a Judge in a summary way, under r. 8 of this Order, shall be final and conclusive against the claimants, and all persons claiming under them, unless by special leave of the Court or Judge, as the case may be, or of the C. A."

Rules 8 and 11 must be read in connection with sect. 17 of the C. L. P. Act, 1860, which enacts that "the judgment in any such action or issue as may be directed by the Court or a Judge in any interpleader proceedings, and the decision of the Court or Judge in a summary manner, shall be final and conclusive against the parties and all persons claiming by, from, or under them"; and with the provision of sect. 20 of the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876, enacting that where by Act of Parliament it is provided that the decision of any Court or Judge whose jurisdiction is transferred to the High Court of Justice is to be final, an appeal shall not lie from that Court or a Judge thereof to the C. A. The rules do not give a right of appeal where there was none under the Act of 1860, and no appeal lies to the C. A., nor is there power to give leave to appeal, in the case of summary judgments and decisions falling within the operation of sect. 17, whether made under r. 8 or r. 9: Waterhouse v. Gilbert, 15 Q. B. D. 569, C. A.; Lyon v. Morris, 19 Q. B. D. 139, C. A.; Turner v. Bridgett, 9 Q. B. D. 55, C. A.; Bryant v. Reading, 17 Q. B. D. 128, C. A.; Re Tarn, (1893) 2 Ch. 284. But the word "parties," in sect. 17 of the Act of 1860, does not include the sheriff, who can therefore appeal: Smith v. Darlow, 26 Ch. D. 605, C. A.

The words "except where otherwise provided by statute," in r. 11, extend to the Jud. Acts, and after trial of an interpleader issue there is, under s. 19 of the Jud. Act, 1873, the same right of appeal from the judgment with respect to the finding of the facts or ruling of the law (as distinguished from the final disposal of the whole matter of interpleader) as in the case of any other judgment or order: Dawson v. Fox, 14 Q. B. D. 377, C. A.; but when the Judge has pronounced judgment disposing of the whole matter, there is an appeal only by leave: Robinson v. Tucker, 14 Q. B. D. 371, C. A., questioning Burstall v. Bryant, 12 Q. B. D. 103. Where an issue is tried by a jury, any motion for a new trial, or to set aside a verdict, finding, or judgment, is now to be heard and determined by the C. A., and not by a Divisional Court: Jud. Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 44), s. 1.

By r. 13, "O. xxxi and O. xxxvi shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to an interpleader issue; and the Court or a Judge who tries the issue may finally dispose of the whole matter of the interpleader proceedings, including all costs not otherwise provided for."

By r. 15, the Court or a Judge may, in or for the purposes of any interpleader proceedings, make all such orders as to costs and all other matters as may be just and reasonable.

Under the former practice, Plt, if in the right, was held entitled to his costs, and out of the fund in Court, if any: Glynn v. Locke, 3 D. & War. 11, 24; Hale v. Saloon, &c. Co., 4 Drew. 492; and see Clench v. Dooley, 56 L. T. 122; or to a lien upon it: Aldridge v. Mesner, 6 Ves. 418; Campbell v. Solomans, 1 S. & S. 462; and (inquiries being sent) to be paid out of it at once without prejudice: Sec. for India v. Kelson, L. J.J., Form 5, sup. p. 501.

Plt could obtain his costs at once on motion, unless his right to interplead was disputed, in which case he had to set down the cause: Jones v. Gilham, G. Coop. 49.

A stakeholder litigating the claims separately lost his right to costs against the successful claimant: Laing v. Zeden, 9 Ch. 736; 17 Eq. 107.

Where the conflicting claim was withdrawn after suit brought, Plt had his costs up to that time: Glynn v. Locke, 3 D. & War. 11; sup. p. 502; Symes v. Magnay, 20 Beav. 47.

And see Mason v. Hamilton, 5 Sim. 19; and as to payment by Plt of costs needlessly incurred or increased, Crawford v. Fisher, 1 Ha. 436; E. & W. India Dock Co. v. Littledale, 7 Ha. 57; Jones v. Farrell, 1 D. & J. 208.

When an interpleader summons is taken out by a Deft in an action, he is entitled, on bringing into Court the amount claimed, to deduct his taxed costs to date, the question which of the parties are to be ultimately liable for such costs being reserved: Searle v. Matthews, 19 Q. B. D. 77, n.; and see Goodman v. Blake, 19 Q. B. D. 77; C. v. D., W. N. (83) 207; Aplin v. Cates, 30 L. J. Ch. 6.

As to giving security for costs in interpleader proceedings, v. sup. Chap. IV., pp. 28, 29.

Sect. 49 of the Jud. Act, 1873, preventing appeals as to costs only, applies to interpleader: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82, C. A.

SECTION II.—INTERPLEADER AT THE INSTANCE OF THE SHERIFF.

1. Order for Sheriff to sell Goods seized, and pay Proceeds into Court—Issue as to Claims.

LET the said sheriff proceed to sell the goods and chattels seized by him under the writ of fi. fa. issued in this action, and lodge the net proceeds of the sale after deducting the expenses thereof [If so, and the possession money from the — day of —] in Court as directed in the schedule hereto; And Let the following issue be tried &c. [see Forms 1 and 2, sup. p. 369], that is to say, whether at the time of the seizure by the sheriff the goods &c. were the property of the said C. (the claimant) or of the said D. (the execution creditor); And Let no action be brought against the said sheriff for the seizure of the said goods [If so, Adjourn &c.]—Liberty to apply [add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 1].

2. Sheriff to withdraw on Claimant paying into Court, and payment of Possession Money—In default, Sheriff to sell—Issue directed.

LET W., on or before &c., lodge in Court, as directed in the schedule hereto, Three hundred pounds; And Let, upon lodgment of the sum of Three hundred pounds in Court on or before &c., and upon payment to the said sheriff of the possession money from &c., the said sheriff withdraw from the possession of the goods seized by him under the writ of fi. fa. herein; And Let, unless such first-mentioned payment be made within the time aforesaid, the said sheriff proceed to sell the said goods, and within ten days from the receipt thereof pay the proceeds of the sale, after deducting the expenses thereof and the possession money, into Court as directed in the schedule hereto, subject to further order; And Let the parties proceed to the trial of an issue in this Court whether at the time of the seizure by the sheriff the goods seized were the property of W. as against the said co., and W. is forthwith to furnish to the sheriff's agents a copy of the inventory exhibited to her affidavit; And Let the issue be prepared and delivered by the Plt therein within twenty-two days from this date, and be returned by the Deft therein within four days after delivery thereof, and be tried at Leeds in the county of York; And the question of costs and all further questions are reserved to be dealt with at the trial of the said issue, and no action is to be brought against the said sheriff for the seizure of the said goods [add Lodgment Schedule, Form 1].—See Re The Newmarket Collieries, Brickworks, and Pottery Co., Ltd., Pearson, J., at Chambers, 26 March, 1885, B. 927.

8. Sheriff to remain in Possession on default of Payment or giving Security.

LET upon payment of the sum of £— into Court &c., or upon the said C. giving security to be approved by the Judge, the said sheriff withdraw &c. [Form 2, sup.]; And Let in the meantime, and until such payment shall be made, or security given, the said sheriff continue in possession of the said goods and chattels; And Let the said C. (claimant) pay possession money for the time he shall so continue, unless the said C. (claimant) shall desire the said goods and chattels to be sold by the sheriff, in which case the sheriff is to sell the same, and lodge the proceeds of the sale, after deducting the expenses thereof and the possession money from this date, in Court &c., to abide further order herein; Let the following issue &c. [Form 2, sup. p. 369; Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 1].

4. Summary Order by Consent for Sheriff to withdraw—O. LVII, 8.

AND C., the claimant, and E., the execution creditor, having, by their solrs, consented that the claim made by the said C. should be disposed of on the merits, and determined in a summary manner, and the Judge being of opinion that the goods in question were at the time of their seizure by the sheriff the property of the said C.; Let the sheriff withdraw from the possession of the said goods; And Let no action be brought against the sheriff; And Let the said E. pay the said C. his costs, to be taxed &c.

5. Sheriff to proceed to sell, and to raise and pay Claim and Expenses—O. LVII, 12.

LET the said sheriff proceed to sell so much of the goods and chattels seized under the writ of fi. fa., issued in this action as will satisfy the expenses of the said sale; the rent (if any) due, the claim of the said C. the claimant, and the said execution; And Let out of the proceeds of the said sale (after deducting the expenses thereof, and rent, if any), the said sheriff pay to the said C. the amount of his said claim, and to the said E., the execution creditor, the amount of his execution, and the residue (if any) to the Deft; And Let no action be brought against the said sheriff.

6. Order barring Claim in favour of Execution Creditor.

LET C., the claimant, be barred from &c. [either as to the whole or part of the subject-matter of his claim], and pay to the said E. the execution creditor's costs of &c., occasioned by the claim, to be taxed &c.

7. Interpleader Order in Chancery Action by Sheriff, where the Trustee in Bankruptcy and Execution Creditor disputed the Right to the Proceeds under Writ of Fieri Facias.

"TAX the Plt's costs of the action; And Let the £— New Cons. (proceeds of execution) in Court to the credit of this cause &c. be sold; And Let out of the money to arise by such sale, and £— cash in Court to the credit &c., the said costs when taxed be paid to &c.;"—But if the money to arise by the sale and the cash shall be insufficient, the whole to be paid on account, and the residue, if any, to be paid to the Plt by the Defts Myatt (bankrupt's trustee) and Mann (execution creditor), and any residue of the fund after payment of the Plt's costs to be paid to the Deft Myatt without prejudice to his right to be repaid by Deft Mann what he shall pay in respect of the Plt's costs;—"And Let the Deft Mann pay to the Deft Myatt what shall be paid to the Plt out of the money to arise by the said sale and the said cash, and Let him also repay to the Deft Myatt what, if anything, he shall so pay as aforesaid."—Liberty to apply.—Child v. Mann, V.-C. S., 26 Feb. 1867, A. 849; S. C., 3 Eq. 806.

The Payment Schedule to this order would contain directions for carrying out the above terms: see Payment Schedule, Forms Nos. 32 and 35.

For decree, in interpleader suit by the sheriff, adjudicating on the rights of the Defts to the goods taken in execution, and providing for the payment of the Plt's costs of the suit by the Defts in the wrong, see Hale v. Met. Saloon Omnibus Co., V.-C. K., 4 March, 1859, A. 1183; S. C., 4 Drew, 492.

NOTES.

INTERPLEADER AT INSTANCE OF SHERIFF.

By O. LVII, 1, relief by way of interpleader may be granted where the applicant is a sheriff or other officer charged with the execution of process by or under the authority of the High Court, and claim is made to any money, goods, or chattels taken or intended to be taken in execution under any process, or to the proceeds or value of any such goods or chattels by any person other than the person against whom the process issued.

Where the sheriff was paid out under protest by a third person, the money so paid is "proceeds or value" of goods taken in execution within this rule: Smith v. Critchfield, 14 Q. B. D. 873, C. A.

By r. 12, "when goods or chattels have been seized in execution by a sheriff or other officer charged with the execution of process of the High Court, and any claimant alleges that he is entitled, under a bill of sale or otherwise, to the goods or chattels by way of security for debt, the Court or a Judge may order the sale of the whole or a part thereof, and direct the application of the proceeds of the sale in such manner and upon such terms as may be just."

The rule does not enable the sheriff to seize equities, and if goods are claimed by a mortgagee under a bill of sale, the sheriff is not bound to interplead, but may withdraw: Scarlett v. Hanson, 12 Q. B. D. 213, C. A.

Where an interpleader issue is directed instead of a sale by the sheriff, the appointment of a receiver and manager may be ordered under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8): Howell v. Dawson, 13 Q. B. D. 67.

Where an order is made for sale and satisfaction of a claim out of the proceeds, the claimant is not entitled to demand from the sheriff any sum not included in his particulars of claim under r. 5: Hockey v. Evans, 18 Q. B. D. 390, C. A.

Where it was doubtful whether the goods would realize enough to pay the bill of sale holder, and neither the official receiver nor the judgment creditor were willing to redeem or give a guarantee against possible loss, the sheriff was ordered to withdraw: Stern v. Tegner, (1898) 1 Q. B. 37, C. A.

If the official receiver asks for the delivery of the goods to him under s. 11 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, the operation of O. LVII, 12, is, it seems, excluded; but if he does not do so, and asks for a sale, the rule applies: S. C.

The power of the Judge at Chambers to make such order as may be "just" is not limited by the practice of the Courts of Equity in suits for redemption, and though the debt is payable by instalments at a high interest, an order for sale and payment to the claimant of the entire balance, with interest at the agreed rate up to the time of payment only, may be made: Forster v. Clowser, (1897) 2 Q. B. 362, C. A.; and see West v. Diprose, (1900) 1 Ch. 337.

When, in consequence of landlord's claim for rent, trial of an issue between execution creditor and claimant was not proceeded with, the execution creditor was first to pay the sheriff's costs, and the claimant to pay to the execution creditor half the sheriff's costs from the date of the claim: Lawson v. Carter, 63 L. J. Q. B. 159; W. N. (94) 96.

By r. 16, "where a claim is made to or in respect of any goods or chattels taken in execution under the process of the Court it shall be in writing, and upon the receipt of the claim the sheriff or his officer shall forthwith give notice thereof to the execution creditor according to Form 28 in Appendix B. or to the like effect, and the execution creditor shall, within four days after receiving the notice, give notice to the sheriff or his officer that he admits or disputes the claim, according to Form 29 in Appendix B., or to the like effect. If the execution creditor admits the title of the claimant, and gives notice as directed by this rule, he shall only be liable to such sheriff or officer for any fees and expenses incurred prior to the receipt of the notice admitting the claim."

Unless protected by this rule, the execution creditor is primarily liable for the charges of the sheriff, who is entitled to an order against him, leaving him a remedy over against the claimant, if unsuccessful: Smith v. Darlow, 26 Ch. D. 605, C. A.

By r. 16A, "when the execution creditor has given notice to the sheriff or his officer that he admits the claim of the claimant, the sheriff may thereupon withdraw from possession of the goods claimed, and may apply for an order protecting him from any action in respect of the said seizure and possession of the said goods, and the Judge or Master may make any such order as may be just and reasonable in respect of the same: Provided always, that the claimant shall receive notice of such intended application, and if he desires it, may attend the hearing of the same, and if he attend, the Judge or Master may, in and for the purposes of such application, make all such orders as to costs as may be just and reasonable."

The other rules cited above (pp. 504, 502) also apply to interpleader by sheriffs.

As to the duty of the sheriff to apply immediately, see Tufton v. Harding, 6 Jur. N. S. 116; 8 W. R. 122; 1 L. T. 264; 29 L. J. Ch. 225; and that he must show that he did not get into the difficulty by his own wrong, as by seizing goods without good reason to suppose they were the debtor's: S. C.; and see Slingsby v. Boulton, 1 V. & B. 334; and that damages are recoverable on an interpleader summons against the high bailiff of the County Court for seizure, though bonâ fide, of goods of third persons who have suffered substantial grievance: see L. C. & D. Ry. Co. v. Cable Gaslight Co., 80 L. T. 119.

Where after the proceeds of sale had been paid into Court, notice of a bankruptcy petition against the debtor was served on the sheriff, and bankruptcy followed, the trustee in bankruptcy was entitled to the money against the execution creditor: Heathcote v. Livesley, 19 Q. B. D. 285.

Where goods seized in execution have been claimed, and the claimant has paid into Court money to abide interpleader issue, and the goods are again seized in execution by another judgment creditor, and again claimed by the claimant, and an interpleader issue is ordered, to prevent the goods being sold the claimant must pay money into Court as security to the second execution creditor: Kotchie v. Golden Sovereigns, Ltd. (Bright, claimant), (1898) 2 Q. B. 164, C. A. In general, goods have been "taken in execution" when they have been seized under a fi. fa.: St. Marylebone Vestry v. Sheriff of London, (1900) 1 Q. B. 111 (decided under a local Act). By taking out of Court the money deposited by the claimant on the first occasion the judgment creditor accepts the money in lieu of the goods, and thereby estops himself in respect of the same judgment from denying that as against himself the claimant is the owner of the goods; and therefore the claimant is entitled to judgment on the issue: Haddow v. Morton (Trout, claimant), (1894) 1 Q. B. 565, C. A.

Where an interpleader order has been made under which the sheriff withdraws, execution has been stayed under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 4, sub-s. 1 (g), and the judgment creditor cannot issue a bankruptcy notice: Exp. Ford, 18 Q. B. D. 369.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 71), s. 1, a debtor commits an act of bankruptcy if execution against him has been levied by seizure of his goods, and the goods have been either sold or held by the sheriff for twenty-one days, "provided that where an interpleader summons has been taken out with regard to the goods seized, the time elapsing between the date at which such summons has been taken out, and the date at which the sheriff is ordered to withdraw, or any interpleader issue ordered thereon is finally disposed of, shall not be taken into account in calculating such period of twenty-one days." Any person who is for the time being entitled to enforce a final judgment is to be deemed to be a creditor who has obtained a final judgment within sect. 4 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

Where goods taken in execution under a judgment have been claimed by a third party before the sheriff has made a return, and an interpleader summons has been taken out, and is pending, the judgment creditor is not in a position to issue execution for the amount of the judgment debt, and therefore is not entitled to serve a bankruptcy notice on the judgment debtor: Re Follows; Exp. Follows, (1895) 2 Q. B. 521.

Where the goods had been sold, the sheriff might deduct his costs from the money paid into Court; but where the goods had not been, and were not to be sold, he was entitled to his costs from the parties putting him in motion, but not, in the interpleader suit, to costs of possession: Hale v. Saloon, &c. Co., 4 Drew. 492.

As to the sheriff's duty on a fieri facias where there is a partnership account, and his right to interpleader, see Anon., W. N. (75) 204.

A sheriff who has taken out, in respect of goods taken in execution and claimed as separate estate of the debtor's wife, an interpleader summons on which an order for sale in default of payment has been obtained, will not be restrained by injunction in the Ch. Div. from selling the goods: Wright v. Redgrave, 11 Ch. D. 24, C. A.

A party to interpleader proceedings who brought an action and obtained an injunction against the sheriff, without waiting for the result of the interpleader, had to bear his own costs of the proceedings against the sheriff: Hilliard v. Hanson, 21 Ch. D. 69, C. A.

The execution creditor who is unsuccessful in an interpleader issue is liable to repay to the claimant the charges of the sheriff which he has deducted from the amount of the levy: Blaker v. Seager, 76 L. T. 392.

The claimant, if successful, is entitled to recover from the execution creditor the sheriff's charges subsequent to the interpleader order: Goodman v. Blake, 19 Q. B. D. 77.

Any special damage to the claimant may be adjudicated on, and whether it is or not, no other action can be maintained by him for damages: Death v. Harrison, L. R. 6 Ex. 15; and see Cramer v. Mathew, 7 Q. B. D. 425.

The Judge has power to adjudicate as to damages, although the goods, having been sold, are no longer in the control of the Court: Mills v. Renney, 5 Ex. D. 313, C. A.

A sheriff cannot be ordered to pay costs in interpleader proceedings. He is no party to the issue nor in any sense a co-defendant. If ordered to pay costs his proper course is, not to appeal against the order, but to obtain a prohibition: Temple v. T., 63 L. J. Q. B. 556.

By r. 17, "where the execution creditor does not in due time, as directed by the last preceding rule, admit or dispute the title of the claimant to the goods or chattels, and the claimant does not withdraw his claim thereto by notice in writing to the sheriff or his officer, the sheriff may apply for an interpleader summons to be issued, and should the claimant withdraw his claim by notice in writing to the sheriff or his officer, or the execution creditor in like manner serve an admission of the title of the claimant prior to the return day of such summons, and at the same time give notice of such admission to the claimant, the Judge or Master may, in and for the purposes of the interpleader proceedings, make all such orders as to costs, fees, charges, and expenses, as may be just and reasonable."

Where a claim is made to goods taken in execution by the bailiff of a County Court, and the claimant does not make the deposit or give the security required by s. 156 of the County Courts Act, 1888, and the bailiff sells accordingly, the purchaser acquires a good title to the goods although it subsequently appears that they were the property of the claimant at the time of seizure: Goodlock v. Cousins, (1897) 1 Q. B. 348.

By the County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 43), s. 157, where claims are made to goods taken in execution under the process of a County Court, the registrar may, on the application of the high bailiff, issue a summons calling the party issuing the process and the claimant before the Court, and the Judge may adjudicate upon such claim, and as to any damages arising out of the execution.

For practice under this section, see County Court Orders, 1889.

As to appeal in interpleader from County Court, see sect. 157; and Lumb v. Teal, 22 Q. B. D. 675; Collis v. Lewis, 20 Q. B. D. 202; Thomas v. Kelly, 13 App. Cas. 506; Chit. Arch. 1528; and as to interpleader generally, Ib. 1354 et seq.; County Court Annual Pr. Pt. IV. Ch. iii.; Pt. VI. Ch. iii.

CHAPTER XXX.

NE EXEAT REGNO.

1. Order for Writ to Issue.

UPON motion &c., and upon reading an affidavit of &c., filed &c. [Enter evidence, and if before appearance, and the writ of summons issued in this action on the — day of —]; and the Plt by his counsel undertaking &c. [see Form 1, p. 518, as to damages], This Court doth order, that a writ [or one or more writ or writs] of ne exeat regno do issue against the said Deft A., until this Court make other order to the contrary; And the said writ [or writs] is [or are] to be marked for security in the sum of £— in words at length, and not in figures.

For like order on affidavit, certificate and terms as above, see Close v. C., V.-C. K. B., 24 July, 1851, A. 1169; and see Beverley v. Crowe, V.-C. K. B., 13 June, 1850, A. 1088; Stanley v. Plevins, V.-C. K. B., 27 March, 1849, A. 753.

For order for the writ after decree, see Evezard v. Burke, M. R., 20 July, 1876, A. 1274.

After decree for accounts, and sum certified to be due from Deft, see Henry v. Walden, L. C., 1 May, 1766, A. 234.

For order for the writ as between co-Defts before the time fixed by the decree for payment of an amount admitted to be due, and before the decree had been drawn up, see Sobey v. S., V.-C. B., 14 Dec. 1872, B. 3099.

And for form of writ of ne exeat, see Braith. 229; Beames, Ne exeat, 23; D. O. F. 852.

2. Writ Discharged on Deft giving Security.

UPON appeal from order dismissing Deft's motion, and for leave to go out of the jurisdiction for twelve months, he undertaking then to return—"Let, upon the Deft M. giving security to the amount of £1,000, with two sureties, such security to be approved by the (Judge), to answer such sum as may be found due from him in this cause, the writ of ne exeat regno issued in this action be discharged; And Let the order dated &c., be also discharged, except so much thereof as ordered that the Deft M. should pay to the Plt his costs of that application, to be taxed &c."—See Lee v. Melendez, L. C., 11 Jan. 1849, B. 360.

For order, that on Deft giving security, to be approved of by the Master, for the amount certified due from him under decree, and paying costs, to be taxed, he be discharged out of custody, see Henry v. Walden, L. C., 30 June, 1766, A. 299.

For order, that upon Deft, while in gaol, executing a security, approved by the Court, and identified by the registrar, for the balance due from him, he be discharged from custody, and that he pay the costs of the writ of ne exeat and assignment, and of his application to discharge the writ, or in default that the costs be added to the security, see Sobey v. S., V.-C. B., 11 Jan. 1873, B. 5; 15 Eq. 200.

3. Ne Exeat Discharged—Inquiry as to Damages and Payment according to Undertaking.

LET the writ of ne exeat regno issued against the Deft M. pursuant to the order dated &c., and the said order, be respectively discharged with costs, including the costs of this application, such costs to be taxed &c., and paid by the Plts S. &c., to the said Deft M.; And Let an inquiry be made what damages have been sustained by the said Deft M., by reason of the said order dated &c. having been made; And Let the Plts S. &c., pursuant to their undertaking contained in the said order, within one month after the date of the Master's certificate of the result of the said inquiry, pay what shall be certified in respect of such damages to the said Deft M.—Liberty to apply.—Sichell v. Raphael, V.-C. W., 22 March, 1861, B. 815; 4 L. T. 114.

For order discharging the writ, and order for it with costs, and, by consent, for Plt within one month to pay to the Deft the sum of 100*l.* for the damage sustained by the Deft by reason of the order (for ne exeat) having been made, see Stoffell v. Whitworth, V.-C. M., in Chambers, 31 Oct. 1871, B. 2706.

NOTES.

The writ of ne exeat regno is granted in cases of equitable claims: Drover v. Beyer, 13 Ch. D. 242, C. A.; it is in the nature of mesne process until final judgment, to prevent a person from leaving the realm, to the damage of the person to whom he is indebted, unless he has given security for the amount of the debt. It is interlocutory only, and superseded by the judgment; but the safe course is by the judgment expressly to discharge the order for the writ.

Where the claim made in the action is such as could not before the Judicature Acts have been brought forward in Chancery, the writ will not be granted: Drover v. Beyer, 13 Ch. D. 242, C. A.

In cases of claims at common law, whether in contract or tort, the Plt may, on proof of cause of action to the amount of 50*l.*, and that there is probable cause for believing that the Deft is about to leave England, and that his absence will prejudice the Plt in his claim, obtain an order for the arrest of the Deft under sect. 6 of the Debtors Act, 1869.

For the practice under this section, see O. LXIX.

In order to obtain the writ the demand must be pecuniary, must be for an ascertained amount actually due and payable in presenti, and is subject to the provisions of the Debtors Act, 1869, s. 6 (in substitution for arrest by mesne process). See Dan. 1398.

A proof that there is probable cause for believing that the Deft is about to quit England unless he be apprehended, and that his absence will materially prejudice the Plt in the prosecution of his action, must have been given: Drover v. Beyer, 13 Ch. D. 242, C. A.; Colverson v. Bloomfield, 29 Ch. D. 341.

Where the debt, though certain, is payable in futuro, the writ cannot, it seems, be granted: see Dan. 1398, and cases there cited; Beames, on Ne Exeat, 27.

But the writ may be obtained before the time fixed by the order for payment, if the Court is satisfied that the debtor is going abroad to evade payment: Sobey v. S., 15 Eq. 200; Whitehouse v. Partridge, 3 Sw. 365; but not before service of an order directing payment within seven days after service: Colverson v. Bloomfield, 29 Ch. D. 341.

The evidence as to the debt must be positive and clear: Thompson v. Smith, 13 W. R. 422; 34 L. J. Ch. 412; 12 L. T. 9; 11 Jur. N. S. 276; Jackson v.

Petrie, 10 Ves. 165; and the writ will not be granted in the case of a contested and unsettled account: Anon., 5 N. R. 358; Flack v. Holm, 1 J. & W. 405; or unless, omitting disputed items, the Plt can swear that according to his belief a particular sum at the least is due for which the writ can be marked: Dan. 1398.

The Deft's intention to leave the country must be clearly shown by the affidavits: mere general belief, without stating the grounds for such belief, not being sufficient: Perry v. Dorset, 19 W. R. 1048; and also that the Plt will be materially prejudiced in the prosecution of his claim by the Deft's leaving the kingdom: Drover v. Beyer, 13 Ch. D. 242; Vanzeller v. V., 15 Jur. 115; Boehm v. Wood, T. & R. 332; and when the writ has been obtained upon a case not borne out by Plt's affidavits, or which has been displaced by Deft, it will be discharged with costs: Anderson v. Stamp, 2 H. & M. 576; see also Vanzeller v. V., 15 Jur. 115; and an inquiry as to damages may also be directed: Sichell v. Raphael, 4 L. T. 114, sup., Form 3; but if a Deft against whom the writ has been granted has not moved to discharge it, he cannot at the hearing claim damages in respect thereof under the Plt's undertaking: Lees v. Patterson, 7 Ch. D. 866.

The undertaking as to damages, and also to accept short notice of motion to discharge, is now usually required.

Copies of the affidavits upon which the writ is granted must be furnished by the party applying for the writ ex parte, upon payment of the proper charges, immediately upon the receipt of a written request, and undertaking to pay the proper charges, or within such time as may be specified in such request, or may have been directed by the Court or a Judge: O. LXVI, 7 (j).

A present vested interest liable to be divested will support the writ: Howkins v. H., 1 Dr. & S. 75.

The writ may be obtained by Defts against the Plt: Whitehouse v. Partridge, 3 Sw. 365; and in matters of account by Defts (exors) against their co-Deft: Sobey v. S., 15 Eq. 200; and see Done's case, 1 P. Wms. 263.

It might issue against a contributory in default without bill filed: Mawer's case, 4 D. & S. 349; and see Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 89), ss. 118, 119; and need not have been prayed by the bill: Howkins v. H., 8 W. R. 403 (in which case it was granted against a Deft, in contempt for not answering, who, residing abroad, had come to this country temporarily, and was about to return).

The Court uses its discretion as to the order to be made on the motion discharging the writ, but is usually satisfied with security: Beames, 97.

As against a Deft who had obtained protection under the Insolvent Debtors Act, and was therefore no longer personally answerable for the debt, the writ was discharged on terms: see James v. North, 7 W. R. 150; 28 L. J. Ch. 374; 5 Jur. N. S. 84.

For the practice as to discharging the writ, see Dan. 1403 et seq. And for forms, see D. C. F. 850 et seq.

CHAPTER XXXI.

INJUNCTIONS.

SECTION I.—INTERLOCUTORY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERIM ORDERS.

1. Injunction on Notice, or Ex parte, on Undertaking as to Damages.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft [or reading an affidavit of service of notice of this motion on the Deft, or if moved ex parte before the Deft has appeared, the writ of summons issued in this action on the — day of —] [Enter affidavits in support and in opposition, if any]; And the Plt by his counsel, undertaking to abide by any order which this Court may make as to damages, in case this Court should hereafter be of opinion that the Defts shall have sustained any, by reason of this order, which the Plt ought to pay [If so, and also undertaking to accept short notice of motion to discharge this order or the injunction hereby granted], This Court doth order, that the Deft A. [his servants, workmen, and agents] be restrained from &c., until judgment in this action, or until further order from &c.

The writ of injunction is no longer issued, the judgment or order having the effect of a writ: O. L, 11.

For various forms of notice of motion for injunction, see D. C. F. 830 et seq.

2. Ex parte Interim Order.

In vacation, the Judge granting an injunction is considered as sitting in Court, where counsel or parties in person only can be heard.

3. Extending Interim Order, on like Undertakings.

LET this motion stand over until &c., and the Plts, by their counsel, undertaking to abide, &c. [Form 1]; Let the Defts — be further restrained until after the said — day of —, from &c. [Follow terms of interim order.]

4. Motion to stand over on Mutual Undertakings.

AND the Deft, by his counsel, undertaking to stay the sale of the property in the indorsement of the writ mentioned until after the — day of —; and the Plt, by his counsel, undertaking to abide &c. by any order which this Court may make as to damages &c. [Form 1], by reason of such sale being so stayed &c., Let this motion stand over until the said — day of —.

5. Motion treated as the Trial, and Action stayed on Deft's undertaking and paying Costs.

AND the Plt and the Defts by their counsel consenting that the hearing of this motion should be treated as the trial of this action, and consenting to this order; and the Defts by their counsel undertaking not to [in terms of the injunction claimed by the writ], This Court doth order that the Defts do pay to the Plt his costs of this action, to be taxed &c.; and that all further proceedings in this action, except for the purpose of giving effect to this order, be stayed.

6. Motion treated as the Trial—Costs to Date of Offer only.

AND the Plt and Defts by their counsel consenting that the hearing of this motion shall be treated as the trial of this action, And the Plt by his counsel waiving his right to any account against the Defts W. & S., Ltd., and the Defts W. & S., Ltd., by their counsel undertaking not to manufacture, sell, offer for sale, or advertize for sale, any caps with peaks made in infringement of the Plt's patent, or in any other manner to infringe the Plt's patent, Let the Defts W. & S., Ltd., pay to the Plt his costs of this action down to the 24th October, 1895, together with his costs of the day on the 14th December, 1895; And Let the Plt J. J. pay to the Defts W. & S., Ltd., their costs subsequent to the said 24th October, 1895, such respective costs to be taxed by the taxing master.—Perpetual injunction restraining the Defts E. H. and the D. H. & C. M. Co. in terms of the undertaking.—See Jenkins v. Hope, North, J., 11 Jan., 1896, A. 1391; (1896) 1 Ch. 278.

7. Inquiry as to Damages after Judgment for Deft—Payment—Costs.

LET an inquiry be made whether the Deft E. has sustained any and what damages by reason of the injunction granted by the order dated &c., and which the Plt ought to pay according to his undertaking contained in the said order; And in case it shall appear that any such damage has been sustained, Let the Plt B. pay to the Deft E., within one month from the date of the Master's certificate to be made pursuant to this order, the amount which shall be thereby certified for such damages, and also pay to the said Deft his costs of the said inquiry, to be taxed by the taxing master; And in case it shall appear that no such damage has been sustained, Let the Deft E. pay to the Plt his costs of the said inquiry, to be taxed as aforesaid.—Burdett v. Hay, M. R., 28 April, 1864, A. 1298; S. C., 4 D. J. & S. 41.

This form was approved by V.-C. H. in Christie v. C., 19 Feb. 1875, A. 161, where, at the joint request of Plts and Defts, an issue was directed under 25 & 26 V. c. 42, s. 2 (repealed by the Stat. Law Revision and Civil Procedure Act, 1883, 46 & 47 V. c. 49), whether Defts had sustained any damage by reason of the order, and if so, what was the amount of it.

8. Dismissal—Sum certain to be paid for Damages, or Inquiry.

Dismiss Plt's (action) with costs.—“And the Deft by his counsel offering to accept the sum of £— for damages under the undertaking of the Plt contained in the said order dated &c.; Let the Plt be at liberty to pay the said sum of £— to the Deft; And in default of the Plt paying to the Deft the said sum of £— within &c.,” Inquiry what damages have been sustained by the Deft by reason of the said order dated &c., having been made.—Plt to pay what shall be certified, and Deft's costs of the inquiry.—Liberty to apply.—Fuller v. Taylor, V.-C. W., 19 Feb. 1864, A. 327.

For dismissal of action (to restrain an apprehended nuisance) without prejudice to any further proceedings on the part of the Plt, in case the operations of the Deft's works should occasion a nuisance, or in case the Plt should apprehend an immediate nuisance or damage if the operations of the Defts were continued, see Fletcher v. Bealey, Pearson, J., 15 May, 1885, A. 776; 33 W. R. 745, 748.

For declaration that the Plt is not entitled to relief, and on the Plt's undertaking, contained in the former order, to pay damages, inquiry as to damages, and Plt to pay the amount certified, and thereupon the recognizance which had been required in the case to answer damage to be vacated, and further proceedings to be stayed; Plt to pay costs of suit and of motion for injunction, see Napier v. Routledge, V.-C. W., 18 Jan. 1859, B. 746.

For subsequent order to vacate the recognizance to answer damages, and to deliver up the bond given as security for costs, both having been paid, see Napier v. Routledge, V.-C. W. at Chambers, 15 April, 1859, B. 1373.

For order for inquiry as to damage sustained by Deft by interim orders, Plt's bill being dismissed on motion for decree, see Hughes v. Lloyd, V.-C. W., 14 Feb. 1862, A. 360; and see order in Newby v. Harrison, 3 D. F. & J. 287.

For order on motion for injunction, treated as hearing of cause on mutual undertakings by consent, see Nicholson v. Marsh, V.-C. W., 3 Mar. 1858, B. 718.

NOTES.

FORM OF ORDER.

In granting an injunction the Court should see that the language of the order is not ambiguous, but such as to make what it permits, and what it prohibits, quite plain: Low v. Innes, 4 D. J. & S. 286; e.g., in a case of breach of covenant, the injunction “ought not in general terms to restrain the Deft from committing any breach of covenant, but the order should contain an adjudication on the particular thing which is said to be a breach of the covenant, so to restrain him by injunction from doing that particular thing, and in that way to limit the generality of the injunction": per Cotton, L. J., Parker v. First Avenue Hotel Co., 24 Ch. D. 282, 286, C. A.; and see Dalglish v. Jarvie, 2 Mac. & G. 231.

It must be founded on, and consistent with, the relief claimed: Burdett v. Hay, 4 D. J. & S. 41.

The writ of injunction formerly issued (see Dan. Ch. Pr. 1525, 5th edit.) was abolished by O. L. 11, which provides:—"No writ of injunction shall be issued. An injunction shall be by a judgment or order, and any such judgment or order shall have the effect which a writ of injunction previously had."

After 15 & 16 V. c. 86, the form usually adopted in granting interlocutory injunctions was "until the hearing of the cause," and now it is "until judgment in this action or further order," so as to show that the injunction is not to extend beyond judgment, unless then continued by leave of the Court, nor until that time if previously discharged by "further order": see Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766, 771.

Though an injunction restraining the act complained of is claimed against the Deft alone, the order will, if necessary, be extended to his workmen, servants, and agents (and it is of course to insert these words: Humphreys v. Roberts, V.-C., 1828, A. 674); but not to his tenants: Hodson v. Coppard, 29 Beav. 4; 9 W. R. 9. And when the order restrains the Deft only, his agents, though not in terms enjoined, may be punished for contempt, if they knowingly assist in a breach of the injunction: L. Wellesley v. Mornington, 11 Beav. 180; Seaward v. Paterson, (1897) 1 Ch. 545, C. A.: see inf., "BREACH OF INJUNCTION."

Otherwise an injunction does not bind a person not a party: Iveson v. Harris, 7 Ves. 256; Kerr, 646; and on a bill by persons "on behalf of all others, &c.," an injunction staying proceedings against persons not named parties to the record was held irregular, but continued by arrangement in favour of those who complied with the decree: Armitstead v. Durham, 11 Beav. 556—561, n.

If the motion stands until the trial, the costs will not, as a rule, be specially reserved, but will be disposed of together with the motion at the trial; the right course being to make the costs of the motion costs in the action; and the dismissal of the action with costs carries with it the costs of a motion for injunction, which stood over until the trial, and was not then brought on: see Gosnell v. Bishop, 38 Ch. D. 385. If, however, the question on the motion is different from that involved in the action, e.g., whether it was right to make the motion at all, whatever the rights of the parties may be, the proper order is, that the motion do stand over until the trial: per Chitty, J., Bournemouth Commrs. v. Holden, W. N. (88) p. 205. In order to entitle a Plt to costs, he is not bound, before moving for an injunction in assertion of his legal right, to give any notice to the Deft: Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; Upmann v. Forester, 24 Ch. D. 231; Witmann v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 260; but as to the effect of an offer by the Deft to give a full and sufficient undertaking, and that a Plt nevertheless bringing on a motion for an injunction may be made to pay costs, see Jenkins v. Hope, (1896) 1 Ch. 278; sup. Form 6, p. 519; Snuggs v. Seyd & Kelly's Credit Index Co., W. N. (94) 95.

As to the taxation of reserved costs of interlocutory applications, v. sup. p. 258.

UNDERTAKING AS TO DAMAGES.

Except in cases where the Plt's right is perfectly clear, or damage from granting it is unlikely to accrue (Adamson v. Wilson, 3 N. R. 368), the Court will not (unless under special circumstances) grant an interlocutory injunction either ex parte or on notice, without an undertaking as to damages, and the registrars are instructed always to insert it: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490, 494, C. A.; Chappell v. Davidson, 8 D. M. & G. 1; 2 K. & J. 123; Tuck v. Silver, Joh. 218; Wakefield v. D. Buccleuch, 13 W. R. 856; 11 Jur. N. S. 523; 12 L. T. 628; Worms v. Smith, 18 W. R. 91; and it will be required, even when the injunction is continued by the Court of Appeal after hearing both sides: Teign Valley Co. v. Southwood, 19 W. R. 690; 28 L. J. Ch. 165; 5 Jur. N. S. 347; S. C., 1 J. & H. 79; 30 L. J. Ch. 147; 7 Jur. N. S. 282;

3 L. T. 121; De Mattos v. Gibson, 7 W. R. 152; but cannot be required where the action is by A. G. on behalf of the Crown: A. G. v. Albany Hotel Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 696, C. A.; distinguishing Sec. of State for War v. Chubb, 43 L. T. 83; though the Court might, perhaps, refuse to grant the interlocutory injunction in a special case unless the Crown gave the undertaking. The undertaking ought not to be inserted in an interim injunction restraining the Plt in a patent action from publishing threats before judgment: Fenner v. Wilson, (1893) 2 Ch. 656.

The undertaking is not confined to damages sustained by the party against whom the injunction is granted, but extends to damages sustained by all the Defts: Tucker v. New Brunswick Trading Co., 44 Ch. D. 249, C. A. The Court has no jurisdiction to compel a party to give an undertaking: S. C.

As to the amount of damages, see Mansell v. British Linen Bank, (1892) 3 Ch. 159, where, the injunction being to restrain sale of shares, and a summons for sale by the mortgagee of them having been successfully opposed by the Plt and the Deft mortgagor, the damages were held to be the difference between the price when the injunction was granted and the price when the summons for sale was issued.

Where an ex parte injunction was granted on an undertaking to amend the writ which was not complied with until the opposite party moved to dissolve the injunction, the Court dissolved the injunction: Spanish General Agency v. Spanish Corporation, 63 L. T. 161; W. N. (90) 158.

Where the injunction is granted in vacation, without attendance of Counsel, the undertaking is usually signed either by Plt or by his solr in the registrar's minute book.

Where the application for an injunction is by a co., the Court has required the undertaking to be given, and the registrar's book to be signed by a director, or some person satisfactory to the Court, and his signature to be witnessed by the solr of the co.: Southampton, &c. Co. v. Hollis, V.-C. B., 20 Jan. 1871, B. 110; Anglo-Danubian Co. v. Rogerson, 10 Jur. N. S. 87; 1 N. R. 185; and where no officer of the co. is resident in London, the undertaking has been sent by post to the registrar, and filed: Pacific Steam Co. v. Gibbs, 14 W. R. 218; 13 L. T. 431; but in Re Tecorna Co., V.-C. H., 21 Nov. 1874, Reg. Min., f. 142, the undertaking of counsel on behalf of the co. was accepted as sufficient; and see Manchester & L. Bkg. Co. v. Parkinson, 60 L. T. 47; and this is now usual unless the solvency of the co. is challenged. The solr is not now called upon to give his personal undertaking. Where a corporation or local board are Plts, their undertaking is sufficient: E. Molesey L. B. v. Lambeth Waterworks Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 289.

If Plt is out of the jurisdiction, an undertaking must be given by his London agents or some responsible person: Hamilton v. Board, 1 N. R. 379; Solignac v. Durden, M. R., 29 Oct. 1859, B. 2698.

It will be required from a married woman suing in respect of her separate estate: Holden v. Waterlow, 15 W. R. 139; and the sole undertaking of a married woman suing as a feme sole is sufficient: Re Prynne, 53 L. T. 465; Pike v. Cave, W. N. (93) 91; 68 L. T. 650; 62 L. J. Ch. 937.

The undertaking remains in force although the action is dismissed: Newby v. Harrison, 3 D. F. & J. 287 (and see memorandum by Jessel, M. R., W. N. (79) 74); or the Plt has discontinued his action: Newcomen v. Coulson, 7 Ch. D. 764.

Notwithstanding the dictum of Jessel, M. R., in Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421, a Deft is entitled to the benefit of the undertaking in damages, though the injunction may have been wrongly granted by mistake of law, and not through any misrepresentation, suppression, or other default of the Plt: Hunt v. H., 54 L. J. Ch. 289; Griffith v. Blake, 27 Ch. D. 474, 477, C. A.; the rule being (per Cotton, L. J.) that wherever the Plt fails on the merits, an inquiry as to damages will be granted, unless there are special circumstances to the contrary: and see Sheppard v. Gilmore, W. N. (87) 242; Ross v. Buxton, W. N. (88) 55.

And see, as to the time of reference and mode of assessing damages upon the undertaking, Southworth v. Taylor, 28 Beav. 616; Mold v. Wheatcroft, 30 L. J. Ch. 598; Christie v. C., sup. p. 520; Hunt v. H., 54 L. J. Ch. 289.

An inquiry will not be granted when the Court can satisfy itself as to the amount of damage: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490, 494.

The Court will not enforce the undertaking where there has been unreasonable delay in applying, e.g., four years after it was ascertained that the injunction had been improperly granted: Exp. Hall, Re Wood, 23 Ch. D. 644, C. A.

As to breach of undertaking, v. inf. p. 743.

SERVICE OF ORDER FOR INJUNCTION.

By O. L, 11, the writ of injunction has been abolished; and service of the minutes of the order, signed by the registrar, or even notice in writing, if fully proved, is sufficient, but should be followed by service of the order as soon as it can be obtained: see Heywood v. Wait, 18 W. R. 205; Dan. 1368; Kerr, 630. For form of notice, see D. C. F. 835.

A judgment or order for an injunction is to be dated and take effect from the day on which it is pronounced: O. XLI, 3; O. LII, 13; and a party having notice of the order is bound by it, from that time, and not merely from the drawing up of the order.

A party in Court when the order is made against him, or only leaving just as it was about to be pronounced, has notice of it so as to be bound: Hearn v. Tennant, 14 Ves. 136; James v. Downes, 18 Ves. 522; and, generally, it is sufficient if it appears beyond doubt and dispute that he has notice, however given (even by telegram, especially if through a solr: Exp. Langley, 13 Ch. D. 110, C. A.; The Seraglio, 10 P. D. 120; Re Bryant, 4 Ch. D. 98), of the order, and that the Plt intends to proceed with it, though it has not been served: United Telephone Co. v. Dale, 25 Ch. D. 778; Heywood v. Wait, 18 W. R. 205; and where a solr's undertaking is embodied in an order of the Court, service of the order upon him is not necessary before committal: D. v. A. & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 484. (As to receipt of notice through the post, see Re London & Northern Bank, (1900) 1 Ch. 220, C. A.) But the order should be drawn up, passed, and entered without delay: Van Sandau v. Rose, 2 Jac. & W. 264; O. LXII, 4—6; Avory v. Andrews, 51 L. J. Ch. 414; 46 L. T. 279; 30 W. R. 564.

Unless substituted service was directed (Kirkman v. Honnor, 6 Beav. 400; Heald v. Hay, 9 W. R. 369; and see Anderson v. Lewis, 3 B. C. C. 429), service of the writ of injunction must have been personal, by showing the original, and leaving a copy with the person served: Woodward v. King, 2 Dick. 797; 3 Sw. 626; and this rule applies to the order which by the new practice has been substituted for the abolished writ: O. L, 11.

As to the indorsement to be made, under O. XLI, 5, on all copies of judgments or orders which shall be served requiring any person to do an act, and as to service generally, v. sup. pp. 213, 444; and that such indorsement is not required on orders merely prohibitive, see Selous v. Croydon Local Board, 53 L. T. 209; Hudson v. Walker, 64 L. J. Ch. 204; W. N. (94) 180.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

According to the former practice, personal service of notice of motion for injunction and receiver could only be made before appearance by leave of the Court, and such leave must have been stated in the notice: Ramsbottom v. Freeman, 4 Beav. 145; Hill v. Rimell, 2 M. & C. 641.

And now, by O. LII, 8, the Plt may, without any special leave, serve any notice of motion on any Deft who, having been served with a writ of summons, has not appeared within the time limited for the purpose.

And by r. 9, by leave of the Court or Judge obtained ex parte, the Plt may serve any notice of motion with the writ of summons, or at any time after service thereof, and before appearance. In such case the notice must state that it is by leave.

As an application to add or strike out the names of any parties, whether as Plts or as Defts, may now be made at any stage of the proceedings (O. XVI, 11), such application will not, it is presumed, prevent Plt from moving for an injunction. And even under the former practice the allowance or pendency of a demurrer for want of parties (now abolished, O. XXV, 1), did not, it seems, prevent an application for an injunction or receiver: Hamp v. Robinson, 3 D. J. & S. 97; Const v. Harris, T. & R. 514; and see Re Thorniley, Woolley v. T., 32 W. R. 539; 53 L. J. Ch. 499.

Under the old practice an amendment of the bill after notice of motion for an injunction operated as a waiver of the notice of motion, and the Plt had to pay the costs occasioned by the notice of motion: L. & Blackwall Ry. v. Limehouse Bd., 3 K. & J. 123; Smith v. Dixon, 12 W. R. 934; 4 N. R. 259; Monypenny v. M., 1 W. R. 99. Under the new practice amendment does not in general affect the operation of an injunction: Dan. 1369.

It was irregular to move on notice of motion given before the amendment; the proper course being to apply for leave to amend, without prejudice to the notice of motion: Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458; Gouthwaite v. Rippon, 1 Beav. 54.

And although under the new practice an injunction may be applied for upon the writ of summons (see O. XIX, 2, O. XX, 1 (b)), it is conceived that the old rule of practice ought, in strictness, still to be followed; and see Caldwell v. Pagham Harbour Reclamation Co., 2 Ch. D. 221, where an action was by leave turned into an information and action, without prejudice to a pending motion for an injunction; and see Kerr, 622.

INTERLOCUTORY APPLICATIONS AND INTERIM RESTRAINING ORDERS— JURISDICTION.

The term "interim" is technically applied only to an order granted over the next or some early motion day, but often extended.

The term "interlocutory" is used in a more comprehensive sense, and applies to any order or injunction that is granted only up to judgment in the action.

By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), an injunction may be granted by an interlocutory order of the Court in all cases in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient, and such order may be made either unconditionally, or upon such terms and conditions as the Court shall think just; and see O. L, 6, 12.

The extensive jurisdiction of granting injunctions given to the Courts of Common Law by the C. L. P. Act, 1854, ss. 79, 82, has been transferred to the High Court, so that injunctions will now be granted in the Ch. Div. in cases where under the old practice there was no jurisdiction in Chancery: see Biddow v. B., 9 Ch. D. 89; Aslatt v. Southampton Corp., 16 Ch. D. 143; Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; especially in cases of libel: see Thorley, &c. Co. v. Massam, 14 Ch. D. 763, C. A.; Thomas v. Williams, 14 Ch. D. 864; Quartz Hill Co. v. Beall, 20 Ch. D. 501, C. A.; Hill v. Hart-Davis, 21 Ch. D. 798; Bonnard v. Perryman, (1891) 2 Ch. 269; Collard v. Marshall, (1892) 1 Ch. 571; Monson v. Tussauds, (1894) 1 Q. B. 671, C. A.

The principles, however, have not been altered, but only the procedure, and an injunction should only be granted where it is just as well as convenient: Day v. Brownrigg, 10 Ch. D. 294; Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324, C. A.; Fletcher v. Rodgers, 27 W. R. 97; and the jurisdiction has not been extended so as to enable the Court to grant an injunction where, before the Jud. Act, it could not have done so: Kitts v. Moore, (1895) 1 Q. B. 253, C. A.; N. L. Ry. Co. v. G. N. Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30, C. A.; Holmes v. Millage, (1893) 1 Q. B. 551, C. A.; Collard v. Marshall, (1892) 1 Ch. 571; e.g., restraining proceedings before an arbitrator under the L. C. Act, alleged to have been taken without the authority of the person whose name was used: London and Blackwall Ry. Co. v. Cross, 31 Ch. D. 354, C. A.; and see Jackson v. Barry Ry. Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 238; but the Court has jurisdiction on equitable grounds to restrain Deft from proceeding to arbitration where an action has been brought impeaching the instrument containing the submission: Kitts v. Moore, (1895) 1 Q. B. 253, C. A.; and will not refuse to protect by injunction a right which is merely statutory: see Hayward v. East London Waterworks Co., 28 Ch. D. 138; or protected by statute: Stevens v. Chown, (1901) 1 Ch. 894.

An interlocutory injunction to restrain a gross libel was refused where no danger to the Plts in person or property was shown: Salomons v. Knight, (1891) 2 Ch. 294, C. A.; and see Plumbly v. Perryman, W. N. (91) 64.

An interlocutory injunction restraining the publication of placards and circulars containing statements injurious to trade was granted where the Court was satisfied upon the evidence that the statements were false: Collard v. Marshall, (1892) 1 Ch. 571.

By O. L, 6, an application for an order under sect. 25 (8) may be made to the Court or a Judge by any party; if by Plt, either ex parte or with notice; and if by any other party, then on notice to Plt, and at any time after appearance by the party applying.

Under this rule, a Deft may, before judgment, but after appearance, and on notice to Plt, apply for an injunction and receiver: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600; but under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), Deft may apply ex parte: Hick v. Lockwood, W. N. (83) 48.

As to application for and delivery of copies of affidavits on ex parte applications for an injunction, see O. LXVI, 7 (i, j).

By O. LII, 3, the Court or a Judge, if satisfied that the delay caused by proceeding in the ordinary way would or might cause irreparable or serious mischief, may make any order ex parte upon such terms as to costs, and subject to such undertaking, if any, as the Court or Judge shall think fit.

Under this rule, in order to avoid delay, the order for service out of the jurisdiction, obtained ex parte under O. II, 4, before issuing the writ, has provided for the issuing of an injunction from and after issue of the writ of summons: Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277.

Under the new practice injunctions have been granted by Judges of the Common Law Divisions personally in Chambers on ex parte applications (see Fenner v. Bedford, W. N. (75) 230, to restrain pulling down a house: Tozer v. Walford, W. N. (75) 250, to restrain the use of a steam engine: Anon., W. N. (76) 21, to restrain parting with a bill of exchange).

But this has not hitherto been the practice in Chancery, and will probably not be encouraged in that division: see English v. Camberwell Vestry, W. N. (75) 256; and that injunctions ought not to be granted ex parte except in cases of emergency, see Anon., W. N. (76) 12, per Lindley, J.

For injunction in the Probate Division, after issue of the writ, but before service, to restrain any dealing with an intestate's estate, see Brand v. Mitson, 24 W. R. 524; 45 L. J. P. D. 41; 34 L. T. 854.

In actions within its jurisdiction a County Court has power, under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 89, to grant an injunction, and to commit for disobedience to the order: Martin v. Bannister, 4 Q. B. D. 212, 491; and see Brune v. James, (1898) 1 Q. B. 417; but not to stay an action commenced in the High Court (having no power to do what the High Court, since sect. 89, cannot): Cobbold v. Pryke, 4 Ex. D. 315.

Applications for injunctions, mandamus, or the appointment of a receiver, under the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), or for the interim preservation of property, &c., under O. I, 1, 2, 3, are, by O. LIV, 12, excepted from the jurisdiction of the masters of the Q. B. Div., and of the registrars in the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division.

In cases of urgency, interim restraining orders are granted, and receivers appointed, on affidavit of the facts before appearance of the Deft or service of the writ (or, under the former practice, bill filed): Carr v. Morice, 16 Eq. 125; Thorneloe v. Skoines, Ib. 126; Campana v. Webb, 22 W. R. 622; and even before affidavit filed, Plt undertaking to file it: Newman v. Harris, W. N. (70) 6; Shimell v. Tucker, V.-C. W., 13 Ap. 1872, B. 821; Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277 (see, however, Exp. M'Phail, 12 Ch. D. 632); H.'s Estate, Colebourne v. C., 1 Ch. D. 276; O. XXXVIII, 19.

By O. LXVI, 7 (j), on ex parte applications for injunctions, or ne exeat, the party making such application is to furnish copies of the affidavits upon which it is granted, upon payment of the proper charges, immediately upon the receipt of the usual request and undertaking, or within such time as may be specified in such request, or may have been directed by the Court or a Judge.

After the motion is opened no new evidence can be adduced, except with the leave of the Court: Bird v. Lake, 1 H. & M. 118, 119; East Lancashire Ry. Co. v. Hattersley, 8 Ha. 72, 86; and see Munro v. Wivenhoe Ry. Co., 4 D. J. & S. 726; which seems to extend the rule to the use by counsel of any evidence in existence when they are called upon to address the Court.

Applications for injunctions ex parte are strictly dealt with; there must have been uberrima fides; the case must be fully and fairly stated; and the suppression or misrepresentation of any material fact will disentitle Plt to relief, or at least make him liable for costs at the hearing: Dalglisch v. Jarvie, 2 Mac. & G. 231; A. G. v. Liverpool Corp., 1 My. & Cr. 171; Maclaren v. Stainton, 16 Beav. 279; Edelsten v. E., 1 D. J. & S. 185; Fuller v. Taylor, 9 Jur. N. S. 743; 8 L. T. 69; 11 W. R. 532; 32 L. J. Ch. 376; Harbottle v. Pouley, 20 L. T. 436; Holden v. Waterlow, 15 W. R. 139; Wimbledon L. Board v. Croydon Sanitary Authority, 32 Ch. D. 421, C. A.; and see Schmitt v. Faulkes, W. N. (93) 64 (where the solr having suppressed the fact that he was taking bankruptcy proceedings against his client was held liable both for costs and under the client's undertaking as to damages). If the Deft has appeared the Court ought to be informed of the fact: Mexican Co. v. Maldonado, W. N. (90) 8.

But the Plt so applying is not bound to state facts supposed to raise some point of law in reality untenable: Weston v. Arnold, 8 Ch. 1084. And see Kerr, 634.

A motion to discharge an ex parte order for an injunction on the ground of its having been obtained by misrepresentation, is proper, though the injunction is about to expire: Wimbledon L. Board v. Croydon Sanitary Authority, 32 Ch. D. 421, C. A.; distinguishing Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766.

Delay and acquiescence are very material (especially in patent cases: Bovill v. Crate, 1 Eq. 388; Bacon v. Jones, 4 M. & C. 439); and will more easily than at the hearing bar Plt's right to summary relief: Hogg v. Scott, 18 Eq. 444; Johnson v. Wyatt, 2 D. J. & S. 18; Wood v. Sutcliffe, 2 Sim. N. S. 163; Gordon v. Cheltenham Ry. Co., 5 Beav. 233; Ware v. Regent's Canal Co., 3 D. & J. 212; Wintle v. Bristol and S. W. Ry. Co., 10 W. R. 210; 6 L. T. 20; Salisbury v. Met. Ry. Co., 18 W. R. 484; 39 L. J. Ch. 429; Isaacson v. Thompson, 41 L. J. Ch. 101; 20 W. R. 196; but mere delay short of the statutory period of limitations will not affect the right to an injunction in aid of a legal right: Fullwood v. F., 9 Ch. D. 176; Rowland v. Mitchell, 75 L. T. 65.

And see, upon the equitable doctrine of acquiescence as applied to injunctions, Kerr, 18—21, 189; Willmott v. Barber, 15 Ch. D. 96.

The balance of convenience and inconvenience from granting or refusing the order is also very material on interlocutory applications, especially where it is sought to stop carrying on a trade: Plimpton v. Spiller, 4 Ch. D. 286; Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, 15 Q. B. D. 476; A. G. v. Charles, 11 W. R. 253; or a public undertaking: Shrewsbury and Chester Ry. v. Shrewsbury and Birmingham Ry., 1 Sim. N. S. 410; Greenhalgh v. Manchester Ry. Co., 3 M. & Cr. 784; Hadley v. London, &c. Bank, 3 D. J. & S. 63; or to stop the working of a mine: Hilton v. Granville, C. & Ph. 297; or to restrain interference with light: Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, C. A.; McManus v. Cooke, 35 Ch. D. 681; Smith v. Baxter, (1900) 2 Ch. 138; or alleged infringement of trade mark: Mitchell v. Henry, 15 Ch. D. 181, C. A.;

—as also the power of the Court completely to enforce its order, e.g., by compelling a Plt to carry out the contract an interference with which he seeks to restrain: Garrett v. Bunstead Ry. Co., 4 D. J. & S. 462; Munro v. Wivenhoe Ry. Co., 4 D. J. & S. 723;

—as also the fact that the Plt can be adequately and more conveniently compensated by an inquiry as to damages—and these considerations are also applicable to relief by injunction at the hearing, and to cases of specific performance: see Elwes v. Payne, 12 Ch. D. 468, C. A.; Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, 15 Q. B. D. 476; (1892) A. C. 25; McManus v. Cooke, 35 Ch. D. 681; Holland v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 578; Isenberg v. E. I. Ho. Co., 3 D. J. & S. 263; Jackson v. D. Newcastle, ib. 275; Eastwood v. Lever, 4 D. J. & S. 114; Senior v. Pawson, 3 Eq. 330; Master v. Hansard, 34 L. T. 719; Wilson v. Northampton and Banbury Ry. Co., 9 Ch. 279.

The interlocutory order does not conclude the right, the object and effect being merely to keep things in statu quo where the Plt shows a prima facie case for relief at the hearing, so that the relief shall not be ineffectual: see Preston v. Luck, 27 Ch. D. 506, 508. In very special cases only will any positive act be enforced by interlocutory injunction: G. W. Ry. v. Birmingham, &c. Ry., 2 Ph. 597; Blakemore v. Glamorgan Canal, 1 M. & K. 154; Shrewsbury and Chester Ry. v. Shrewsbury and Birmingham Ry., 1 Sim. N. S. 410; Kerr, 12.

And, generally, this summary relief will not be granted where there is a serious question to be tried: e.g., the construction of a doubtful clause in an Act of Parliament: Dover Harbour v. L. C. & D. Ry., 3 D. F. & J. 559;

- alleged interference with a franchise in respect of market tolls: Elwes v. Payne, 12 Ch. D. 468, C. A.;
- the validity of a patent: Plimpton v. Malcolmson, 20 Eq. 37;
- where the Plt claims as c. q. t., but the trust is not admitted, and the right to the money or property in question is matter to be decided at the hearing: Bank of Turkey v. Ottoman Bank, 2 Eq. 366;
- or upon a mere quia timet where there is no sufficient threatened or intended legal injury: L. Cowley v. Byas, 5 Ch. D. 944; Fletcher v. Bealey, 28 Ch. D. 688; A. G. v. Vestry of Bermondsey, 23 Ch. D. 60, C. A.; Newton v. N., 11 P. D. 11; secus, where the subject-matter of litigation is in danger of being parted with or destroyed: London and County Banking Co. v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 490; Brand v. Mitson, 24 W. R. 524; 45 L. J. P. 41; 34 L. T. 854;
- or to restrain shipowners from conspiring to drive ships of other traders off a certain line of trade, unless a case of irreparable damage is made out: Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, 15 Q. B. D. 476; (1892) A. C. 25; and see Temperton v. Russell, (1893) 1 Q. B. 75, C. A.

The usual course in such cases is to order the motion to stand until the trial, Deft undertaking to keep accounts, or being put upon terms: see Coleman v. West Hartlepool Ry., 3 L. T. 847; Kerr, 626; Elwes v. Payne, 12 Ch. D. 468, C. A.; Mitchell v. Henry, 15 Ch. D. 181, C. A.

In Wall v. London Assets Corp., (1898) 2 Ch. 469, C. A., an interlocutory injunction against interference with the rights of the shareholders in a co. under the memorandum and articles was refused on an undertaking by the co. not to divide certain shares until after the trial of the action otherwise than in accordance with the rights of the shareholders under the memorandum and articles.

It is not unusual, by consent of parties, to treat the motion for an injunction as a motion for judgment, or to treat the hearing of the interlocutory application as the trial of the action: v. sup. p. 519, Form 6.

The right to an injunction at the hearing is not lost by an interlocutory motion not having been made: Davies v. Marshall, 1 Dr. & Sm. 557.

Under the old practice injunctions have been granted at the hearing under special circumstances, though not prayed by the bill: Blomfield v. Eyre, Goodman v. Kine, 8 Beav. 250, 379; Reynell v. Sprye, 1 D. M. & G. 660.

And see inf., Chap. XXXII., "RECEIVERS," for decisions in the analogous case of an application for a receiver not claimed by the writ.

Under the present practice, and the large powers of amendment at any stage of the proceedings (see O. XXVIII), although where an injunction (or the appointment of a receiver) is a substantial object of the action the writ should be so indorsed, an interim order, though not claimed by the writ, may be obtained on amending the indorsement: Colebourne v. C., V.-C. H., 15 Jan. 1876, A. 19; 1 Ch. D. 690; or without such amendment if incidental to the principal relief claimed.

Injunctions have been granted at the instance of one Deft against his co-Deft: Edgcumbe v. Carpenter, 1 Beav. 171; but not, it seems, upon interlocutory application before decree: Russell v. L. C. D. Ry., 4 Giff. 403.

But under O. L, 6, a Deft. may before judgment apply for an injunction (or receiver), and in a proper case the Court has jurisdiction to make the order: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600; and see Collison v. Warren, (1901) 1 Ch. 812, C. A.

It has been said that an interim order, if nothing is said to the contrary, remains in force until the case is disposed of: see Carrow v. Ferrier, 3 Ch. 719; but in practice such orders are invariably expressed to be granted until after or over a day fixed: see Form 2, p. 518; and if necessary may be continued until a further day, or until judgment: see Form 4, p. 519; and if an interim injunction has been obtained on notice, until a certain day, the Plt is not entitled, after the period for which it was granted has expired, to obtain ex parte a further injunction: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 491.

The pendency of a motion for an injunction did not prevent Plt from obtaining an order to dismiss his own bill: Markwick v. Pawson, 33 L. J. Ch. 703.

INJUNCTIONS MANDATORY—DAMAGES IN LIEU OF INJUNCTION.

Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction to grant a mandatory injunction, that is, to compel the Deft not only to desist from unlawful acts for the future, but to restore matters to their original position, is exercised, like that of specific performance, in cases where the injury to the Plt, active or passive, cannot be estimated and sufficiently compensated by damages, and has not been condoned by acquiescence.

By an interlocutory injunction the continuance of the act complained of is stopped until the right is tried between the parties; by a perpetual injunction such act, when decided to be unlawful, is permanently restrained; and by a mandatory injunction the Deft is ordered to undo the wrong he has done, and give the Plt complete relief by putting him in the position in which he was before the injury was committed.

Where the effect of the mandatory injunction is to require the performance of a certain act, such as the pulling down and removal of buildings, it is henceforth to be made in the form of a direct command, and not in the indirect form hitherto in use: Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A.; see Form 10, p. 565.

A mandatory injunction is seldom granted until the Plt has completely established his right: Child v. Douglas, Kay, 578; Gale v. Abbot, 10 W. R. 748; 6 L. T. 852; 8 Jur. N. S. 987; unless —the injury will be irreparable if allowed to continue until the hearing; e.g., the flow of water into a mine caused by removing the barrier of an adjoining working: Westminster Brymbo Co. v. Clayton, 36 L. J. Ch. 476;

—or the Deft, after express notice or pending litigation, seeks to anticipate the action of the Court by hurrying on an obstructive building: Daniel v. Ferguson, (1891) 2 Ch. 27, C. A.; Beadel v. Perry, 3 Eq. 465; Staight v. Burn, 5 Ch. 163; Morris v. Grant, 24 W. R. 55; Von Joel v. Hornsey, (1895) 2 Ch. 774, C. A.; and see Smith v. Day, 13 Ch. D. 651.

Delay and acquiescence are most material: Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324, C. A. (five years' acquiescence held fatal); Wicks v. Hunt, Joh. 373; especially in cases of obstructive building: Mott v. Shoolbred, 20 Eq. 22; unless there has been clear violation of an express agreement entered into by Deft after notice that the act will not be sanctioned: Morris v. Grant, 24 W. R. 55; or the buildings were such as could be easily altered, and their effect on Plt could not be known till they were finished: Baxter v. Bower, 23 W. R. 805; 44 L. J. Ch. 625; 33 L. T. 41.

Damages in lieu of or in addition to Injunction.—The power to grant a mandatory injunction was not taken away by Lord Cairns' Act (21 & 22 V. c. 27), providing relief in damages in addition to, or in substitution for, relief by injunction (since repealed, 46 & 47 V. c. 49), and was exercised where the Court was satisfied that a wrong, i.e., substantial annoyance or injury (Bowes v. Law, L. R. 9 Eq. 636), had been wilfully done, and that there had been neither delay nor acquiescence on the part of Plt: Smith v. S., L. R. 20 Eq. 500; although the obstruction was completed before writ issued: Lawrence v. Horton, 38 W. R. 555; 59 L. J. Ch. 440; 62 L. T. 749; Shiel v. Godfrey, W. N. (93) 115; and that the repeal of Lord Cairns' Act has not affected the jurisdiction of either division to grant an injunction or damages, or both, see Sayers v. Collyer, 28 Ch. D. 103, C. A.; and therefore damages in lieu of injunction could be granted though notice of action under the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 264, had not been given: Chapman v. Auckland Union, 23 Q. B. D. 299, 300, C. A.

But there is no jurisdiction to award damages where no wrongful act has been committed by the person against whom an injunction is sought: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 42 Ch. D. 166; S. C., 43 Ch. D. 316, C. A. (q. v. as to the principles to be adopted in working out an inquiry as to damages by unlawful detention, where the judgment is varied, but the inquiry allowed to stand).

The Palatine Court now has jurisdiction to give damages in lieu of an injunction under the Chancery of Lancaster Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 23), s. 3, which it had not previously: Proctor v. Bayley, 42 Ch. D. 390.

Where the injury is such that if it is not stopped the Plt's property will be rendered useless, the Court will not compel the Plt to sell his property to the Deft, i.e., to accept damages in lieu of a perpetual injunction; but where the injury is less serious, and may be compensated by money, then the discretion given by the Act may be exercised: Holland v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 578; and see Donnell v. Bennett, 22 Ch. D. 835; and see Martin v. Price, (1894) 1 Ch. 276, where, Plt failing to prove that the commercial value of his premises would be materially affected by Deft's existing buildings, damages only were given: S. C.

In a case of continuing actionable nuisance, the jurisdiction of the Court to award damages instead of an injunction, ought only to be exercised under very exceptional circumstances: Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 287, C. A.

It has been enunciated as a good working rule that damages may be given instead of an injunction when the following requirements are all found in conjunction, viz., where the injury to the Plt's rights is—(i.) small; (ii.) capable of being estimated in money; (iii.) capable of being adequately compensated by a small sum; (iv.) when an injunction would be oppressive: Per Smith, L. J., S. C.

In general, where there is a threatened invasion of a legal right—as, e.g., where Plt has proved his right to light, and that a proposed building will infringe that right—he is, in the absence of special circumstances, entitled to an injunction as to the threatened building: Martin v. Price, (1894) 1 Ch. 276; and quære, whether the Court has jurisdiction to give damages in respect of threatened injury in lieu of an injunction: Martin v. Price, sup.

Where Plt had admitted that he would have been satisfied if the Deft's house had been set back to a certain distance, an inquiry was directed what damages the Plt had sustained by reason of the obstruction of light occasioned by the Deft's house not being so set back: Broomfield v. Williams, (1897) 1 Ch. 602, C. A.

Principles and Instances.—For the principles on which mandatory injunctions are granted or refused, and the right to relief in damages, see also Durell v. Pritchard, 1 Ch. 24; Isenberg v. E. I. Ho. Co., 3 D. J. & S. 263; Curriers' Co. v. Corbet, 2 Dr. & Sm. 355; 4 D. J. & S. 764; A. G. v. Mid-Kent Co., 3 Ch. 100; Kelk v. Pearson, 6 Ch. 809; Baxter v. Bower, 23 W. R. 805; City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant; Goodson v. Richardson, 9 Ch. 212, 221; L. Stanley v. E. Shrewsbury, 19 Eq. 616; Kilbey v. Haviland, 19 W. R. 698; Musgrave v. Horner, 23 W. R. 125; Rock Portland Cement Co. v. Wilson, 52 L. J. Ch. 214; 31 W. R. 193; and that where there is jurisdiction to grant an injunction, damages may be given in lieu thereof, not only for injury commenced before, and continued after, writ issued, and ceased before trial, but also for injury which has occurred since the commencement of the action, see Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; Chapman v. Auckland Union, 23 Q. B. D. 294, 298, C. A.; and see Warwick and Birmingham Canal v. Burman, 63 L. T. 670; and that the maxim actio personalis moritur cum personâ does not apply to the equitable remedy by mandatory injunction to prevent obstruction of light, see Jones v. Simes, 43 Ch. D. 607.

As the Court has power to award damages in an action for an injunction, a consent order in such an action is a bar to an action for damages in respect of the same cause: Serrao v. Noel, 15 Q. B. D. 549. The right to damages for detention of property is not lost by the appointment of a receiver, or any other mode of placing the property in medio: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 42 Ch. D. 166; 43 Ch. D. 316, C. A.

The result of the cases appears to be that where the Plt, though entitled to relief, has not sustained serious or (pecuniarily) immeasurable injury; or where on other grounds, including that of the balance of convenience or inconvenience, the Court declines to grant him the extreme and summary relief of a mandatory injunction, an inquiry as to damages may be granted though not claimed.

The following are instances of mandatory injunctions:—

(a) Compelling the removal of obstructive buildings: Smith v. S., L. R. 20 Eq. 500; Merchant Taylors' Co. v. Truscott, 3 D. J. & S. 271; Jessel v. Chaplin, 4 W. R. 610; Rankin v. Huskisson, 4 Sim. 16; Great Northern Ry. v. Clarence Ry., 1 Coll. 517; Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324, C. A.; Sellers v. Matlock Bath L. B., 14 Q. B. D. 928 (public urinal erected under authority of Public Health Act, 1875); Myers v. Catterson, 43 Ch. D. 470, C. A. (hoarding obstructing light coming through railway arch); McManus v. Cooke, 35 Ch. D. 681 (mutual agreement as to erection of skylights).

(b) Compelling the removal of obstructions, as in Hervey v. Smith, 1 K. & J. 389; 22 Beav. 299 (to the use of flues); Bickett v. Morris, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 47; Robinson v. Lord Byron, 1 Bro. C. C. 588 (to the flow of water); Lane v. Newdigate, 10 Ves. 192 (to the right of navigating a canal); Neath Canal Co. v. Ynisarwed Co., 10 Ch. 450 (to the use of an accommodation bridge); Clegg v. Castleford L. B., W. N. (74) 229 (to the use of a drain); Cannon v. Villars, 8 Ch. D. 415 (to a right of way through a gateway and across a yard); Morris v. Grant, 24 W. R. 55 (porch erected in breach of covenant). And see A. G. v. Furness Ry. Co., 26 W. R. 650; 47 L. J. Ch. 776; 38 L. T. 555; for an order compelling a railway co. to construct a bridge of height and width prescribed by Railways Clauses Act, 1845, s. 49.

(c) Compelling the restitution of mining barriers: E. Mexborough v. Bower, 7 Beav. 129; Westminster Brymbo Co. v. Clayton, 36 L. J. Ch. 476.

(d) Compelling reinstatement of staircase removed by landlord of a flat in the tenant's absence: Allport v. Securities Corp., 64 L. J. Ch. 491, n.

(e) Compelling restoration of oyster beds, interfered with contrary to the provisions of statute, notwithstanding that the expense of restoration would be out of proportion to any advantage derivable therefrom: Woodhouse v. Newry Navigation Co., (1898) 1 I. R. 161, C. A.

(f) Compelling railway co. to restore junction between their line and a siding: Woodruff v. Brecon Ry. Co., 28 Ch. D. 190, C. A.

(g) Compelling the erection and maintenance of fences: Bidwell v. Holden, 63 L. T. 104.

(h) Against allowing pipes to remain on Plt's land, though under a highway: Goodson v. Richardson, 9 Ch. 221.

(i) Against allowing a colliery to be flooded by ceasing to pump out the water: Strelley v. Pearson, 15 Ch. D. 113.

(k) Compelling removal from an upper floor of lithographic stones causing danger by excessive weight to the premises: Cohen v. Poland, W. N. (87) 159.

(l) Compelling the return of letters and other documents: Evitt v. Price, 1 Sim. 483; Whittaker v. Howe (R.), 25 Feb. 1841, B. 336; 3 Beav. 383; Whitwham v. Moss, 73 L. T. 57.

(m) Compelling the withdrawal of a notice by a dismissed agent to the post office to forward all letters to his private address (thereby enabling him to obtain letters intended for his former employers): Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306, C. A.

SECTION II.—BREACH OF CONTRACT.

1. Injunction against practising in a Profession within specified Limits.

LET the Deft W. be restrained from carrying on, either alone or in co-partnership with any other person or persons whomsoever, the practice and profession of a solr, in W. or M., in the county of D., or at any place within fifty miles thereof respectively; and from continuing to describe himself by any public inscription on his premises at W. aforesaid as a solr.—Deft W. to pay the Plt's costs of suit to be taxed.—See Howard v. Woodward, V.-O. W., 8 Nov. 1864, A. 2082.

2. Contract to employ Solr—Injunction against employing any other Solr.

AND it appearing that the Deft E. M. is the Deft in an action in the Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, wherein [one] C. E. M. is Plt, and that such action had been defended by the Plt [in this action] A. M. in the name of the Deft E. M., under an agreement with him and in pursuance of a retainer by the said E. M. of E. R. W., the solr of the Plt A. M., as his solr in the said action dated —, that a petition of appeal from an order of this Court made in the said action, and dated —, has been lodged in the name of the Deft E. NOTES.

BREACH OF CONTRACT GENERALLY.

For the principles on which the Court acts in cases of breach of covenant, viz., that if the contract and breach are clear, or if, without actual breach the right to act in breach is claimed, an injunction will be granted, see Tipping v. Eckersley, 2 K. & J. 264; Wilkinson v. Rogers, 2 D. J. & S. 62; Lloyd v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co., 2 D. J. & S. 568; Shafto v. Bolckow, 34 Ch. D. 725; and see A. G. v. Acton Local Board, 22 Ch. D. 221.

The same importance will not be attached to the amount of damage as in other cases; and it is not essential for the Plt to show serious injury from the breach: A. G. v. Mid-Kent Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 100; Western v. M'Dermott, 1 Eq. 499; 2 Ch. 72; Leech v. Schweder, 9 Ch. 463; Dickenson v. Grand Junc. Can., 15 Beav. 260.

So, also, inconvenience to the public from granting the injunction is no ground for refusing it: Raphael v. Thames Valley Ry., 2 Ch. 147; and see Grahame v. Swan, 7 App. Ca. 547, 565, 569.

Statutory provisions, inter partes, may be regarded as a contract, and enforced accordingly: Countess of Rothes v. Kirkcaldy Waterworks, 7 App. Ca. 694; Manchester Ship Canal Co. v. Manchester Racecourse Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 352; (1901) 2 Ch. 37, C. A.; and in a fit case may be enforced not only between the parties, but by members of the public who are pecuniarily chargeable: Davis & Sons v. Taff Vale Ry. Co., (1895) A. C. 542, H. L., reversing, (1894) 1 Q. B. 43, C. A.; and that a covenant may be repealed by a subsequent Act of Parliament, see Newington Local Bd. v. Cottingham Local Bd., 12 Ch. D. 725.

But although the balance of convenience and actual injury are less strictly material in cases of breach of contract, the conduct of the Plt will be taken into consideration; e.g., if he has himself broken the agreement, he cannot obtain an injunction to restrain Deft from breach in any other respect: Telegraph Despatch Co. v. M'Lean, 8 Ch. 658.

For instances of delay, acquiescence, active or passive, want of fairness, &c., which have disentitled the party in whose favour the contract is made to relief, see Kerr, 429, &c.

As to restraining by injunction the breach of an agreement which cannot be specifically enforced, the authorities are not easily reconciled.

Cases in which the Court has refused to give effect to such an agreement by restraining that which would be a breach of it, are: Clarke v. Price, 2 Wils. C. C. 157; Kemble v. Kean, Kimberley v. Jennings, 6 Sim. 333, 340; Hills v. Croll, 2 Ph. 60; Stocker v. Wedderburn, 3 K. & J. 393; Adamson v. Gill, 16 W. R. 639; 18 L. T. 278; Wheatley v. Westminster, &c. Co., 9 Eq. 538; Phipps v. Jackson, 35 W. R. 378; 56 L. J. Ch. 550.

And see Peto v. Brighton, &c. Ry., 1 H. & M. 468; Merchants' Co. v. Banner, 12 Eq. 18; Fothergill v. Rowland, 17 Eq. 132, that the Court will not by injunction restrain the breach of an agreement which it cannot specifically enforce; nor restrain a person from carrying out one part of such an agreement while another part remains unperformed: L. Abinger v. Ashton, 17 Eq. 358; Pollard v. Clayton, 1 K. & J. 462; nor restrain breach of contract where one co-Defendant is an infant, against whom, therefore, there could be no specific performance: Lumley v. Ravenscroft, (1895) 1 Q. B. 683, C. A.

But if the agreement is separable, and contains a negative in addition to the positive part (e.g., an agreement to sing at A.'s theatre, and not elsewhere without his authority, or to write for a particular publisher, and not for any other publication during the engagement), the Court has restrained a violation of the negative, though it could not compel performance of the positive portion: Lumley v. Wagner, 1 D. M. & G. 604; Rolfe v. R., 15 Sim. 88; Stiff v. Cassell, 2 Jur. N. S. 348; Daggett v. Ryman, 16 W. R. 302; Kernot v. Potter, 3 D. F. & J. 459; Ogden v. Fossick, 11 W. R. 128; 4 D. F. & J. 426; Whitwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, (1891) 2 Ch. 416, C. A.; Star Newspaper Co. v. O'Connor, W. N. (93) 114, 122; and see Ryan v. Mutual Westminster Chambers Assoc., (1893) 1 Ch. 116, C. A.

But the tendency of recent decisions seems to negative the idea that the jurisdiction depends on the existence in the contract of a negative stipulation which can be enforced, though specific performance could not be granted of the entire contract, but to rest the question upon the nature and substance of the contract: whether it is a proper subject of equitable jurisdiction, or whether it is a case for damages only, see Donnell v. Bennett, 22 Ch. D. 835; and see Keith, Prowse & Co. v. Nat. Telephone Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 147, where an injunction was granted to restrain the Defendants from interfering with a telephone wire and apparatus of which the Plaintiffs were their tenants.

By thus restraining any act in breach, specific performance has been indirectly compelled, e.g., by restraining railway cos. from running trains without stopping at a particular station: Hood v. N. E. Ry. Co., 5 Ch. 525; Rigby v. G. W. Ry. Co., 10 Jur. 488, 531; 2 Ph. 44; Churchill v. Salisbury and Dorset Ry. Co., 23 W. R. 534, 894; varying 32 L. T. 216; Phillips v. G. W. Ry. Co., 7 Ch. 409; Wilson v. Northampton and Banbury Co., 9 Ch. 279.

A covenant, though positive in terms, may be in substance negative, so that a breach will be restrained by injunction: Catt v. Tourle, 4 Ch. 654; Manchester Ship Canal Co. v. Manchester Racecourse Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 37, C. A. (contract to give "first refusal" of property); Met. Electric Supply Co. v. Ginder, W. N. (01) 93; 84 L. T. 818 (to take electricity). And a condition in a bond is evidence of an agreement not to engage in a specified employment: London and Yorkshire Bank v. Pritt, 56 L. J. Ch. 987; 26 W. R. 138; National Provincial Bank v. Marshall, 40 Ch. D. 112, C. A.; but a direct covenant to pump out water from a mine does not imply a covenant not to discontinue pumping: Payne v. Rocher Colliery Co., W. N. (87) 37.

E converso, a clause negative in form may be in substance affirmative, e.g., a stipulation against dismissal from employment which, being equivalent to a positive contract to employ, will not be enforced by injunction: Davis v. Foreman, (1894) 3 Ch. 654; and see Mutual Reserve Fund Assoc. v. New York Ins. Co., 75 L. T. 528.

And in certain cases the negative term, though not expressed, has been implied, and acts inconsistent with the agreement restrained; e.g., an actor engaged at a particular theatre has been restrained from performing elsewhere during his engagement: see Webster v. Dillon, 3 Jur. N. S. 432; Montague v. Flockton, 16 Eq. 189; but see Whitwood Chemical Co. v. Hardman, sup., where Montague v. Flockton was disapproved of, and it was held that, in order that an injunction in aid of a contract of service may be granted, there must be an express negative purpose: and see Star Newspaper Co. v. O'Connor, sup.; Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assoc. v. New York Life Ins. Co., sup.

But the manager (and probably the publisher) who has engaged the exclusive services of an actor (or author), unless he employs him loses his right to an injunction: Fechter v. Montgomery, 33 Beav. 22.

Where the Defendant in a patent action agreed to allow M. to conduct the defence, an injunction was granted to restrain the Defendant from breaking his agreement and withdrawing his retainer of M.'s solicitor, but upon an undertaking by M. to give indemnity against extra costs in a contemplated appeal to the House of Lords: Montforts v. Marsden, (1895) 1 Ch. 11, C. A.; Form 2, sup. p. 531.

RESTRAINT OF TRADE.

Breaches of covenant or agreement relating to trade will be restrained; as in the case of a covenant not to practise or set up business, nor to carry on or be concerned or interested in a particular trade within certain limits, nor to solicit custom from the customers of the former employer, or of the purchaser: Drew v. Guy, (1894) 3 Ch. 25, C. A. (covenant against carrying on the business of a restaurant "similar" to that carried on by another trader, the test in construing such covenants being whether the one business will compete with the other); Smith v. Hancock, (1894) 2 Ch. 377 (agreement by the vendor of a business not "to carry on or be in anywise interested in" any similar business); Edmonds v. Plew, 6 Jur. N. S. 1091; 3 L. T. 145 (solr); Giles v. Hart, 8 W. R. 74; 5 Jur. N. S. 1381; 1 L. T. 154 (surgeon); Fox v. Scard, 33 Beav. 327 (business of a surgeon at Weymouth); Rogers v. Drury, 57 L. J. Ch. 504; 36 W. R. 496 (medical man soliciting former patients); Benwell v. Inns, 24 Beav. 307 (milk-walk); Harms v. Parsons, 32 Beav. 328 (horsehair manufacturer within 200 miles of Birmingham); Daggett v. Ryman, 16 W. R. 302 (glove manufacturer in Woodstock or its neighbourhood); Newling v. Dobell, 19 L. T. 408; 38 L. J. Ch. 111 (business of a tailor within five miles E. or two miles W. of High Holborn); Jones v. Heavens, 4 Ch. D. 636 (business of saddler within ten miles from Croydon; covenant broken by selling as journeyman); Nicoll v. Beere, 53 L. T. 659 (business of a tailor within ten miles from Charing Cross for three years); Parsons v. Cotterill, 56 L. T. 839 (wine and spirit merchant within fifty miles of Burton-on-Trent); Vernon v. Hallam, 34 Ch. D. 748 (covenant not to use particular style or name in trade); Hill v. H., 55 L. T. 76 (covenant not to engage or be concerned in a trade); and see Watts v. Smith, W. N. (90) 70; Leather Cloth Co. v. Lonsont, 9 Eq. 345 (manufacture of leather cloth in any part of Europe); Mineral, &c. Trade Protection Soc. v. Booth, 36 Ch. D. 465, C. A. (covenant by members of a trade society against employment of any traveller, carman, or outdoor employé who had left service of another member); and see cases collected, Pollock, Contr., 6th ed., 345.

Although it has been stated in the Court of Appeal that the old rule still prevails, that a covenant in general restraint of trade, without limit of time and space, is void (see Davies v. D., 36 Ch. D. 359, C. A.; Underwood v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300, C. A., per Vaughan Williams, L. J.), it has also been held that the limits within which such restraints are valid are elastic, and will be measured by what is reasonable for protection of the interests of the covenantee, having regard to the nature of the subject-matter; so that a covenant in restraint of trade is not in all cases invalid from being unlimited in area: Rousillon v. R., 14 Ch. D. 351, 369; Leather Cloth Co. v. Lonsont, 9 Eq. 345; Mills v. Dunham, (1891) 1 Ch. 576, C. A.; Davies v. Lowen, W. N. (91) 86; 64 L. T. 665; Badische Anilin, &c. v. Schott, (1892) 3 Ch. 447; Curren v. O'Connor, 32 L. R. Ir. 330; Robinson & Co. v. Heuer, (1898) 2 Ch. 451, C. A. (agreement by a confidential clerk that he would not engage in any business relating to goods sold by his employers); Ehrman v. Bartholomew, (1898) 1 Ch. 671; Underwood v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300, C. A.; or in point of time and so binding on the party entering into it during the whole of his life: Hayes v. Doman, (1899) 2 Ch. 13, C. A.; and see Hood & Moore's Stores, Ltd. v. Jones, 81 L. T. 169. And, generally, the restraint must not be unreasonable, having regard to the subject-matter of the contract, nor grossly oppressive as against the covenantor, but such only as to give fair protection to the interests of the covenantee, and not so large as to interfere with the interests of the public: Collins v. Locke, 4 App. Ca. 674; Allsopp v. Wheatcroft, 15 Eq. 59; Avery v. Langford, Kay, 663; Hitchcock v. Colier, 6 Ad. & E. 438; Ward v. Byrne, 5 M. & W. 548; Mallan v. May, 11 M. & W. 667; 1 Sm. L. Ca. (notes to Mitchel v. Reynolds); Pollock, Contr. 345; and for an epitomized statement of the law as to reasonableness, see Badische Anilin, &c. v. Schott, sup.

And as to the principles on which agreements in restraint of trade should be construed, and that the construction of them should not be approached with any prima facie presumption against their validity, see Mills v. Dunham, sup.

And that the reasonableness of a contract depends on its true construction and legal effect and is consequently a question for the Court alone and not for experts: Hayes v. Doman, (1899) 2 Ch. 13, C. A.

For cases upon such covenants, and instances of a reasonable or unreasonable restriction, see Kerr, 444—454; 1 Smith, L. C. 444—457 (9th ed.), 391 et seq. (10th ed.) (Mitchel v. Reynolds); and as to the invalidity of a covenant not to exercise any business without the late employer's consent, such consent not to be withheld if it can be proved to his satisfaction that the business is not in the class of goods sold by him, see Perls v. Saalfeld, (1892) 2 Ch. 149, C. A.

A covenant in restraint of a man's trade may be upheld as good in law if necessary for the advantageous transfer of the goodwill of a business which he is selling, and the adequate protection of those who buy it: Maxim Nordenfelt Guns, &c. Co. v. Nordenfelt, (1893) 1 Ch. 630, C. A.; q.v. A sale on condition that purchaser resells at specified minimum prices and procures an agreement maintaining prices from every trade purchaser, is not void as in restraint of trade: Elliman v. Currington, (1901) 2 Ch. 275.

In some cases the covenant has been held divisible (e.g., as regards area), and the good part enforced: Baines v. Geary, 35 Ch. D. 154; Price v. Green, 16 M. & W. 346; Nicholls v. Stretton, 7 Beav. 42 (as regards time); Davies v. Lowen, 64 L. T. 655; W. N. (91) 86; Rogers v. Maddocks, (1892) 3 Ch. 346, C. A. (as regards trade); Robinson & Co. v. Heuer, (1898) 2 Ch. 451, C. A. (agreement not to engage in any business relating to goods sold by the company "or in any other business whatever"). An agreement not to solicit customers "who should at any time be served by or then belonging" to the plaintiffs in their business held good as to persons who were customers while the defendant was in their service: Dubowski & Sons v. Goldstein, (1896) 1 Q. B. 478, C. A.; Underwood v. Barker, (1899) 1 Ch. 300, C. A. But if, looking at the covenant as a whole, the illegal cannot be severed from the legal part without creating a new covenant, the agreement is altogether void: Baker v. Hedgecock, 39 Ch. D. 520 (where it was sought, ineffectually, to limit a general restriction against carrying on "any business whatsoever" to the business of the covenantee); and see Pickering v. Ilfracombe Ry. Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 235, 250.

Where the agreement was for service as confidential clerk for a term of five years with option to the employers to renew the engagement for five years more, the Court granted an injunction to enforce the agreement limited to the first term of five years, the employers waiving their option, and the Court doubting whether the agreement ought to be enforced for that further term: Robinson & Co. v. Heuer, (1898) 2 Ch. 451, C. A.

A covenant not to trade within certain limits will pass to, and may be enforced by, a purchaser of the goodwill of the covenantee's business: Jacoby v. Whitmore, 32 W. R. 18; 49 L. T. 335; and so in the case of a covenant between partners: Townsend v. Jarman, (1900) 2 Ch. 698.

A covenant not to carry on a business was held not broken by carrying on a particular part of such business: Stuart v. Diplock, 43 Ch. D. 343, C. A., distinguishing Feilden v. Slater, 7 Eq. 523. But a covenant not to keep a coffee house was held to be broken by the setting up of a light refreshment business ancillary to that of a grocer: Fitz v. Iles, (1893) 1 Ch. 77, C. A. A covenant not to carry on, "either directly or indirectly, on his own account or as agent or assistant of, or in partnership with, any other person or persons, or be interested or concerned in a business within two miles," was not broken by the covenantor acting as agent outside the prohibited distance for a firm carrying on business within that distance: Fairbrother v. England, 40 W. R. 220.

A contract by which members of a mineral water association bound themselves not to sell mineral waters below a specified price was held to be in restraint of trade, and not enforceable: Urmston v. Whitelegg, 63 L. T. 455.

"Trade" has been distinguished from "profession"; and accordingly, though a covenant by A. not to carry on a particular trade, either in his own name or that of any other person, was held not to have been broken by his acting as salaried clerk or assistant to B. carrying on that trade (Allen v. Taylor, 19 W. R. 35, 556; 39 L. J. Ch. 297; 22 L. T. 651; but see Hill & Co. v. Hill, 35 W. R. 137; Jones v. Heavens, 4 Ch. D. 636; Dales v. Weaver, 18 W. R. 993; Newling v. Dobell, 38 L. J. Ch. 111; 19 L. T. 488; Rolfe v. R., 15 Sim. 88), A., who had covenanted "not at any time to set up or carry on the business or profession of a surgeon, &c.," was restrained from acting as a salaried assistant to a surgeon: Palmer v. Mallet, 36 Ch. D. 411, C. A.

The mode of measuring the prescribed distance is by a straight line measured on the Ordnance map, and not by the nearest way of access: Duignan v. Walker, Joh. 446; Mouflet v. Cole, L. R. 7 Ex. 70; 8 Ex. 32 (and cases there cited); and as to points of measurement, see Cattle v. Thorpe, W. N. (00) 83.

As to the right of an assignee of the covenantee to sue, see Baines v. Geary, 35 Ch. D. 154, 159; Benwell v. Inns, 24 Beav. 307; 26 L. J. Ch. 663.

As to the liability of a quondam infant to be restrained by injunction from breach of a contract of service, see Evans v. Ware, (1893) 3 Ch. 502; De Francesco v. Barnum, 43 Ch. D. 165; Fellows v. Wood, 59 L. T. 513.

PENALTY OR LIQUIDATED DAMAGES.

The question often arises whether a sum named as payable upon the breach of the agreement is a penalty to secure performance, or liquidated damages on breach, in which case the covenantor does not lose his right to an injunction—or is in the nature of an alternative for performance, in which case an injunction will not be granted.

But in general this question will not be determined upon interlocutory motion: Coles v. Sims, 5 D. M. & G. 1; Kay, 56.

For the numerous cases upon this distinction, see Kerr, 454 et seq.; Elphinstone v. Monkland Iron and Coal Co., 11 App. Ca. 332; National Provincial Bank of England v. Marshall, 40 Ch. D. 112, C. A.

ILLEGALITY.

A contract involving illegality (Davies v. Makuna, 29 Ch. D. 596, C. A.), as the stifling of a prosecution for not repairing a road (Windhill L. B. v. Vint, 45 Ch. D. 351, C. A.; and see Jones v. Merionethshire Building Society, (1891) 2 Ch. 587), on an indemnity given to bail, whether by the prisoner bailed or another: Consolidated Exploration Co. v. Musgrave, (1900) 1 Ch. 37; or against the public policy of this country (Rousillon v. R., 14 Ch. D. 351), will not be enforced; secus, a contract which is only void as being against the policy of a foreign country, and not immoral or forbidden by positive law: Re Missouri Steamship Co., 42 Ch. D. 321, C. A. And as to the effect of the Lottery Acts, see Macnee v. Persian Investment Corp., 44 Ch. D. 306. And as to contracts of cos. illegal or ultra vires, v. inf. Sect. XIII.

An assignment for value of a pension for military service, being void under 47 G. III. c. 25 (see now 44 & 45 V. c. 57, s. 141), could not be enforced by injunction: Lloyd v. Cheetham, 3 Giff. 171 (overruling Knight v. Bulkeley, 4 Jur. N. S. 527; 5 Jur. N. S. 817). But the Act did not apply to a pension by the late E. I. Co.: Heald v. Hay, 3 Giff. 467; and the assignment of a superannuation allowance from the Treasury has been enforced by injunction: Lloyd v. Eagle, 5 Jur. N. S. 187.

Covenants in a separation deed may be enforced against husband or wife, e.g., by restraining proceedings for restitution of conjugal rights: Besant v. Wood, 12 Ch. D. 605; Sanders v. Rodway, 16 Beav. 207; Hunt v. H., 4 D. F. & J. 221; Flower v. F., 20 W. R. 231. And see further on this question, inf. Chap. XXXVII., "MARRIED WOMEN"; Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS.

Restrictive covenants (as distinguished from affirmative covenants involving expenditure of money, e.g., to build or keep in repair: see Haywood v. Brunswick Soc., 8 Q. B. D. 403, C. A.; L. & S. W. Ry. v. Gomm, 20 Ch. D. 562, C. A.; Austerberry v. Oldham Corp., 29 Ch. D. 750, C. A.; Hall v. Ewin, 37 Ch. D. 74, C. A.), may be enforced by injunction against purchasers (or occupiers: Mander v. Falcke, (1891) 2 Ch. 554, C. A.) taking with notice of the covenants, though they do not run with the land at common law: Tulk v. Moxhay, 2 Ph. 774; Keppell v. Bailey, 2 M. & K. 517; Rogers v. Hosegood, (1900) 2 Ch. 388, C. A. Whether a covenant not to carry on a particular trade on premises can be so enforced, quære: Stuart v. Diplock, 43 Ch. D. 343, C. A.

Upon the question what covenants run with the land, see Haywood v. Brunswick Soc., sup.; Fleetwood v. Hull, 33 Q. B. D. 35; Austerberry v. Oldham Corp., sup.; Andrew v. Aitken, 22 Ch. D. 218; Gower v. Postmaster-General, 57 L. T. 527; Carter v. Williams, 9 Eq. 678; Catt v. Tourle, 4

Ch. 654; Western v. McDermott, 2 Ch. 72; 1 Eq. 499; Wilson v. Hart, 1 Ch. 463; 2 H. & M. 551; Tulk v. Morhay, 2 Ph. 774; Keppell v. Bailey, 2 M. & K. 517. See also Pollock, Contr. 227 et seq.: Dart. V. & P. 862, &c., for the former distinction between the rules of Equity and Common Law on this subject.

The right to enforce a restrictive covenant may be lost by acquiescence, as, e.g., if the property has been so laid out and used that the object of the covenants, namely, the preservation of its residential character, can no longer be attained; but not merely because in a few instances the covenants have not been enforced: Knight v. Simmonds, (1896) 2 Ch. 294, C. A.; (1896) 1 Ch. 653; nor because of a change in the character of the neighbourhood beyond the control, and independent of, the action of Plt: Sayers v. Collyer, 28 Ch. D. 103, C. A.; 24 Ib. 180; Craig v. Greir, (1899) 1 L. R. 258, C. A. And as to acquiescence generally, see Willmott v. Barber, 15 Ch. D. 96; Kelsey v. Dodd, 57 L. J. Ch. 34; Duke of Northumberland v. Bowman, 56 L. T. 773. To give the reversioner a right of action, permanent injury so as to affect the reversion must be shown: Cooper v. Crabtree, 20 Ch. D. 589, C. A.; 19 Ib. 193.

Waiver of a restrictive covenant prohibiting sale of beer and spirits was presumed from long uninterrupted user of the house to the contrary: Hepworth v. Pickles, (1900) 1 Ch. 108 (twenty-four years); Re Summerson, (1900) 1 Ch. 112, n. (thirty years).

The effect of constructive notice of a title subject to a restrictive covenant is not done away with by express representation on the part of the lessor or vendor of the non-existence of such a covenant: Patman v. Harland, 17 Ch. D. 353; nor has sect. 2, sub-sect. 2, of the V. & P. Act, 1874, precluding investigation of the lessor's title, affected the law in this respect: S. C.; Thornevell v. Johnson, 50 L. J. Ch. 641; 29 W. R. 677; 44 L. T. 768.

As to the liability of an underlessee of one of two houses comprised in an original lease, see Cresswell v. Davidson, 56 L. T. 811.

And upon the question whether sub-purchasers or assignees are affected with notice of the restrictive covenant, see Feilden v. Slater, 7 Eq. 523; Keates v. Lyon, 4 Ch. 218; Clements v. Welles, 1 Eq. 200; Hodson v. Copjurd, 29 Beav. 4; Thornevell v. Johnson, sup.; Nicoll v. Fenning, 19 Ch. D. 258. And that the assignee of a purchaser for value without notice is not affected by an agreement not running with the land, though he himself have notice of it, see A. G. v. Biphosphated Guano Co., 11 Ch. D. 327, C. A.

Restrictive covenants, when part of a building scheme, and intended for the common advantage of purchasers, and not merely for the benefit and protection of the vendor, may be enforced by the purchaser of one lot against the vendors or the purchaser of another: Spicer v. Martin, 14 App. Ca. 12; Renals v. Cowlshaw, 9 Ch. D. 129; 11 Ch. D. 866, C. A.; Mackenzie v. Childers, 43 Ch. D. 265; Collins v. Castle, 36 Ch. D. 242; Nottingham, &c. Co. v. Butler, 16 Q. B. D. 778, C. A.; Tyndall v. Castle, W. N. (93) 40; 62 L. J. Ch. 555; and see Taite v. Gosling, 11 Ch. D. 273; Sheppard v. Gilmore, 57 L. J. Ch. 6; 53 L. T. 625; 34 W. R. 179; Russell v. Watts, 10 App. Ca. 598; Nalder's Brewery v. Harman, W. N. (00) 180; 82 L. T. 594, C. A.; but if a purchaser alienates part of his lot, there is no implied obligation as between him and the alienee: King v. Dickeson, 40 Ch. D. 596. If the covenant is merely for the advantage of the vendor, a subsequent purchaser of land remaining in the vendor's hands has no right to sue on it: Renals v. Cowlshaw, sup.

It is a question of fact whether or not the restriction is only for the benefit of the vendor; and if it is not, the vendor will not be allowed to use any of the land retained by him for a purpose inconsistent with the general law by which he has purported to bind the whole: Birmingham & Dist. Land Co. v. Allday, (1893) 1 Ch. 342; and the fact that the vendor retains a part is only a circumstance, though an important one, evidencing intention on his part: S. C.

Where a scheme provides for the erection by purchasers of shops and dwelling-houses of a minimum value, a negative stipulation that nothing but shops and dwelling-houses are to be erected cannot be implied: Holford v. Acton Urban District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 240, applying Oriental Steamship Co. v. Tylor, (1893) 2 Q. B. 518, 527 (as to loss of cargo).

On the general question when a restrictive covenant can be enforced by an assignee of the covenantee, see Clegg v. Hands, 44 Ch. D. 503, C. A.; Davies v. D., 36 Ch. D. 359, C. A.; Renals v. Cowlshaw, 9 Ch. D. 129; 11 Ch. D. 866, C. A.; White v. Southend Hotel Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 767, C. A.; John Bros Abergarw Brewery v. Holmes, (1900) 1 Ch. 188; Rogers v. Hosegood, (1900) 2 Ch. 388, C. A.; Muller v. Trafford, (1901) 1 Ch. 54.

Where the covenant was against building without the consent of D. (the owner of the building estate), his heirs, or assigns, it was held by Romer, J., that the consent required was that of the owner of the estate in its popular and broad sense, and not of all the assigns subsequently acquiring title to other lots: Everett v. Remington, (1892) 3 Ch. 148. Upon the question what evidence is sufficient to entitle a purchaser to assume the existence of a general building scheme, see Tucker v. Vowles, (1893) 1 Ch. 195; Davis v. Corp. of Leicester, (1894) 2 Ch. 208, C. A.; and that a school board acquiring land for the purposes of the Elementary Education Act, 1870, are not bound by notice of a restrictive covenant binding their vendor, and that the covenantee's only remedy is compensation under sect. 68 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845: see Kirby v. School Board for Harrogate, (1896) 1 Ch. 437, C. A.

Where a corporation sell land subject to a building scheme, the approval of the Treasury, under sects. 108, 109 of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, must be obtained not merely to the particular conveyances, but to the disposition involved in the scheme: Davis v. Corporation of Leicester, (1894) 2 Ch. 208, C. A.

The injunction should be to restrain the Deft from authorizing the breach of covenant, not from "permitting" it, as that word might render him liable if he did not prevent breaches by his tenants (which he is not bound to do: Hall v. Ewin, 37 Ch. D. 74, C. A.): Martin v. Spicer, 34 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; Mackenzie v. Childers, 43 Ch. D. 265.

As to the presumption that a restrictive covenant when once annexed to a piece of land passes by conveyance thereof, and as to the validity in equity of a covenant with mortgagor only, see Rogers v. Hosegood, sup. As to the right of mortgagor to sue without joining mortgagee, see Fairclough v. Marshall, 4 Ex. D. 37, C. A.

A restrictive covenant, not being a limitation of property, is not obnoxious to the rule against perpetuities: Mackenzie v. Childers, 43 Ch. D. 265.

(a) Beerhouses and sale of liquors: Allsopp v. Wheatcroft, 15 Eq. 59; L. & N. W. Ry. v. Garnett; Jones v. Bone, 9 Eq. 26, 674; Feilden v. Slater, 7 Eq. 523; Pease v. Cripps, (1896) 1 Ch. 265 (conversion into a club of building agreed to be used as residential flats).

(f) Covenants against assignment: Dyke v. Taylor, 3 D. F. & J. 467; West v. Dobb, L. R. 5 Q. B. (Ex. Ch.) 460; 4 Q. B. 634; Lehmann v. McArthur, 3 Ch. 496; 3 Eq. 746; and as to the construction of covenant not to assign without lessor's consent, "such consent not to be unreasonably withheld," see Sear v. House Property Co., 16 Ch. D. 387; Lehmann v. McArthur, 3 Ch. 496; Re Marshall and Salt, (1900) 2 Ch. 202.

(g) Against use of private dwelling-house for business or trade purposes, or anything which should be a nuisance or annoyance to the neighbourhood: Parker v. Whyte, 1 H. & M. 167; Wilkinson v. Rogers, 2 D. J. & S. 62; Kemp v. Sober, 1 Sim. N. S. 517 (keeping a girls' school restrained as a breach of such a covenant); Wauton v. Coppard, (1899) 1 Ch. 92 (a boys' school); Hobson v. Tulloch, (1898) 1 Ch. 424 (boarding-house for girls at school); Johnstone v. Hall, 2 K. & J. 414 (injunction in like case refused on application of remainderman); Rolls v. Miller, 27 Ch. D. 71, C. A. (free home for working girls); German v. Chapman, 7 Ch. D. 271 (school for education and lodging of missionaries' daughters); Bramwell v. Lacey, 10 Ch. D. 691 (throat and chest hospital supported mainly by voluntary contributions); Portman v. Home Hospital Association, 27 Ch. D. 81, n. (hospital with home comforts and advantages not carried on with a view to profit); Watson v. Leamington Coll., M. R., 6 Nov. 1880, sup. Form 5 (sanatorium); Hudson v. Cripps, (1896) 1 Ch. 265 (a club); Wood v. Cooper, (1894) 3 Ch. 671 (trellis-work screen).

These cases show that, in order to constitute a breach of such a covenant, it is not material that the covenantee has not suffered actual pecuniary damage, or that the premises are not being used for purposes of profit, or even that payment is not required from the inmates; and semble, that such a covenant excludes all use beyond that of ordinary domestic life. A sale by auction on the premises of furniture of the house is no breach of such a covenant: Reeves v. Cattell, 24 W. R. 485. A covenant by a publican to purchase beer from his landlord is not broken by his buying such beer from an agent of the landlord without the landlord's knowledge: Edwick v. Hawkes, 18 Ch. D. 199.

A lessor who enters into a covenant with a lessee not to let the adjoining premises for the purpose of the trade carried on by the lessee, has discharged his liability if on granting a lease of the adjoining premises he takes from the lessee thereof a covenant that the premises shall be used only for the purposes of a different trade: Ashby v. Wilson, (1900) 1 Ch. 66; following Kemp v. Bird (1877), 5 Ch. D. 549, 974; and distinguishing Fitz v. Nes, (1893) 1 Ch. 77.

SECTION III.—WASTE.

1. Injunction to stay felling Ornamental Timber and other Waste.

LET the Deft D., her servants, workmen, and agents, be restrained from cutting down any timber or other trees growing on the estate in the statement of claim mentioned, which are planted or growing thereon for the protection or shelter of the several mansion-houses belonging to the said estate, or for the ornament of the said houses, or which grow in lines, walks, vistas, or otherwise, for the ornament of the said houses, or of the gardens, or parks, or pleasure grounds thereunto belonging; And also from cutting down any timber or other trees, except at seasonable times, and in a husbandlike manner; and likewise from cutting down saplings and young trees, not fit to be cut as and for the purposes of timber; until &c.—See Chamberlayne v. Dummer, L. C., 9 July, 1782, A. 421; 1 B. C. C. 166; 2 Dick. 600.

That this is the form which has been always used in cases of equitable waste, see Eden, Inj. 182; L. Tamworth v. Ferrers, 6 Ves. 420.

2. The like, against a Tenant for Life where the Estate was limited to Trustees without Impeachment of Waste, if with his Privity.

LET the Deft, Sir J. M. (the father of Plt), his servants &c., be restrained from felling or cutting down any timber or other trees now standing in and upon such parts of the lawns, gardens, and pleasure-grounds of C. in the statement of claim mentioned, or the lands belonging or adjoining thereto, as were comprised in and were settled by the indenture dated &c., and which were planted or left standing or growing there by Sir John M., deceased (Plt's grandfather), for the ornament, protection, or shelter of the mansion-house in the statement of claim mentioned (which Deft had since pulled down), and the said lawn, gardens, or pleasure-grounds; and from felling or cutting down any other timber or other trees which have been planted and are now standing or growing in avenues, vistas, lines, or clumps, or separately or singly upon some parts of the said lawn, gardens, and pleasure-grounds of C. aforesaid, for the ornament, protection, or shelter of the said lawn, gardens, or pleasure-grounds, or the other grounds or lands thereto belonging or adjoining; until &c.—See Morris v. M., V.-C. E., 13 Feb. 1847, B. 444; S. C., 15 Sim. 505; affirmed by L. C.

“Or which were planted for the purpose of intercepting the view of objects intended to be kept out of sight.” “And also from committing any other spoil or destruction on the said estate”: Day v. Merry, L. C., 15 Jan. 1810, A. 87.

“Standing or growing for ornament, shade, or shelter of the mansion and buildings at, &c., or any other houses or buildings on the settled estates”: M. Downshire v. Sandys, 6 Ves. 108.

3. Inquiry as to felling Timber—Life Tenant sans Waste.

LET the following &c., 1. “An inquiry whether the woods called &c., or any or either, and which of them, and the six elm trees, and one oak tree on L. farm, and the oak trees and elm trees on the pasture land in W. farm, which have been marked for cutting, or any or either and which of such trees, were or was, or have or has been, planted, or left standing, by any owner in fee or in tail of the H. estate or any parts thereof, for the ornament or shelter of the mansion-house on the said estate, or of the gardens, park, or pleasure-grounds thereto belonging, or of any road or roads, drive or drives, path or paths leading thereto, for the purpose of interrupting the view of any object or objects intended to be kept out of sight from the said mansion-house, gardens, park, or pleasure-grounds, or any part thereof.

“2. And in case it shall be so certified as to the said woods or any or either of them—an inquiry whether the trees therein have ordinarily or otherwise, and under what circumstances, been cut for repairs or for sale; and what estate or interest the person or persons by whom, or by whose order or direction, the same were so cut, had in the said H. estate at the time of the cutting thereof; and whether the trees in the said woods, and the said other trees which have been marked for cutting, or any or either and which of such trees, injure or impede the growth of any other trees adjoining or near thereto, which are of so much importance to the purposes of ornament or shelter to the said mansion-house, gardens, park, or pleasure-grounds, that the removal of the trees so marked for cutting is essential to such purposes of ornament or shelter.” Reserve the question of the costs of this application to be dealt with by the V.-C.—Ford v. Tynte, L. JJ., 10 March, 1864, A. 570; 2 D. J. & S. 127 (penned by L. J. Turner).

For similar inquiries as to ornamental timber, see Lushington v. Boldero, M. R., 5 Aug. 1815. And for further inquiry in the same case whether any and which of the timber and other trees so cut and sold injured or impeded the growth of any other trees adjoining thereto, which were of so much importance to the purposes of ornament or shelter intended by the deviser, that the removal of the timber and other trees so cut and sold was essential to such purposes of ornament and shelter, see S. C., V.-C., 26 July, 1819, B. 765—767; on exceptions to report under the above inquiries, 6 Madd. 149, S. C.

For like inquiry, and also whether any and which of the trees cut were prejudicial to the health of the inmates, or interfered with the comfortable enjoyment of the mansion-house, or of any other building on the estate, see Baker v. Sebright, 13 Ch. D. 179, 181.

4. Life Tenant impeachable of Waste allowed such Wind-felled Timber as he might properly have cut—Inquiry.

Hotchkin*, M. R., 8th Nov. 1862, A. 2109; S. C., 31 Beav. 486.

(the infant Plt's grandfather and the original testator), distinguishing such coal and minerals as were gotten and won prior, and such as were gotten and won subsequently, to the 21st day of Jan. 1847, the date of the birth of the Plt (the infant tenant in tail in remainder), and further distinguishing such coal and minerals as were gotten and won from old mines remaining dormant at the time of the decease of the said testator W. B., and such as were gotten and won from mines newly opened by the said E. A. B., and in making such inquiry it is to be ascertained and stated for how long, and under what circumstances, any such dormant mines had remained dormant or unworked, and also whether, with respect to any new pits or mining works sunk or opened upon the said settled estates by the said E. A. B., any and which were so sunk or opened for the purpose of facilitating any and what old workings; And whether any and which were so sunk or opened for the purpose of opening any and what fresh mines, and the circumstances under which all fresh workings were commenced during the life of the said E. A. B. are also to be ascertained and stated. 2. An account of all moneys received by the said E. A. B., or by any person &c., in respect of coal and other minerals gotten and won from the said settled estates from mines, other than such as were in the course of being worked at the time of the decease of the said testator W. B. from the working of the said mines and seams of coal other than such as were in course of being worked at the time of the decease of the testator W. For declaration of the right of widow and tenant for life to the rents, issues, and proceeds (in the proportion given by her husband's will) arising from a new seam of coal discovered by lessee since the death of lessor (husband), on the ground that the working of such new seam was not the opening of a new mine, see Spencer v. Scurr, M. R., 23 July, 1862, B. 1861; 31 Beav. 334.

Weekes*, 1 J. & H. 278, 287.

DECLARE that all cases attached to the walls of the Bird Gallery in the mansion-house at H. in the county of —, mentioned in the particulars delivered with the statement of claim in this action, with the inner cases belonging thereto, are fixtures and form part of the said mansion-house. And that the three cases in the said Bird Gallery which stand by their own weight, and all the stuffed birds and animals and other objects (not being cases or inner cases) mentioned in subsection (a) of the said particulars, are not fixtures and are the property of the Deft as trustee in bankruptcy of the property of V. H., deceased, and that the picture rods and stair rods in the pleadings mentioned are not fixtures and belong to the Deft as such trustee, and that all the tables mentioned in the said particulars, except two of the tables in the saloon, which are moveable, are fixtures and form part of the said mansion-house, and that the said two moveable tables and the two glasses and trophy of uniform in the said particulars mentioned are not fixtures and belong to the Deft as such trustee. And it being admitted that the Deft has returned all the said tables except the said two moveable tables to the said mansion-house, Let the Deft C. E. B. pay to the Plts V. H., A. V. P., and W. S. K. S., within seven days after the same has been assessed, the amount necessary to refix, repair, and renew such tables, and the parts of the walls to which they were attached so as to restore the same respectively to the like and as good a condition as they respectively were in before the removal of the said tables by the Deft, such amount to be assessed by — of — who has been agreed upon by the Plts and Deft, and whose charges for assessing are to be paid by the Deft. And let the Plts V. H., A. V. P., and W. S. K. S. pay to the Deft C. E. B. two thirds of his costs of this action to be taxed.—See Hill v. Molyneux, L. C., 4 July, 1861, A. 2374; 4 D. F. & J. 117 (varying order of V.-C. S., 2 Giff. 536).

WASTE.

The law as to legal and equitable waste has been much simplified, and distinctions formerly taken have been removed, by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (3), which provides that an estate for life without impeachment of waste shall not confer or be deemed to have conferred upon the tenant for life any legal right to commit waste of the description known as equitable waste, unless an intention to confer such right shall expressly appear by the instrument creating such right.

At Law there was neither preventive nor compensative remedy against acts of waste, however excessive, committed by tenant for life sans waste: see Lewis Bowles’ case, 11 Co. 79 b; and notes to Davis v. D. Marlborough, 2 Swa. 146, &c.

But in Equity the jurisdiction to restrain the improper and unconscientious exercise of this legal power, to the detriment of those interested in remainder, has long been exercised, though first defined and settled in the leading case of Garth v. Cotton, 1 L. C. Eq. 697; and for a statement of the doctrine as to equitable waste, see Baker v. Sebright, 13 Ch. D. 179, 184, &c.

Equitable waste has been defined as “wilful and malicious,” and also as “extravagant and humoursome” waste: Garth v. Cotton, sup.; Abraham v. Bubb, 2 Freem. 55; Aston v. A. 1 Vez. 264, 265; and in more recent cases and minerals," and the rights of lessee thereunder, see Daly v. Beckett, 24 Beav. 114.

Unless the nature and context be repugnant, stone will be included in a lease or reservation of mines and minerals: Bell v. Wilson, 1 Ch. 303; Midland Ry. v. Checkley, 4 Eq. 19; and see Johnstone v. Crompton, (1899) 2 Ch. 190, Form 7, inf. p. 558.

As to the right of tenant for life or years to take reasonable estovers of gravel, clay, coal, and limestone, see Kerr, 65; citing 2 Ro. Abr. 816.

Copyholders of inheritance may by custom open and work new mines: Bp. Winchester v. Knight, 1 P. Wms. 406; —or dig clay: Marq. Salisbury v. Gladstone, 9 H. L. C. 692; —or dig and cart away sand within their tenements without licence from the lord: Hanmer v. Chance, 4 D. J. & S. 626.

But not without custom: Gilb. Ten. 327; and the onus of establishing such a custom lies upon the tenants: D. Portland v. Hill, 2 Eq. 765, in which case the lord obtained relief by account and injunction: see inf. Sect. IV., "TRESPASS" (III.), Form 1; and conversely, the lord, when not entitled by special custom will be restrained from digging coprolites under a copyhold tenement: A. G. v. Tomline, 5 Ch. D. 750.

MORTGAGOR AND MORTGAGEE.

Mortgagor in possession will be restrained from cutting timber, if the security be insufficient: Harper v. Aplin, 54 L. T. 383; see also Humphery v. Harrison, 1 J. & W. 521; King v. Smith, 2 Ha. 239; —or, if he has become bankrupt, until assignees are appointed: Hampton v. Hodges, 8 Ves. 105.

So also after decree for account in foreclosure suit: Goodman v. Kine, 8 Beav. 379.

And a person in possession under agreement to purchase will also be restrained from waste: Crockford v. Alexander, 15 Ves. 138.

The owner of a rent-charge is not in the position of a mortgagee for the purpose of an injunction against waste: Sandeman v. Rushton, 61 L. J. Ch. 136; 66 L. T. 180.

Mortgagee in possession whose security is sufficient will be restrained from waste: see Millett v. Davey, 31 Beav. 470; Fish. Mort. s. 1780; Robbins, 804; Kerr, 80; and see inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES"; but the Conv. Act, 1881, s. 19, sub-s. 1 (iv), empowers a mortgagee in possession to cut and sell timber and other trees ripe for cutting, and not planted or left standing for shelter or ornament, or to contract for any such cutting and sale to be completed within twelve months from making the contract.

PERMISSIVE WASTE.

In cases of permissive waste, i.e., suffering the estate and buildings to fall out of repair, the rule of the Court of Chancery (notwithstanding a decision to the contrary in Parteriche v. Poulet, 2 Atk. 383) has been not to interfere either to prohibit by injunction, or to give satisfaction by account: L. Castlemain v. Craven, 22 Vin. Abr. tit. Waste, p. 523; Lansdowne v. L., 1 Jac. & W. 522; even though the estate were vested in trustees: Powys v. Blugrave, 4 D. M. & G. 448; Re Cartwright, Avis v. Newman, 41 Ch. D. 532; and see Barnes v. Dowling, 44 L. T. 809; Vaizey, 912.

—except under special circumstances: see Yool, 58 (citing Caldwall v. Baylis, 2 Mer. 408; Marsh v. Wells, 2 S. & S. 87).

But at law, tenants for terms of years and tenants for life have been held liable for both commissive (voluntary) and permissive waste: Yellowly v. Gower, 11 Ex. 274; Harnett v. Maitland, 16 M. & W. 257; Co. Litt. 53; Davies v. D., 36 W. R. 399; 38 Ch. D. 499; Vaizey, 911; but as to tenant for life, see Re Cartwright, Avis v. Newman, sup.; Re Parry and Hopkins, inf.

After the death of the particular tenant, however, without some special circumstances (e.g., personal liability imposed by the will or settlement, and capable of being enforced in equity: see Grigg v. Coates, 23 Beav. 33; Rees v. Engleback, 12 Eq. 225), there was no remedy, either at law or in equity, for permissive waste: Turner v. Buck, 22 Vin. Abr. 523; Phillips v. Hom- fray, 34 Ch. D. 439, 455, C. A.; and see Woodhouse v. Walker, 5 Q. B. D. 404; Re Cartwright, Avis v. Newman, sup.; Re Williames, Andrew v. W., 54 L. T. 105; S. C., 52 L. T. 41.

But under 3 & 4 W. 4, c. 42, s. 2, which gives a right of action against the exor in respect of permissive waste or wrongs by the testator against another, in respect of his property, the remainderman can bring an action against the exor of the devisee for life for non-repair of the premises which such devisee was directed to repair: Woodhouse v. Walker, 5 Q. B. D. 404; and see Jenks v. Viscount Clifden, (1897) 1 Ch. 694; and where by the will the persons to whom equitable interests have been successively given have been directed to keep the property in repair, the liability for permissive waste can be enforced by the trustees against the estate of a deceased life tenant, without being affected by the limit of time imposed by 3 & 4 W. IV. c. 42, s. 2: Re Williames, Andrew v. W., 54 L. T. 105; 52 Ib. 41.

A tenant for life of leaseholds is not liable to the remainderman for permissive waste, nor the estate of the tenant for life for breach by him of covenants to repair: Re Parry and Hopkins, (1900) 1 Ch. 160.

A tenant for life of leaseholds left in disrepair by testator is not bound to put them in the repair required by the leases: Re Courtier, Coles v. Courtier, 34 Ch. 136, C. A.; distinguishing Re Fowler, 16 Ch. D. 723; and v. inf. Vol. II. p. 1528.

MELIORATING WASTE.

In cases of meliorating waste, i.e., permanent alteration of the character of land or buildings, even though the value be increased, or rebuilding a house more large than it was before (so that there will be more charge for the lessor to repair it: Co. Litt. 53), an injunction and an account may be obtained: see Yool, 21: West Ham Central Charity Board v. East London Waterworks Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 624.

Accordingly, tenant was restrained from altering the property by pulling down and rebuilding a house against the landlord's will: Smyth v. Carter, 18 Beav. 78; and compelled to reinstate premises which had been altered in excess of a licence to convert a dwelling-house into a shop: Doggett v. Curnow, V.-C. B., 8 March, 1876, sup. Forms 7, 8; and an injunction with damages was granted to restrain the shooting of rubbish on land, notwithstanding that, as alleged, an increased rent would be obtainable by the reversioners by reason of the alteration of level: W. Ham Central Charity Bd. v. E. London Waterworks, (1900) 1 Ch. 624.

But in order to obtain an injunction against waste it must be shown that the Deft is doing that which is prejudicial to the inheritance, and the erection of buildings upon land which improve the value, e.g., the conversion of a farm into a market garden by erection of glass-houses, &c. is not waste: see Meux v. Copley, (1892) 2 Ch. 253; Jones v. Chappell, 20 Eq. 540, 541; W. Ham Central Charity Bd. v. E. London Waterworks, (1900) 1 Ch. 635, 636; and see Doherty v. Allman, 3 App. Ca. 709; Grand Canal Co. v. M'Namee, 29 L. R. Ir. 131; and semble, the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883, has abolished part of the old common law doctrine of waste, buildings which render land more profitable being "improvements" within the Act: Meux v. Copley, sup.

ANCILLARY RELIEF IN RESPECT OF WASTE.

Tenant for life will not be allowed to benefit by his own wrong, and when he has committed acts of waste must account for the proceeds, or make good the damage done: Seagram v. Knight, 2 Ch. 628; Buteman v. Hotchkin, 31 Beav. 486; Blake v. Peters, 1 D. J. & S. 345; D. Leeds v. Amherst, 2 Ph. 120; 14 Sim. 357; Williams v. D. Bolton, 3 P. Wms. 268.

Even in cases of equitable waste the whole proceeds have been given to the owner of the first estate of inheritance: Butler v. Kynnersley, 8 L. J. Ch. O. S. 67; 7 L. J. Ch. O. S. 150; 15 Beav. 10, n.; Rolt v. Somerville, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 759.

But according to the general rule the proceeds are invested so as to follow the uses of the settlement, giving the income to the successive owners for life (except the wrongdoer): Honywood v. H., 18 Eq. 307; and see Bagot v. B., 32 Beav. 509; E. Cowley v. Wellesley, 1 Eq. 656; Gent v. Harrison, Joh.

519; Lushington v. Boldero, 15 Beav. 1, 9, n.; and the corpus to the first person who, from the nature of his estate, would have been entitled to cut timber: Lowndes v. Norton, 6 Ch. D. 139.

The proceeds of periodical cuttings or trimmings which are not acts of waste have been held to belong to tenant for life as incident to his estate: Pidgeley v. Rawling, 2 Coll. 275; Bateman v. Hotchkin, 31 Beav. 486.

The proceeds of timber blown down and of cuttings made by direction of the Court, or of decaying timber, will be invested, and the interest only given to tenant for life: E. Cowley v. Wellesley, sup.; Lushington v. Boldero, 15 Beav. 1, 7; Tooker v. Annesley, 5 Sim. 235; Wickham v. W., 19 Ves. 419. According to the earlier cases, however, the proceeds of timber severed either by accident or by a trespasser was held to belong to the owner of the first estate of inheritance, to the exclusion of tenant for life: D. Newcastle v. Vane; Whitfield v. Bewit, 2 P. Wms. 240, 241; 3 P. Wms. 267.

But a tenant for life sans waste would not be restrained from properly cutting timber (Bridges v. Stephens, 2 Sw. 150, n.; Smythe v. S., 2 Sw. 251; A. G. v. D. Marlborough, 3 Madd. 498); he was absolutely entitled to the proceeds of timber cut by direction of the Court: L. Lovat v. D. Leeds (2), 2 Dr. & Sm. 75; or to windfalls: Lewis Bowles' case, sup.

If tenant for life (sans waste) cuts timber which, though ornamental, might have been ordered by the Court to be cut for preservation and improvement of the rest, he is entitled to the proceeds, though the remainderman might, before the timber was cut, have obtained an injunction: Baker v. Sebright, 13 Ch. D. 179; Ford v. Tynte, 2 D. J. & S. 133.

Trees which are severed from the soil are personal estate, and trees which are not actually severed, though injured by a gale, or dead, belong to the inheritance, the life and manner of growth being no test of attachment to the soil: Re Ainslie, Swinburne v. A., 30 Ch. D. 485, C. A. (reversing 28 Ch. D. 89); Re Llewellyn, 37 Ch. D. 317, 324.

Assignees in bankruptcy of a tenant for life who have committed equitable waste are in no better position than tenant for life, and will not be allowed to receive the income of accumulated proceeds of ornamental timber improperly cut by them: Lushington v. Boldero, 15 Beav. 1, 9, n.

(On appeal this case was compromised and two years' interest was paid to the assignees: L. J., 16 Jan. 1852, Reg. Min. f. 18.)

An account was given in the case of mines, the working of which was waste, even in cases where no injunction would lie: Jesus College v. Bloome, 3 Atk. 262.

And see cases collected in Parrott v. Palmer, 3 My. & K. 632.

The produce of mines, the opening of which is waste, belongs, as in the case of timber, to the owner of the first estate of inheritance: Kerr, Inj. 104; Bell v. Wilson, 1 Ch. 303; but compensation money paid by a railway co. for minerals which might possibly have been gotten during the life of a tenant for life sans waste belonged to him: Re Barrington, Gamlen v. Lyon, 33 Ch. D. 523.

And the tenant for life is not entitled to the interest unless the remainderman has debarred himself by adopting the act for other purposes: Gresley v. Mousley, 3 D. F. & J. 433.

The amount of damages to be recovered in respect of equitable waste was measured by the injury to the inheritance: Bubb v. Yelverton, 10 Eq. 465.

Credit is given for the application of the proceeds by tenant for life in permanent improvements: Birch Wolfe v. Birch, 9 Eq. 683.

And neither tenant for life sans waste nor his estate were made accountable for the materials of a mansion-house pulled down, when such materials had been applied in rebuilding: Morris v. M., 3 D. & J. 323; S. C., Form 2, sup. p. 543.

So also tenant for life will not be charged with sums produced by acts of (technical) waste which have improved the land (e.g., by digging and carrying away turf): Harris v. Elkins, 20 W. R. 999; 26 L. T. 827.

The claim in respect of acts of equitable waste must be made within six years from death of tenant for life: Birch Wolfe v. Birch, 9 Eq. 683; D. Leeds v. E. Amherst, 14 Sim. 365; 2 Ph. 117; S. C., p. 186; Dashwood v. Magniac, (1891) 3 Ch. 306, 386, C. A.

But the right of action or account for the proceeds of legal waste accrues, it seems, and the Statute of Limitations begins to run, from the time when the wrong was committed, not from the death of tenant for life: Higginbotham v. Hawkins, 7 Ch. 676; Birch Wolfe v. Birch, sup.; Seagram v. Knight, 3 Eq. 398; and see Gent v. Harrison, Joh. 517; Dashwood v. Magniac, (1891) 3 Ch. 306, C. A.; Lewin, 200.

Delay is very material on such a claim: see Bagot v. B., 32 Beav. 509; Harcourt v. White, 28 Beav. 303; Ernest v. Vivian, 12 W. R. 295; 9 L. T. 785; Phillips v. Homfray, (1892) 1 Ch. 465, C. A.

Interest on the produce of waste is chargeable from the death of tenant for life: Bagot v. B., sup.; and see D. Leeds v. Amherst, 14 Sim. 367; Garth v. Cotton, 1 L. C. Eq. 697.

In the case of the lord digging without special custom for minerals under copyhold tenements, the measure of damages is the gross amount produced by the sale of the minerals (coprolites), less the expenses of working, and such a sum by way of profit as would have induced a stranger to undertake the working: A. G. v. Tomline, 5 Ch. D. 750; and see S. C., 15 Ch. D. 150.

ECCELESIASTICAL WASTE.

A rector or vicar will be restrained from felling timber, save for necessary repairs, for the parsonage buildings and premises, &c.: Strachy v. Francis, 2 Atk. 217; D. Marlborough v. St. John, 5 D. & S. 174; Sowerby v. Fryer, 8 Eq. 417; but not from ploughing up ancient meadow in order to clean and lay it down again: D. of St. Albans v. Skipwith, 8 Beav. 354; and see S. C., as to the position of a rector or vicar in respect to waste.

The patron, or, if he is a consenting party, the ordinary, may sue for an injunction against waste on the glebe: Holden v. Weekes, 1 J. & H. 278; and is, it seems, entitled to an account of the proceeds of timber wrongfully cut by the incumbent; and if the timber so cut has not been sold, to have it sold and the proceeds brought into Court: Sowerby v. Fryer, sup.; Yool, 78—80; Kerr, Inj. 83—87.

See, however, Knight v. Mosely, Amb. 176; Holden v. Weekes, sup.

For the application for the permanent improvement of the living of the produce of past waste, see Bartlett v. Phillips, 4 D. & J. 414.

The Ecclesiastical Commissioners can maintain an action to restrain the working of mines in glebe lands otherwise than under a lease sanctioned by them: Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. Wodehouse, (1895) 1 Ch. 552; explaining Holden v. Weekes, 1 J. & H. 278.

Churchwardens may sue, on behalf of themselves and the other parishioners, to restrain an alteration of the floor, walls, brickwork, or the internal arrangement or structure of the church: Cardinall v. Molyneux, 4 D. F. & J. 117; 2 Giff. 536; sup. Form 11; —or the pulling down of the churchyard wall: Marriott v. Tarpley, 9 Sim. 279.

But the Court has no jurisdiction to compel the restoration of the church, and will not order the incumbent to concur in taking proceedings to obtain a faculty for that purpose, nor direct a scheme thereupon to be carried into effect: Cardinall v. Molyneux, sup.

And the Court will not exercise its jurisdiction to compel by mandatory injunction the restoration of a way into a churchyard, when the Ecclesiastical Court has jurisdiction to order the restoration: Batten v. Gedy, 41 Ch. D. 507.

As to waste by ecclesiastical corporations, see Wither v. D. and C. Winchester, 3 Mer. 427; Herring v. D. and C. St. Paul's, 3 Sw. 492; and Phillimore's Ecclesiastical Law, 1254 et seq.

SECTION IV.—TRESPASS.

(I.) TRESPASS (ORDINARY).

1. Injunction against Trespassing on Plt's Land.

For injunction against cutting trees in a wood, and acts of trespass in exercise of an alleged legal claim, see Stanford v. Hurlstone, 9 Ch. 116; and see Lowndes v. Bettle, 10 Jur. N. S. 226; 33 L. J. Ch. 451; 10 L. T. 55; 12 W. R. 399; 3 N. R. 409.

For injunction restraining a lessor, without express power of entry for the purpose, from entering upon the demised premises to effect repairs which lessee refused to do, see Stocker v. Planet Bldg. Soc., 27 W. R. 793, 877.

2. Mandatory Injunction to remove Pipes on Plt's Land or under a Highway.

“LET the Deft R. remove all pipes which have been laid by the Deft in or through the land or soil beneath the surface of the highway adjoining the Plt's lands in the statement of claim mentioned to the undivided moiety whereof the Plt is entitled as in the statement of claim also mentioned.”—Deft to pay Plt's costs of suit, to be taxed &c. —See Goodson v. Richardson, M. R., 3 Dec. 1873, A. 2980; affirmed, 9 Ch. 221; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

For injunction restraining an encroachment by buttresses on Plt's land, see Holmes v. Upton, 9 Ch. 214, n.

For interim order restraining Deft from removing the soil on land adjoining the parish church of St. Stephen, Walbrook, &c., and the churchyard belonging to the said church, so as to deprive the walls of the church and churchyard of the support they derive from such adjoining land, see Windle v. Brass, V.-C. H., 19 June, 1876, B. 1046.

For injunction restraining Deft from any further excavation upon his premises so as to occasion damage or injury to Plt's warehouses and buildings, with inquiry as to damages, see Barnett v. Marzetti, V.-C. W., 14 Dec. 1867, A. 3061.

3. Injunction against building, without prejudice to Rights under London Building Act, 1894.

LET, without prejudice to the Deft's rights, if any, under the Metropolitan Building Act, 1894, the Deft A. K. T., his workmen and agents, be perpetually restrained from heightening or raising the wall which separates the Deft's premises, No. —, St. J.'s Pl., from the Plt's premises, No. —, St. J.'s Pl., in the county of —, and is referred to in the said affidavits, and is the wall in controversy in this action, and from placing any erection upon the said wall or from otherwise interfering therewith.—Deft to pay Plt's costs of action, to be taxed &c.—Thereupon all further proceedings in the action to be stayed, except for the purpose of enforcing the order, with liberty to apply for that purpose.—See List v. Tharp, Chitty, J., 13 Jan. 1897, B. 133; (1897) 1 Ch. 260.

4. Injunction against laying Rails, &c. on Plts' Land, or across Bridge, and Mandatory Injunction to remove.

USUAL undertaking.—Let the Defts, their contractors, workmen &c., be restrained until &c., from laying or placing or affixing on or to the bridge, or the approaches thereof, or any part of the land of the Plts in the Plts' statement of claim respectively mentioned, any rails, tramplates, sleepers, or other articles, or any earth, stones or rubbish; And Let the Defts forthwith remove all rails, tramplates, sleepers, and other articles, earth, stone, and rubbish laid, placed or affixed on or to the said bridge, and the approaches thereof, and any part of the land of the Plts; And Let the Defts &c. be restrained until &c., from making or constructing any tramroad or railroad over, upon, or across the said bridge, or the approaches thereto, or upon any part of the land of the Plts, and from making any embankment in any part of the said land of the Plts for the purpose of a tramroad across the said bridge; And Let the Defts forthwith remove such tramroad or railroad and such embankment accordingly; And Let the Defts, their contractors, workmen &c., be restrained until &c., from excavating or in any manner interfering with any part of the fabric of the said bridge, and from digging any holes in, or otherwise injuring or interfering with, the soil of the Plts' said land, and from using the said bridge, or the approaches thereto, or any part of the said land of the Plts for the purpose of a tramroad, or for the passage along such tramway of waggons or vehicles of any kind either for the carriage of coal, minerals, or other articles, or otherwise.—See Neath Canal Co. v. Ynisarwed Resolven Colliery Co., L. J., 3 May, 1875, B. 761 (varying order of V.-C. B., 23 March, 1875, B. 505, by adding the usual undertaking by Plts as to damages): S. C., 10 Ch. 450, altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

For injunction to restrain Deft from permitting photographic room to remain on the flat roof of the Plt's shop, on the ground of trespass upon the construction of Plt's lease, see Martyr v. Lawrence, 2 D. J. & S. 266.

To restrain the removal of a signboard affixed to the side of Deft's house, and being the signboard of Plt's house next door, see Moody v. Steggalls, 12 Ch. D. 261.

To restrain interference with a fascia fixed on the wall of the house adjoining the Plt's house, and comprised in the grant from the common landlord, see Francis v. Hayward, 22 Ch. D. 177, C. A.

To restrain the obstruction of an easement by preventing the passage of smoke from flues, see Hervey v. Smith, 1 K. & J. 389. See also for additional instances of injunctions in Equity to stop a mere trespass, L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Lanc. Ry. Co., 4 Eq. 174; Hodgson v. Duce, 2 Jur. N. S. 1014; or trespass in the exercise of disputed rights over land, or under colour of title, Greenhalgh v. Manch. Ry. Co., 3 M. & Cr. 784; Fooks v. Wilts Ry. Co., 5 Hare, 199.

5. Injunction against Construction of Unlawful Accommodation Works and Mandatory Injunction to remove.

LET the Deft E. C. T., her solrs and agents, be perpetually restrained from erecting any bridge, or a single or double line of railway, or other accommodation work, over the land or railway of the Plt co., passing through certain lands in the parish of —, between the Plt co.'s bridge at — and the — works of the — Co. Ld. at —, in the parish of —; And Let the Deft E. C. T. forthwith pull down and remove all bridges and single and double lines of railway, and other accommodation works so erected over the land or railway of the Plt co. as aforesaid.—The Deft to pay costs of action and appeal.—See The Rhondda and Swansea Bay Ry. Co. v. Talbot, C. A., 2 June, 1897, B. 3019; (1897) 2 Ch. 131, C. A., altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ld., (1899) 1 Ch. 438 [Form 10, p. 565].

6. Injunction against obstructing Communication with Branch Railway and Mandatory Injunction to restore.

UPON the appeal of the Defts from the order dated &c., and upon hearing counsel for the appellants and for the Plt, Let the Defts, their officers, servants, and agents, be perpetually restrained from continuing to prevent communications between the Plt's branch railway at &c., and the Defts' railway in the writ mentioned; And Let the Defts forthwith restore the junction between the said branch railway and Defts' railway in such a manner as to permit carriages to be brought to and from the said branch railway and Defts' railway.—Woodruff v. The Brecon, &c. Ry. Co., C. A., 5 Dec. 1884, B. 1456; S. C., 28 Ch. D. 190, C. A.

7. Injunction against Trespass on excepted Minerals.

DECLARE that the red rock and thin coal bored by the Defts are "mines and minerals" within the reservation contained in the lease dated —.—Usual undertaking.—Let the Defts A. and A. C. & Co. Ld. and D. S. & Co. Ld., their workmen, servants, and agents, be restrained until judgment in this action or further order from continuing to bore under the land demised by the said lease so as to interfere with or trespass upon the mines or minerals excepted by the said lease.—See Johnstone v. Crompton & Co., Byrne, J., 10 June, 1899, A. 2486; (1899) 2 Ch. 190.

8. Trespass in Churchyard by Interment of non-Parishioners restrained.

USUAL undertaking by the relators as to damages.—“Let the Deft the Reverend S. (clerk), his assistant curates, parish officers, servants &c., and all other persons claiming authority, commission, or licence from him or them, be restrained from burying, or interring, or suffering to be buried or interred in the churchyard of &c., without the consent of the churchwardens and parishioners of the said parish, the corpse of any person not being a parishioner of the said parish, or any person not being a parishioner who may have died within its precincts, until the hearing &c. But this order is to be without prejudice to any question in this action, and is not to extend to interfere with interments in any graves already purchased.”—A. G. v. Strong, V.-C. G., 19 March, 1868, A. 660 (made perpetual, by consent, 3 June, 1868, A. 1481).

It seems that strangers may not be buried in the churchyard of another parish than that in which they died, at least without the consent of the parishioners or churchwardens, whose parochial right of burial is invaded thereby, and perhaps also of the incumbent, whose soil is broken: Phill. Ecc. Law, 843; 2nd ed. 654; and see Glen, Burial Board Acts, 3, 4.

9. Injunction against interfering with Telegraph Wires.

USUAL undertaking.—Let the Defts The N. T. Co. Ltd., their directors, agents, servants and workmen, be restrained from acting on their notice dated —, to terminate the Plts' agreement with the Defts, and from cutting, disconnecting, removing, or otherwise interfering with any wire pursuant to the said notice.—Defts to pay costs of action.—See Keith, Prowse & Co. v. National Telephone Co. Ltd., Keke-wich, J., 9 Feb. 1894, A. 180; (1894) 2 Ch. 147.

10. Injunction against cutting Reeds or Sedges on Plts' Land.

LET the Deft, the Right Hon. A. H., Baron A., his servants, agents and workmen, be perpetually restrained from digging or carrying away land or soil, and from cutting reeds or sedges, and from committing any trespass upon the Plts' estates situate &c., or any part thereof, and from interfering in any way with the use and enjoyment by the Plts of their said estates; And Let the said Deft, the Right Hon. —, forthwith remove the stakes driven by him or by his order in the bed of the stream belonging to the Plts and forming part of their said estates in the pleadings mentioned.—Inquiry as to damages (if any) Plts are entitled to as compensation for the wrongful acts of the Deft in the pleadings mentioned.—Costs.—Liberty to apply.—Hammond v. L. Ashburton, V.-C. B., 11 July, 1883, A. 1584.

For injunction to restrain trespass by holder of bill of sale from tenant after the expiration of the tenancy, see Smith v. Brown, 48 L. J. Ch. 694.

For injunction against highway board for trespassing on land of Plt for the purpose of clearing out a "dumb well," i.e., a well into which water from the highway flowed, and thence percolated into the soil, see Croft v. Rickmansworth Highway Board, 39 Ch. D. 272, C. A., and see Croydale v. Sunbury-on-Thames Urban District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 515.

As to right of local authority to repair a public well on private property, see Smith v. Archibald, 5 App. Ca. (Sc.) 489; and Public Health Act, 1875, s. 64.

11. Injunction against removing Shingle so as to endanger Neighbour's Land.

THIS action coming on for trial &c. in the presence of counsel for the Informant, the Plt, and the Deft, Let the Deft, his agents, servants and workmen, be perpetually restrained from so digging or removing any shingle from the natural barrier of shingle protecting the land situate at or near Felixstowe Ferry, which forms the site of and the enclosure surrounding the Martello Tower known as &c., and from authorizing any such shingle to be so digged or removed as to endanger the said land or expose the same to inroads of the sea.—See A. G. and Secretary of State for War v. Tomline, Fry, J., 19 May, 1879, A. 1354.

NOTES.

Before the Jud. Acts, Courts of Equity did not, except in the case of destructive waste, interfere to restrain a legal trespass, though by the C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 82, in an action of trespass (at law) Plt might obtain an injunction to restrain the repetition or continuance of the wrongful act: see Stocker v. Planet Bldg. Soc., 27 W. R. 793, 794. But by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), an injunction to prevent any threatened or apprehended waste or trespass "may be granted, if the Court shall think fit, whether the person against whom such injunction is sought is or is not in possession under any claim of title or otherwise, or (if out of possession) does or does not claim a right to do the act sought to be restrained under any colour of title; and whether the estates claimed by both, or by either of the parties, are legal or equitable."

The distinctions formerly taken between the cases where the Deft committing the acts of trespass or spoliation complained of was or was not in possession, and claimed under any colour of title, or was a mere stranger (see Stanford v. Hurlstone, 9 Ch. 116; Lowndes v. Bettie, 12 W. R. 399; 4 N. R. 609; 33 L. J. Ch. 45; E. Talbot v. Scott, 4 K. & J. 96; Haigh v. Jaggar, 2 Coll. 231; Shaw v. Earl of Jersey, 4 C. P. D. 359, C. A.), no longer exist.

In the case of trespass by tipping spoil from a colliery upon a neighbour's land, the amount of the damages is not limited by the diminution in value of the land, but is determined according to the principle of the wayleave cases (see Martin v. Porter, 3 M. & W. 351; Jeyne v. Vivian, 6 Ch. 742; Phillips v. Homfray, 6 Ch. 770), the value of the land actually covered with spoil for the purpose for which it is used by the wrongdoers being taken into account: Whitwham v. Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 538, C. A.; S. C., (1894) 6 Ch. 1.

Even under the old practice continued acts of trespass or of irreparable injury to property would be restrained by perpetual injunction, without compelling the party injured to obtain verdicts at common law: Goodson v. Richardson, 9 Ch. 221; Allen v. Martin, 20 Eq. 462; L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Lanc., &c. Ry. Co., 4 Eq. 174; Ardley v. St. Pancras Guardians, 39 L. J. Ch. 871; and see Turner v. Ringwood Highway Board, 9 Eq. 418; Kerr, 117, &c.

In an action to restrain alleged trespass, Plt is entitled to particulars of any specific acts of dedication, or specific declarations of intention to dedicate, whether alone or jointly with evidence of user, on which Defts intend to rely, and of the names of the persons by whom the same were done or made: Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410.

As to trespass on a private stream in exercise of an alleged right of recreation, and that such a right cannot exist by custom in the public generally, but only in the inhabitants of a particular district, see Bourke v. Davis, 44 Ch. D. 110.

As to the right of the owner of land which is overhung by his neighbour's trees, to cut the branches (without trespassing) so far as they overhang, though they have done so for more than twenty years, see Lemmon v. Webb, (1895) A. C. 1, H. L.; affirming (1894) 3 Ch. 1, C. A.

As to entry on land to repair a bridge, see Campbell Davys v. Lloyd, 70 L. J. Ch. 714, C. A.

And that a person using his property, e.g., a party wall, so as to involve risk to a neighbour's property, is bound to see that all proper precautions are taken, and cannot escape liability by employing a contractor, see Hughes v. Percival, 8 App. Cas. 443; and as to the user of and rights in a party wall, see Watson v. Gray, 14 Ch. D. 192; Buchan v. Artlett, W. N. (88) 76; Mayfair Property Co. v. Johnston, (1894) 1 Ch. 508; List v. Tharp, (1897) 2 Ch. 260.

As to the effect of sect. 29 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, prohibiting entry upon land for the purpose of laying water-mains without the consent of the owner, and that the protection of the landowner is not taken away by the Public Health Act, 1875, sects. 4, 16, and 54, see Hill v. Wallasey Local Board, (1892) 3 Ch. 117; and as to the power of a local authority under the Act to lay down water-mains on land in an adjoining district, see Jones v. Conway and Colwyn Water Board, (1893) 2 Ch. 603, C. A.

As to the right of a railway company to exclude from their stations all persons not using the railway, and to impose upon the public conditions of admittance, see Perth General Station Committee v. Ross, (1897) A. C. 479, H. L.

As to restriction on construction of "waterworks" under the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 55), ss. 51, 52, 55, and that the provision in s. 52, requiring notice to be given by the local authority before commencing to "construct waterworks" within the limits of supply of any water company, applies only to "new waterworks" and not to additions or improvements in existing waterworks, see Cleveland Water Company v. Redcar Local Board, (1895) 1 Ch. 168.

As to the power of a local authority under ss. 16, 54 and 57 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 55), to lay down pipes in a private road without the owner's consent, and making him proper compensation under s. 308 of the Act, see Hill v. Wallasey Local Board, (1894) 1 Ch. 133, C. A.; and see King's Coll. Cambs. v. Uxbridge District Council, W. N. (01) 176.

For cases in which a drainage authority have been restrained from acts of trespass on private land not forming part of the drainage system vested in them, see Croft v. Rickmansworth Highway Board, 39 Ch. D. 272; Croysdale v. Sunbury-on-Thames Urban District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 515.

(II.)—ANCIENT LIGHTS.

1. Order for Interlocutory Injunction against obstruction of Ancient Lights.

USUAL undertaking as to damages.—"Let the Deft L., his agents &c., be restrained from erecting on the site of the old parapet wall between No. 35 B— and the courtyard of No. 34 B— in the Plt's statement of claim mentioned, or on the site of the said courtyard, any wall or other structure, and from constructing any bridges or passages over or across the said courtyard so as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the ancient lights of the Plt as the same were enjoyed previously to the taking down by the Deft of No. 34 B— until &c., and let the Deft L., his agents &c., be restrained from erecting on the sites of Nos. 9 and 10 P— any wall or building so as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the ancient lights of the Plt as the same were enjoyed previously to the taking down by the Deft of Nos. 9 and 10 P— until &c.”—See Burton v. Lacey, V.-C. M., 24 July, 1873, A. 2073.

2. Injunction as to Light, in part qualified.

USUAL undertaking.—Let the Defts, the Commissioners of Sewers in the City of London, their servants, agents and workmen, be restrained until judgment or further order from erecting any building upon the site of No. —, B— Street, so, or in such manner, as to darken, injure, or obstruct the ancient lights or windows of the Plt's premises (known as —), as the same ancient lights and windows were enjoyed previously to the taking down of the low building in 18—, and also from erecting any building on the site of Nos. —, —, B— Street aforesaid, so as to darken, injure, or obstruct the access of light to the Plt's premises as it was enjoyed before the buildings —, — and —, B— Street aforesaid were pulled down in 18—.—See Lord Battersea v. Commissioners of Sewers, North, J., 26 July, 1895, A. 3250 ; (1895) 2 Ch. 708.

3. Injunction against building higher than old Level, and Inquiry as to Damages.

LET the Deft C. F. P., his contractors, agents and workmen, be perpetually restrained from continuing to erect upon his premises in T— Street, B—, any house or building of a greater height than the buildings which formerly stood upon his said premises and which have been recently pulled down, so or in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct such of the Plt's windows in his said premises as are ancient lights. Direct an inquiry before one of the official referees what damages the Plt has suffered by reason of the building already erected by the Deft upon the said premises to a greater height than the former buildings so pulled down as aforesaid; And for payment by the Deft to the Plt of the amount of such damages within 14 days after the filing of the said referee's report.—The Deft to pay to the Plt his costs of this action, and occasioned by the said appeal to be taxed.—The costs of the said inquiry are reserved to be disposed of by the Judge.—See Martin v. Price, C. A., 19 Dec. 1893, B. 1550 ; (1894) 1 Ch. 276.

4. Perpetual Injunction as to Light—Angle of Incidence.

“LET the Defts B. &c., their servants &c., be perpetually restrained from raising or heightening the Defts' buildings in J— Street &c., in the pleadings mentioned, to a greater height than they stand at present, namely, 46 feet from the level of the pavement on the west side of J— Street aforesaid; but this injunction is not to prevent the Defts from putting on a sloping roof higher than 46 feet, so long as the angle of incidence of light over such sloping roof on the centre part of the ground-floor windows of Nos. —, —, in J— Street aforesaid, be not less than 45 degrees from the perpendicular above the point of incidence.”—Defts to pay Plt’s costs of action, and of motion for injunction to be taxed.—Hackett v. Baiss, M. R., 9 June, 1875, A. 988; 20 Eq. 494; see Parker v. First Avenue Hotel Co., 24 Ch. D. 282, C. A.; and v. inf. p. 569.

The word “air,” as coupled with light, ought not to be inserted in these orders, unless by special direction: Baxter v. Bower, 23 W. R. 805; City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant, 9 Ch. 212; v. inf. pp. 569, 570.

5. Perpetual Injunction against obstruction of Light by reference to Report.

THIS action coming on &c., for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plt and Defts [enter evidence, including report &c.], Let the Defts (names), their contractors, servants, workmen, and agents, be perpetually restrained from erecting or building any building or erection whatsoever on the Deft’s land abutting on or adjoining the street separating the said land from the Plt’s property, and known as &c., and immediately fronting or contiguous or adjacent to the N.E. and N.W. sides of the Plt’s warehouse and premises situate at &c., in such manner as to hinder or obstruct the free access of light and air coming to the Plt’s ancient windows, Nos. &c., in the report &c., in a greater degree than the buildings recommended by the said report would if erected.—Cooper v. Straker, Kay, J., 10 Nov. 1888, A. 1709.

6. Mandatory Injunction against obstructing Ancient Lights— Operation suspended.

LET the Deft L. forthwith pull down and remove all buildings raised by him above the level of the old houses in the Plt’s statement of claim mentioned on the site thereof, and all buildings and erections on the site of the said former houses erected so and in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct the ancient lights and windows of the house and premises in the Plt’s statement of claim mentioned, whereof the Plt is lessee, as the same were enjoyed previously to the taking down of the said houses; And let the Deft be perpetually restrained from erecting any buildings or erections on the site of the said former houses, so or in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct such ancient lights and windows as aforesaid, as the same were enjoyed previously to the taking down of the said houses; but the operation of this order is suspended until after the — day of —.—Deft to pay

Plt costs of this cause to be taxed.—Liberty to apply.—See Teichert v. Lange, V.-C. H., 17 Nov. 1875, B. 1913; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

7. Similar order—Operation suspended—Sum for Damages.

LET the Defts, trustees of the M. C. C., pull down and remove all buildings and structures erected so or in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the ancient lights of the Plt's greenhouse situate in the garden of the house known as "M. L.," G. E. Road, St. J.'s W., in the county of —, as the same ancient lights were enjoyed previously to the erection of the Deft's building; And Let the Defts, their servants, agents and workmen, be perpetually restrained from erecting any buildings or other structures so or in such manner as to darken, injure or obstruct any such ancient lights as the same were enjoyed previously to the erection of the Deft's building as aforesaid; But the operation of this injunction is suspended until the — day of —, and if notice of appeal be given from this order within that time until after the hearing of such appeal.—Defts to pay Plt's costs of action to be taxed and five shillings for damages for trespass in respect of footings of the wall erected by the Defts.—See Clifford v. Holt, Kekewich, J., 7 Dec. 1898, A. 4898; (1899) 1 Ch. 698; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565, infra].

8. Damage for Subsidence, not to cover future—Injunction as to Light with proviso as to Height.

LET the Defts, the S. S. & D. Gas Co., their servants and agents be perpetually restrained from raising or using the gas-holder upon their land adjoining —, so as to darken, injure or obstruct the Plt's ancient lights as enjoyed previously to the commencement of the works of the Defts in the pleadings referred to; But this injunction is not to prevent the Deft co. from raising or using the said gas-holder to or at a height not exceeding — feet from the ground. And let the Plt, G. S. J., recover against the Defts, The S. S. & D. Gas Co. and A. H. H. and C. W. K. (trading as H. & K.), £— in respect of damage sustained to this date by reason of the subsidence of the Plt's land in the — paragraph of the statement of claim mentioned, but this sum is not to include any damage which may hereafter be sustained. And let the Defts, The S. S. & D. Gas Co., and A. H. H. and C. W. K. (trading as H. & K.), pay to the Plt G. S. J. so much of his costs of this action as relates to the interference with his right to support of soil; And let the Defts, The S. S. & D. Gas Co., pay to the Plt, G. S. J., the residue of his costs of this action, such respective costs to be taxed by the taxing master, Mr. E. T. G. W. of the firm of — personally undertaking in the event of this judgment being reversed on appeal to abide by any order which this Court may make as to the said firm refunding to the Defts or any of them the said costs or any part thereof; And if the Defts or any of them give notice of appeal within a week, Let execution for the said damages be stayed, the Defts by their counsel undertaking to pay interest on the said damages at the rate of £4 p. c. per ann. from the date of this judgment until payment.—See Jordeson v. Sutton, Southcoates and Drypool Gas Co., North, J., 4 Aug. 1898, A. 3737; (1898) 2 Ch. 614; C. A., (1899) 2 Ch. 217.

For injunction on bill by the owner of one of the houses in a row to restrain Deft, the owner of another of the houses, from building a bay window, contrary to the covenant of his vendor with the original landowner, of which he had notice, see Western v. Macdermott, 1 Eq. 499 (affirmed, 2 Ch. 72).

For injunction against erecting any building so as to darken, hinder or obstruct the lights of any building to be erected on a site, so far as such lights should occupy the same position as the lights of a building previously standing thereon, see Eccl. Commrs. v. Kino, C. A., 5 March, 1880, A. 761; 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.

9. Injunction against obstructing Ancient Lights—Liberty to apply as to pulling down existing Buildings.

LET the Deft C. J., his agents, workmen and servants, be perpetually restrained from erecting any building upon the site of the premises known as D. Wharf in the pleadings mentioned, so or in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the ancient lights or windows of the Plt's messuage known as &c., as the same ancient lights and windows were enjoyed previously to the taking down of the ancient buildings which formerly stood on D. Wharf aforesaid; And the Plt and Deft respectively are to be at liberty to apply as they may be advised to the Judge at Chambers with reference to the pulling down of any of the buildings which have already been erected by the Deft so as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the said ancient lights or windows as the same were enjoyed previously to the taking down of the said houses or buildings, and with reference to the erection of any buildings on the Deft's property, but so as not to infringe the said injunction.—See Yates v. Jack, L. C., 24 Mar. 1866, B. 791; 1 Ch. 295.

In Smith v. Baxter, (1900) 2 Ch. 138 (Stirling, J.), the Court made a declaration of Plt's right, in lieu of an injunction, Deft undertaking to submit plans of proposed building.

10. New Form of Mandatory Injunction.

LET the Defts, The N. B. Co., Ltd., forthwith pull down and remove the kilns, chimneys, and holdings which have been erected by them since the commencement of this action on the land coloured violet on the plan endorsed on the indenture of lease dated &c.—Defts to pay Plt's costs of action.—See Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., C. A., 26 April, 1899, A. 1712; (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A.

In this case the Court of Appeal (Lindley, M. R., Rigby, L. J., and Collins, L. J.) directed that the old form of mandatory injunction should not be followed in future, but that the order should go in the form of an absolute order to the Deft to remove or pull down what is complained of instead of restraining him from permitting it to remain. The M. R. said that of course the effect was the same, but that there was no reason why the more simple and direct form should not be adopted (ex relat. Lavie, registrar).

For an order directing a building or fence to be pulled down, see Longcroft v. Ford, Buckley, J., 2 Nov. 1900, B. 3724.

11. Mandatory Injunction to remove Hoarding.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plt and the Deft, Let the Deft forthwith pull down and remove all walls, buildings, hoardings and woodwork erected in or upon the arch (No. 88 in the evidence mentioned); And Let the Deft, his agents, servants and workmen, be perpetually restrained from doing or permitting, or suffering to be done, any act or thing so as to obstruct the access of light to the sitting-room and kitchen windows of the Plt's messuage in the pleadings mentioned, as the same was enjoyed before the erection of the hoarding at the west end of the said arch.—Myers v. Catterson, Kekewich, J., 15 July, 1889, B. 1019; S. C., 43 Ch. D. 470, C. A.; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, supra].

The decision in this case was founded on the implied obligation of a railway co. towards the purchaser from them of superfluous lands.

12. Mandatory Injunction as to obstructing Ancient Lights—Operation suspended—Arbitrator to decide whether Order had been complied with.

LET the Deft S. pull down and remove all walls, erections, and buildings erected or built upon, along or adjoining the party wall forming the boundary between the Plt's premises and the Deft's premises as in the pleadings mentioned, of greater height than the height of the said party wall as it stood at the commencement of the building operations of the Deft in the pleadings also mentioned; And Let the Deft S. pull down and remove all walls, buildings and erections built on the site of the back-yard of his premises, or any part thereof, so or in such manner as to darken, injure, or obstruct any of the ancient lights or windows of the Plt's premises, as the same ancient lights and windows were enjoyed previously to the erection of — by the Deft in the pleadings mentioned; and by consent Let, in the event of any difference arising between the parties whether the Deft has pulled down sufficient to comply with the said injunction, such difference or differences, so often as they may respectively arise, be referred to H., of &c., as arbitrator; and the costs of every such reference are to be in the discretion of the said arbitrator.—By consent the Deft to pay Plt £25 for damages, and his costs of suit to be taxed—"and the (operation of the) injunction hereby awarded is to be suspended until the — day of —."—Liberty to apply.—Smith v. S., M. R., 11 June, 1875, B. 1025; 20 Eq. 500; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, supra].

The proper words are as above, “so as to darken, injure, or obstruct”: Willoughby v. Hicks, M. R., 25 Nov. 1875, Reg. Min. See Dent v. Auction Mart Co., 2 Eq. 228, 235; Stokes v. City Offices Co., 2 H. & M. 650. In Myers v. Catterson, Form 11, sup., the simple expression “obstruct the access of light” was used.

For reference to a surveyor in case of any dispute whether what the Deft pulled down was sufficient to meet the exigency of the order, see Jessel v. Chaplin, 3 Jur. N. S. 931, Ex.

For reference to an architect as special referee to inquire and report whether the Plt had sustained, and would continue to sustain, material injury in the carrying on his professional business by the Deft's proposed buildings, and the extent of such injury; and if Plt had sustained any material injury, what ought to be done as to pulling down or lowering the buildings or otherwise, see Cartwright v. Last, V.-C. M., 3 Feb. 1876, A. 353. But see note, inf. pp. 568, 569.

For injunction giving liberty to Defts to apply to dissolve if circumstances should occur making its further continuance unreasonable, see Ecclesiastical Commrs. v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.

13. Order for Payment of Damages assessed by the Judge at the Trial in respect of Obstruction of Light and also of Air.

LET the Defts, the L. &c. Co., pay to the Plt H. the sum of £—, in respect of damages sustained by him in consequence of obstruction to the light of three of the windows in the Plt's premises; And Let the Defts, the L. &c. Co., pay to the Plt H. a further sum of £— in respect of damages sustained by the Plt in consequence of obstruction, as to the air, in the slaughter-house part of the said premises.—Defts to pay Plt's costs, but such costs are not to include the costs occasioned by having more than two surveyors.—Hall v. Lichfield Brewery Co., Fry, J., 26 June, 1880, A. 1700; 43 L. T. 380.

For assessment of damages by the Judge at the trial at 200*l.* where an injunction was refused, see Nat. Prov. &c. Co. v. Prudential Assurance Co., 6 Ch. D. 757.

14. Injunction refused—Inquiry as to Damages.

“THIS Court doth not think fit to grant any injunction in this action; but Let an inquiry be made what, if any, sum of money is proper to be awarded to be paid by the Deft to the Plt by way of compensation for any injury that has been sustained by the Plt by the erection of that part of the party wall in the statement of claim mentioned adjoining that part of the shop belonging to the Plt's premises which is lighted by means of the dome or skylight in the statement of claim mentioned.”—And after certificate, liberty to apply.—See Chapple v. Crow, V.-C. S., 14 Dec. 1865, A. 2466.

For the like inquiry, see Senior v. Pawson, 3 Eq. 330; 1863, A. 2520; Isenberg v. E. I. Ho. Co., 3 D. J. & S. 263; Curriers' Co. v. Corbett, 2 Dr. & Sm. 355.

For inquiry what sum of money is proper to be awarded to be paid to the Plt by the Deft by way of compensation for any damage occasioned by Deft's new buildings, see Hunt v. Hiller, V.-C. M., 13 June, 1873, A. 1829.

15. Form of Reference by the Court to an Expert.

THE Judge, by consent of all parties, nominates C. of &c., surveyor, to inquire and report—

1. Whether any addition to the Deft's buildings on the site of Nos. 8 and 9, — Street, as they now stand, to be made in accordance with the present plans of the Deft, will materially obstruct the existing access of light to the Plt's windows.

2. Whether the Deft's buildings, if completed in accordance with such plans, will interfere with the access of light to the Plt's windows as it existed before the Deft's buildings on the site of Nos. 8 and 9, — Street, were pulled down.

3. Whether any addition made to the Deft's buildings since &c., the date of the service of the writ in this action, has materially obstructed the access of light to the Plt's windows as it existed at that time.

The report of the said surveyor is to be filed at the Central Office after the order has been made on the Plt's motion.—Andrade v. Knowles, Stirling, J., 27 June, 1890.

By O. LV, 19, the Judge in Chambers may, in such way as he thinks fit, obtain the assistance of accountants, merchants, engineers, actuaries, and other scientific persons the better to enable any matter at once to be determined, and he may act upon the certificate of any such person.

This rule is taken from s. 42 of 15 & 16 V. c. 80, but is worded differently from that section, so as to confine the power to the Judge in Chambers.

In some cases a reference has been sent to Chambers to appoint a person to make the inquiry (Form 3, p. 725); and if a person is appointed in Court, it must be by consent of the parties, and no order is drawn up.

A view by the Judge (unless he is expressly appointed arbitrator) only assists him to understand the evidence.

NOTES.

RIGHT TO INJUNCTION AGAINST OBSTRUCTION OF LIGHT.

The right to an injunction to restrain an interference with ancient lights exists whenever an action could be maintained at law, and damages—not merely nominal, but really substantial or considerable—recovered: Aynsley v. Glover, 18 Eq. 544.

And to give a right of action and sustain the issue there must have been “a substantial privation of light sufficient to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable, or to prevent Plt from carrying on his accustomed business on the premises as beneficially as he had formerly done”: Dent v. Auction Mart Co., 2 Eq. 246, adopting the principle laid down in Back v. Stacey, 2 C. & P. 466; Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160. The onus of proving the injury rests upon the Plt: Curriers' Co. v. Corbett, 4 D. J. & S. 764; see also Ratcliffe v. D. Portland, 10 W. R. 687, that the threatened injury must not rest on mere opinion.

As stated by Jessel, M. R., the right to an injunction is not limited by the amount of light necessary for the purpose for which the room is being used, without regard to any future use to which the room may be applied, but is an absolute indefeasible right to the enjoyment of the light without reference to the purpose for which it has been used—"to the blessing and comfort of the entry of the direct rays of the sun": Aynsley v. Glover, 18 Eq. 544; Hackett v. Baiss, 20 Eq. 494; Yates v. Jack, 1 Ch. 295; Calcraft v. Thompson, 15 W. R. 387; Kelk v. Pearson, 6 Ch. 809; Dent v. Auction Mart Co., 2 Eq. 238; Dyers' Co. v. King, 9 Eq. 438; Moore v. Hall, 3 Q. B. D. 178; A. G. v. Queen Anne Mansions, 60 L. T. 759; 37 W. R. 572; Dicker v. Popham, 63 L. T. 379; Lazarus v. Artistic Photo. Co., (1897) 2 Ch. 214; Gale, 294.

These decisions, it may be observed, are opposed to some of the earlier cases, e.g., Jackson v. Duke of Newcastle, 3 D. J. & S. 275, deciding that the Court will not interfere if the present use of the room is not materially injured, and that any future use to which the room may be applied will not be regarded. See also Curriers' Co. v. Corbett, 13 W. R. 538, 1056; 11 Jur. N. S. 719; 2 Dr. & Sm. 353; 4 De G. J. & S. 746; Lanfranchi v. Mackenzie, 4 Eq. 421 (not followed in Lazarus v. Artistic Photo. Co., sup.); Dickinson v. Harbottle, 28 L. T. 186; Adamson v. Gatty, W. N. (70) 184, as opposed to the theory of an absolute and unqualified right to the same amount of light as has been hitherto enjoyed; and quære whether a right to an extraordinary amount of light is capable of acquisition: Warren v. Brown, (1900) 2 Q. B. 722; Home and Colonial Stores v. Colls, 83 L. T. 759.

The distinction between the extent of the right of town and country occupiers to protection of their ancient lights taken by Lord Cranworth in Clarke v. Clark, 1 Ch. 16 (and apparently approved in Kelk v. Pearson, 6 Ch. 812), was abandoned by himself in the later case of Yates v. Jack, 1 Ch. 295, and seems to have been now exploded: Hackett v. Baiss, 20 Eq. 494; Martin v. Headon, 2 Eq. 425; Lyon v. Dillimore, 14 W. R. 511; 14 L. T. 183.

In the absence of special circumstances, the erection of an opposite building, so as to diminish any portion of the 45 degrees of light, is an interference with light which in general will be restrained by injunction: Hackett v. Baiss, 20 Eq. 494; City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant, 9 Ch. 212.

But the question of amount of obstruction is always one of fact, and the Plt whose light is obstructed is entitled to judgment in general terms without reference to the angle of incidence, unless there is special evidence justifying the insertion of such a reference: Parker v. First Avenue Hotel Co., 24 Ch. D. 282, C. A.; and there is no presumption except of the slightest kind, that where the angular height of an erection is less than 45 degrees, the access of light is not substantially interfered with: Ecclesiastical Commrs. v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.

For the statutory rule as to the angle of 45 degrees in buildings erected in London, see the Metropolis Local Management Amendment Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 102), s. 85, and the bye-law issued under parliamentary authority by the Metropolitan Board of Works; and Theed v. Debenham, 2 Ch. D. 168. In determining the height of the building and the width of the street, the measurement is taken from the level of the centre of the street: S. C.

The right given to the building owner by the Metropolitan Building Act, 1855 (18 & 19 V. c. 122), s. 83, to raise any party structure permitted by the Act to be raised, upon condition of making good all damage occasioned thereby to adjoining premises, does not authorize the obstruction of adjoining ancient lights: Crofts v. Haldane, L. R. 2 Q. B. 194.

An inchoate right to light and air to windows commences when the exterior walls of the building with the spaces for the windows are completed, and the building is properly roofed in, although the window sashes and the glass are not then put in and the interior is not finished: Collis v. Laughner, (1894) 3 Ch. 659, following Cortauld v. Legh, L. R. 4 Ex. 126.

A mere tenant may obtain an injunction to restrain obstruction of light, but the injunction will be limited to the continuance of his tenancy: Simper v. Foley, 2 J. & H. 555.

The grant of a lease of lights and easements may be so controlled by antecedent agreement as to deprive the lessee of the right to restrain an obstruction of light by other lessees: Salaman v. Glover, 20 Eq. 444.

MANDATORY INJUNCTION—DAMAGES.

On the question whether a Plt who has not established a case for relief by mandatory injunction in respect of interference with his ancient lights may obtain relief by an inquiry as to damages, see Lady Stanley v. E. Shrewsbury, 19 Eq. 616; City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant, 9 Ch. 212; Calcraft v. Thompson, 35 Beav. 559; Sparling v. Clarkson, 17 W. R. 518, and cases there cited; Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, C. A.; Nat. Prov. &c. Co. v. Prudential, &c. Co., 6 Ch. D. 757.

The discretion reposed in the Court by Lord Cairns' Act (v. sup. p. 528) must be exercised according to the facts of each particular case, and not so as to grant or sell to the Deft, against the Plt's will, a licence to commit the wrong of which the Plt complains, especially where an undertaking to pull down has been accepted from Deft on motion: Greenwood v. Horsey, 33 Ch. D. 471; and see Hollond v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 578; Aynsley v. Glover, 18 Eq. 544; Krehl v. Burrell, 7 Ch. D. 55; 11 Ch. D. 146, C. A.; Lawrence v. Horton, 59 L. J. Ch. 440; 62 L. T. 749; 38 W. R. 535; Dicker v. Popham, 63 L. T. 379; and in cases of continuing actionable nuisance the jurisdiction so conferred ought only to be exercised under very exceptional circumstances: Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 287, C. A.

Where Deft appealing against injunction offered an undertaking to pull down, the Court of Appeal accepted the undertaking and discharged the injunction, but observed that, without the undertaking, there would be jurisdiction at the trial to order the pulling down of buildings erected after action or notice that Plt objected: Smith v. Day, 13 Ch. D. 651, C. A.; but in Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, C. A., the balance of convenience was held to be in favour of granting an interim injunction, rather than allowing completion of the buildings upon an undertaking to pull down.

A mandatory injunction may be granted although the obstructing building was completed before the issue of the writ: Lawrence v. Horton, sup.; Shiel v. Godfrey, W. N. (93) 115.

A mandatory injunction will be granted where Deft, upon receiving notice of motion, seeks to anticipate the action of the Court by hurrying on his building: Daniel v. Ferguson, (1891) 2 Ch. 27, C. A.; et v. sup. p. 528.

And that the maxim of the common law, actio personalis moritur cum personâ, does not apply to the equitable remedy by mandatory injunction for the removal of an obstruction to light, see Jones v. Simes, 43 Ch. D. 607; nor to a cause of action arising out of a statutory duty: Peebles v. Oswaldtwistle Urban District Council, (1896) 2 Q. B. 159, C. A.; (but as to the remedy applicable in the particular case, see S. C., (1897) 1 Q. B. 625; (1898) A. C. 387 H. L., nom. Pasmore v. &c.).

EVIDENCE.

When the Court has not been satisfied on the evidence whether the proposed building will or not materially obstruct the Plt's light, the erection of a temporary screen or scaffolding to the height of the proposed wall has been directed, and a surveyor appointed to report on the effect: Leech v. Schweder, 9 Ch. 463.

Personal inspection by the Judge of the property alleged to be injured was considered not advisable: see Jackson v. D. Newcastle, 3 D. J. & S. 275; Leech v. Schweder, 22 W. R. 292; 43 L. J. Ch. 232; but such inspection is expressly authorized by O. L. 4; v. inf. pp. 584, 636.

The power given to the Court by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 56, to refer questions in pending causes or matters for inquiry and report to any official or special referee, will not be exercised by appointing a scientific person before the trial to report upon the extent of injury likely to arise from the erection of the proposed building: Baltic Co. v. Simpson, 24 W. R. 390.

AIR.

The ancient formula by which, in these obstruction cases, "air" was invariably coupled with "light" not only in the pleadings and order, but also in the evidence, has been most distinctly disapproved: City of London Brewery Co. v. Tennant, 9 Ch. 212; Baxter v. Bower, 23 W. R. 805; 44 L. J. Ch. 625; 33 L. T. 41; though in a proper case an obstruction to free access of air as well as of light is the subject of relief: Hall v. Lichfield Brewery Co., 43 L. T. 380; 49 L. J. Ch. 655; but see Russell v. Watts, 25 Ch. D. 559, C. A.; 10 App. Cas. 590.

In the absence of actual contract, a right to have the general current of air to a man's property over the property of his neighbour kept uninterrupted cannot be established: Chastey v. Ackland, (1895) 2 Ch. 389, C. A.; (but see S. C. in H. L., (1897) A. C. 159); but the right to the access of air over a neighbour's land in a particular channel to a particular place or through a definite aperture in the nature of a window on the property granted may be acquired by immemorial user or by express grant: Chastey v. Ackland, sup.; Aldin v. Latimer Clark, Muirhead & Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 437. But the grantor of land to be used for a particular purpose is under an obligation to abstain from doing anything on adjoining property belonging to him which would prevent the land granted from being used for the purpose for which the grant was made: Aldin v. Latimer Clark, sup. (where an injunction was granted to restrain assigns of lessor from building so as to interfere with the access of air to drying sheds used for the lessee's business of a timber merchant).

ACQUISITION OF RIGHT—PRESCRIPTION ACT.

The general words in sect. 2 of the Prescription Act (2 & 3 W. IV. c. 71) do not apply to the easement of light, which is governed by sect. 3 and subsequent ancillary sections: Perry v. Eames, (1891) 1 Ch. 658. The effect of sect. 3 is to give an absolute and indefeasible right to the access and use of light after twenty years of uninterrupted enjoyment; unless such enjoyment is shown to have been by consent: Tupling v. Jones, 11 H. L. C. 290; Lanfranchi v. Muckenzie, 4 Eq. 427; Truscott v. Merch. Taylors' School, 11 Ex. 855; and see Robson v. Edwards, (1893) 2 Ch. 146; Greenhalgh v. Brindley, (1901) 2 Ch. 324.

The nature and extent of the right to access of light have not been altered by this Act, but merely the mode in which that right may be obtained: Kelk v. Pearson, 6 Ch. 813; Leech v. Schweder, 9 Ch. 472.

In order to bring a case within the section, there must have been access by one and the same definite channel for the statutory period: Harris v. De Pinna, 33 Ch. D. 238, C. A.; and a right to passage of air over the general surface of the servient tenement cannot be acquired: S. C.; Webb v. Bird, 13 C. B. N. S. 841; Bryant v. Lefever, 4 C. P. D. 172, C. A.; secus, where the channel is defined, as in the case of a cellar ventilated by a shaft cut through the rock into a disused well: Bass v. Gregory, 25 Q. B. D. 481. And as to the meaning of the expressions "access" and "right thereto" used in the section, see Scott v. Pape, 31 Ch. D. 554, C. A.

A timber stage or structure for storing timber has been held not to be a building within the section: Harris v. De Pinna, 33 Ch. D. 238, C. A. (per Chitty, J.); secus, a greenhouse: Clifford v. Holt, (1899) 1 Ch. 698; or a memorial chapel, unconsecrated and used for services and confirmation and other classes, and illumination of works of art: A. G. v. Queen Anne Mansions Co., 60 L. T. 759; 37 W. R. 572; and as to a church, see Duke of Norfolk v. Arbutnot, 5 C. P. D. 390, C. A.; Ecclesiastical Commrs. v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.

The use of light has been "enjoyed" within the section if the owner has had the amenity or advantage of using the light; continuous user is not necessary: Cooper v. Straker, 40 Ch. D. 21, where light was acquired in respect of windows with moveable shutters, which were only occasionally opened; Smith v. Baxter, (1900) 2 Ch. 138, where windows were covered with shelving which allowed substantial amount of light to pass.

The Crown not being named in the section is not bound by it: Perry v. Eames, sup.; nor are the lessees of the Crown, as there can be no easement by prescription for a limited time: Wheaton v. Maple, (1893) 3 Ch. 48, C. A.

As to what constitutes an "interruption" within the Act, permanent or fluctuating, see Presland v. Bingham, 41 Ch. D. 268, C. A.; and that the word means adverse obstruction, not mere discontinuance of user, Smith v. Baxter, (1900) 2 Ch. 138; and that to establish acquiescence in an interruption, the existence of actual notice must be proved, Seddon v. Bank of Bolton, 19 Ch. D. 462.

Where interruption takes place for the first time during the twentieth year, an injunction to protect the inchoate right will not be granted before that year has expired: Bridewell Hospital v. Ward, 62 L. J. Ch. 270; W. N. (92) 194; even if effectual interruption before the title becomes absolute is impossible: L. Battersea v. Commrs. of Sewers for City of London, (1895) 2 Ch. 708, where interference with access of light was restrained by interlocutory injunction, but not so as to prevent building up to the height of houses removed more than nineteen and less than twenty years before action brought; see Form 2, sup. p. 562.

A provision in a lease for the purpose of relieving the lessor from the application of the rule against derogating is not a consent or agreement by the lessee within the section: Mitchell v. Cantrill, 37 Ch. D. 56; and that the mere fact of there being windows in an adjoining house is not constructive notice of any agreement giving a right to light, see Allen v. Seckham, 11 Ch. D. 790, C. A.; observing on Miles v. Tobin, 16 W. R. 465; 17 L. T. 432.

A reservation in a lease of the right to obstruct light prevents the lessee from acquiring a right to light under sect. 3 of the Prescription Act, 1832: Haynes v. King, (1893) 3 Ch. 439.

It is sufficient if the consent is signed by the owner of the dominant tenement: Bewley v. Atkinson, 13 Ch. D. 283, C. A.

But the right cannot be acquired during unity of possession of the house and the land over which the right would extend: Ladyman v. Grave, 6 Ch. 763.

As to the possibility of the acquisition, in respect of a church, of a title to light by prescription or grant over the glebe, see Ecclesiastical Commrs. v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.

IMPLIED GRANT.

The implication in favour of a grantee, whereby, under a grant of part of a tenement, continuous and apparent easements over the other part pass to the grantee, does not, in general, apply in favour of a grantor; so that if a vendor does not on conveyance reserve the right to light, no reservation is implied, and the purchaser can build so as to obstruct the windows: Wheeldon v. Burrows, 12 Ch. D. 31, C. A.; Taves v. Knowles, 39 W. R. 512; (1891) 2 Q. B. 564 (where the principle was applied to a mortgagee); secus, where there is any contract between the parties, e.g., a building scheme, which would render such an act contrary to good faith: Russell v. Watts, 10 App. Ca. 590 (reversing S. C., 25 Ch. D. 559, C. A.). And as to the difference between implied grant and implied reservation, see also Bayley v. G. W. Ry. Co., 26 Ch. D. 434, 458, C. A.; Ellis v. Manchester Carriage Co., 2 C. P. D. 13.

Where the owner of a house and land sells and conveys contemporaneously the house to one and the land to another, either purchaser being aware of the conveyance to the other, the purchaser of the land cannot obstruct the light of the house: Allen v. Taylor, 16 Ch. D. 255; and where a railway co. sold land adjoining railway arches, with a recital that all other land acquired by them would be used for the purposes of their railway, there was an implied obligation on their part not to obstruct the light coming through the railway arches: Myers v. Cutterson, 43 Ch. D. 470, C. A. (see Form 11, sup. p. 566); q. v., also, as to the principles upon which the doctrine of implication depends.

On a similar principle the lessor of a house was held estopped from relying as a defence on the fact (known to the lessee) that the house was an unstable structure: Grosvenor Hotel Co. v. Hamilton, 42 W. R. 626, C. A.

The principle of Allen v. Taylor, 16 Ch. D. 355, may apply as between devisees by will, as well as grantees by contemporaneous deeds: Phillips v. Low, (1892) 1 Ch. 47.

The implication is not prevented by the fact that the dominant tenement is in lease, and therefore not in the possession of the grantor: Barnes v. Loach, 4 Q. B. D. 494; and applies though the title of the grantor is equitable only: Beddington v. Atlee, 35 Ch. D. 317; the extent of the right of the grantee being measured by the state of the grantor's title, ex. gr., being subject to any contract of sale entered into by the grantee: S. C.; and see Davies v. Thomas, W. N. (99) 244; and depending on all the circumstances existing at the time of the grant, and known to the grantee; ex. gr., an improvement scheme as to land sold by a corporation: Birmingham Bkg. Co. v. Ross, 38 Ch. D. 295, C. A.

And the grantor does not escape the operation of the rule by leaving a strip of vacant land intervening between the house granted and land retained: S. C.

The mere fact that in a conveyance and the plan affixed thereto, the land adjoining to the land conveyed is described as "building land" will not affect the application of the doctrine of implied grant of an unrestricted right to light: Broomfield v. Williams, (1897) 1 Ch. 602, C. A.; and see Pollard v. Gare, (1901) 1 Ch. 834.

The implication holds good in the case of a grant by mortgagee selling under his power of sale: Born v. Turner, (1900) 2 Ch. 211; and of a lease by a mortgagor under the Conveyancing Act, s. 18, as against a subsequent grantee from the mortgagee: Wilson v. Queen's Club Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 522.

The quantum of light to which the grantee is entitled is that which, having regard to all the circumstances of the grant, could be reasonably deemed to have been in the contemplation of the parties; e.g., prima facie where a house is granted for business purposes, so much light as is sufficient for ordinary purposes of business in the locality: Corbett v. Jonas, (1892) 3 Ch. 137.

ABANDONMENT OF RIGHT.

After some conflict of opinion, it is now settled that the fact that an owner of ancient lights has altered and enlarged his windows, or added new ones will not deprive him of the right to an injunction against interference with his ancient light—provided there be a material injury to that which is a clear legal right, and damages will give no adequate compensation: Aynsley v. Glover, sup.; Staight v. Burn, 5 Ch. 163; Tapling v. Jones, 11 H. L. C. 290; Barnes v. Loach, 4 Q. B. D. 494; Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, 55, C. A.; Greenwood v. Horsey, 33 Ch. D. 471; Raper v. Fortescue, W. N. (86) 78; though where the portion of an ancient window, which is retained in the area of a new window, is so small that the damage to the ancient light is insignificant, the Court might decline to grant an injunction: Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, 62, C. A.; and the right to light is not abandoned by alteration of the plane of the windows by advancing them or setting them back: Scott v. Pape, 31 Ch. D. 554, C. A.; Bullers v. Dickinson, 29 Ch. D. 155; if there is user through the new apertures of the same, or a substantial part of the same cone of light which passed through the old apertures: Scott v. Pape, sup.; nor lost, although the actual enjoyment of the light has been entirely suspended by reason of there being no existing windows: Ecclesiastical Commrs. v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.; but there may be an abandonment of the ancient lights if the alterations are such as to show such an intention: Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, C. A.; Nat. Prov. Co. v. Prudential Asse. Co., 6 Ch. D. 757; or if the owner of the dominant tenement has by his alterations so confused the evidence that he cannot prove the identity of the light: Scott v. Pape, sup.; and as to the importance of preserving distinct evidence as to the position and dimensions of the ancient windows, see S. C., and Fowlers v. Walker, 49 L. J. Ch. 598; 28 W. R. 579; 42 L. T. 356; Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43, 55, C. A.; Smith v. Baxter, (1900) 2 Ch. 138; and evidence connecting together defined parts of the ancient and existing windows: Pendarves v. Munro, (1892) 1 Ch. 611.

The recent cases have thus virtually overruled Heath v. Bucknall, 8 Eq. 1 (which decided that after an alteration or enlargement of windows the only relief was in damages), and also the common law decisions—Renshaw v. Bean, 18 Q. B. 112; Hutchinson v. Copestake, 8 C. B. N. S. 102; 9 C. B. N. S. 863; and extended the protection which in Turner v. Spooner, 1 Dr. & Sm. 467, and in Curriers' Co. v. Corbett, 2 Dr. & Sm. 353, was apparently limited to cases where the change was trivial or immaterial, e.g., putting in improved frames and glass; and in Weatherley v. Ross, 1 H. & M. 349, was limited to ancient windows when restored, Plt being ordered, as the condition of obtaining any injunction, to block up the new and to restore the altered windows to their original size.

(III.)—MINERAL RIGHTS.

1. Account and Injunction in respect of Mineral Workings by Copyholder under Ancient Inclosures within a Manor.

"LET an account be taken of all the coal and minerals which have been raised or dug by the Deft H., or by his licence or authority, from underneath the piece of copyhold land within and parcel of the manor of B., in the county of &c., and which formerly belonged to W., deceased, and now belongs to the Deft H., and which same piece of land is either ancient inclosure land, or is part of the open arable fields inclosed under the B— Inclosure Act, as allotted and awarded to the said W., deceased, and contains about &c., and is now in the occupation of &c., — and of the value of such coal and minerals and of all money received by the Deft H., or by his order or for his use from the sale, or otherwise in respect of such coal and minerals ; And Let the said Deft, his agents &c., and all others by his authority, be perpetually restrained from raising, digging, or working, or in any way interfering with the coal or other minerals lying underneath the said copyhold lands of the Deft H. within the said manor, being old inclosures, or which have been allotted to him as copyholds out of the open arable fields.”—Deft to pay Plt’s costs of suit to be taxed.—Adjourn &c., and subsequent costs.—D. of Portland v. Hill, V.-C. W., 15 March, 1866, B. 947 ; 2 Eq. 765 ; followed in D. of Rutland v. Tutin, V.-C. M., 22 July, 1878, B. 1958.

2. Lateral Support to Church—Coal Workings restrained.

“AND both sides (by their counsel) consenting to treat this motion as the trial of this action, Let the Defts D. and G., their agents &c., be restrained from further proceeding with their mining operations and workings in the coal mines so occupied by them as in the statement of claim mentioned, and from working the coal in their said mines at any part thereof nearer to the Plt’s church than that to which the workings of their predecessors (in title) were carried, and from getting the ribs and pillars of coal, including the thick rib of coal in the said statement mentioned, so left by their predecessors as aforesaid, within eighty yards from the ground immediately under the said church, and from commencing or proceeding with any mining operations or workings in such manner as to cause damage to the Plt as the vicar of the said church ; And Let the Plt and his agents be at liberty from time to time to inspect the said mines and workings, and the working plans connected therewith, at all reasonable times.”—Deft to pay Plt’s costs of suit, to be taxed.—Wall v. Dunn, V.-C. M., 2 March, 1876, B. 693 ; affirmed on appeal, 7 July, 1876.

3. Injunction as to Coal Workings—Mandatory Injunction—Account of Coals gotten—Support.

“LET Deft W., his servants &c., be perpetually restrained from working or getting any coals or other materials in the mines under the close of land called &c., or other lands of the Plt, situate at &c., or from carrying on any working under the same lands ; And Let the Deft W. forthwith close the ways, passages, and apertures which have been made or opened in or to the said mines, and cause the surface of the land to be sufficiently supported; And Let an account be taken of all coals and other materials worked or gotten or rendered unworkable under the same lands by the Deft W., and of the value of such coals and other material, without any allowance for the cost of working or getting the same."—Deft W. to pay Plt's costs of suit.—Adjourn &c.—See Bell v. Joell, V.-C. H., 8 July, 1875, A. 295; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

4. Declaration of Right to Work Clay under Railway from Surface —Injunction—Inquiries.

"DECLARE that the Plts are entitled to work their clay from under the land of the Defts conveyed by the Plts to the Defts by deed dated —, and for that purpose are entitled to enter upon the said land of the Defts so conveyed as aforesaid, and to remove the ballast, fey or surface soil lying or being above such clay; And Let the Defts, their servants, agents, and workmen, be perpetually restrained from hindering or interfering with the Plts working their said clay under the land of the Defts so conveyed as aforesaid, or entering the said land, or removing the ballast, fey or surface soil lying above such clay for that purpose. Direct the following inquiries, viz.: (1) Whether any and what damages have been sustained by the Plts by reason of the Deft's breach of their undertaking contained in the said order dated —; (2) Whether any and what damages have been sustained by the Plts by reason of the Defts having hindered or impeded the Plts in the working of their clay pit, and the getting of clay necessary for the carrying on of the Plt's manufacture."—The costs of the inquiries are reserved.—Defts to pay Plt's costs of action up to and including the hearing, to be taxed.—See The Ruabon Brick and Terra Cotta Co. v. The Great Western Rail. Co., Kekewich, J., 10 Nov. 1892, B. 1341; (1893) 1 Ch. 427.

For decree restraining the working of minerals, to the support of which Plts were entitled under their contracts, in such a manner as to occasion damage to them, see N. E. Ry. Co. v. Crossland, 2 J. & H. 565; 4 D. F. & J. 550.

For injunction to stay the owner of a bed of china clay from getting it so as to destroy or seriously injure the surface, see Hext v. Gill, 7 Ch. 699.

For injunction to stay Deft working coals under Plt's railway, or within twenty yards of any building, so as to damage or obstruct it, unless after the notice required by the Railways Clauses Act, 1845, s. 78, or so as to affect a bridge, without prejudice to Deft's right to pump water from the shaft, see N. E. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 1 J. & H. 158; 2 D. F. & J. 423.

For inquiry with a view to an injunction against a lessee of mines disturbing supports of lessor's house, see Dugdale v. Robertson, 3 K. & J. 695.

5. Injunction as to Mines—Support—Inspection—Account.

(By consent) Let &c., be restrained from digging or getting any coals, culm, or other minerals or soil from under the E. estate, in &c., mentioned, or in any manner digging under the same, and also from destroying or taking away the pillars or supports which have been left or erected in the workings under &c., or any part thereof, and also from using such parts of the communications called the &c., as lie under the said &c., or any part thereof, or such parts of any other communications from &c., until &c.; And Let the Plts, or a proper person to be appointed by them for that purpose, be at liberty, on reasonable notice being given, to inspect the workings of the Defts under the said E. estate; And Let the following &c.—1. An account of the several quantities of coal, culm, and other minerals, worked, raised, or procured by the Defts, or any of them, or by any other person or persons by their or any of their order, or for their or any of their use, out of or from the said E. estate or any part thereof; 2. An inquiry how, and in what manner, and at what time or times, and for what sum or sums of money, the same, and every part thereof, have or has been sold, applied, or disposed of.—Adjourn &c.—See Baynton v. Leonard, M. R., 15 Feb. 1853, A. 454.

For an interlocutory order for Plt to inspect at all reasonable times, upon giving one day's notice, so far as might be necessary to ascertain whether Deft had worked into Plt's land, and how far and to what extent, with liberty to measure, dial, and make all such plans or surveys as might be necessary for that purpose, and to use the Deft's machinery for descending and ascending, doing no injury to the Deft's works, and paying the Deft any expenses he may incur, see Bennitt v. Whitehouse, M. R., 9 Feb. 1860, A. 232; 28 Beav. 119.

For an order in Chambers under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 58, that Plt be at liberty by his witnesses &c., to inspect the Deft's mine; that for this purpose the Defts give all reasonable facilities for access to and in the mine, and for ventilation during the process; and that Plt be at liberty, so far as is necessary for the purpose of inspection, to make a drift-way as described &c.; before commencing the inspection Plt to give security, to the satisfaction of the Master, to the extent of £500, or deposit that sum with the Master to abide any order as to indemnifying Defts for any loss or damage which might be sustained in consequence of the inspection, see Bennett v. Griffiths, 30 L. J. Q. B. 98; 7 Jur. (N. S.) 284; 3 L. T. 735; 9 W. R. 332.

For form of application for inspection, see D. C. F. 950.

6. Inspection of Mines, in Suit to establish the Right.

LET the Commrs of her Majesty's Woods and Forests be at liberty on behalf of the informant, at all seasonable times, and on giving reasonable notice, to enter, inspect, and examine, by surveyors to be appointed by them, the coal mines now or lately worked by the Defts, by means of the four several pits or shafts &c., for the purpose of ascertaining, so far as may be necessary to ascertain, how far seawards from the said pits or shafts the said Defts have worked the said mines, and every one of them.—A. G. v. Chambers, V.-C. W., 18 July, 1849, A. 1948; 12 Beav. 159, 160.

For order for injunction to stay Deft getting coals under the Plt's land, and for Plt and his agents to be at liberty to inspect the workings, see E. Lonsdale v. Curwen, L. C., 7 June, 1799, A. 399; and for further order appointing persons to view, and directing obstructions to be removed and air-courses opened, and inspection to be allowed from time to time so as to enable the viewers to make a complete report of the workings, Ib.

For a similar order, see Lewis v. Marsh, 19 April, 1849, B. 791; 8 Ha. 100.

7. Using Way under Plt's Land for conveying Coals from Deft's Mines restrained.

LET the Deft Earl G., his viewers &c., be perpetually restrained from conveying any coal or ironstone, or other produce of the freehold lands in the (bill) mentioned, and from making or using, or allowing any road or way to remain underneath the copyhold lands in the (bill) also mentioned, for the purpose of conveying such coal &c., or other produce, or for the purpose of working or getting, or assisting the Deft to work or get any coal out of the freehold mines, and from using or continuing to use any part of the surface of Plt's copyholds, for the purpose of a railway for conveying any coal &c., or produce of the said freehold lands, or any coal out of any other estate or property not comprised in and held of the said manor of N.—Eardley v. Earl Granville, M. R., 18 Feb. 1876, A. 629; 3 Ch. D. 826.

For an interlocutory order (upon Plt's personal undertaking) restraining mineral lessees of the lord of the manor from entering upon or taking possession of any part of Plt's copyhold lands in the manor, and from proceeding with the construction of the tramway commenced by Defts upon part of the said copyhold lands, and from proceeding to construct any railway or tramway upon any part of the said copyhold lands, see Holden v. Hargreaves, V.-C. B., 3 Aug. 1876, A. 1584.

For an injunction to restrain Deft from conducting or allowing to pass any water into the Plt's mine by means of the troughs or air-drifts constructed, &c., by the Deft, or by any other new works to be constructed by the Deft, see Westminster Brymbo Co. v. Clayton, V.-C. W., 25 April, 1867, B. 1337; 36 L. J. Ch. 476.

For the like order, and to restrain Defts from getting &c., or carrying away any coals or other minerals belonging to the Plts as owners of the colliery; appointment of a special referee to report what kind of barrier ought to be erected by the Defts between their works and those of the Plts; Defts to erect such works under the superintendence of such referee; referee to ascertain the extent of the coal got by the Defts belonging to the Plts, and the amount the Defts ought to pay for the value of the coal so got; Defts to afford every facility to the referee and his assistants for ascertaining the extent of coal got; referee to ascertain the extent of damage, if any, by the water from the Defts' works flowing into the Plts' works; Defts, within fourteen days from the date of the report, to pay to the Plts such sum as the referee should certify to be fair and reasonable for the trespass and damage committed by the Defts; costs, charges, and expenses already incurred or which should be incurred or sustained, by Plts in consequence of the Defts' trespass, including the surveyor's charges and the charges of the referee and the Plts' costs of the action, to be taxed and paid by Defts, see Craven v. Kaye, Field, J., for V.-C. H., 29 Aug. 1876, A. 1647.

8. Account of Coal obtained by Defts from within Plts' Barrier, inadvertently or under Belief of Title—Damages—Way-leaves.

VARY the decree—And his Lordship being of opinion that as between the parties hereto the indenture dated &c., in the pleadings mentioned, could not in equity be disputed as a valid demise of the mines in the pleadings mentioned for twenty-one years, from the 25th March, 1840, and the Defts by their counsel submitting to account as assignees of the said lease, and as the parties in possession of the mines and premises &c., since the expiration of the said lease, as this Court shall direct, Let the following &c. : 1. An account of rents and royalties payable under the lease of the 2nd May, 1840, (with a direction as to the mode in which the rent was to be calculated) ; 2. An account of all coal and other minerals got from the said mines by the Defts, or either of them, or by the S. Co. (assignors of the lease), since the 25th March, 1861, and of the value of such last-mentioned coal and other minerals ; And declare that in taking such last-mentioned account the Defts are to be charged with the fair value of such coal and other minerals at the same rate as if the said mines had been purchased from the Plts by the Defts at the fair market value of the district ; And Let &c., 3. An inquiry whether any and what damage has been occasioned to the C. estate beyond the removal of the coal and other minerals by the working of the said mines since the said 25th March, 1861, and what if anything is proper to be allowed to the Plts as compensation for such damage ; 4. An inquiry what since the said 25th March, 1861, ought to be paid by the Defts, or either of them, or the said S. Co. to the owner of the C. estate, as or by way of way-leave in respect of the passing of the coal and other minerals not the produce of the said mines, and of materials, through and by means of the mines and workings in and under the said C. estate ; And Let the total amount due on taking the said accounts and making the said inquiries be ascertained ; And Let the same be paid by the Defts &c., to the Plts &c., within one month after the date of the Master's certificate to be made in pursuance hereof.—So much of the Plts' (bill) as prayed damage, save as to damage done since the 25th March, 1861, to the estate and mines by working the mines, and by not leaving barriers, and not sinking proper shafts, dismissed—no costs up to the hearing.—Liberty to apply in Chambers as to the costs of the accounts and inquiries.—Jegon v. Vivian, L. C., 25 Jan. 1871, A. 273 ; 6 Ch. 742 ; and see Livingstone v. The Rawyards Coal Co., 5 App. Ca. 25.

For decree for injunction, as in Form 5, sup. p. 576, “and from using any drifts, roads, or communications, which have been made in such coal and cannel respectively for the purpose of working, ventilating, or draining any other mine, or getting, carrying away, and raising to the surface any coals, cannel, or substance from any such other mine ; but notwithstanding the said injunction, the Deft to be at liberty to continue the drainage and ventilation of the mine belonging to the Plt (sic in Reg. Lib.) until the accounts hereinafter mentioned shall have been taken ; and reasonable time to be given to the Deft to remove any machinery belonging to him from the mines ;”—Plt to be at liberty to go down Deft's mines for the purpose of inspecting the Plt's said mine ;—Accounts of coals &c., gotten, and Deft to be charged with the fair value, as if the coal-field had been purchased by him at the market price of the district ; and inquiry whether Plt is entitled to any and what compensation as way-leave for minerals brought by Deft from other mines belonging to Deft through or into the said mines belonging to the Plt, see Hilton v. Woods, V.-C. M., 6 July, 1867, A. 1769; 4 Eq. 432.

For allowance in the case of an innocent trespasser for severing and bringing the coal to bank, see Ashton v. Stock, V.-C. H., 2 May, 1877, A. 1055; 6 Ch. D. 719; Taylor v. Mostyn, 33 Ch. D. 226, C. A.

9. Declaration as to Measure of Damage for Trespass by tipping Spoil on Land.

Let the report of —, the official referee, dated — be varied by finding that the sum proper to be awarded to be paid by the Defts to the Plts by way of damage for any injury that has been sustained by the Plts since the — day of —, by reason of the Deft's trespass by tipping or depositing spoil or other material upon the pieces or parcels of land mentioned in the order dated —, is £—. And Let the Defts the W. B. C. and C. Co., Ltd., pay to the Plts F. G. W., E. B. B., S. P., and H. E. P., the said sum of £—, and pay to the Plts F. G. W., E. B. B., S. P., H. E. P., and T. C., their costs of the inquiry directed by the said order and of this application, to be taxed.—See Whitwham v. The Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co., Ltd., Chitty, J., 31 March, 1896, B. 1360; affirmed by C. A., 24 June, 1896, (1896) 2 Ch. 538, C. A.

10. Inquiry as to Value of Coals wrongfully got, and Damage by breaking through Plts' Boundary.

1. LET an inquiry be made what was the market value at the pit's mouth of all the coal worked and gotten by the Defts from the Plts' mine at — in the Plts' (bill) mentioned, and the aggregate amount thereof, after making to the Defts all just allowances for the costs and expenses incurred by them in bringing such coal to the pit's mouth, and all other just allowances, but not including the cost of severing such coal; And Let the Defts within (one month) from the date of the Master's certificate of the result of such inquiry pay such aggregate amount as aforesaid to the Plts; 2. And Let an inquiry be made whether the Plts have sustained any, and if any what, damage by reason of the Defts having broken through the boundary between their mine at — in the pleadings mentioned, and the said mine of —; And declare that the Defts are liable to pay to the Plts the amount, if any, that shall be certified to be payable in respect of such damage.—Defts to pay Plts' costs up to and including the hearing.—Adjourn &c. and subsequent costs.—Liberty to apply.—Llynvi Coal Co. v. Brogden, V.-C. B., 15 Nov. 1870, B. 2981; 11 Eq. 188.

For the like inquiry as to value of minerals removed, and damage by such working, see Hunt v. Peake, Joh. 713.

For inquiry as to damage sustained by Plt in respect of his coal which, though not worked by Deft, had been rendered valueless by reason of the Deft's working other coal of the Plt, see Williams v. Raggett, Fry, J., 7 August, 1877, B. 1844; 37 L. T. 96; 46 L. J. Ch. 849; 25 W. R. 874.

NOTES.

SUPPORT.

Right to support generally.—Primâ facie there is a natural right of support for the soil as an incident of property and not in the nature of an easement: Bonomi v. Backhouse, E. B. & E. 655; 9 H. L. C. 503; and see Midland Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 15 App. Ca. 19, 30; and minerals cannot be worked by the owner of the subjacent or adjacent soil (that is, the “owner of that portion of land the existence of which in its natural state is necessary for the support of the land” of his neighbour: Mayor, &c. of Birmingham v. Allen, 6 Ch. D. 284, 289) so as to cause that land to fall in: Humphries v. Brogden, 12 Q. B. 739; Hunt v. Peake, Joh. 705; Dugdale v. Robertson, 3 K. & J. 695; Bell v. Wilson, 1 Ch. 303; Hext v. Gill, 7 Ch. 699; and see Rowbotham v. Wilson, 8 H. L. C. 348; Gale, 7th ed. 328, &c.; Goddard, 57 et seq.

As to how far this right may be modified or lost by the erection of buildings on the land so as to render additional support necessary, see Wyatt v. Harrison, 3 B. & Ad. 871; Hunt v. Peake, sup.

Lateral support for buildings from adjoining land or buildings may be acquired by twenty years’ enjoyment: Dalton v. Angus, 6 App. Ca. 740; 4 Q. B. D. 162; 3 Id. 85; Love v. Bell, 10 Q. B. D. 547, C. A.; 9 App. Ca. 266; Lemaitre v. Davis, 19 Ch. D. 281; Bonomi v. Backhouse, sup.; and see Rogers v. Taylor, 2 H. & N. 828; and this right may also be claimed as an easement under the Prescription Act (2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71), s. 2: see Dalton v. Angus, 6 App. Ca. 798; Lemaitre v. Davis, 19 Ch. D. 281; but the enjoyment of the support must be as of right: Tone v. Preston, 24 Ch. D. 739; and not clam: Gately v. Martin (1900), 2 I. R. 269; Union Lighterage Co. v. London Graving Dock Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 300.

To support an action for infringement of the right of support there must have been appreciable damage: Smith v. Thackerah, L. R. 1 C. P. 564; and see A. G. v. Conduit Colliery Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 301.

A grant of minerals and also the reservation of minerals in the grant of the surface will imply such a working as not to affect the right to support which is incident to the occupation of the surface; Rowbotham v. Wilson, 8 H. L. C. 360; Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Sprot, 2 Macq. 449; N. E. Ry. Co. v. Crosland, 2 J. & H. 565; 4 D. F. & J. 550.

An owner or lessee of underground strata is not liable in damages to the owner of buildings on the surface for injury by subsidence resulting from an excavation by a predecessor in title: Greenwell v. Low Beechburn Coal Co., (1897) 2 Q. B. 165; Hall v. Norfolk (D. of), (1900) 2 Ch. 493.

There is an implied obligation on the vendors not to work minerals in their adjoining land so as to cause a subsidence in the land sold: Siddons v. Short, &c. Co., 2 C. P. D. 572; and that a right of support from adjacent land of a grantor may be implied in a grant for building purposes, see Rigby v. Bennett, 21 Ch. D. 559, C. A.

As to the right to support of the surface of land by subterranean water or an underground stratum of natural pitch, see Jordeson v. Sutton Gas Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 217, C. A.; Trinidad Asphalt Co. v. Ambard, (1899) A. C. 594, P. C.

Right as affected by contract &c.—The primâ facie right to support may be affected by express contract, or by necessary implication, or by statutory enactment.

(a) In a grant of land for building purposes the reservation to the grantor of the right to take and work minerals, making compensation to the grantee for all damage to the buildings thereby occasioned, gives the grantor, subject to his obligation to make compensation, the right of working, even to the injury of the buildings: Aspden v. Seddon, 10 Ch. 394.

And that the terms of the grant of the surface may be such as to contract the grantee out of his right to support, or even to compensation for loss of support, see Buchanan v. Andrew, L. R. 2. H. L. Sc. 286; Williams v. Bagnall, 12 Jur. N. S. 987; Rowbotham v. Wilson, 6 E. & B. 593; 8 E. & B. 123; 8 H. L. C. 348.

But the reservation of minerals in a grant of the surface must be so framed as to show the clear intention to get the minerals without regard to the surface (e.g., by quarrying): Hext v. Gill, 7 Ch. 699.

Coprolites (see A. G. v. Tomline, 5 Ch. D. 750), china-clay (see Hext v. Gill, 7 Ch. 699), and generally anything got from underneath the surface for profit, are "minerals," the property in which is in the lord, though, in the absence of special custom, he cannot dig them without permission of the tenant; and see Johnstone v. Crompton & Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 190, sup. p. 558, Form 7 (where a stratum of red rock and a layer of coal from six to eight inches in thickness, which could not be worked at a profit, were held to fall within a general reservation of mines and minerals contained in a lease).

And clay was held to be a mineral within a reservation of minerals: Earl of Jersey v. Neath Guardians, 22 Q. B. D. 555, C. A.

In a reservation of minerals to the Crown, granite was held to be included, although the words "coal, limestone, and slate," were added: A. G. v. Welsh Granite Co., W. N. (87) 86.

Working by instroke from an adjoining colliery has been held no breach of a covenant to work the coal in a proper and workmanlike manner: Lewis v. Fothergill, 5 Ch. 103; Jegon v. Vivian, 6 Ch. 742.

A lessor who wishes to reserve rights of working in derogation of the lease must do so in plain terms: Mundy v. Duke of Portland, 23 Ch. D. 81, C. A. Ceasing to pump out water from a mine is no derogation from a grant of right of access to lessees: Payne v. Rocher, W. N. (87) 37.

A reservation of full and free liberty to get minerals does not operate as an exception, but only as a grant of the right to work, and primâ facie not to the exclusion of, though without disturbance by, the owner of the land: Duke of Sutherland v. Heathcote, (1892) 1 Ch. 475, C. A. Under a building lease with reservation of minerals, the lessee may dig foundations, and dispose of the material dug out, but not dig in order to improve the surface as a building site: Robinson v. Milne, 53 L. J. Ch. 1070.

(b) The terms of the instrument under which the minerals are worked may be such as to give by manifest intention an unrestricted power of working the mines without regard to the safety of any of the surface not specially protected: see Taylor v. Shafto; Shafto v. Johnson, 8 B. & S. 228, 252, n.; Eadon v. Jeffcock, L. R. 7 Ex. 379; Smith v. Darby, L. R. 7 Q. B. 716.

But inasmuch as the common law right to support exists unless it is taken away, the onus lies on those who assert the right to let down the surface, and no implication will be made in their favour in the absence of clear intention: Love v. Bell, 9 App. Ca. 286; Davis v. Treharne, 6 App. Ca. 460; Dixon v. White, 8 App. Ca. 833; Earl of Westmorland v. New Sharlston Collieries Co., W. N. (99) 2, 88, C. A.; Greenwell v. Low Beechburn Coal Co., (1897) 2 Q. B. 165, where a clause in a deed providing for compensation for damage by working to the surface, or the buildings thereon, was held not to cover damage by subsidence.

(c) A local custom for a tenant (under an agreement for a lease) to remove and sell flints thrown up in the course of husbandry is reasonable and valid: Tucker v. Linger, 8 App. Ca. 508; 21 Ch. D. 18; but in the absence of custom or prescription the lord cannot take minerals from under copyhold lands either by surface or underground workings: see Bourne v. Taylor, 10 East, 201; Mitchell v. Dors, 6 Ves. 147. That a custom to work mines within a manor without making compensation for damage by subsidence is bad, see Hilton v. E. Granville, 5 Q. B. 701; Blackett v. Bradley, 1 B. & S. 940 (but see Gill v. Dickinson, 5 Q. B. D. 159); but not, as above stated, a grant or express contract with such a provision.

(d) The effect of the Railways Clauses Act (8 & 9 V. c. 20), ss. 77—85, is to modify the ordinary purchaser's or grantee's right to lateral and vertical support in the case of a statutory purchase by a co. of the right to make a line or a tunnel through land: see G. W. Ry. Co. v. Bennett, L. R. 2 H. L. 27. As to the distinction between this right, which is negative, and a right to support to buildings which is capable of being created by grant, see G. N. Ry. Co. v. Inland Rev. Commrs, (1901) 1 K. B. 416, C. A.

If the railway co. exercises its option of purchasing the land without the minerals, the owner of them may work in the usual way, without regard to whether such working will let down the surface: Pountney v. Clayton, 11 Q. B. D. 820, C. A.

After notice by the owner, under sect. 78, of his intention to work the minerals within the prescribed limit, the co. cannot restrain such working unless they compensate the owner for the loss of his minerals: L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Ackroyd, 10 W. R. 367; 31 L. J. Ch. 588; 8 Jur. N. S. 911; 6 L. T. 124; and although in the case of apprehended injury workings within or even beyond the prescribed limit may be restrained, the injunction will only be granted upon an undertaking by the co. to pay the amount of compensation when ascertained: Midland Ry. Co. v. Checkley, 4 Eq. 19.

Where a railway co. purchase some of the underlying minerals as well as the surface of land, the mining clauses (ss. 77—85) of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, apply, and if coal is excepted the landowner's right to compensation does not arise until he is desirous of actually working the coal: In re Lord Gerard and London & North Western Ry. Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 459, C. A.

But after compensation has been agreed on, and paid or tendered, a perpetual injunction may be granted against the working of the mines: Smith v. G. W. Ry. Co., 3 App. Ca. 165; and the co. may give the counter-notice of their willingness to compensate at any time when danger to the line is apprehended: Dixon v. Caledonian, &c. Ry. Co., 5 App. Ca. 820.

To the same effect, as establishing the right of the owner either to work the minerals or to be compensated, see Fletcher v. G. W. Ry. Co., 4 H. & N. 242; 5 Ib. 689.

The same principle has been applied to working mines under canals regulated by Acts containing provisions similar to those of the Railways Clauses Act, ss. 77, &c. (e.g., the Waterworks Clauses Act, 10 & 11 V. c. 17, ss. 22—27): Wyrley Canal Co. v. Bradley, 7 East, 368; Dudley Nav. Co. v. Grazebrook, 1 B. & Ad. 59; Stourbridge Canal Co. v. E. Dudley, 3 E. & E. 409; Birm. Canal Co. v. E. Dudley, 7 H. & N. 969; Birm. Canal Co. v. Swindell, Ib. 980, n.; Midland Ry. Co. v. Checkley, sup.; Knowles v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. Co., 14 App. Ca. 248; M. S. & L. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 36 Ch. D. 629, n. Under the usual clauses in the Acts of canal cos., an owner of mines adjacent to, but not under, the canal is under no statutory liability to the canal co. in working his mines, and if the working near the canal will not endanger further working, though it may damage the canal, the owner cannot insist upon the minerals being left, if the co. are willing that the owner should work as he pleases and prefer to bear the expense of repairs from time to time: Chamber Colliery Co. v. Rochdale Canal Co., (1895) A. C. 564, H. L., affirming, (1894) 2 Q. B. 632, C. A., and distinguishing Knowles v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. Co., 14 App. Ca. 248, and Cromford Canal Co. v. Cutts, 5 Rail. Ca. 442, and as to form of judgment and working out rights in such a case, see New Moss Colliery Co. v. M. S. & L. Ry. Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 725 (where declarations were made as to Plt's right to work their adjacent coal, but on the co. undertaking not to claim damages in respect of the working of the subjacent coal, the Plts were held not to be entitled to any declaration as to it).

For cases in which it has been held that the general right to support was not qualified by the particular Act under which the land was compulsorily acquired, see Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Sprot, sup.; Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Belhaven, 3 Macq. 56; N. E. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 1 J. & H. 145; 2 D. F. & J. 423; 10 H. L. C. 333; N. E. Ry. Co. v. Crosland, 2 J. & H. 565; 4 D. F. & J. 550; Gale, 332 et seq.; Goddard, 60, 300.

A railway co. by paying compensation, under sect. 78, to a mineral lessee for leaving the minerals under the line, acquires the right to support, and to restrain the reversioner, on the surrender or determination of the lease, from working the minerals, without prejudice to any question as to compensation, having regard to the payment already made: G. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 235: affirmed, 3 App. Ca. 165.

A notice by a mine owner, under sect. 78, of his intention to work the mines may be validly given, although he intends to let them, provided he has a bonâ fide intention of working either by himself or his lessees, and although the notice includes minerals under a long extent of railway: Midland Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 37 Ch. D. 386, C. A.; S. C., 15 App. Ca. 19.

The "mines" and "minerals," specified in sects. 77 and 78, include such as can only be gotten by open working, e.g., ironstone, limestone, clay: Midland Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 15 App. Ca. 19; 37 Ch. D. 386, C. A.; Midland Ry. Co. v. Haunchwood Brick Co., 20 Ch. D. 552; but see contra (as to Scotland), Provost of Glasgow v. Farie, 13 App. Ca. 657.

Sect. 78 extends to the working of clay from the surface, and when the manner of working such clay in the district is by open working, the owner can enter on the land and remove ballast and surface soil: Ruabon Brick Co. v. G. W. Ry. Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 427, C. A.

The owner of a mineral estate intersected by lines of railway is not entitled to trespass upon the railway in order to work his mines: Midland Ry. Co. v. Miles, 30 Ch. D. 634.

A right of support to a tramway acquired under a deed of grant was held not to be lost by the conversion of the tramway under a special Act into a railway: G. W. Ry. Co. v. Cefn Cribbwr Brick Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 157.

As to the power of a railway co. to purchase mines compulsorily, see Smith v. G. W. Ry. Co., 3 App. Ca. 165; Errington v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., 19 Ch. D. 559, C. A.

As to the rights of a mineral owner through whose land a sewer is constructed under the Public Health Act, 1875, and his duty to preserve subjacent support, see Re Corporation of Dudley, 8 Q. B. D. 86, C. A.

Where a special Act operated as a grant of a mere right to make and maintain a canal as a waterway, and not of the surface land, no right of support passed so as to prevent landowners from working their subjacent mines: L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Evans, (1892) 2 Ch. 432; and as to the materiality of a compensation clause, see S. C. at p. 448.

In an action by a copyholder to restrain lessees of the lords from working coal, the lords may be joined as Defts authorizing and justifying the wrongful working: Shafto v. Bolckow, 34 Ch. D. 725.

As to the right of the lord of the manor, under the reservation to him by an Inclosure Act, to work minerals, even to the utter destruction of the surface, subject to the liability of making reasonable compensation, see D. Buccleuch v. Wakefield, L. R. 4 H. L. 377, varying 4 Eq. 613; Gill v. Dickinson, 5 Q. B. D. 159; Hext v. Gill, 7 Ch. 699; but such a right cannot be established by the lord unless the language of the Act is explicit to that effect: Love v. Bell, 9 App. Ca. 286, 293; 10 Q. B. D. 547, where a compensation clause was held to be limited to surface workings, and therefore not to confer any right to let the surface down; and see Dixon v. White, 8 App. Ca. 833; the prima facie inference being that the owner of the surface allotted shall enjoy it, and have the common right of support for his tenement: Bell v. Earl of Dudley, (1895) 1 Ch. 182. In order to rebut this inference the burden lies on the owner of the minerals to show affirmatively and by clear words that he has the right of letting down the surface; but express words are not required, and the presence or absence of a compensation clause is an important element: S. C. The prima facie inference in favour of the surface owner is strengthened by the absence of any provision for compensation, though the presence of a limited compensation clause is not of itself sufficient to rebut the inference: S. C. The onus of proving that the lord is unduly availing himself of his right lies on the tenants: Hall v. Byron, 4 Ch. D. 667. The reservation of minerals in such an Act includes, as incident to the enjoyment of the mines, all usual working powers, e.g. the right of sinking shafts on the common land for the purpose of winning and carrying away minerals under any part of the common: Hayles v. Pease, (1899) 1 Ch. 567.

That the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona applies to an action for an account in respect of mines wrongfully worked by A. under the Plt's land, see Phillips v. Homfray, 24 Ch. D. 439, C. A.

INSPECTION.

Upon a prima facie case of mineral trespass or encroachment by the Deft, and where the fact of trespass (which is denied) can only be ascertained by inspection, and no injury will result to the Deft therefrom, an interlocutory order will be made for inspection of his mine: Bennitt v. Whitehouse, 28 Beav. 119; and see Whaley v. Brancker, 12 W. R. 570, 595; 10 Jur. (N. S.) 535; 10 L. T. 155.

The order will, when necessary, extend to the removal of obstructions to the inspection: E. Lonsdale v. Curwen; Walker v. Fletcher, 3 Bli. O.S. 168, n., 172, n.; A. G. v. Chambers, 12 Beav. 159; and see Ennor v. Barwell, 1 D. F. & J. 529; where, in a suit to restrain the diversion of water, so much of an order for inspection on motion before the hearing as gave Plt leave to break up soil by making trenches, remove earth and obstructions, and cut down an embankment, was struck out on appeal.

And by O. L, 3, power is given to the Court or a Judge, upon the application of any party to a cause or matter, and upon such terms as may be just, to make any order for the detention, preservation, or inspection of any property, being the subject of such cause or matter; and to authorize any person, &c., to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any party to such cause or matter, and to authorize samples to be taken, observations made, or experiments to be tried, which may be necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence.

By r. 4 power is given to the Judge, by whom any cause or matter may be heard with or without a jury, or on appeal, to inspect any property or thing concerning which any question may arise therein; and by r. 5 the provisions of r. 3 are made applicable to inspection by a jury; an order for which may, where the other side consents, be obtained ex parte: see Pickard v. G. N. Ry. Co., W. N. (83) 194; similar provisions were contained in C. L. P. Act, 1852, s. 114, C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 58; and v. inf. p. 636.

Digging up a street to ascertain the course of drains said to come from Deft's premises was treated as coming within "experiments" under this rule: Lumb v. Beaumont, 27 Ch. D. 356, Form 12, inf. p. 609.

ACCOUNT AND COMPENSATION.

In assessing compensation for mineral trespass or wrongful working, a different principle is applied when the minerals have been taken inadvertently, and when taken fraudulently, or in wilful wrong—

(a) If taken by Deft inadvertently or under a bonâ fide belief of title, the Plt is entitled to be paid the value of the coal or minerals, as if the field had been purchased by Deft at the fair market value of the district; the expenses of winning and getting being allowed to Deft: Jegon v. Vivian, 6 Ch. 742, sup., Form 8; Hilton v. Woods, 4 Eq. 432; and see West v. Morewood 3 Q. B. 440, n.; Morgan v. Powell, 3 Q. B. 278; Joicey v. Dickenson, 45 L. T. 643; Ashton v. Stock, 6 Ch. D. 719; Livingstone v. Rawyards, &c. Co., 5 App. Ca., 25. So long as the wrongful working can be treated as inadvertent, the Statute of Limitations applies, and the account will be limited to six years from issue of writ: Trotter v. Maclean, 13 Ch. D. 574; Dean v. Thwaite, 21 Beav. 621; and see Hood v. Easton, 2 Jur. N. S. 917; 2 Giff. 692.

So also in Powell v. Aiken, 4 K. & J. 343, an inquiry was directed to ascertain "the market price or value, or as near thereto as might be, of all coal, &c. (improperly taken) at the pit's mouth, all just allowances being made to the parties chargeable in respect of their charges and expenses on account of such coal." And for the mode of calculating the profits and expenses, with interest on expenses (at the rate of 5 p. c.), see L. Rokeby v. Elliot, 13 Ch. D. 277, C. A.; 9 Ch. D. 685; and for a case in which under peculiar circumstances the best evidence of value was considered to be the royalty paid in surrounding coal-fields, see Livingstone v. Rawyards, sup.

(b) If taken fraudulently or wilfully, after full notice of Plt's title, damages will be assessed against the Deft on a stricter principle; and he will be allowed the costs of bringing the coal to the pit's mouth only, not of severing or getting: Phillips v. Homfray, 6 Ch. 770; Llynvi Co. v. Brogden, 11 Eq. 188, sup., Form 10; Morgan v. Powell, 3 Q. B. 278; and see Trotter v. Maclean, 13 Ch. D. 574; Martin v. Porter, 5 M. & W. 351; Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 42 Ch. D. 166; Bulli Coal Mining Co. v. Osborne, (1899) A. C. 351, P. C.

And the further inquiries—what is fit and proper to be paid by Deft for way-leave for minerals carried through Plt's property (Phillips v. Homfray, 6 Ch. 770; Jegon v. Vivian, sup.; Martin v. Porter, sup.), and as to damages by reason of Deft having broken through Plt's boundary (Llynvi Co. v. Brogden, sup.),—will be directed.

For case in which compensation was awarded once for all, where persons were exercising right of mining under Plt's land, subject to payment of compensation for permanent injury, see Great Laxey Mining Co. v. Clague, 4 App. Ca. 115.

As to the right to compensation money for coals wrongfully worked under a settled estate, see Re Barrington, Gamlen v. Lyon, 33 Ch. D. 523.

As to the right to have compensation assessed by the Court where the statutory tribunal provided for assessing such compensation has become non-existent, see Bentley v. M. S. & L. Ry. Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 222.

The inquiry may be extended to damage sustained by Plt in respect of coal which, though not worked, has been injured by the Deft's working of Plt's coal: Williams v. Raggett, 37 L. T. 96; 46 L. J. Ch. 849; 25 W. R. 874.

In cases of subsidence, the cause of action arises when and as the subsidence, or each successive subsidence, occurs, and the action may therefore be maintained though more than six years have elapsed since the last working of the mines: Darley Main Colliery v. Mitchell, 11 App. Ca. 127; S. C., 14 Q. B. D. 125, C. A.: Crumbie v. Wallsend Local Board, (1891) 1 Q. B. 503, C. A.

The Statute of Limitations has no application to a claim for damages in respect of coal furtively taken by wilful trespass where there has been no laches by the party defrauded, and it is immaterial whether or not the wrongdoer has taken active measures to prevent detection: Bulli Coal Mining Co. v. Osborne, (1899) A. C. 351, P. C. (disapproving Eccl. Commrs. v. N. E. Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 845), but see In re Astley and Tildesley Coal Co., 80 L. T. 116; and that a submission to arbitration as to what encroachment, if any, has been made does not preclude the raising of the defence of the statute, see Re Astley and Tildesley Coal Co., sup.

WAY-LEAVES.

A right of way over or under copyhold tenements of the manor, for the conveyance of minerals worked within the manor, may be asserted by the lord, but not for the conveyance of minerals dug beyond the limits of the manor: Bowser v. Maclean, 2 D. F. & J. 415; and see Eardley v. Granville, sup., Form 7; S. C., 3 Ch. D. 826.

But the owner of minerals by grant, or under a general reservation in a grant of the surface, is entitled to use them for any purpose, and to drive way-leaves through them for conveyance of minerals gotten from adjacent lands: Proud v. Bates, 34 L. J. Ch. 406; 6 N. R. 98; 11 Jur. N. S. 441; 13 L. T. 61; D. Hamilton v. Graham, L. R. 2 H. L. Sc. 166.

Where a grantor of land reserved the mines and also a specified right of way "for a waggon or cart road," he was not entitled to lay down a railroad or tramway: Bidder v. N. Staffordshire Ry. Co., 4 Q. B. D. 412, C. A.

And as to the right, under a Canal Act, of a mineral owner to make roads and railways over the lands of other persons from his mines to the canal, and that he is not of necessity restricted to the shortest line, see Richards v. R., Joh. 255.

A landowner, entitled under a special Act, and s. 80 of the Railways Clauses Act, to make passages under a railway from his land, has no implied right of way over the railway for the purpose of working minerals: Midland Ry. Co. v. Miles, 33 Ch. D. 632.

(IV.)—RIGHT OF WAY.

1. Interim Order—Restraining Use of Private Road.

LET the Defts — &c., their agents &c., be restrained until after — the — day of —, —, or until further order, from using or permitting to be used any part of the lane at &c., the soil of which, it is alleged, belongs to the Plts as a carriage-way for the passage of carts, carriages, or other vehicles, either going to or from the land marked B. in the plan annexed to the said (bill) or for any purpose whatsoever.—
Foster v. Lumb, V.-C. H., 1 June, 1876, A. 1100.

2. Perpetual Injunction against obstructing Road—Mandatory Injunction to remove Obstructions—Damages.

“LET the Defts, their servants &c., be perpetually restrained from doing any act whereby the Plt may be hindered or obstructed in the free use of the Rock Road in the (bill) mentioned, from Rock House therein mentioned to the other terminus thereof, on foot or by horses or carriages; And Let the Defts forthwith remove the obstructions to the said road which have been placed there by the Defts, their servants &c., and whereby the Plt and other persons going to or from the said Rock House and premises, on foot or by horses or carriages, are prevented or hindered from using the said road; And Let the Defts be restrained from interfering with the Plt, his servants &c., in the removal of any of the obstructions which have been placed on the said road preventing the user thereof by the Plt as aforesaid;”—Defts to pay to the Plt costs up to this time, to be taxed.—“And Let an inquiry be made what damages, if any, the Plt has sustained in consequence of the obstruction of the said Rock Road by the Defts as in the (bill) mentioned; And Let what, if anything, shall be ascertained to be due to the Plt in respect of such damage be within (one) month after the date of the Master’s certificate paid by the Defts &c. to the Plt D.”—Liberty to apply in Chambers respecting the subsequent costs and otherwise.—Dendy v. Cary, V.-C. W., 26 June, 1863, A. 1418; altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

For an injunction against blocking up the access by a footpath to a station of the Plt co., see L. & N. W. Ry. v. Lanc. and Yorks. Ry., 4 Eq. 174.

Against obstructing the free use of roads and ways through Deft’s estate by a fence erected by him at the extremity of his land, Phillips v. Treeby, 8 Jur. N. S. 711; 3 Giff. 632.

3. Establishing Right of Way, and for removal of Obstructions.

“DECLARE that there is a public right of way through and over the whole of St. M. Alley in the statement of claim mentioned up to the eastern end thereof; And Let the Defts, their surveyors &c., be restrained from erecting or proceeding with the fence or barricade in the information mentioned, and otherwise obstructing the free passage of persons passing over and along St. M. Alley aforesaid or any part thereof; And Let the Defts remove all such girders, fences, and other obstructions as they shall have already erected or made in the said alley.”—Defts to pay the Plt’s costs of suit, to be taxed.—See A. G. v. Wrench, V.-C. H., 22 July, 1874, A. 2359.

For declaration that Plt and Defts have an equal and reciprocal right to the use of the roadway, and that the persons interested therein have not, nor have any of them, any preferential right of way, and that the necessity or urgency of their particular trade or business does not give them any right to occupy such roadway by any stationary obstruction when the passage is required by any other person having the right of any such roadway, with consequent directions; and an injunction to restrain the Defts and any persons interested in the said roadway, their respective servants, &c., from placing or leaving any stationary obstruction in the said roadway, except at such time as the use thereof is not required for any other of the persons interested therein, and from making use of the said roadway in any manner inconsistent with the meaning of the said declarations, see Thorpe v. Brumfitt, 8 Ch. 650, 654.

For the like declaration of the concurrent right of Plt and other owners (of whom Deft was one) of adjoining houses to use a private road (forming a cul-de-sac) for the purposes of access to their property, and that Deft was not entitled to place any stationary obstruction when the road was required by the other persons so entitled, and was bound, when required, to remove such obstruction, see Shoemith v. Byerley, V.-C. W., 9 May, 1873, 21 W. R. 669; Cannon v. Villars, M. R., 7 March, 1878, A. 454, 8 Ch. D. 415.

For perpetual injunction to restrain stopping up an implied way of necessity, see Davies v. Sear, 7 Eq. 427.

4. Railway Company restrained from obstructing a Right of Way over a Level Crossing.

DECLARE that the Plts are entitled for themselves and their tenants and the under-lessees and occupiers of the messuages, lands, and hereditaments so purchased by them as in the (bill) mentioned, and their officers and servants &c., to the free and uninterrupted use and enjoyment of the level crossings in the (bill) mentioned, and each of them, but so as not to interfere with the traffic on the railway; And Let the Defts, the co., their officers, servants &c., be perpetually restrained from permitting any train, engine, carriage, or truck to stand across the level crossings or either of them, and from doing or permitting any other act so as to obstruct or impede the Plts, or their tenants or lessees, or the occupiers of the lands purchased by the Plts, or any of them, from or in the free and uninterrupted use and enjoyment of the said level crossings or either of them. But this injunction is not to restrain the co. from the use of the railway for the reasonable and proper working of their traffic.—See United Land Co. v. G. E. Ry. Co., as varied on appeal, L. JJ., 13 July, 1875, B. 1951; 10 Ch. 586; S. C., V.-C. M., 5 Nov. 1873, B. 2912.

For injunction to restrain conservancy board from using a towing-path so as to interfere with the use of it by the public for purposes of navigation, see Lee Conservancy Board v. Button, 12 Ch. D. 383, C. A., at p. 410; S. C., 6 App. Ca. 685.

For injunction to restrain railway co. from using part of their railway on the site of a diverted road until they had made a sufficient road for the use of the public, see A. G. v. Barry Docks and Ry. Co., 35 Ch. D. 573.

For injunction to restrain railway co. from making or maintaining a bridge over public land with less headway than fifteen feet, or any bridge which, by reason of the road thereunder being of too low a level, might cause the road to be flooded, see A. G. v. Furness Ry. Co., 47 L. J. Ch. 776; 38 L. T. 555; 26 W. R. 650.

5. Railway Company restrained from using Works until Public Highway restored.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, Let the Defts, their servants, agents, and workmen, be restrained until judgment &c. from using the railway and works made by the Defts upon the site of the part of a parish road or public highway, called &c., until the Defts shall have caused to be made and appropriated for the use of the public a sufficient road as convenient for passengers and carriages as the said part of the said road was before the Defts used or interfered with the same, or as near thereto as may be, and from encroaching upon other parts of the said road which lie on the west side or road side of a wooden fence erected by the Defts at the side of the said road, and which commences at or near &c., and from interfering with such last-mentioned parts of the said road in such a way as to render them dangerous to passengers and carriages passing along the same.—A. G. v. The Barry Docks and Rys. Co., North, J., 15 Jan. 1887, A. 78.

6. Injunction against Local Board, restraining Obstruction of Footway.

THIS action coming on &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plt and Defts, Declare Defts not entitled to enclose, occupy, or use the highway lying between the Plt's house and grounds, in the pleadings mentioned, and the curbed footway coloured &c. as or for a stoneyard, or as or for a place for the permanent or general deposit of stones and other materials for road-making or mending (injunction in terms of declaration), and from otherwise obstructing the Plt, her servants or agents, in the enjoyment of a convenient access to or from the said house and grounds, or any part thereof over the said highway, but this injunction is not to preclude the Defts from lawfully exercising over or in relation to the said highway any power or authority which is or may be vested in them by statute or otherwise.—Grosvenor v. The Sutton (Surrey) Local Board, Chitty, J., 22 Nov. 1888, A. 1680, W. N. (88) 223.

NOTES.

RIGHT OF WAY.

In claiming a right of way by user, the purposes for which the way may be used are limited by the previous state of user.

Thus a right of way for farming purposes across a common cannot be enlarged into a right of way for carting building materials when the condition of the dominant tenement has been altered by laying out as building land that which was a farm: Wimbledon Conservators v. Dixon, 1 Ch. D. 362; and see Allan v. Gomme, 11 A. & E. 759; Ackroyd v. Smith, 10 C. B. 164; Cowling v. Higginson, 4 M. & W. 245; Williams v. James, L. R. 2 C. P. 577; Bradburn v. Morris, 3 Ch. D. 812; Finch v. G. W. Ry. Co., 5 Ex. D. 254.

For the general principle that the owner of the dominant tenement cannot extend his enjoyment of the easement so as to impose an additional servitude, see Gale, 407 et seq.; Goddard 356.

And that the use of a particular easement will in general be restricted to a reasonable use for the purpose of the land as it was when the grant was made, see Wood v. Saunders, 10 Ch. 582; Corporation of London v. Riggs, 13 Ch. D. 798; but see Finch v. G. W. Ry. Co., 5 Ex. D. 254; and that a local board taking land compulsorily for sewage works may acquire a right of way for all purposes connected with such works, see Serff v. Acton Local Board, 31 Ch. D. 679. Where the right of way or easement is vested by grant, the question whether the grant is for all purposes, or limited to certain purposes only, is one of construction: United Land Co. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 10 Ch. 586; Ardley v. St. Pancras Guardians, 39 L. J. Ch. 871; Mayor of New Windsor v. Stovell, 27 Ch. D. 665; Gale, 324; Goddard, 349.

Under the Prescription Act, 1832 (2 & 3 W. IV. c. 71), s. 2, where the way has been enjoyed for forty years, the right is absolute, in the absence of proof of enjoyment by consent or agreement in writing, but the existence of a parol license in consideration of an annual payment may negative enjoyment "as of right": Gardner v. Hodgson's Kingston Breweries Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 198, C. A.; (1900) 1 Ch. 592.

As to the effect of unity of possession by a tenant in negating a claim under the Act, see Damper v. Bassett, (1901) 2 Ch. 550.

In the case of a right of way an enlarged construction will be given to the grant: Selby v. C. P. Gas Co., 30 Beav. 606; Henning v. Burnet, 8 Ex. 194; and see Watts v. Kelson, 6 Ch. 166; Cousens v. Rose, 12 Eq. 366; Kay v. Oxley, L. R. 10 Q. B. 360; Brett v. Clowser, 5 C. P. D. 376; Barkshire v. Grubb, 18 Ch. D. 616; Thomas v. Owen, 20 Q. B. D. 225, 231, C. A.; Baring v. Abingdon, (1892) 2 Q. B. 374, 390; Bayley v. G. W. Ry. Co., 26 Ch. D. 434, 457, C. A., showing that under general words in a conveyance a right of way may pass where such right has been specifically enjoyed, although, by reason of unity of possession, it could not be actually acquired: Gale, 110; Shelford, R. P. S. 58 et seq.; Goddard, 133 et seq. And accordingly the use of level crossings constructed by a railway co., under the obligation imposed by their Act of making communications between severed portions of the land, will not be restricted to the purposes for which the land was used when the railway was made: United Land Co. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 10 Ch. 586.

Where one of two pieces of land connected by a level crossing provided under the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, was conveyed away without any reservation of a right of way over the land retained, the right to the level crossing was held to be altogether abandoned: Midland Ry. Co. v. Gribble, (1895) 2 Ch. 827, C. A.; (1895) 2 Ch. 129. But a right of way over a passage granted by a lease (containing a covenant by lessee to do nothing to the annoyance, &c., of lessor or his adjoining tenants or occupiers) will not be allowed to be used so as to cause a nuisance, e.g., by making it a noisy access to a noisy entertainment: Collins v. Slade, 23 W. R. 199.

A conveyance of premises, together with the exclusive use of a gateway under part of a house, described by its dimensions, was held to pass not a mere right of way, but the right to use the gateway for all lawful purposes: Reilly v. Booth, 44 Ch. D. 12, C. A. For case in which a railway co. having defined their lessee's right of way could not afterwards alter it, see Deacon v. S. E. Ry. Co., 61 L. T. 377.

That a grant of land together with all ways appertaining will not bind the grantor to grant new easements over land acquired by him under an inclosure award, in lieu of old easements extinguished by the inclosure, see Turner v. Crush, 4 App. Ca. 221.

The devisee of a servient tenement under a will who by paying off a mortgage acquires from the mortgagee the property free from any easement, has a right so to hold it as against the devisee of the dominant tenement, who is equally a volunteer with himself: Taws v. Knowles, (1891) 2 Q. B. 564, C. A.

The grantee of a right of way which has been obstructed by the grantor is entitled to deviate over the grantor's land, without enforcing the removal of the obstruction, and to protection by injunction: Selby v. Nettlefold, 9 Ch. 111, 115.

As to the nature of the private right of access from a house to the adjoining highway and the right to sue in respect of interference by an unreasonable use of the highway, see Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; Chaplin v. Westminster Corp., (1901) 2 Ch. 329; and as to injunction against unreasonable use of a street by traders resident therein, see A. G. v. Brighton, &c. Supply Assoc., (1900) 1 Ch. 276, C. A.

As to the presumption, in the case of a towing-path, that river commrs have acquired an easement merely, and not the soil, see Lee Conservancy Board v. Button, 6 App. Ca. 685.

The refusal of a mandatory injunction does not take away the right of the Plt as owner of a right of way to remove on notice an obstructing house: Lane v. Capsey, (1891) 3 Ch. 411.

Although a tenant cannot, as against his landlord, acquire an easement (Russell v. Harford, 2 Eq. 507; Gayford v. Moffatt, 4 Ch. 133, 135), the tenant of "land-locked" land will be entitled to a way of necessity for the purposes of his tenancy over an outer close belonging to his landlord: Gayford v. Moffatt, sup. The implied right of way of necessity passes by way of re-grant, and is limited by the necessity which created it: Corporation of London v. Riggs, 13 Ch. D. 798; Midland Ry. Co. v. Miles, 33 Ch. D. 632. And see Daniel v. Anderson, 8 Jur. (N. S.) 328; Gale, 155 et seq.; Goddard, 345 et seq.

That such a way of necessity will pass where the owner of two closes, one of which can only be reached by the other, devises them to two different persons, see Pearson v. Spencer, 3 B. & S. 761; and as to the right of grantor to select one of several ways, see Bolton v. B., 11 Ch. D. 968.

As to an implied grant of a right of way, see Espley v. Wilkes, L. R. 7 Ex. 298; and see Brown v. Alabaster, 37 Ch. D. 490, where a right of way over a formed road leading to a gate, useless without the way, was held to pass; and see Nicholls v. N., W. N. (00) 4; 81 L. T. 811; and that there cannot be a way of necessity where the land is at a higher level than an adjoining highway to which access is possible, see Titchmarsh v. Royston Water Co., W. N. (99) 256; 81 L. T. 673; and as to the application of the doctrine of implied grant to a right of way, see Tawes v. Knowles, 39 W. R. 512.

In order to support a right of way by prescription there must have been a user raising a reasonable inference of continuous enjoyment: Hollins v. Verney, 13 Q. B. D. 304, C. A.; where the right is claimed by virtue of forty years' enjoyment under the Prescription Act, the time during which the servient tenement has been vested in a tenant for life cannot be deducted: Symons v. Leaker, 15 Q. B. D. 629; and see Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22, C. A.

A right of way may be appendant or appurtenant to a fishery: Hanbury v. Jenkins, 70 L. J. Ch. 730.

PUBLIC WAY.

The dedication to the public of a right of way across a field may be limited by the right of the owner of the soil to plough it up periodically in due course of farming; and any interference on behalf of the public with this right in the owner constitutes a trespass: Arnold v. Blaker, L. R. 6 Q. B. 433; Mercer v. Woodgate, L. R. 5 Q. B. 26.

Dedication of a right of way from continuous user can only be presumed in favour of the public generally, not of the inhabitants of a particular parish: Bermondsey Vestry v. Brown, 1 Eq. 204.

As to sufficiency of evidence of public user in the case of a mountain path in a thinly-populated district, see Macpherson v. Scottish Rights of Way Soc., 13 App. Ca. 744; and see Mann v. Brodie, 10 App. Ca. 978.

As to evidence of user in support of presumed dedication of a way over copyholds, see Powers v. Bathurst, 49 L. J. Ch. 294; 42 L. T. 123; 28 W. R. 390.

As to the circumstances under which a cul-de-sac may be a highway, see Bourke v. Davis, 44 Ch. D. 110.

As to the right of the public in respect of strips by the side of the highway, see Nicol v. Beaumont, 53 L. J. Ch. 853; 50 L. T. 112; Curtis v. Westeven County Council, 45 Ch. D. 504; Belmore (Ctess.) v. Kent County Council, (1901) 1 Ch. 873.

User of a highway for a purpose other than that of a highway may constitute a trespass as against the owner of the soil: Harrison v. Duke of Rutland, (1893) 1 Q. B. 142, C. A.; Reg. v. Pratt, 4 E. & B. 860; Hickman v. Maiscy, (1900) 1 Q. B. 142, C. A.

As to the presumption that the soil of a highway passes to the grantee of adjoining land ad medium filum viæ, and that such presumption does not apply to land intended to be used as a highway, but never dedicated to the public, see Leigh v. Jack, 5 Ex. D. 264, C. A.; and that the presumption applies to streets in a town as well as to highways in the country, and is not rebutted by the fact that the vendor is the owner of the soil beyond the medium filum viæ, see In re White's Charities, Charity Commrs v. London Corp., (1898) 1 Ch. 659; whether it applies to a lease, qu.: Landrock v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., W. N. (86) 195.

Where documents of title are respectively sufficient to pass the soil ad medium filum viæ, houses on opposite sides of a street are adjacent or contiguous to each other: Haynes v. King, (1893) 3 Ch. 439.

An injunction to restrain the obstruction of a public way may be obtained in respect of the particular private injury to the Plt without making the A. G. a party: Cook v. Mayor of Bath, 6 Eq. 177; Spencer v. L. & B. Ry. Co., 8 Sim. 193.

The vestry of a parish could not maintain a suit to restrain the infringement of a public right of way, except as relators on information by the A. G.: Bermondsey Vestry v. Brown, 1 Eq. 204. The A. G. may sue to restrain such interference without proof of public injury: A. G. v. Shrewsbury Bridge Co., 21 Ch. D. 752.

Surveyors of highways will not be restrained by injunction from removing that which has been decided to be an obstruction to a public highway: Bagshaw v. Buxton Board, 1 Ch. D. 220; and see Turner v. Ringwood Board, 9 Eq. 418.

A local authority having only a limited statutory property in a street, so far as necessary for their control of it and its safe and convenient user (see Coverdale v. Charlton, 4 Q. B. D. 104, C. A.), could not maintain an action for an injunction to restrain the carrying of telephone wires across the street: Wandsworth Board of Works v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 904, C. A.

Under 18 & 19 V. c. 120, s. 96, streets in the metropolis are vested in the vestry only so long as they are highways, and if they are legally stopped up or diverted, the interest of the vestry determines: Rolls v. Vestry of St. George's, 14 Ch. D. 785, C. A.

As to the power of a lighting company, under an Act empowering them to lay underground wires, to break up the surface of streets and make excavations, see City of Montreal v. Standard Light and Power Co., (1897) A. C. 527.

And as to the power of a telephone company, acting under a licence from the Postmaster-General pursuant to the Telegraph Acts, 1863, 1878, and 1892, to break open a street without obtaining the previous consent of the local tramway company who is liable to repair the street or public road: Bristol Tramways and Carriage Co. v. National Telephone Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 282.

The power of a railway co. to divert a road, under sect. 16 of the Railways Clauses Act, 1845, is exerciseable only when the road presents an actual obstacle to the line, and not merely for the purpose of saving the co. expense: Pugh v. Golden Valley Ry. Co., 15 Ch. D. 330, C. A.; Morris v. Tottenham and Forest Gate Ry., (1892) 2 Ch. 47; and that sect. 53 (providing for substitution of roads previous to interference with existing roads) applies to a permanent as well as a temporary diversion, see A. G. v. Barry Docks and Rail. Co., 35 Ch. D. 573.

That the seashore is not a public highway, see Llandudno Urban Council v. Woods, (1899) 2 Ch. 705 (following Blundell v. Catterall, 5 B. & Ald. 268), where the Court made a declaration that the Deft was not entitled to deliver addresses on the seashore without the consent of the Plts, but held that the matter was too trivial to justify the granting of an injunction.

A pipe which merely discharges water from a highway on to land is not a drain within sect. 67 of the Highway Act, 1835 (5 & 6 W. IV. c. 50), nor can the right to use it be acquired as an easement to the public right of passage: A. G. v. Copeland, (1901) 2 K. B. 101.

(V.)—WATER RIGHTS.

1. Injunction against diverting or diminishing Flow of Water.

LET the Deft &c., be restrained from diverting the water in the ponds or springs situated &c., so as to prevent the same from flowing into the river P.; and from employing any steam engines, pumps, or any other means of using the water in the said ponds or springs so as to diminish the quantity of the said water which flows into the said river; And also from diverting the course of the water which flows from surface springs on the south side &c., so as to prevent the same from flowing in its natural course towards and into the said river. (Parties agreeing that the legal right should be decided by the Court), Declare that the Plt is not entitled to the use of the water in the reservoir, nor to the use of the water in the pond called P. pond.—Ennor v. Barwell, V.-C. S., 12 July, 1860, A. 2331.—Leave was afterwards given to bring an action: S. C., 1 D. F. & J. 530.

2. Plaintiff's Claim to Dam disallowed—Injunction against diverting—Operation of Injunction suspended.

DISALLOW the claim of the Plt that he is entitled by prescription to dam up the water of the lake called Ll—Cw—in the pleadings mentioned. And Let the Defts, their servants, agents and workmen be perpetually restrained from taking any water from the aforesaid lake for the purpose of supplying their district with water, and from doing any other act for that purpose whereby the flow of water in the stream and through and by the Plt's mill and lands in the pleadings mentioned shall be diminished. But the operation of the said injunction is hereby suspended until after the — day of —, and in case notice of appeal from this judgment shall be given until after such appeal shall have been disposed of. Tax as between solr and client the Deft's costs of this action so far as the same have been increased by the Plt's aforesaid claim of prescription, and also tax as between party and party the Plt's costs of this action, except so far as the same have been increased by the aforesaid claim.—Usual set-off and direction for payment of balance.—See Roberts v. The Gwyrfaï District Council, Kekewich, J., 26 Jan. 1899, B. 325; (1899) 1 Ch. 583; S. C., (1899) 2 Ch. 608, C. A.

3. Injunction to restrain interruption of Water Supply—Mandatory Injunction to restore Same—Inquiry as to Damages—Operation of Injunction suspended.

DECLARE that the Plts and the Defts B. &c., are entitled, according to their respective interests in the messuage called &c., now in the Plts' occupation, and situate &c., to the free and uninterrupted enjoyment of the supply of water to the said messuage for the use of the occupiers thereof, from the Deft H.'s land, called &c., and all ancient wells, springs, troughs, and drains therein as such supply of water has heretofore, and up to the interruption thereof by the Deft H., been enjoyed as in the (bill) mentioned; And Let the said Deft H., his servants &c., be perpetually restrained from interrupting or interfering with the said supply of water as so heretofore enjoyed, and from in anywise infringing the Plt's right to the said supply; And Let the Deft H. restore the said supply, and remove from his said land all drains and works whereby the said supply is or may be, wholly or partially, diverted or interfered with. But the operation of the said injunction is hereby suspended for the period of three months from this date;—And Let an inquiry be made what sum or sums the said Deft H. ought to pay, and to whom, by way of compensation in damages for any temporary or permanent injury occasioned, or to be occasioned, to the Plts and the other persons interested in the said message, according to their respective interests therein by his interruption of, or interference with, the said supply of water thereto;—And Let the said Deft H. pay any sum or sums so certified to the Plts (names) and such other persons (if any) as may be named in the Master's certificate as entitled to the same.—Deft H. to pay all costs of the suit.—See Harrop v. Hirst, V.-C. B., 13 March, 1872, A. 705, altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

St. Helen's Corp.*, 6 Ch. D. 26.

—to restrain riparian owners from continuing the erection of a weir, and from obstructing the rights of the Plts to the flow of the water, according to its usual course and volume to a part of their lands, see Belfast Ropeworks Co. v. Boyd, 21 L. R. Ir. 560.

4. Declaration of Water Rights of Canal Proprietors, and Injunction to restrain Interference therewith.

DECLARE that the Plts, as the owners of the tenement called W. Mill, are entitled to the W. stream, and to the waters flowing in a defined and natural channel into and forming part of the same, as such stream and waters have been accustomed (before the interference therewith &c.) to flow down to the said tenement, subject to the ordinary and reasonable use of the said stream and waters by the riparian owners higher up on the said stream; And Declare that the diversion by Defts of the said stream and waters into their reservoir &c., for the purpose of supplying water to the town of S., is not within such ordinary or reasonable use; And Declare that the Plts, under and by virtue of the powers contained in the Acts of Parliament in the pleadings mentioned, are entitled to use the said stream and waters as the same have been accustomed (before such interference as aforesaid) to flow down to and into their canal, so far as the said stream and waters are required for the supply and navigation of their canal, and subject to such ordinary and reasonable use by upper riparian owners as hereinbefore mentioned; And Let the Defts &c., their servants &c., be restrained from diverting into their reservoir or otherwise the said stream and waters, so as to interfere with the supply of water required for the navigation of the said canal.—Order of L. JJ., subject to the above-mentioned variations, affirmed.—Appellants to pay to respondents their costs of appeal.—Cause remitted back to (Court of Chancery) to do therein as shall be just and consistent with this variation and judgment.—See Wilt's and Berks Canal Co. v. Swindon Waterworks Co., Lords' Journals, 15 June, 1875; L. R. 7 H. L. 697, 715; 9 Ch. 451.

5. Declaration against draining Surface Water, or laying Sewer without License—Injunction and Mandatory Injunction without prejudice to future Exercise of Statutory Powers.

DECLARE that the Defts are not entitled, without the leave or license of the Plt, to drain the surface water from — Street, or from any of the roads or streets in the parish of —, into the Plt's pond or land in the pleadings mentioned, or to lay down or make on the Plt's said land, or to use any drain pipe or trench for any such purpose; And order and adjudge the same accordingly; And Let the Defts, their servants and agents, except with such leave and license as aforesaid, be perpetually restrained from draining such surface water into the Plt's pond or land, and from laying down or making on the Plt's said land, and from using any drain pipe or trench for any such purpose as aforesaid, and from trespassing on the Plt's said premises; And Let the Defts forthwith remove all drain pipes and trenches so laid down or made as aforesaid.—Dismiss the Defts' counterclaim.—Defts to pay Plt's costs of action and counterclaim, to be taxed.—Order to be without prejudice to the future exercise by the Defts of any statutory powers vested in them.—See Croydsdale v. The Sunbury-on-Thames Urban District Council, Stirling, J., 6 Aug., 1898, A. 3117; (1898) 2 Ch. 515, altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, O. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

6. Declaration that Land is Part of Bed of River.

DECLARE that the strip of land claimed by the Plts was, at the date of the commencement of this action, part of the bed of the river Thames, and as such is the property of the Deft, and that the Plts had all the rights of riparian proprietors so far as their land extends.—Discharge the judgment dated — (whereby it was declared that such land belonged to the Plts and was not part of the bed of the river, and dismiss the action.—Plts to pay Deft's costs of action and appeal, including the costs of the three copies of the shorthand writer's notes of the evidence taken in the Court below for the use of this Court, and also the costs of the photographs taken by the direction of the Judge on the — day of —, to be taxed.—See Hindson v. Ashby, C. A., 31 March, 1896, A. 1559; (1896) 1 Ch. 78, O. A.

7. Obstruction of Navigable Stream restrained—Mandatory Injunction to remove Obstructions.

LET the Deft, his servants &c., be restrained from erecting or constructing any platform, piles, or other erections or works in or above the river S., beyond the line of his quay, and from otherwise obstructing the navigation of the river [or the public use of his quay for the purpose of mooring vessels along the same]; And Let the Deft forthwith remove all such platforms, piles, and other erections and works.—See A. G. v. Terry, as varied on appeal by omitting the words in brackets, L. C., 3 March, 1874, A. 612; 9 Ch. 423; as altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co. Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, O. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

8. Obstruction of Wharfinger's Right of Access to the Thames restrained.

LET the Defts, the wardens &c., of the Fishmongers of the city of London, their servants, contractors, and agents, be perpetually restrained from making or putting up any embankment facing their property on the south side, and facing the Plt's property on the west side thereof, or constructing any other works or doing any other thing whereby the Plt's right of access to the river Thames on the west side of his wharf in the (bill) mentioned, or the privilege heretofore enjoyed by the Plt of laying and mooring craft, and loading and unloading, embarking and disembarking goods on the west side of his said wharf, directly from the river, may be defeated, destroyed, or prejudiced; and also from continuing any works or creating or continuing any obstructions so as to interfere with the Plt's right of access to the river, and privilege as aforesaid; And Let the Defts, the Conservators of the river Thames, be in like manner restrained from selling any part of the shore or granting or continuing any authority or license to the other Defts, whereby the Defts, the Fishmongers' Co., their servants, contractors, or agents, may be authorized or empowered to make or put up any embankment on the south side of their premises, and from creating or continuing any obstructions whereby the Plt may be stayed, impeded, or prejudiced in the right or privilege heretofore enjoyed by him of free access to and from his said wharf from and to the river on the west side of his wharf, and of mooring or laying craft on the river, or loading or unloading goods directly into or from his said wharf into or from the river.—Directions as to costs.—See Lyon v. Fishmongers' Co., V.-C. M., 3 May, 1875, B. 1002. Reversed by O. A., 30 July, 1875, B. 2112; 10 Ch. 679; but restored H. L., 27 July, 1876, 1 App. Ca. 662.

NOTES.

The diversion or obstruction of the flow of water in a stream will be restrained by injunction at the suit of the riparian owner thereby affected: Robinson v. L. Byron, 1 Bro. C. O. 588; Elwell v. Crowther, 31 Beav. 163.

Although the riparian owner's right is not limited by the actual damage sustained (Bickett v. Morris, L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 47; E. Norbury v. Kitchin, 15 L. T. 501; Roberts v. Gwyrfaï District Council, (1899) 1 Ch. 583, sup., Form 2, p. 592), a diversion of water by license from an upper riparian owner will not, when the water has been returned to the stream undiminished and uninjured, give a lower riparian owner any right of action: Kensit v. G. E. Ry. Co., 27 Ch. D. 126, C. A.; 23 Ib., 566; and see W. Cumberland Iron Co. v. Kenyon, 11 Ch. D. 782, C. A.; Mostyn v. Atherton, (1899) 2 Ch. 360; following Dudden v. Clutton Union, 1 H. & M. 627; and holding that the licensee of a local authority was not entitled to interfere with the natural flow of a stream at its source.

As to the right of a riparian owner to the ordinary use of water flowing past his land, and also, provided he does not thereby interfere with the rights of other proprietors above and below, to the extraordinary use, see Miner v. Gilmour, 12 Moo. P. C. 156; Belfast Ropeworks Co. v. Boyd, 21 L. R. Ir. 560, C. A.

The owner of land containing underground water, which percolates by undefined channels and flows to the land of a neighbour, has the right to divert or appropriate the percolating water within his own land so as to deprive his neighbour of it: Acton v. Blundell, 12 M. & W. 324; Chasemore v. Richards, 7 H. L. C. 349; Bradford v. Pickles, (1895) A. C. 587. And his right is the same although his motive be not to improve his own land, but to maliciously injure his neighbour or induce his neighbour to buy him out (S. C.); it being a general principle of law that the legal use of property is not rendered illegal because it is prompted by a motive which is improper or even malicious: S. C., and see Allen v. Flood, (1898) A. C. 1; Ajello v. Worsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274; but any pollution by him of the common source, so as to interfere with the beneficial use by a neighbour of the water which reaches his well, will be restrained: Ballard v. Tomlinson, 29 Ch. D. 115, C. A. (reversing 26 Ch. D. 194); and see Snow v. Whitehead, 27 Ch. D. 588. And so if, with the water, silt forming a support to the neighbour's land, is withdrawn: Jordeson v. Sutton, &c. Gas Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 217, C. A.

A railway co., being riparian proprietors, were entitled to take a reasonable quantity of water for supplying locomotives, and the general purposes of a railway station: Earl of Sandwich v. G. N. Ry. Co., 49 L. J. Ch. 225; 27 W. R. 616; 10 Ch. D. 707.

Turning the natural gravitation of the water into water power is a reasonable use: Belfast Ropeworks Co. v. Boyd, 21 L. R. Ir. 560.

A riparian owner cannot, except as against himself, confer on one who is not a riparian owner any right to use the stream: Ormerod v. Todmorden Mills Co., 11 Q. B. D. 155.

The rights inter se of riparian owners on a tidal navigable river and on an inland stream do not differ; and the right of a wharfinger to bring an action in respect of an obstruction which deprives him of, or renders less easy, access to his wharf, is not limited by the extent to which his interest in the public right of navigation has been affected, but extends to interference with his private right as a riparian owner: Lyon v. Fishmongers' Co., 1 App. Ca. 662 (reversing, 10 Ch. 679), sup. Form 8; North Shore Ry. v. Pion, 14 App. Ca. 612; and see A. G. v. E. Lonsdale, 7 Eq. 377; Exeter Corp. v. E. Devon, 10 Eq. 234; A. G. v. Thames Conservators, 1 H. & M. 1; Kearns v. Cordwainers' Co., 6 C. B. N. S. 388; Reg. v. G. N. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. 315.

As to the distinction between the prima facie right of a riparian owner in respect of a natural watercourse, and his right in respect of an artificial watercourse, which must rest on some grant, either proved or presumed, or on some other legal origin, see Rameshur v. Koonj, 14 App. Ca. 121; and as to the acquisition of riparian rights in artificial streams, see Bluckburne v. Somers, 5 L. R. Ir. 1; Kensit v. G. E. Ry. Co., 27 Ch. D. 122, C. A.; Roberts v. Richards, 50 L. J. Ch. 297; 44 L. T. 271 (see 51 L. J. Ch. 944, C. A.); following Sutcliffe v. Booth, 32 L. J. Q. B. 136; 9 Jur. N. S. 1037; Hanna v. Pollock, (1900) 2 I. R. 664; Burrows v. Lang, 70 L. J. Ch. 607.

In order to give rise to riparian rights, the land must be in actual daily contact with the stream: North Shore Ry. v. Pion, 14 App. Ca. 612.

Whether riparian owners can establish a private right of way over a stream, or a right of boating for recreation for themselves and their friends by custom, qu.: Bourke v. Davis, 44 Ch. D. 110.

As establishing the right of a riparian owner on the Thames to compensation for the loss of his water frontage by the construction of the Embankment, see D. Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 5 H. L. 418; Metropolitan Board of Works v. M'Carthy, L. R. 7 H. L. 243.

An easement exercised for the benefit of the dominant estate, e.g., a right to open sluices or locks when a river is in flood, is not invalid merely because from the very nature of the right its exercise by the dominant estate confers some benefit upon other tenements: Simpson v. Godmanchester Corp., (1897) A. C. 696, H. L.; affirming the decision of the Court of Appeal, S. C., (1896) 1 Ch. 214.

An enjoyment by virtue of a lease is not an "enjoyment as of right" which can confer a prescriptive right to a watercourse after expiration of the lease: Chamber Colliery Co. v. Hopwood, 32 Ch. D. 549, C. A.; and as to evidence of unity of possession negating such enjoyment, see Outram v. Maude, 17 Ch. D. 391.

The presumption that a grant of land (of any tenure: see Tilbury v. Silva, 45 Ch. D. 98) passes the adjoining half of the bed of a river may be rebutted by circumstances showing a contrary intention at the time, but not by circumstances arising subsequently: Micklethwait v. Newlay Bridge Co., 33 Ch. D. 133, C. A.

As to the circumstances under which a strip of land is to be deemed to have ceased to form part of the bed of a river, and that regard must be had to all such material circumstances as the fluctuations of the river, the nature of the land and its growths and user, see Hindson v. Ashby, (1896) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.; sup. Form 6.

For forms of orders and notes relating to the interference with the rights of riparian owners by fouling the stream, v. inf. Sect. V., "NUISANCE" (II.).

ESCAPE OF WATER.

On the principle that a man who, for his own purposes brings on his land things which have a tendency to escape and cause mischief (e.g., water) must take care that they do not get on to his neighbour's land, he is prima facie answerable for all damage which is the natural consequence of its escape: Fletcher v. Rylands, 3 H. & C. 774; L. R. 1 Ex. 265; 3 H. L. 330; Crompton v. Lea, 19 Eq. 128; Baird v. Williamson, 15 C. B. N. S. 376; and see Smith v. Fletcher, L. R. 9 Ex. 64; Westminster Brymbo Co. v. Clayton, 36 L. J. Ch. 476, sup. p. 577; Evans v. Manchester, &c. Ry. Co., 36 Ch. D. 626; Ballard v. Tomlinson, 29 Ch. D. 115, C. A.; National Telephone Co. v. Baker, (1893) 2 Ch. 186, where the principle was applied in the case of an electric current discharged into the earth beyond the control of the person so discharging it.

But when the escape of water has been caused by vis major, or the act of God, or by percolation and gravitation, the Deft will not be liable: Nichols v. Marsland, L. R. 10 Ex. 255; 2 Ex. D. 1; Box v. Jubb, 4 Ex. D. 76; Wilson v. Waddell, 2 App. Ca. 95; Dixon v. Met. Board of Works, 7 Q. B. D. 418.

And it seems that a distinction will be taken between water trespassing by natural overflow, and by the diversion of the watercourse: Smith v. Fletcher, L. R. 9 Ex. 64; Smith v. Kenrick, 7 C. B. 515; and see West Cumberland Co. v. Kenyon, 11 Ch. D. 783 (reversing 6 Ch. D. 773), that if the escape of water is only the result of the proper use of the land, whether for mining or other operations, and throws no new burden on the neighbour's land, such neighbour has no right of action.

A canal co. being bound to keep the water in their canal were held liable for the preventible consequences of a leakage caused by third parties: Evans v. M. S. and L. Ry. Co., 36 Ch. D. 626.

An owner whose land is flooded has no right to protect himself by transferring the mischief to the land of his neighbour: Whalley v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. Co., 13 Q. B. D. 131, C. A.

A reversioner whose land is flooded cannot recover damages for a mere temporary injury, though the selling value of his reversion is thereby diminished: Rust v. Victoria Graving Dock Co., 36 Ch. D. 113.

Although the owner of the foreshore is not bound to maintain a natural barrier of shingle on the foreshore against the inroads of the sea, he will be restrained from removing the barrier or using his land so as to cause an inroad of the sea to the injury of the adjoining land: A. G. v. Tomline, 14 Ch. D. 58; 12 Ib. 214.

A right by immemorial user to fix, by fixing moorings in the soil of foreshore, may be supported either as an ordinary incident of the navigation, or on a presumption of a legal origin by grant from the Crown, or by concession by a former owner of the foreshore: A. G. v. Wright, (1897) 2 Q. B. 318, C. A.

(VI.)—RIGHTS OF COMMON.

G. and the Deft H., and their respective servants and agents, from permitting or suffering to be or to remain inclosed or built upon any of the waste lands of the said E. Forest, other than and except lands which on the 14th of August, 1871, were actually covered with buildings, or actually inclosed and used as the gardens belonging to or curtilages of buildings or lands actually inclosed on or before the 14th of August, 1851.

And Let an inquiry be made what waste lands of the said E. Forest in the possession of or belonging to the Defts respectively, other than H. M.'s A. Forest now uninclosed, or which shall for the time being be uninclosed; (3) from otherwise preventing, disturbing, or interfering with the exercise by the Plts, or the other persons entitled as aforesaid, or any of them, of their said right in and over the waste lands of the said E. Forest now uninclosed, or which shall for the time being be uninclosed.—Defts G. &c. to pay Plts' costs of the cause, to be taxed. Adjourn, &c.—Liberty to apply.—Commrs of Sewers, &c. v. Glasse, M. R., 24 Nov. 1874, B. 552; S. C., 19 Eq. 134; for a like order, see Hall v. Byron, V.-C. H., 15 Feb. 1877, A. 386; 4 Ch. D. 667.

Thompson*, L. C., 2 Aug. 1871, A. 2701; 6 Ch. 732, altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

For like decree, except as to gravel and sand, and restraining Defts from erecting, or commencing to erect, any houses, buildings, or fences upon any part of Plumstead, &c. commons, and from allowing any roads or paths in or over the same, or any part thereof, which have been stopped up, at any time in or since the year —, to remain so stopped up, see Warrick v. Provost, &c. of Queen's Coll., Oxford, L. C., 2 Aug. 1871, B. 2537; 6 Ch. 716.

For a similar decree restraining the inclosure of Berkhamstead Common in a suit by a freehold and copyhold tenant of the manor on behalf of himself and all other copyhold and freehold tenants, see Smith v. Brownlow, M. R., 14 Jan. 1870, B. 324; 9 Eq. 241.

For a similar decree, see Hall v. Byron, V.-C. H., 15 Feb. 1877, A. 386; 4 Ch. D. 667.

For decree where the right was partially established, but no infringement proved, see Robinson v. Dhuleep Singh, Fry, J., 27 May, 1879, 11 Ch. D. 837.

NOTES.

COMMONABLE RIGHTS.

A freehold tenant of a manor claiming by prescription on a presumed grant, is entitled to sue on behalf of himself and all others who are freeholders to establish and protect their rights of common as against the lord: Warrick v. Queen's Coll., Oxford, 6 Ch. 716; 10 Eq. 105; Mayor of York v. Pilkington, 1 Atk. 282.

And see Betts v. Thompson, 6 Ch. 732, where the necessity of joining the copyholders as Plts in a suit by the freeholders against their common invader is discussed: Smith v. Brownlow, 9 Eq. 241; and Ellis v. Duke of Bedford, (1899) 1 Ch. 494, C. A.; S. C. (sub nom. Duke of Bedford v. Ellis), (1901) A. C. 1, H. L.; where it was held that Plts might sue as representing a class of persons claiming preferential rights to stands in Covent Garden market within the meaning of a local Act (9 G. IV. c. cxiii.), joining the A. G. as a party representing the public interested in contesting the preference (sed qu. as to necessity for joining A. G., per Lord Macnaghten).

In Comms of Sewers v. Glasse, 19 Eq. 134 (Epping Forest case), the bill was, on behalf of Plts and all others the owners and occupiers of lands and tenements lying within the forest, other than the waste lands of the said forest, to establish a general right of common of pasture upon all the waste lands, and to restrain the Defts from inclosing or building upon the waste.

And see the frame of suit discussed on demurrer, S. C., 7 Ch. 456.

To obtain against a purchaser of a portion of the waste the benefit of the former decree in this case establishing rights of common, and restraining interference therewith, leave of the comms must be obtained under the Epping Forest Act, 1872 (35 & 36 V. c. 95), s. 3: Comms of Sewers v. Gellatly, 24 W. R. 1059; 3 Ch. D. 610; 45 L. J. Ch. 788.

As to the effect of an enfranchisement deed in preventing the lord from again granting rights of fishing on the expiration of the existing lives for which the copyholds were held, see Tilbury v. Silva, 45 Ch. D. 98, C. A.

To establish a right of common, under the Prescription Act, actual enjoyment and possibility of legal origin by custom, prescription or grant must be shown, but the ground on which the claimant rests his alleged right is not material: Earl de la Warr v. Miles, 17 Ch. D. 535, C. A.; q. v. as to the object and effect of the Act generally; and see Tilbury v. Silva, 45 Ch. D. 98, C. A. And that "common without stint" cannot be claimed by prescription, see Morley v. Clifford, 20 Ch. D. 753.

A right of fishing, being in the nature of a profit à prendre cannot be claimed by prescription on behalf of a large and indefinite class, such as owners and occupiers: Tilbury v. Silva, 45 Ch. D. 98, C. A. (per Kay, J.); distinguishing Goodman v. Mayor of Saltash, 17 App. Ca. 633, as to presumption of a legal origin for an immemorial usage. And as to prescription for common of pasture, and that a copyholder cannot prescribe in excess of the custom of his manor, see Morley v. Clifford, 20 Ch. D. 753.

A demise of "all the warren of conies" in L. was held, under special circumstances, to pass a right to the soil: Robinson v. Dhuleep Singh, 11 Ch. D. 798, C. A.

The rule of English law, that a right to an incorporeal hereditament can only be conveyed by deed, is part of the lex loci, not of the lex fori; so that an English lease of sporting rights over land in Scotland can be enforced in England, though not under seal: Adams v. Clutterbuck, 10 Q. B. D. 403.

A fold course is not a several right to the herbage, but a right of common appurtenant of pasture for sheep: Robinson v. Dhuleep Singh, sup.

Under "common pasturage and herbage," in a decree in 1653, commoners could only take by the mouth or bite of cattle, and could not cut or carry away the growth of the soil: Earl de la Warr v. Miles, 17 Ch. D. 754, C. A.

Evidence of subsequent usage was not admitted to affect the construction of the decree, which was plain and unambiguous: S. C.; and see N. E. Ry. Co. v. Hastings, (1900) A. C. 260.

Under the Statute of Merton, the lord can (upon issuing advertisements under the Commons Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 56, s. 31)) approve against common appurtenant of pasture; and the proviso in 13 Edw. I., c. 46, only prevents derogation from an express grant: Robinson v. Dhuleep Singh, sup.

In the case of approvement, the onus is on the lord, his right to inclose being conditional upon his showing that he has left sufficient waste for the tenants to enjoy their right of common: Hall v. Byron, 4 Ch. D. 667.

The question whether there is a sufficiency of common of pasture for sheep must be determined not according to the average number of sheep turned out during a long course of years, but the aggregate number which the commoners are entitled to turn out: Robertson v. Hartopp, 43 Ch. D. 484, C. A. (considering Lake v. Plaxton, 10 Ex. 196; Lascelles v. Onslow, 2 Q. B. D. 433), where the lord was restrained from doing any acts which would diminish the amount of pasturage. Whether, in ascertaining the sufficiency, the modern system of farming, whereby the sheep do not get all their sustenance from the common, ought to be considered, quære; S. C.

Where surveyor of highways had for more than 50 years let the herbage for pasture, a grant from the owner of the soil was presumed: Neaverson v. Peterborough District Council, (1901) 1 Ch. 22.

A custom for the lord with consent of the homage to make copyhold grants of the waste, although sufficiency of common be not left, may be good, and binding on a former copyholder, who, having enfranchised, can no longer attend the manor court: Ramsey v. Craddas, (1893) 1 Q. B. 228.

That the Act of 29 G. II. c. 36, applies only to agreements entered into by persons entitled to common of pasture, and does not legalize agreements affecting the rights of freehold tenants to bushes and underwood, see Nicholls v. Mitford, 20 Ch. D. 380.

A right of shooting over freehold allotments, under an Inclosure Act, cannot be reserved to the lord unless in express terms, or by necessary implication: Duke of Devonshire v. O'Connor, 24 Q. B. D. 468, C. A.

The usual saving clause of the lord's rights in an Inclosure Act does not reserve to the lord any merely territorial right, e.g., the right, incident to his ownership of the soil, of entering upon land for fishing purposes: Ecroyd v. Coulthard, (1898) 2 Ch. 358, C. A.; (1897) 2 Ch. 554.

Where upon inclosure, under 8 & 9 V. c. 118, rights of common have been extinguished, allotments awarded in lieu of them are not to be deemed parts of the lands of the commoners so as to pass by general words in a lease of such lands: Williams v. Phillips, 8 Q. B. D. 437, C. A.

On the release by enfranchisement of seigniorial rights in ancient arable land of customary freehold tenure, there is not, as in the case of copyholds, an extinguishment of rights of common, which anciently was a thing necessary and incident to the feoffment of such land: Baring v. Abingdon, (1892) 2 Ch. 374; Broome v. Wenham, 68 L. T. 651.

An allotment of land made in pursuance of sects. 34 and 73 of the Inclosure Act, 1845, to the churchwardens and overseers of a parish in trust to allow the occupiers of certain ancient cottages in the parish to get turf therefrom, vests the legal estate in the land in the churchwardens and overseers: Simcoe v. Pethick, (1898) 2 Q. B. 555, C. A.; distinguishing A. G. v. Meyrick, (1893) A. C. 1; and Reg. v. Inclosure Commrs, 23 L. T. 778.

The presumption which the Court makes in favour of a legal origin of a right long exercised depends on the circumstances of the enjoyment, and a legal origin cannot be presumed in favour of a body of copyholders on the assumption of a long series of lost grants: Tilbury v. Silva, 45 Ch. D. 98, C. A.

By the Commons Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 56), which contains provisions for the regulation or inclosure of commons, jurisdiction is given by sect. 30 to the county court within whose jurisdiction any common is situate to hear any case relating to any illegal inclosure or encroachment of or upon such common made after the passing of the Act, or to any nuisance impeding the exercise of any right of common arising after the passing of the Act, and to grant an injunction against such inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance, or to make an order for the removal or abatement of such inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance, with right of appeal to the High Court of Justice in a summary manner, or by special case or otherwise, as may be prescribed by rules of the Supreme Court, against any order, &c., by a county court under this section. Pending an appeal from the county court, the order directing the removal or abatement of any inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance, is to be suspended. Nothing in the Act contained is to abridge or interfere with any existing right of abating or otherwise preventing any illegal inclosure of, or encroachment on, any common, or any nuisance interfering with any right of common.

As to the conclusive character of a scheme for the inclosure of a common under the Metropolitan Commons Act, 1866, see Cook v. Mitcham Common Conservators, (1901) 1 Ch. 387.

Inclosure Commrs will not be restrained from affixing their seal or applying to Parliament for its sanction to a scheme approved by them for inclosure of a common: Queen's College, Oxon. v. Darby, W. N. (76) 301.

Where a statute vested land in the lord in trust for occupiers, though the trust was charitable, the lord was held not to be deprived of the ownership of the soil: A. G. v. Meyrick, (1893) A. C. 1.

A right of recreation by custom upon the land of another cannot exist in the public generally, but must be confined to the inhabitants of a particular district: Bourke v. Davis, 44 Ch. D. 110.

A custom for the inhabitants of several adjoining or contiguous parishes to exercise the right of recreation over land situate in one of such parishes is bad: Edwards v. Jenkins, (1896) 1 Ch. 308.

A custom that a bull and boar for parishioners' use should be maintained by the owner of the great tithes was not, in the absence of express words in an Inclosure Act, shifted by the Act to the allottees of lands in lieu of tithes: Lunchbury v. Bode, (1898) 2 Ch. 120.

(VII.)—MARKET.

1. Injunction against establishing a Market.

UPON the appeal &c., by counsel for the Defts, and upon hearing counsel for the Plts, This Court doth declare that the Plts and others claiming under the charter of the 34 Chas. II., in the statement of claim mentioned, are entitled to two markets every week, namely, on Thursday and Saturday, for the sale of fruit and vegetables, to be held in or next to the place described in the said charter as the S— Square, in the parish of S., in the county of M.; And it is ordered that the Defts, their directors, servants, agents, and workmen, be, from and after the — day of —, perpetually restrained from establishing a fruit and vegetable market at B., and from using or permitting to be used any portion of their station or property there in any such manner as to interfere with or prejudicially affect the rights of the Plts in the said markets as hereinbefore declared; And it is ordered that the Defts, their directors, servants, agents and workmen, be perpetually restrained from advertising, or causing to be advertised, any portion of the said station or property at B. as a market, or as a place used or to be used in any such manner as to interfere with or prejudicially affect the rights of the Plts as hereinbefore declared.—Goldsmid v. Gt. Eastern Ry. Co., C. A., 18 Dec. 1883, A. 1935; S. C., 25 Ch. D. 511; 9 App. Ca. 927.

2. Injunction against Interference with erection of Weighing Machine.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plts and Defts; Let the Deft Board, its servants, workmen, and agents, be perpetually restrained from interfering with the erection and provision by the Plts, in or upon the site in the Market Place at R— &c., of the proposed building place or weighing machine for weighing cattle.—McIntosh v. Romford L. B., Kay, J., 3 July, 1889, B. 931; S. C., 61 L. T. 185.

NOTES.

As to what acts amount to a disturbance of market, see Abergavenny Improvement Commrs v. Straker, 42 Ch. D. 83; G. E. Ry. Co. v. Goldsmid, 9 App. Ca. 927; 25 Ch. D. 511, C. A.; Elwes v. Payne, 12 Ch. D. 468, C. A.; Mayor of Manchester v. Lyons, 22 Ch. D. 287, C. A.; Wolverhampton Waterworks v. Hawkesford, 28 L. J. C. P. 242; Mayor of London v. Low, 49 L. J. Q. B. 144; 42 L. T. 16; 28 W. R. 250; and as to the jurisdiction of the Court to grant relief, Stevens v. Chiron, (1901) 1 Ch. 894.

Insufficiency of accommodation in an existing market, though a defence on the part of a person selling outside because he cannot find room within, is no answer to an action for infringement by setting up a rival market: G. E. Ry. Co. v. Goldsmid, sup.

In such an action the Court of Appeal, on the balance of convenience, reversed the order of Jessel, M. R., granting an interlocutory injunction, and put the Defts on an undertaking to keep an account; as if the injunction were granted, and the Defts ultimately proved to be in the right, there would be great difficulty in ascertaining the compensation to which they were entitled; whereas, if the injunction was refused and the Plts succeeded, the compensation to them could be readily ascertained, and their market would suffer no permanent injury from the interim sales by Defts: Elwes v. Payne, 12 Ch. D. 468, C. A.

In order to make the Deft liable, it is not necessary to prove that he acted with intent to defraud the Plts of their tolls by taking advantage of the concourse at their market: Goldsmid v. G. E. Ry. Co., 25 Ch. D. 511, C. A.; S. C., 9 App. Ca. 927, where a railway co., having established a depôt for the sale of vegetables brought by their line, within a quarter of a mile of the Plt's ancient market for vegetables, though no tolls were taken at the depôt, were held to have infringed the Plt's rights.

An ancient charter of 1 Edw. III. though (semble) capable of operating as an Act of Parliament conferring on "citizens of London" individually rights distinct from the corp., was construed as a grant to the corp. of which they had power to waive the benefit: G. E. Ry. Co. v. Goldsmid, sup.

A grant of a market "in sine juxta" a specified place, was held to extend to external as well as internal streets, the inference being drawn that the streets were dedicated to the public subject to exercise of the market rights: A. G. v. Horner, 11 App. Ca. 66; 14 Q. B. D. 245, C. A.

As to the right of a grantee of a market, not confined to a particular locality, to change the site to suit his convenience, on condition that he provides a market place, i.e., gives reasonable accommodation to those members of the public who use the market, see Magistrates of Edinburgh v. Blackie, 11 App. Ca. 665.

An ancient right of market granted by the Crown was held superseded by a local Act conferring a right of market extending further than, and differing in other respects from, the ancient market: Corp. of Manchester v. Lyons, 22 Ch. D. 287, C. A.; and see New Windsor Corp. v. Taylor, (1899) A. C. 41, H. L.

An injunction was granted to restrain a local board from interfering with the erection of a weighing table and accompanying building on the market plain by the owners of the market, as market authority, under the Markets and Fairs (Weighing of Cattle) Act, 1887, s. 4: McIntosh v. Romford Local Board, 61 L. T. 185; sup. Form 2, 603.

As to joining A. G. as a party, see Ellis v. Duke of Bedford, (1899) 1 Ch. 494, C. A., sup. p. 600.

SECTION V.—NUISANCE.

(I.)—PRIVATE NUISANCE.

1. Nuisance from burning Bricks restrained.

LET the Defts S. &c., their servants &c., be perpetually restrained from burning, or causing to be burnt, any bricks on the Defts' plot of land, in the writ mentioned, so as to occasion a nuisance to the Plt, as the owner or occupier of the messuage or dwelling-house and garden in the writ mentioned to belong to, and to be occupied by, the Plt.—Deft S. to pay Plt's costs of suit, to be taxed.—Liberty to apply.—Buffy v. Stevens, M. R., 18 Feb. 1876, A. 261. (Language dictated by the Court after reference to the cases.)

2. Another Form.

THIS action coming on &c. for trial &c. in the presence of counsel for the Plt and Deft, Let the Deft A. B., his servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from burning or causing to be burnt any bricks on his brickfields and premises at or near &c., or any part thereof, in such manner as to cause a nuisance to the inhabitants of &c. and other neighbourhoods of the said brickfields and premises.—A. G. v. Hussey, Kay, J., 26 June, 1890, A. 899.

For the like order against allowing smoke, steam, or vapour to issue from the Deft's clamp or brick-kiln, &c., so as to occasion nuisance, &c. to Plts as occupiers of the cottage, &c., or any of them, see Haywood v. Richards, V.-C. W., 4 Aug. 1873, A. 2341.

The leading case of Walter v. Selge, 4 D. G. & S. 315, restraining brick-burning so as to occasion "damage or annoyance" to Plt, or "injury or damage" to the house and premises, shrubberies, and plantations, is not to be taken as having settled the general form of order in nuisance cases; and the words "nuisance or injury," or "nuisance" (see Ball v. Ray, 30 L. T. 1; 21 W. R. 282, inf. Form 3), when used in the prayer for relief, will be adopted in preference: per Selborne, C., 21 W. R. 449; and see Goose v. Bedford, 21 W. R. 449, inf. Form 7, p. 607.

For injunction to restrain the Defts from using their kilns "for the burning of cement, and from carrying on their works in such a way as to be injurious to the health and comfort of the occupants of the fort at C—, or other persons resident or employed upon the land belonging to the War Department," but operation of injunction suspended until the 1st of December, 1874, see A. G. v. Francis, V.-O. H., 13 July, 1874, A. 1933.

For an injunction to restrain Defts, as from the 2nd of November, 1866, from permitting any vapours or gases to be emitted or to escape from their works to the injury or damage (nuisance or injury) of the inhabitants of the township of O—, see A. G. v. Staffordshire Copper Extracting Co., V.-C. W., 29 June, 1866, A. 1501.

The form of order in cases of nuisance from burning or "calcining" heaps of mineral refuse is discussed in Fleming v. Hislop, 11 App. Ca. 686.

There, and in Shotts Iron Co. v. Inglis, 7 App. Ca. 546, the absolute words of the "interlocutor" were modified by adding the words—"or in any other manner so as to cause material discomfort and annoyance to the (Plts)"; so as not to exclude all scientific attempts to get rid of the material without causing a nuisance.

3. Nuisance—Offensive Occupation—Inquiry as to Damages.

DISCHARGE judgment,—And Let the Deft R., his servants &c., be restrained from keeping or suffering any horse to be on the ground-floor of No. 19 G— Street, in the (bill) mentioned, so as to occasion any nuisance to the Plt, his family and lodgers, residing at No. 18 G— Street aforesaid.—Inquiry what damages have been sustained by reason of the user by the Deft of the said building No. 19 G— Street, so as to occasion a nuisance to the Plt, his family and lodgers, as aforesaid; And Let the Deft R., within one month after the date of the certificate of the result of the said inquiry, pay to the Plt B. what shall be certified to be the amount of such damages, and his costs of this suit, to be taxed &c.—Liberty to apply.—Ball v. Ray, C. A., 16 Jan. 1873, A. 86; 8 Ch. 467.

For the like order to restrain nuisance from the business of a veterinary surgeon, carried on in the ground-floor of a house in Old Bond Street, see Gullick v. Tremlett, V.-C. B., 31 Jan. 1872, A. 227; 20 W. R. 358.

4. Injunction against Use of a Building as a Small-Pox Hospital.

UPON motion &c., and upon hearing &c., and upon reading &c., and the report dated &c., of M., the person nominated by consent of the Plts and the Defts to inquire and report whether, by reason of the situation of the place called the Hirst, and now used as a small-pox hospital, or the management thereof or otherwise, there is danger created to the Plts or any of them, which report is filed in the Central Office; And the Plts by their counsel undertaking (as to damages), Let the guardians of the Union of &c., their servants and agents, be restrained, on and after the — day of —, until judgment in this action or until further order, from using or permitting to be used the cottage now occupied by them as a small-pox hospital at &c., or any other premises at &c., so as to occasion a nuisance to the Plts as the owners and occupiers respectively of the three messuages or dwelling-houses, gardens, farm, and dairy, at &c., belonging to the Plt B. and occupied by the other Plts, the Defts by their counsel undertaking until the — day of —, to continue the precautions hitherto used, and not to allow any communication through &c., and so far as possible to prevent any communication over the wall &c., and not to bring any other patients into the hospital.—Bendelow v. Wortley Union, Stirling, J., 15 Nov. 1887, A. 1694; 57 L. J. Ch. 762; 57 L. T. 849; 36 W. R. 168.

5. Nuisance from storing Heavy Weights on Upper Floor.

LET the Deft R., his servants and agents, be restrained until judgment in this action, or until further order, from leaving, storing, or continuing to leave or store, or permitting to be left or stored in any part of the first floor of the messuage known as &c., at &c., now underlet to the Defts P. & Co., to the Deft D., any lithographic or other stones or materials of such weight or size, or so placed, left, or stored, as to injure any of the principal timbers or walls of the said building, or doing or causing any damage, danger, or nuisance to the Plts, or any of them, or the superior landlords of the same premises, contrary to the covenants in an indenture of lease dated &c., and made between &c., the reversion of which lease is now vested in the Plts C. &c., and from doing any other act or thing to endanger the stability of the building aforesaid, or the safety of the Plt M. on the ground-floor thereof.—Cohen v. Poland, North, J., 22 July, 1887, A. 1104.

6. Nuisance from Carriages &c., drawing to and leaving Club after Midnight.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., Let the Deft be perpetually restrained from carrying on or permitting to be carried on by himself, his managers or agents, the business or concern of the P— Club, so as to cause a nuisance by noise to the Plts or any of them, as owners, lessees, or occupiers of the premises No. —, — Street, or any of the tenants or underlessees of the Plts, as owners or lessees of the last-mentioned premises, first by cabs or carriages drawing to or leaving the club premises, or by the whistling for cabs or carriages drawing to or leaving the club premises between the hours of midnight and 7 a.m., and secondly, by any crowd caused to be assembled by the boxing contests or entertainments held on the club premises.—Bellamy v. Wells, Romer, J., 16 Dec. 1890, A. 1712; S. C., 39 W. R. 158; 68 L. T. 635.

7. Nuisance from Steam Hammer—Noise and Vibration restrained.

VARY decree—And Let the Deft B., his servants &c., be restrained from working the steam-hammer in the pleadings mentioned in such a way as to cause a nuisance or injury to the Plt and his premises in the pleadings mentioned; And Let an inquiry be made what damage has been occasioned to the Plt and his said premises by the working of the said steam-hammer; and refer it to the taxing master to tax the Plt his costs of this cause.—Direction for set-off of costs.—Deft to pay to Plt the balance certified to be due.—Liberty to apply.—Goose v. Bedford, C. A., 25 Feb. 1873, A. 602; 21 W. R. 449.

For the like order to restrain Deft from working a steam-engine and machinery between the hours of 7 P.M. and 6 A.M., so as to occasion a nuisance (or annoyance) to the Plt or the tenants or occupiers of his house, see Beaumont v. Emery, V.-C. M., 23 Feb. 1875, L. J., 31 May, 1875, A. 392, 1364.

For order appointing special referee to report as to noise coming from Deft's stables, and whether the Plt's premises are likely to be affected by the drainage from the Deft's stables, see Broder v. Saillard, M. R., 1 March, 1876, A. 338; and for further order after report of referee, see S. C., M. R., 29 March, 1876, A. 837; S. C., 2 Ch. D. 692.

8. Nuisance by Vibration—Landlord and Tenant—Inquiries as to Damage.

VARY the judgment dated &c., so far as the same directed that no information should be granted. And Let the Defts, their directors, agents, servants &c., be restrained from using or working or causing or permitting to be used or worked in or upon the Deft's premises at — in the county of —, any dynamo or other engine or machinery in such a manner as by reason of vibration or otherwise to injure the structure, fixtures or fittings of the leasehold tenement and premises called the — Arms in the said judgment mentioned, and held and occupied by the Plt, or to interfere with the enjoyment by the Plt of the said premises or his use thereof for the purposes of his business of (a licensed victualler and innkeeper), or otherwise or in any way so as to cause a nuisance to the Plt or injury to his said leasehold premises or the said business. Refer it to one of the official referees to report—1. What sum of money is proper to be awarded to be paid by the Defts to the Plt by way of compensation to him as lessee and occupier of the — Arms aforesaid for the inconvenience and discomfort caused to him as such lessee and occupier by noise, vibration or steam arising or issuing from the Defts' works and premises at — aforesaid down to the date of the report. 2. What sum of money is proper to be awarded to be paid by the Defts to the Plt by way of compensation for the damage sustained by him as such lessee and occupier as aforesaid by reason of the injury caused to the structure of the — Arms aforesaid by the Defts' operations and works down to the date of the report. Defts to pay costs of appeal. Operation of restraint sus-pendent until first motion day in next Easter Sittings with liberty to apply.—See Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., C. A. 18 Dec. 1894, B. 01074; (1895) 3 Ch. 388, C. A.; S. C., C. A. 12 Ju. 1895, B. 2583.

9. Fireworks.

LET the Deft R., his servants &c., be perpetually restrained from letting off, or causing or permitting to ascend, from the P— Gardens in the (bill) mentioned, any rockets, shells, fire balloons, or other pyrotechnic devices or contrivances which, or the sparks from which, may, or may be liable to, fall on the B— mill premises in the said (bill) mentioned, and endanger the timber stored thereon, or any part thereof.—Deft to pay costs of suit, but taxing master to look into the affidavits, and distinguish such parts as are of unnecessary length, and set off those costs.—Schofield v. Reilly, M. R., 13 Jan. 1876, B. 42.

10. Noisy Entertainment.

LET the Deft be restrained from using or permitting to be used the premises called &c., or any part thereof, for the purpose of balloon ascents, fireworks, dancing, music, or other sports or entertainments, whereby a nuisance may be occasioned to the (annoyance and) injury of any of the inmates of the asylum in the (bill) mentioned.—Freer v. Clewes, V.-C. M., 21 Dec. 1867, A. 3046.

For similar orders, see Walker v. Brewster, 5 Eq. 25 (where the form of the order is discussed, and limited to any public exhibition, or other entertainment, whereby a nuisance may be occasioned to the annoyance and injury of the Plt): Colbourn v. Hardy, V.-C. J., 29 Jan. 1869, A. 261; Inchbald v. Robinson, 4 Ch. 388; Bostock v. North Staffordshire Ry. Co., 5 D. G. & S. 590; 3 Sm. & G. 283.

11. Dangerous Occupation—Testing Fire-arms.

LET the Deft be perpetually restrained from firing at a target in such a manner as to be a nuisance to the Plts or other owners, lessees, or occupiers of the lands and hereditaments known as the S. estate, and from using in such manner as to be a nuisance any part of his premises as a place for proving or testing fire-arms therein, and from using fire-arms therein in such manner as to be a nuisance.—Darvall v. Dougall, V.-C. W., 20 July, 1871, A. 1990.

See also Banister v. Bigge, 34 Beav. 287, for an injunction to restrain the use of a rifle-range for ball-practice, certified by the Secretary of State for War, until it should have been rendered free from danger to Plt, his family and workmen.

For the like order to restrain the use of land at Birmingham as a range for trying and proving fire-arms, or the discharge of fire-arms thereon, to the annoyance or injury of the patients in a hospital, see Cadbury v. Walter, V.-C. H., 3 Feb. 1876, A. 171.

For an injunction restraining blasting operations by a railway co. for the construction of their line "in such manner as thereby to cast upon Plt's house and buildings, or upon any part of his gardens or land there, or any of the said pieces of land in his occupation, any stones, pieces of rock, or other missiles or things," see Arnold v. Furness Ry. Co., V.-C. B., 23 April, 1874, A. 947; 22 W. R. 613.

For an injunction restraining a smoke nuisance by a railway co., see Smith v. Midland Ry. Co., 25 W. R. 861; 37 L. T. 224; nuisance from gas works, see A. G. v. Gas Light, &c. Co., 7 Ch. D. 217; A. G. v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., Kay, J., 13 Jan. 1882, ex relatione (case not reported nor order drawn up).

For an inquiry as to damages in respect of nuisance from noise, vibration, and obstruction of light (completed before bill filed), where a mandatory injunction was refused, see V. Gort v. Clark, 16 W. R. 569; 18 L. T. 343.

For forms and notes upon the injury to property and health from river pollution, see inf., "NUISANCE" (II.).

12. Leave to enter for the Purpose of trying Experiments—O. 1, 3.

UPON the application of the Plt, adjourned into Court at the Plt's request as a motion, and upon motion this day accordingly by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, Let the Plt, his servants and workmen, be at liberty (without prejudice to the rights of persons not parties to this action), Upon giving forty-eight hours' notice to the Defts to enter upon that part of P— Street, E—, in the county &c., in the pleadings mentioned, which belongs to the Defts, for the purpose of experimenting in order to discover whether the pipe which joins the Plt's drain proceeds directly from the Deft's parsonage-house, and for this purpose to dig and excavate the street so far as may be necessary, the Plt by his counsel undertaking to do no unnecessary harm, and to replace the street so soon as the investigation is concluded, and as quickly as possible at his own expense; And Let the Plt, his servants and workmen, be at liberty, on giving like notice, to enter on the Deft's land to take the height and dimensions of the Deft's chapel.—Costs to be costs in action.—Lumb v. Beaumont, Pearson, J., at Chambers, 25 July, 1884, B. 1046; S. C., 27 Ch. D. 356.

13. Injunction against watching or besetting Premises.

LET the Defts, P. C. W., C. C., A. T., J. L., and F. G., be perpetually restrained from watching or besetting the Plts' works or place of business, and the approaches thereto, for the purpose of persuading or otherwise preventing persons from working for the Plts, or for any purpose except merely to obtain or communicate information, and from watching or besetting the premises of A. S. for the purpose of persuading or otherwise preventing him from working for the Plts, or for any purpose except merely to obtain or communicate information.—Defts P. C. W. &c. to pay Plts' costs of action, to be taxed (with direction as to set-off as regards certain special costs).—See Lyons v. Wilkins, Byrne, J., 3 Feb. 1898, B. 983; (1899) 1 Ch. 255.

14. Another Form.

LET the Defts (names) and each of them and their or his agents, and any persons authorized by them or him, be restrained until judgment in this action or further order from watching or besetting the landing stage at T—in the said writ mentioned, or any other place where any person or persons employed, or about to be employed, by the Plts or any of them be brought, for the purpose of persuading or otherwise preventing such person or persons from working for the Plts or any of them, or for any purpose except merely to obtain or communicate information.—Costs to be costs in the action.—See Charnock v. Court, Stirling, J., 14 April, 1899, A. 1363; (1899) 2 Ch. 35.

15. Another and fuller Form.

LET the Defts, M. E. and T. T., and each of them, and their or his agents, and any persons authorized by them or him, be restrained until judgment in this action or further order from watching or besetting any railway station in H—or elsewhere, or the works of the Plts or any of them, or the approaches to any such station or works, or any place where any persons employed, or about to be employed by, or working or intending to work for the Plts, or any of them, reside, or work, or happen to be, for the purpose of persuading such persons not to work, or abstain from working, for the Plts, or any of them, or for any purpose except merely to obtain or communicate information.—Costs to be costs in the action.—See Walters v. Green, Stirling, J., 9 Aug. 1899, B. 3164; (1899) 2 Ch. 696.

NOTES.

The grounds of interference in the case of private nuisance are:—

(a) Material injury or imminent and inevitable risk to property or health: see A. G. v. Nichol, 16 Ves. 338; Haines v. Taylor, 2 Ph. 209; 10 Beav. 75; Broudbent v. Imperial Gas Co., 7 D. M. & G. 436; 7 H. L. C. 600 (injury to the crops of a market gardener); Beardmore v. Tredwell, 3 Giff. 683 (injury to trees from brick-kilns); Tipping v. St. Helen's Smelting Co., 1 Ch. 66 (injury to land by the smoke of copper works); St. Helen's Smelting Co. v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 642; Arnold v. Furness Ry. Co., 22 W. R. 613 (tipping rock or rubbish on Plt's land); Hepburn v. Lordan, 2 H. & M. 345 (storing inflammable materials, jute, near Plt's house); Crowder v. Tinkler, 19 Ves. 617 (powder mill); Bendelow v. Wortley Union, 57 L. J. Ch. 762; 57 L. T. 849; 36 W. R. 168 (small-pox hospital). And see also Crowhurst v. Amersham Burial Board, 4 Ex. D. 5 (allowing poisonous trees to project over neighbour's land); and that there is no duty as between adjoining landowners to cut thistles, the natural growth of the soil, see Giles v. Walker, 24 Q. B. D. 657.

The injury to property (e.g., to vegetation from smoke and vapours) must be actual, substantial, and visible—such as would entitle the Plt to recover damages in an action; and contingent, prospective, or remote damage will not give the right to an injunction: Salvin v. Brancepeth Coal Co., 9 Ch. 705; Elmhirst v. Spencer, 2 Mac. & G. 45; Shotts Iron Co. v. Inglis, 7 App. Ca. 518. 543.

Mere speculative depreciation of property (e.g., by the erection of a national school in the immediate neighbourhood) is not enough: Harrison v. Good, 11 Eq. 338. And see White v. Cohen, 1 Drew. 312; Biddulph v. St. George's Vestry, 3 D. J. & S. 493.

Circumstances of locality will be taken into consideration: Sturges v. Bridgman, 11 Ch. D. 852, C. A.; and although a man by "coming to the nuisance" (of noxious vapours) in a manufacturing district does not lose his right to relief, the injury to his property must be such as sensibly to diminish its value; and a fortiori a much stronger case of personal discomfort will have to be shown by a Plt residing in a manufacturing district: St. Helen's Smelting Co. v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 643; and see Salvin v. Brancepeth Co., sup.

Where the Deft claims the right to do the act complained of, and refuses to give an undertaking, the Court infers that there will be a repetition of the nuisance: Phillips v. Thomas, 62 L. T. 793.

If there is no exceptional risk, and the injury is accidental or occasional only, and precautions have been taken, there will be no injunction: Cooke v. Forbes, 5 Eq. 166; nor where a mere decision on the legal question will give the Plt all the relief he is really entitled to: Jenkins v. Jackson, 40 Ch. D. 71.

And generally, if the nuisance is not continuous, but temporary and occasional only, the Court will not interfere: Gaunt v. Fynney, 8 Ch. 8; Swaine v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 4 D. J. & S. 211; A. G. v. Cambridge Gas Co., 4 Ch. 71; A. G. v. Sheffield Gas Co., 3 D. M. & G. 304; Cooper v. Crabtree, 20 Ch. D. 589, C. A.; Rust v. Victoria Graving Dock Co., 36 Ch. D. 113, C. A.; Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 409; and if the nuisance has ceased before trial, the Plt will only recover damages and costs: Carr v. Bath Gaslight Co., W. N. (00) 265; Dunning v. Grosvenor Dairies, Ib.

(b) Material interference with the reasonable ordinary comfort of human existence: see Walter v. Selfe, 4 D. & S. 315; Crumpp v. Lambert, 3 Eq. 409; Robinson v. Kilvert, 41 Ch. D. 88, C. A.; Bellamy v. Wells, 39 W. R. 158; 63 L. T. 635.

To give a right of action (including summary relief by injunction) in respect of nuisance or annoyance, it is not necessary to prove pecuniary loss, or direct injury, or actual risk to health; it is enough if the nuisance be such as to interfere with the ordinary comfort or enjoyment of life and property; as, e.g., by causing a reasonable apprehension of risk from infectious disease: Tod-Heatley v. Benham, 40 Ch. D. 80, C. A.; Rex v. White, 1 Burr. 333; Gaskell v. Bayley, 30 L. T. 516; or if it (the nuisance) be offensive to the senses: Rex v. Neil, 2 Car. & Pay. 485; and if such annoyance is caused, reasonableness of user by the Deft is not per se a defence: Reinhardt v. Mentasti, 42 Ch. D. 685; Sanders Clark v. Grosvenor Mansions Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 373; A. G. v. Cole, (1901) 1 Ch. 205.

As to the meaning of the words "annoyance" and "grievance" in a covenant against nuisance, see Tod-Heatley v. Benham, 40 Ch. D. 80, C. A.; and as to the operation of a covenant for quiet enjoyment as protection to covenantee against nuisance by covenantor, see Robinson v. Kilvert, 41 Ch. D. 88, C. A.; Sanderson v. Mayor of Berwick, 13 Q. B. D. 547, 551; Dennett v. Atherton, L. R. 7 Q. B. 316, 326, 327; Tebb v. Cave, (1900) 1 Ch. 642 (erection of buildings by landlord on adjoining land causing chimneys of tenant to smoke). A Plt is entitled to the enjoyment of pure air by night as well as by day: Knight v. Gardner, 19 L. T. 673.

On this branch of the subject the following cases may be consulted:—

Brick-burning.—Walter v. Selfe, 4 D. & S. 313; Pollock v. Lester, 11 Ha. 275; Luscombe v. Steer, 15 W. R. 1191; Roberts v. Clarke, 18 L. T. 49; Bamford v. Turnley, 3 B. & S. 62 (overruling Hole v. Barlow, 4 C. B. N. S. 334, and deciding that brick-burning by which nuisance was occasioned was not a reasonable use by Deft of his land); A. G. v. Tossell, V.-C. W., 2 Aug., 19 Dec. 1867 (deciding that brick-burning within certain limits (180 yards) is a nuisance, and that the remedy in penalties, given by the Public Health Act, 1848, s. 140, does not affect the right of the Plt to file an information at the relation of the local board to put a stop to a public nuisance); A. G. v. Hussey, Kay, J., 26 June, 1890.

And see Wanstead Local Board v. Hill, 13 C. B. N. S. 479, on the question whether brick-making is an offensive trade within the Public Health Act, 1848 (11 & 12 V. c. 63), s. 64 (re-enacted by the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 112).

Calcining.—Shotts Iron Co. v. Inglis, 7 App. Ca. 518.

Carpet beating.—Lilsher v. Gibbs, Kay, J., 14 May, 1884, B. 719.

Cement Works.—Umfreville v. Johnson, 10 Ch. 580; A. G. v. Francis, V.-C. H., 31 July, 1874, A. 1933; L. J., 9 Nov. 1874, A. 2932.

Chemical or gas works, noxious vapours and smoke.—Barlow v. Bailey, W. N. (71) 95; Bankart v. Houghton, 27 Beav. 425; Salvin v. Brancepeth Coal Co., 9 Ch. 705, sup.; Crumph v. Lambert, 3 Eq. 409; Savile v. Kilner, 26 L. T. 277; Smith v. Midland Ry. Co., 25 W. R. 861; 37 L. T. 224; A. G. v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., Kay, J., 13 Jan. 1882, ex relatione order not drawn up (nauseous and offensive odours from the manufacture of gas).

Chimneys.—The non-consumption, so far as is practicable, of smoke in any manufacturing or trade process, and the emission of black smoke in such quantity as to be a nuisance from any chimney (not of a private dwelling-house) are nuisances to be summarily dealt with by the local authority. See Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 55), s. 91 (re-enacting, with some alterations and additions, Nuisances Removal Act, 18 & 19 V. c. 121, s. 8; and Sanitary Act, 1866 (29 & 30 V. c. 90), s. 19). And for cases on these enactments, see Cooper v. Woolley, L. R. 2 Ex. 88; Barnes v. Akroyd, L. R. 7 Q. B. 474; Norris v. Barnes, Ib. 537; Gaskell v. Bayley, 30 L. T. 516; Barnes v. Eddleston, 1 Ex. D. 102; Weekes v. King, 53 L. T. 51; 15 Cox, C. C. 722.

Dangerous trade.—McMurray v. Cadwell, W. N. (89) 216; W. N. (90) 63 (manufacture of amorces; injunction suspended for a fortnight to enable appellant to apply to Home Office for leave to make protective alterations).

Dangerous works on highway.—As to the duty of persons who undertake such works, to take care that those who execute them do not negligently cause injury to the public, see Holliday v. National Telephone Co., (1899) 2 Q. B. 392, C. A.

Fried-fish shop.—Wood v. Miles, V.-C. H., 1 Dec. 1880, B. 2249; that such a business is not per se an offensive trade within the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 112, see Braintree Local Board v. Boyton, 52 L. T. 99.

Heating premises.—Robinson v. Kilvert, 41 Ch. D. 88, 97, C. A.; Reinhardt v. Mentasti, 42 Ch. D. 685.

Hospital for infectious diseases.—Metropolitan Asylums v. Hill, 6 App. Ca. 193; Tod-Heatley v. Benham, 40 Ch. D. 80, C. A.; Bendelow v. Wortley Union, 57 L. J. Ch. 762; 57 L. T. 849; 36 W. R. 168; A. G. v. Hanwell Urban Council, (1900) 2 Ch. 337, C. A.; (1900) 1 Ch. 51. A small-pox hospital is not an "other noxious or offensive business" within sect. 112 of the Public Health Act, 1875, and under sect. 131 a local authority may establish such a hospital outside their district without the consent, under sect. 285, of the local authority of the district in which it is to be erected: Withington District Local Board v. Manchester Corporation, (1893) 2 Ch. 19, C. A.; Dalton v. St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, 47 L. T. 349.

Malicious interference with servants.—Action held maintainable by employer against persons who, to his damage, maliciously conspire to induce his servants to break their contract of service, and also conspire together to injure him by preventing persons from entering into contracts with him: Leathem v. Craig (1899), 2 I. R. 667, C. A., distinguishing Allen v. Flood, (1898) A. C. 1, and following Temperton v. Russell, (1893) 1 Q. B. 715, C. A.

Manure works, and carting night soil.—Knight v. Gardner, 19 L. T. 673.

Noise and vibration.—Steam-hammer, &c.—Roskell v. Whitworth, 5 Ch. 459; Goose v. Bedford, 21 W. R. 449; Eaden v. Firth, 1 H. & M. 573; Crumph v. Lambert, 3 Eq. 409; Fenwick v. E. Lond. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 409 (temporary use of lift pumps); Lambton v. Mellish, (1894) 3 Ch. 163 (noises caused by acts of different individuals).

—Bell-ringing.—Soltau v. De Held, 2 Sim. N. S. 133; Hardman v. Holherston, V.-C. S., 30 June, 1866, A. 1373 (dissolved 5 Dec. 1866, A. 2502; see W. N. (66) 379).

—Keeping horses on ground-floor of a London dwelling-house.—Ball v. Ray, 8 Ch. 467; Gullick v. Tremlett, 20 W. R. 358; Broder v. Saillard, 2 Ch. D. 692.

Musical Instruments.—Christie v. Davey, (1893) 1 Ch. 316 (semble, constant playing in dwelling-house not a nuisance; secus, if done to annoy neighbour).

Noisy entertainments, collecting disorderly crowds.—Walker v. Brewster, 5 Eq. 25; Inchbald v. Robinson, 4 Ch. 388; Bostock v. N. Staff. Ry. Co., 5 D. & S. 590; 3 Sm. & G. 283; Crofts v. Hume, V.-C. B., 6 Mar. 1885, A.; Cox v. Baker, V.-C. B., 11 June, 1886 (noisy exhibition in Edgware Road); Allen v. Vokes, 15, 31 Aug. 1888, ex relatione orders not drawn up; 32 Sol. Journ. 734 (noisy entertainments, swings, rifle gallery); Phillips v. Thomas, 62 L. T. 693 (noisy show in market square); Jenkins v. Jackson, 40 Ch. D. 71 (dancing in room over that of Plt); Bellamy v. Wells, 63 L. T. 635 (club causing noise at night), sup. p. 606, Form 6; Barber v. Penley, (1893) 2 Ch. 447 (performance causing crowd to collect in street); Seaward v. Paterson, (1897) 1 Ch. 545, C. A.; Dewar v. City and Suburban Racecourse Co., (1899) 2 I. R. 345 (racing on Sunday).

Use of garden as a skittle or bowling alley.—Barham v. Hodges, V.-C. H., 2 July, 1876, A. 1391; W. N. (76) 234.

Use of a rifle-range so as to be a nuisance to adjoining houses.—Banister v. Bigge, 34 Beav. 287; Darvall v. Dougall, sup. Form 11, p. 608. See, however, Hawley v. Steele, 6 Ch. D. 521, that the reasonable use for military purposes of land acquired by authority of Parliament, and vested for such purposes in the War Secretary, will not be restrained.

Urinal.—Vernon v. St. James' Vestry, 16 Ch. D. 449; Sellors v. Matlock Bath Local Board, 14 Q. B. D. 928; Chibnall v. Paul, 29 W. R. 536 (where the Deft. by so disposing his premises as tacitly to invite the nuisance, was held responsible); Pethick v. Corp. of Plymouth, 42 W. R. 246 (where an injunction was refused to restrain an urban authority from placing a urinal in a public park near the Plt's houses, and quære whether under sect. 39 of the Public Health Act, 1875, the decision of the urban authority is not conclusive).

Vacant land.—The owner of a piece of land is under a duty at common law to prevent it from being so used as to be a public nuisance, and this duty may be enforced by injunction at the suit of the A. G.: A. G. v. Tod Heatley, (1897) 1 Ch. 560, C. A.

Watching and besetting premises.—For a case in which a perpetual injunction was granted to restrain the defendants from watching or besetting either the plaintiffs' works or the works of a sub-manufacturer for them for any purpose except merely to obtain or communicate information, see J. Lyons & Sons v. Wilkins, (1899) 1 Ch. 255, C. A.; sup. Form 13, p. 609.

To watch or beset a man's house, with a view to compel him to do or not to do that which it is lawful for him not to do or to do, is wrongful, as being both an offence within sect. 7 of the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 86), and a nuisance at common law, as interfering with the ordinary comfort of human existence and the ordinary enjoyment of the house beset: S. C., referring to Bamford v. Turnley, 3 B. & S. 62; Broder v. Saillard, 2 Ch. D. 692, 701; Walter v. Selfe, 4 De G. & Sm. 315; Crumph v. Lambert, L. R. 3 Eq. 409.

Watching or besetting a place where a person "resides, or works, or carries on business, or happens to be," under sub-sect. 4 of sect. 7 of the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875, does not necessarily imply any lengthened watching, and is not limited to places which he habitually frequents: Charnock v. Court, (1899) 2 Ch. 35; sup. Form 14, p. 610.

As to the right under the section and O. XVI, 1, of several members of an association of master builders to combine in bringing an action against the officials of various trade unions, see Walters v. Green, (1899) 2 Ch. 696.

Waterworks.—Injunction to restrain the laying of pipes amounting to a "constructing" of waterworks within sect. 52 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 55), within the limits of supply of an established water company, without previous notice to them: Huddersfield Corp. v. Ravens-thorpe Urban District Council, (1897) 2 Ch. 121, C. A.

No legal right under the Prescription Act (as in the case of obstruction of light) can be acquired in respect of noise: Sander v. Manley, W. N. (78) p. 181; but the right to an injunction against nuisance may, as in other cases, be lost by acquiescence (e.g., by allowing expense to be incurred, or a trade to be carried on, without taking proceedings): Williams v. E. of Jersey, Cr. & Ph. 91; Gaunt v. Fynney, 8 Ch. 8; and see Turner v. Mirfield, 34 Beav. 390.

But acquiescence in the erection of works which, though noxious in themselves, produce but little injury at first, does not warrant their development to the extent of causing great damage: Bankart v. Houghton, 27 Beav. 425;

Sturges v. Bridgman, 11 Ch. D. 852, C. A.; and see Baxendale v. McMurray, 2 Ch. 790.

The lessor or reversioner of property cannot, it seems, though his tenants the actual occupiers might, maintain an action in respect of a merely temporary nuisance, e.g., from smoke or noise: Jones v. Chappell, 20 Eq. 539; Simpson v. Savage, 1 C. B. N. S. 347; Mott v. Shoolbred, 20 Eq. 22; Cooper v. Crabtree, 19 Ch. D. 193; Sandford v. Clarke, 21 Q. B. D. 398; but where, from change of interest by letting the property since action brought, the Plts have become reversioners, amendment by adding the new tenants as co-Plts has been allowed: House Property Co. v. H. P. Horsenail Co., 29 Ch. D. 190.

In the case of apprehended nuisance, Plt seeking an injunction must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the injury, if it does come, will be irreparable: Fletcher v. Bealey, 28 Ch. D. 688; A. G. v. Manchester Corporation, (1893) 2 Ch. 87, where the principles on which the Court proceeds in granting or refusing in injunctions quia timet against nuisance are discussed.

Although persons entrusted with statutory powers are bound to exercise them so as not unnecessarily to create a nuisance (Geddis v. Bann Reservoir, 3 App. Ca. 430; Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Parke, (1899) A. C. 535, P. C.; Jordeson v. Sutton, &c. Gas Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 217, C. A. (Form 8, sup. p. 564)), yet where the user of premises in a particular way is incidental and necessary to that which the statute authorizes, such user cannot be restrained on the ground of nuisance: L. B. & S. C. Ry. v. Truman, 11 App. Ca. 45; where a railway co. were held justified in using land as a depôt for cattle as being incidental to the authorized use of their railway for cattle traffic; and see Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 409; National Telephone Co. v. Baker, (1893) 2 Ch. 186, where a tramway co. using electrical traction under a provisional order of the Board of Trade were held to be protected from liability for electrical disturbance caused thereby in the wires of a telephone co.; but persons authorized by statute to erect a small-pox hospital could not do so in a place where a nuisance would be caused to the neighbourhood: Met. Asylums v. Hill, 6 App. Ca. 193; nor a vestry the like as to a urinal: Vernon v. Vestry of St. James', 16 Ch. D. 449, C. A.; nor a gas co. in the erection of a gasometer: Jordeson v. Sutton, &c. Gas Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 217, C. A.; and see other cases, sup., and so the statutory powers of a drainage board afford justification only for acts done with due care, and not for negligent acts, as e.g., by deepening a river bed and failing periodically to cleanse it: Bligh v. Rathangan River Drainage Board (1898), 2 I. R. 205; and a tramway co. having power to construct "works and conveniences" were liable for nuisance caused by stables erected by them: Rapier v. London Tramways Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 588, C. A.; and see Ogston v. Aberdeen District Tramways Co., (1897) A. C. 111, H. L. (Sc.), where a tramway co. were held to have committed a nuisance by heaping up snow in the streets and scattering salt upon the track of the tramway; and see Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Parke, (1899) A. C. 535, P. C. (injunction to prevent user of the water in disregard of common law obligation to do no damage to the land).

Where an Act of Parliament contains a special provision for the protection of an individual, he may sue without joining the A. G., or showing particular damage: Mayor of Devonport v. Plymouth Tram. Co., 52 L. T. 161.

The Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 V. c. 55), s. 91, defines nuisances (see also Nuisances Removal Act 1855, (18 & 19 V. c. 121), s. 8; Sanitary Act, 1866, (29 & 30 V. c. 90), s. 19), which may be dealt with summarily by the local authority in the manner provided by the Act (sects. 94—106). If such summary proceedings would afford an inadequate remedy, proceedings may be taken in the Superior Courts to enforce the abatement or prohibition of any nuisance under the Act, or for the recovery of any penalties, or for the punishment of persons offending against the Act (sect. 107).

Actions cannot be brought by a local board in respect of a public nuisance under the last-mentioned section, except with the sanction of the A. G., or by some person who has suffered damage: Wallasey Local Board v. Gracey, 36 Ch. D. 593; Tottenham Urban District Council v. Williamson & Sons, (1896) 2 Q. B. 353, C. A. Without evidence of actual injury an action may be maintained by the A. G., and injunction obtained, restraining illegal acts tending to the injury of the public: A. G. v. Shrewsbury, &c. Bridge Co., 21

Ch. D. 754; e.g., to make a railway co. run their trains at the pace of four miles per hour as required by statute, along a level crossing over a highway: A. G. v. L. N. W. Ry. Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 78, C. A.; following A. G. v. Shrewsbury (Kingsland) Bridge Co., 21 Ch. D. 752.

The provisions of the Act relating to nuisances are to be in addition to, "and not to abridge or affect any right, remedy, or proceeding under any other provisions of the Act, or under any other Act, or at law or in equity"; but no person shall be punished for the same offence both under the Act and under any other law or enactment (sect. 111).

A highway authority, when altering the level of a street pursuant to sect. 98 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (18 & 19 V. c. 120), are not bound to exercise at their own expense the power of altering the position of underground pipes for the benefit of a water co.: Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Wandsworth District Board of Works, (1898) 2 Ch. 603, C. A.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 13, which is substituted for part of sect. 56 of the Jud. Act, 1873, questions may be referred for inquiry and report to any official or special referee; and, at the trial or hearing, the assistance as assessors of persons specially qualified may be obtained under sect. 56. For the exercise of this power in nuisance, ancient light, and mineral trespass cases, see Broder v. Saillard, sup. p. 401; Cartwright v. Last, sup. p. 401; Craven v. Kaye, sup. p. 402; Bendelow v. Wortley Union, 57 L. J. Ch. 762, sup. p. 605. And see sup. Chap. XXVI., "ARBITRATIONS."

A surveyor so appointed acts in a quasi-judicial capacity, and is not subject to examination as a witness: Broder v. Saillard, 24 W. R. 456.

In cases of nuisance, unless it plainly appears that the conclusion of the Court below upon the evidence was wrong, the Appeal Court is unwilling to reopen the investigation by directing an issue or employing experts to examine and report: Salvin v. North Brancepeth Co., 9 Ch. 705; and see Inchbald v. Robinson, 4 Ch. 388.

In an action to restrain sewage nuisance, a general order as to documents in the possession of the Deft board was refused, but an order was made limited to certain resolutions and correspondence with the Local Government Board: Downing v. Falmouth United Sewerage Board, 37 Ch. D. 234, C. A.

As to the liability of a landlord for nuisance committed by his tenant, see Jenkins v. Jackson, 40 Ch. D. 71; and that an action for an injunction to restrain the fouling of a stream cannot be maintained against exors in respect of acts done by their testator more than six months before his death, see Kirk v. Todd, 21 Ch. D. 484, C. A.

The acts of two or more persons may, taken together, constitute such a nuisance that the Court will restrain all from doing the acts constituting the nuisance, although the annoyance occasioned by the act of any one of them, if taken alone, would not amount to a nuisance: Lambton v. Mellish; Lambton v. Cox, (1894) 3 Ch. 163.

Where an inquiry as to damages was directed as well as an injunction, the Plt had the general costs, but the costs of the inquiry were reserved, so that the Judge might exercise control over them if unreasonably exaggerated: Slack v. Midland Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 81.

Where the nuisance had been abated before the hearing the Court refused an injunction, but gave the Plt costs: Barber v. Penley, (1893) 2 Ch. 447; but see Dean of Chester v. Smelting Corp., W. N. (01) 179.

As to the form of the order, and that the Court will not thereby, as in the case of breach of covenant, specify the particular acts to be restrained, see Walker v. Brewster, 5 Eq. 25.

For a collection of cases relating to nuisances, see Chambers' Public Health, &c. Act, Digest of Cases, 526—572; Kerr, 166—294; Joyce, 99—130; Garrett on Nuisances, passim.

(II.)—POLLUTION OF WATER.

1. Injunction restraining Pollution of River by Town Sewage.

LET the Defts, the mayor &c., of the borough of &c., their servants &c., be restrained, from and after the second day after the close of the parliamentary session for the year —, from causing or permitting the sewage of the borough of L— or any part thereof to flow or pass through their main sewer or any other outfall into the river A— in the information (statement of claim) mentioned, unless and until the same shall be sufficiently purified and deodorised so as not to be or create a nuisance, or become injurious to the public health; And Let the Defts, the said mayor &c., be perpetually restrained by injunction from causing or permitting any new outfall to be made for the conveyance of the sewage of the said borough or any part thereof into the river A—, or any sewer or drain to be made to communicate with their said main sewer, or any communication to be made with such main sewer, or any of the Defts' other sewers and drains whereby any sewage may be discharged or find its way into the said river A—.—Defts to pay the relator's costs of suit, including the costs of the motion for an injunction.—Liberty to apply.—A. G. v. Leeds Corp., V.-C. J., 2 March, 1870, A. 527; L. J., 9 June, 1870, A. 1493; 5 Ch. 583.

For order restraining Defts from making any further connection of any drain with either their H. or M. sewer until the hearing &c.; that part of the motion which sought an immediate injunction against causing any sewage to pass down the H. and M. sewer into the river L. being directed to stand over until the hearing, on an undertaking by Defts, by dredging or other proper means, to keep the river L. free from all obstructions to navigation caused by an increased deposit of sewage matter, with liberty to apply especially in respect of any injury that might be apprehended from unhealthy effluvia, see A. G. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 1 H. & M. 298, V.-C. W., 5 June, 1863, A. 1031.

For injunction to restrain local board from "directing or authorizing" the discharge of sewage from new houses in their district into a natural watercourse, the lower portion of which was a sewer vested in the Metropolitan Board of Works, see A. G. v. Acton Local Board, 22 Nov. 1882, A. 2196; 22 Ch. D. 221.

For injunction to restrain local board from discharging, or causing or permitting to be discharged, sewage or other offensive matter into a brook or watercourse so as to cause nuisance to the Plt (it being shown that it was possible for the board to abate the nuisance by physical means), see Charles v. Finchley Local Board, 23 Ch. D. 767; 8 May, 1883, A. 716.

As to whether the expression "permitting" can be rightly used in these cases, see notes, inf. p. 620.

2. Similar Order.

Let the Defts, the mayor &c., of H—, their servants &c., be restrained from causing or permitting to be made any new outfall into the brook H—, or any new sewer communicating with any outfall into such brook, or any drain or other communication with any such sewer, whereby any sewage water may pass into the H— brook; And Let also the said Defts, their servants &c., be (from and after the — day of —) restrained from causing or permitting the sewage of the borough of H— to flow or pass through outfall sewer A— or outfall sewer B— in the (information and bill) mentioned, or any new outfall into the said brook, unless and until the same shall be sufficiently purified and deodorised.—Defts to pay costs of suit.—A. G. v. Halifax Corp.,

V.-C. J., 8 July, 1869, A. 2040; 17 W. R. 1088. (See words added in A. G. v. Corp. of Leeds, sup., Form 1.)

The form of this order has been often adopted in similar cases: see North Staffordshire Ry. Co. v. Tunstall Local Board, 39 L. J. Ch. 131.

For an interlocutory injunction against opening any new drains by which any additional matter may be brought down, and from executing any works whereby the damage may be increased, see A. G. v. Luton Board, V.-C. W., 2 Jur. N. S. 180.

For order to restrain Defts from allowing any sewage to pass into the stream or otherwise, so as to become a nuisance, the operation of the order being suspended, see A. G. v. Heath, V.-C. W., 25 Nov. 1867, A. 3087.

For order restraining a local board from allowing any fresh communications to be made with a sewer constructed by their predecessors in office, which caused a nuisance to the inhabitants of the adjoining parish by draining into a stream flowing through their parish, unless such drainage should have been first purified from sewage matter, so as not to occasion any pollution to the stream in its passage through such parish, see A. G. v. Richmond, 2 Eq. 306.

For injunction to restrain the corp. of Bradford from causing or permitting any new outfall into the Bradford beck, or any new sewer communicating with any outfall into it, "whereby any sewage not effectually defecated shall pass into the river Aire so as to be a nuisance to the Plt," see Stansfield v. Corp. of Bradford, M. R., 5 March, 1875, B. 492.

For the like order restraining a local board from causing or permitting any sewage, filth, or offensive matter, solid or liquid, to be discharged, or to flow or pass into a brook—through any sewer, drain, or culvert within the district—to the injury of, or which may be or become a nuisance to Plts, see Birmingham Canal Co. v. Burman, V.-C. B., 25 Nov. 1872, B. 3032 (operation of order suspended for two months); and see S. C., before Kay, J., 63 L. T. 670.

For the like order, see Harrold v. Markham (Northampton case), V.-C. J., 16 July, 1869, A. 2411 (operation suspended until 1st June, 1870).

For the like order on motion for decree, see Bidder v. Richards, V.-C. W., 14 Jan. 1862, A. 109 (Croydon case).

For like injunction against the Governors of the County Lunatic Asylum at Colney Hatch, see A. G. v. The Colney Hatch Asylum, C. A., 22 Dec. 1868, A. 3187; 4 Ch. 146.

For injunction to restrain Defts from permitting the drainage from additional cottages or any buildings other than four old cottages to drain into a brook, see Metropolitan Board of Works v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 14 Ch. D. 521; 17 Ch. D. 246, C. A.

For injunction in the terms of an agreement by which the Defts agreed with Plt that they would not after the — day of—, "cause or permit the drains of the district under their control, or any of them, to discharge, nor shall they after that date discharge into the stream or watercourses flowing into the Oak beck, as in the pleadings mentioned, or into the said Oak beck, any sewage, sewage matters, or foul water whatsoever, or otherwise foul or pollute the water of the Oak beck," with inquiry as to damages occasioned to Plt in the operation of bleaching, and directions for payment of amount ascertained, and costs of suit, see Wood v. Harrogate Commissioners, V.-C. B., 3 June, 1874, B. 2497.

An inquiry, as in Heath v. Wallington, V.-C. W., 3 July, 1865, A. 1639, how the sewage can be dealt with so as not to occasion a nuisance to Plt, should not, it seems, be directed: see A. G. v. Colney Hatch Lunatic Asylum, 4 Ch. p. 162.

For judgment dismissing without costs action against vestry for pollution of watercourse by sewage, on the Defts by their counsel undertaking not to sanction the connection of any further houses with any drains running into either of the watercourses in the pleadings mentioned, see A. G. v. St. James, Clerkenwell, North, J., 21 July, 1891, A. 1077; (1891) 3 Ch. 527.

For dismissal of action for injunction in respect of apprehended nuisance, but without prejudice to the right of the Plt to bring another action thereafter, in case of actual injury, or imminent danger, see Fletcher v. Bealey, 28 Ch. D. 688.

3. Injunction against "directing or authorizing" Discharge of Sewage.

LET the Defts, the mayor &c. of the borough of &c., as the urban sanitary authority of the said borough, be restrained from directing or authorizing any sewage or foul matter to flow or to be discharged from sewers or drains vested in them as such sanitary authority on to D— Park in the pleadings mentioned.—See Brown v. Dunstable Corp., Cozens-Hardy, J., 19 May, 1899, A. 2032, (1899) 2 Ch. 378.

4. Pollution of Stream by Manufacturing Works.

LET the Defts, The S. Papermaking Co. (Ld.), their servants &c., be perpetually restrained from discharging from their works in the Plt's (bill) mentioned into the river or stream in the said (bill) also mentioned (so as to cause it to flow to the Plt's lands, messuages, and mills therein also mentioned, in a state less pure than that in which it flowed there previously to the establishment of the said works, to the injury of the Plt), any such refuse or other matter as was discharged by the Defts from their said works into the said river or stream previously to the (filing of the said bill) or any noxious fluid or other foul matters whatsoever.—Lingwood v. Stowmarket, &c. Co., V.-C. W., 15 Nov. 1865, B. 2220; 1 Eq. 77.

On motion to commit in this case inquiries were subsequently directed for the purpose of ascertaining whether the pouring into the stream, at the point where Deft's drain entered it, of a liquid of the same composition as that analysed by Dr. S. on behalf of Plt, would be sufficient to cause the pollution of water complained of at Plt's mill: S. C., 24 Jan. 1868, B. 255.

For order to stay pollution of stream above or within the limits of Plt's land, see Crossley v. Lightowler, L. C., 2 May, 1867, A. 1259, 2 Ch. 478.

For declaration that the Defts' Act did not legalise the fouling of a stream below a reservoir or store of water thereby authorized, and for injunction to stay them from so storing and discharging the water as to foul the water of the stream to the damage or injury of the owners and occupiers of Plt's dye works, see Clowes v. South Staffordshire Waterworks, 8 Ch. 125.

5. Inquiry as to Pollution from a given Date.

LET the following &c.: 1. An inquiry whether the matters now passing into T— brook from the M— mills cause any and what greater pollution, to the injury of the Plt, than was caused to the then owner of S— mills by the matters passing into the brook from M— mills immediately before the — day of —. 2. An inquiry whether Plt is entitled to any and what compensation in damages from Deft in respect of any nuisance occasioned to Plt before the completion of Deft's recent works by matters passing from the M— mills in excess of the matter passing into the brook from the M— mills immediately before the said — day of —.—Adjourn &c.—Cummins v. Herron, V.-C. W., 10 Dec. 1872, A. 3130.

For leave to apply in case of any subsequent pollution of a canal by sewage, Defts having, since information filed, diverted the sewage from the canal, and inquiry as to damages, see A. G. v. Basingstoke Corp., V.-C. H., 31 May, 1876, A. 1462; 24 W. R. 817.

NOTES.

The jurisdiction of restraining by summary order offences in respect of river pollution was by the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 75), ss. 10, 11, for the first time given to the county courts. But the jurisdiction which has been largely exercised by the Court of Chancery (and now by the Ch. Div) of restraining the pouring of sewage and other filth or refuse into a river so as to create a nuisance, has not been materially affected.

Injunctions have been obtained on behalf of the public (by information), see A. G. v. Leeds Corp., 5 Ch. 583, sup. Form 1, p. 615.

—on behalf of the public, and also of a riparian owner (by information and bill): see A. G. v. Halifax Corp., 17 W. R. 1088; 39 L. J. Ch. 129; 21 L. T. 52, sup., Form 2, p. 616; A. G. v. Birmingham Council, 4 K. & J. 528; A. G. v. Luton Board, 2 Jur. N. S. 180; —or on behalf of the riparian owner alone (by bill): Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Commrs, 1 Eq. 161; 1 Ch. 349; Spokes v. Banbury Board, 35 L. J. Ch. 105; L. R. 1 Eq. 42; affirmed 11 Jur. N. S. 1010; 13 L. T. 453; 14 W. R. 169; Crossley v. Lightowler, 3 Eq. 279; 2 Ch. 478; Baxendale v. McMurray, 2 Ch. 790; Holt v. Rochdale Corp., 18 W. R. 885; 39 L. J. Ch. 761; 10 Eq. 354; 25 L. T. 43; Bidder v. Croydon Local Board, 6 L. T. 778.

If the effect of drainage works has been to pollute the stream into which they fall, the fact that the local authority (or person) are using the best means in their power, or known to science, for purifying and deodorising the sewage or filth before passing it into the stream, has not saved them from the operation of an injunction, although their efforts to neutralize the evil have been taken into favourable consideration upon applications to suspend the operation of the injunction, or even upon motion to commit for breach of the injunction: A. G. v. Birmingham Council, 4 K. & J. 528; S. C., in a subsequent suit, 19 W. R. 561; A. G. v. Bradford Canal, 2 Eq. 71; A. G. v. Leeds Corp., 5 Ch. 583; Bidder v. Croydon Local Board, 6 L. T. 778.

In the absence of express power to create a nuisance, public bodies executing drainage works for the benefit of their district were bound to construct them so as not to create any nuisance nor to interfere with the right of the riparian owner to the enjoyment of pure water: A. G. v. Colney Hatch, 4 Ch. 146; A. G. v. Halifax Corp., 17 W. R. 1088; Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Commrs, 1 Eq. 161; 1 Ch. 349; Cator v. Lewisham Local Board, 5 B. & S. 115; Geddis v. Bann Reservoir, 3 App. Ca. 430; Bligh v. Rathangan Drainage Board (1898), 2 I. R. 205.

And see Public Health Act, 1875, s. 17, to the effect that local authorities are not authorized to send sewage or filthy water into any natural stream or watercourse, or into any canal, pond, or lake, until such sewage or filthy water is freed from all excrementitious or other foul or noxious matter, such as would affect or deteriorate the purity or quality of the water in such stream, &c.

Under this enactment a local board has been restrained from transgressing their powers by discharging sewage into a stream so as to affect the water at the point of outfall, although no case of actual nuisance had been established: A. G. v. Cockermouth Local Board, 18 Eq. 172; but under the powers of ss. 15 and 16 the local authority may discharge into a stream surface water conveyed by surface sewers though it carries down sand and silt, such water not being "sewage or filthy water" within s. 17: Durrant v. Branksome Urban District Council, (1897) 2 Ch. 291, C. A. And see A. G. v. Shrewsbury, &c. Bridge Co., 21 Ch. D. 754, as to the right of action by A. G. on behalf of public to restrain illegal acts tending to injury of public, without evidence of actual injury.

But if parliamentary powers to drain, &c. cannot be executed without causing some nuisance, the Court has declined to interfere (A. G. v. Thames Conservators, 1 H. & M. 1), unless the works, though within the statutory powers, occasion injury from their negligent and unskilful construction: A. G. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 1 H. & M. 298. Where the nuisance has not been caused or increased by any act on the part of the local board, but has arisen merely from delay or neglect in providing a proper system of drainage, the remedy is not by injunction indirectly, but by mandamus directly compelling a performance of the statutory powers: Glossop v. Heston Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 102, C. A.; A. G. v. Dorking Guardians, 20 Ch. D. 595, C. A.; Warwick and Birmingham Canal Navigation v. Burman, 63 L. T. 670; A. G. v. Clerkenwell Vestry, (1891) 3 Ch. 527.

And in view of the absolute right conferred on a householder by s. 21 of the Public Health Act, 1875, to connect their drains with a sewer subject only to the regulations duly prescribed by the local authority, see Ainley v. Kirkheaton Local Board, 22 Ch. D. 221; Graham v. Wroughton, 70 L. J. Ch. 673, the Court refused to restrain a local board from "permitting" sewage to pass into a natural watercourse, where such an injunction might compel them to stop up drains or sewers which had been made from houses in their district: A. G. v. Acton Local Board, 22 Ch. D. 221; A. G. v. Clerkenwell Vestry, sup.; Brown v. Dunstable Corporation, (1899) 2 Ch. 378, where the Defts were simply restrained from "directing or authorizing" any sewage or foul matter to flow or to be discharged from sewers vested in them on to the Plt's lands; secus, where the board had power physically to stop the flow of sewage complained of: Charles v. Finchley Local Board, 23 Ch. D. 767; but see this case observed upon in Brown v. Dunstable Corporation, sup.

A prescriptive right to drain through a sewer does not confer a right to pour in as much sewage as the sewer will hold, and an excessive user may be restrained: Metropolitan Board of Works v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 17 Ch. D. 246, C. A.; and see A. G. v. Acton Local Board, sup.; Charles v. Finchley Local Board, sup.

But the right may extend to the discharge of trade and manufacturing effluents into the public sewer: Eastwood v. Honley Urban Council, (1900) 1 Ch. 701; (1901) 1 Ch. 645, C. A.; Peebles v. Oswaldtwistle Urban Council, (1897) 1 Q. B. 384 (per Charles, J.).

As to the effect of the exception from s. 13 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (vesting sewers in the local authority), of "a sewer made by any person for his own profit," see Sykes v. Sowerby District Council, (1900) 1 Q. B. 584, C. A.; Croysdale v. Sunbury-on-Thames District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 515; Vowles v. Colmer, W. N. (1895) 42; 64 L. J. Ch. 414; Minehead Local Board v. Luttrell, (1894) 2 Ch. 178; Ferrand v. Hullas Land and Building Co., (1893) 2 Q. B. 135, C. A.; Bonella v. Twickenham Board of Health; Holmes v. The Same, 24 Q. B. D. 63, C. A.; Acton Local Board v. Batten, 28 Ch. D. 283.

The duty of a local board to keep their sewers so as not to be a nuisance is not absolute, but they are bound to use all reasonable care and diligence: Bateman v. Poplar Board of Works, 37 Ch. D. 272; and an injunction will not be granted if they could not, with reasonable care, have discovered that a drain was a sewer for which they were responsible: S. C.

Considerations of expense and inconvenience to the local board, or the interests of a large and increasing population, as contrasted with the health and property of individual owners, have not been allowed to affect the right to relief by injunction. A local board, in performing their statutory duties, must do so without doing injury to their neighbours, or throwing upon them any additional burden: A. G. v. Acton Local Board, 22 Ch. D. 222. And if, after all possible experiments, the town or district cannot be drained without causing private injury, the local board must, it has been stated, apply to Parliament for further powers, authorizing them to take the land of the person injured, or to commit the nuisance: see A. G. v. Colney Hatch, 4 Ch. 146; A. G. v. Luton Board, 2 Jur. N. S. 180; A. G. v. Birmingham Council, 4 K. & J. 528; A. G. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 1 H. & M. 298; Spokes v. Banbury Local Board, 1 Eq. 42.

But to induce the Court to interfere, on the ground of individual injury, with the carrying out a great public undertaking, such as the drainage of a town, there must be a case of serious and permanent damage, actual or imminent: A. G. v. Gee, 10 Eq. 131; Lillywhite v. Trimmer, 15 W. R. 763; A. G. v. Sheffield Gas Co., 3 D. M. & G. 304; A. G. v. Dorking Guardians, 20 Ch. D. 595, 607, C. A.; Glossop v. Heston Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 102, C. A.; and see Earl of Ripon v. Hobart, 3 My. & K. 179; and not merely probable or apprehended: A. G. v. Kingston-on-Thames Corporation, 13 W. R. 888; 11 Jur. N.S. 596; 12 L. T. 665; A. G. v. Manchester Corporation, (1893) 2 Ch. 87; but where the Defts insist upon a right to continue the injury in future an injunction may be granted, though no substantial damage is shown: A. G. v. Acton Local Board, 22 Ch. D. 222; and where there is apprehension of such injury in future, although no injunction is granted, an undertaking may be required from the public authority against sanctioning future drainage: A. G. v. Clerkenwell Vestry, (1891) 3 Ch. 527.

Injunction, and not damages, is the proper relief in river pollution cases, distinguished in this respect from ancient light cases, where damages represent the depreciation in value of the property affected: see Pennington v. Brinsop Coal Co., 5 Ch. D. 769.

The remedy by injunction of private persons injured was not superseded by the right of prosecution, under direction of the Home Secretary, given by the Metropolitan Local Management Amendment Act, 1858 (21 & 22 V. c. 104), s. 31: A. G. v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 1 H. & M. 298.

And the right to obtain summary relief by injunction against a local board is not affected by the absence of one month's notice before taking proceedings, required by 25 & 26 V. c. 102, s. 106 (re-enacted in substance by Public Health Act, 1875, s. 264): A. G. v. Hackney Local Board, 20 Eq. 626; Bateman v. Poplar Board of Works, 33 Ch. D. 630, C. A.; Chapman v. Auckland Union, 23 Q. B. D. 94, C. A.; unless the remedy sought is substantially damages, and not an injunction: Flower v. Leyton Local Board, 5 Ch. D. 347; and still remains unaffected under the new procedure: Baker v. Wisbech Corporation, W. N. (77) 56; but see now the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893; Dan. 259.

And where the action is substantially for an injunction, the Court can give damages in lieu; but quære whether damages for the past can be given in the absence of the notice: Chapman v. Auckland Union, sup.

And sect. 107 of the Public Health Act, 1875, empowering a local board to "cause any proceedings to be taken" for repression of nuisance does not enable them, in absence of special damage, to sue in respect of a public nuisance without the A. G.: Wallasey Local Board v. Gracey, 36 Ch. D. 393; distinguishing Nuneaton Local Board v. Gen. Sewage Co., 20 Eq. 127; Tottenham Urban District Council v. Williamson & Sons, (1896) 2 Q. B. 353, C. A.; and parish council cannot in their own name, without the A. G., maintain an action to enforce a right of the inhabitants of the parish to the use of a well or spring of water: Stoke Parish Council v. Price, (1899) 2 Ch. 277.

Injunctions against a public body (restraining river pollution) do not run with the land, so as to justify an action for a declaration that, as against the parliamentary successors of the former Defts, Plts are entitled to the benefit of the former order (of which no breach was alleged): A. G. v. Birmingham Drainage Board, 17 Ch. D. 685, C. A.; A. G. v. Guardians of Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 595, C. A.

By the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 69, local authorities may, "with the sanction of the A. G.," "take proceedings by indictment, bill in Chancery, action, or otherwise, for the purpose of protecting any watercourse within their jurisdiction from pollutions arising from sewage either within or without their district"; and the costs of such proceedings, including costs to be awarded to Deft, "shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority in the execution of the Act."

The Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 75), by sect. 2 prohibits the putting, or causing, or knowingly permitting to be put, or to fall into any stream, so as to pollute its waters, "any putrid solid matter," and by sect. 20 of the Act "solid matter" shall not include particles of matter in suspension in water. By sect. 17, the Act "shall not apply to or affect the lawful exercise of any rights of impounding or diverting water." As to the effect of this section see River Ribble Joint Committee v. Halliwell, (1899) 2 Q. B. 385, C. A.

With respect to gas pollution, a penalty of £200 is imposed by the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 68, for every offence of causing water to be fouled by gas washings, or any act connected with the making or supplying of gas, with the further penalty, after twenty-four hours' notice from the local authority or person to whom the water belongs, of £20 for every day during which the offence is committed, or during the continuance of the act whereby the water is fouled.

"Circumstances and requirements of the locality" have been taken into consideration by the Courts in cases of nuisance in manufacturing districts; though not to the extent of exempting persons carrying on the trade or manufacture by which the nuisance is created from liability in respect of substantial injury to property: see this question discussed in Salvin v. North Brancepeth Co., 9 Ch. 705; St. Helen's Co. v. Tipping, 11 H. L. C. 642.

And see Crossley v. Lightowler, 2 Ch. 478, that the fact that a stream has been fouled by others in the district (manufacturing) is no defence to a suit to restrain the fouling by one; as the riparian owner may take action against each contributor singly: Blair v. Deakin, 57 L. T. 522.

The fact that the local authority complaining may have contributed to the existence of the nuisance does not prevent proceedings by them under 18 & 19 V. c. 121, s. 12, in respect of a discharge of chemical matter into a public sewer, the effect of which is to produce sulphuretted hydrogen gas: St. Helen's Co. v. St. Helen's Corp., 1 Ex. D. 196, C. A.

In granting injunctions against river pollution, the practice has been to grant an immediate injunction restraining any new communications, but as to existing drains, to suspend the operation of the order for a longer or shorter period, to enable the Defts to comply with the order by altering their works.

In Spokes v. Banbury Local Board the operation of the order was suspended from 6th March to 1st July, 1865: Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Commrs., 1 Eq. 161; 1 Ch. 349 (from 24th November, 1866, to 31st January, 1868); A. G. v. Bradford Canal, 2 Eq. 71 (eight months); A. G. v. Colney Hatch Asylum, 4 Ch. 146 (five months); A. G. v. Halifax Corporation, 17 W. R. 1088; 39 L. J. Ch. 129; 21 L. T. 52 (8th July, 1869, to 1st June, 1870); A. G. v. Leeds Corporation, 5 Ch. 583 (2nd March, 1870, to end of the Parliamentary Session of 1871); A. G. v. Birmingham Council, 19 W. R. 561 (9th of March, 1871, to 2nd seal day in Michaelmas Term); Pennington v. Brinsop Coal Co., 5 Ch. D. 769 (three months).

Liberty to apply for a further suspension of the injunction is sometimes reserved: see A. G. v. Colney Hatch, sup.

And if not reserved, further time is usually granted on the terms of paying the costs of the application.

An application for the further suspension of an injunction should be made to the Judge to whose Court the action is attached: Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., Meux's Brewery Co. v. The Same, (1895) 2 Ch. 388, C. A.

Where the action was by one local authority against another in respect of undue use of the Plts' sewer by the Defts, the Court, having regard to the conduct of the Plts and the difficulty in which an injunction would place the Defts, only made in præsentia a declaration that the Defts were not entitled to send sewage into the Plts' sewer without their consent, but gave liberty to Plts to apply to the Judge at the end of twelve months for an injunction: Islington Vestry v. Hornsey Urban Council, (1900) 1 Ch. 695, 707, C. A.

Non-compliance with the order, after reasonable time has been given to the Defts, has been punished as contempt of Court by sequestration: Spokes v. Banbury Local Board, 1 Eq. 42; Heath v. Wallington, V.-C. W., 17 Jan. 1867, A. 210; Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Commrs, M. R., 1 Aug. 1867, A. 2538.

In this case the order for sequestration, after having been suspended during the progress of the Defts' works in order to prevent the nuisance, was supplemented by an order declaring that the Defts were liable to make good all damage occasioned to Plt's estate since the date of the injunction, caused by the discharge or flow from the town, &c., into the brook or stream, &c., of sewage or other offensive matter, with a direction that the amount be ascertained, and paid by Defts to Plt: S. C., 2 July, 1872, A. 3293; W. N. (72) 163.

Bentley*, V.-C. W., 16 Mar. 1866, A. 519; 14 W. R. 630.

For injunction restraining the use of the word "frigidomo" as trade mark for any baize or other material intended to be used for horticultural or similar purposes, and not manufactured by or for the Plts, or selected by them, see Re Edgington, E. v. E., 61 L. T. 323.

W. & Co., Limtd, without clearly distinguishing such business from the business of the Plt, and from publishing advertisements or issuing circulars in the name of G. S. W. & Co., Limtd, without clearly distinguishing therein, their business from the business of the Plt, and from otherwise representing in any way that their business is the business or a branch of the business of the Plt. Defts to pay Plt's costs.—Wolmershausen v. Wolmershausen & Co., Limited, Chitty, J., May 13th, 1892, B. 614; W. N. (92) 87.

UPON appeal from the order dated the 18th July, 1884, by counsel for the Defts, and upon hearing counsel for the Plts, and upon reading &c., Let the said order dated the 18th July, 1884, be discharged; And Let the Defts be perpetually restrained from issuing policies in their present name or any other name in which the words "The Accident" come first; And the Defts by their counsel undertaking to call the requisite meetings for the purpose of passing a resolution for altering their present name into "The Disease, Accident and General Insurance Corporation, Limited," or to some other name in which the words "The Accident" shall not be the two first words; Let the Defts pay Plts' costs of appeal.—Stay all proceedings.—The Accident Ins. Co., Ltd. v. The Accident, Disease and General Ins. Corp., Ltd., C. A., 9 August, 1884, A. 1337.

16. Inquiry as to Damages in Trade Mark Action—Common Form.

AN inquiry what damages, if any, the Plt has sustained or incurred, and to what amount, by reason of the Deft's infringement of the Plt's said trade mark.—See Davenport v. Rylands, L. R. 1 Eq. 302.

NOTES.

PATENTS, DESIGNS AND TRADE MARKS ACT, 1883.

By the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Registration Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 57), the Trade Marks Registration Acts of 1875, 1876 and 1877, are by sect. 113 repealed, with the usual saving clause; by Part IV. of the Act, sects. 62—71, provision is made for the registration of trade marks (as to which, v. inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS"), and by sect. 77, "a person shall not be entitled to institute any proceeding to prevent or to recover damages for the infringement of a trade mark unless, in the case of a trade mark capable of being registered under the Act, it has been registered in pursuance of this Act, or of an enactment repealed by this Act, or, in the case of any other trade mark in use before the 13th of August, 1875, registration thereof under this part of this Act, or of an enactment repealed by this Act, has been refused," and the comptroller is empowered to grant a certificate that such registration has been refused.

The effect of this section is, that in the case of a trade mark which is capable of registration, and which has not been registered, no action for an injunction or damages for infringement will lie: Goodfellow v. Prince, 35 Ch. D. 9; C. A.; but the Act in no way interferes with the exercise by a Court of Equity of its established jurisdiction in respect of an actionable infringement or unfair use of a trade mark or name: see Mitchell v. Henry, 15 Ch. D. 181, C. A.; and see Jay v. Ladler, 40 Ch. D. 649; Hart v. Colley, 44 Ch. D. 193.

INFRINGEMENT OF TRADE MARK—RIGHT TO INJUNCTION.

The principle on which Courts of Equity have interfered to protect the use of a trade mark is, that when one man has established a trade in an article, for which he has been the first to appropriate some particular—it may be fanciful or geographical—name (M'Andrew v. Bassett, 4 D. J. & S. 380), or some particular mark or label under which the article has acquired reputation, another man will not be allowed to sell a similar article under the same or a closely resembling title, so as to deceive the public into the belief that they are buying from the man who has first acquired reputation for his goods under the particular title, i.e., one man will not be allowed to pass off his goods as those of another: see Perry v. Truefitt, 6 Beav. 73; Millington v. Fox, 3 My. & Cr. 338; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Loog, 18 Ch. D. 395, C. A.; 8 App. Ca. 15, 29; Turton v. T., 42 Ch. D. 128, C. A.; Payton v. Snelling, (1901) A. C. 308, H. L.; as by the use of a name which has become in the trade the designation of the goods sold by a particular trader, although in its primary meaning the name so taken is merely a true description of the goods: Reddaway v. Banham, (1896) A. C. 199, H. L. (the "Camel's Hair Belting" case); Birmingham Vinegar Brewery Co. v. Powell, (1897) A. C. 710, H. L. (the "Yorkshire Relish" case); Sarlechner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893; and even though the reputation of the name has been acquired by the exertions or enterprise of the rival trader as an importer and vendor on behalf of the Plt: Sarlechner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893. But a name which has acquired reputation in the market may be used by a subsequent manufacturer for the purpose of showing that his goods are manufactured on the same principle, provided he announces the goods as of his own manufacture, and does not lead the public to believe that they have been made by the original inventor of the name, or his successors in trade: Singer Co. v. Loog, sup.; Massam v. Thorley's Cattle Food Co., 14 Ch. D. 748, C. A.; Singer Co. v. Wilson, 2 Ch. D. 434, C. A.; and see Edelsten v. Vick, 11 Ha. 71; Hirst v. Denham, 14 Eq. 542; Young v. Mucrae, 9 Jur. N. S. 322; Liebig, &c. Co. v. Hanbury, 17 L. T. 298; and provided also that the name has not acquired a secondary or special meaning, within the principle of Reddaway v. Banham, sup.; and a word which is merely descriptive of the articles sold may be used by any trader, provided he does not lead the public to think that the articles so described are the manufacture of another trader: Re Leonard and Ellis' T. M., 26 Ch. D. 288, C. A.; Cellular Clothing Co. v. Marton and Murray, (1899) A. C. 326, H. L. (Sc.); Parsons v. Gillespie, (1898) A. C. 239, P. C. (the "Flaked Oatmeal" case).

In order to obtain protection, there must have been exclusive public user of the trade mark or name, though not necessarily for any long period: see Sebastian on Trade Marks, 86; Kerr, 395; but now, by the Patents, &c. Act, 1888, s. 17, application for registration of a trade mark is to be deemed equivalent to public use of the trade mark, and the date of the application is, as from the 1st of January, 1876, to be deemed to have been the date of registration; and by sect. 76 of the Act of 1883 (in continuation of sect. 3 of the Act of 1875), the registration of a person as proprietor of a trade mark shall be prima facie evidence of his right to the exclusive use of the trade mark, and shall, after five years from registration, be conclusive evidence of his right to such exclusive use, subject to the provisions of the Act. The effect of these enactments is not to give an exclusive right of user by five years' registration, but to relieve the proprietor in an action for infringement from adducing evidence of exclusive user: Edwards v. Dennis, 30 Ch. D. 454, C. A.; Re Wragg's T. M., 29 Ch. D. 551; Re Palmer's Application, 21 Ch. D. 47, C. A.; Re Hudson's T. M., 32 Ch. D. 311, C. A.; Hargreave v. Freeman, (1891) 3 Ch. 39.

The exclusive right (when established) to the use of a particular name or mark in connection with a particular class of goods will, as property, be protected by injunction: Hall v. Barrows, 4 D. J. & S. 150; Ainsworth v. Walmsley, 1 Eq. 508; Anglo-Swiss Milk Co. v. Metcalf, 31 Ch. D. 454; and the injury to the owner's trade by the wilful and fraudulent adoption of his name or mark, or by such a description by the Deft of his goods as to induce the belief that they are goods manufactured by the Plt, will also be compensated by relief in damages or an account of profits: Ford v. Foster, 7 Ch. 611; Edelsten v. E., 1 D. J. & S. 185; Lee v. Haley, 5 Ch. 155; Seizo v. Provezende, 1 Ch. 192; Burgess v. B., 3 D. M. & G. 896; and for a general discussion of the principles on which relief is granted in these cases, see Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Wilson, 2 Ch. D. 434; 3 App. Ca. 376; Goodfellow v. Prince, 35 Ch. D. 9, C. A.

It is material (especially on motion for interlocutory injunction: Brown v. Freeman, 12 W. R. 305), but not essential (Johnston v. Orr-Ewing, 7 App. Ca. 219) that the public has been actually deceived; it is sufficient if it be shown that the particular name or mark has been adopted with an intention to deceive, or that the use of it is calculated to deceive uncautious purchasers: Johnston v. Orr-Ewing, sup.; Singer Co. v. Loog, 18 Ch. D. 395, 413; S. C., 8 App. Ca. 15; Cope v. Evans, 18 Eq. 138; Wotherspoon v. Currie, L. R. 5 H. L. 508; Hirst v. Denham, 14 Eq. 542; Woollam v. Ratcliff, 1 H. & M. 259; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Wilson, sup.; Bradbury v. Beeton, 18 W. R. 33; Wilkinson v. Griffith, 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 370; as the principle is that a man is responsible for the reasonable consequences of his action: Hendriks v. Montague, 17 Ch. D. 638, C. A.; but if a substantial and material part of another's trade mark has been appropriated, the appro-priator is bound to take such precautions as will avoid the reasonable probability of deception, and the onus lies on him to show that purchasers will not be deceived: Orr-Ewing v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, C. A.; S. C., 8 App. Ca. 15.

The fact that the name used is the name of the place at which the goods are manufactured or sold will not avail as a defence if the user has been adopted under circumstances calculated to deceive: Wotherspoon v. Currie, L. R. 5 H. L. 508; Thompson v. Montgomery, 41 Ch. D. 35; and original honesty of intention does not protect continued user if such user is found to deceive or is calculated to deceive: Mitchell v. Henry, 15 Ch. D. 181, C. A.; Orr-Ewing v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, C. A.; S. C., 7 App. Ca. 219; Singer Co. v. Wilson, 3 App. Ca. 376.

And the use, for the sale of a man's goods, of bottles, &c., indelibly stamped with the name of a manufacturer of similar goods, will be restrained, even though the man so using such bottles places on them his own label; Rose v. Loftus, 47 L. J. Ch. 576; 38 L. T. 409; and see Jay v. Ladler, 40 Ch. D. 649, that an injunction will be granted to restrain a tradesman from advertising his goods as those of another, though it has not been proved that any one has been deceived.

And although there is no actual assumption by the Deft of any mark or name, or individual thing in which the Plt has a monopoly, yet if he uses such a combination as to constitute a "fraudulent dress" calculated to deceive purchasers (e.g., by selling soap in wrappers or packets closely resembling those in which the soap of the Plt is sold), an injunction will go to prevent him from passing off his goods as those of the Plt: Lever v. Goodwin, 36 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; and see Lever v. Bedingfield, 80 L. T. 100, C. A.

But in Farina v. Silverlock, 6 D. M. & G. 214, the possible use for a legitimate purpose of spurious trade labels manufactured by Deft was held ground for dissolving the injunction, with liberty to Plt to bring an action.

And see Delondre v. Shaw, 2 Sim. 237, that fraud "will not be intended where none is alleged."

The fact that one person has been deceived is not conclusive as to misrepresentation: Coles v. Civil Service Assoc., 13 Ch. D. 512.

And in the absence of any attempt by the Deft to pass off his system as the Plt's, and of evidence of actual damage, the Court ought not to interfere by way of interlocutory injunction to prevent the circulation of misleading advertisements: Tallerman v. Dowsing Radiant Heat Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 1, C. A.; explaining Frankes v. Weaver, 10 Beav. 297; 8 L. T. O. S. 510; and Batty v. Hill, 1 H. & M. 264.

Where there has been delay by Plt, clearer proof of fraudulent intent and of actual injury will be required: Rodgers v. R., 22 W. R. 887; 31 L. T. 285; but see Fullwood v. F., 9 Ch. D. 176, that the right, being a legal right, capable of being enforced by action of deceit, mere delay short of the statutory period will not affect the right to an injunction.

And in order to establish the right to relief, it is not necessary to show that the Deft has made a false representation to the immediate purchaser (ex. gr., retail dealers to whom the goods have been supplied); it is sufficient that he has enabled such purchaser to deceive the ultimate customer: Singer Co. v. Loog, 18 Ch. D. 395, 413, C. A.; S. C., 8 App. Ca. 15; Lever v. Goodwin, 36 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; Orr-Ewing v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, 453, C. A.; S. C., 7 App. Ca. 219; Condy v. Taylor, 56 L. T. 891; Edelsten v. E., 1 D. J. & S. 185; Sykes v. S., 3 B. & C. 541; and accordingly he must account for profits made by his sale of the articles calculated to deceive, irrespectively of whether the actual purchasers were deceived: Lever v. Goodwin, sup.

Where a trade mark or name had been used in ignorance of the right of the first appropriator, an injunction was granted, but not an account of profits or compensation in damages, except in respect of user by Deft after knowledge of Plt's prior right: Edelsten v. E., 1 D. J. & S. 185; Moet v. Couston, 33 Beav. 578 (reversing in this respect Cartier v. Carlisle, 31 Beav. 292); but see Saxlehner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893.

Though a trade mark or name has been used in ignorance of the right of the first appropriator, an injunction may be granted: Millington v. Fox, 3 My. & C. 358; Welch v. Knott, 4 K. & J. 747; Reddaway v. Bentham Hemp Spinning Co., 9 Rep. Pat. Ca. 503; it not being necessary to aver or prove fraud in order to obtain protection for a trade mark: Singer, &c. Co. v. Wilson, 3 App. Ca. 376, 391; and however honest or inadvertent the original use of another's mark may have been, the continued use after complaint made is sufficient proof of fraudulent intention: Orr-Ewing & Co. v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, C. A.; 7 App. Ca. 219. If the Deft's goods are ex facie calculated to deceive, evidence to prove the intention to deceive is inadmissible as being unnecessary: Saxlehner v. Apollinaris Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 893; where an account of profits was directed, as a necessary consequence, in the form allowed in Lever v. Goodwin, 36 Ch. D. 1; 4 Rep. Pat. Ca. 492 (Form 7, p. 626), although there was no evidence that the Deft's goods had been actually mistaken for the Plt's: S. C.

Past user, discontinued long before action, of infringing machines found not to work well, is not evidence of intention to infringe again: Proctor v. Bayly, 42 Ch. D. 390, C. A.; distinguishing Millington v. Fox, 3 My. & Cr. 338; Geary v. Newton, 1 D. G. & S. 9.

Mere length of adverse user will not make a mark publici juris, when such user was originally fraudulent and is still calculated to deceive: Re Heaton's T. M., 27 Ch. D. 570; and as to inadmissibility to registration of marks calculated to deceive, v. inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS."

By the Act of 1883, s. 65, a trade mark must be registered for particular goods or classes of goods, and the registration of a mark for one class will not entitle the proprietor to restrain the use of the mark in connection with goods in a different class: Hart v. Colley, 44 Ch. D. 193; where, however, an injunction was granted to restrain the Deft from passing off his goods as those of the Plt.

Although similarity of colour will not be taken into consideration in deciding questions of piracy of trade marks (Nuttall v. Vining, 28 W. R. 300), the fact that colour was not protected by the Act of 1875, was important upon the question of registration: Re Worthington's T. M., 14 Ch. D. 8; and v. inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS"; and the understanding of the trade and evidence of experts must be taken into consideration upon questions of infringement: see Mitchell v. Henry, 15 Ch. D. 181, C. A.

MISREPRESENTATIONS BY PLAINTIFF.

Misrepresentations on his label have been held to disentitle a Plt to relief against infringers: see, on this question, Leather Cloth Co. v. American Leather Cloth Co., 11 H. L. C. 523; Flavel v. Harrison, 10 Hare, 467; Edelsten v. Vick, 11 Hare, 78; Pidding v. Howe, 8 Sim. 477; Perry v. Truefitt, 6 Beav. 66; Morgan v. M'Adam, 36 L. J. Ch. 228; Lamplough v. Balmer, W. N. (67) 293 (unauthorized use of words "Patent" or "Royal Letters Patent"); Chicavin v. Walker, 5 Ch. D. 850; Newman v. Pinto, 57 L. T. 31.

But the misrepresentation may be condoned by long usage and reputation in the trade; e.g., the use of the word "patent" to describe articles known under that title by trade usage, or articles for which the patent has expired: Marshall v. Ross, 8 Eq. 651.

And see this question discussed in Ford v. Foster, 7 Ch. 611, where that which is merely a collateral misrepresentation is distinguished from false representation in the mark or fraud in the trade itself, which, if systematic and intentional, would disentitle Plt to relief: Lee v. Haley, 5 Ch. 153; Morgan v. M'Adam, sup.

The use of the words "trade mark" on goods in connection with an unregistered mark does not necessarily imply registration so as to disentitle the trader to relief in an action to restrain the imitation of the get-up of his goods: Sen Sen Co. v. Britten, (1899) 1 Ch. 692; and see Hubbuck v. Brown, W. N. (99) 250, commenting on Lewis v. Goodbody, 67 L. T. 194.

A trader was not disentitled to relief merely because he had printed on his label the words "manufactured in Ireland by H. M. Royal Letters Patent," these words having reference to patented machinery, and not necessarily representing that the ingredients were patented: Cochrane v. Macnish & Son, (1896) A. C. 225, P. C.

Where the Plt failed to establish any title to relief, and the substances used by both parties were intended to be used to deceive the public, no costs were given to the Deft: Estcourt v. Estcourt Hop Co., 10 Ch. 276; Merchant Banking Co. v. Merchants' Joint Stock Co., 9 Ch. D. 560.

And now, by the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 73 (as amended by Patents, &c. Act, 1888, s. 15), it shall not be lawful to register as part of, or in combination with, a trade mark any words the use of which would, by reason of their being calculated to deceive or otherwise, be deemed disentitled to protection in a Court of justice, or any scandalous designs.

PARTIES ENTITLED TO SUE.

A part-owner of trade marks can sue alone for injunction, erasure, and his share of profits: Dent v. Turpin, 2 J. & H. 139; and an assignee can sue before the assignment has been registered: Ihlee v. Henshaw, 31 Ch. D. 323.

A foreign manufacturer may obtain an injunction for the infringement of his trade marks in this country, and an account: Collins Co. v. Brown, 3 K. & J. 423; secus, persons who have merely obtained an exclusive right to sell the goods in England: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867.

But the use of a trade mark affixed to goods imported, and not manufactured, by Plt, who is not shown to have an exclusive contract for their supply, will not be restrained by interlocutory injunction: Hirsch v. Jonas, 45 L. J. Ch. 364; 3 Ch. D. 584; 35 L. T. 228.

A mere assignment of the right to use a trade name "in gross," i.e., unconnected with any business, is invalid: Thorneloe v. Hill, (1894) 1 Ch. 569; Pinto v. Budman, 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 181.

A trade name does not exist "in gross," so as to give the purchasers from the trustee of a bankrupt of his interest in a sauce, the secret of which they did not acquire, any right to restrain the original inventor from manufacturing the sauce, of which he alone knows the recipe, under the original title: Cotton v. Gillard, 44 L. J. Ch. 90.

And where the secret of a recipe has been acquired by a person without unfair means, he will not be restrained from selling the compound under the original title, so long as he does not lead the public to believe that his preparation is the only genuine one: James v. J., 13 Eq. 421; or prepared by the successors in business of the original discoverer: Massam v. Thorley's Cattle Food Co., 6 Ch. D. 574; 14 Ch. D. 748; but after the death of his employer, from whom he has learnt the secret, he has no exclusive right to the use of the name: Hovenden v. Lloyd, 18 W. R. 1132.

Upon the question whether, on the sale of a business and goodwill, the trade marks will pass, see Shipwright v. Clements, 19 W. R. 599; Hall v. Barrows, 4 D. J. & S. 150; Bury v. Bedford, 4 D. J. & S. 352.

The mortgagee of a business, and the right to use the trade name, who has never used the name, cannot restrain purchasers of the business from the mortgagor from using the name: Beazley v. Soares, 22 Ch. D. 660.

An action for infringement of trade mark, account, and damages may be continued by the exors of the proprietor after his death: Oakey & Sons v. Dalton, 35 Ch. D. 700.

And by the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 65, a trade mark must be registered for particular goods or classes of goods, and (by sect. 70) when registered, shall be assigned and transmitted only in connection with the goodwill of the business concerned in such particular goods or classes of goods, and shall be determinable with that goodwill.

And as to the right of the owner of a business, after sale or assignment of the goodwill, to carry on the similar business, provided that he does not represent that he is carrying on or continuing the identical business sold, or from which he has retired, v. inf. Sect. X., "PARTNERS."

A right to use a name in connection with the sale of watches was held to be lost by a grant to watchmakers for seven years of the sole right to put the name on the watches made by them and no resumption of the right for many years after the expiration of the seven years: Thorneloe v. Hill, sup.

ACCOUNT—DAMAGES—INSPECTION.

As to the account of profits, v. sup. pp. 632, 633.

With respect to the account and damages, special damage must be proved; it will not be held that goods sold by the Deft would, in the absence of such user, have been sold by Plt: Leather Cloth Co. v. Hirschfeld, 1 Eq. 299; and the inquiry is "What damage, if any," &c.; not, as in patent cases, "What damage," &c.: see Davenport v. Rylands, 1 Eq. 308; followed in Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542.

Discovery as to sales by Deft, and production of his books, will not be granted until the Plt has made his election between damages and an account of profits: Fennessy v. Clark, 37 Ch. D. 184, C. A.; and v. sup. Chap. VII., p. 88.

Inspection by the Judge of the article complained of (e.g., a rival omnibus) under O. L. 4, must be supplemented by, and not substituted for, evidence: London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, (1901) 1 Ch. 135, C. A.

COSTS.

The duty of an innocent consignee of goods bearing a spurious label, and the steps he should take to avoid liability to costs in a suit by the injured owner, are discussed in Upmann v. Elkan, 12 Eq. 140; 7 Ch. 130. And see Burgess v. Hills, 26 Beav. 244; Hunt v. Manière, 34 Beav. 157.

Such a consignee, being a wrongdoer, must pay the costs of the action, though he disclaims all intention of selling, and offers all the relief asked immediately on being served with the writ: Upmann v. Forester, 24 Ch. D. 231; Fennessy v. Day, 55 L. T. 161; and see Adair v. Young, 12 Ch. D. 13, C. A.; Neilson v. Betts, L. R. 5 H. L. 1; Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 301; but a retail dealer innocently purchasing and selling a small quantity of counterfeit goods will not necessarily be ordered to pay the costs of an action for infringement: American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, (1892) 1 Ch. 630.

Innocent consignees of goods bearing a spurious label or trade mark are entitled to a lien on the goods for their charges in priority to any claim of Plts (the owners of the trade mark) for their costs: Moet v. Pickering, 8 Ch. D. 372, C. A. (reversing 6 Ch. D. 770); and see Ponsardin v. Peto, 33 Beav. 642.

By the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 77 (a) (Patents, &c. Act, 1888, s. 18). in an action for infringement of a registered trade mark the Court or a Judge may certify that the right to the exclusive use of the trade mark came in question, and if the Court or a Judge so certifies, then in any subsequent action for infringement the Plt in that action, on obtaining a final order or judgment in his favour, shall have his full costs, charges, and expenses as between solr and client, unless the Court or Judge trying the subsequent action certifies that he ought not to have the same.

The certificate may be granted although the validity of the trade mark, by lapse of five years from registration (v. sup. p. 632), is unimpeachable except by motion for rectification, if such a motion is made, and comes on for trial together with the action for infringement: Field & Co. v. Wagel Syndicate, (1900) 1 Ch. 651.

TRADE NAME.

As to the distinction between trade mark and trade name, see Goodfellow v. Prince, 35 Ch. D. 9, C. A.; Borthwick v. Evening Post, 37 Ch. D. 449, C. A.; and that the owner of a publication claiming an injunction to restrain the issue of another publication with a similar name, must show probability not only of the public being deceived, but of injury to himself from such deception, see Borthwick v. Evening Post, sup.; and see Walter v. Emmot, 54 L. J. Ch. 1059; 53 L. T. 437.

The right of a man to use his own name in trade cannot be interfered with merely because the public may probably be misled by reason of its similarity to, or identity with, the name of another trader engaged in the same business: Turton v. T., 42 Ch. D. 128, C. A.; Tussaud v. T., 44 Ch. D. 678; but a man will not be permitted to lend his name to a new co. for the purpose of carrying on a business similar to an old-established business carried on under the same name: Tussaud v. T., sup.; and see Re Brinsmead & Sons, (1897) 1 Ch. 45; Ib. 406, C. A.; Jameson v. Dublin Distillers Co. (1900), 1 Ir. R. 43; Cash v. C., W. N. (01) 46; Hawker v. Stourfield Park Hotel, W. N. (00) 51; and where a person had assumed the name of another for the mere purpose of using the name in trade to pass off his goods as the other's manufacture, he was restrained absolutely from using the name in connection with the sale or manufacture of such goods: F. Pinet & Cie. v. Maison Louis Pinet, Ltd., (1898) 1 Ch. 179, N.; and whether a man can for valuable consideration, or otherwise, confer on others the right to use his name for a business which he has never carried on, and in which he has no interest, quære: Ib.; and see Burgess v. B., 3 D. M. & G. 896; Rendle v. J. Edgcumbe, Rendle & Co., 63 L. T. 94.

That there cannot be copyright in a name, v. inf. p. 674.

As to the right of a tradesman to use a name, although he is aware that a neighbouring tradesman intends to use that name, see Coles v. Civil Service Assoc., 13 Ch. D. 512; and that the assumption of the patronymic name of another family will not be restrained unless it has been exclusively used in connection with a particular business, see Du Boulay v. D., L. R. 2 P. C. 430.

An injunction cannot be granted where there is no attempt to interfere with trade, and no legal injury done, but simply inconvenience caused, e.g., to restrain the use of a cypher address for telegrams which had been long used by Plts: Street v. Union Bank of Spain, 30 Ch. D. 156, citing Day v. Brounrigg, 10 Ch. D. 294, C. A.

Recent cases in which an injunction against the use of particular names has been granted are:—M'Andrew v. Bassett, 4 D. J. & S. 380 (Anatolia Liquorice); Seixo v. Provezende, 1 Ch. 192 (Crown Seixo Port); Braham v. Bustard, 1 H. & M. 447 (Excelsior Soap); Cocks v. Chandler, 11 Eq. 446 ("Original" Reading Sauce); Wotherspoon v. Currie, L. R. 5 H. Tussaud*, 44 Ch. D. 678 (Louis Tussaud & Co.); Borthwick v. Evening Post, 37 Ch. D. 447, C. A. ("Evening Post" Newspaper); Massam v. Thorley's Cattle Food Co., 14 Ch. D. 748, C. A. Refused:—Raggett v. Findlater, 17 Eq. 29 (Nourishing Stout); Liebig, &c. Co. v. Hanbury, 17 L. T. 298 (Liebig's Extract of Meat); Batty v. Hill, 1 H. & M. 264 (Prize Medal Pickles); *Cope v. And for instances of names and words which have been held incapable of registration as being "calculated to deceive," v. inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS."

A trader will not be permitted unfairly to revive a disused name which has in the meantime become associated solely with the goods of another: Daniel and Arter v. Whitehouse, (1898) 1 Ch. 645.

A former partner or assistant will be restrained from using the name of the firm with which he has been connected so as to mislead the public into the belief that his shop is the shop of his former employers or partners: Hookham v. Pottage, 8 Ch. 91; Glenny v. Smith, 2 Dr. & Sm. 476; Condy v. Mitchell, 26 W. R. 269; 37 L. T. 766; Dence v. Mason, 41 L. T. 573; but so long as he does not attempt to mislead the public into the belief that articles sold by him are in reality manufactured by the Plt, a former partner will not, after dissolution, be restrained from selling articles under the name and labels used by the firm before dissolution: Condy v. Mitchell, 26 W. R. 269; Dence v. Mason, W. N. (78) 42.

The use of a particular name as applied to a house or property will not be protected: Day v. Brownrigg, 10 Ch. D. 294, C. A.

The assumption of the patronymic name of another family will not be restrained unless it has been exclusively used in connection with a particular business: Du Boulay v. D., L. R. 2 P. C. 430.

A foreign co. trading in this country is entitled to restrain the use of a name so similar as to be calculated to deceive its customers: National Folding Box and Paper Co. v. National Folding Box Co. Ltd., 43 W. R. 156. As to the right at common law of a manufacturer to the use of a geographical term, see Rugby Cement Co. v. Rugby & Newbold Cement Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 241; S. C., 9 Ib. 46.

By the Companies Act, 1862, s. 20, no co. shall be registered under a name identical with that by which a subsisting co. is already registered, or so nearly resembling the same as to be calculated to deceive; and an application for registration under a name so similar to that of another co. (though unregistered) as to be calculated to deceive will be restrained: Hendriks (Universal Life Assce. Soc.) v. Montagu (Universe Life Assce. Association, Ltd.), 17 Ch. D. 638, C. A.

Injunctions against the use by a co. of a name in colourable imitation of, or so much of a name as was identical with that of Plt co. have been—

Granted in—The Accident Insur. Co. Ltd. v. The Accident, Disease and General Insur. Corp. Ltd., 54 L. J. Ch. 104; 51 L. T. 597; and see Guardian Fire and Life Assce. Co. v. Guardian and General Insur. Co. Ltd., 50 L. J. Ch. 253; 43 L. T. 791; Army and Navy Co-operative Soc., Ltd. v. Army, Navy and Civil Service Soc. of India, Ltd., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 426 (erasure of name stamped on corks ordered); North Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co. v. Manchester Brewery Co., (1899) A. C. 83; H. L. affirming C. A., (1898) 1 Ch. 539; National Folding Box and Paper Co. v. National Folding Box Co. Ltd., sup.; Panhard et Levassor v. Levassor, &c. Co., 70 L. J. Ch. 738; W. N. (01) 153 (injunction against signatories to memorandum of co.).

Refused in—Colonial Life Assce. Co. v. Home and Colonial Assce. Co., 33 Beav. 548; London Assce. v. London and Westminster Assce. Corp. Ltd., 32 L. J. Ch. 664; The Merchant Banking Co. of London v. The Merchants' Joint Stock Bank, 9 Ch. D. 560; Australian Mortgage Land and Finance Co. v. Australian and New Zealand Mortgage Co., W. N. (80) 6; Saunders v. Sun Life Assce. Co. of Canada, (1894) 1 Ch. 537 (on undertaking by the Canadian co. not to use any abbreviation of their corporate name without the addition of the words "of Canada").

The addition of the words "co., limited" is not sufficient to entitle a Deft to appropriate a trade name which has been used by Plt: Hoby v. Grosvenor Library Co., Ltd., 28 W. R. 386.

DESTRUCTION OF FRAUDULENT MARKS.

By the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887 (50 & 51 V. c. 28), s. 2, every person who forges any trade mark, or falsely applies to goods any trade mark or any mark so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be calculated to deceive, or applies any false trade description to goods, or makes or disposes of dies, &c., for forging trade marks; and (subject to certain exceptions) every person who sells, &c., goods to which any forged or false mark or false description is applied, is guilty of an offence; and by sect. 12 provision is made for the seizure and forfeiture of goods or things by means of or in relation to which an offence has been committed, and any goods or things forfeited may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of as the Court of summary jurisdiction by which the same are forfeited directs; and the Court may, out of any proceeds realized by disposition, award to any innocent party any loss he may have innocently sustained in dealing with such goods.

Independently of the statute, Courts of Equity have long exercised jurisdiction to order the delivery up and destruction of counterfeit labels: Fidelsten v. Vick, 11 Ha. 86; Farina v. Silverlock, 4 K. & J. 650; and of articles made in infringement of a patent: Betts v. De Vitre, 34 L. J. Ch. 289; Tangye v. Stott, 14 W. R. 386; and by analogy to order the destruction of bank-notes of a foreign State made in this country for insurgents, and cancellation of the plates: Emperor of Austria v. Day, L. J., 12 June, 1861, A. 1243; 3 D. F. & J. 217.

SECTION VII.—INFRINGEMENT OF LETTERS PATENT.

1. Interlocutory Order to restrain Infringement of Patent.

ON usual undertaking as to damages [Form 1, p. 518]—Let the Deft T. be restrained until further order from manufacturing any tube expanders similar to the tube expander which has been purchased by the Deft B., as in the Plt's statement of claim mentioned, or otherwise constructed so as to imitate or resemble the roller expanding tool, described in the specification in the Plt's letters patent in the statement of claim mentioned, and to restrain the Defts T. and B., their agents &c., from selling or offering for sale, or otherwise parting with the custody of, any tube expanders, or parts of any tube expanders, which have been so manufactured by the said Deft T.—Liberty to either party to apply to expedite the hearing.—See Dudgeon v. Thomson, M. R., 24 March, 1874, A. 723.

2. The like Order.

ON usual undertaking as to damages—"Let the Defts S. and C., their servants &c., be restrained until judgment in this action or until further order, from either directly or indirectly making, using, or putting in practice the invention described in the specification and drawings filed under the letters patent, granted to N., dated the &c., and numbered 2190, and now vested by assignment in the Plt, or any part thereof, except as to any skates made by the Plt, or his agent or agents."—Plimpton v. Spiller, M. R., 16 March, 1876, B. 424.

For the like injunction made perpetual by consent, see March v. Bird, M. R., 3 July, 1876, B. 1379.

3. Interlocutory Injunction for Infringement refused on Terms.

UPON motion &c., for injunction to restrain &c.; And the Deft by his counsel undertaking to keep an account of all moneys received or to be received by him, by reason of the sale or use of the parlour or roller skates in the (bill) mentioned, this Court doth not think fit to make any order upon this motion, but doth order that the costs of this motion be costs in the cause.—Plimpton v. Malcolmson, M. R., 4 March, 1875, B. 421.

4. Perpetual Injunction against Infringement of Letters Patent.

UPON the appeal of the Plts &c., and upon hearing counsel for the appellants, and for the Defts, Let the Defts A., B., and C., their several agents and workmen, be restrained during the continuance of the letters patent, No. &c., from manufacturing, selling, letting on hire, supplying or using any incandescent electric lamps, manufactured according to or in the manner described in the specification, filed in pursuance of such letters patent, or according to or in any manner only colourably differing from the same, and generally from infringing the rights of the Plts in respect of such letters patent.—Edison and Swan United Electric Co. v. Holland, C. A., 18 Feb. 1889, A. 443; 41 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

5. The like Judgment.

UPON the appeal of the Plts from the order of &c., and upon hearing counsel for the appellants and for the Defts, Let the Defts A., B., their servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from manufacturing, selling, or exposing for sale, bustles or dress improvers in infringement of the Plts' patent, No. &c., or from making, selling, or exposing for sale, articles in colourable imitation of the articles manufactured by the Plts under the said letters patent.—American Braided Wire Co. v. Thomson, C. A., 2 Feb. 1888, A. 200; 5 R. P. C. 375; affd. in H. L., 3 June, 1889; 6 Rep. Pat. Cas. 518.

6. Against Infringement of Letters Patent—Mechanical Equivalents.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plt and the Defts, and upon reading &c., Let the Defts A., B., and C., their agents, servants, and workmen, be restrained during the continuance of the letters patent, No. &c., from using or permitting to be used the invention described in the specification and drawings, No. &c., filed by the Plt, or any part or parts of the same invention, and from using and permitting to be used in the manufacture of iron and steel forgings any appliances or means, being the same as the appliances or means now or lately used by the Defts as mentioned in the said particulars of breaches, or which, as to any part or parts thereof, are arranged or constructed according to the said invention, or any part thereof, or differ therefrom only colourably, and by the substitution of mere mechanical equivalents.—Siddell v. Vickers, Kekewich, J., 21 Dec. 1887, B. 2863, P.; 39 Ch. D. 93, C. A.; 15 App. Ca. 496.

7. Account of Goods manufactured and Profits.

UPON motion &c., by way of appeal &c., by counsel for the Defts, and upon hearing &c., for the Plts, Let the judgment, dated &c., be varied by substituting for the account thereby directed the following account, viz., an account of all iron and steel forgings manufactured by the Defts by the use of the Plt's invention as described in figure 2 of the specification in the said judgment mentioned, and also of the profits made by the Defts by reason of such use, otherwise affirm judgment.—Siddell v. Vickers, C. A., 18 May, 1888, B. 830; 5 Rep. Pat. Ca. 434.

8. Interim Injunction against Threats of Legal Proceedings.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon hearing &c., for Defts, Let the Defts A., B., their officers, servants, and agents, be restrained until judgment in this action, or further order, from threatening the Plts, their customers, or any other person or persons, with legal proceedings or liability in respect of an alleged infringement of the letters patent, No. &c.—Kensington and Knightsbridge Electric, &c. Co., Ltd. v. The Lane-Fox Electrical Co., Ltd., Stirling, J., 24 April, 1891, A. 613; (1891) 2 Ch. 573.

9. Perpetual Injunction against Threats of Legal Proceedings.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plts and Defts, Let the Defts A. and B., their servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from making or continuing threats of legal proceedings or liability by circulars, advertisements, or otherwise, in respect of the alleged infringement by the Plts of the several letters patent, No. &c.—Driffield, &c. Co. v. Waterloo, &c. Co., Bacon, V.-C., 10 Feb. 1886, A. 194; 31 Ch. D. 638.

NOTES.

INFRINGEMENT—RIGHT TO INJUNCTION.

An interlocutory injunction will be granted where the patent is old, and there has been long and undisturbed enjoyment, and evidence of actual public user; or where its validity has been established elsewhere, and the Court sees no reason to doubt the result; or where the conduct of the Deft has been such that as against him there is no reason to doubt the validity of the patent: Dudgeon v. Thomson, 22 W. R. 464; 30 L. T. 244, and see 3 App. Ca. 34; Plimpton v. Malcolmson, 20 Eq. 37.

In support of these propositions, see also Hill v. Thompson, 3 Mer. 622; Bacon v. Jones, Collard v. Allison, 4 My. & Cr. 433, 487; Stevens v. Keating, 2 Ph. 335; Bridson v. M'Alpine, 8 Beav. 229; Bridson v. Benecke, 12 Beav. 1; Newall v. Wilson, 2 D. M. & G. 282; Plimpton v. Spiller, 4 Ch. D. 286.

Length of enjoyment is material : Davenport v. Richard, 3 L. T. 503; Betts v. Menzies, 3 Jur. N. S. 357; and although the mere fact that a patent is recent does not prevent an interlocutory or even an ex parte injunction (Gardner v. Broadbent, 2 Jur. N. S. 1041; Clark v. Fergusson, 1 Giff. 184), there must, in a case of a patent of no great age, be at least a fair prima facie case of validity : Renard v. Levinstein, 10 L. T. 177. Actual public user of the patent must also be shown : Plimpton v. Malcolmson, 20 Eq. 37.

As a matter of pleading, the absence of an express averment of the novelty of the invention did not prevent an injunction from being granted : Amory v. Brown, 8 Eq. 663. But the legal title of Plt, the novelty of the invention, and the validity of the patent, must be clearly and accurately set forth in the affidavits : Whitton v. Jennings, 1 Dr. & Sm. 110; Gardner v. Broadbent, 2 Jur. N. S. 1041; Sturz v. De la Rue, 5 Russ. 329; and there must also be clear evidence of the alleged infringement : Hill v. Thompson, 3 Mer. 624; Mayer v. Spence, 1 J. & H. 87; Renard v. Levinstein, 10 L. T. 94, 177; Betts v. Willmott, 6 Ch. 239; and where it was not shown which of the Plt's three patents had been infringed, and one of the three had subsequently expired, damages only were given : Saccharin Corp. v. Quincey, (1900) 2 Ch. 246.

An injunction may, however, be obtained to restrain a threatened, as distinguished from an actual, infringement of a patent : Frearson v. Lee, 9 Ch. D. 48; and where Deft accepts an order from the Plt's agent in the ordinary course of business, it must be assumed against him that he will accept similar orders again if offered : Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Neal, (1899) 1 Ch. 807.

Where a patent is obtained for a new process for arriving at a known result, it is no infringement to arrive at the same result by a different process, and the patentee can only claim to work out his process by means of materials known at the date of the patent : Badische, &c. Fabrik v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156; but see S. C., 29 Ch. D. 366, C. A.; 12 App. Ca. 710.

It is not a correct test of utility that an invented product at the time of the patent was likely to be in commercial demand, or capable of profitable manufacture : S. C., 12 App. Ca. 710.

A patent for mere use of a known contrivance without additional ingenuity is bad; secus, if the new use involves a practical difficulty which the patentee has been the first to overcome : Gadd v. Mayor of Manchester, 9 Rep. Pat. Ca. 516, 524; and see Tweedale v. Ashworth, 9 Rep. Pat. Ca. 121; Williams v. Nye, 7 Rep. Pat. Ca. 62; Harwood v. G. N. Ry. Co., 11 H. L. C. 654.

And to entitle a patentee to maintain his patent, he must make some addition, not only to knowledge, but to previously-known invention. An invention is not the same thing as a discovery, and the mere discovery that a known machine can produce certain results is not a patentable invention : Lane-Fox v. Kensington, &c. Electric Light Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 424, C. A.; and see Nettlefolds v. Reynolds, 9 Rep. Pat. Ca. 270; Wilson v. Union Oil Mills Co., Ib. 57.

But utility in patent law does not mean abstract, or comparative, or competitive, or commercial utility, and an invention which offers the public a useful choice is patentable; and as to the degree of utility necessary, see Welsbach Incandescent, &c. Co. v. New Incandescent, &c. Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 843.

And for cases of patents held bad for want of utility or invention, see Winby v. Manchester Steam Tram Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 61; Tucker v. Kaye, Ib. 58; Nuttall v. Hargreaves, Ib. 273; Embossed Metal Plate Co. v. Saupe & Busche, Ib. 355.

The sale of articles to be used in producing a patented article (the elements of which afterwards enter into the combination for which the patent has been obtained) will not be restrained as an infringement : Townsend v. Haworth, 12 Ch. D. 831, n.; and see Sykes v. Howarth, Ib. 826.

The importation and sale in this country of articles made abroad according to a process patented here will be restrained by injunction : Elmslie v. Boursier, 9 Eq. 217; Von Heyden v. Neustadt, 14 Ch. D. 230; and see Wright v. Hitchcock, L. R. 5 Ex. 37; Walton v. Lavater, 8 C. B. N. S. 162; Betts v. Willmott, 6 Ch. 239; although the patent is chemical, and the imported article has been the subject of chemical change : Saccharin Corp. v. Anglo-Continental Chemical Works, (1901) 1 Ch. 414; and possession, though innocent, for purpose of sale, is an infringement, and exposing for sale is a "using and vending" of the invention : British Motor Syndicate v. Taylor, (1901) 1 Ch. 122, C. A.; (1900) 1 Ch. 577. So also the user in this country, by sending to an English port for shipment to foreign customers, and not for consumption in England, bottles covered with capsules made abroad in imitation of the patented process: Neilson v. Betts, L. R. 5 H. L. 1; 3 Ch. 429; but there is no vending so as to constitute infringement where the contract of sale is completed by delivery of the goods to a foreign post office, the post office being the agent of the buyer and not of the vendor: Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Basle Chemical Works, Bindschedler, (1898) A. C. 200, H. L., affirming C. A., (1897) 2 Ch. 322; and the delivery of a patented article at a foreign port to an English importer is not an "exercise" of the invention within the realm: Saccharin Corp. v. Reitmeyer, (1900) 2 Ch. 659.

To the same effect, see Caldwell v. Vanvlissengen, 9 Ha. 415.

User of a patented article for purposes of experiment by, and instruction of, pupils is an infringement: United Telephone Co. v. Sharples, 29 Ch. D. 164; and an injunction was granted against the master of a ship exclusively fitted up with pumps which were an infringement of a patent: Adair v. Young, 12 Ch. D. 13, C. A.; so, also, the mere possession of an infringing machine, dismantled by removing the infringing elements, which, however, were kept stored, was held to be an infringement: United Telephone Co. v. Globe Telegraph Co., 26 Ch. D. 766; but though the importation from abroad of a foreign infringement may be restrained, the mere acting as Custom House agents for persons importing the foreign infringement in order to export it is not an infringement: Nobel's Explosive Co. v. Jones, Scott & Co., 17 Ch. D. 721, C. A.; 8 App. Ca. 1.

Repair of an article amounting to a reconstruction of it may constitute an infringement of a patent: Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Neal, (1899) 1 Ch. 807.

Plts were not estopped from complaining of the infringement of their patent by the fact that the act complained of had been done by the Defts at the request, suo motu, of the Plt's agent: Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Neal, (1899) 1 Ch. 807, distinguishing Kelly v. Batchelor, 10 Rep. Pat. Ca. 289, on the ground that in that case the Plts had authorized their agent to direct the Deft to construct an article infringing their patent.

Where the experimental use of infringing machines had been abandoned three years before action brought, and no intention to resume the user was shown, an injunction was refused: Proctor v. Bayley, 42 Ch. D. 390.

And as to the distinction between merely selling an article to others to be used for the purpose of infringing a patent, and employing a person as the agent of the seller to use the article, and that the one is not, and the other may be, an infringement, see Sykes v. Howarth, 12 Ch. D. 826.

The sale of goods piratically made during the term may be restrained after its expiration: Crossley v. Beverley, 1 R. & M. 166, n.

The right of the Crown to make use of patented inventions does not enable private contractors for the sale to the Crown for the public service of goods made under the patent, to use the patented process without licence or payment of royalties, or protect them against claims in respect of the infringement of the patent: Dixon v. The London Small Arms Co., 1 App. Ca. 632 (reversing 1 Q. B. D. 384, and restoring L. R. 10 Q. B. 130); and see Feather v. Reg., 6 B. & S. 257.

COUNTY COURT JURISDICTION.

The right or privilege granted by letters patent is a "franchise" within sect. 56 of the County Courts Act, 1888, and an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent is therefore excluded from the jurisdiction of the County Court by the Patents, &c. Act, 1883: Reg. v. Judge of Halifax County Court, (1891) 2 Q. B. 263.

PARTIES.

An injunction to restrain infringement may be obtained by an exclusive licensee of a patent: Renard v. Levinstein, 2 H. & M. 628; but an exclusive licence, limited to a specified district, not being equivalent to a grant of the whole letters patent, does not entitle the licensee to sue in his own name without joining the patentee: Heap v. Hartley, 42 Ch. D. 461. A licence to manufacture abroad under a foreign patent does not entitle the licensee to sell in this country in violation of the licensor's English patent: Société, &c. de Glaces v. Tilghmann's Sand Blast Co., 25 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

One of several co-owners of a patent can sue for an injunction and account: Sheehan v. G. E. Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59; and a mortgagor without making the mortgagees parties: Van Gelder v. Sowerby Bridge Co., 44 Ch. D. 374, C. A.

But a mere agent to introduce, sell, and grant licences for the use of a foreign patent in this country is not entitled to take proceedings to restrain infringement and obtain damages: Adams v. North British Ry., 29 L. T. 367.

The general rule that a co-owner of a patent is entitled to work it for his own benefit, applies where the co-owner of one moiety is mortgagee of the other moiety: Steers v. Rogers, (1892) 2 Ch. 13, C. A.; (1893) A. C. 232; and extends to the case of a secret process so as to entitle one of several co-owners to make use of his knowledge of it: Heyl-Dia v. Edmunds, W. N. (99) 222; 81 L. T. 579; 48 W. R. 167.

The legal pers. represve of an inventor who has died before taking out a patent is not entitled to patent the invention, nor to sue in respect of any infringement thereof: Dalton v. Saville St. Foundry Co., 39 L. T. 97.

The maker of a machine alleged to be an infringement of a patent has no right to be added as Deft to an action against the purchaser: Moser v. Marsden, (1892) 1 Ch. 487, C. A.

NOVELTY—PUBLICATION.

Prior user of a patent within the colonies is not user "within the realm" sufficient to invalidate the title of a patentee as true and first inventor: Rolls v. Isaacs, 19 Ch. D. 268.

He who imports a novel invention into this country is true and first inventor within 21 Jac. I., c. 3: Re Avery's Patent, 36 Ch. D. 307, C. A.; Plimpton v. Malcolmson, 3 Ch. D. 531; Plimpton v. Spiller, 6 Ch. D. 412, C. A.; Nickels v. Ross, 8 C. B. 679, 723; and a patent for a communication from abroad will not be invalidated for want of novelty by prior publication; and the process cannot be infringed, unless there has been actual publication of the information in a book publicly circulated in this country. The sending over to the English Patent Office Library a single copy of a foreign scientific work, and of a book of illustrations describing and containing a drawing of the invention afterwards here patented, was held not to make the foreign invention "part of the public possession, and part of the public knowledge," so as to amount to prior publication: Plimpton v. Malcolmson, 3 Ch. D. 531; Plimpton v. Spiller, 6 Ch. D. 412, C. A.; nor the simple fact that a treatise containing a description of the invention was to be found in the inner library of the British Museum: Otto v. Steel, 31 Ch. D. 241; and see Stead v. Williams, Stead v. Anderson, 2 Web. Pat. Ca. 126, 147: affirmed 6 Ch. D. 412, C. A.; Re Lamenaude's Patent, Ib. 169; Househill Co. v. Neilson, 1 Web. Pat. Ca. 673; secus, where the specification in a foreign language is to be found in a free public library, such as that of the Patent Office, unless it is proved that the existence of it was not known: Harris v. Rothwell, 35 Ch. D. 416, 435, C. A.; or where the foreign work had been sent over to a bookseller in this country for the purpose of being sold: Lang v. Gisborne, 31 Beav. 135 (and see observations of M. R. on this case, 3 Ch. D. 561, 562); or a witness had seen in a German journal in a public library a description of an invention which he, though ignorant of German, could make out from plates and technical words: United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, 21 Ch. D. 720; or the invention had been published in foreign periodicals sold in the United Kingdom before the date of the patent: Pickard v. Prescott, (1892) A. C. 263; and a report to a public office by referees specially appointed under Act of Parliament is public property: Patterson v. Gas Light and Coke Co., 3 App. Ca. 239; and where there is such publication the patent is avoided, though it is not shown that the invention has been put in use: S. C. But the patentee of an invention communicated from abroad is bound to tell the public all he knows; while, on the other hand, insufficiency of specification will avoid the patent: Wegmann v. Corcoran, 13 Ch. D. 65, C. A. And the sufficiency or insufficiency of a specification is not a crucial test of whether there is publication of an invention by it: King, Brown & Co. v. Anglo-American Brush Co., 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 313.

PATENT FOR COMBINATION.

A new combination, application, or arrangement of materials or principles, in themselves old, so as to produce a new result, may be the subject of a valid patent: Cannington v. Nuttall, L. R. 5 H. L. 205; Murray v. Clayton, 7 Ch. 577; Foxwell v. Bostock, 12 W. R. 725; 4 De G. J. & S. 298; 10 L. T. 144; Lister v. Leather, 8 E. & B. 1004, 1031; Wright v. Hitchcock, L. R. 5 Ex. 37; Harrison v. Anderston Foundry Co., 1 App. Ca. 574; Boyd v. Horrocks, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 77; Wenham Gas Co. v. Champion Gas Lamp Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 313; 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 49; and see Otto v. Linford, 46 L. T. 35. Secus, a combination of two prior inventions which any person of ordinary knowledge would be able to effect by only placing the two inventions side by side: Saxby v. Gloucester Waggon Co., 7 Q. B. D. 305; and see Longbottom v. Shaw, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 333. According to the latest authorities, a patent for a combination of several improvements or materials will not be infringed by a new combination of some only of those improvements or materials: Clark v. Adie, 10 Ch. 667; 2 App. Ca. 315; Murray v. Clayton, 10 Ch. 675, n.; and see Dudgeon v. Thomson, 3 App. Ca. 34; Miller v. Clyde Bridge Co., 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 470; or by the use of any particular part which is not novel: Purkes v. Stevens, 5 Ch. 36; 8 Eq. 358; and see Thorn v. Worthing Rink Co., 6 Ch. D. 415; but may be by a combination of mechanical equivalents with additions and omissions, if the substance of the patented invention is taken: Proctor v. Bennis, 36 Ch. D. 740, C. A.; and see Miller v. Clyde Bridge Steel Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 198; Automatic Weighing Co. v. Nat. Exhibition Assoc., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 345; 9 Ib. 41. Where a combination is claimed it is not essential that the specification should show how far novelty is claimed for particular parts: S. C.; and see Ehrlich v. Ihlee, W. N. (88) 50; Morgan v. Windover, W. N. (87) 143; W. N. (88) 80.

SUFFICIENCY OF SPECIFICATION.

A specification is insufficient if a skilled mechanic would not, without performing a series of experiments, be able to construct the patented machine from the description: Wegmann v. Corcoran, 13 Ch. D. 65, C. A.; Lane-Fox v. Kensington, &c. Electric Light Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 424, C. A.; King, Brown & Co. v. Anglo-American Brush Corp., 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 313, H. L.; or if one of the materials to be used is described by a generic term comprising others, most of which would be unsuitable: Wegmann v. Corcoran, sup.; and see Badische, &c. v. Levinstein, 29 Ch. D. 366, C. A.; 12 App. Ca. 710; or if the manner in which the patented process is to be performed is not sufficiently described: Bailey v. Robertson, 3 App. Ca. 1055; Gadd v. Mayor of Manchester, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 526; or if it fails to point out the distinction between the patented invention and one previously patented, although under a patent unknown to the Plt: Eades v. Starbruck Waggon Co., W. N. (81) 160. It is sufficient if the complete specification describes something which, though not specifically referred to, is within the general description contained in the provisional specification: Siddell v. Vickers, 39 Ch. D. 92, C. A.; and see United Telephone Co. v. Harrison, 21 Ch. D. 720; and a patent for colouring matters for dyeing and printing by a chemical process was upheld, notwithstanding a failure to discriminate between isomeric substances, only one of which would produce a useful result: Badische, &c. Fabrik v. Levinstein, 12 App. Ca. 710; and a patent for improvements in machinery to be driven in a manner described "or by any other suitable driving motion," was held to be valid, the particular source from which the motive power was obtained not being essential: Marsden v. Moser, 73 L. T. 667, H. L.; but the rule that the patentee must not withhold information does not entitle him to put into his final specification an invention of which he was ignorant when he filed his provisional specification : Edison and Swan Electric Light Co. v. Woodhouse, 32 Ch. D. 520 ; and as to the effect of want of conformity between provisional and final specification, see Bailey v. Robertson, 3 App. Ca. 1055 ; Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 57 L. T. 142 ; Woodward v. Sansum, 56 L. T. 347 ; Lane-Fox v. Kensington, &c. Electric Light Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 424, C. A. ; Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 9 ; and inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS."

THREATS AGAINST ALLEGED INFRINGERS.

Formerly, a patentee was not liable in damages for issuing circulars threatening legal proceedings against infringers and purchasers from them, which he did not follow up by action for infringement, provided he issued the circulars bonâ fide in assertion of his supposed legal rights; though he might have been liable to be restrained from continuing to issue the circulars, if, knowing that his patent was invalid, or that it had not been infringed, he continued to do so : Halsey v. Brotherhood, 15 Ch. D. 514 ; and see Axmann v. Lund, 18 Eq. 330 ; Rollins v. Hincks, 13 Eq. 355 (there considered) ; and generally the Plt in an action to restrain threats was bound to prove that the statements complained of were false, and made malâ fide : Burnett v. Tak, 45 L. T. 743 ; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. New Incandescent Gas Light Co., 76 L. T. 47 ; and see Wren v. Weild, L. R. 4 Q. B. 730 ; Household v. Fairburn, 51 L. T. 498.

Now, by the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 57), s. 32, "where any person claiming to be the patentee of an invention, by circulars, advertisements, or otherwise, threatens any other person with any legal proceedings or liability in respect of an alleged manufacture, use, sale, or purchase of the invention, any person or persons aggrieved thereby may bring an action against him, and may obtain an injunction against the continuance of such threats, and may recover such damage (if any) as may have been sustained thereby, if the alleged manufacture, use, sale, or purchase to which the threats related was not in fact an infringement of any legal rights of the person making such threats; provided that this section shall not apply if the person making such threats with due diligence commences and prosecutes an action for infringement of his patent." The words "or otherwise" are not to be construed as ejusdem generis with circulars and advertisements : Skinner v. Shew, (1893) 1 Ch. 413, C. A.

In order to bring a case within the section, the threat must be in reference to an act done by the person threatened; not a mere general warning bonâ fide given against piracy : Challender v. Royle, 36 Ch. D. 425, C. A. (per Bowen, L. J.) ; Ungar v. Sugg, 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 385 ; 9 Ib. 113 ; and as to the meaning of the expression general warning, see Johnson v. Edge, (1892) 2 Ch. 1, 9, 13, C. A. A letter saying that proceedings will be instituted has been held to be a threat : Driffield v. E. Riding Linseed Cake Co., 31 Ch. D. 638 ; Combined Weighing, &c. Co. v. Automatic Weighing, &c. Co., 42 Ch. D. 665 ; whether addressed to the infringer himself, or to a third person, and though written in answer to inquiries : Skinner v. Perry, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 406 ; 10 Ib. 1 ; Skinner v. Shew, (1893) 1 Ch. 413, C. A. ; and see Barrett v. Day, 43 Ch. D. 435, 444 ; Day v. Foster, 7 R. P. C. 54 ; or a printed notice to the effect that the patentee's rights were being infringed, and that all parties were warned not to infringe : Johnson v. Edge, (1892) 2 Ch. 1, C. A. ; and so a letter written to third persons who had given an order to the Plt, stating that the matter would lead to a great deal of difficulty and unpleasantness, and that they must not be surprised if the Deft co. applied for an injunction against the Plt : Douglass v. Pintsch's Patent Lighting Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 176.

The person applying for an injunction ought to make out a primâ facie case, that the matter to which the threats related was not in fact an infringement : Challender v. Royle, sup. ; Barney v. United Telephone Co., 28 Ch. D. 394 ; but as to an interim injunction, see Walker v. Clarke, 56 L. J. Ch. 239. A letter written by the solicitors of a co. to the Plt stating that the co. declined to continue negotiations for a contract with him as to the use of his camera because of the Deft's threats, was held to be admissible to show that the negotiations were discontinued because of the Deft's threats : Skinner & Co.

v. Shew & Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 581. The proper measure of damages in such a case is the profit which the Plt would have derived from the proposed contract if it had been carried out: S. C. The Deft is not bound to assert his rights by defence or counter-claim, but is entitled to bring a separate action for infringement; but if he does so, arrangements ought to be made for a stay of the one action to abide the result of the trial in the other: Combined Weighing, &c. Co. v. Automatic Weighing, &c. Co., 42 Ch. D. 665.

The fact that the Deft acted bonâ fide, or on a privileged occasion, is no defence: Skinner v. Shew, sup.; and see Johnson v. Edge, (1892) 2 Ch. 1, 6, C. A.

If in opposition to a motion for injunction a case of alleged infringement is raised, an injunction will not be granted, although the Deft declines to take legal proceedings: Barney v. United Telephone Co., sup.

That an interim injunction will not be granted, unless some right is shown by the Plt, however much the balance of convenience may be in favour of granting it, see Société, &c. de Glaces v. Tilghmann's Sand Blast Co., 25 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; but the balance of convenience and inconvenience will not be disregarded: Walker v. Clarke, 56 L. J. Ch. 239.

In an action under the section the validity of the Deft's patent may be called in question: Challender v. Royle, sup.; and see Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, C. A.

Persons who are simply entitled in equity to an assignment of a patent upon certain terms are not persons having "legal rights" within the meaning of the section: Kensington and Knightsbridge Electric Co. v. Lane Fox Electrical Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 573; but exclusive licensees with option of purchase who have threatened legal proceedings are entitled to protection under the proviso in sect. 32: Incandescent Gaslight Co. v. New Incandescent Light Co., 76 L. T. 47.

The proviso has been held to be satisfied if the action for infringement is honestly brought with reasonable diligence against any of the persons who have been threatened: Challender v. Royle, sup.; and see Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. New Seddon, &c. Co. Ltd., 76 L. T. 405, C. A.; if the infringement is of the same character as that in respect of which the threats were made: Combined Weighing, &c. Co. v. Automatic Weighing, &c. Co., sup.; but the proviso does not apply where the threats are made by persons entitled in equity only, and the action is brought by the legal owner: Kensington, &c. Co. v. Lane-Fox, &c. Co., sup.

An action against an exclusive licensee of the Plt's patent, as well as of a subsequent patent belonging to another patentee, for a declaration that articles sold under that patent were an infringement of the Plt's, and to restrain the sale without payment of royalties to the Plt, is an action for infringement within the section: Barrett v. Day, 43 Ch. D. 435.

If the proviso takes effect the case is relegated to the old law, and the statutory right of action is taken away: Challender v. Royle, sup.; Combined Weighing, &c. Co. v. Automatic Weighing, &c. Co., sup., in which case the threats action was, under the circumstances, dismissed without costs; Incandescent Gas Light Co. v. New Incandescent Gas Light Co., 76 L. T. 47.

As to what is "due diligence" within the meaning of the proviso, see Combined Weighing, &c. Co. v. Automatic Weighing, &c. Co., sup.; Barrett v. Day, sup.; Colley v. Hart, 44 Ch. D. 179; Johnson v. Edge, (1892) 2 Ch. 1, C. A. In order to satisfy the proviso it is not necessary that the infringement action should be prosecuted up to judgment; the protection will not be lost by reason of the action being discontinued on its being discovered that there is no cause of action: Colley v. Hart, sup. The Deft in the threats action is entitled to wait for a reasonable time for the delivery of the statement of claim with a view to raising the question of infringement inexpensively by means of a counter-claim: Ib.

In a cross action for infringement, leave to amend specification by way of disclaimer may be granted, notwithstanding that the threats action is not concluded: Re Hall, 21 Q. B. D. 137. As to evidence sufficient to justify committal for breach of order restraining issue of threats, see Dick v. Haslam, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 196.

10. Order for Trial of Issues—Particulars of Breaches and Objections—Inspection.

LET the following questions of fact be tried on the — day of —, before &c., by a special jury of the county of M., that is to say, 1. Whether the invention in the pleadings mentioned was the working or making of any manner of new manufacture, which others at the time of making the letters patent of the — day of — in the pleadings mentioned did not use (within this realm). 2. Whether the grantees of the said letters patent were the true and first inventors of the said new manufacture. 3. Whether the specification particularly described and ascertained the nature of the invention for which the said letters patent were granted, and the manner in which the same is to be performed. 4. Whether the said Deft J. has infringed the said letters patent—And Let the Plts, on or before &c., deliver to the solr of the Deft J. particulars in writing of the breaches complained of; And Let the Deft J. on or before the — day of — (or within ten days after the receipt of such particulars) deliver to the Plt's solr particulars in writing of any objections (to the validity of the said letters patent), on which he means to rely at the trial hereby directed; And Let the Plts and the Deft J. by their solrs and scientific witnesses be at liberty from time to time, upon giving three days' notice of their intention so to do, mutually to inspect the machines heretofore used by the Plts and the said Deft in the manufacture of chenille; And Let the same machines be put to work upon such inspection; And Let the Plts and the said Deft, by their said witnesses and solrs, be at liberty to take samples of the chenille made or to be made upon the said machines, and be at liberty upon the like notice to inspect the machines, or exhibits marked Y and Z 1, produced by the said Deft, and referred to as exhibits to the affidavits of &c., and to put the last-mentioned machines to work, and to take samples of the product thereof.—Davenport v. Jepson, V.-C. W., 20 Dec. 1862, A. 2399; 1 N. R. 307.

For same form of issues, see Hincks v. Safety Lighting Co., M. R., 24 Feb. 1876, A. 444.

In Simpson v. Holliday, V.-C. W., 28 March, 1863, B. 2487, the words "within this realm" were inserted in the first issue as above.

For like order, see Morgan v. Fuller, V.-C. W., 18 Jan. 1866, B. 928.

For forms of application for inspection, see D. C. F. 949 et seq.

11. Another Form of Issues—where Part disclaimed.

1. WHETHER the invention, the subject of the letters patent of the — day of — (as altered by disclaimer or memorandum of alteration), was or was not at the date of the said letters patent new as to the public use thereof by others within this realm. 2. Whether the Plt was the true and first inventor of the said invention. 3. Whether the specification of the said letters patent in the pleadings mentioned (as altered by the disclaimer or memorandum of alteration) does or does not particularly describe the nature of the said invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed, pursuant to the proviso in that behalf contained in the said letters patent. 4. Whether the Defts have or have not infringed the said letters patent in or by any or either and which of the apparatus manufactured by them as in their answer filed in this cause mentioned, or in any other manner.—Cunningham v. Colling, V.-C. W., 13 June, 1864, A. 1240. (In this case the issues were inserted in a schedule to the order.)

12. Another Form.

1. WHETHER J. and F., the grantees of the letters patent in the pleadings mentioned, and numbered &c., were the first and true inventors of the alleged invention or improvements for which the said letters patent were granted.

2. Whether the undisclaimed portions of the said alleged invention were used in the United Kingdom at the date of the said letters patent.

3. Whether the Defts, or any or either and which of them, have infringed the said letters patent.—Batley v. Kynock, V.-C. B., 31 July, 1874, A. 2680.

In Simpson v. Holliday, sup. p. 648, and Renard v. Levinstein, V.-C. W., 1864 (see 11 L. T. 766), this additional issue was directed:—

“Whether the said invention was, at the date of the said letters patent, and whether the same is now, of public utility.”

And in Morgan v. Fuller, V.-C. W., 18 Jan. 1866, B. 100, the terms were “whether the alleged invention was a useful invention.”

And as to the form of issues in a patent suit, see Spencer v. Jack, 3 D. J. & S. 346; Curtis v. Platt, 11 L. T. 250; 35 L. J. Ch. 852; L. R. 1 H. L. 337; Morgan v. Fuller, 2 Eq. 296 (where Deft was refused leave to add a totally new issue of fact not raised by his answer and particulars, and inspection, and putting the machinery in motion, were directed): S. C., sup.; Penn v. Bibby, V.-C. W., 20 July, 1865; S. C., on motion for a new trial, 2 Ch. 128; Needham v. Oxley, 8 L. T. 532; 2 N. R. 232.

13. Questions of Fact for Trial before the Court without a Jury, in a Suit relating to a Patent communicated from Abroad.

1. Was N. the first importer into her Majesty's realm of the invention for which the letters patent of the —, 1865, were granted?

2. Was the invention new within her Majesty's realm at the date of the letters patent?

3. Did the specification particularly ascertain and describe the nature of the invention, and in what manner the same was to be performed?

4. Has the Deft wrongfully, and in contravention of the said letters patent, used the said invention?—Plimpton v. Malcolmson, M. R., 24 June, 1875, B. 1152.

14. Order for Trial of a Representative Case for the Purpose of determining the Question of Validity.

AND the Plt F. by his counsel undertaking to be bound by the result of the trial hereinafter directed, and the several above-mentioned Defts by their respective counsel admitting that the letters patent in the pleadings mentioned are duly vested in the Plt, and consenting to be bound by the result of the trial hereinafter directed, and that the said trial shall be conducted by B., G., B., and W., four of the above-named Defts, on behalf of and as representing all the Defts in the said suits; Let, by consent of all the said several Defts in the above-mentioned suits, the said Defts B., G., B., and W., be the Defts in the said trial; And Let the said Defts, B., G., B., and W., on or before the — day of —, pursuant to the statute, deliver to the Plt their objections to the validity of the said patents; And Let, by the consent of the Plt and the said Defts, the following question be tried before his Lordship without a jury, that is to say: Whether the patent in the pleadings mentioned, dated &c., is a valid patent; And the Plt is to proceed to such trial on such day &c.—Adjourn the consideration of the costs of the several applications to the Judge and to his Lordship until after the said trial; And Let all further proceedings in the above-mentioned causes be stayed until after the said trial; And any of the Defts in any suits commenced by the Plt with respect to infringement of the said patent are to be at liberty to apply to be made parties to this order.—Foxwell v. Webster, and eighty other titles, L. C., 7 Dec. 1863, A. 2391; 4 D. J. & S. 77.

TRIAL OF QUESTIONS OF FACT.

A Deft was not entitled, under the Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (21 & 22 V. c. 27), as of right, to have issues of fact in a patent case tried by a jury; but the Court would not, in doubtful cases, where there was a question really to be tried, or where charges against the Deft not raised by the pleadings were opened at the hearing, refuse an application for a jury: Davenport v. Goldberg, 2 H. & M. 282; Bovill v. Hitchcock, 3 Ch. 417; Tangye v. Stott, 14 W. R. 128.

And see Eaden v. Firth, 1 H. & M. 573; Roskell v. Whitworth, 5 Ch. 549; Henderson v. Runcorn Soap Co., 19 L. T. 277.

The practice in Equity, in the absence of special circumstances, has been to try the ordinary issues in a patent suit before the Court without a jury: Patent Marine Inventions Co. v. Chadburn, 16 Eq. 447.

And see Young v. Fernie, 1 D. J. & S. 353; Fernie v. Young, L. R. 1 H. L. 63.

Under O. xxxvi, 3, 1875, in all cases a Deft might insist on a trial before a Judge and jury, even where the action would be best tried by a Judge with assessors: Sugg v. Silber, 1 Q. B. D. 362; but now, under O. xxxvi, 2, 10, the mode of trial is in the discretion of the Judge.

A judgment establishing the validity of a patent does not conclude a Deft in subsequent proceedings from contesting the novelty of the invention: Bovill v. Goodier (2), 2 Eq. 195; but he will be restrained in the meantime from infringement.

And see Newall v. Elliot, 1 H. & C. 797.

In the case of numerous suits for infringement of the same patent, the suits have been consolidated, and a trial directed in a selected suit for the purpose of determining, as between the Plt and the several Defts, the validity of the patent: Foxwell v. Webster, 4 D. J. & S. 77, sup., Form 14; and see Bovill v. Crate, 1 Eq. 388.

And v. sup. Chap. XXII., "Issues."

15. Order for Delivery of further Particulars of Breaches.

LET the Plts within — days from the date of this order deliver to Messrs. —, solrs for the Defts, further and better particulars in writing of the breaches alleged to have been committed by the Defts upon which the Defts intend to rely on the trial of the questions directed to be tried by the said order dated &c., specifying by reference to the pages and the lines the parts of the Plts' specification in respect of which such alleged breaches have been committed; And Let the time within which the Defts are to deliver to the Plts' solrs particulars in writing of the objections to the letters patent in the Plts' bill mentioned be enlarged until the twenty-first day after the delivery of such further and better particulars.—Costs of application to be costs in the cause.—Lamb v. The Nottingham Manufacturers' Co., Ltd., M. R., 14 March, 1874, B. 776.

For a similar form of order, see Wren v. Weild, L. R. 4 Q. B. 213.

16. Order for Delivery of further Particulars of Objections.

LET the order dated &c., whereby it was ordered that the Defts should on or before &c., deliver to the Plts further and better particulars of objections, stating therein the names and addresses of the persons by whom, and the places where, and the dates at, and the manner in which the process of &c., was known and publicly practised in England before the &c. (date of letters patent); and that in default thereof the words from and after the words "in a dry state," in the sixth par. of the statement of defence which had been delivered in this action, to the end of the said sixth par., should be struck out; and in that case no evidence should be given by the Defts on the trial of this action of such prior publication, and that the Defts should pay to the Plts their costs of the application, to be taxed &c., be varied, and as varied be as follows:—Let the Defts on or before the — deliver to the Plts further and better particulars of objections under the — par. of the statement of defence on which they mean to rely at the trial, stating therein the place or places at or in which and in what manner the process of printing upon tin or metal surfaces by direct impression by means of damp stones is alleged to have been used or published prior to &c.—See Flower v. Lloyd, C. A., 2 Aug. 1876, A. 1523; 25 W. R. 17 (varying order of V.-C. B., 6 July, 1876, A. 1252).

It was held not to be a sufficient compliance with this order, after giving the names and addresses of three persons, to say, "and by other persons in Birmingham and London respectively": S. C., 29 Aug. 1876, A. 1783; 20 S. J. 860.

For order giving Deft liberty to deliver further particulars of prior user and publication, on which he intended to rely on the new trial of issues in a patent suit, see Bovill v. Goodier, 36 L. J. Ch. 360.

For liberty on payment of costs of application to re-amend the particulars of objection by inserting further specified instances of alleged prior user, see Penn v. Bibby, V.-C. W., 1 Eq. 548.

For liberty, on payment of all costs thereby occasioned, to amend particulars of objection, and adduce new evidence in support, upon special application by Deft during the trial of a patent suit after Plt's case was closed, see Renard v. Levinstein, V.-C. W., 13 W. R. 229; but see Moss v. Malings, 33 Ch. D. 603.

For further order that insufficient objections be struck out, and further and better particulars be delivered, see Morgan v. Fuller, V.-C. W., 28 April, 1866, B. 928; 2 Eq. 297.

For order that either side be at liberty to apply in Chambers to settle the particulars of objections to the patent on which Deft meant to rely on the trial, and also of particulars of breaches complained of by Plt in case the parties differed, see Simpson v. Holliday, V.-C. W., 28 May, 1863, B. 2487.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 791.

17. Order for Delivery of further and better Particulars of Objections —46 & 47 V. c. 57, s. 29 (2).

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Defts that the order dated &c. might be discharged, and upon motion &c. by counsel for the Plt to vary the said order, Let the Defts, on or before &c., deliver to the Plt further and better particulars in writing, striking out all particulars which are relied on merely to prove the state of knowledge in and before the years 1874 and 1877, and giving further and better particulars of the alleged anticipation on which they rely, specifying where in particular the anticipation is to be found; And Let the Plt deliver his reply in this action within fourteen days after the delivery to him of such further and better particulars.—Holliday v. Heppenstall, C. A., 27 March, 1889, A. 719; S. C., 41 Ch. D. 109.

17A. Another Form.

UPON the application &c., Let the Defts, within seven days after service of this order, deliver to the Plts further and better particulars in writing of paragraph 5 of the Deft's particulars of objections, showing how and in what respects the specification filed in pursuance of the letters patent does not sufficiently describe and ascertain the nature of the alleged invention, and in what manner the same is to be performed, by reference, when necessary, to the subject-matter of the said specification.—Crompton v. Anglo-American, &c. Electric Co., Kay, J., 14 Jan. 1887, A. 27; S. C., 35 Ch. D. 283.

18. To strike out Objections in default of Delivery of better Particulars.

UPON the application of the Plts, and upon hearing the solrs for the applicants and for the Defts, and upon reading &c.; And the Judge being of opinion that the particulars of objections delivered by the Defts with their statement of defence are insufficient; Let the Defts, the E. Co., on or before &c., deliver to the Plts further and better particulars, in writing, of their objections, by supplying in every case in which they have not already done so, the number of the page and paragraph in each specification and publication mentioned in the said particulars of objections, and in default of such delivery, Let the Defts' objections, so far as they relate to such specifications and publications, be struck out.

19. Order giving leave to amend Particulars of Objection unless Plts within specified Time elect to discontinue Action.

UPON motion &c., on behalf of the Defts—Let the Plt co. within one month from the date of this order elect whether they will discontinue this action, and if the Plt co. shall elect to discontinue this action and shall give notice thereof to the Defts within one month from the date of this order, Let it be referred to the taxing master to tax the Defts their costs of this action up to and including the date of the delivery of the particulars of objection, and to tax the Plts' costs of this action subsequently to the said — to the date of this order; And the taxing master is to set off the said costs of the Plts and of the Defts to be so respectively taxed, and certify to which of them the balance after such set off is due; And Let such balance be paid by the party from whom to the party to whom the same shall be certified to be due; And if the Plts shall not give notice to the Defts of their discontinuance of this action within the time aforesaid, Let the Defts be at liberty to amend their particulars of objections as set forth in the copy of the proposed amended particulars of objections already delivered to the Plts, and signed by the registrar.—Defts, the I. Co., to pay to the Plts, the E. Co., their costs of this application to be taxed &c.—Liberty to apply.—The Edison Telephone Co. v. The India Rubber, &c. Co., V.-C. B., 11 March, 1881, A. 673; 17 Ch. D. 137; following Baird v. Moule's Earth Closet Co., Ltd., M. R., 3 Feb. 1876, A. 231; 17 Ch. D. 139, n.

For similar order, see Ehrlich v. Ihlee, 56 L. T. 819, 821. For form of application, see D. C. F. 791.

PARTICULARS OF BREACHES AND OBJECTIONS.

By the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 57), s. 29, particulars of breaches complained of by Plt, and particulars of any objections to the validity of the patent on which Deft relies in support of his defence, must be delivered, with the statements of claim and defence respectively; and at the hearing no evidence shall, except by leave of the Court or a Judge, be admitted in proof of any alleged infringement, or objection of which particulars are not so delivered. If the Deft disputes the validity of the patent, the particulars delivered by him must state on what grounds he disputes it, and if one of those grounds is want of novelty must state the time and place of the previous publication or user alleged by him. Particulars delivered may be from time to time amended by leave of the Court or a Judge.

The principle is that, on the one hand, the Deft shall have full, fair, and distinct notice of the case to be made against him: Needham v. Oxley, 1 H. & M. 248; Batley v. Kynock, 19 Eq. 229; Consella v. Levinstein, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 473; and, on the other, that the Plt may not be surprised by production on the trial of evidence of prior user or publication of which he has had no notice: Curtis v. Platt, 8 L. T. 657; Daw v. Eley, 1 Eq. 38; and see Curtis v. Platt, 35 L. J. Ch. 852, 868; S. C., L. R. 1 H. L. 337; Talbot v. La Roche, 15 C. B. 310; Ledgard v. Bull, 11 App. Ca. 648; United Telephone Co. v. Smith, 61 L. T. 617; 38 W. R. 70.

Where the answer admitted a sale by Deft to a person not named in the particulars of breach, Plt was allowed to give evidence relating to the transactions with such third person: Sykes v. Howarth, 12 Ch. D. 826, 830.

Where issues had been refused, and pleadings closed, the Deft was not required to deliver particulars of objection: Borill v. Goodier, 1 Eq. 35; and, notwithstanding the statutory provisions for particulars, either party is, in a proper case, entitled to discovery by interrogatories: Birch v. Mather, 22 Ch. D. 629.

If the Deft's objection is grounded on nonconformity between the provisional and complete specifications, he must state wherein the difference consists: Anglo-American Brush Light Co. v. Crompton, 34 Ch. D. 152, C. A.; and see sup. p. 652, Form 18.

After a patent suit has been set down for hearing, leave has been given to Deft to file an affidavit of alleged prior user discovered since the closing of the evidence, Plt having one week within which to file evidence in reply: Wilson v. Gann, 23 W. R. 546.

In an action for threats of an indefinite character, an order on the Plts for delivery of particulars of objections was made conditionally upon discovery of the patents relied on being first given by the Defts: Union Electrical, &c. Co. v. Electrical Storage Co., 38 Ch. D. 325, C. A.

An application at the trial after the Plt's cross-examination for postponement and leave to amend particulars of objections, on the ground that new facts had been discovered showing want of novelty, no affidavit being tendered, but leave sought to recall the Plt, was refused: Moss v. Malings, 33 Ch. D. 603; distinguishing Renard v. Levinstein, 13 W. R. 229; 11 L. T. 555.

Where Deft, after a day fixed for the hearing, applies for leave to amend his particulars of objection, the Court will place the Plt in the same position as to discontinuing the action, or disclaiming a part of his invention, as if the amended particulars had been those originally delivered: See Edison Telephone Co. v. India Rubber Co., 17 Ch. D. 137; Form 20, sup.; Ehrlich v. Ihlee, 56 L. T. 819; and the same practice has been followed in an action for infringement of a registered design: Morris, Wilson & Co. v. Coventry Machinist Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 418; but the Court has an absolute and unfettered discretion in the matter: Woolley v. Broad, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 429.

Where one Deft severed, and delivered particulars denying validity of the patent, and his co-Deft merely denied infringement, the patent proving invalid, the action was dismissed as against both Defts: Smith v. Cropper, 10 App. Ca. 249; reversing Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700, C. A.

In giving particulars of alleged prior user, it is not sufficient, as was formerly held (Palmer v. Wagstaffe, 8 Ex. 840; Bulnois v. Mackenzie, 4 Bing. N. C. 132; Bentley v. Keighley, 7 M. & G. 652), to give the names of the places in which, without furnishing the names of the persons by whom, the invention is alleged to have been used: Flower v. Lloyd, 29 Aug. 1876, Field, J., for V.-C. B., 20 S. J. 860; see also Plimpton v. Spiller, Ib. 859; Morgan v. Fuller, 2 Eq. 297; Penn v. Bibby, 1 Eq. 348.

Deft alleging prior user by other persons was required to set forth the names of some of those persons: Crossley v. Tomey, 2 Ch. D. 533; and to state the names and addresses of the persons by whom prior user was alleged, as well as the places where such prior user had taken place: Birch v. Mather, 22 Ch. D. 629; Flower v. Lloyd, 20 Sol. J. 860.

Where Deft alleges general user before the date of the patent, he may be compelled to give discovery of names and addresses of persons so using the invention as alleged: Alliance Pure White Lead Syndicate v. MacIvors, 39 W. R. 487; 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 321.

Under notice of objection by Deft that the invention is not new, he can at the trial show that one of two inventions described in the specification is not new, and therefore that the patent is bad: Gregg v. Silber, 2 Q. B. D. 493, C. A.

Where want of novelty is set up, particulars need not be given of publications relied on simply as proving the state of general public knowledge, but specifications of previous patents must not be simply referred to; the nature of the anticipations relied on must be stated, and the places in the specifications (though not necessarily by page or line) where they are to be found: Holliday v. Heppenstall, 41 Ch. D. 109, C. A.; Form 17, sup.; and see Fowler v. Gard, 3 Rep. Pat. Cas. 247; Sidebottom v. Fielden, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 266; Siemen v. Karo, Ib. 376; Nettlefold v. Reynolds, Ib. 410; 65 L. T. 699.

Where the Deft relies on common knowledge, as distinguished from anticipation, it should be distinctly pleaded: Phillips v. Ivel Cycle Co., 62 L. T. 392.

As to certificate of reasonableness of particulars with a view to costs, v. inf. p. 665. For forms of particulars of breaches and objections, see D. C. F. 789, 790.

20. Order for Inspection of Deft's Process by Experts.

LET I. and C. of &c., be at liberty at all seasonable times, and as often as requisite, on giving three days' notice to the Defts, to enter into the business premises of the Defts, where the process of decorating or printing tin and metal plates is carried on by the Defts, as stated in the Plt's statement of claim, and mentioned in the said affidavits or some of them, and to inspect and examine there the whole of the process by which such printed and decorated tin and metal plates are manufactured by the Defts, and to take, on paying the reasonable charges of the Defts for the same, samples of such plates, and upon and during such inspection to make such observations as may be necessary and expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information and evidence of the mode by which such plates are manufactured by the Defts.—Flower v. Lloyd, C. A., 5 July, 1876, A. 1254.

The above direction, that the inspection should be "at all seasonable times," was disapproved of, and it was said that the number of times when inspection is to be made should be named in the order: per Jessel, M. R., at Chambers, Heathfield v. Braby, 15 May, 1879, A. 1051.

In the order as drawn up, the words "under the obligation of confidence," used by their Lordships, were not inserted, and on mentioning the matter to the Court their Lordships stated that all they meant was that the inspectors were not to communicate to the Plts any special or secret process which Defts might be using, but were to be at liberty to report to the solrs whether the process used was or was not in their opinion an infringement of Plt's patents, and state whether it was the ordinary process of lithography or not which Defts used.

For the like order for Plt to be at liberty personally, and also by his solrs and two scientific witnesses to be named before inspection, not exceeding three times in all, upon giving three days' notice, to inspect the works of the Defts whilst the processes therein used are in actual operation, see Henderson v. Runcorn, &c. Co., V.-C. W., 19 Dec. 1867, A. 3050.

For order, upon interlocutory motion for inspection, and directing Deft to verify by affidavit the several kinds of machines which he had sold or exposed for sale since (the date of Plts' last disclaimer), and to produce at his solr's office one of each class for inspection by Plts' solr, and by two of his scientific witnesses, see Singer Co. v. Wilson, V.-C. W., 23 March, 1865, B. 900; 13 W. R. 560; 5 N. R. 505; 12 L. T. 140.

For order that Plts deliver to the solrs of the Defts a statement in writing of the particulars of the alleged breaches by the Defts, and that Defts within twenty-one days after delivery of such statement deliver to the solrs of the Plts a statement in writing of any objections on which the Defts respectively mean to rely at the trial directed, &c., and refusing any inspection of the Defts' manufactory as asked in Plts' notice of motion, see Batley v. Kynock, V.-C. B., 12 Nov. 1874, A. 3157.

21. Order for Inspection of Process of Working—46 & 47 V.
c. 57, s. 30.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Deft, and upon hearing counsel for the Plts, Let A. B. and one other indifferent person appointed by him, and C. D., one of the Deft's solrs, be at liberty at such times and as often as in the opinion of the said A. B. be requisite, on giving three days' notice to the Plts, to enter into some business premises to be selected by the Plts where the process or mode of working referred to in the specification mentioned in the statement of claim can be seen at work, and to inspect and examine there the whole of the machinery fitted in such mill, and to take such samples of the finished and unfinished products of the working of such machinery as in the opinion of the said A. B. may be necessary for the purposes of this action; And Let such machinery be put to regular work upon such inspection.—Let costs of application be costs in the action.—Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson, Kay, J., 17 Dec. 1885, A. 1818.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 951.

INSPECTION AND DISCOVERY.

By the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 30, "in an action for infringement of a patent, the Court or a Judge may, on the application of either party, make an order for an injunction, inspection, or account, and impose such terms and give such directions respecting the same and the proceedings thereon as the Court or a Judge may see fit." This section is in substitution for 15 & 16 V. c. 83, s. 42, which was in similar terms, and which vested in the Courts of Common Law a jurisdiction which had previously existed in Equity exclusively. See, on the interpretation of this section at law, Holland v. Fox; Vidi v. Smith, 3 El. & Bl. 969, 977; Patent Type Co. v. Lloyd, 5 H. & N. 192.

The established rule in Equity has been, that where a Plt is unable to obtain clear and satisfactory evidence of infringement, the Court, upon a fair prima facie case being made out, will order Deft to permit an inspection to be made of his premises and machinery, by proper persons named on behalf of Plt: Davenport v. Jepson, 1 N. R. 308; Bennitt v. Whitehouse, 28 Beav. 121; Singer Machine Co. v. Wilson, 13 W. R. 560.

But the Court must be satisfied that there is really a case to be tried at the hearing, and that the inspection is essential for the proof of the Plt's case: Batley v. Kynock, L. R. 19 Eq. 90; Piggott v. Anglo-Am. Tel. Co., 19 L. T. 46.

Inspection and delivery of samples for purposes of analysis have been ordered on interlocutory motion, notwithstanding laches which would have barred the right to an interlocutory injunction: Patent Type Co. v. Walter, Joh. 727; though the order was refused at law: Patent Type Co. v. Lloyd, 5 H. & N. 192.

Where the Plts obtained an order against the Defts for inspection of process and samples, the Defts were entitled to like order against the Plts, so that they might be in a position at the hearing to describe the process actually carried on under the patent: Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson, 55 L. J. Ch. 287; 55 L. T. 282.

By O. L. 3, power is given to the Court or a Judge, upon the application of any party to an action, and upon such terms as may seem just, to make any order for inspection, and "to authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made, or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence."

The Court has no power to order inspection of articles not in the Deft's possession, though intended to be produced at the hearing in support of an allegation of prior user: Garrard v. Edge, 50 L. J. Ch. 397; 60 L. T. 537; 37 W. R. 501; Sidebottom v. Fielden, 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 266.

Deft in a patent suit will not be compelled before decree to give discovery not material to the question to be tried at the hearing: De la Rue v. Dickinson, 3 K. & J. 388; Wenham Co. v. Champion Gas Lamp Co., 63 L. T. 827; 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 22; 9 Rep. Pat. Ca. 49; or prematurely, or involving inquiry into evidence: Delta Metal Co. v. Maxim Nordenfelt Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Ca. 169; but the ordinary rules of discovery being applicable to patent actions, the Plt is entitled to interrogate as to names and addresses of persons alleged by the particulars of objections to have used the invention at places named: Birch v. Mather, 22 Ch. D. 629.

Where such information is material to establish the Plt's case at the hearing, the Deft may be required to set out the names and addresses of all persons, whether in England or abroad, from whom he had received money for the use of articles alleged to be made in infringement of the patent: Crossley v. Stewart, 1 N. R. 426; Howe v. M'Kernan, 30 Beav. 546.

And see Murray v. Clayton, L. R. 15 Eq. 115, inf. Form 30, as to the extent of the discovery required from a Deft after decree for injunction with inquiry as to damages.

As to the right of a Deft to discovery of the names and addresses of persons alleged to have been induced to purchase the goods of the Deft as and for the goods of the Plt, see Humphries v. Taylor Drug Co., 39 Ch. D. 693.

Where Deft alleged that his process was secret, he was bound to answer whether he used the materials mentioned in the specification, and whether he used any additional materials, but not to disclose the proportions in which he used the specified materials, or what the additional materials were: Renard v. Levinstein, 3 N. R. 665.

An answer as to documents which claimed privilege but did not discriminate between communications between Plt and his solr as such, and between him and the solr in his capacity of patent agent, was held insufficient: Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 56 L. T. 482.

22. Leave to apply to amend Specification by way of Disclaimer, but same not to be receivable as Evidence.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing &c. for the Deft, Let the Plt be at liberty to apply to the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification on which his letters patent of the — day of &c., numbered &c., in the pleadings mentioned, were granted, and his specification on which his letters patent of the — day of &c., numbered &c., in the pleadings mentioned, were granted by way of disclaimer, providing that the specifications as amended shall not be receivable in evidence in this action, and the costs of and occasioned by any such application of the Plt are to be borne by the Deft in any event.—Costs of motion costs in action.—Bray v. Gardner, Stirling, J., 16 Dec. 1886, A. 1811.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 792.

23. Leave to apply to amend Specification of Patent—46 & 47 V. c. 57, s. 19.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, Let the Plts be at liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to further amend the specification of the patent No. &c. by striking out the second claim thereof, and by making such other alterations (if any) as will be rendered necessary thereby; And Let, after such amendment has been made, the Plts be at liberty, within fourteen days, to amend their statement of claim so as to limit this action to the amended specification of the said patent; And in default thereof dismiss action with costs.—Let the costs of the Defts of this application and of and occasioned by such amendment be their costs in any event and be borne by the Plts.—Haslam, &c. Co. v. Goodfellow, Kay, J., 2 Dec. 1887, A. 1727; 37 Ch. D. 118.

24. Leave to amend Specification by way of Disclaimer and to use same as amended in Evidence.

UPON the appeal of the Plts from &c., and upon hearing counsel for the appellants and for the Deft, Let the order dated &c., be varied, and as varied be as follows, that is to say, that the Plts be at liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend their specification filed in pursuance of their letters patent numbered &c., by way of disclaimer, and that the said specification when so amended as aforesaid be used in evidence on the hearing of this action, the Plts by their counsel waiving all claim for damages or relief in respect of infringements prior to the amendment of the said specification.—Liberty to Deft within fourteen days after notice of the amendments made in the said specification to amend their defence and particulars of objection.—Plts to pay costs of action up to this date on the lower scale.—Gaulard v. Lindsay, C. A., 1 Feb. 1888, A. 155.

DISCLAIMER PENDING ACTION.

The proviso in sect. 6 of the Statute of Monopolies, 1623 (21 Jac. 1, c. 3), exempting new inventions from the operation of the Act, includes defective letters patent capable of amendment by disclaimer: Peck & Co. v. Hindes, 67 L. J. Q. B. 272.

After disclaimer, under 15 & 16 V. c. 83, s. 39, the Court would not entertain the question of enforcing an interdict previously granted, infringement of the patent as altered being matter for a new action: Dudgeon v. Thomson, 3 App. Ca. 34, 39.

By the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 19, "in an action for infringement of a patent, and in a proceeding for revocation of a patent, the Court or a Judge may at any time order that the patentee shall, subject to such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court or a Judge may impose, be at liberty to apply at the Patent Office for leave to amend his specification by way of disclaimer, and may direct that in the meantime the trial or hearing of the action shall be postponed."

This section applies to an action for infringement which was pending at the commencement of the Act (1st Jan. 1884): Singer v. Hasson, 50 L. T. 326; and does not affect the jurisdiction of the Master of the Rolls to allow an amendment in a specification filed under sects. 27 and 28 of 15 & 16 V. c. 83: Re Gore's Patent, 26 Ch. D. 105.

An action for infringement after judgment is not "pending" within sect. 18 of the Act of 1883 (providing for amendment of specification), and therefore in such a case that section is applicable, and an application may be made to the comptroller to amend the specification by way of disclaimer: Cropper v. Smith, 28 Ch. D. 148.

The fact that an action for threats under sect. 32 was not concluded, did not prevent the Court from exercising the powers of sect. 19 in a cross action for infringement: Re Hull, 21 Q. B. D. 137; and see now 51 & 52 V. c. 50, s. 5.

The word "disclaimer" in sect. 19 must be read strictly and not as including correction or explanation: Re Owen's Patent, (1899) 1 Ch. 157.

The granting or refusing leave to amend a specification by way of disclaimer under sect. 19 is still a matter for the judicial discretion of the Court, and Moser v. Marsden, 13 Rep. Pat. Ca. 24, and Deeley v. Perkes, (1896) A. C. 496, have in no way interfered with this discretion: Re Dellwick's Patent, (1896) 2 Ch. 705.

The discretion will not be interfered with by the Court of Appeal, unless clearly exercised on a wrong principle: Yates v. Armstrong; Re Armstrong's Patent, 77 L. T. 267, C. A.

Where a specification has been amended under the Act, the amended claim is substituted for all purposes for the original claim, and no argument against the validity of the patent can be founded upon an alleged discrepancy between them: Marsden v. Moser, 73 L. T. 667, H. L.

In exercising the powers of the section, the Court has imposed the condition that the amended specification should not be receivable in evidence in the action: Bray v. Gardner, 34 Ch. D. 668, C. A. (see Form 22, sup.); but in particular cases less stringent terms may be required: S. C. Thus, where the action had not proceeded beyond writ, the terms were that the Plts should pay Defts' party and party costs up to and consequent on disclaimer: Fusee Vesta Co. v. Bryant & May, 34 Ch. D. 458; and for a like order at a later stage of an action, see Haslam Foundry v. Goodfellow, 37 Ch. D. 118; Form 23, sup.; and in Gaulard v. Lindsay, 38 Ch. D. 38, C. A. (see Form 24, sup.), leave was granted to give the amended specification in evidence at the trial on terms of the Plts paying all costs down to leave given, and waiving damages for previous infringements; and see Lang v. Whitcross Co., 62 L. T. 119. The Judge in Chambers has full discretion as to terms of amendment: Ib.

25. Judgment in Patent Action—Perpetual Injunction—Inquiry as to Damages—Delivery up on Oath of Infringing Articles—Costs.

UPON motion for judgment &c., Let the Defts J. E. H. & Co., Ltd., their directors, servants and agents, be restrained during the continuance of the letters patent, No. — of A.D. 1890, in the writ mentioned, and any extension thereof, from infringing the said letters patent of which the Plts are owners; And Let an inquiry be made what damages have been sustained by the Plts by reason of the infringement of the said letters patent by the Defts J. E. H. & Co., Ltd.; And Let the Defts J. E. H. & Co., Ltd., within fourteen days after service of this judgment, make and file a full and sufficient affidavit (to be made by their clerk or secretary) stating what tyres and parts of tyres are in their possession or power made in infringement of the said letters patent; and Let the Defts, J. E. H. & Co., Ltd., within four days after the filing of the said affidavit, deliver up to the Plts, the D. P. T. Co., Ltd., and the P. T. Co., Ltd., the tyres and parts of tyres that shall by such affidavit appear to be in their possession or power; And Let the Defts pay to the Plts their costs of this action up to and including this judgment, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master as between solr and client, And this Court doth reserve the costs of making the said inquiry.—Liberty to apply as to payment of what shall be found due upon taking the said inquiry, and as to the costs thereof, and otherwise generally to apply as they may be advised.—See The Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co., Ltd., and the Pneumatic Tyre Co., Ltd. v. J. E. Hopkinson & Co., Ltd., Romer J., 30 Jan. 1897, A. 567.

26. Another Form in a similar Case.

UPON motion for judgment &c., Let the Deft B., his servants and agents, be restrained during the continuance of the letters patent, No. — of A.D. 1890, and any extension thereof, from infringing the said letters patent of which the Plts are owners; And Let an inquiry be made what damages have been sustained or incurred by the Plts, [and to what amount,] by reason of the infringement of the said letters patent by the Deft; And Let the costs of the said inquiry be reserved; And Let the Deft B. deliver up on oath on demand to the Plts all tyres or parts of tyres in his possession, custody or power, made in infringement of the said letters patent; And Let it be referred to the taxing master to tax, as between solr and client, the Plts' costs of this action up to and including this judgment; And it is ordered and adjudged that the Plts recover against the Deft the amount of their said costs when so taxed.—Usual certificate pursuant to sect. 29 of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883 [Form 35, p. 663].—Liberty to apply as to payment of damages and generally.—The Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co., Ltd., and The Pneumatic Tyre Co., Ltd. v. Armstrong, Kekewich, J., 19 Nov. 1898; Same v. Bramham, Stirling, J., 12 Nov. 1898, A. 4002.

27. Judgment in Patent Action—Injunction—Account of Gains and Profits—Discovery, Delivery up, or Destruction.

LET the Deft, his servants &c., be restrained during the continuance of the said letters patent granted to N., dated &c., from using or exercising, or causing or permitting to be used or exercised, the invention described in the hereinbefore-mentioned specification and drawings of the said N., and from selling, letting for hire, or making any profitable use, or permitting the sale, letting for hire, or profitable use of any roller or runner skates not made by the Plt or his licensees, and having applied thereto rollers or runners in manner described, and for the purposes mentioned in the said specification, or fitted with any apparatus for causing the skate to run in a curved line in the manner described in the said specification and drawings, or differing therefrom only colourably, and by the substitution of mere mechanical equivalents; And Let an account be taken of all roller skates being the same as the skates sold by the Deft to G. as in the pleadings mentioned, or otherwise made in infringement of the said letters patent, which have been manufactured, or sold, or let for hire, by or by the order, or for the use or profit of the Deft, and also of the gains and profits made by the Deft by reason of such manufacture, sale, or letting for hire ; And Let the Deft within (seven) days after the service upon him of the Master's certificate of the result of such account, pay to the Plt the amount of such gains and profits ; And Let the Deft forthwith upon oath deliver up to the Plt, or break up, or otherwise render unfit for use all roller skates or parts of roller skates so manufactured, or let for hire, by or by the order or for the use of the Deft in infringement of the said letters patent as aforesaid, which are in the possession, custody, or power of the Deft or his servants or agents.—Deft to pay to the Plt costs of suit.—Plimpton v. Malcolmson, M. R., 28 Jan. 1876, B. 381.

28. Inquiry to ascertain Profits of User.

THE application of the Plt, which upon hearing &c., in Chambers, was adjourned &c., and upon hearing counsel for the Plt and the Deft ; And this Court being of opinion that for the purpose of ascertaining the profits made by reason of the use of the Plt's invention pursuant to the said judgment it is necessary to inquire what was the cost of forging iron and steel forgings manufactured by the Deft prior to the use of the said invention, and also what was the cost of forging like forgings manufactured by the Deft during such use ; Let the Deft, on or before &c., bring in a further and better account giving such information accordingly.—Siddell v. Vickers, Kekewich, J., 22 June, 1889, B. 906 ; S. C., 61 L. T. 233.

29. Inquiry as to Articles in Defts' Possession, and Direction for their Destruction.

LET an inquiry be made whether the Defts or any of them have in their possession or power any or what articles manufactured in violation of Plt's patent ; and Let all articles which shall be certified to have been so manufactured, and to be in the possession of the Defts or any of them, be destroyed in the presence of C. the Plt's manager, and K. the Defts' manager, and the respective solrs of the Plt and Defts.—Betts v. De Vitre, V.-C. W., 25 Jan. 1865, A. 119.

30. Order for Discovery by Defts of the Names and Addresses of their Customers, after Judgment for perpetual Injunction, in aid of Inquiry as to Damages.

UPON the application of the Plt &c., It is ordered that the Defts do within four days after service of this order make and file an affidavit or affidavits stating the number of brick-cutting machines made or caused to be made by them since &c., the date of the Plt's letters patent mentioned &c., and the names and addresses of the persons to whom the same respectively have been sold, or for whom the same have been purchased (and the names of the agents concerned in the transactions), and the number of the machines now in course of construction, and of the licences granted by the said Defts or either of them, to any persons to make or use the said machines, with the names and addresses of the said persons to whom such licences have been granted, and the number of licences granted by the Defts, or either of them, to any persons to use the said machines, together with their names and addresses, and the places where the said machines are respectively licensed to be used, and the amount of royalties received and to be received by or for the use of the said Defts, or either of them, for the granting of such licences in respect thereof.—Murray v. Clayton, V.-C. B., in Chambers, 16 July, 1872, B. 1998 (varied by V.-C. in Court, 16th Nov. 1872, B. 2947, by striking out the words “and the names of the agents concerned in the transactions”: L. R. 15 Eq. 115).

For form of application, see D. C. F. 793.

31. Inquiry as to Damages in Patent Case.

AN inquiry what sum of money is fit to be awarded to the Plt to be paid by the Defts in respect of any damage sustained by the Plt from the sale or use by the Defts of the Plt's said invention, or any apparatus in imitation of or being only a colourable deviation from the Plt's said invention.—Defts to pay to the Plt — such sum of money as upon such inquiry shall be found fit to be awarded to the Plt for such compensation as aforesaid, within twenty-one days after the filing of the Master's certificate of the result of the said inquiry.—Cunningham v. Colling, V.-C. W., 20 Dec. 1864, A. 2508.

That Plt, according to recent decisions of the House of Lords, is not entitled both to an account of profits and compensation in damages, see Notes, inf. p. 663.

32. The like Inquiry.

AN inquiry what damages the Plts have sustained by the sale by the Deft I. R. [within six years prior to the filing of the Plts' bill] of any articles manufactured before the — day of —, 18— [the day of the expiration of the patent in the Plts' bill mentioned], pursuant to the process the exclusive use of which was granted by the letters patent in the bill mentioned.—Davenport v. Rylands, 1 Eq. 302; 1865, A. 2540.

33. The like Inquiry—Common Form.

AN inquiry what damages have been sustained by the Plts by reason of the said infringement by the Defts of the Plts' said patent.—American Braided Wire Co. v. Thomson, C. A., 2 Feb. 1888, A. 200; 44 Ch. D. 274, C. A.

34. Certificate (embodied in Judgment) that Validity of Patent was in Question at the Trial—Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 31.

AND this Court certifies, pursuant to the 31st section of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, that upon the trial of this action the validity of the Plt's letters patent, No. —, dated &c., came into question.

35. Like Certificate as to Proof of Particulars of Breaches—Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 29.

AND this Court certifies, pursuant to the 29th section of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, that [in the trial of this action the Plt proved the particulars of breaches delivered by him] or [the particulars of objections delivered by the Deft were reasonable and proper].

NOTES.

HEARING OF ACTION.

As to the procedure on hearing in camera where the Deft denies infringement, but objects to state in open Court the process he actually adopts, on the ground that it is the subject of a valuable secret, of the benefit of which he would be deprived by disclosure, see Badische, &c. Fabrik v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156.

Where there is contradictory evidence on a scientific point, the Court is at liberty to obtain independent scientific assistance to give advice upon which the judgment may be founded: S. C.

An objection for want of parties ought not to be postponed to the hearing when no impediment exists to raising it earlier: Sheehan v. G. E. Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59.

On dismissing action, the Court declined to insert a declaration of infringement "if the patent were valid": Blakey v. Latham, W. N. (88) 126.

As to the position of third parties in an action for infringement of patent, see Edison v. Swan United Electric Co., 41 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

As to giving certificate as to validity of patent being called in question, and as to reasonableness of particulars of breaches and objection, v. pp. 665, 666.

ACCOUNT OF PROFITS OR DAMAGES.

It is now conclusively settled that a patentee is not entitled, since 21 & 22 V. c. 27, both to an account of profits (which amounts to a condonation of the infringement) and an inquiry as to damages, but must elect which he will take: De Vitre v. Betts, L. R. 6 H. L. 319; Neilson v. Betts, L. R. 5 H. L. 1; Needham v. Oxley, 11 W. R. 852; 2 N. R. 388; 8 L. T. 604; United Horse Shoe Co. v. Stewart, 13 App. Ca. 401; Watson v. Holliday, 30 W. R. 747; 52 L. J. Ch. 543; 31 W. R. 536; 48 L. T. 545; Siddell v. Vickers, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 153, 161 (q. v., as to the difficulty of working out an account of profits).

In Hill v. Evans, Jan. 29, 1862, A. 293, it appears that the order was for an injunction, an account of profits, "and of such other compensation as is fit to be awarded in respect of such making, use and exercise"; but according to the report of this case (4 D. F. & J. 288), the account was directed unless the Plt preferred liberty to bring an action for damages.

And see Betts v. Vitre, 11 Jur. N. S. 9, where it was said that if the Plt chose to waive the account of profits, he was to be at liberty to proceed at law for damages; though in Betts v. Neilson, 3 Ch. 429, the right of Plt to the double relief had been affirmed on the authority of the decree in Hill v. Evans, sup.

At law damages were considered as compensation for the loss of profits prior to the action: see Holland v. Fox, 3 El. & Bl. 977, where after final judgment, the account of profits was limited to profits made by Deft pending the action, and after notice that such account would be required: Vidi v. Smith, Ib. 969, where the account directed, pending the action, of all future sales by Deft, was "on condition of Plt agreeing to waive all claim for more than nominal damages at the trial of the action, and on condition of, in case verdict and judgment were for Defts, Plt undertaking to pay to Defts the expense of keeping such account."

And see Walton v. Lavater, 8 C. B. N. S. 162; Elwood v. Christy, 18 C. B. N. S. 498, for form of rule or order for account at law.

As to the principles to be adopted in the assessment of damages and ascertainment of pecuniary loss sustained, see Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Puncture Proof, &c. Co., 16 Rep. Pat. Cas. 209; British Motor Syndicate, Ltd. v. Taylor, (1900) 1 Ch. 577.

After judgment restraining infringement, with inquiry as to damages, there is no power to direct a trial by jury on the question of damages: American Braided Wire Co. v. Thompson, 5 Rep. Pat. Cas. 538.

Where sales have been made by the Defts, and the Plts have reduced their prices in consequence of such competition, the measure of damages to the Plts is the amount of profits which would have been made by them if all the sales had been made by them at original prices, after making allowance for the increased sales attributable to the connection and exertions of the Defts, and to the reduction in prices: American Braided Wire Co. v. Thomson, 44 Ch. D. 274, C. A.; distinguishing United Horse Shoe Co. v. Stewart, 13 App. Ca. 401, where the reduction of prices was due to the competition of others besides the Defts, and therefore the Plts were not entitled to additional damages in respect of the reduction.

Defts are not entitled to set off the value of infringing articles delivered up after judgment, nor sums recovered in previous actions by Plts from manufacturers from whom the Defts bought: United Telephone Co. v. Walker, 56 L. T. 508.

Where Deft admitted some infringements and denied others, on the Plt moving for judgment on admissions the inquiry was confined to damages arising from the admitted infringements: United Telephone Co. v. Donohoe, 31 Ch. D. 399, C. A.

In aid of the account, an order may be made on Defts for production and inspection of their books: Saxby v. Easterbrook, L. R. 7 Ex. 207; and the names and addresses of customers must be disclosed: Saccharin Corp. v. Chemicals and Drugs Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 556.

The account under a patent being incident to the right to an injunction against future infringement might be lost by its expiration or by delay: Smith v. L. & S. W. Ry., Kay, 408; Price's Patent Co. v. Bauwen's Pat. Co., 4 K. & J. 727; Baily v. Taylor, 1 R. & M. 73.

By the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, s. 17, sub-s. 4 (b), if any proceeding is taken in respect of an infringement of patent committed after a failure to make any payment within the prescribed time, and before enlargement thereof, the Court may refuse to give any damages in respect of such infringement; and by sect. 20, where an amendment by way of disclaimer, correction, or explanation has been allowed, no damages shall be given in respect of the use of the invention before the disclaimer, correction, or explanation, unless the patentee satisfies the Court that his original claim was framed in good faith, and with reasonable skill and knowledge.

And though the expiration of the patent during the litigation will not deprive the Plt of his relief in damages or by account (Davenport v. Rylands, 1 Eq. 302; Fox v. Dellestable, 15 W. R. 194), the Court refused to entertain a bill for the mere purpose of damages where it was filed so immediately before the patent expired that no interlocutory injunction could have been obtained: Betts v. Gallais, 10 Eq. 392.

For the distinction between the form of inquiry in a patent suit, "What damages the Plt has sustained," and in a trade mark case, "What damages, if any, the Plt has sustained," see Davenport v. Rylands, L. R. 1 Eq. 302; Form 16, p. 631, and Form 32, p. 662, sup.; and as to the measure of damages, Penn v. Jack, 5 Eq. 81.

Where a patentee assigns to two persons in moieties, each assignee can work the patent without being liable to account to the other for profits; and this, though one of the assignees be mortgagee of the other's moiety: Stears

v. Rogers, (1893) A. C. 232; H. L. affirming C. A., (1892) 2 Ch. 13; and approving Mathers v. Green, L. R. 1 Ch. 29; 34 Beav. 170.

In aid of the inquiry as to damages the Deft must give full discovery, and set out the names and addresses of the persons to whom machines, made in infringement of the patent, have been sold; but not the names of agents where there is nothing to show that any agents have been employed: Murray v. Clayton, 15 Eq. 115, sup. Form 30, p. 661.

As to the right of a licensee to repudiate his licence, see Ridges v. Mulliner, 10 Rep. Pat. Cas. 1, following Crossley v. Dixon, 10 H. L. C. 293.

In taking the account against a licensee of all articles made by him under his licence, he is not to adduce documentary evidence for the purpose of showing that the patent was bad for want of novelty: Adie v. Clarke, 24 W. R. 1007; affd. 2 App. Ca. 423; Crossley v. Dixon, 10 H. L. C. 293; Noton v. Brookes, 7 H. & N. 499; though he is not, it seems, after his licence has expired, estopped from disputing the validity of the patent: Dangerfield v. Jones, 13 L. T. 142.

The right of a patentee to an account of profits is not a demand "in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of contract," within the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 31 (see now 46 & 47 V. c. 52, s. 37, sub-s. 1), so as to be incapable of being proved in the bankruptcy of the infringer: Watson v. Holliday, 20 Ch. D. 780.

The Palatine Court of Lancaster had no jurisdiction to give damages in lieu of injunction: Proctor v. Bayley, 42 Ch. D. 390; 59 L. J. Ch. 12; but see now Chancery of Lancaster Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 23), s. 3.

COSTS.

The costs in patent actions are regulated by the Patents, &c. Act, 1883, providing, by sect. 29, sub-sect. 6, that in taxation regard shall be had to the particulars delivered by the Plt and Deft, and that they respectively shall not be allowed any costs, in respect of any particular delivered by them, unless the same is certified by the Court or a Judge to have been proven, or to have been reasonable and proper, without regard to the general costs of the case. By sect. 31, the Court or a Judge in an action for infringement may certify that the validity of the patent came in question, and if the Court or a Judge so certifies, then in any subsequent action (i.e., commenced after certificate granted: Saccharin Corp. v. Anglo-Continental Chemical Works, (1901) 1 Ch. 414) for infringement the Plt in that action, on obtaining a final order or judgment in his favour, shall have his full costs, charges, and expenses as between solr and client, unless the Court or Judge trying the action certifies that he ought not to have the same.

As to the meaning of "full costs" (under Copyright Act, 1842, s. 26), see Avery v. Wood, (1891) 3 Ch. 115, C. A.

Section 31 of the Act of 1883 is substituted for sect. 43 of 15 & 16 V. c. 83, which, however, required that the Judge should certify "on the record," and under that section the certificate was endorsed on a copy of the pleadings, and was signed by the Judge, but now the certificates under sects. 29 (sub-sect. 6) and 31 of the Act of 1883 are embodied in the judgment or order of the Court: v. sup. p. 663, Forms 34 and 35.

Under the former section, it was held that, notwithstanding the provision entitling the Plt to costs, the decree or order should contain an express direction for taxation of the costs as between solr and client: see Lister v. Leather, 4 K. & J. 425; Hill v. Evans, 4 D. F. & J. 288, 309; Needham v. Oxley, 11 W. R. 852 (and see, under the recent Act, United Telephone Co. v. Patterson, 60 L. T. 315); and that to obtain the certificate of the Judge the validity of the patent must have been actually contested, and the result must not merely be in favour of Plt on verdict taken by consent: Stocker v. Rodgers, 1 C. & K. 99; and see Greaves v. E. C. Ry. Co., 1 Ell. & E. 961; Bovill v. Hadley, 17 C. B. N. S. 435; nor, on the other hand, in favour of Deft on election by Plt to be non-suited: Honiball v. Bloomer, 10 Ex. 538; and without the certificate no costs in respect of his particulars of objection could be allowed: S. C. But this rule was held inapplicable to the case of Plt dismissing his own bill before the hearing: Batley v. Kynock, 20 Eq. 632; and see Parnell v. Mort, Liddell & Co., 29 Ch. D. 325, C. A., where it was held that the Court had power to allow costs of witnesses brought up to support particulars of objections, but not called because the Plts had virtually been non-suited; and see Edmunds on Patents, 453.

And after the validity of the patent has once been established, and certificate given, a patentee is entitled to full costs in any subsequent proceedings to protect his rights, although the validity of his patent is not disputed: Davenport v. Rylands, 35 L. J. Ch. 204; 1 Eq. 302.

The certificate under sect. 31 is not a judgment or order appealable under sect. 19 of Jud. Act, 1873: Haslam Foundry v. Hall, 20 Q. B. D. 491, C. A.

The operation of sect. 29 is not confined to cases where the action is brought to trial. In the absence (however arising) of the certificate under sub-sect. 6, the costs of particulars cannot be recovered under an order for payment of the costs of the action: Middleton v. Bradley, (1895) 2 Ch. 716. The certificate under sect. 29, sub-sect. 6, will not be granted unless the Court is satisfied, upon knowledge derived from the trial of the action, that the particulars are reasonable and proper: Germ Milling Co. v. Robinson, 55 L. T. 282; and where the Plt's case breaks down at the opening, so that it is not necessary to go into the Deft's case, the Court will not go into the particulars merely for the purpose of certifying, and the Deft, for whom judgment is given with costs, will not get the costs of them: Longbottom v. Shaw, 43 Ch. D. 46; and see Oddy v. Smith, 5 Rep. Pat. Cas. 503; Mandleberg v. Morley, W. N. (95), p. 9; 72 L. T. 106; 43 W. R. 266; 64 L. J. Ch. 245; Wilcox and Gibbs v. Janes, (1897) 2 Ch. 71. Where, the question of invalidity of patent not having been gone into, no certificate is given as to particulars of objections to validity, and the costs thereof are consequently disallowed, the Plt is not entitled to set off, as against costs payable by him, costs incurred in consequence of the particulars; and the taxing master cannot, under O. LXV, 27 (20, 21), enter into the question whether the particulars were improper: Garrard v. Edge, 44 Ch. D. 224, C. A.

Where judgment for the Plts is given in default of appearance by the Defts, the Court has jurisdiction under sect. 29, to certify that the Plts' particulars of breaches were reasonable and proper: Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. J. Parr & Co., W. N. (96) 88 (13); 75 L. T. 488.

The Court of Appeal has jurisdiction to grant a certificate under the section: Cole v. Saqui, 40 Ch. D. 132, C. A.; q. v. for observations as to the effect of the section in throwing an unnecessary duty upon the Court.

As to the allowance of remuneration to scientific witnesses, and the expense of preparing a model, as proper items of cost in a patent suit, see Batley v. Kynock, 20 Eq. 632; and see Smith v. Buller, 19 Eq. 473 (disallowing as "luxuries" drawings of exhibits, for the purpose of being attached to the margin of the briefs); and Automatic Weighing Co. v. Knight, W. N. (88) 250 (that only one scientific witness need be called if able to give sufficient evidence); and v. sup. Chap. XVII., "Costs," p. 307.

Where the Plt failed in establishing validity, but succeeded on infringement, he paid the general costs, but had a set-off for costs occasioned by the issue of infringement: Badische Anilin v. Levinstein, 29 Ch. D. 366, C. A.

Where the validity of the patent has been upheld by the Court, the Deft is estopped from again denying it in a subsequent action, even though he alleges that anticipations have been since discovered: Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, (1896) 1 Ch. 667.

Where particulars of objections for want of novelty included specifications of prior patents, which in the result proved useful in assisting the Court to decide that the patent, though novel, was bad for disconformity, the Court certified that the particulars were "reasonable and proper without regard to the general costs of the action": Castner Kellner Alkali Co. v. Commercial Development Corp., (1899) 1 Ch. 803, C. A.

Where the Deft denied infringement, which issue was decided against him, but judgment went for him on the ground of want of novelty, he was not entitled to the costs of the issue of infringement: Phillips v. Ivel Cycle Co., 62 L. T. 392; Binnington v. Hill, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 326; and similarly where infringement was not found, but validity of patent was: Tweedale v. Ashworth, 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 49. Where Deft on being served with the writ offered to give an undertaking which the Plt ought to have accepted, the Court deprived him of costs other than costs down to the date of the offer, and of the day's appearance: Jenkins v. Hope, (1896) 1 Ch. 278.

As to the allowance of costs on the higher scale where scientific witnesses are necessarily called, see Ellington v. Clark, 58 L. T. 40, 818; Wenham Gas Co. v. Champion Gas Lamp Co., 8 Rep. Pat. Cas. 313; and sup. Chap. XVII., pp. 261, 307.

SECTION VIII.—INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT.

1. Judgment for perpetual Injunction against Infringement of Copyright.

LET the Deft M., his workmen &c., be perpetually restrained from publishing, printing, selling, delivering or otherwise disposing of, or causing or (knowingly) permitting to be published, printed, sold, delivered or otherwise disposed of, any copies or copy of his book in the Plt's (bill) mentioned, called "The Imperial Directory of London for 1866," containing the divisions headed—"Streets"—"Official"—"Parliamentary"—"Court"—&c., or any or either of them, or any part of them respectively.—Deft to pay Plt's costs of suit to be taxed—all further proceedings except for executing the decree to be stayed.—See Kelly v. Morris, V.-C. W., 8 March, 1866, A. 779; 1 Eq. 697.

2. Interlocutory Injunction against Infringement of Copyright—without specifying Pirated Parts.

LET the Deft, his servants &c., be restrained from further printing, publishing, selling, or otherwise disposing of any copy or copies of a book called "A New and Comprehensive Gazetteer," containing any article or articles, passage or passages, copied, taken, or colourably altered from a book called "The Topographical Dictionary of England," published by the Plts; until &c.—See Lewis v. Fullarton, M. R., 16 July, 1839; S. C., 2 Beav. 6.

The usual undertaking as to damages would now be required.

For the like order against publishing a book containing specified parts taken from Plt's work, or any passages, copied, taken, or colourably altered therefrom, see Jarrold v. Houlston, 3 K. & J. 722.

3. Injunction staying Infringement, and specifying Pirated Parts.

USUAL undertaking.—Let the Defts, their workmen &c., be restrained from publishing, selling, or advertising for sale the work called &c., in the (bill) mentioned, or any words containing the extracts in the — paragraph of the (bill) mentioned, or any of them, and from parting with the possession of any copies of the said work now in their possession or under their control; until &c.—See Smith v. Chatto, V.-C. H., 18 Dec. 1874, B. 3463; 23 W. R. 290.

LET the Defts, their manager, canvassers, agents, clerks, compositors, printers, workmen, and servants, be perpetually restrained from further printing, publishing, selling, delivering, or otherwise disposing of the book called “The Architect’s &c. Directory,” alleged to be copied and pirated by the Deft W., as in the (bill) mentioned, or any copy or copies thereof, and any future edition thereof, and from copying or pirating from any edition of any of the Plt’s Directories in the (bill) mentioned, and every part thereof respectively, and any copy thereof and extract therefrom respectively, and (from copying, &c., from) the Defts’ Directory and every part thereof so alleged to have been copied and pirated as aforesaid, and (from) the copy and manuscript from which the same was printed, and (from) every copy thereof and extract therefrom, in the preparation of, or for the purpose of assisting in the preparation of, any future edition of the Defts’ said Directory, or any other Directory; And Let the following, &c. 1. An account of the number of copies of the Defts’ Directory so printed, and of the number thereof so published by the Deft W. as aforesaid, which the Defts or any other person &c. by their or any of their order, or for their or any of their use, have sold or disposed of; and the number of copies now remaining on hand unsold, or undisposed of. 2. An account of all and every sum or sums of money received by the Defts, and each of them, or by any other person &c. upon or by the sale of such copies as have been sold or disposed of as aforesaid, and also in respect of the extra lines and advertisements contained in the Defts’ said Directory, and of the profits made by the Defts arising out of their printing and publishing their (said) Directory; And Let the Defts pay to the Plt K. what upon taking the said accounts shall be certified to be the net profit arising from the printing and publication of the Defts’ (said) Directory; And Let all copies of the Defts’ (said) Directory which remain unsold and are in the possession or power of the Defts or any or either of them, and all printed sheets forming or intended to form part of the same, be delivered up by the Defts to the Plt for destruction.—Liberty to apply.—Kelly v. Hodge, V.-C. J., 11 Jan. 1870, A. 121.

5. Injunction against using Blocks for Advertising.

LET the Defts E. A. E., T. H. A. E., M. S. R., and H. & Co. (other than the printers), their servants and agents, be restrained, until judgment &c., from printing selling, or publishing any copy or copies of so much of the Plt's book in the writ mentioned as consists of headings (not forming part of advertisements therein), so or in such a way as to infringe the Plt's copyright in such headings, and also from displaying or using for the purpose of obtaining advertisements for any work other than the Plt's said work so much of the copies of the Defts' book already printed as consists of such headings as aforesaid, and from using blocks or materials obtained by the Defts E. A. E. and T. H. A. E., or either of them, while in the employment of the Plt, and for the purposes of his said work, or any copies thereof for the purposes of any work other than the said work of the Plt. But this order is not to extend to prevent the Defts, or any of them, making legitimate use of the Plt's work, or any part thereof, for the purposes of obtaining advertisements or otherwise, [nor to prevent the Defts or any of them from publishing any copy of any blocks at the request or by direction of the owners thereof]; And the Defts M., Son & Co., Ltd. (the printers), by their counsel, undertaking not to infringe the Plt's copyright in the headings of the Plt's work, and for that purpose to destroy the translations of all such headings; Let the Defts M., Son & Co., be at liberty to deliver the specimen copies with the headings destroyed as aforesaid to the Defts, or any of them, to be held by them subject to the terms of this order.—Costs to be costs in the action.—See Lamb v. Evans, Chitty, J., 12 Aug. 1892, B. 1181; (1892) 3 Ch. 462; affirmed by C. A., 23 Nov. 1892, B. 1553; (1893) 1 Ch. 218, C. A., when the words in square brackets were added.

6. Another Form of Delivery up.

AND if on taking the said account it shall appear that there are any such net profits, Let the Defts, B. A. & Co., within fourteen days after the date of the Master's certificate, deliver to the Plts, H. & L., all copies of the said book which remain unsold and are in the possession or power of the Defts or any of them, and all printed sheets and illustrations forming or intended to form part of the same; but if on taking the said accounts it shall appear that there are no such net profits, Let the said Defts, B. A. & Co., within fourteen days after the date of the said Master's certificate, deliver to the Plts, H. & L., for destruction, the copies remaining unsold of the said book, and all printed sheets and illustrations forming or intended to form the original drawings and blocks used for the illustration of the said book, and all blocks and plates in their possession or power taken from the original drawings or any of them.—Defts to pay Plts' costs.—Hole v. Bradbury, Fry, J., 28 July, 1879, A. 1673; 12 Ch. D. 886.

7. Injunction against assigning Benefit of Publishing Agreement.

UPON motion &c., upon usual undertaking as to damages, And the Deft H. A. M. by his counsel undertaking until judgment or further order not, without the consent of the Judge, to sell except in the ordinary course of business any of the books, and not, without the consent of the Judge, to sell or part with any of the plates, blocks and other property in his possession or under his control under or by virtue of the three agreements in the indorsement of the said writ of summons mentioned, and also not to sell or assign, or purport to sell or assign, without the Plt's consent, the benefits, rights, or interests arising under or by virtue of such agreements, Let the Deft co., their servants and agents, be restrained until judgment or further order from selling or parting with, or purporting to sell, without the consent of the Plt, any of the property or assets in the possession or under the control of the Deft co. under or by virtue or in pursuance of the said three several agreements in writing made between the Plt of the one part and the Deft co. of the other part, which agreements are contained in letters dated &c., with reference to the printing and publication of a novel called "The Angel of the Revolution," the second of which is dated &c., with reference to the printing and publication of a novel called "Olga Romanoff" or "The Syren of the Skies," and the third of which is dated &c., with reference to the printing and publication of a novel called "The Outlaws of the Air," and from selling or assigning, or purporting to sell or assign, without the like consent, the benefits, rights, and interests alleged by the Deft co. to be now vested in them under the same three agreements or any of them.—Costs to be costs in action.—Liberty to apply.—See Griffiths v. Tower Publishing Co., Stirling, J., 30 Oct., 1896, A. 4145; (1897) 1 Ch. 21.

For injunction against publishing the play "Never too Late to Mend," without first omitting all scenes and passages identical with or only colourably differing from scenes and passages in the Plt's play of "Gold," with leave to Plt to bring an action as to Deft's alleged infringement of his novel founded on "Gold," from which novel, Deft alleged, he had adapted his play, see Reade v. Lacy, 1 J. & H. 524.

For injunction against publishing a dramatised version of "Lady Audley's Secret" and "Aurora Floyd," see Tinsley v. Lacy, 1 H. & M. 747.

And against publishing separately articles written by Plt for a periodical which Defts had purchased, Plt having reserved his copyright, see Mayhew v. Maxwell, 1 J. & H. 312.

For injunction against publication in a provincial newspaper of articles taken verbatim from a magazine, see Maxwell v. Somerton, 22 W. R. 313.

For injunctions against publishing an abridgment of "Cook's Voyages," see Nicol v. Kearsley, L. C., 16 Aug. 1784, B. 461; the "Edinburgh Review," Longman v. Murray, L. C., 6 May, 1807, B. 510; the report of the Privy Council's inquiry into the conduct of the P. of W., A. G. v. Blagdon, L. C., 11 March, 1808, A. 269.

For order for injunction to stay Defts from printing, publishing, and selling, or causing, or being in any way concerned in printing, &c., or exposing for sale, or otherwise disposing of, any copy or copies of a third or any subsequent edition of the Plt's book called "The Practice of Photography, &c."; and that the Defts deliver up to the Plt the unsold copies of the work, and pay the sum agreed on as the profits of the copies sold, and his costs of suit to be taxed, see Delfe v. Delamotte, V.-C. W., 5 Aug. 1857, A. 1709; S. C., 3 K. & J. 581.

For similar order for the delivery up, and destruction by the Clerk of Record and Writs, of pirated copies, see Prince Albert v. Strange, 2 D. & S. 717.

For injunction to restrain the Defts from printing, publishing, selling, or otherwise disposing of, and from offering or exposing for sale, a bird's-eye view or plan of Paris and its fortifications; and the Defts to deliver up to the Plts all unsold copies of the said view or plan now in their possession or power, with inquiry as to damages, and Defts to pay costs, see Stannard v. Harrison, V.-C. B., 19 Nov. 1870, B. 2882; 19 W. R. 811; 24 L. T. 570.

For the principle upon which in a suit to stay piracy of parts of the Plt's work by the subsequent author of a book on the same subject damages should be assessed, see Pike v. Nicholas, 5 Ch. 260, n. (though on appeal the order was reversed).

For injunctions to restrain an infringement of copyright in a popular song, see Chappell v. Sheard; C. v. Davidson, 8 D. M. & G. 1; 2 K. & J. 117, 123.

8. Injunction against Piracy of original Notes in an English Edition of an American Work.

USUAL undertaking.—Let Defts, The Newsagents &c. Co., their servants &c., be restrained from publishing, selling, exposing for sale, or distributing within the British dominions any copies or copy of No. 26 of the serial work described in (par. — of the bill) as “The Boy's Companion and British Traveller,” or any part thereof containing any notes, alterations or other matter contained in the work registered in the book of registry of the Stationers' Co. under the title “Artemus Ward, his Book, with Notes and Preface by the Editor of the Biglow Papers, London: J. C. Hotten &c.,” not being part of the author's work intituled “Artemus Ward, his Book, with many Comic Illustrations,” published in America, but the production of the Plt or of his skill or labour, or any other numbers or number in continuation thereof, or any other works or work containing any such matters or matter as aforesaid; until &c.; And Let the Deft W., his servants &c., be in like manner restrained from delivering up to the Defts, The Newsagents &c. Co., or any persons or person whomsoever, except under the order of this Court, any copies or copy of the same No. 26 of the said serial work, so printed and published by the said Defts respectively as aforesaid, now remaining in the possession or power of the said Deft W. as the printer thereof, or otherwise, until &c.—Hotten v. The Newsagents, &c. Co., V.-C. W., 16 Nov. 1865, A. 2070.

9. Injunction against Publishing in this Country a Book printed in America.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, and counsel for both parties consenting to treat the hearing of this motion as the trial of this action, Let the Defts, their servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from importing into, printing, publishing, selling, delivering, or otherwise disposing of in this country, any copy or copies of, or causing or permitting to be imported into, published, sold, or otherwise disposed of in this country, any copy or copies of the books called “The A B C of Animals” and "The A B C of Nature," or either of them, or any copy or copies of any book or books containing any plate or plates, illustration or illustrations, letterpress or descriptions, passage or passages, copied, taken, or colourably altered from the Plt's books called "The Alphabet of Animals" and "The Globe Alphabet," or either of them; And Let the Defts forthwith return to America all copies of the said books in their possession or power, and within one month from the date of this order file an affidavit in this action stating that they have done so; Let an inquiry be made what profits have been made and realized by the Defts by the sale of the said books, "The A B C of Animals" and "The A B C of Nature," or either of them, with liberty to apply in Chambers after result of such inquiry.—Let Defts pay costs of action up to and including judgment.—Warne v. Lawrence, Kay, J., 18 March, 1886, B. 475.

10. Injunction against Infringement in a Play of Copyright in a Novel—Objectionable Passages Cancelled.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plts and Deft, Let the Deft, his servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from printing or otherwise multiplying copies of his play called "Little Lord Fauntleroy," containing any passages copied, taken, or colourably altered from the Plts' book entitled "Little Lord Fauntleroy," so as to infringe the Plts' copyright in the novel or tale called "Little Lord Fauntleroy," of which the Plts are the registered proprietors; and Let Deft state on oath how many copies of the said play exist, and extract and deliver up to the Plts to be cancelled all passages in such copies of the said play taken or extracted from, or colourably altered from the said novel or tale, and produce all the copies of his said play to the Plts or their solrs so as to satisfy them that the objectionable passages have been extracted and delivered up.—Warne v. Seebohm, Stirling, J., 10 May, 1888, B. 598; 39 Ch. D. 73.

11. Dramatic Copyright—Interlocutory Injunction continued during existence of Copyright.

LET the injunction awarded by the order dated &c., to restrain the Deft W., his servants &c., and agents, until &c., from announcing for representation, by the circulation of playbills or otherwise, and from representing or causing to be represented the dramatic piece or entertainment advertised by him as in the (bill) mentioned, or any other dramatic piece or entertainment of which the title, scenes, or incidents are copied or imitated or colourably altered from the title, scenes or incidents of the Plt's drama in the (bill) mentioned, and therein called "Flying Scud" &c., be continued until the expiration of the Plt's copyright in the said drama.—Boucicault v. Warde, V.-C. W., 16 Jan. 1868, A. 58.

12. Copyright of Designs.

Usual undertaking.—Let the Deft C. his servants &c., be restrained until after the &c., from selling the design in the (bill) mentioned, and from applying the same, or any colourable imitation thereof, to any substance or article of manufacture, and in particular from manufacturing ornamental sweetmeats made so as to resemble those of the Plt; and from selling or offering or exposing for sale any substance or article of manufacture to which the said design has been applied; and in particular the ornamental sweetmeats manufactured by the Deft &c., as in the (bill) mentioned, or any ornamental sweetmeats made so as to resemble those of the Plt.—Sparagnapane v. Coombs, V.-C. J., 19 March, 1869, B. 596.

For an injunction under 25 & 26 V. c. 68 (Copyright in Fine Arts Act, 1862) to restrain publication of an engraving from a photograph of the Bishop of Oxford, see Mowbray v. Tilt, V.-C. W., 6 June, 1867, B. 212.

For order continuing injunction granted under the Copyright of Designs Act (5 & 6 V. c. 100), and for delivery up of articles specified, and taxation and payment of costs, and staying all proceedings, except in case of a breach of the injunction, see McRue v. Holdsworth, 2 D. & S. 499.

For inquiry whether the copper-plate published by the Deft, entitled &c., was of the same size and scale, and had the same marginal notes and directions or instructions, and was in all respects the same as the first plate published by the Plt, entitled &c., save an affected variation in the historical and geographical anecdotes in the margin &c., see Jeffery v. Bowles, L. C., 17 March, 1770; 1 Dick. 429.

For like order, see Trusler v. Cummings, L. C., 11 May, 1775, B. 284; 1 Dick. 429, note.

13. Restraining Sale of Photographs.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft, treat motion as trial of action; Let Deft A. B., trading as &c., his agents and servants, and every of them, be perpetually restrained from selling or offering for sale, or exposing by way of advertisement or otherwise, a certain photograph of the Plt got up as a Christmas card, and from selling or exposing for sale or otherwise dealing with such photograph.—Pollard v. Moll, North, J., 20 Dec. 1888, B. 1561; 40 Ch. D. 345 (nom. Pollard v. Photographic Company).

NOTES.

INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT—RIGHT TO INJUNCTION.

In deciding questions of alleged infringement of copyright (where extracts have admittedly been made from the Plt's work), the Court will have regard to the quantity and value of the matter taken and republished without the exercise of independent thought and labour, and to the prejudice to the sale of the original work by the appropriation, even with acknowledgment and without any dishonest intention, and republication in a cheaper form of the results of the Plt's labour: Scott v. Stanford, 3 Eq. 718; Jarrold v. Houlston, 3 K. & J. 716 (laying down the tests of the animus furandi); Folsom v. Marsh, 2 Story, Eq. Jur. s. 943, n.; Kerr, 367.

The question will be whether there has been "a legitimate use of the Plt's publication in the fair exercise of a mental operation deserving the character of an original work": Wilkins v. Aikin, 17 Ves. 422.

Or, again, "Has such mental labour been bestowed upon what has been taken—has it been subjected to such revision and correction as to produce an original result?" Spiers v. Brown, 6 W. R. 352 (French Dictionary case).

See also Hotten v. Arthur, 1 H. & M. 603; Jarrold v. Heywood, 18 W. R. 279; Whittingham v. Wooler, 2 Sw. 428; Mawman v. Tegg, 2 Russ. 385; Bramwell v. Halcomb, 3 My. & Cr. 737; Ager v. P. & O. Co., 26 Ch. D. 637, 642 (Standard Telegram Code case).

Information on matters of common knowledge open to all who seek to obtain it (e.g., addresses for a directory or distances for a road-book) must be obtained at the compiler's own expense, as the result of his own independent labour; "and the only use that he can legitimately make of a previous publication is to verify his own calculations and results when obtained": Kelly v. Morris, 1 Eq. 697 ("London Directory" case), sup. Form 1; Morris v. Ashbee, 7 Eq. 34; Cox v. Land and Water Co., 9 Eq. 324; Lewis v. Fullarton, 2 Beav. 6, sup. Form 2, p. 667.

The use which a rival author may make of a former work on the same subject as a guide to the same common sources of information is discussed and explained in Pike v. Nicholas; Morris v. Wright, 5 Ch. 251, 279 (to some extent modifying the unqualified strictness with which the use of the previous work by a subsequent author or compiler was limited in Kelly v. Morris, sup.); and see Moffatt v. Gill, 84 L. T. 452; 49 W. R. 438.

As stated in Hogg v. Scott, 18 Eq. 458, "the true principle is that the Deft is not at liberty to use or avail himself of the labour which the Plt has been at for the purpose of producing his work—that is, in fact, merely to take away the result of another man's labour, or, in other words, his property."

Identity of object and "intent" in the original and copy is a material element when portions of the one have been bodily transferred to the other: Bradbury v. Hotten, L. R. 8 Ex. 1.

For the application of these principles to the case of inserting in a subsequent work, for the purpose of increasing its value, extracts from works in which copyright exists, see Smith v. Chatto, 23 W. R. 290 ("Thackerayana"). And see Tinsley v. Lacy, 1 H. & M. 747; Pike v. Nicholas, 17 W. R. 842; Campbell v. Scott, 11 Sim. 31; Warne & Co. v. Seebohm, 39 Ch. D. 73.

The law of dramatic copyright is governed by the same principles; and to constitute infringement, material and substantial parts of the play must have been taken: Chatterton v. Cave, L. R. 10 C. P. 572; 2 C. P. D. 43, C. A.; 3 App. Ca. 483; Warne v. Seebohm, 39 Ch. D. 73.

The fraudulent adoption of a title which is original may be restrained by injunction: Weldon v. Dicks, 10 Ch. D. 247; Metzler v. Wood, 8 Ch. D. 606, C. A.; secus, if the title is a mere hackneyed phrase, long in common use: Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76, C. A.; and that in general there can be no copyright in the title or name of a work, see Ib. 89, 93; though an exclusive right may be capable of establishment on the principles applicable to trade marks or names: see Schove v. Schmincke, 33 Ch. D. 546.

The assignee for a term of a copyright will not be restrained from selling after the expiration of the term copies printed by him during it: Howitt v. Hall, 10 W. R. 381; 6 L. T. 348; and the assignor is similarly entitled, in the absence of special contract to the contrary, to sell copies printed by him before the assignment: Taylor v. Pillow, 7 Eq. 418; but where an agreement between author and publisher is personal to the latter, the benefit of it cannot be assigned: Hole v. Bradbury, 12 Ch. D. 886; Griffiths v. Tower Publishing Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 21, Form 7, sup. p. 669.

For the distinction, under 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 17, between "importing for sale" and "selling knowingly" foreign piracies of copyright, see Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; and that persons responsible for the publication of a printed work do not ipso facto "cause" it to be "printed" within sect. 15 of the Act, see Kelly v. Gavin and Lloyds, (1901) 1 Ch. 374.

PROCEDURE.

According to modern practice, the Court takes upon itself the duty of going through the two works, and of determining by comparison what is the quantity of pirated matter: see Pike v. Nicholas, 17 W. R. 842; Jarrold v.

Houlston, 3 K. & J. 708; Spiers v. Brown, 6 W. R. 352; Murray v. Bogue, 1 Dr. 368; Chatterton v. Cave, 2 C. P. D. 42; 3 App. Ca. 483.

In this comparison the principle that "if Deft will take Plt's corn and mix it with his own, the whole shall be taken to be Plt's," will, it seems, be applied: Stevens v. Wildy, 19 L. J. Ch. 190.

And a Deft must bear all the mischief and loss which the separation (of what belongs to him from what belongs to Plt) may occasion: Mawman v. Tegg, 2 Russ. 391.

The Deft in cases of alleged piracy must give full discovery as to the original sources from which he asserts that he has derived his information: Kelly v. Wyman, 17 W. R. 399; and his original MS. is important evidence on the question of bona fides: Hotten v. Arthur, 1 H. & M. 603; Spiers v. Brown, sup.

The practice has been to allege generally in the bill or affidavit that the Deft's work contains several passages which have been pirated from the Plt's work, without specifying the particular passages; and when the injunction is moved for, marked copies of the two books are usually produced for the use of the Court: Sweet v. Maugham, 11 Sim. 51.

Until the Deft's work has been published, and there is evidence of the actual contents, an injunction will not be granted upon evidence by the Plt of the mode employed by the Deft in preparing his work: Morris v. Wright, 5 Ch. 279.

Where the injunction would operate harshly, the Court will not suspend publication altogether until the hearing of the cause, but grant the injunction in a modified form: Ainsworth v. Bentley, 14 W. R. 630.

On the question whether, independently of sect. 23 of the Copyright Act, 1842, there is jurisdiction to order delivery up of pirated copies for destruction to the Plt, though he may not have been the registered proprietor of the invaded work when such copies were published, see Hole v. Bradbury, 12 Ch. D. 886, 901; Isaacs v. Fiddemann, 49 L. J. Ch. 412; 42 L. T. 395; and that the rights of an assignee for the purpose of making copies of a painting are limited by the terms of the contract, see Lucas v. Cooke, 13 Ch. D. 872, sup.; Tuck v. Priester, 19 Q. B. D. 629, C. A.

But after injunction granted, Deft will not be allowed, without Plt's consent, to continue the sale of copies of a book already published, even on terms of keeping an account: Sweet v. Maugham, 11 Sim. 51.

ACCOUNT.

The right to an account is incident to the perpetual injunction at the hearing: Parrott v. Palmer, 3 M. & K. 632; Baily v. Taylor, 1 R. & M. 73.

In Pike v. Nicholas, 5 Ch. 260, n., it is stated that in cases of literary piracy the Deft must account for every copy of his work sold, as if it had been a copy of Plt's, and pay Plt the profit which he would have received from the sale of so many additional copies; and see Muddock v. Blackwood, (1898) 1 Ch. 58, where Plt was held entitled to delivery up of the copies in the Deft's possession and damages representing the actual amount of the proceeds of the copies sold, and not merely of the profit on sale. But see Colburn v. Simms, 2 Ha. 560; Delfe v. Delumotte, 3 K. & J. 581; from which it appears that the Plt whose copyright has been infringed is not entitled to more than an account of the net profits of the actual sales.

For the purposes of the account, Plt may require Deft to set out the number of pirated copies sold by him, and may continue the suit until such discovery is given: Stevens v. Brett, 12 W. R. 572; 10 L. T. 231.

Printers who knowingly print a piracy for publication are tortfeasors jointly with their customers, and jointly liable in damages to those whose copyright is infringed: Lamb v. Evans, W. N. (95) 156 (2).

REGISTRATION AND TITLE TO SUE.

That copyright exists by statute only, see Reade v. Conquest, 9 C. B. N. S. 768; Jefferys v. Boosey, 4 H. L. C. 833; Caird v. Sime, 12 App. Ca. 326, 343.

Registration is, by 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 24, made a condition precedent to any legal proceedings in respect of infringement of copyright: Liverpool General

Brokers Assoc. v. Commercial Press Telegram Bureaux, (1897) 2 Q. B. 1 (not following dictum of Cockburn, C. J., in Wood v. Boosey, L. R. 2 Q. B. 340); but not to the existence of the copyright: Goubaud v. Wallace, 25 W. R. 604; 36 L. T. 704; if effected on the same day as, but before the issue of, the writ, it is sufficient: Warne v. Lawrence, 34 W. R. 452; 54 L. T. 171.

The effect of this statute upon a work, the first edition of which was published before 1 July, 1842 (when registration was not a condition precedent to the title to sue), is that the new matter contained in subsequent editions cannot be protected by suit until registration: Murray v. Bogue, 1 Drew. 353.

Registration in the name of a person who is a mere agent or nominee of the proprietor of the copyright, and not a trustee for him, is bad; and joinder of the unregistered proprietor as co-Plt will not render an action for infringement of the copyright maintainable: Petty v. Taylor, (1897) 1 Ch. 465; following London Printing and Publishing Alliance v. Cox, (1891) 3 Ch. 291.

Registration of the first number of a magazine is sufficient for protection of a serial published therein in successive numbers, without registering every subsequent number: Henderson v. Maxwell, 4 Ch. D. 163; Bradbury v. Sharp, W. N. (91) 143 (where a perpetual injunction was granted); but registration must follow, and not precede publication: 5 Ch. D. 892.

Registration effected at the time of commencing the action, though subsequent to the date of the piracy, gives Plt the right to delivery up of the pirated copies: Isaacs v. Fiddeman, 49 L. J. Ch. 412; 42 L. T. 395.

In the case of copyright in paintings, drawings, and photographs, no action shall be sustainable, nor any penalty be recoverable in respect of anything done before registration: Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 68), s. 4; but independently of the statute there may be a right to an injunction and damages: see Tuck v. Priester, 19 Q. B. D. 629, C. A. Registration of a painting is only prima facie evidence of proprietorship, and may be rebutted by the terms of the assignment of the copyright by the owner to the person who has made the registration: Lucas v. Cooke, 13 Ch. D. 872.

Under the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, it is not necessary that any agreement in writing should be made or entered on the register where registration is in the name of the person for or on behalf of whom a drawing is made or executed for a good or valuable consideration: Petty v. Taylor, (1897) 1 Ch. 465.

An author whose copyright is infringed in any manner mentioned in sect. 6 of the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, is entitled to recover separate penalties against every infringer, whether principal or agent, master or servant: Baschet v. London Illustrated Standard Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 73; Hildesheimer v. Faulkners, W. N. (01) 171, C. A.; following Exp. Beal, L. R. 3 Q. B. 387; and see Ellis v. Marshall & Son, 64 L. J. Q. B. 757; and as to minimum penalty, v. inf. p. 680.

The provisions of 5 & 6 V. c. 45, ss. 3, 13, 24, as to registration must be strictly complied with to enable proceedings for infringement of copyright to be maintained. A wrong statement of the date of first publication is fatal to the suit: Page v. Wisden, 17 W. R. 483; 20 L. T. 435; Low v. Rutledge, 1 Ch. 42; 3 H. L. 100; and not only the year and month, but also the actual day of first publication must be entered: Collingridge v. Emmott, 57 L. T. 864; and where there are several editions, in the nature of reprints, the time of publication of the first must be given: Thomas v. Turner, 33 Ch. D. 292, C. A.; and see Hayward v. Lely, 56 L. T. 418; Mathieson v. Harrod, 7 Eq. 270; Wood v. Boosey, L. R. 2 Q. B. 340; and the name and address of the first publisher: Coote v. Judd, 23 Ch. D. 727.

Where an author registers a series of contributions to a periodical, stating as the date of first publication the date when the first part was published in the periodical, the registration under s. 19 of the Copyright Act, 1842 (5 & 6 V. c. 45), protects each contribution of the series subsequently published: Johnson v. Newnes, (1894) 3 Ch. 663.

A proprietor of copyright in a book who has a remedy for infringement by a "special action on the case" under s. 15 of the Copyright Act, 1842, may, if he thinks fit, sue the offender under s. 23 either in detinue or in trover or both combined, and all the remedies under both sections may be pursued by action in the Chancery Division: Muddock v. Blackwood, (1898) 1 Ch. 58.

Mere registration of the title of an intended work does not give copyright in the title before publication, so as to entitle the person registering to restrain the use of the title by another: Maxwell v. Hogg, 2 Ch. 307; and see Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76, 88, C. A.

There is nothing in 5 & 6 V. c. 45 (s. 18, or elsewhere), to prevent joint ownership in the proprietors of several newspapers of copyright in an article: Trade Auxiliary Co. v. Middlesbrough Trade Assoc., 40 Ch. D. 425, C. A.

The terms necessary under sect. 18 of 5 & 6 V. c. 45, for the vesting of copyright need not be in writing, but from the fact of employment and payment it may be inferred that the copyright was to belong to the employer: Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 225, 227, C. A.; Sweet v. Benning, 16 C. B. 484.

An assignment of copyright must be in writing: Leyland v. Stewart, 4 Ch. D. 419.

As to what is a sufficient notice of objection to registration of copyright under sect. 16, see Hole v. Bradbury, 12 Ch. D. 886; Hayward v. Lely, 56 L. T. 418.

In the case of copyright in a design the copyright runs from registration; and before delivery on sale of any articles to which the design is applied, the proprietor must furnish to the comptroller the proper number of representations or specimens, and mark the goods in the prescribed form, so as to show that the design is registered: 46 & 47 V. c. 57, s. 50.

INTERNATIONAL AND DRAMATIC COPYRIGHT.

Under the International Copyright Acts, 7 & 8 V. c. 12, and 15 & 16 V. c. 12, a British subject first publishing in a country with which there is no international copyright treaty is not entitled to copyright in this country: Boucicault v. Delafeld, 1 H. & M. 597. But an alien (citizen of a country with which there is no copyright treaty), resident here at the time of printing and publication in this country, is entitled to copyright and protection from infringement: Low v. Routledge, 1 Ch. 42; 3 H. L. 100; and, per LL. Cairns and Westbury, publication, and not residence, in the United Kingdom gives the right to protection. And see Jefferys v. Boosey, 4 H. L. C. 815; Ollendorff v. Black, 4 D. & S. 209.

Sect. 10 of the International Copyright Act, 1844 (7 & 8 V. c. 12), does not form a complete code as to the importation of copies printed abroad; and under ss. 3 and 10 of that Act, and ss. 15 and 17 of the Copyright Act, 1842 (5 & 6 V. c. 45), where the owner of copyright could, if his book had been first published here, have restrained the importation of copies, the owner of British international copyright in a book first published in a foreign country is in like manner entitled to restrain the importation of copies printed there by the owner of the copyright in that country: Pitt Pitts v. George & Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 866, C. A.

As to the effect of the International Copyright Act, 1886 (49 & 50 V. c. 33), s. 6, and that the proviso in that section protecting "rights or interests arising from or in connection" with works produced before the date of an order in council with respect to a foreign country, operates in favour of a person who has before such date purchased and performed a foreign piece of music, see Moul v. Graenings, (1891) 2 Q. B. 443, C. A.

And that proprietors of a trade mark have an interest in advertising it, which may be "subsisting and valuable" within the meaning of, and protected by, the proviso, see Schauer v. Field, (1893) 1 Ch. 35.

The Act of 1886 cannot be construed so as to revive or create anew a right which had expired before the passing of the Act, or so as to confer a new right on the former owner of an expired right, without any fresh act done by him: Lauri v. Renad, (1892) 3 Ch. 402. Sect. 6 of the Act is retrospective, and applies to works produced before Dec. 6th, 1887, when the Order in Council of Nov. 28th, 1887, came into operation, and before or after the passing of the Act: Hanfstaengl Art Co. v. Holloway, (1893) 2 Q. B. 1.

The joint effect of s. 2, sub-s. 3, of the International Copyright Act, 1886, and Art. 2 of the Berne Convention, is that an author suing in England in respect of an infringement of foreign copyright must prove that he is entitled to protection in the country of origin of the work, but, that right once established, his remedy depends entirely on the English law: Baschet v. London Illustrated Standard Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 73.

Having regard to s. 4 of the International Copyright Act, 1886, and to the terms of the Order in Council of Nov. 28th, 1887, adopting the Berne Convention of Sept. 5th, 1887, registration under the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, is not necessary to entitle the owner of the English copyright in a foreign painting to sue for infringement: Hanfstaengl v. American Tobacco Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 347, C. A.; approving Hanfstaengl Art Publishing Co. v. Holloway, (1893) 2 Q. B. 1; and disapproving Fishburn v. Hollingshead, (1891) 2 Ch. 371.

The word "published" in s. 11 of the International Copyright Act, 1886, is applicable to a painting, and the country where it is first published is the country of origin mentioned in Art. 2 of the Berne Convention, so that compliance with the law of that country confers the right to sue for infringement in this country: Hanfstaengl v. American Tobacco Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 347, C. A.

Copyright is divisible so as to be claimed for such portion of a work as is first published in this country: Low v. Ward, 6 Eq. 415.

The adapter of a play who introduces into his version material alterations is the "author of a dramatic piece" within the Dramatic Copyright Act (3 & 4 W. IV. c. 15), but if he has assigned the provincial rights therein, he cannot, without the concurrence of his assignee, maintain an action against an infringer of those rights: Tree v. Boukett, 74 L. T. 77.

In the case of a foreign dramatic work the translation required in order to give the author or his assignee the benefit of 15 & 16 V. c. 12, must be of the whole work, without alteration or omission, and not a mere imitation and adaptation for the English stage: Wood v. Chart, 10 Eq. 193 (Frou-Frou case). And see the Amendment Act, 38 V. c. 12; but in order to obtain protection, the translation need not be absolutely literal, it is sufficient if it is substantially a translation: Lauri v. Renad, sup.

An English Court has no jurisdiction, at the instance of the English proprietor of the performing right of a musical dramatic work of an English author, to restrain a threatened infringement by a British subject in any foreign country comprised in the International Copyright Union: "Morocco Bound" Syndicate, Ltd. v. Harris, (1895) 1 Ch. 534.

Under the Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833, s. 1, and Art. 2 of the Berne Convention, the English proprietor enjoys in any country of the Union the rights which the law of that country gives to natives of that country; and, therefore, proceedings by him to restrain an infringement in that country by a British subject must be taken in the Courts and according to the law of that country: "Morocco Bound" Syndicate v. Harris, (1895) 1 Ch. 534.

Dramatic compositions are "published" by public representation: Boucicault v. Chatterton, 5 Ch. D. 267.

The part owner of a dramatic entertainment cannot grant a licence for its representation without the consent of the other owners: Powell v. Head, 12 Ch. D. 686; and although the registered owners of a copyright take as tenants in common, yet any one or more may sue a stranger for infringement of the entire copyright: Lauri v. Renad, sup.

SUMMARY OF CASES AS TO INFRINGEMENT.

Upon the subject of copyright the following cases may be consulted:—

Abridgment.—Fair abridgment has been held no piracy: Dodsley v. Kinnersley, Amb. 403; but there must be the fair exercise of a mental operation deserving the character of an original work: Wilkins v. Aikin, 17 Ves. 422; and see Kerr, 457; Gyles v. Wilcox, 2 Atk. 143; Bell v. Walker, 1 Bro. C. C. 451; Nicol v. Kearsley, L. C., 16 Aug. 1784, B. 461 (injunction against publishing an "Abridgment of Cook's Voyages").

Advertisement.—May be the subject of copyright: Maple & Co. v. Junior

Army, &c. Stores, 21 Ch. D. 369, C. A.; not following Cobbett v. Woodward, 14 Eq. 407; and that there may be copyright generally in a mass of advertisements as arranged, though not in any single advertisement as against the advertiser, see Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218, C. A.

Blocks.—Where electro blocks of drawings are supplied for personal use by the customers in illustrated catalogues, the vendors are entitled to an injunction to restrain third persons from using the blocks for printing drawings which they publish. Seem, no such injunction would go against the customer, although he had no written licence under sect. 15 of the Copyright Act, 1842: Cooper v. Stephens, (1895) 1 Ch. 567.

Calendar.—Longman v. Winchester, 16 Ves. 269; Matthewson v. Stockdale, 12 Ves. 270.

Catalogue.—A catalogue or bookseller's list will be protected so far as it is not a mere dry list of names, but contains original descriptive matter: Hotten v. Arthur, 1 H. & M. 603 (catalogue of historical and antiquarian books with notes and anecdotes); Grace v. Newman, 19 Eq. 623 (catalogue of monumental designs); Maple v. Junior Army and Navy Stores, 21 Ch. D. 369, C. A. (illustrated catalogue of furniture, without letterpress for which copyright could be claimed); overruling Cobbett v. Woodward, 14 Eq. 407 (illustrated furnishing guide); Hayward v. Lely, 56 L. T. 418 (description of articles as "patented" after patent had expired, held not to take away copyright in other part of catalogue).

Chart or plan.—See Hollinrake v. Truswell, (1893) 2 Ch. 377; (1894) 3 Ch. 420, C. A.

Child's puzzle.—An envelope printed outside with directions, and containing a card perforated so as to cast a shadow, is not a literary work: Cable v. Marks, 31 W. R. 227; 52 L. J. Ch. 107; 47 L. T. 432; and see Davis & Co. v. Consmith, 54 L. J. Ch. 419 (face of barometer with special letterpress held not a "book separately published").

Designs.—Copyright in designs is now regulated by the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883 (46 & 47 V. c. 57), ss. 47—61: see inf. Chap. LII., "PATENTS."

The necessity of strict compliance with the conditions as to registration of designs under the former (repealed) Acts is illustrated by Sarazin v. Hamel (2), 32 Beav. 151; Pierce v. Worth, 18 L. T. 710; Norton v. Nichols, 4 K. & J. 475.

The term "design" in sect. 60 of the Patents, Designs and Trade Marks Act, 1883, was not intended to be used in any technical sense as excluding anything which would ordinarily fall within it; and "pattern," as used in that section, might include "shape" or "configuration" or "ornament": Heath & Sons, Lim. v. Rollason, (1898) A. C. 499, H. L.; affirming, In re Rollason's Registered Design, (1898) 1 Ch. 237, C. A.

To obtain registration under sect. 47 of the Act of 1883, there must be substantial novelty or originality, having regard to the nature and character of the subject-matter: Le May v. Welch, Margetson & Co., 28 Ch. D. 24, C. A.; followed in Re Bach's Design, 42 Ch. D. 662; Hethersoll v. Moore, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 27; Saunders v. Wiel, (1893) 1 Q. B. 471, C. A.; Re Clarke's Design, (1896) 2 Ch. 38, C. A.; and see Re Read and Greswell's Design, 42 Ch. D. 260; McCrea v. Holdsworth, 6 Ch. 418; Lazarus v. Charles, 16 Eq. 117; Mulloney v. Stevens, 10 L. T. 190, to the same effect under the former Acts. But the novelty may consist in the application to an article of manufacture of a design publici juris, e.g., a view of Westminster Abbey in metal for handles of spoons and forks: Saunders v. Wiel, (1893) 1 Q. B. 471, C. A. Where a design is registered as applicable to pattern, shape and configuration, the registration applies to the design as a whole, and it is protected, although in one of those particulars it may not be novel: Harper v. Wright and Butler Lamp Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 142, C. A. The owner of such design is not deprived of his right to protection merely because he places on the articles which he sells, besides the registered number of his design, other numbers which ought not to be there, S. C.

And see as to the infringement of copyright in a pattern registered as a design under 5 & 6 V. c. 100, and 21 & 22 V. c. 70: Holdsworth v. McRea, L. R. 2 H. L. 380; McCrea v. Holdsworth, 6 Ch. 418; Pierce v. Worth, 18 L. T. 710; Dupuy v. Dilkes, 48 L. J. Ch. 682.

As to "fraudulent," as distinguished from "fair," imitation of a design under 5 & 6 V. c. 100, s. 7, see Burran v. Lomas, 28 W. R. 973.

Ignorance that the design is copyright does not relieve the infringer from penalties, and the owner is entitled to a penalty for each reproduction, and (semble) may be entitled to damages also: Green v. Irish Independent Co. (1899), 1 I. R. 386, C. A.

A portrait of a well-known public character, copied from a photograph, and applied as a design upon earthenware, is not a new and original design: Adams v. Clementson, 12 Ch. D. 714; but see Saunders v. Wiel, (1893) 1 Q. B. 471, 474, 476, C. A.

The question of infringement must be determined by ocular comparison, and independently of whether the one design accomplishes the same useful purpose as the other: Hecla Foundry v. Walker, 14 App. Ca. 550; Moody v. Tree, 9 Rep. Pat. Cas. 233; applied in Harper v. Wright and Butler Lamp Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 142, C. A., to the case of infringement of a design for an upright metal stove with sides representing a church window.

By sect. 59 of the Act of 1883, the right of action for infringement is in the registered proprietor only, and a licensee cannot sue: Woolley v. Broad, (1892) 1 Q. B. 806.

Penalties for infringement under the Copyright Act, 1862, are not necessarily cumulative or in addition to damages: Green v. Todd (1899), 1 I. R. 47. The minimum penalty is not necessarily a farthing for each copy pirated, if the aggregate sum would be excessive: Baschet v. London Illustrated Standard Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 73; Hildesheimer v. Faulkners, W. N. (01) 171, C. A.

Dictionary.—Spiers v. Brown, 6 W. R. 352; and see Kerr, 367.

Directory.—Kelly v. Morris, 1 Eq. 697; Morris v. Ashbee, 7 Eq. 34; Morris v. Wright, 5 Ch. 279; Kelly v. Hodge, sup. Form 4, p. 668; and that there is no right to the exclusive use of the title "Post Office Directory," see Kelly v. Byles, 13 Ch. D. 682, C. A.; and v. sup. p. 674.

In a trades directory the headings are the subject of copyright, though the letterpress consist only of advertisements: Lamb v. Evans (1892) 3 Ch. 462.

Dramatised novel.—The fact that a novel when published has been dramatised by the author does not prevent any one else from also independently dramatising it: Schlesinger v. Bedford, 63 L. T. 763; W. N. (93) 57, C. A.; Toole v. Young, L. R. 9 Q. B. 523; questioning dicta in Reade v. Conquest, 9 C. B. N. S. 755; 11 C. B. N. S. 479; and Tinsley v. Lacy, 1 H. & M. 747.

But although there is no infringement of the copyright of a novel in merely dramatising it, and representing the dramatised version (Reade v. Lacy, 1 J. & H. 524), the printing and publication of such dramatised version, even though not for the purposes of sale, is an infringement which will be restrained by injunction: Tinsley v. Lacy, 1 H. & M. 747; as also any multiplication of copies of the dramatised version for acting purposes: Warne v. Serbohm, 39 Ch. D. 73; Form 10, sup. p. 672.

And where an author publishes his drama first and his novel afterwards, a drama taken by another person from the novel only may be an infringement of the author's drama: Schlesinger v. Turner, 63 L. T. 764.

Drawing.—A drawing devoid of artistic merit, e.g., a hand holding a pencil for guidance of illiterate voters, was held not entitled to protection against anything but an exact reproduction: Kenrick v. Lawrence, 25 Q. B. D. 99.

Registration of a book under the Copyright Act, 1842, in the name of the author of the letterpress, does not confer any protection in respect of drawings which are introduced into the book as illustrations, and the art copyright in which is vested in other persons: Petty v. Taylor, (1897) 1 Ch. 465; distinguishing Grace v. Newman, L. R. 19 Eq. 623.

Electro blocks.—See sup. "Blocks."

Encyclopædia.—Mawman v. Tegg, 2 Russ. 385. Republication of articles in a separate form by the proprietor of an encyclopædia or periodical may be restrained by the author who has reserved his copyright: 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 18; and see Bishop of Hereford v. Griffin, 16 Sim. 190.

Engravings.—To obtain the protection of the Engraving Copyright Act, 1734 (8 G. II. c. 13), by which (sect. 1) the name of the proprietor must be engraved on each plate, and printed on every print, it is sufficient to give the name of the firm under which the proprietors trade: Rock v. Lazarus, 15 Eq. 104; and see Graves v. Ashford, L. R. 2 Q. P. 410,

The engraving, and not the original painting, must have been pirated: Lucas v. Cooke, 13 Ch. D. 872; and see Dicks v. Brooks, 15 Ch. D. 22, C. A. (that a chromo-printed pattern for wool-work, though made by the aid of the engraving, is not a copy or piratical imitation of the engraving within 7 G. III. c. 38, and 17 G. III. c. 57).

In an action for infringement of copyright in a picture production of an engraving which was an exact copy of the original picture was admitted as evidence to prove the infringement: Lucas v. Williams, (1892) 2 Q. B. 113, C. A.

The seller of pirated copies of an engraving is liable, though ignorant of the piracy: Gambart v. Sumner, 5 H. & N. 5.

Immoral Publications and Engravings.—No copyright exists therein: Stockdale v. Onwhyn, 5 B. & C. 173; Walcot v. Walker, 7 Ves. 1; Fores v. Johnes, 4 Esp. 97. Where an action in respect of infringement of copyright failed on the ground of the indecency of the work, and the indecency had been repeated in the infringements, the action was dismissed without costs: Baschet v. London Illustrated Standard Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 73.

Law Reports.—Head-notes of cases will be protected: Sweet v. Benning, 16 C. B. 459. And see Saunders v. Smith, 3 My. & Cr. 729; Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218, C. A.

Lectures.—Republication of a lecture delivered to students (though in shorthand character, Nicols v. Pitman, 26 Ch. D. 374) will be restrained, such delivery not amounting to publication to all the world: Caird v. Sime, 12 App. Ca. 326; Nicols v. Pitman, sup.; Abernethy v. Hutchinson, 1 H. & M. 28; Kerr, 50; and v. inf. Public Speech.

Letters.—The jurisdiction to restrain the publication of letters has been rested on the ground that such publication is a breach of contract or confidence, and à fortiori will the jurisdiction be exercised when it is intended to make the letters a source of profit, for then there is also a violation of the exclusive copyright of the writer: Copinger, Copyright, 44; Kerr, 498; and see inf. Sect. IX., "LETTERS AND DOCUMENTS."

Literary Composition.—A printed announcement of the horses selected as probable winners of races in the ensuing week is not a literary composition capable of protection under the Copyright Acts: Chilton v. Progress Printing and Publishing Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 29, C. A.

The Court will not define in general terms what amounts to a literary composition, S. C.

Magazine or Periodical.—The republication in a separate form by the proprietors of a periodical of articles written for the periodical will be restrained under 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 18, when the author's copyright has been reserved: Mayhew v. Maxwell, 1 J. & H. 312; and, when not so reserved, publication in a separate form by the author: Henderson v. Maxwell, 4 Ch. D. 163. But there is nothing in the section to prevent a joint ownership of the proprietors of several newspapers in the copyright of one article: Trade Auxiliary Co. v. Middlesbrough Tradesmen's Co., 40 Ch. D. 425, C. A.

And in Smith v. Johnson, 4 Giff. 632, the republication in supplemental parts of a magazine (not being reprints) of tales contributed thereto was restrained as an infringement of the author's copyright.

To entitle the proprietor of the book or periodical publication to sue, actual payment to the author of the pirated article or contribution must be shown: Collingridge v. Emmott, 57 L. T. 864; Walter v. Howe, 17 Ch. D. 708.

Map.—A map must be registered under 5 & 6 V. c. 45, before a suit can be maintained in respect of infringement of the copyright therein: Stannard v. Lee, 6 Ch. 346; not so a bird's-eye view or pictorial plan: Stannard v. Harrison, 19 W. R. 811; nor a cardboard pattern sleeve containing upon it scales, figures and descriptive words adapting it to sleeves of any dimensions: Hollinrake v. Truswell, (1894) 3 Ch. 420, C. A.

Musical Composition.—Copyright and right of representation in musical compositions are regulated by 3 & 4 W. IV. c. 15, ss. 1, 2; 5 & 6 V. c. 45, ss. 20, 21, 22; 45 & 46 V. c. 40 (Copyright (Musical Compositions) Act, 1882), and 51 & 52 V. c. 17 (Copyright (Musical Compositions) Act, 1888), which amends and partially repeals the prior Acts, qua penalties, damages, and costs; but see Boosey v. Fairlie, 7 Ch. D. 301, that the additional entry of a date applicable to the independent pianoforte arrangement, and deposit of that work, does not invalidate the registration, nor affect the sole right of performing the unpublished opera, for which protection was claimed by registration.

To bring a musical composition within the provisions of the Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833, it must have the characteristics of a dramatic piece, and whether it has such characteristics must be determined in each case by the nature of the composition itself: Fuller v. Blackpool Winter Gardens and Pavilion Co., (1895) 2 Q. B. 429, C. A.

A song that does not require for its representation either dramatic effect or scenery is not a dramatic piece, although it is intended to be sung in appropriate costume on the stage of music-halls: S. C. To entitle the owner of the right of public representation to sue for penalties, the right must have been reserved by notice printed on every published copy, as provided by the Copyright (Musical Compositions) Act, 1882: S. C.

An assumption of the name and description of a popular song, in the melody of which there is no copyright, may be restrained by injunction: Chappell v. Sheard; C. v. Davidson, 2 K. & J. 117, 123; and see S. C., 8 D. M. & G. 1, where the injunction was continued only on the terms of an undertaking to bring an action and be answerable in damages.

Publication of a musical composition or dramatic piece as a book, before public performance or representation, does not deprive the author or his assignee of the exclusive right of performance or representation: Chappell v. Boosey, 21 Ch. D. 232.

For purposes of registration, a pianoforte arrangement of the full score is a separate and distinct work from the opera itself: Wood v. Boosey, L. R. 2 Q. B. 340; 3 Q. B. 223; Boosey v. Fairlie, 7 Ch. D. 301; 4 App. Ca. 711; though such an arrangement, without authority, would, it seems, be a piracy: see L. R. 3 Q. B. 228; D'Almaine v. Boosey, 1 Y. & C. 288.

As to the effect of the International Copyright Act, 1886 (49 & 50 V. c. 33), s. 6, v. Moul v. Grænings, (1891) 2 Q. B. 443, C. A., et sup. p. 677.

Perforated rolls of paper, used in a mechanical wind instrument (known as the Æolian) and causing musical sounds by the passage of air through the slots, are not "copies" or "sheets of music" within the Copyright Act, 1842; nor is the addition to them of directions as to the time and expression taken from the published music of the songs played of itself an infringement of the copyright in such songs: Boosey v. Whight, (1899) 1 Ch. 836; (1900) 1 Ch. 122, C. A.

Newspapers.—A newspaper must be registered as a book under 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 24; Walter v. Howe, 17 Ch. D. 708 (not following Cox v. Land and Water Co., 9 Eq. 324); and although registration gives no exclusive right to the title, such right may be acquired by user and reputation: Licensed Victuallers' Co. v. Bingham, 38 Ch. D. 139; Kelly v. Hutton, 3 Ch. 703.

The proprietor can sue in respect of his copyright, though neither his name nor the title of the paper is registered: Cate v. Devon and Exeter Newspaper Co., 40 Ch. D. 500.

Probable injury to Plt, as well as conduct of Deft calculated to deceive the public, must, however, be shown: Borthwick v. Evening Post, 37 Ch. D. 449, C. A.

The form of expression in which news is conveyed is subject of copyright. A practice of newspapers to copy from other newspapers is no defence to an action for infringement of copyright: Walter v. Steinkopff, (1892) 3 Ch. 489.

And see the question of newspaper copyright discussed in Exp. Foss, 2 D. & J. 230; Platt v. Walter, 17 L. T. 157.

Under the head of property in the title of a newspaper or trade name, see Clement v. Maddick, 1 Giff. 101; and other cases cited sup. p. 637.

The author of a contribution to a periodical who has not parted with his copyright to the proprietor of the periodical may sue an infringer before publishing his contribution in a separate form: Johnson v. Newnes, (1894) 3 Ch. 663.

A coloured plate headed "Supplement" to a periodical registered as a newspaper, and referred to as "our illustration for this week," though not physically attached to the newspaper, is part of the newspaper as regards copyright: Comyns v. Hyde, W. N. (95) 9; 72 L. T. 250.

As to place of publication of a newspaper, and as to what constitutes a "sporting paper," see Mcfarlane v. Hulton, (1899) 1 Ch. 884.

Photograph.—A photographer, on grounds of breach of implied contract and confidence, was restrained from selling or exhibiting copies of a negative taken for a customer: Pollard v. Photographic Co., 40 Ch. D. 345. As to who is to be deemed the “author” of a photograph within 25 & 26 V. c. 68, s. 1, see Nottage v. Jackson, 11 Q. B. D. 627, C. A.; Wooderson v. Raphael, W. N. (87) 209; Melville v. Mirror of Life Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 531.

A “castle” album, i.e., an album with pictorial border containing views of castles, is not entitled to copyright, nor could the name be protected as a trade name: Schove v. Schmincke, 33 Ch. D. 546.

Where a photograph is taken gratuitously with the permission of the sitter on the terms of her receiving complimentary copies, such mere permission does not make the photograph “executed for or on behalf of any other person for a valuable consideration” within the Copyright Act, 1862, s. 1, or prevent the photographer from being the author of the photograph: Ellis v. Marshall, 64 L. J. Q. B. 757; and see Green v. Todd (1899), 1 L. R. 47.

A drawing on a larger scale of an original photograph reproduced as a full-page illustration in an illustrated newspaper is a “copy” of the photograph within the Copyright (Works of Art) Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 68), entitling the author to an injunction and penalties and damages: Bolton v. Aldin, 65 L. J. Q. B. 120.

Picture.—The representation of a picture by a tableau vivant, formed by grouping in the same way as the figures in the picture living persons in similar dresses and attitudes is not an infringement of copyright in the picture: Hanfstaengl v. Empire Palace, (1894) 2 Ch. 1, C. A.

Sketches published in a newspaper taken from tableaux vivants of the kind last mentioned were held, having regard to the variations between the original pictures and the sketches, not to constitute an infringement of the copyright within the Act: Hanfstaengl v. Baines & Co., (1895) A. C. 20, H. L. (q.v. as to the meaning of the terms “copy,” “reproduction,” and “colourable imitation” of an original picture “or of the design thereof” used in the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 68), ss. 1, 6).

Public Speech.—There may be copyright in a report of a speech delivered in public, and where the words of the speaker are taken down in shorthand, and the notes afterwards transcribed by the reporter and published in a newspaper, the reporter is the “author” of the report within the meaning of the Copyright Act, 1842, and entitled to the copyright in the report: Walter v. Lane, (1900) A. C. 539, H. L., reversing (1899) 2 Ch. 749, C. A.

Sculpture.—Casts of fruit and leaves, being new and original, are a “subject being matter of invention in sculpture” within the meaning of 54 G. III., c. 56, and entitled thereunder to protection: Caproni v. Alberti, 40 W. R. 235; 64 L. T. 452.

Sheet of Letterpress.—An elaborately painted Christmas card opening book-wise held entitled to copyright under 5 & 6 V. c. 45, s. 2: Hildesheimer v. Dunn, W. N. (91) 66; 64 L. T. 452.

Tableaux Vivants.—See PICTURE.

Telegraphic Code.—For private circulation, protected: Ager v. P. & O. Navig. Co., 26 Ch. D. 637.

Topographical Dictionary.—Lewis v. Fullarton, 2 Beav. 6.

Travelling Handbooks and Itineraries.—Murray v. Bogue, 1 Dr. 353 (“Handbook for Switzerland”); Cary v. Kearsley, 4 Esp. 168 (“Patterson’s Roadbook”).

Unpublished Information Confidentially Communicated.—See post, p. 687.

SECTION IX.—PUBLICATION OF LETTERS, DOCUMENTS, AND CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS.

1. Injunction against Printing and Publication of Private Correspondence.

LET the Defts, S., R., and H., their servants &c., be restrained from printing or publishing any letters written or sent by the Plt to any correspondents or correspondent or other persons or person, or any copies of or extracts from such letters of the Plt; until &c.—Bishop of Exeter v. Shutte, V.-C. W., 7 Aug. 1862, A. 1832.

2. Injunction against Publication of Letters or Disclosure of their Contents.

“AND the Deft by his counsel consenting to this judgment, Adjudge that the Deft O., his servants &c., be perpetually restrained from printing or publishing the letters written to him by the Plt, or showing them or any of them, or any copies or copy, extracts or extract of or from them or any of them, to any person or persons, and from informing any person or persons of their or any of their contents.”—Deft to pay Plt’s costs of suit.—Wilson v. O’Donovan, M. R., 2 June, 1866, B. 1391 (following Palin v. Gathercole, 1 Coll. 565).

For injunction against publication of Pope’s letters to Swift, see Pope v. Curll, 5 June, 1741, 2 Atk. 342; and see Thompson v. Stanhope, Amb. 737 (L. Chesterfield’s Letters).

3. Injunction against Publishing Letters.

UPON motion this day &c.—This Court doth order that the Deft B., his servants and agents, be restrained until judgment in this action or until further order from publishing, printing, circulating, or divulging or parting with, otherwise than to the Plt, or by deposit in Court, and from allowing to be printed, circulated or published, any correspondence, letters, or other documents received by the Deft from the Plt, or the effect thereof, or copies thereof, or extracts therefrom, and from informing any person or persons of their or any of their contents, save only that the Deft may communicate such letters to any solr bonâ fide employed by him for the purpose of litigation with the Plt.—Deft to pay costs of motion.—Moon v. Boothman, Kay, J., 3rd June, 1890, B. 725.

4. Action to restrain Disclosure of Letters received by Deft as Solr for the Plt—Form of Undertaking.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, and the Defts by their counsel undertaking not to communicate nor to disclose to P. or any other person any information acquired by the Defts in their character of solrs to the Plt, or the contents of any letter or other documents which have come to the hands of the Defts in such character, and not to give to the said P. or any other persons, nor to permit the said P. or any other persons to take copies of or extracts from any such letter or other documents as aforesaid (but this undertaking is not to prevent the Defts from communicating or discovering to the said P. any information acquired by the Defts in their character of solrs to the Plt and the said P. jointly or the contents of any letter or other document which may have come to the hands of the Defts as solrs for the Plt and the said P. jointly, or from permitting the said P. to take copies of or extracts from any such letter or other documents as last aforesaid).—No order on motion; costs to be costs in the action.—Carter v. Beal, North, J., 17th December, 1886, A. 1761.

5. Letters addressed to Late Agents and intended for Firm.

AND the Plts by their counsel undertaking not to open any letter addressed to the Deft B., except twice in a day during the hour next succeeding half-past nine in the morning and the hour next succeeding five in the afternoon, at the Plt's place of business at P—, and to deliver to the Deft, who is to be at liberty to be present during the opening of such letters, any letter intended for him.—Deft to pay costs.—Loog v. Bean, C. A., 12 March, 1884, B. 467; 26 Ch. D. 306, C. A.

6. Enjoining the Return of Documents.

LET the Deft H. be restrained from detaining and keeping possession of the books, deeds, documents, and papers removed by him the said Deft, or by his order, from the chambers occupied by the Plts, for retaining which no written authority has been produced by the Deft, as mentioned in the Plts' affidavit of &c., or any or either of them, except the five boxes not claimed by the Plts, and from permitting the same, or any or either of them, except the five boxes, to remain away from the office of the Plts, or from parting with the books &c. removed by the Deft, or by his order, from the chambers occupied by the Plts, or any or either of them, except the said five boxes, to any person or persons other than the Plts, and from destroying, mutilating, or obliterating the said books &c., or any or either of them, except as aforesaid, or any parts or part thereof respectively, or any entries or entry therein, and from making any alteration, interlineation, or erasure in the same, or any of them; until &c.—Whittaker v. Howe, M. R., 25 Feb. 1841, B. 336; followed in Whitwham v. Moss, 73 L. T. 57.

For an order for return of books, documents and extracts which had come into Deft's possession in the course of a confidential employment, and restraining him from taking and retaining any copies and extracts, and from communicating the particulars or the contents thereof or any of the information therein contained, see Evitt v. Price, 1 Sim. 483.

7. Injunction against opening Letters of another Firm, or supplying the Orders therein contained.

LET the Defts B. &c., their agents &c., be restrained from receiving, retaining, or opening any letters or letter addressed "C. Schiele," or "Schule" and Co. &c., or otherwise addressed to the Plt Christian Schiele, or to the Plt's said firm of C. Schiele and Co., as in the (bill) mentioned, and from taking advantage or making use of the communications or information, and from supplying the orders or any of them contained in any such letters, and from in any manner availing themselves of or using the contents of any such letters; until &c.—Schiele v. Brakell, V.-C. S., 29 May, 1863, B. 1169; S. C., 11 W. R. 796.

For a similar order, after dissolution of partnership and sale by Deft of the business to Plt, with the goodwill and the right to use the trade name and trade marks of the firm, see Witt v. Corcoran, V.-C. B., inf. Sect. XII., Form 8.

For an undertaking by the Defts until the hearing not to open, except in the presence of the Plt or his agents, any letter addressed to him at No. 190, R. St., unless it should appear either on the outside or by some other indication than the address No. 190, R. St., that the same was intended for the Defts, see Stapleton v. For. Vin. Assoc., V.-C. W., 13 June, 1864, B. 1526; 12 W. R. 976.

8. Injunction against Surreptitious Communication.

LET the Defts, the C. P. T. Syndicate, Ltd., their servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from obtaining or copying from the sheets of letterpress, tapes or other documents of the Plts any information about horse-racing meetings collected by or on behalf of the Plts for the purpose of transmission to their subscribers, and from communicating the information so obtained or copied to the subscribers of the Deft Syndicate or any other persons. The Deft Syndicate to pay the Plts costs of action, to be taxed.—See The Exchange Telegraph Co. Ltd. v. The Central, News, Ltd., Stirling, J., 19 May, 1879, A. 2205, (1897) 2 Ch. 48.

NOTES.

The receiver's right of property in letters is at most joint with that of the writer: see Pope v. Curl, 2 Atk. 342; and is qualified by the right of the latter to restrain their publication without his consent, on the ground of breach of contract or of confidence; and also, where the publication is intended for purposes of profit, on the ground of infringement of the exclusive copyright of the writer therein, see Copinger, Copyright, 42; Kerr, 498; Story, Eq. Jur., ss. 944—947.

For the application and qualification of this rule, see Lytton v. Devey, 54 L. J. Ch. 293; Hopkinson v. L. Burghley, 2 Ch. 447; Howard v. Gunn, 32

Beav. 462; Gee v. Pritchard, 2 Swan. 403; Thompson v. Stanhope, Amb. 739; Oliver v. O., 10 W. R. 18; Bishop of Exeter v. Shutte, sup. Form 1 (and see 7 Sol. Journ. 485), in which case an injunction was obtained restraining the alleged threatened publication in "Life and Times of the Bishop of Exeter," of private correspondence of the Bishop, extending over forty years, which had been placed in the Deft's hands as material for his work. The bill, it seems, was on the 23rd April, 1863, dismissed, on the denial of the Deft that he ever intended to publish the letters unless the Bishop's consent had been obtained, but without costs.

In Pollard v. The Photographic Co., 40 Ch. D. 345, v. sup. Form 13, p. 673, a photographer was restrained from selling or exhibiting or dealing with copies of a photograph of the Plt, which he had taken for her in the way of his business.

And see P. Albert v. Strange, 1 Mac. & G. 25; 2 D. & S. 652; Phillips, Copyright, 7, where publication of a catalogue of private etchings, not intended by the author for publication, was restrained.

The Court, on the ground of implied contract, will restrain the publication of information obtained in a confidential capacity: Evitt v. Price, 1 Sim. 483; Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 218; ex gr., by a manager surreptitiously copying from the order book a list of names and addresses of his employer's customers: Robb v. Green, (1895) 2 Q. B. 315, C. A.; or derived from production of documents: Williams v. P. Wales Co., 23 Beav. 338; or the communication of information compiled by an apprentice during his term of service with a firm of engine makers: Merryweather v. Moore, (1892) 2 Ch. 518; secus, where no confidential relation exists, as in the case of foreign correspondents of an English telegraph co., and no contract can be implied: Reuter's Tel. Co. v. Byron, 43 L. J. Ch. 661, 663; but see Lamb v. Evans, (1893) 1 Ch. 226, 231, C. A.

And where the Deft has surreptitiously obtained access to the Plt's accounts, books, and other documents, he will be restrained from printing or otherwise copying, and from distributing or parting with any copies, or otherwise in any way publishing such accounts, &c.: Tipping v. Clarke, 2 Ha. 383; Marshall v. Watson, 25 Beav. 501; and also from making any use of trade secrets, the knowledge of which has been surreptitiously acquired: Morison v. Moat, 9 Ha. 241; Merryweather v. Moore, (1892) 2 Ch. 518; or from communicating in breach of contract information confidentially imparted by a news agency to their subscribers: Exchange Telegraph, Ltd. v. Central News, (1897) 2 Ch. 48; and the news agency in such a case has a right of property at common law in the information: Exchange Telegraph Co. v. Gregory & Co., (1896) 1 Q. B. 147, C. A.

A person will also be restrained from opening letters addressed to, and thus obtaining orders or custom intended for, another: Edginton v. E., 11 L. T. 299; Schiele v. Brakell, 11 W. R. 796, sup. Form 7; and canvassers employed under contract to obtain advertisements for a directory were restrained from using for the purposes of another publication materials obtained by them as such canvassers: Lamb v. Evans, (1892) 3 Ch. 462 (where see form of interlocutory injunction); S. C., (1893) 1 Ch. 218, C. A.; and see Louis v. Smellie, W. N. (95) 115; 73 L. T. 226; and compare the case of the electro blocks supplied for personal use: Cooper v. Stephens, (1895) 1 Ch. 567, ante, p. 679.

The Postmaster General will not be restrained from delivering business letters, directed to Plt at the address of his former employers, otherwise than at his present place of business (in the same street and under a very similar firm): Stapleton v. Foreign Vin. Assoc., 12 W. R. 976; 11 L. T. 77.

SECTION X.—LIBEL.

1. Injunction against Libelling Plt's Trade by Circular containing erroneous Quotation from a Judgment.

UPON motion for judgment &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, Let the Defts, A., B., and C., be perpetually restrained from issuing or distributing, or permitting to be issued or distributed, the circular which at the date of the issue of the writ in this action was being distributed by them at the International Exhibition of Navigation and Commerce, at Liverpool, purporting to contain a quotation from the judgment of Mr. Justice North, in Hayward v. H., 1885, H. 566, or any other circular or advertisement containing an unfair report of the said judgment to the prejudice of the Plt.—Hayward v. H., North, J., 22 Nov. 1886, A. 1614; S. C., 34 Ch. D. 198.

2. Injunction against Slander and Libel on the Plts' Trade by Spurious Experiments.

UPON motion &c., Let the Deft, his agents, servants, travellers, and represves, be perpetually restrained from representing or stating in any way, either verbally or in writing, and in particular either by circular or spurious experiment or otherwise, that the Plt co.'s process does not contain meat or extract of meat, or any other ingredient stated by the Plt co. to be contained therein, or otherwise slandering or libelling the Plt co. in their trade, or otherwise representing, or suggesting, or doing anything calculated to represent or suggest, that the Plt co.'s preparation is spurious or not genuine.—Liberty to apply.—Coleman & Co. v. Pearson, Chitty, J., 25 Jan. 1889, A. 91.

Plts carefully eliminated albumen from their preparation. Deft furnished his travellers with tannic acid, which is a test for albumen, and instructed them to pour it into the Plts' preparation, and represent the absence of any resulting precipitation as a proof of the absence of meat.

3. Injunction against Wrongful Assertion of Title or Slander on Owner's Title.

LET the Deft A. G. D., his servants and agents, be perpetually restrained from alleging, asserting, stating, or representing that he has any estate, right, title, interest, claim or demand in, to or upon the estate known as C. B., in the county of —, in the statement of claim mentioned, and the zinc blende and lead mines therein, and the plant and machinery thereon, or any of them, or any part or parts thereof, or that the Plt's title thereto, or to any part or parts thereof, is defective, or that the Plt cannot sell, dispose of or deal with the said estate, property, mines, plant and machinery, or any part or parts thereof, or make any valid or binding contract for the sale or lease, or make any valid and effective conveyance, grant, or lease of the same, or any part or parts thereof, or of any interest or estate therein, or easement thereon, or is not entitled to receive the purchase-money or other consideration money of or for any such contract, conveyance, grant or lease, without the consent or concurrence of the Deft, or in any other way claiming any estate and interest in the said property, or any part or parts thereof.—Deft to pay Plt's costs, to be taxed.—See Jenks v. Ditton, Kekewich, J., 3 July, 1897, A. 3000.

NOTES.

Though it was formerly settled that the Court had no jurisdiction to restrain publication of a libel, or of any letter, advertisement or other document which was injurious to the property, either in money or reputation, of another (see Prudential Co. v. Knott, 10 Ch. 142, overruling Dixon v. Holdin, 7 Eq. 493; Springhead Co. v. Riley, 6 Eq. 551), the effect of the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), is to enlarge the jurisdiction so that injunctions to restrain libellous statements injurious to property or trade, as well as damages, may now be granted without the necessity of proving actual damage, and without the finding of a jury where the action has been tried by a Judge alone: Thomas v. Williams, 14 Ch. D. 864; Thorley, &c. Co. v. Massam, 14 Ch. D. 763, C. A.; Hill v. Hart-Davies, 21 Ch. D. 798 (and see Thorley, &c. Co. v. Massam, 6 Ch. D. 582; Saxby v. Easterbrook, 3 C. P. D. 339); and there is jurisdiction to grant an interlocutory injunction: Bonnard v. Perryman, (1891) 2 Ch. 269, C. A.; 39 W. R. 506; Collard v. Marshall, (1892) 1 Ch. 571, C. A.; Monson v. Tussauds, (1894) 1 Q. B. 671, C. A., where the judgment in Bonnard v. Perryman, was treated by Lopes and Davey, L. JJ. (dis. Lord Halsbury), as laying down an absolute rule of practice as to the circumstances under which an interlocutory injunction against libel ought to be granted: but such an order will not be made except under very special circumstances: Bonnard v. Perryman, sup.; Plumbly v. Perryman, W. N. (91) 64; as where any jury would say the matter complained of was libellous, and if they found otherwise their verdict would be set aside as unreasonable: S. C.; Liverpool Household Assoc. v. Smith, 37 Ch. D. 170, C. A.; Quartz Hill Co. v. Beall, 20 Ch. D. 501, C. A.; or the truth of the libel is the material issue: Plumbly v. Perryman, W. N. (91) 64; especially where a claim of privilege is set up: S. C.; but see Punch v. Boyd, 16 L. R. Ir. 476; nor where the statements, however injurious, are not shown to have been made malâ fide or in breach of any contract: Société Anonyme des Glaces v. Tilghman, 25 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; nor where injury to person or property is not shown, even though the libels are calculated to cause extreme annoyance, are wholly unjustifiable, and of a gross character, and the Plts have previously obtained a verdict against Defts for substantial damages in respect of similar libels: Salomons v. Knight, (1891) 2 Ch. 294, C. A.; and an interlocutory injunction in a case of libel, as by exhibiting an effigy of the Plt in the "Chamber of Horrors" at Madame Tussaud's, was discharged, where it appeared (by further evidence on appeal) that there would be a question at the trial whether the Plt had consented to the exhibition: Monson v. Tussauds, sup.

Oral as well as written statements, if slanderous and calculated to injure the business of another, will be restrained: Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306.

And that the Court is reluctant to grant an injunction restraining the publication of future libels, as involving the trial of the question of libel or no libel in a very unsatisfactory way on motion to commit, see Liverpool Household Assoc. v. Smith, sup., where also a doubt was intimated whether, in Hill v. Hart-Davies, sup., the Court was right in granting an interlocutory injunction with the words "or any other circular or letter containing false or inaccurate representations as to the credit or financial condition of the said society."

An action will not lie for a false statement disparaging a trader's goods where no special damage is proved, and where an action will not lie for defamation an injunction will not be granted: White v. Mellin, (1895) A. C. 154, H. L. (commenting on Western Counties Manure Co. v. Lawes Chemical Manure Co., L. R. 9 Ex. 218, and approving Evans v. Harlow, 5 Q. B. 624): and quære, whether an action will lie in any case for disparaging a trader's goods merely by stating that some other trader's goods are better, either generally or in this or that respect: S. C.

An action of libel, even if involving injury to trade, is determined by the death of the Plt, unless it is in the nature of an action of slander of title, e.g., alleges publication impugning Plt's right to use his trade mark: Hatchard v. Mège, 18 Q. B. D. 771.

Where the injury proved was trifling, and the action not brought until three months after the Plt knew of the publication of the libel, the Court gave only 5*l.* damages: Hayward v. H., 34 Ch. D. 198; and a circular containing an erroneous statement of a judgment in an action, viz., that the Deft had been ordered to undertake not to represent his firm to be that of the Plts, whereas in fact such undertaking had been voluntarily given, was held to be a libel injurious to Deft's trade: S. C.

Upon the question whether words could be deemed libellous as imputing insolvency, see Capital and Counties Bank v. Henty, 7 App. Cas. 741; Nevill v. Fine Art and General Ins. Co., (1897) A. C. 68, H. L.; (1895) 2 Q. B. 156, C. A.; and upon the question of privilege, see Allbutt v. General Council of Medical Education, 23 Q. B. D. 400, C. A. (publication of minutes of the Deft Council); Davis v. Shepstone, 11 App. Ca. 187 (reports of statements made to proprietors of newspapers); Proctor v. Webster, 16 Q. B. D. 112 (letters to lords of Privy Council); Hill v. Hart-Davies, 21 Ch. D. 798 (circular to members of friendly society); Nevill v. Fine Art and General Ins. Co., sup. (circular notifying that agent had ceased to act for co.); Waller v. Loch, 7 Q. B. D. 619, C. A. (report of Secretary of Charity Organization Society); Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Ca. 194; 17 Q. B. D. 636, C. A. (reports of proceedings in Courts of Justice); Munster v. Lamb, 11 Q. B. D. 588, C. A. (protection of advocate absolute); Hayward v. H., 34 Ch. D. 198 (privilege not lost unless communication shown to be untrue to the knowledge of the person making it); Jenouwe v. Delmege, (1891) A. (P. C.) 73 (the occasion rebuts the inference of mala fides of Deft, so that the onus probandi is cast on the Plt).

And that a corporation cannot sue for libel affecting personal reputation only, and not property, see Corporation of Manchester v. Williams, (1891) 1 Q. B. 94.

An action will lie in this country in respect of a libel or other act committed outside the jurisdiction if the act is wrongful both in this country and in the country where it was committed, but it is not necessary that the act should be the subject of civil proceedings in the foreign country: Machado v. Fontes, (1897) 2 Q. B. 231, C. A. applying the rule enunciated in Phillips v. Eyre, L. R. 6 Q. B. 1, and The M. Moxham, 1 P. D. 107.

Upon the question of liability for the publication of a libel, see Odgers on Libel, 170 et seq.; 454 et seq.; Vizitelly v. Mudie's Select Library, (1900) 1 Ch. 270, C. A.

SECTION XI.—COMMENTS ON PENDING PROCEEDINGS.

1. Injunction restraining the Delivery of a Sermon with Special Reference to Pending Proceedings.

USUAL undertaking.—Let the Deft B. be restrained from preaching or delivering any sermon or address with special or other reference to the trial of this cause, and from publishing or distributing, or being in any way instrumental in publishing or distributing, the printed handbill or placard being the exhibit &c., or any like handbill or placard or notice, and from otherwise prejudicing and interfering with the trial of this cause, or the persons to be examined as witnesses at the hearing thereof.—Mackett v. Herne Bay Commrs., V.-C. B., 24 June, 1876, B. 1026 ; S. C., 24 W. R. 845.

For an order that the printers and publishers of the "S. Independent" do, within three weeks, publish in three successive papers apologies for their offence (in publishing the bill and depositions taken in a suit still pending, and commenting thereon in a manner calculated to prejudice the case of the Deft) in as legible a type and conspicuous a manner as the extracts and articles complained of; and do also pay the costs of the motion; otherwise that they stand committed for contempt, see General Exchange Bank v. Horner, M. R., 12 Nov. 1868, A. 2668.

For similar orders for submission and payment of costs by the printers and publishers of newspapers, see Tichborne v. Mostyn, V.-C. W., 18 July, 1867, B. 2073, 2076; Robson v. Dodds, V.-C. M., 27 May, 1869, B. 1317; S. C., 17 W. R. 782.

2. Ex parte Order restraining Publication of Matter tending to prejudice Trial of Action.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plts, Let A. B., the printer and publisher of the C. D. newspaper, his servants and agents, be restrained until &c., from printing or publishing, or reprinting or republishing, or causing or permitting to be written, printed, or published, or rewritten, or reprinted, or republished, an article or paragraph entitled "The Harsop Estate Claimant—After a Missing Will," or any copy of or extract from such paragraph or article, or any statement therein, or to the like effect; And from writing, or printing, or publishing, or causing or permitting to be written, or printed, or published, with or without comment, any pleading or evidence in this action, or any defamatory statement tending to prejudice the minds of the public or to prevent a fair trial of this action.—Leslie v. Cave, Pearson, J., 14 May, 1885, B. 548.

And for case in which an interlocutory injunction was granted to restrain a threatened publication by the Deft of circulars abusive of the Plt, and tending to prejudice the fair trial of the action, see Kitcat v. Sharp, 52 L. J. Ch. 134; 48 L. T. 64; 31 W. R. 227.

NOTES.

The publication by persons interested of ex parte statements of pending proceedings (Coleman v. W. Hartlepool Ry. Co.; 8 W. R. 734; Brook v. Evans, Ib. 688), or of comments, in anticipation of a trial, calculated to prejudice the public mind and obstruct the course of justice (Tichborne v. Mostyn, 7 Eq. 55, n.; Daw v. Eley, Ib. 49; Mackett v. Herne Bay Commrs., Form 1, sup.; The Queen v. Payne and Cooper, (1896) 1 Q. B. 577); as distinguished from a mere warning to the trade of the existence of the action: Coates v. Chadwick, (1894) 1 Ch. 347; or, with or without comment, of the pleadings, evidence, petition, or any ex parte statement in any pending cause or matter, will be restrained and punished as a contempt of Court: Re Cheltenham and Swansea Can. Co., 8 Eq. 580; Felkin v. Herbert, 12 W. R. 241; 30 L. J. Ch. 604; Kitcat v. Sharp, 31 W. R. 227; 52 L. J. Ch. 134; and an apology must be made and published as the condition of not committing (in the case of a newspaper) the publishers and printers : General Exchange Bank v. Horner, W. N. (68) 259 ; Robson v. Dodds, 17 W. R. 782 ; 20 L. T. 941 ; and as to contempt of Court generally, v. sup., Chap. XXVII., "EXECUTION," pp. 463 et seq.

SECTION XII.—PARTNERS.

1. Injunction against acting as Partner.

LET the Deft B., his agents and servants, be restrained until &c. from entering into any contract or contracts, and from accepting, drawing, indorsing, or negotiating any bills or bill of exchange, notes or note, or written securities or security, in the name of the partnership firm of D. and B. ; And from contracting any debts or debt, and buying and selling any goods, and from making or entering into any verbal or written promise, agreement, or undertaking, and from doing or causing to be done any acts or act, in the name or on the credit of the said partnership firm, or whereby the said partnership firm can, or may, in any manner become or be made liable to, or for the payment of, any sums or sum of money, or for the performance of any contract, promise or undertaking.—Dyson v. Benson, V.-C., 21 Oct. 1815, A. 1531.

For interlocutory order restraining Deft from introducing or employing one of his sons as a clerk (in breach of the partnership contract) without the consent of his partner, see Watney v. Trist, V.-C. H., 6 April, 1876, B. 885 ; 45 L. J. Ch. 412.

(the partner) be restrained until &c., from drawing, making, accepting, indorsing, or negotiating any cheque, bill, note, warrant, or security whatever in the name or firm of the copartnership, otherwise than for or on account of the said copartnership, and from receiving, using, employing, or retaining any money, securities, or property of the said copartnership for his own separate use, and from placing, keeping, or permitting the moneys of the said copartnership to stand at any bank to or on the separate and private account of the Deft, or on any account other than the joint account of the said copartnership.—But this order is not to prevent either party from drawing out of the net profits of the said partnership to the extent of one half of such net profits or to the extent of £—a quarter each if the half of such profits shall exceed that sum.—Lemann v. Berger, V.-C. B., 24 Feb. 1876, B. 530; 34 L. T. 235.

3. Injunction on Dissolution of Partnership.

H.*, 12 Beav. 414; 20 Beav. 139.

For declaration that the partnership between Plt and Deft extended to a certain patented process, and that the same was partnership property, and for injunction to restrain Deft from any interference with the sale thereof by Plt see Mellin v. Lersner, V.-C. J., 26 Feb. 1869, B. 723.

For injunction to stay Defts from removing Plt's name from the list of members of the society known as "Lloyd's," and from excluding the Plt from the use and enjoyment of the society's rooms, and from otherwise interfering with the exercise of Plt's rights as a member, see Forwood v. Goschen, M. R., 3 Nov. 1870, A. 2638.

For injunction to restrain Deft from carrying on business in the partnership name at the partnership premises, Q. Street, of which he had renewed the lease, and from employing the assets of the partnership in the Q. Street business, see Clements v. Norris, M. R., 20 Feb. 1878, A. 414; 8 Ch. D. 129.

4. Injunction on Dissolution restraining carrying on Business or soliciting Custom in the Name of the old Firm.

D. & Co. prior to the — day of — (date of agreement for sale by Deft to Plts of goodwill, &c.), privately by letter or personally, or by a traveller asking such customer to continue to deal with the Deft, or not to deal with the Plts.—See Labouchere v. Dawson, M. R. 22 Jan. 1872, B. 232; 13 Eq. 322; approved by H. L. in Trego v. Hunt, (1896) A. C. 7.—See next Form.

6. Declaration of right to Injunction restraining Solicitation of Customers.

8. Injunction against the Use of Trade Name on Dissolution of Partnership.

LET the Deft B. C., his servants &c., be restrained until &c., from resuming or carrying on the business of &c., either alone or in partnership with his son B. C. the younger in the (bill) mentioned, or any other person or persons, under the firm or style of B. C. & Co., or B. C., Son & Co., or under any other style or firm calculated to induce the customers of the firm of B. C., W. & Co. in the (bill) mentioned, or the public generally, to believe that the Deft B. C. is carrying on the business of the last-mentioned firm, and from thereby, or otherwise in any manner holding out that the said Deft is carrying on the business of —, in continuation of or in succession to the business carried on by the said firm of B. C., W. & Co., and also from receiving or retaining, or in any manner interfering with, any letters or messages addressed to or intended for the said firm of B. C., W. & Co., by whatever description or style or manner such letters or messages may be respectively addressed.—Witt v. Corcoran, V.-C. B., 13 June, 1873, B. 1637; S. C., made perpetual 24 July, 1874, B. 220.

For injunction to restrain Deft from resuming or carrying on business in a particular neighbourhood, either alone or in partnership, under a certain style or firm of which he had sold the goodwill, or holding out that he carried on such business in continuation of or in succession to the late firm, see Churton v. Douglas, Joh. 198.

For injunction to restrain the Deft W. from using the Plt's patents, and from carrying on business under the name of W. & Co., and from representing by advertisement and circulars that he had succeeded to the business of engineer &c., lately carried on by W. G. & S., at &c., and purchased by Plts G. E. & Co., with directions for delivery up of all trade cards or circulars, and any drawings or patterns, of the late firm W. & Co., and inquiry as to damage, see Graveley v. Winchester, V.-C. W., March, 1867, A. 700.

9. Injunction in absolute Terms against the Use of a Name in Trade.

UPON the two several motions &c., by counsel for the Plts, Let the Defts Maison P. Ld., and the Deft F. W. S., the liquidator thereof, be perpetually restrained from transferring, selling, or dealing with any right to use the name "P—," or any title or description including that name, in connection with the manufacture or sale of boots or shoes; And Let the Defts Maison L. P. Ld., F. W. P., W. A. P., A. J. E., and L. M. P., and Maison P. Ld., F. W. S. and W. K. be perpetually restrained from using the said name "P—" or any such title or description as aforesaid in such connection as aforesaid, and from doing any other act or thing conferring, or purporting to confer, either directly or indirectly, upon any other person or persons any right to use the said name, or any such title or description as aforesaid in such connection as aforesaid, and from selling or offering for sale any boots or shoes not of the Plts' manufacture under the name of "P—'s Special Boots and Shoes," or "P—'s Boots and Shoes."—Defts to pay costs of actions.—See F. Pinet & Cie. v. Maison Louis Pinet, Ld., North, J., 1 Dec. 1897, B. 4156; (1898) 1 Ch. 179.

10. Special Undertaking as to the Use of Name by Co.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, And upon hearing counsel &c., And upon reading &c., And the Plt and the Defts by their counsel consenting that the hearing of this motion should be treated as the trial of the action, And the Defts by their counsel undertaking that in all circulars, prospectuses, advertisements, application forms, policies, and other documents and literature issued and used by the Defts in the United Kingdom, in which the Defts' name shall appear, their name shall always appear either in full without abbreviation, or, if abbreviated, having the words "of Canada" or "Canadian" forming part thereof, and so that the words "of Canada" or "Canadian" shall be clearly and conspicuously printed or written as part of the name, and further that in all manuals of instructions or other general directions issued to the Defts' agents in the United Kingdom, there shall be contained a direction that the attention of intending insurers and other persons with whom they transact insurance business is to be called to the fact that the co. represented by such agents is the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, and also a direction that such agents are not to issue any circular, prospectus, advertisement, application form, policy, or other document or literature other than such as are supplied or approved by the Defts. Tax the costs of the Defts of this action, except so far as increased by the use by the Defts of their title, or any abbreviated form of it, without the words "of Canada" or "Canadian;" And tax the costs of the Plt of this action so far only as the same have been increased by such use.—Usual direction as to set-off.—See Saunders v. The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada.—Stirling, J., 17 March, 1894, B. 503; (1894) 1 Ch. 537.

(as above), so belonging to the Plt and Deft; And Let the Plt H. and the Deft S. deliver over to such receiver the said scenery &c.—Hopkins v. Smith, V.-C. J., 18 Feb. 1869, A. 317.

12. Interim Injunction against dealing with Partnership Funds and drawing Money out of Private Banking Account.

UPON motion &c. (Usual undertaking as to damages), Let the Defts be restrained until &c. from applying any assets of the partnership to any purposes other than those of the partnership business.—And Let the Deft B. be restrained until &c., or until further order, from drawing out of his private account at the N. Bank any sum of money that will leave to the credit of that account an amount less than (a) the sum of 100*l.* transferred to his private account from the partnership account; and also (b) the further sum of 119*l.*, partnership moneys paid in by him to such account as by the Plt's affidavit appears.—Garrett v. Moore, Chitty, J., 14 April, 1891.

NOTES.

RIGHT TO INJUNCTION.

As a general rule, matters of internal regulation between partners (including cos. corporate or unincorporated) will not be interfered with by the Court, unless the members or member of the firm to whom the management of the business has been entrusted by the others are acting illegally, and in breach of the trust reposed in them, or in violation of the partnership contract: Lindl. 468, 469; and see inf. Chap. XLIX., "PARTNERSHIP."

A partner will be restrained from depreciating the property: Marshall v. Watson, 25 Beav. 501; and, until sale, stipulated for in the agreement for dissolution, from doing any act whereby the value of the goodwill may be prejudiced: Turner v. Major, 3 Giff. 442; and generally from acts inconsistent with the partnership agreement, or with the duties of a partner, even though a dissolution is not prayed: Watney v. Trist, 45 L. J. Ch. 412; Kerr, 164; Joyce, 522.

Dissolution of partnership, and consequent sole possession of the premises by one of two partners, was not a breach of a covenant in the lease to both against parting with possession: Corporation of Bristol v. Westcott, 12 Ch. D. 461, C. A.

An injunction will not be granted to restrain arbitration proceedings by co-partners which would be futile, and in no way binding on the applicant: Farrar v. Cooper, 44 Ch. D. 323; Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Ch. 158.

A partner withdrawing from a periodical so that the concern must be wound up, will not be restrained from advertising the discontinuance, as regards himself, of the publication: Bradbury v. Dickens, 27 Beav. 53.

Temporary unsoundness of mind (as distinguished from lunacy found by inquisition or permanent incapacity, see the Partnership Act, 1890, 53 & 54 V. c. 39, s. 35) of a partner will not justify the others in excluding him from the business: Anon., 2 K. & J. 441; but where an action is pending for the dissolution of a partnership on the ground that the Deft partner is of unsound mind, the Court will grant an injunction to restrain the Deft from interfering in the conduct of the partnership affairs so as to injure the business and assets of the firm: J. v. S., (1894) 3 Ch. 72. And see, as to the rights of an insane partner not so found, Jones v. Lloyd, 18 Eq. 265.

The bankruptcy of a partner is a dissolution as to all the partners in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, 53 & 54 V. c. 39, s. 33, and gives the solvent partner the right to sell the partnership property to pay the partnership debts: Fox v. Henbury, Cowp. 445; and see Lindl. 671. But this right is personal, and cannot be assigned, and accordingly an injunction was granted at suit of a bankrupt partner's assignee to restrain a sale by the solvent partner's execution creditor by assignment: Fraser v. Kershaw, 2 K. & J. 496.

NAME AND GOODWILL.

On a dissolution, an assignment of the goodwill and business carries, as between the vendor and purchaser, the exclusive right to use of the business name: Levy v. Walker, 10 Ch. D. 436; Chappell v. Griffith, 53 L. T. 459. But a mere agreement by a partner to retire from a firm does not, in the absence of express agreement as to goodwill, involve a right to continue to use the retiring partner's name: Gray v. Smith, 43 Ch. D. 208, C. A.; and on the dissolution and sale of a partnership business, the purchaser may be restrained from using the outgoing partner's name as part of the style of the firm, unless the outgoing partner is dead or bankrupt: Scott v. Rowland, 20 W. R. 508; 26 L. T. 391; Banks v. Gibson, 34 Beav. 566; Jennings v. J., (1898) 1 Ch. 378; nor may a purchaser use the name so as to expose the vendor to liability by holding him out as a person with whom trade contracts are made: Thynne v. Shove, 45 Ch. D. 577; Chatteris v. Isaacson, 57 L. T. 177.

It is now established by the highest authority that the vendor of the goodwill of a business is not entitled to canvass the customers of the old firm, and will be restrained by injunction (see Forms 5, 6, 7, sup.) from soliciting any person who was a customer of the old firm prior to the sale to continue to deal with the vendor, or not to deal with the purchaser: Trego v. Hunt, (1896) A. C. 7, H. L. reversing C. A., (1895) 1 Ch. 462, approving Labouchere v. Dawson (L. R. 13 Eq. 322), and overruling reasoning in Pearson v. P., 27 Ch. D. 145.

The same principle is applicable to the case where a person has been taken into partnership on the terms that on the expiration of the partnership the goodwill of the business shall belong solely to the other partner: S. C.; or where an action for dissolution, on ground of misrepresentation, is compromised on the terms of payment of a lump sum to the Plt. dissolution, and that the Dft is to retain the "assets": Jennings v. J., (1898) 1 Ch. 378.

And so, in valuing the "effects and securities" of a business on the expiration of a partnership by the death of a partner, the arbitrator was to consider the question of goodwill (if any), and to set a value upon it on the footing that, if it were sold, the surviving partner would be at liberty to carry on a rival business, but would not have the right to solicit customers of the old firm prior to the death, or the right to carry on business under the old firm name: In re David and Matthews, (1899) 1 Ch. 378 (q. v. for a consideration of the law as to disposal of goodwill on dissolution of partnership, and as to surviving or continuing partner's right to set up a rival business).

Upon this principle, a partner who, upon a dissolution, has sold the goodwill to his former partners, will be restrained from carrying on the business, or assuming the trade name, on the footing of being the representative or successor of the old firm: see sup., Forms 3, 4; Churton v. Douglas, Joh. 174; Labouchere v. Dawson, 13 Eq. 322; and for cases in which a like principle has been applied to a retiring partner, see Hookham v. Pottage, 8 Ch. 91; Glenny v. Smith, 2 Dr. & Sm. 476.

But see Clark v. Lench, 1 D. J. & S. 409, 32 Beav. 14, that a clause in the partnership articles which would give the dissolving partner the right to such an injunction will not be applicable where the partnership has been continued at will after the expiration of the term.

On the possible distinction between voluntary and involuntary alienation taken in these cases, see Walker v. Mottram, 19 Ch. D. 355; and see Bristol, &c. Bread Co. v. Maggs, 44 Ch. D. 616, C. A.

In West London Syndicate, Ltd. v. Inland Revenue Commrs., (1898) 2 Q. B. 507, C. A., it was held by the majority of the C. A. that the goodwill attaching to a leasehold hotel and business was not merely an enhancement of the value of the leasehold premises, but was capable of being sold independently thereof, and that stamp duty on an agreement for sale was payable on that footing.

As to the right to the partnership name or style, as included in the purchase of the goodwill, see Banks v. Gibson, 34 Beav. 566; Hall v. Barrows, 4 D. J. & S. 150; Johnson v. Helleley, 34 Beav. 63; Thynne v. Shore, 45 Ch. D. 377; Burchell v. Wilde, (1900) 1 Ch. 551, C. A.; provided the exercise of the right by the outgoing partner will not expose his co-partners to liability: Burchell v. Wilde, sup.

And see also Page v. Ratcliffe, 76 L. T. 63, C. A.; 74 L. T. 343, where the description "property, stock, goods and effects then employed or used in carrying on" a business was held to comprise the goodwill and consequent right to use firm name.

The surviving partner was restrained, during the period given to the representative of the deceased partner for electing to continue the business, from carrying on the business under any other firm or style than that formerly used: Evans v. Hughes, 18 Jur. 691.

The question of the right of surviving partners to carry on the business in the old name, and to restrain the exors from carrying on business under the old name, until the right was established (at law), is discussed in Lindl. 447, 448, citing and commenting on Webster v. W., 3 Swan. 490; Lewis v. Langdon, 7 Sim. 421; and see Kerr, 404, 514.

A partner was restrained from using the name of the firm in connection with another business, although such business was so far beyond the scope of that of the firm that he was not bound to account for the benefit obtained by him from his connection with it: Aas v. Benham, (1891) 2 Ch. 244, C. A.

Co., have not taken up and set down passengers at C— station in the (bill) mentioned by as many trains, excluding express, mail, and special trains, as they have done at other stations between Y— and D—; And Declare, that in this respect the said C— station ought to be on the same footing as the most favoured station between Y— and D—; And Let the Defts, their servants &c., be restrained from stopping a less number of trains in the twenty-four hours of each day and night at C— station aforesaid, for the purpose of setting down and taking up passengers than they may from time to time stop at the most favoured station between Y— and D—, excluding, however, express, special, or mail trains.—*Hood v. This order, which was founded upon Rigby v. G. W. Ry. Co., 2 Ph. 44; 10 Jur. 488, 531, was reversed on appeal, on the ground that the injunction extended the covenant between the refreshment contractor and the co. to cases not thereby contemplated, e.g., to the day mail train carrying letters by direction of the Postmaster General, and under his control as to the time of stopping: see 7 Ch. 409.

G. v. Sunderland Corp.*, C. A., 26 March, 1876, A. 632; 2 Ch. D. 634.

18. Corporation restrained from avoiding Plt's Office of, and from interfering with his Rights and Privileges as Alderman.

LET the Defts, the Mayor &c. of S—, be restrained from avoiding and declaring void the office of alderman of the borough of S—, now held by the Plt, and from acting in reference to such declaration according to the notice of intention in that behalf given by the Defts, and from in any way interfering with the exercise by the Plt of his rights and privileges as alderman.—Defts to pay Plt's costs.—Aslatt v. Southampton Corp., M. R., 8 Nov. 1880, A. 2166; 16 Ch. D. 143.

Co., Ltd., being an agreement for the sale of the undertaking and assets of the Deft co. to the said B. E. T. Co., Ltd., and from assigning or transferring, or attempting to assign or transfer, the undertaking and assets of the Deft co., or any part thereof, to the said B. E. T. Co., Ltd., in pursuance of the terms of the said agreement.—See Kaye v. The Croydon Tramways Co., Kekewich, J., 11 Jan. 1898, A. 52; (1898) 1 Ch. 358.

DECLARE that the said agreement dated &c., is invalid, and the resolutions for carrying the same into effect in the (bill) mentioned are ultra vires and illegal—Let the Defts T. S. &c. NOTES.

Companies and public bodies will be kept strictly within the limits of their powers, and will be restrained from exceeding them, and from exercising them otherwise than for the purposes of their Act, or than in manner and to the extent thereby authorized: Webb v. Manch. Ry. Co., 4 M. & Cr. 116; Richmond v. N. L. Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 679; Lamb v. N. L. Ry. Co., 4 Ch. 522; L. Auckland v. Westm. L. Bd., 7 Ch. 597; A. G. v. Cockermouth L. Bd., 18 Eq. 172; Simpson v. Denison, 10 Ha. 51; Abrahams v. Corp. of London, 6 Eq. 625; Huddersfield Corp. v. Ravensthorpe Dist. Council, (1897) 2 Ch. 121, C. A.; and see Kerr v. Preston Corp., 6 Ch. D. 463; Hedley v.

Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498; Mann v. Edinburgh Tram. Co., 62 L. J. P. C. 74. But anything which is fairly incidental to that which the statute authorizes will be deemed to be authorized: A. G. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 5 App. Ca. 473; L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Price, 11 Q. B. D. 485. But the Court will not (unless in very special circumstances) interfere by way of injunction or declaration where the legislature has pointed out a mode of procedure before a magistrate: Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Hampton Urban District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 331, citing Kerr v. Preston Corp., 6 Ch. D. 463, and Stannard v. Vestry of St. Giles, Cumberwell, 20 Ch. D. 190, v. inf. p. 835.

In order to constitute acquiescence in the unlawful exercise of statutory powers, even where public works of magnitude and importance have been completed, and their construction has extended over several years, there must be actual knowledge, or means of knowledge, by the parties injured of the fact that the works were not in accordance with the statute: Herron v. Rathmines Commrs, 27 L. R. Ir. 180; and see Woodhouse v. Newry Navigation Co. (1898), 1 I. R. 161, C. A., and a local authority, with whom the wants of their district must be the paramount consideration, cannot be estopped or precluded by laches or acquiescence from bringing an action to enforce the rights of their constituents: Islington Vestry v. Hornsey Urban Council, (1900) 1 Ch. 693, C. A.

In the case of a public body transgressing their statutory powers, the A. G., on behalf of the public, even where private injury has been neither proved nor alleged, may obtain an injunction: see A. G. v. Cockermouth L. Bd., sup.; Ware v. Regent's Canal Co., 3 D. & J. 212; A. G. v. Shrewsbury (Kingsland) Bridge Co., 21 Ch. D. 752; but this relief will not be granted at the instance of an individual, unless upon a case of threatened or actual injury to himself: Stockport, &c. Co. v. Manchester Corp., 9 Jur. N. S. 266; 7 L. T. 545; 11 W. R. 156; and see Aslatt v. Corp. of Southampton, 16 Ch. D. 143, 149, sup., Form 18; London Assoc. of Shipowners v. London and India Docks, (1892) 3 Ch. 242; Tottenham Dist. Council v. Williamson, (1896) 2 Q. B. 353, C. A. The High Court has jurisdiction to restrain guardians from applying the poor rates improperly; e.g., in relieving able-bodied men "on strike"; but this jurisdiction does not interfere with the power of the Local Government Board under sect. 4 of the Poor Law Audit Act, 1848 (11 & 12 V. c. 91), to remit improper payments by guardians which have been disallowed by the auditor: A. G. v. Merthyr Tydfil Union, (1900) 1 Ch. 516, C. A.; q. v. as to form of declaration in such a case.

The Court will not (especially on behalf of an outside creditor: Mills v. Buenos Ayres Co., 5 Ch. 621) interfere in matters relating strictly to the internal management of a co.: Macdougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, reversing 20 Eq. 383; Foss v. Harbottle, 2 Ha. 461; Mozley v. Alston, 1 Ph. 790; Inderwick v. Snell, 2 Mac. & G. 216; Bailey v. Birkenhead Co., 12 Beav. 433; Isle of Wight Ry. Co. v. Tahourdin, 25 Ch. D. 320, 333, C. A.; except, perhaps, in cases where from anarchy and interregnum the business of the co. cannot be carried on without the interference of the Court: Featherstone v. Cook, 21 W. R. 835; 16 Eq. 298; Trade Auxiliary Co. v. Vickers, ib. 836; 16 Eq. 298. But acts by the directors or the majority which are ultra vires, oppressive, or fraudulent as regards the minority will be restrained: Clinch v. Financial Corp., 5 Eq. 450; Gregory v. Patchett, 33 Beav. 595; Cannon v. Trask, 20 Eq. 669; Fraser v. Whalley, 2 H. & M. 10; Alexander v. Automatic Tel. Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 58, C. A.

An interlocutory injunction against interference with the rights of shareholders was refused on an undertaking by the co. not to divide certain shares until after the trial of the action otherwise than in accordance with the memorandum and articles: Wall v. London Assets Corp., (1898) 2 Ch. 469, C. A.

Generally, in proceedings on behalf of a corporate body to recover property from its directors or officers, or any other person, or to restrain acts alleged to be ultra vires, the corporate body, and not an individual member (even on behalf of the other members) is the proper Plt: Gray v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1035; Russell v. Wakefield W. W. Co., 20 Eq. 474; and see Macdougall v. Gardiner, sup.

But relief against acts ultra vires may be obtained by a single shareholder, suing on behalf of himself and the other shareholders, or the particular class having the same interest, when the majority will not allow the name of the co. to be used: Atwool v. Merryweather, 5 Eq. 464, n.;

Menier v. Hooper's Tel. Co., 9 Ch. 350; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97; Hoole v. G. W. Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 262 (and see this question discussed in Russell v. Wakefield, &c. Co., 20 Eq. 474; Exeter, &c. Ry. Co. v. Buller, 5 Rail. Ca. 211; East Pant Du Co. v. Merryweather, 2 H. & M. 254; Alexander v. Automatic Tel. Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 58, C. A.); unless the action is by a mere nominee having no legitimate interest, and acting at the instance of a rival co.: Forrest v. Manch. Ry. Co., 3 D. F. & J. 126; Filder v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., 1 H. & M. 489; Robson v. Dodds, 8 Eq. 301 (where the bill was ordered to be taken off the file); Whitman v. Watkin, 78 L. T. 188.

A shareholder whose vote has been rejected may bring an action on behalf of himself and all other shareholders who voted with him to restrain the directors from rejecting the votes of himself and other shareholders in the same interest: Pender v. Lushington, 6 Ch. D. 70; but as against the vote of the majority, the minority, or an individual, will not be allowed to use the name of the co. as Plt: see Silber Light Co. v. Silber, 12 Ch. D. 717; and in such case the name of the co. will be struck out as Plt, with liberty to add it as Deft. But where the Plts substantially represented a majority, although they had technically no right to use the co.'s name, they were allowed the costs out of the assets: Imperial Hydropathic Hotel Co. v. Hampson, 23 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

A creditor whose debt is bonâ fide disputed may be restrained from presenting a petition to wind up a co. not shown to be insolvent: Cadiz Waterworks Co. v. Barnett, 19 Eq. 182; Niger Merchants' Co. v. Capper, 25 W. R. 365; 18 Ch. D. 557, n.; Cercle Restaurant Castiglione Co. v. Lavery, 18 Ch. D. 555.

The small amount of his interest, or the purchase of shares with a view to a suit, will not preclude the Plt from obtaining relief: Bloxam v. Met. Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 337; Hare v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 2 J. & H. 80.

The illegality of the act sought to be restrained by a shareholder as ultra vires must be shown by distinct averments: Mills v. Buenos Ayres Co., 5 Ch. 621.

Authority given by a Californian Court was not sufficient to enable a person to maintain an action in this country in the name of a co.: Barber v. Mexican Land Co., 48 W. R. 235.

In addition to the cases and forms above given, the following cases may be consulted upon the exercise of jurisdiction by injunction against cos. (and their directors) and public bodies.

Applications to Parliament:—

The application of funds or rates in promoting a bill in Parliament has been restrained as an act not within the powers of the public body or co.: see A. G. v. West Hartlepool Commrs, 10 Eq. 152, sup., Form 16; A. G. v. Eastlake, 11 Ha. 205; Vance v. E. Lanc. Ry., 3 K. & J. 50; Simpson v. Denison, 10 Ha. 51; Maunsell v. Mid. G. W. (Ireland) Ry. Co., 1 H. & M. 130; A. G. v. Norwich Corp., 16 Sim. 225; Munt v. Shrewsbury, &c. Ry., 13 Beav. 1; A. G. v. Lambeth Vestry, W. N. (88) 19; Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Solway Junction Ry. Co., 46 L. T. 526; 32 W. R. 164; Leith Council v. Leith Harbour Commrs, (1899) A. C. 508, H. L. (opposition to bill for amalgamation of districts); A. G. v. Swansea Corp., (1898) 1 Ch. 602 (opposition to bill of gas company); sup. Form 21.

But not the application of corporate funds in opposing a bill in Parliament prejudicial to the interests and property of the corp., or directly affecting its "rights, privileges, and duties": A. G. v. Wigan Corp., Kay, 268; 5 D. M. & G. 52; A. G. v. Brecon Corp., 10 Ch. D. 204; Bright v. North, 2 Ph. 216.

Although the existence of jurisdiction in personam to restrain directors from improperly promoting or soliciting a bill in Parliament has not been denied, instances of its exercise are rare, if not unprecedented: Re L. C. & D. Ry. Arrangement Act, 5 Ch. 671; Steele v. North Met. Ry. Co., 2 Ch. 237; Lanc., &c. Ry. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 2 K. & J. 293; A. G. v. Manch., &c. Ry. Co., 1 Rail. Ca. 436; Heathcote v. N. Staff. Ry., 2 Mac. & G. 100.

But a public body will be restrained from promoting or supporting before the Inclosure Commrs a scheme (requiring Parliamentary sanction) where such scheme would defeat the provisions of an antecedent agreement between the public body and the Plt: Telford v. Met. Bd. of Works, 13 Eq. 574.

For the application of the distinction between restraining an appropriation of corporate funds in promoting a bill in Parliament, and restraining the co. or its directors from introducing or soliciting such bill, see Mathias v. Wilts & Bucks Canal Co., 34 L. T. 346 (where, on an undertaking by the co. not to apply any of their funds in promoting the bill, the motion to restrain the co. from presenting the bill in Parliament, pursuant to a resolution passed at a Wharncliffe meeting, was refused); G. W. Ry. v. Rushout, 5 D. & S. 290; Stevens v. S. Dev. Ry. Co., 13 Beav. 48; Winch v. Birkenhead Ry., 5 D. & S. 580.

And to the same effect as to an application to a foreign legislature, see Bill v. Sierra Nevada Co., 1 D. F. & J. 183.

Compulsory Powers:—

Compulsory powers for the purchase of land must be strictly followed, and cannot be exercised for collateral purposes: Stockton & Darlington Ry. v. Brown, 9 H. L. C. 246; Dodd v. Salisbury, &c. Ry., 1 Giff. 158; Webb v. Manchester, &c. Ry., 4 M. & C. 116; James v. Lovel, 56 L. T. 739; 35 W. R. 626.

The certificate of the co.'s engineer, if given with reasonable show of accuracy, will be accepted as to the quantity of land required for the undertaking: Kemp v. S. E. Ry., 7 Ch. 364; Stockton & Darlington Ry. v. Brown, 9 H. L. C. 254; see also Flower v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 2 Dr. & Sm. 330.

An extension of compulsory powers will not be inferred, and cos. or public bodies have been restrained:

—from entering on or continuing in possession of land until the proper deposit has been made: Field v. Carnarvon, &c. Ry. Co., 5 Eq. 190;

—from carrying a water main through the Plt's land where the proceedings of the Deft local board were not founded on the report of a properly constituted "surveyor" under the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 16: Lewis v. Weston-super-Mare Local Bd., 40 Ch. D. 55;

—from erecting a hospital on land acquired for a different purpose: A. G. v. Hanwell Urban Council, (1900) 2 Ch. 377, C. A.;

—from entering upon land held under a determinable agreement, the co. having bought with notice of facts entitling the tenant in equity to an extension of time: Birmingham, &c. Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 40 Ch. D. 268, C. A.;

—or until a bond in conformity with the L. C. C. Act has been given: Poynder v. G. N. Ry., 2 Ph. 330; Dakin v. L. & N. W. Ry., 3 D. & S. 414;

—from summoning a jury to assess separately the value of one out of four houses for which notice to treat had been given under 57 G. III. c. xxix.: Ecc. Commrs v. London Commrs of Sewers, 14 Ch. D. 305;

—from taking the whole of an orphanage under the same Act when the owners wished to sell only the part required for the street improvement: Teuliere v. Kensington Vestry, 30 Ch. D. 642; and see under same Act, Gard v. Commrs of Sewers, 28 Ch. D. 486, C. A.; Lynch v. Commrs of Sewers, 32 Ch. D. 72, C. A.; Gordon v. Kensington Vestry, (1894) 2 Q. B. 742; Gibbon v. Paddington Vestry, (1900) 2 Ch. 794.

—from diverting a river or road for the purpose merely of saving expense, when the road or river presents no actual obstacle to construction of the line: Pugh v. Golden Valley Ry. Co., 15 Ch. D. 330, C. A.; 12 Ib. 274 (following Reg. v. Wycombe Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Q. B. 310); and see Morris v. Tottenham, &c. Ry. Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 47;

—from taking proceedings under a notice to treat given under an Act the compulsory powers of which had since expired, though power was given to take the particular land under a subsequent Act obtained after the expiration of the compulsory powers of the first: Richmond v. N. L. Ry., 3 Ch. 679; 5 Eq. 352; and see Lamb v. N. L. Ry., 4 Ch. 522, sup., Form 4; Bentley v. Rotherham L. Bd., 4 Ch. D. 588;

—from exercising their powers without proper precautions to prevent injury to adjoining property: Biscoe v. G. E. Ry., 16 Eq. 636.

But an injunction will not in general be granted where there is a statutory provision for compensation in respect of the act complained of: see Hill v. Wallasey L. Bd., (1894) 1 Ch. 133, C. A. (under Public Health Act, 1875, ss. 16, 54, 308).

And as to the exercise by cos. of their powers in a negligent, vexatious, and careless way, and consequent liability, see Ricket v. Met. Ry., L. R. 2 H. L. 175; Brine v. G. W. Ry., 10 W. R. 341; 2 B. & S. 402; 31 L. J. Q. B. 101; 8 Jur. N. S. 410; 6 L. T. 50.

A co. who have given notice to treat within the period limited for compulsory purchase will not be restrained from entering on the land at any time before the expiration of their powers of completing the line: Tiverton and N. Devon Ry. Co. v. Loosemore, 9 App. Ca. 480; Kemp v. S. E. Ry. Co., 7 Ch. 364; nor from taking, in excess of their powers, lands included in the parliamentary plans, where no special damage to the Plt is shown: Finck v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 44 Ch. D. 330, C. A.; nor from taking land for the purposes of accommodation works which the co. is liable and has power to make: Wilkinson v. Hull, &c. Ry. Co., 20 Ch. D. 323, C. A.; nor from using sect. 85 of the Lands Clauses Act in aid of their power of acquiring a perpetual right to run trains over the line of another co., until the capital had been subscribed in accordance with sect. 16 of the Act, that section being held inapplicable in such a case: G. W. Ry. Co. v. Swindon, &c. Ry. Co., 9 App. Ca. 787 (q. v. as to the question whether such a statutory right is "land" within sects. 3 and 16).

For the application of similar principles to public works authorized by the Metropolis Loc. Man. Act, 1855 (18 & 19 V. c. 120), ss. 135, 225, and other Acts, see Clothier v. Webster, 10 W. R. 624; 12 C. B. N. S. 790; 9 Jur. N. S. 231; 31 L. J. C. P. 316; Coe v. Wise, L. R. 1 Q. B. 711; Hammond v. St. Pancras Vestry, L. R. 9 C. P. 316; Bateman v. Poplar District Bd., 37 Ch. D. 272; Mersey Docks, &c. v. Gibbs, L. R. 1 H. L. 93; Forbes v. Lee Conservancy, 4 Ex. D. 116; Abrahams v. Mayor of London, 6 Eq. 625; Kerr v. Preston Corp., 6 Ch. D. 463; West Surrey Water Co. v. Guardians of Chertsey Union, (1894) 3 Ch. 513; and see Pub. Health Act, 1875, s. 308; Sect. V., "NUISANCE," sup.

Sect. 16 of the Railways Clauses Act, 1845, empowering a railway co., subject to the provisions of the special Act, to execute works and "from time to time" to alter, repair or discontinue them and substitute others, is not subject to a restriction in the special Act as to the time for the completion of the railway: Emsley v. North Eastern Ry. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 418, C. A.

In the exercise by a corporation of powers given to them by Parliament for public improvements in the borough, a liberal interpretation will be given to the clauses of the Act: see A. G. v. Cambridge Corp., L. R. 6 H. L. 303; Galloway v. Mayor of London, L. R. 1 H. L. 34; and see Spencer v. Met. B. of Works, 22 Ch. D. 142, C. A.; Rolls v. School Board for London, 27 Ch. D. 639, 643.

The remedy of landowners whose property is injuriously affected by the erection of buildings under the authority of the Metropolis Local Management and Streets Improvement Acts, and similar Acts, is by claiming compensation under the L. C. C. Act, s. 68, and not by injunction: Wigram v. Fryer, 36 Ch. D. 87; Clark v. London School Bd., 9 Ch. 120; D. Bedford v. Dawson, 20 Eq. 353; Kirby v. School Board for Harrogate, (1896) 1 Ch. 437, C. A. (school board purchasing with notice of restrictive covenant).

Sect. 15 of the Railways Clauses Act, 1845 (8 & 9 V. c. 26), as to limits of deviation, has been held not to apply to a widening of an existing line of railway: Finck v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 44 Ch. D. 330, C. A.

Power by a special Act (incorporating the Railways Clauses Act) to cross a street by an arch or tunnel does not exclude the right of the railway co. to use the surface of the soil for a station: A. G. v. G. E. Ry. Co., L. R. 6 H. L. 367; 7 Ch. 475; see also Warden of Dover v. L. C. & D. Ry., 3 D. F. & J. 564; and such a right to tunnel is a "hereditament" within sects. 3, 85, of the L. C. Act: Hill v. Midland Ry. Co., 21 Ch. D. 143; but a power to "appropriate and use" subsoil does not justify tunnelling without giving notice to treat: Farmer v. Waterloo and City Ry. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 527; sup. Form 2.

A railway co. having power to "underpin" were held entitled to construct a concreted retaining wall for their railway: Stevens v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., 29 Ch. D. 60, C. A.

Sect. 32 of the Railway Clauses Act does not enable the co. to take temporary possession of land for the purpose of forming a railroad; and mere saving of expense does not constitute a necessity for taking within the section: Morris v. Tottenham, &c. Ry. Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 47.

A riparian owner is not entitled to restrain a waterworks co. from taking water from the stream above his land until they shall have proceeded to treat for the purchase of his interest in the stream, his right being to compensation only for damage by the diversion of water: Bush v. Trowbridge W. W. Co., 10 Ch. 459; and see Stone v. Yeovil Corp., 1 C. P. D. 691; 2 C. P. D. 99, C. A.

Ferrand v. Bradford Corporation, 21 Beav. 415 (in which a co. was restrained from diverting a stream until the value of Plt's interest therein had been ascertained and secured), is not inconsistent with, and has not been overruled by, Bush v. Trowbridge Co., sup.; see 2 C. P. D. pp. 107, 115, 116, C. A.

Although on land purchased for a park or public pleasure-grounds by a corporation, under the Public Health Act, 1848, the erection of buildings for municipal offices will be restrained, the injunction will not be extended to a free public library, museum, or conservatory: A. G. v. Sunderland Corp., 2 Ch. D. 634, C. A., sup., Form 17, p. 707.

Dividends:—

Directors have been restrained:

—from paying dividends out of capital: Bloxam v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 337, sup. Form 14; Re Alexandra Palace Co., 21 Ch. D. 160; and see Lee v. Neuchatel Asphalte Co., 41 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; Bolton v. Natal Land Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 124; i.e., out of "circulating" as distinguished from "fixed" capital: Verner v. General and Commercial Investment Trust, (1894) 2 Ch. 239, C. A.; and as to this distinction, see further, Wilmer v. McNamara & Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 245; Re National Bank of Wales, (1899) 2 Ch. 629, C. A.; or by the unauthorized issue of interest-bearing bonds: Wood v. Odessa Waterworks Co., 42 Ch. D. 636; Guinness v. Land Corp. of Ireland, 22 Ch. D. 349; or out of borrowed moneys: Macdougall v. Jersey Imp. Hotel Co., 2 H. & M. 528; or except out of profits: Fawcett v. Laurie, 1 Dr. & Sm. 192; Davison v. Gillies, 16 Ch. D. 347; Dent v. London Tram. Co., 16 Ch. D. 34; but not where the complaint is grounded on an excessive valuation of assets, which though erroneous might have been accepted at the time by reasonable men: Re Peruvian Guano Co., Exp. Kemp, (1894) 3 Ch. 690; and as to ascertainment of "profits" and the proper mode of keeping the accounts of a trading co., see Lubbock v. British Bk. of S. America, (1892) 2 Ch. 198; Bolton v. Natal Land Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 134. (See also Companies Act, 1845, Table A. (73), 8 & 9 V. c. 16, s. 121.)

—from issuing shares or stock in lieu of dividends (as a means of recouping the revenue sums improperly withdrawn for capital purposes), and from declaring any dividend on those so already issued: Hoole v. G. W. Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 262, sup., Form 13, p. 705.

—from payment of dividends on ordinary shares without regard to the rights of preference stockholders to be paid in priority: Henry v. G. N. Ry. Co., 1 D. & J. 606; Sturge v. E. Union Ry., 7 D. M. & G. 158; Matthews v. G. N. Ry., 28 L. J. Ch. 375; 5 Jur. N. S. 284; 7 W. R. 233; and see Webb v. Earle, 20 Eq. 556.

—from paying dividends to one class of shareholders without also paying the corresponding dividends to the other shareholders: Morgan v. G. E. Ry. Co., 1 H. & M. 560; and see Oakbank Oil Co. v. Crum, 8 App. Ca. 65.

—from applying moneys representing net profits earned by a co. prior to the date of its liquidation, otherwise than in payment of arrears of dividend due at that date to the preference shareholders: Bishop v. Smyrna and Carsaba Ry. Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 265.

—from distributing a "windfall" as dividend without reference to the other dealings for the year: Foster v. New Trinidad, &c. Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 208.

But payment of a dividend actually declared will not be restrained: Carlisle v. S. E. Ry., 1 Mac. & G. 689; Fawcett v. Laurie, 1 Dr. & Sm. 192.

As to the illegality of a purchase of its own shares by a co., see Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Ca. 409; In re Denver Hotel Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 495, C. A.; or acceptance of a surrender of shares partly paid: Bellerby v. Rowland and Marwood's Steamship Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 265; and of issuing shares at a discount, see Re Addlestone Linoleum Co., 37 Ch. D. 191, 206, C. A.; In re Almada and Tirito Co., 38 Ch. D. 415, C. A.; but not so as to preclude the co. from buying property at a fair price and paying for it in fully paid up shares: Re Wragg, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 796, C. A.; Ooregum, &c. Co. v. Roper, (1892) A. C. 125; and that the holders of shares so issued are not thereby relieved from liability, in a winding up, to calls for the amounts unpaid on their shares for the adjustment of the rights of contributories inter se, as well as for the payment of the co.'s debts and the costs of the winding up: Welton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299, H. L., affirming C. A., (1895) 1 Ch. 255; and that an agreement to underwrite shares is not an agreement to issue at a discount, see Re Licensed Victuallers' Assoc., Exp. Audain, 42 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; and see Buckley, 610; and that the payment by a limited co. of a reasonable amount of money to brokers by way of commission or brokerage for placing shares is not an act ultra vires of the co.: Metropolitan Coal Consumers Assoc. v. Scrimgeour, (1895) 2 Q. B. 604, C. A., distinguishing Re Faure Electric Co., 40 Ch. D. 141; and as to the inherent right of directors to set aside a reserve fund to meet contingencies, see Fisher v. Black and White Publishing Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 174, C. A.

A provision may be validly made in articles of association authorizing payments on shares in advance of calls, and in such a case, although there are no profits, interest on moneys paid by shareholders in advance of calls can legally be paid out of capital: Lock v. Queensland Investment and Land Mortgage Co., (1896) A. C. 461, H. L. affirming C. A.; (1896) 1 Ch. 397, C. A.; approving Dale v. Martin, 9 L. R. Ir. 498; 11 L. R. Ir. 371.

Delay by Plt is fatal to an interlocutory motion to restrain an alleged illegal application of funds for dividend purposes: Salisbury v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 18 W. R. 484; especially where there has been long acquiescence with the principle on which the accounts with reference to the dividend have been taken: Yool v. G. W. Ry., 20 L. T. 74; and as to the effect of acquiescence by shareholders, see London Financial Assoc. v. Kelk, 26 Ch. D. 107.

If such illegal application has been already made, the order will be for the directors personally to refund the money improperly paid, with interest at 4 p. c., without prejudice to their right to recover back from the shareholders to whom they have paid it the amount of dividend which they have so improperly paid to them: Salisbury v. Metropolitan Ry., 18 W. R. 974; Evans v. Coventry, 8 D. M. & G. 835.

And see National Funds Assur. Co., 10 Ch. D. 118; Flitcroft's case, 21 Ch. D. 519; Alexandra Palace Co., Ib. 160; Re Denham & Co., 25 Ch. D. 752; Re Oxford Ben. Building Society, 35 Ch. D. 502; Leeds Estate Building Co. v. Shepherd, 36 Ch. D. 787, for the exercise of summary jurisdiction under the Companies Act, 1862, ss. 101, 165 (which is replaced by the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, s. 10), to direct repayment, with interest at 5 p. c., by the directors, who were declared jointly and severally liable, of dividends improperly declared and paid.

Illegal and unauthorized Contracts and Arrangements:—

Under this head railway cos. have been restrained:

—from promoting and guaranteeing a steam packet co.: Colman v. E. C. Ry. Co., 10 Beav. 1; and from carrying on marine traffic: Shrewsbury, &c. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 16 Beav. 441 (see also Forrest v. Manchester, &c. Co., 4 D. F. & J. 126; 30 Beav. 40).

—from carrying on the business of coal merchants: A. G. v. G. N. Ry. Co., 1 Dr. & Sm. 154.

So also a co. formed for fire and life insurance business is not entitled to grant marine policies: Re Phoenix Life Co., 2 J. & H. 441.

But payments made ex. gratia for losses not covered by the policy will not be restrained: Taunton v. Royal Ins. Co., 2 H. & M. 135.

And as conducive to the objects of the undertaking, it is not ultra vires for an hotel co. to let off part of their building for temporary use as a Government office: Simpson v. West. Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. C. 712; 2 D. F. & J. 141; or for a railway co. to supply rolling stock to another co. under a statutory agreement as to working, maintenance, and management of such line: A. G. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 5 App. Ca. 473; or for directors of a building society to make advances on speculative securities, and incur expenditure, and do acts necessary for their realization: Sheffield and S. Yorkshire B. B. Soc. v. Aizlewood, 44 Ch. D. 412; and that the doctrine of ultra vires ought to be reasonably applied, see L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Price, 11 Q. B. D. 485.

And the owner of land adjoining a railway has no equity to restrain the co. from putting up a screen so as to prevent his acquisition of prescriptive rights: Bonner v. G. W. Ry. Co., 24 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

Railway and other cos. have also been restrained :

—from using a line for traffic other than their own : L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co. v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 4 D. & J. 362.

—from applying the funds of a co. in making a line different from that prescribed by their Act : Bagshaw v. E. Union Ry. Co., 7 Ha. 114 ; 2 Mac. & G. 389.

—in making part only of the line : Cohen v. Wilkinson, 12 Beav. 125 ; 1 Mac. & G. 481.

—in making one only out of several lines authorized by their Act : Hodgson v. E. Pouis, 12 Beav. 392, 529 ; 1 D. M. & G. 6.

—in carrying out an agreement for the purpose of extending their business by acquiring the trade of another co. : Simpson v. Denison, 10 Ha. 51.

—from entering into a contract fixing and regulating future traffic of a proposed line so as to give to another co. an interest in such traffic and profits : Midland Ry. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 2 Eq. 255 ; and see Charlton v. Newcastle Ry. Co., 5 Jur. N. S. 1096 ; 7 W. R. 731.

(Secus, however, as to a bonâ fide traffic agreement between two coterminous railway systems : Hare v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 2 J. & H. 80 ; and see inf. "Traffic Agreement.")

—from acting on an agreement so far as it bound one co. to contribute towards the promotion of a bill by another co., or to make traffic regulations applicable to future extensions : Maunsell v. Mid. G. W. (Ireland) Ry. Co., 1 H. & M. 130.

—from applying the funds of a co. in the prosecution of a suit in which the co. are not Plts : Kernaghan v. Williams, 6 Eq. 228.

—in payment of a lump sum to promoters (solr and engineer) for obtaining the Act of Parliament : Mann v. Edinburgh Tram. Co., 62 L. J. P. C. 74 ; or —in payment of the costs of a prosecution for libel against a former secretary of a committee of the co. : Pickering v. Stephenson, 14 Eq. 322 ; Re Faure Electric Co., 40 Ch. D. 141 ; and see Studdert v. Grosvenor, 33 Ch. D. 528 (where the injunction was refused because the payment was made and known to a general meeting before action brought) ; secus, where the prosecution was carried on entirely in the co.'s interest : S. C.

—in making loans to the directors or officers of the co. : Bluck v. Mallalue, 27 Beav. 398.

—in a subscription to the Imperial Institute (in honour of the Queen's jubilee) : Tomkinson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 35 Ch. D. 675.

And generally cos. cannot enter into contracts or apply any part of their funds for purposes other than those contemplated or authorized by their Act : Ashbury, &c. Co. v. Riche, L. R. 7 H. L. 653 (reversing L. R. 9 Ex. 224, 249) ; Salomons v. Laing, 12 Beav. 379 ; Hattersley v. E. Shelburne, 10 W. R. 881 ; Pickering v. Stephenson, 14 Eq. 322 ; Re Faure Electric Co., 40 Ch. D. 141 ; Chapleo v. Brunswick Building Soc., 6 Q. B. D. 696, C. A. ; Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co., 10 App. Ca. 354 ; or reasonably incidental thereto : A. G. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 5 App. Ca. 473 ; L. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Price, 11 Q. B. D. 485 ; Truman v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., 11 App. Ca. 45 ; Sevenoaks, &c. Ry. Co. v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co., 11 Ch. D. 625 ; Hutton v. West Cork Ry. Co., 23 Ch. D. 654, C. A. ; Re West of England Bank, Exp. Booker, 14 Ch. D. 31 ; and see Cullerne v. London and Suburban Building Soc., 28 Q. B. D. 485, C. A. ; Warburton v. Huddersfield Industrial Soc., (1892) 1 Q. B. 213 ; however advantageous such proposed application may be considered by the co. : Munt v. Shrewsbury, &c. Ry. Co., 13 Beav. 1 ; E. C. Ry. Co. v. Hawkes, 5 H. L. C. 331 ; 1 D. M. & G. 737 ; Hope v. International Fin. Soc., 4 Ch. D. 227.

And see Shrewsbury, &c. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 6 H. L. 113 ; Scottish N. E. Ry. Co. v. Stewart, 3 Macq. 382 ; A. G. v. London County Council, (1901) 1 Ch. 781, C. A. (running of omnibuses by tramway authority).

As to the incapacity of directors to make presents to themselves out of the co.'s assets, see Re George Newman & Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 674, C. A.

And as to the liability of a syndicate of promoters, and their duty not to make a secret profit out of the co. when formed, see Re Olympia, Ltd., (1898) 2 Ch. 153, C. A. ; S. C., Gluckstein v. Barnes, (1900) A. C. 240, H. L.

But the Court will not restrain as ultra vires the application by the directors of a portion of the funds in gratuities or pensions to the servants of the co. for services rendered : Hampson v. Price's Pat. Candle Co., 45 L. J. Ch. 437 ; 24 W. R. 754 ; 34 L. T. 711 ; Henderson v. Bank of Australasia, 40 Ch. D. 170 ; nor the application of the funds of a nursing association, proprietors and publishers of a newspaper on nursing, in defending an action of libel against the editor in respect of an article inserted in the newspaper under the express instructions of the association: Breay v. Royal British Nurses' Assoc., (1897) 2 Ch. 272, C. A.; nor a railway co. from letting the interiors of their arches for shops and other business purposes upon short tenancies, reserving power to resume possession when the co. deem it necessary for the purposes of the railway: Foster v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co., (1895) 1 Q. B. 711, C. A. (disapproving ratio decidendi of Malins, V.-C., in Norton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 9 Ch. D. 623); nor from letting a small portion of the land (not immediately required for the purposes of the railway), at a low rent, for the erection of a temporary chapel: Onslow v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Ry. Co., 64 L. Ch. 355; 72 L. T. 256; and as to dealings by co. with property comprised in debentures, v. inf. Vol. III. p. 2037.

And that the Court will not interfere in questions relating to the remuneration of directors for past as well as future services, see Lambert v. Northern Buenos Ayres Ry. Co., 18 W. R. 180; or for services during a winding-up; secus, as to past services before transfer of co.'s undertaking, as not being reasonably incidental to the carrying on of business for co.'s benefit: Hutton v. West Cork Ry. Co., 23 Ch. D. 654, C. A.; or to restrain the dismissal of an agent whose management and agency were especially provided for by the articles of association: Mair v. Himalaya Tea Co., 1 Eq. 411; or for the purpose of forcing the co. to conduct their business according to the strictest rules, where the irregularity complained of could be set right at any moment: Southern Counties Deposit Bk. v. Rider, 73 L. T. 374 (in which case the relief was refused on the further ground that no application to the Court had been made until six months after the resolution).

An injunction will not be granted to enforce a contract embodied in the co.'s articles, but not adopted by the co., that the Plt, a director, shall not be removed: Browne v. La Trinidad, 37 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

A co. has also been restrained:

--from transferring its business and assets to another co. without making provision for the claim of the Plt (as a policy-holder): Kearns v. Leaf, 1 H. & M. 681;

--from distributing assets in liquidation amongst shareholders without setting aside money to provide for rent and liabilities under the co.'s lease: Gooch v. London Banking Assoc., 32 Ch. D. 41, C. A.;

--from applying assets to pay costs of a winding-up petition presented by co., but opposed by many shareholders, and of an appeal from dismissal of such petition: Smith v. Duke of Manchester, 24 Ch. D. 611;

--from carrying into effect an agreement for the sale and transfer to a person about to form a co. of the business and assets of the co.: Bird v. Bird's Patent, &c. Co., 9 Ch. 358; sup. Form 23, p. 709;

--from parting with assets without setting aside a sum sufficient to meet the claim of a dissentient, in a case where the articles improperly sought to deprive dissentient shareholders of their rights under sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 89): Payne v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308;

--from discontinuing supply of water, notwithstanding the special remedy given by the Waterworks Clauses Act, s. 68: Hayward v. E. London Waterworks Co., 28 Ch. D. 138;

--from "constructing" waterworks within the meaning of sect. 52 of the Public Health Act, 1875, without giving previous notice to an established water co. whose limits of supply were invaded: Huldersfield Corp. v. Ravens-thorpe M. D. C., (1897) 2 Ch. 121, C. A.; distinguishing Cleveland Water Co. v. Redcar L. B., (1895) 1 Ch. 168;

--from carrying out an underwriting agreement contrary to Cos. Act, 1900 (63 & 64 V. c. 48), s. 8: Burrows v. Matabele Gold, &c. Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 23, C. A.

But a contract by a co. to sell its rolling stock to another co., and re-hire it at a rent calculated to pay off the purchase-money, with interest, in a term of years, at the expiration of which the rolling stock was to belong to the hirers absolutely, was upheld as bonâ fide, though a loan ultra vires was thereby circuitously effected: Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Maclure, 21 Ch. D. 309, C. A.

Where a co. has ceased to carry on its proper business, and is carrying on one ultra vires, a shareholder is not confined to the remedy by injunction, but may obtain a winding-up order: Re Crown Bank, 44 Ch. D. 634.

As to the distinction between the sale and transfer of business and assets under the Cos. Act, 1862, s. 161, to an existing co., and to a speculator proposing to form a co., see Bird v. Bird's Patent, &c. Co., sup.; Southall v. Brit. Mutual, &c. Soc., 6 Ch. 614; 11 Eq. 65.

Directors have also been restrained from issuing shares for the express purpose of thereby controlling a general meeting: Fraser v. Whalley, 2 H. & M. 10; from wrongfully excluding Plt from acting as director: Pulbrook v. Richmond Mining Co., 9 Ch. D. 610; Munster v. Cammell Co., 21 Ch. D. 183; Kyshe v. Alturas Gold Co., 36 W. R. 496; and see Harben v. Phillips, 23 Ch. D. 14, 40, C. A.; from summoning the general meeting at such a date as to deprive shareholders of their power of voting: Cannon v. Trask, 20 Eq. 669, sup. Form 19, p. 708; or upon an insufficient notice: Alexander v. Simpson, 43 Ch. D. 139, C. A.; secus, upon a notice ambiguously worded so that it might possibly include matters ultra vires: I. of Wight Ry. Co. v. Tahourdin, 25 Ch. D. 320, C. A. But a very strong case will be required to induce the Court to restrain shareholders from holding a meeting: I. of Wight Ry. Co. v. Tahourdin, 25 Ch. D. 320, C. A.

As to restraining directors from calling a meeting without giving notice to a co-director, quære: Browne v. La Trinidad, 37 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; and in Imperial Hydropathic Hotel v. Hampson, 23 Ch. D. 1, the Court refused to grant an injunction to restrain a person from acting as director on the ground that the co. had removed him.

Where the chairman at a meeting refused to put to the meeting an amendment properly moved by the Plt, a shareholder, the resolution was set aside: Henderson v. Bank of Australasia, 45 Ch. D. 330, C. A.

But in the absence of fraud or mala fides, a resolution for voluntary winding-up will not be impeached upon the ground that votes have been improperly received: Wall v. Lond. & Northern Assets Cp. No. 2, (1899) 1 Ch. 550.

As to the sufficiency of the notice of an extraordinary general meeting, and the necessity to disclose all facts requisite to enable the shareholder to determine in his own interest whether or not he ought to attend the meeting, e.g., the pecuniary interest of a director in the matter to be proposed, see Kaye v. Croydon Trams Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 358; Tiessen v. Henderson, (1899) 1 Ch. 861; Hooper v. Kerr, 83 L. T. 729.

As to the proper mode of ascertaining the number of votes given on a show of hands, and in particular those of persons holding proxies, see Ernest v. Loma Gold Mines, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 1, C. A.; overruling, Re Bidwell Bros., (1893) 1 Ch. 603. Proxies returned with blanks, which were filled up by the secretary before the proxies are lodged with the co. are valid if properly stamped under the Stamp Act, 1891, s. 80: S. C. As to the conclusiveness of the chairman's declaration unless a poll is demanded, see Arnot v. United African Lands, (1901) 1 Ch. 518, C. A.; Re Hadleigh Castle Gold Mines, (1900) 2 Ch. 419.

As to the right of the minority at a meeting to be heard before the chairman, with the sanction of a vote of the meeting, to declare the discussion closed, and puts the question to the vote, see Wall v. London and Northern Assets Corp., (1898) 2 Ch. 469, C. A.

Directors have been restrained from using the corporate name and powers for the purpose of dividing amongst the majority, to the exclusion of the minority, consideration money received from an arrangement with another co.: Menier v. Hooper's Tel. Works, 9 Ch. 350; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97; and see Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 58, C. A.

A corporation has also been restrained from applying the borough funds in buying a gold chain for the mayor: A. G. v. Batley Corp., 26 L. T. 392; or to purposes not authorized by the Municipal Corporations or some other Act: see A. G. v. Mayor of Newcastle, 23 Q. B. D. 492; or a payment of interest on the amount of an authorized contribution to the purchase of a site for a college which was being carried on upon premises rented for the purpose: A. G. v. Corp. of Cardiff, (1894) 2 Ch. 337; secus, payment of a sum voted to the mayor, but, in fact, applied for the purpose of celebrating the marriage of the only son of the heir to the throne: S. C. (q.v., also that a payment made in form by way of addition to a mayor's salary is not legal unless it is a bonâ fide increase of salary: S. C.); A. G. v. Mayor of Norwich, 2 My. & Cr. 406; A. G. v. Aspinall, ib. 613; and from avoiding Plt's office of, and interfering with his rights and privileges as, alderman: Aslatt v. Mayor, &c. of Southampton, 16 Ch. D. 143; see Form 18, sup., p. 707; and the like in the case of a member of a school board: Richardson

v. Methley School Board, (1893) 3 Ch. 510; sup. Form 20; and a vestry were restrained from spending money out of the rates for the purpose of inducing persons not to pay the charges of a water company for a fixed bath: A. G. v. Camberwell Vestry, (1894) W. N. 163.

As to the jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining execution for local rates, see Ashworth v. Hebden Bridge Local Board, 47 L. J. Ch. 195; 37 L. T. 426.

As to the incapacity of a corporation to enter into a contract fettering the powers of their successors, see Ayr Harbour Trustees v. Oswald, 8 App. Ca. 623; Tunbridge Wells Improvement Commrs v. Southborough Local Board, 60 L. T. 172; Islington Vestry v. Hornsey District Council, 69 L. J. Ch. 324, C. A.

Upon the question of the capacities incident to corps. and cos., see Pollock, Contr., 111 et seq.; and as to the statutory status of a county council as distinguished from the status of a corp. at common law, see A. G. v. London County Council, (1901) 1 Ch. 781, C. A.

And for cases in which injunctions have been granted or refused against cos. and their directors in respect of various acts, see Lindl. on Companies, 596 et seq.

Preference Shares:—

For injunction restraining the issue of preference shares, by the issue of unallotted parts of the original share capital with a preferential dividend, see Hutton v. Scarborough Cliff Hotel Co., 2 Dr. & Sm. 517; 4 D. J. & S. 672; but this case was observed upon in British and American Trustee and Finance Corp. v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 399, H. L., and has since been distinctly overruled in Andrews v. Gas Meter Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 361, C. A., where it was held that a limited co., having no authority under its memorandum or articles of association to create any preference between different classes of shares, may by special resolution alter its articles so as to authorize the directors to issue preference shares by way of increase of capital: see also Harrison v. Mexican Ry. Co., 19 Eq. 358; Underwood v. London Music Hall Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 309.

As to the position of preference shareholders of an English co. which carries on business in a colony in reference to a tax imposed on colonial assets, see Spiller v. Turner, (1897) 1 Ch. 911.

Superfluous Lands:—

Upon the Lands C. C. Act, 1845, directing (sect. 127) that within the prescribed period, or, if no period be prescribed, within ten years after the time limited for completion of the works, superfluous lands not required for the purposes of the undertaking shall be sold, and in default shall vest in the owners of the lands adjoining thereto; and (sect. 128) giving, "unless such lands be situate within a town, or be lands built upon or used for building purposes," to the person then entitled to the lands from which the superfluous land was originally severed, or to the adjoining owners the right of pre-emption, the following cases have been decided:—

Beauchamp v. G. W. Ry. Co., 3 Ch. 745 (that land required for making accommodation works which the co. would be compelled to make is not superfluous land); Wilkinson v. Hull, &c. Docks Co., 20 Ch. D. 323.

Mulliner v. Midland Ry. Co., 11 Ch. D. 611 (that land under a railway arch is not superfluous); and see Ware v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., 31 W. R. 228; 52 L. J. Ch. 198; 47 L. T. 541.

Re Met. Dist. Ry. Co. and Cosh, 13 Ch. D. 607, C. A. (that land over a tunnel is not superfluous); and see Midland Ry. Co. v. Wright, (1901) 1 Ch. 738.

Bird v. Eggleton, 29 Ch. D. 1012 (that a prohibition under Inclosure Act, against building, revived when land was sold as superfluous).

Hooper v. Bourne, 5 App. Ca. 1 (that the burden of proving title to land as superfluous rests on the claimant; that the mere fact that the land is not built upon is not conclusive; that the fact of the land being in the neighbourhood of a populous town raises a presumption that it will be wanted for increased railway traffic).

Hobbs v. Midland Ry. Co., 20 Ch. D. 418 (that sale of land by one co. to another is ultra vires, but is not conclusive proof of the land being superfluous); Dunhill v. North Eastern Ry. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 121, C. A. (although such sale is compulsory).

Betts v. G. E. Ry. Co., L. R. 8 Ex. 294; 3 Ex. D. 182 (that land acquired and bonâ fide retained by a co. with intention to use it for the purposes of their Act does not become superfluous land if not actually so used at the expiration of ten years).

May v. G. W. Ry. Co., L. R. 8 Q. B. 26; 7 Q. B. 364; S. C., L. R. 7 H. L. 283 (that the right of adjoining owners to unsold land after ten years, under sect. 127, which, from having been applied by the co. to purposes other than those of their undertaking, has become superfluous land, is not defeated by an Act obtained by the co. after the expiration of the ten years enabling them to retain such land); and see Moody v. Corbett, L. R. 1 Q. B. 510.

Norton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 13 Ch. D. 268, C. A. (that a strip of land between a hedge and disused fence, and occupied by the adjoining owner as part of his land, had become superfluous and vested in the owner, and that his possession was sufficient to extinguish the co.'s title under the Statute of Limitations).

Smith v. S., L. R. 3 Ex. 282 (that the provisions as to superfluous lands do not apply when the railway has been abandoned).

Blackmore v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., L. R. 4 H. L. 610 (as to the meaning of the word "adjoining"); see also Coventry v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., 5 Eq. 104.

Carington v. Wycombe Ry. Co., 2 Ex. 825; 3 Ch. 377 (that lands outside and not surrounded by the buildings of the actual town, though within the borough boundary, are not within the words of exception, "within a town").

Coventry v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., sup. (that "lands used for building purposes" mean lands sold as building land or let on building leases, and actually laid out for building); see also L. & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Blackmore, L. R. 4 H. L. 610.

Tomlin v. Budd, 18 Eq. 368 (that the Metropolitan District Ry. Co. has been relieved by the Metropolitan District Railway Act, 1868, from the restrictions as to the sale of superfluous lands imposed by sects. 127, 128).

Re Higgins' and Hitchman's Contract, 21 Ch. D. 95 (that superfluous lands may be sold subject to a restrictive covenant not to erect a public-house, if such covenant be advantageous to the co.).

L. & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Gomm, 20 Ch. D. 562, C. A. (that when land is sold as superfluous no interest in it can be retained by the co.).

Ray v. Walker, (1892) 2 Q. B. 88 (that a covenant by purchaser for resale of part when required will not vitiate the sale of the rest).

Re Thackwray and Young's Contract, 40 Ch. D. 34, C. A. (quære whether co. can convey postponing payment of purchase-money and retaining interim lien).

Traffic Agreement.

A bonâ fide traffic agreement for diminishing competition between two coterminous railway systems is not invalid: Hare v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 2 J. & H. 80.

And the Court will restrain acts in violation thereof, even in the absence of negative stipulation: Wolverhampton, &c. Ry. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 16 Eq. 433; Midland Ry. Co. v. G. W. Ry. Co., 8 Ch. 843, sup. Form 12.

And see Llanelly Ry. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 8 Ch. 942; L. R. 7 H. L. 550, to the same effect, and negating the claim of one of the contracting parties to treat it as a terminable agreement, and to restrain the other from availing themselves of it (by running over and using the railways, &c.).

The earlier cases in which such agreements have been held invalid to the extent of restraining the delegation of the powers and duties, or the alienation of the plant and property of the one co. to the other (Winch v. Birkenhead Ry., 5 D. & S. 562; Charlton v. Newcastle, &c. Ry. Co., 5 Jur. N. S. 1096), seem to have proceeded upon the principle that it is the delegation of powers which vitiates the agreement: see Beman v. Rufford, 1 Sim. N. S. 550; Shrewsbury, &c. Ry. Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 6 H. L. C. 113; 4 D. M. & G. 115; 16 Beav. 441; Browne & Theobald, 292.

Under a power to "maintain" a railway and work it, reasonable improvements, consistent with the purposes of the undertaking, are included: Sevenoaks Ry. Co. v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co., 11 Ch. D. 625.

Unpaid Vendor:—

An unpaid vendor is not entitled in the first instance to have his lien enforced by an injunction restraining the co. from continuing in possession or running trains over the land: Munns v. Isle of Wight Ry. Co., 5 Ch. 414; Lycett v. Stafford & Uttoxeter Ry. Co., 13 Eq. 261; Latimer v. Aylesbury Ry.

Co., 9 Ch. D. 385; Marshall v. Scarb. & Whitby Ry. Co., W. N. (89) 73; but after unsuccessful attempts to sell, the injunction will be granted: Williams v. Aylesbury & Buckingham Ry. Co., L. C. for M. R., July, 1873, B. 2380; and so too if it is clear that the land is unsaleable, and that an attempt to sell would only cause useless expense: Allgood v. Merrybent, &c. Ry. Co., 33 Ch. D. 571.

And as to vendor's lien generally, v. inf. Chap. L., "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

SECTION XIV.—ECCLESIASTICAL BENEFICES AND NONCONFORMIST CONGREGATIONS.

1. Perpetual Injunction as to Presentation.

[In suit by proprietors of lands within a chapelry, claiming to present, an issue was directed; B. claimed the right and nominated H., and on his resignation P., whom the Bishop had licensed.]

DECLARE, that the customary right of electing or nominating a curate or chaplain to the chapel of —, within the parish of &c., ought to be established, according to the said verdict; And decree the same accordingly; And Declare that the Bishop of C. ought to license such clerk as hath been or shall be nominated, according to the right found by the said verdict, unless some legal objection shall appear to the Bishop against the qualification of such person to be licensed.—(Perpetual injunction against the Defts B. and H. to stay their proceedings in the actions of prohibition and replevin.)—"And to restrain the Deft P. from disturbing any person who hath been or shall be nominated curate or chaplain of the said chapel, pursuant to the right hereby declared and established, in the possession or enjoyment of the said chapel, or officiating there."—Deft B. to pay Plt's costs in the actions; Plts to pay the Bishop's costs of suit; such costs to be taxed.—As between Plts and the other Defts no costs in this Court.—Hodgson v. Benison, L. C., 31 Jan. 1747, A. 310.

For the allowance of solr and client costs to the Bishop, see Edenborough v. Archbp. of Canterbury, 2 Russ. p. 112.

For injunction until answer or further order to restrain the Bishop of C. and his substitutes and agents from sending out any instrument or mandate, or doing any act for the institution, &c., of the Deft, see Potter v. Chapman, 1749, B. 321; Amb. 98.

2. Injunction against taking Possession of Living.

LET the Deft M. be restrained from performing divine service in the church of St. M., in the town of S., in the (information) mentioned, and from reading therein the articles and other matters required to be read by a curate licensed to a church on taking possession thereof, and from doing or causing to be done any act, matter, or thing, to put himself into possession of the curacy in the (information) mentioned, under or by virtue of the election, nomination, and licence in the (information) mentioned, or any of them; until &c.—A. G. v. E. Powis, V.-C. W., 23 Dec. 1853, A. 245; Kay, 186.

For order dissolving injunction, and ordering the trustees to present, and the Bishop to institute, see Edenborough v. Archbp. of Canterbury, 2 Russ. 93, 112.

For injunction to stay the Bishop from admitting the Deft's clerk, see Hyde v. H., M. R., 11 July, 1710, A. 395; and from instituting and inducting a co-Deft to a vicarage, see A. G. v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. 145.

For injunction to restrain the vestry of St. J., Clerkenwell, and the trustees of the living from presenting or nominating M. to the Bishop for institution or induction to the living or perpetual curacy, on the footing of an election declared by the decree to be null and void, see Carter v. Cropley, 8 D. M. & G. 680 (reversing V.-C. K., 5 W. R. 172).

3. Injunction to restrain Minority of Trustees of Methodist Chapel, who had resigned, from excluding Preachers appointed by the Majority.

LET the Defts S. &c., be restrained from taking possession of the pulpit in the chapel at &c., vested in the trustees of the indenture dated &c., and from excluding the preachers, or any of them, duly appointed by the major part of the trustees acting in the trusts of the said indenture to preach and officiate in the said chapel, from preaching or officiating in the said chapel, and from in any manner disturbing or interfering with the performance of divine worship in the said chapel, and from in any manner meddling or interfering with the trust premises.—Stott v. Storey, V.-C. W., 18 July, 1860, B. 1561.

For declaration that Defts, trustees of the French Protestant Church of London, were not justified in removing the pastor, and injunction against interfering with his due exercise of his office, see Daugars v. Rivaz, 28 Beav. 262.

For decree on motion, in a suit by the majority of the trustees of a non-conforming chapel, for perpetual injunction to restrain a minister on probation and the minority of the trustees from disturbing the pastor, deacons, and members in the performance of divine service in, or in the use of, the chapel, and the minister from officiating as pastor, and from preaching, or intermeddling with the service—with costs against the Defts, see Perry v. Shipway, 1 Giff. 1, 11; 4 D. & J. 353.

For injunction to restrain two vicars (who had affected to dismiss the Plt from the office of schoolmaster) from removing him from his office until after holding a meeting of the three vicars, who had power to remove him for specified causes, and the Plt had had an opportunity of being heard at such meeting in his own defence, see Fisher v. Jackson, North, J., 7 March, 1891, A. 316; (1891) 2 Ch. 84.

4. Injunction against Receipt of Pew Rents by displaced Minister of Chapel.

DECLARE that the Deft, the Rev. G., is not entitled to officiate or preach in the chapel in the pleadings mentioned against the wish of the majority of the trustees of the said chapel, and of the society or congregation in the pleadings mentioned; And Let the Defts, the Rev. G., and P., be restrained from receiving or collecting, or continuing or attempting to receive or collect, any of the rents payable for pews or sittings in the said chapel.—Cooper v. Gordon, V.-C. S., 28 May, 1869, A. 1400; 8 Eq. 249.

For interlocutory order to restrain the Deft from acting as the agent or manager of a voluntary society for disseminating the peculiar doctrines of Swedenborg, and from selling any of the books of, and receiving any money belonging to, the society; and from selling, &c., from the house of the society any spiritualistic books, periodicals, or other works whatsoever, unless under the order or with the permission of the Plts; but without prejudice to any question as to the right (if any) of the Deft to recover damages from Plts or any of them, the Plts undertaking to abide by any order which the Court shall make as to damages, and to allow the Deft the use for two months of the house and premises, and to allow him access to the shop at all reasonable times for the purpose of enabling him to remove his own stock and property, see Spurgin v. White, V.-C. S., 22 Dec. 1860, B. 2536; S. C., 7 Jur. N.S. 15; 2 Giff. 473; followed in Collison v. Warren, (1901) 1 Ch. 812, C. A.

For an injunction to restrain the trustees of a chapel from mortgaging it for a small sum without apparent necessity, see Rigall v. Foster, 18 Jur. 39.

For a decree establishing the right of a Baptist minister to possession of a house, built under a trust to provide a ministerial residence, as against a majority of the trustees who had let the house to a stranger, see Ward v. Hipwell, 3 Giff. 547; 8 Jur. N.S. 666.

For injunction restraining Deft from acting or purporting to act as parish clerk in virtue or under colour of his alleged appointment, and interfering with the Plt in the execution of his office so long as the Plt should continue parish clerk, and from receiving the fees, and for delivery over of all books and keys (if any) which belonged to the parish clerk by virtue of his office, and which were in the possession or under the control of the Deft, see Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) 2 Ch. 72.

NOTES.

Pending a suit to determine the validity of a presentation, the Bishop will be restrained from taking any advantage of a lapse: Nicholson v. Knapp, 9 Sim. 326; Daly v. Archbp. of Dublin, Fl. & K. (Ir.) 263.

But the legal right of the patron to present, and the order giving effect to that right against the Bishop, do not exclude the Bishop's right to examine into the fitness of the presentee, and to reject him on sufficient grounds: A. G. v. Cuming, 2 Y. & C. C. 139, 155; and see Bp. of Exeter v. Marshall, L. R. 3 H. L. 17.

That the office of parish clerk is a temporal office, see Lawrence v. Edwards, (1891) 2 Ch. 72.

Notwithstanding the previous decisions, that where the advowson of a parish is vested in trustees for the benefit of the parishioners, an election by ballot is invalid as not permitting a scrutiny (see Edenborough v. Archbp. of Canterbury, 2 Russ. 93; Faulkner v. Elger, 4 B. & C. 449), the parishioners in whom the right of determining how the election shall be carried out may, if they think fit, adopt the modern system of ballot: Shaw v. Thompson, 3 Ch. D. 233; 34 L. T. 721.

The minister of a nonconformist congregation, being merely a tenant at will of the trustees, has no equity to retain possession of the chapel, or to officiate therein, against the express will of the majority: Perry v. Shipway, sup.; Cooper v. Gordon, 8 Eq. 249; Doe v. M'Kaeg, 10 B. & C. 721.

And the right of the governing body to prevent the use of the property for a purpose hostile to the interests of the society, or the terms of the trust deed, will be supported: Spurgin v. White, 2 Giff. 473; Ward v. Hipwell,

3 Giff. 547; A. G. v. Munro, 2 D. & S. 122; A. G. v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 400; and see A. G. v. Clapham, 4 D. M. & G. 626.

The power of dismissal vested in the majority must be exercised in a regular way, and upon definite grounds, and an injunction against a minister will not be granted at the instance of trustees who have dismissed him oppressively and improperly: Dean v. Bennett, 6 Ch. 489; 9 Eq. 625; Daugars v. Rivaz, 28 Beav. 233.

As to the appointment of trustees of places of meeting for religious worship, and of ecclesiastical charities, and the statutory powers of the Charity Commrs in reference thereto, v. inf. Chap. XLII., "CHARITIES."

And where a power of removal of a schoolmaster for certain specified causes was vested in three vicars, and he was dismissed without an opportunity being given to him of being heard in his own defence at a properly-constituted meeting of the vicars, an injunction was granted: Fisher v. Jackson, (1891) 2 Ch. 84, and v. sup. p. 722.

The Charitable Trusts Act, 1853 (16 & 17 V. c. 137), s. 17, provides that no suit or proceeding for obtaining any relief or direction concerning or relating to any charity, or the estate, funds, property, or income thereof, shall be commenced or taken without an authority previously obtained from the Charity Commissioners. The words "suit or proceeding" do not include an action for the enforcement of any right not relating to the admon of the trusts of the charity; e.g., an action by a master of a school to restrain the managers from dismissing him, and ejecting him from the school-house, though the question was raised whether the managers were properly appointed: Rendall v. Blair, 45 Ch. D. 139, C. A.; Fisher v. Jackson, (1891) 2 Ch. 84. And as to the effect of the section, see Lewin, 1145.

As to appointing new trustees, and the remedy when a congregation departs from the doctrines on which a chapel was founded, see Newcome v. Flowers, 20 Beav. 461; but that a congregation of Particular Baptists are entitled, without departing from any essential doctrine, to adopt the practice of "free" or of "strict" communion, see A. G. v. Gould, 28 Beav. 485; A. G. v. Etheridge, 11 W. R. 199; 32 L. J. Ch. 161; 8 L. T. 14.

But the original intention of the trust cannot be defeated by altering the form of worship previously used in the chapel, and introducing preachers of different doctrines and persuasion: Milligan v. Mitchell, 3 M. & Cr. 72; S. C. (on motion to restrain the election of a minister not duly qualified according to the tenets of the Kirk of Scotland), 1 My. & K. 446; Foley v. Wontner, 2 J. & W. 245; A. G. v. Pearson, 3 Mer. 353; A. G. v. Murdoch, 1 D. M. & G. 86; 7 Ha. 445; A. G. v. Anderson, W. N. (88) 64; 57 L. J. Ch. 543; and see Shore v. Wilson, 9 Cl. & F. 355 (Lady Hewley's Charity); and Lewin, 607.

SECTION XV.—SHIPS.

1. Interim Order to restrain any Dealings with a Ship inconsistent with the Charter-party.

UPON motion &c., Discharge the order dated &c. (refusing an injunction); And Let the Defts, their brokers, agents, servants and workmen, be restrained until &c., from dealing with the ship — in the (bill) mentioned, in any manner inconsistent with, or which may prevent or interfere with, the execution of the charter-party in the (bill) mentioned.—Collins v. Lamport, L. C., 8 Dec. 1864, A. 2422; 4 D. J. & S. 500.

2. The like Order.

LET the Defts &c., be restrained until &c., from interfering with the loading of the vessel Ella A. Clark, afterwards called The Golden Age, in the (bill) mentioned, in accordance with the charter-party therein also mentioned, or in anywise interfering with or doing any act in reference to the said vessel, so as to prevent the Plts having the full benefit of the said charter-party.—Messageries Impériales v. Baines, V.-C. W., 2 Feb. 1863, B. 137; 11 W. R. 322; 7 L. T. 763.

3. Injunction pending Inquiry by Person specially appointed.

LET a proper person be appointed, with the approbation of the Judge pursuant to O. LV, 19, to inquire and certify whether the cargo of the ship called — in the (bill) mentioned, or any and what part thereof, is in a fit state to be reshipped; (On usual undertaking as to damages) Let the Defts &c. be in the meantime, and until further order, restrained from employing the said ship or vessel called — in a manner inconsistent with the charter-party of the — day of — in the (bill) mentioned.—See Heriot v. Nicholas, L. J., 27 May, 1864, A. 989.

As to orders made under this rule, see sup. p. 568.

For injunction to stay selling, mortgaging, transferring, sailing, or chartering a ship, see Ewing v. Liverpool Bk., V.-C. W., 23 Nov. 1856, A. 86.

For order on motion for injunction to stay receiving, parting, or dealing with the purchase-money of a ship's cargo, or the insurance moneys for it, directing one of the Defts to pay the proceeds of the cargo into Court within one week, exclusive of vacation, after receiving it, and the amount thereof to be laid out and accumulated, subject to further order, see White v. Cohen, V.-C. S., 30 Mar. 1858, B. 1053.

For injunction to restrain the ship's husband from interfering with her sailing by detention of the machinery, and for the appointment of a receiver of the machinery, Plts being in possession of the hull, see Brenan v. Preston, 2 D. M. & G. 813.

For interim injunction to stay a purchaser of shares of a ship, having notice that the vendor was merely a trustee, from dealing with the shares, or indorsing the transfer on the certificate of registry, see Armstrong v. A., 21 Beav. 78.

4. Interim Order restraining Removal of a Foreign Ship from a British Port.

USUAL undertaking—Let the Defts, their agents, officers, seamen, and workmen, be restrained, until after the — day of —, from removing the vessel called the H— in the (bill) mentioned from the port of S—, and from selling or disposing of, mortgaging, charging, chartering, or hiring the same to any person other than the Plt.—Hart v. Herwig, V.-C. M., 5 March, 1873, A. 816 (affirmed, 8 Ch. 860).

This order has been followed in Ireland: see Clavering v. Aguire, 5 L. R. Ir. 97.

NOTES.

Although specific performance of a charter-party will not be directed, the employment of a ship in any manner inconsistent, or any interference, with the charter-party will be restrained: De Mattos v. Gibson, 4 D. & J. 276; Serin v. Des Landes, 9 W. R. 218; 30 L. J. Ch. 457; 7 Jur. N. S. 837; Le Blanch v. Granger, 35 Beav. 187; Messageries Imp. v. Baines, 11 W. R. 322; Collins v. Lamport, 4 D. J. & S. 500, sup. Forms, 1, 2, pp. 724, 725.

And as against the mortgagee, so long as his security is not impaired, engagements for the employment of the ship, entered into by the mortgagor who remains in possession, are valid and cannot be defeated: Johnson v. R. M. S. Packet Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 38; Collins v. Lamport, sup.; The Maxima, 29 L. T. 112; The Fanchow, 5 P. D. 173.

On the question of priorities between the mortgagee of a ship and the assignee of the freight, and forms relating to shipping mortgages, v. inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

Where the charter-party was entered into in Scotland, and the parties resided there, but the ship was at a port within the jurisdiction, the Court, on grounds of convenience, refused to grant an injunction or direct service of writ out of jurisdiction: Exp. M'Phail, 12 Ch. D. 632.

On a proper case being made, the sailing of a ship may be restrained: Haly v. Goodson, 2 Mer. 77; Castelli v. Cook, 7 Ha. 89.

But whether the Court will restrain a party from taking a ship to any other than a certain port so as indirectly to compel him to go to that port, qu.: Lidgett v. Williams, 4 Ha. 465.

Removal of a foreign ship from a British port so as to defeat the Plt's rights, under an agreement to purchase the ship, made abroad with a foreigner, may be restrained: Hart v. Herwig, 8 Ch. 860, sup. Form 4.

The jurisdiction given to the Court of Chancery by the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, ss. 62—65 (see now Act of 1894, 57 & 58 V. c. 60, ss. 28, 30), to order a sale of a registered British ship on the application of any unqualified owner by transmission: and also on the summary application of any interested person, by petition or otherwise, to prohibit, for a time to be named, any dealing with a registered British ship or shares therein, upon terms, &c., was extended to the Admiralty Division (High Court of Admiralty) by the Admiralty Court Act, 1861 (24 V. c. 10), s. 12; and the provisions of the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), and of O. L (for granting interlocutory orders for sale or preservation of property), are of course exercisable by the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court: see also Jud. Act, 1873, ss. 16, 34, 42; Jud. Act, 1875, s. 11; O. L.

And under the new procedure, an order under sect. 65 has been granted in the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division to restrain the admor from dealing with shares in a ship (part of the deceased's assets) pending proceedings to establish a subsequently found will: Nicholas v. Dracachis, 1 P. D. 72; and to restrain the Deft pendente lite "from further mortgaging or creating any charge in or otherwise dealing with any share or shares in the vessel": The Horlock, 2 P. D. 243, 250.

SECTION XVI.—CLUBS.

1. Injunction against interfering with Plt's enjoyment of his Club.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, Let the Defts and their servants, and the servants of the B— S— Club, be perpetually restrained from interfering with the enjoyment by the Plt, as a member of the said B— S— Club, of the usage and benefit of the said club and the buildings and property thereof.—Labouchere v. Earl of Wharncliffe, M. R., 28 Nov. 1879, B. 2281; S. C., 13 Ch. D. 346.

NOTES.

Clubs, not being associations for the purpose of making profit, are not partnerships: Lindl. 50; and the Court will not interfere with the exercise by the committee of their discretionary power of expelling members: Dawkins v. Antrobus, 17 Ch. D. 615, C. A.; Wood v. W., L. R. 9 Ex. 190; Lambert v. Addison, 46 L. T. 20; Harrison v. Earl of Abergavenny, W. N. (87) 21; 57 L. T. 360; Andrews v. Salmon, W. N. (88) 102; Lyttleton v. Blackburn, 33 L. T. 641; 45 L. J. Ch. 219; Gardner v. Fremantle, 19 W. R. 256; unless such power has been exercised in a manner “contrary to natural justice” (Baird v. Wells, 44 Ch. D. 661, 670), irregularly, corruptly, maliciously, or not bonâ fide: see Labouchere v. Earl of Wharncliffe, 13 Ch. D. 346; Hopkinson v. Marq. Exeter, 5 Eq. 63; Fisher v. Keane, 11 Ch. D. 353; Willis v. Wells, (1892) 2 Q. B. 225.

The foundation of the jurisdiction is the right of property vested in the member of which he is deprived by the expulsion: Rigby v. Connol, 14 Ch. D. 482; Chamberlain's Wharf, Ltd. v. Smith, (1900) 2 Ch. 605, C. A.; and that a member of a “proprietary club” has no such right, see Baird v. Wells, 44 Ch. D. 661; and the jurisdiction cannot be exercised in the case of a trade union within sect. 16 of the Trade Union Amendment Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 22): Chamberlain's Wharf v. Smith, sup.; and that such an institution can be sued under its registered name, see Taff Vale Ry. Co. v. Amalg. Soc. of Railway Servants, (1901) 1 K. B. 170, C. A., as reversed in H. L., (1901) A. C. 426.

SECTION XVII.—NEGOTIATING SECURITIES.

1. Injunction against negotiating Promissory Note.

LET the Defts be restrained from parting with, out of the custody of them, or any of them, or indorsing, assigning, or negotiating the promissory note, dated &c., in the Plt's (bill and affidavit) mentioned; until &c.—Smith v. Hakewell, L. C., 20 Oct. 1746, B. 468. (The usual undertaking as to damages would now be required.)

For order for injunction against joint stock bank accepting bills for less than six months, see Bank of England v. Booth, 2 Ke. 496.

2. Interim Order staying Negotiation of Bills of Exchange continued—Deposit in Court.

USUAL undertaking as to damages—Let the Defts B. and P. continue to be restrained until after &c., from negotiating, or dealing, or parting with the bills, drafts, and acceptances, signed by the Plt, as in the writ issued in this action mentioned, except to the Plt, and except as hereinafter directed; And Let the Defts B. and P., on or before &c., deposit, upon oath, in a box, in the presence of the solrs for the Plt, all the bills, drafts, and acceptances signed by the Plt, as in the writ mentioned, other than the two bills mentioned in the said affidavit of H.; and such box is to be indorsed: In Chancery. Earl of L. v. B., 1876, L. 110; “Negotiable instruments.” And Let the Defts B. and

P., within the time aforesaid, deposit such box so indorsed in Court to the credit of this cause, Earl of L. v. B., 1876, L. 110, as directed in the schedule hereto; And Let this motion stand over until &c.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 7.]—See Earl of Leves v. Barnett, V.-C. M., 25 May, 1876, B. 1261; affirmed, C. A., 4 Aug. 1876.

For order, on Plt's undertaking as to damages, restraining Defts from negotiating certain Exchequer bills in their possession, and that they deposit the same with the Record and Writ Clerk, see Chaplin v. Harmens, V.-C. M., 25 May, 1871, A. 1334; but the proper course is to deposit them at the bank as in Form 2; and v. sup. Chap. XVI., p. 212.

NOTES.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the negotiation of bills of exchange and other negotiable instruments, which have been fraudulently, illegally, or improperly obtained, and the instrument (if liable to be completely avoided: Brooking v. Maudsley, 38 Ch. D. 636) may also be ordered to be delivered up to be cancelled: see Esdail v. La Nauze, 1 Y. & C. 394; Traill v. Baring, 4 D. J. & S. 318; 4 Giff. 485; Cooper v. Joel, 1 D. F. & J. 240; 27 Beav. 313. And see cases collected, Kerr, 597.

And that an action for a declaration that the Plts are not liable on an instrument, and an injunction to restrain proceedings upon it, can only be maintained when the Court would have jurisdiction to direct cancellation, see Brooking v. Maudsley, sup.

Under the former procedure cases of this kind usually came before the Court upon applications for an injunction to stay proceedings at law upon the instrument. The jurisdiction of staying such proceedings by injunction has been abolished by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5), and any equitable defence, on which an injunction against the prosecution of the action at law might have been obtained, may be relied on by way of defence in whatever Division of the High Court of Justice the action may have been brought.

Even under the old practice, where the defence was equally available at law (Harrison v. Nettleship, 2 My. & K. 423; Simpson v. L. Howden, 3 M. & C. 108; see also Stewart v. G. W. Ry. Co., 2 D. J. & S. 319; 2 Dr. & Sm. 438), especially by equitable plea under C. L. P. Act, 1854 (see Stiff v. Eastbourne L. Bd., 17 W. R. 428 (reversing V.-C. S., Ib. 68); Waterlow v. Bacon, 2 Eq. 519), the Court of Chancery would not restrain the action at law, except on terms of giving judgment at law, to be dealt with as the Court of Chancery should direct: see Simons v. Cridland, 5 L. T. 523.

And see Thiedemann v. Goldschmidt, 1 D. F. & J. 4, where (reversing V.-C. S., 1 Giff. 142) an injunction to restrain indorsees for value, and without notice of the forgery, of forged bills of exchange, from negotiating or proceeding at law upon them, was dissolved upon their undertaking to deliver up the bills if judgment at law should be against them.

Injunctions have also been granted against proceedings—on a bill of exchange given for a gambling debt: L. Portarlington v. Soulby, 3 M. & K. 104;—on a bond to secure a debt, the consideration for which was alleged to have been in respect of gambling transactions, and was admitted to be doubtful: L. Milltown v. Stewart, 3 M. & C. 18; 8 Sim. 371.

But an injunction to restrain an action on an I. O. U. given for money lent in Germany for playing at games, not at that time forbidden by the law of that country, was refused: Quarrier v. Colston, 1 Ph. 147; and see Wilkinson v. L'Eaugier, 2 Y. & C. 367; Joyce, 1202.

Proceedings on a promissory note given by Plt without independent advice, shortly after coming of age, and subsequently renewed by her, to secure her step-father's debt, have also been restrained: Kempson v. Ashbee, 10 Ch. 15; see also Espey v. Lake, 10 Ha. 260; Maitland v. Backhouse, 16 Sim. 58.

A question as to the rightful possession in England of certificates of shares in a foreign co. must be determined by English law, though the consequences of such possession may depend on the foreign law: Williams v. Colonial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 388, C. A.

The fact that evidence in support of the Plt's case may be lost is not a sufficient ground for an injunction, as the proper remedy is by an action to perpetuate testimony: Brooking v. Maudsley, 38 Ch. D. 636.

An injunction against "negotiation" was held to be broken where the Deft. by indorsing the bill to a transferee by deposit, converted him into a "holder" within the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (45 & 46 V. c. 61), s. 1: Day v. Longhurst, 62 L. J. Ch. 334.

SECTION XVIII.—TRANSFERS.

1. Injunction to restrain Transfer of Stock under the Bank of England Act, 1800 (39 & 40 G. 3), c. 36.

LET the Deft A. be restrained from transferring any stock [or the New Cons.] standing in the name of B., the testator &c., or in the name of the said A., as the exor of the said B., or any part thereof, and from receiving the dividends and interest due or to accrue due thereon; And Let also the Gov. & Co. of the Bank of England be restrained from permitting the said Deft A. to transfer such stock [or the said New Cons.], or receive such dividends and interest; until &c.

For like order as to any stock, with injunction against the Bank, see White v. W., V.-C., 4 Feb. 1828, B. 898. But the usual undertaking should now be added.

2. Interim Order restraining Transfer of Stock under Court of Chancery Act, 1841 (5 V. c. 5), s. 4.

UPON motion &c.—And X. (the next friend of) the applicant by his counsel undertaking to abide by any order this Court may make as to damages, in case the Court shall hereafter be of opinion that any damages have been sustained by reason of this order, which the applicant ought to pay; Let the Gov. & Co. of the Bank of England be restrained until further order from permitting the transfer of the £— New Cons. standing in their books in the name of &c., or any part thereof, and from paying any dividend or dividends due or to become due thereon.—Re Birch, V.-C. M., 4 July, 1873, A. 1617; Re Foley, V.-C. M., 3 Dec. 1867, A. 2648; Cook v. Needham, M. R., 5 March, 1874, A. 407.

For forms of application, see D. C. F. 836.

3. Order restraining Transfer of Railway Stock or Shares.

LET the L. & N. W. Ry. Co., the G. W. Ry. Co., the N. E. Ry. Co., and the S. E. Ry. Co., be respectively restrained from permitting B. &c., the surviving trustees and exors of N., or any of them, to transfer the following bonds and debentures and sums of stock or any part thereof without notice to the applicants &c., until further order, namely (describe the securities).—Re Locke and others, V.-C. S., 11 Jan. 1870, B. 115.

In this case, in which there was no question in dispute between any of the parties, and no intention of filing any bill, the order was made upon motion exp. on behalf of the mortgagees of reversionary interests in the stock and shares of certain cos., without any affidavit of special facts: see 18 W. R. 275.

For an order exp. under 5 V. c. 5, s. 4, on the usual undertaking, restraining payment of a Government annuity to a husband who refused to carry out marriage articles for a settlement thereof on the wife, see Exp. Watts, M. R., 31 Jan. 1871: 19 W. R. 400.

For an exp. order in the Prob. Div. restraining a bank, at which property pending an action in the Ch. Div. to set aside a will had been deposited, from parting with the property pending the probate suit, see Meluish v. Milton, 24 W. R. 679.

For order restraining Defts parting with shares or using them for voting until trial of an action, see Mann v. Patent Tram. Cable Corporation, W. N. (86) 66.

For order (for purpose of giving effect to right of shareholder whose shares were subject to a lien to a co. to transfer under sect. 15 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881) restraining the co. until trial or further order from selling or transferring shares on the shareholder undertaking, on four days' notice by the co., to pay to them the sum due on their transferring their lien to his nominee, see Everitt v. Automatic Weighing Machine Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 506, North, J., 11 Aug. 1892, A. 1328.

For injunction restraining respondent in divorce suit, after decree nisi and before decree absolute, from selling or disposing of property comprised in a post-nuptial settlement on her, see Noakes v. N., 4 P. D. 60.

NOTES.

The jurisdiction in Courts of Equity (1) to restrain banks or cos. from transferring or permitting a transfer of stock without making the banks, &c., parties to the suit; and (2) to grant the restraining order on summary application (without action) is statutory—

1. By 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 36, Courts of Equity are empowered to order the Bank of England and East India and South Sea Cos. to suffer a transfer of stock, or to pay any accrued or accruing dividends thereon, belonging to or standing in the name of any party to a suit, or to issue an injunction to restrain them from suffering any transfer of such stock, or from paying any dividends thereon, although the bank and cos. are not parties to the suit in which the decree or order shall be made.

But this provision does not extend to cases where the bank, &c., claims any interest in, or lien upon, the fund, or where discovery is sought from them (sect. 2); and does not prohibit their being made parties: Temple v. Bank of England, 6 Ves. 770; though where the bank had been unnecessarily made a party the bill was, as to them, dismissed with costs: Edridge v. E., 3 Mad. 386; Perkins v. Bradley, 1 Ha. 232.

The injunction was obtained on notice to the Deft or on affidavit: Hammond v. Maundrell, 6 Ves. 773, n. If after giving notice to the Bank of (filing the bill) Plt does not move for an injunction, Deft may obtain an order that the Bank permit the transfer, unless Plt should obtain an injunction within a limited time: Ross v. Shearer, 5 Mad. 458; 6 Mad. 1.

2. By 5 V. c. 5, s. 4, the Court of Chancery was enabled, on motion or petition, in a summary way, without bill filed, to restrain the Bank of England or any other public co., whether incorporated or not, from permitting the transfer of stock or shares, or from paying any dividends due or to become due thereon, and the order was to specify the amount of the stock, or the particular shares to be affected thereby, and the names in which the same may be standing.

By sect. 5, the writ of distringas was to issue from the Court of Chancery: but the practice is now regulated by O. XLVI, which abolishes (r. 2) the writ of distringas, and in lieu thereof enables (rr. 4—7) any person claiming to be interested in any stock (which includes shares, securities, and dividends thereon) standing in the books of a co. (which includes the Governor, &c. of the Bank of England, and any other public co., whether incorporated or not), to file and serve an affidavit (as in R. S. C., App. B. Form 27) and notice (as in App. B. Form 22), service of which (r. 8) shall have the same force and effect against the co. as a writ of distringas would have had.

Under the Rules of 1875, the effect of service of the affidavit and notice (unless renewed) was limited to the period of service, but the corresponding rule of 1883 (r. 8) does not contain this restriction.

If (r. 10) whilst such notice is in force a request is made to the co. by the persons in whose name the stock is standing for a transfer of the stock, or payment of the dividends thereon, the co. cannot, without the order of the Court or a Judge, refuse to permit a transfer to be made, or withhold payment of the dividends for more than eight days after the date of request.

In such case an interim injunction over the next motion day restraining transfers of the stock or payment of the dividend, may be obtained, and notice of the order must be served on the legal owners of the stock: Blakeley's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 549.

The remedy of an equitable assignee or c. q. t. of shares whose equitable interest the Court is not bound to recognize, is to apply, under 5 V. c. 5, s. 4, and O. XLVI, for an order restraining the co. from allowing a transfer to be made: see Soc. Gen. de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 14 Q. B. D. 424, 453, C. A.; S. C., 12 App. Ca. 20.

A legatee, by putting a distringas on shares, does not accept them so that he cannot afterwards disclaim: Hobbs v. Wayet, 36 Ch. D. 256.

The order to stay a transfer made on summary application under sect. 4 remained in force until discharged after a bill had been filed for the same purpose: Re Marq. Hertford, 1 Ph. 203; and the party obtaining it must have proceeded to file a bill within due time afterwards. Upon bill filed, the proceedings under the statute were not thereby determined, and if the Deft could not satisfactorily displace the grounds upon which the order was originally granted it has been continued until the hearing: see Marq. Hertford v. Suisse, 8 Jur. 71; 1 Ph. 129.

The order has been made without any affidavit of special facts in support of the application: Re Locke, 18 W. R. 275. But see Re East of England Bank, 6 N. R. 81, that some special reason (e.g., danger of the shares, &c., being made away with) must be shown for the order: see also Exp. Field, 1 Y. & C. C. 1.

A party who had obtained a distringas under sect. 5 was not thereby prevented from afterwards obtaining a restraining order under sect. 4: Exp. Marq. Hertford, 1 Ph. 129, 132 (explaining Exp. Amyot, ib. 130, n.); and see Lewin, 1188.

The writ was liable to be discharged with costs when applied to a sum of stock not the same as that mentioned in the affidavit on which the writ was obtained: Re Cross, 1 Dr. & S. 580.

The effect of the notice to the bank or co. is merely temporary, and must be followed up by proceedings to restrain a transfer: see Soc. Gen. de Paris v. Tramways Union Co., 14 Q. B. D. 453, 454.

SECTION XIX.—COLLECTING AND DEALING WITH ASSETS.

1. Injunction to restrain Receiving or Collecting Assets.

LET the Deft C. be restrained from receiving or collecting any part of the outstanding personal estate and effects of the testator B., and from receiving or collecting any part of the debts due and owing in respect of the business or concern of &c., carried on by the testator up to the time of his death, and afterwards by the said Deft; and also from receiving or collecting any part of the rents of the freehold and copyhold estate of the testator, and from letting or managing the said estates or interfering therewith, or with any other part of the testator's estate or effects; until &c.—Direction to appoint receiver.—Brooke v. Cooke, V.-C., 24 May, 1815, A. 839.

2. Injunction against bankrupt Executor acting.

USUAL undertaking as to damages—Let the Deft be restrained until judgment or further order from receiving or collecting any part of the outstanding personal estate and effects of D. R., late of —, the testator in the writ named, and from receiving or collecting any part of the debts due and owing from or to the said estate, and also from receiving or collecting any part of the rents of the freehold estate of the testator, and from letting or managing the said estate, or interfering or intermeddling therewith or with any part of the testator's estate or effects.—See Bowen v. Phillips, Kekewich, J., 12 Jan. 1897, A. 17, (1897) 1 Ch. 174.

For like order for receiver and for injunction to restrain the Deft from all further interference with the testator's estate, see Hore v. Smith, V.-C. K. B., 16 April, 1845, A. 958.

For the like order appointing a manager, and restraining any interference with the estate or business of an intestate, there being no existing admon to the estate, see Steer v. S., 2 Dr. & S. 311.

For injunction exp. in the Probate Division to restrain the Deft until further order from disposing of or removing any of the intestate's personal estate, of which she was in possession as his alleged lawful widow, see Brand v. Mitson, 24 W. R. 524; 45 L. J. P. 41; 34 L. T. 854.

NOTES.

An injunction will be granted and a receiver appointed to restrain an exor or admor from getting in the assets in cases where from his misconduct, drunken habits, extreme poverty, insolvency or bankruptcy, the property, if allowed to remain under his control, will be endangered; though if the testator has knowingly chosen to appoint a bankrupt or insolvent debtor as his exor, the appointment will not be interfered with: Kerr, Injunctions, 508, 509; Lewin, 1042; and cases there cited; Bowen v. Phillips, sup.

The Court will not thus interfere by injunction in favour of a creditor unless it is shown that the assets are being wasted, and in a creditors' action for admon, a receiver will not be appointed merely because the exor will probably exercise his legal right of retaining his own debt, or of preferring a particular creditor: Re Wells, Molony v. Brooks, 45 Ch. D. 569; Harris v. H., 35 W. R. 710; 56 L. T. 507; 56 L. J. Ch. 754.

In the case of a married woman executrix, where the husband, from being out of the jurisdiction, or of unsound mind, cannot be made liable for her devastavit, she may be restrained from receiving or intermeddling with the estate: Taylor v. Allen, 2 Atk. 213; Yetts v. Palmer, 11 W. R. 765; 2 W. R. 255; 8 L. T. 528; but now under 45 & 46 V. c. 75, ss. 18, 24, the husband is not liable for his wife's devastavit unless he has acted or intermeddled.

A married woman cannot be restrained from dealing with her separate estate before judgment in an action by a creditor seeking to enforce against it a general engagement by her: Robinson v. Pickering, 16 Ch. D. 660, C. A.

Pending proceedings to recall probate, a bill lay to restrain the exors from getting in the outstanding personal estate, and for a receiver: Dimes v.

Steinberg, 2 Sm. & G. 75; and see Watkins v. Brent, 1 M. & Cr. 97; Baron de Feuchères v. Dawes, 5 Beav. 110; Newton v. Ricketts, 10 Beav. 527; and see Re Pawley and London and Prov. Bk., (1900) 1 Ch. 58.

Where one exor before probate was proceeding to dispose of the estate, the Prob. Div. gave the co-exor leave to issue a writ against him for an injunction and receiver: In the Goods of Moore, 13 P. D. 36; referring to Re Parker, Dearing v. Brooks, 54 L. J. Ch. 694, as showing that application was rightly made to the Prob. Div.

In a foreclosure action by an equitable mortgagee (entitled under contract to a conveyance when called for), the mortgagor was restrained from parting with the legal estate pendente lite: London and County Bank v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 490, C. A.; Speller v. S., 3 Sw. 556.

SECTION XX.—SALES.

1. Injunction against Sale in Redemption Action.

UPON motion &c.—Usual undertaking as to damages.—Let the Deft H., his solrs, auctioneers, and agents, continue to be restrained until after the — day of —, or until further order, from selling or offering for sale the piece of land situate &c.; And Let the said Deft H., be at liberty to sell the said premises if the amount due to him for principal, interest and costs, be not paid to him on or before the said — day of —.—Re Richardson, King v. Richardson, V.-C. M., 9 Mar. 1876, B. 765.

2. Staying Sale by first Mortgagee, on payment into Court by second Mortgagee—Account.

LET the Deft R., his solrs and agents, be restrained from selling or advertising for sale the life estate and interest of the Deft T. in the statement of claim mentioned, or from doing any act by which the same estate or interest may become vested in any other person on the faith of the security of the said R. of the 17th Dec. 1864, in the statement of claim mentioned, being a subsisting security, until &c.; And Let the Plt H. on or before &c., lodge in Court &c., to an account to be intituled “The claim of the Deft R. under the indenture of mortgage in the statement of claim mentioned dated &c.,” the sum of £1,200; And the Plt by his counsel admitting the due execution of the said indenture of mortgage;—Account of what is due to the Deft in respect of his mortgage without prejudice to the questions whether the £1,200 or any and what less sum was due at the date of the said indenture; and Deft to give credit for the rents and profits as mortgagee in possession.—Plt to pay Deft his costs of motion, to be taxed.—Liberty to apply.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 3.]—See Hoare v. Harvey, V.-C. W., 4 Dec. 1866, A. 2525.

For injunction in a redemption suit, until the hearing or further order (the right of Plt to redeem being in dispute), to restrain the mortgagee from transferring or assigning the mortgage securities, and from conveying away or otherwise dealing with the legal estate in the hereditaments comprised in the mortgage securities or parting with the title-deeds, see Rhodes v. Buckland, 16 Beav. 212, 219.

For injunction, on bill by judgment creditor, to restrain mortgagees who were about to sell under their power from paying the surplus to the mortgagor, see Thornton v. Finch, 4 Giff. 515.

For interim injunction to restrain a sale by mortgagee under a trust or power of sale, see Harding v. Tingey, M. R., 5 April, 1864, A. 550; S. C., 12 W. R. 684; 10 Jur. N. S. 872; 34 L. J. Ch. 13; 10 L. T. 323.

For injunction pending winding-up proceedings to restrain the sheriff from selling or remaining in possession of the co.'s effects until the hearing of the (winding-up) petition or further order, see Re The Stapleford Co., Ltd., V.-C. B., 15 Dec. 1875, B. 1899; S. C., W. N. (75) 256.

3. Sale by Trustees under depreciatory Conditions restrained.

UPON motion &c.—Let the Deft H. (purchaser), and his agents, be restrained from accepting any deed or deeds, grant, conveyance, or other assurance of the B. estate in the pleadings mentioned, or any part thereof, and from taking or holding any of the deeds or muniments of or relating to the said estate or any part thereof, and to restrain the Defts G. and W. (the trustees) from executing or delivering to the said H., or to any other person or persons on his behalf, any deed or deeds, grant, conveyance, or other assurance of the said B. estate, or any part thereof, and from delivering to the said H. or to any other person or persons on his behalf any deed or deeds, muniment or muniments of title, of or relating to the said estate or any part thereof; until &c.—Dance v. Goldingham, L. J., 13 June, 1873, A. 2219; 8 Ch. 902.

4. Sale of Securities restrained on payment of Money into Court.

UPON the appeal of the Plt from the order dated &c., and upon hearing counsel for the Plt and for the Deft, and the Plt by her counsel undertaking to lodge in Court on or before the — day of &c., as directed in the schedule hereto, £—; Let the Plt be at liberty to lodge the said £— in Court; And Let the Deft A. B. be restrained from selling or in any other manner parting or dealing until further order with any charges or securities held by him upon the life interest of the Plt, or any policy or policies on the life of the Plt or her husband, comprised in his charges and securities, or with any bill, note, judgment debt, or other securities on which the Deft alleges the Plt to be liable to him.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form No. 3.]—Macleod v. Jones, C. A., 17 July, 1883, B. 3793.

NOTES.

As a general rule a mortgagee will not be restrained from selling under his power of sale, provided he keeps within the terms of the power: Colson v. Williams, 58 L. J. Ch. 539; 61 L. T. 71; but this rule is subject to exceptions, and injunctions have been granted when the sale would be in breach of special contract, or fraudulent as against the mortgagor: Kerr, Injunctions, 524, 525; Fish. Mort. s. 743.

In general, an injunction restraining a sale will only be granted on payment into Court by mortgagor of the amount sworn by mortgagee to be due: Hill v. Kirkwood, 28 W. R. 358; unless it is manifest from the terms of the deed that such an amount cannot be due on the security: Hickson v. Darlow, 23 Ch. D. 690, C. A.; or the relation of solr and client subsisted between mortgagee and mortgagor at the time when the mortgage was made: Macleod v. Jones, 24 Ch. D. 289, C. A.

Cases in which injunctions have been granted are:

- where the mortgagee had not given notice to determine the trusts of a deed by which his power of sale was suspended: Gill v. Newton, 12 Jur. N. S. 220; secus, when it had been provided that the mortgagor's remedy, in the event of a sale without the stipulated notice, should be by action for damages: Prichard v. Wilson, 10 Jur. N. S. 330; 11 L. T. 437; 3 N. R. 350;
- when the sale was alleged to be in breach of trust; until Deft had put in his answer, or further order: Merest v. Murray, 14 L. T. 321;
- where a co. made an absolute sale to a mortgagee, and the validity of the sale was disputed by debenture holders: Hubbuck v. Helms, 56 L. J. Ch. 536; 56 L. T. 232; 35 W. R. 574;
- in an action by equitable mortgagee for sale and foreclosure, to restrain the mortgagee from parting with the legal estate pendente lite: London and County Bank v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 490, C. A.

And see Jenkins v. Jones, 2 Giff. 99, that on an actual tender at the time of sale of principal and interest the mortgagee ought not to proceed with the sale; and as to a bill of sale, Exp. Cotton, 11 Q. B. D. 301; secus, where there has been a mere offer unaccompanied by actual tender: see Kerr, 193 (citing Matthie v. Edwards, 16 L. J. Ch. 405; 11 Jur. 761).

And that a sale by a mortgagee cannot be impeached merely because he is a shareholder in the purchasing co., see Farrar v. Farrars, Ltd., 40 Ch. D. 395, C. A.

An injunction against the grantee of a bill of sale who is in uncontrolled possession will not be granted in favour of the trustee in the liquidation of the grantor on the mere suggestion that it is possible that the security may be impeached: Exp. Bayly, Re Went, 15 Ch. D. 223, C. A.

And see inf. Chap. XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

A Deft will be restrained from assigning the subject-matter of the action pending litigation: Powell v. Wright, 7 Beav. 444, 452; including an appeal: Dunn v. Flood, 28 Ch. D. 586, C. A.; 25 Ch. D. 629; Wilson v. Church, 11 Ch. D. 576; London and County Bank v. Lewis, sup.

Both the purchaser and the trustees (the vendors) will be restrained from completing a sale which from the improper and unnecessary character of the conditions of sale constitutes, as against the c. q. t., a breach of trust: Dance v. Goldingham, 8 Ch. 902, sup. Form 3; and see Rede v. Oakes, 4 D. J. & S. 505; Dunn v. Flood, sup.; Lewin, Trusts, 484, 1041; Dart, V. & P. 198, 1165; or if the conveyance has not been executed, and it is shown that by reason of the conditions the price is inadequate: Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 V. c. 53), s. 14.

Where a father's goods were seized in execution for his son's debt, and interpleader proceedings were pending, an action by the father against the sheriff for an injunction on the ground of trespass was held premature: Hilliard v. Hanson, 21 Ch. D. 69, C. A.; and that an action by a c. q. t. merely to restrain a sale by the sheriff will not lie since Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5), see Wright v. Redgrave, 11 Ch. D. 32, C. A.

SECTION XXI.—STAYING PROCEEDINGS IN FOREIGN COURTS.

1. Order to stay Proceedings in Holland.

LET the Deft E. H. be restrained from continuing or prosecuting the proceedings commenced by her in the Kingdom of the Netherlands, in respect of the moveable and immoveable estate of the testator, A. H.; and from commencing or prosecuting any proceedings in respect of the moveable or personal estate of the testator, either in the said Kingdom of the Netherlands or elsewhere, and from intermeddling with the said movable or personal estate of the testator, or any part thereof, whether in the said Kingdom of the Netherlands or elsewhere, and from obstructing, by legal proceedings or otherwise, or in any manner intermeddling with the said moveable or personal estate, or with any agent or agents of the exors of the testator in the said Kingdom of the Netherlands or elsewhere, or any person or persons having the custody or management of any part of the said moveable or personal estate, in respect to the management and disposition of the said moveable or personal estate, or any part thereof, or otherwise in relation thereto, until further order.—Plt's next friend to pay to the Deft E. H. her costs of this order and of a former order, such costs to be taxed.—Hope v. Carnegie, V.-C. S., 12 Jan. 1866, A. 76.

2. Order to stay Proceedings in Court of Session in Scotland.

UPON motion &c.—Let the Defts, the N. B. &c. Co., their solrs, advocates, writers, officers, or agents, be restrained until &c., from further prosecuting any proceedings in the Court of Session in Scotland against the Defts H. and B., and the Plt as co-exors of the will of D., which will involve taking the accounts of the admon of the said testator's estate. But this order is to be without prejudice to the said Defts, the N. B. &c. Co., taking or prosecuting any proceedings for the purpose of establishing their right or title to a charge upon the amount, which, upon taking the accounts prayed by the Plt's (bill) in this cause, shall be found to be due to the Deft H. S. B. in respect of his moiety of the residuary estate of the said D., and without prejudice to any question of priority between the said Defts and the Plt.—Baillie v. B., V.-C. M., 3 Dec. 1867, A. 2766.

For order restraining proceedings in Demerara as to property there, on undertaking by Plt to be bound by any order which this Court might make with respect to those proceedings, see Bunbury v. B., 1 Beav. 336.

For order staying suits in Berbice and Essequibo, see Bromwell v. Parr, M. R., 15 Jan. 1810, A. 165.

For order staying proceedings on a bill of foreclosure in the Jamaica Court of Chancery, filed after a decree in the Court of Chancery, directing inquiries as to what was due on the mortgage debt, see Beckford v. Kemble, 1 S. & S. 7.

For similar orders to restrain proceedings in the Courts of Ireland and Scotland, see Harrison v. Gurney, 2 J. & W. 563; Bushby v. Munday, 5

Madd. 297; and in Ireland against executors, pending admon proceedings in this country: Eustace v. Lloyd, 35 L. T. 900; 25 W. R. 211.

For order restraining proceedings in the Court of Session by a Plt in respect of the same demand for which he had obtained a decree in this country, except for the purpose of procuring security for what might be found due to Plt, see Wedderburn v. W., 4 M. & Cr. 585; 2 Beav. 208.

For order staying a creditor from proceedings in an action in Scotland, commenced by him in ignorance of an admon decree in this country, under which his claim was in course of investigation, see Graham v. Maxwell, 1 Mac. & G. 71.

For orders in bankruptcy restraining actions against a bankrupt or liquidating debtor in foreign Courts, see Exp. Ormiston, 24 L. T. 197; Exp. Tait, 13 Eq. 311.

For order giving leave to Scotch landlord to proceed with sequestration to enforce his hypothec against the property of a company in liquidation, unless sufficient security was given for the rent of the current year, including a period previous to the winding-up, on terms of the landlord paying the costs of the motion (the Court being of opinion that the hypothec gave a security on the goods on the premises), see Re Wanzer, (1891) 1 Ch. 305.

NOTES.

JURISDICTION GENERALLY.

The principles upon which Courts of Equity, by the exercise of jurisdiction in personam (and not by any interference with the action of the foreign tribunal: London, &c. Bank v. Strutton, 18 W. R. 107; L. Cranstown v. Johnston, 3 Ves. 182; 5 Ves. 277; and see Exp. Tait, 13 Eq. 311), have restrained persons within the jurisdiction from improperly or vexatiously instituting or prosecuting proceedings in foreign Courts to determine questions which ought to be adjudicated upon in this country, are discussed and illustrated in Carron Co. v. Maclaren, 5 H. L. C. 416; L. Portarlington v. Soulby, 3 M. & K. 104; Venning v. Lloyd, 1 D. F. & J. 193; McHenry v. Lewis, 22 Ch. D. 397, C. A.; Mercantile Inv. &c. Co. v. River Plate, &c. Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 303; Kerr, 577, &c.; Dan. 1332 et seq.

For cases in which after a decree in this country injunctions have been granted against the prosecution of proceedings in foreign Courts, see Hope v. Carnegie, 1 Ch. 320; Beckford v. Kemble, 1 Sim. & S. 7; Harrison v. Gurney, 2 J. & W. 563; Wedderburn v. W., 4 M. & Cr. 585; 2 Beav. 208; Graham v. Maxwell, 1 Mac. & G. 71; Booth v. Leycester, 1 Ke. 579; 3 M. & Cr. 459 (against prosecuting a suit in Ireland after a decree in this country refusing relief in respect of the same subject-matter).

In order that proceedings in a foreign suit may be restrained there must be some equity to justify the application; mere hardship or inconvenience is not enough: Fletcher v. Rodgers, 27 W. R. 96; and see Moor v. Anglo-Ital. Bk., 10 Ch. D. 681.

Although an admon judgment has been obtained in this country, foreign creditors will not be restrained from proceeding in a foreign Court against the adnor: Re Boyse, Crofton v. C., 15 Ch. D. 591; Carron Co. v. Maclaren, 5 H. L. C. 416.

Even though a decree had not been obtained, where the relief would be more complete, or the question more conveniently tried in this country, or the subject-matter of the suit must be governed by the rules of English law, prosecution of the foreign action has been restrained on terms: see Bushby v. Munday, 5 Madd. 297; Baillie v. B., 5 Eq. 175; Bunbury v. B., 1 Beav. 336; Cood v. C., 33 Beav. 314; but quære whether this could be done as against a Deft who before decree has no control in the action: Hyman v. Helm, 24 Ch. D. 531, 540, C. A., per Cotton, L. J.

If the injunction would be ineffectual (see Re Chapman, 15 Eq. 75), or if from the questions of foreign law involved, or from other reasons, the matter can be more conveniently tried in the foreign Court, the proceedings there will not be restrained: see Elliott v. L. Minto, 6 Madd. 16 (where the cause was directed to stand over until the result of the Scotch proceedings should have been determined); Jones v. Geddes, 1 Ph. 724; Venning v. Lloyd, 1 D. F.

& J. 193; Liverpool, &c. Co. v. Hunter, 4 Eq. 68; S. C., 3 Ch. 479; Re Maudslay, Sons & Field, (1900) 1 Ch. 602; and pending the foreign litigation the English action may be stayed: Transatlantic Co. v. Pietroni, Joh. 604; or direction of accounts in a creditor's action postponed with leave to the representative to take proceedings in a foreign Court to ascertain the amount due: Batthyany v. Walford, 36 Ch. D. 269, C. A.; or the Plt in the English proceedings put to elect in which Court he will proceed: Pieters v. Thompson, G. Coop. 294; but in order that the Plt may be put to election, the Deft must show a case of actual vexation, and that there is no necessity for harassing him by a double litigation: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Bockwoldt, 23 Ch. D. 225, C. A.; McHenry v. Lewis, 22 Ch. D. 397, C. A.; and a fortiori, the Plt applying as against the Deft, see Hyman v. Helm, 24 Ch. D. 531, 540, C. A.; see also The Mali Ivo, L. R. 2 A. & E. 356, that if it is established that there is a lis alibi pendens before a (foreign) Court which can afford a complete remedy, whether the proceedings are in rem or in personam, the proceedings in the English tribunal will be suspended, or the parties put to their election; and a Plt who has commenced actions in a foreign (Irish) and in the English Admiralty Court will not be allowed to proceed with the English until he has actually abandoned the foreign action: The Catterina Chiazzare, 1 P. D. 368; The Delta, 1 P. D. 393; and where in a foreign action in rem against a ship, the ship is released on bail given or on a guarantee inter partes, an arrest of the ship in an action by the same Plts in this country is contrary to good faith, and such action may be stayed: The Christiansborg, 10 P. D. 141, C. A.

A plea of judgment recovered in an action in a foreign (consular) Court, and payment by the Deft of the amount, is a bar to an action for the same debt in this country: Barber v. Lamb, 8 C. B. N. S. 95.

On the other hand, the mere pendency of proceedings between the parties for the same cause of action in a foreign Court, where the remedies and forms of procedure are different, is not, where there are substantial reasons for bringing actions in each country, a ground for putting Plt to his election whether he will proceed with the English or the foreign action, or for staying proceedings here: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Bockwoldt, 23 Ch. D. 225, C. A.; Hyman v. Helm, 24 Ch. D. 531, C. A.; McHenry v. Lewis, 22 Ch. D. 397, C. A.; 21 Ch. D. 202; The Christiansborg, 10 P. D. 141, 148, 153, C. A.; and see Wilson v. Ferrand, 13 Eq. 362; Cox v. Mitchell, 7 C. B. N. S. 55.

Where, as in the case of a colonial Court, an appeal lies to this country, the Court of Chancery declined to suspend the operation of the colonial decree pending the appeal: Henderson v. H., 3 Ha. 100. But semble that relief would be granted if the proceedings sought to be restrained were in a foreign Court from which there was no appeal to this country: S. C., 3 Ha. 118.

LEX FORI AND LEX LOCI.

On the principle that locus regit actum, the lex fori applies to the form of remedy and the order of judicial proceedings, not to the substance of the proceeding, which is governed by the lex loci: see Cope v. Doherty, 4 K. & J. 367; Smith v. Weguelin, 8 Eq. 198; Re Marseilles Ry. Co., Smallpage's case, 30 Ch. D. 598; Lloyd v. Guibert, L. R. 1 Q. B. 115; and cases cited in notes to Mostyn v. Fabrigas, 1 Sm. L. C. 658; Jacobs v. Crédit Lyonnais, 12 Q. B. D. 589, C. A.; and see Hamlyn & Co. v. Talisker Distillery, (1894) A. C. 202; South African Breweries, Ltd., v. King, (1900) 1 Ch. 273, C. A.; (1899) 2 Ch. 173; Royal Exchange Ass. Corp. v. Vega, 70 L. J. K. B. 874; but the Court will look at all the circumstances to ascertain by the law of which country the parties intended to be bound, and will enforce the contract accordingly, unless contra bonos mores, or forbidden by positive law: Re Missouri Steamship Co., 24 Ch. D. 321, C. A.; Rousillon v. R., 14 Ch. D. 351; and see Ashbury v. Ellis, (1893) A. C. 339, 344.

That the English Courts will not recognize a state of disability unknown to our law, see Worms v. De Valder, 49 L. J. Ch. 261.

A foreigner resident abroad cannot sue another foreigner in this country in respect of a contract relating to foreign property: Matthaei v. Galúzin, 18 Eq. 340; and it is a valid plea to the jurisdiction that the contract in respect of which the suit was brought was for the sale of land in Ireland, and entered into in France between Plt, who resided in France, and Deft, who resided in Ireland: Blake v. B., 18 W. R. 944.

But these cases must be taken subject to the rule that where a person against whom relief is sought is within the jurisdiction, Courts of Equity acting in personam could make a decree respecting property situated out of the jurisdiction: see Penn v. L. Baltimore, 2 L. C. Eq. 923, 939; Paget v. Ede, 18 Eq. 118, and cases there cited.

And foreclosure has been decreed of an English mortgage of foreign land, the foreclosure being treated as merely an extinction of the right to redeem: Toller v. Carteret, 2 Vern. 494; Paget v. Ede, 18 Eq. 118; Colyer v. Finch, 5 H. L. C. 915; but there is no jurisdiction to decide a dispute as to title depending on foreign law as to immoveables, although all the parties are resident here: Re Hawthorne, Graham v. Massey, 23 Ch. D. 743; or to entertain an action for damages in respect of trespass to land situated in a foreign country: Companhia de Moçambique v. British South Africa Co., (1893) A. C. 602, H. L. (reversing C. A. (1892), 2 Q. B. 358, and restoring Div. Court, (1892), 2 Q. B. 358).

JUDGMENT OF FOREIGN TRIBUNAL.

The judgments and procedure of foreign tribunals will be recognized in this country: Wright v. Simpson, 6 Ves. 714; Story, Conf. Laws, 331—337; Rousillon v. R., 14 Ch. D. 351 (where the principles are considered); and the final judgment or decree of a foreign Court of competent jurisdiction will be acted upon, notwithstanding irregularity of procedure, provided the proceedings do not offend against English views of substantial justice: Pemberton v. Hughes, (1899) 1 Ch. 781, C. A. (foreign decree in undefended divorce proceedings); but if there is error apparent on the face of the foreign judgment, by the adoption of a course of procedure inconsistent with natural justice, or by disregard of the lex loci contractus, it is examinable here, and may be disregarded: Simpson v. Fogo, 1 J. & H. 18; and this principle will, it appears, be also applied to a foreign judgment in rem: S. C., 1 H. & M. 195; and fraud of the Plt is a good defence, though not capable of proof without re-trying the case: Vadala v. Lawes, 25 Q. B. D. 310, C. A.; Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 10 Q. B. D. 295, C. A.

And for the limits and extent of this jurisdiction, see Liverpool, &c. Co. v. Hunter, 4 Eq. 62; 3 Ch. 479; Re Trufort, Trafford v. Blanc, 36 Ch. D. 600; Re Maudslay, Sons & Field, (1900) 1 Ch. 602.

An order of a foreign Court will not be enforced by the Courts of this country unless it is final and conclusive: Nouvion v. Freeman, 15 App. Ca. 1; 37 Ch. D. 245, C. A.; Paul v. Roy, 15 Beav. 433; and see Norris v. Chambres, 29 Beav. 246; 1 D. F. & J. 881.

SECTION XXII.—DISCHARGING, CONTINUING, AND GRANTING, OR MAKING PERPETUAL, INJUNCTIONS.

1. Injunction discharged or continued on Motion.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Deft [If Plt appears, and upon hearing counsel for the Plt], and upon reading the order dated &c. [Enter affidavits and answers, if any, and if Plt does not appear, an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the Plt], This Court doth order that so much of the said order dated &c. as restrains &c., be discharged [or be continued until judgment in this action, or until further order].

For form of notice of motion, see D. O. F. 835.

2. Continuing Interim Order on Terms.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c. [Recite interim order]. Now upon motion &c. made unto this Court on the — day of — for an injunction, and upon hearing &c., and reading &c., and the Defts by their counsel undertaking not to do anything contrary to the terms of the said notice of motion for an injunction in the meantime, and the Plt continuing his undertaking as to damages contained in the said order dated &c., It was ordered that the said motion should stand over till this day; And upon motion for an injunction this day made unto this Court by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, and upon reading &c., and the Plt continuing his undertaking contained in the said order,—This Court doth order that the said order, dated &c., be continued until judgment in this action.—See Crossman v. Bristol and S. W. Ry., V.-C. W., 23 July, 1863, A. 1693.

3. Injunction made perpetual as to Copyright.

LET the injunction against the Defts, their servants, agents, or workmen, printing, publishing, or vending a book, comedy, or farce, called &c., or any part thereof, be made perpetual; And the Plt (by his counsel) waiving the account prayed by the statement of claim, this Court doth not think fit to direct any account.—Defts to pay Plt his costs of action.

4. Perpetual Injunction as to specific Acts complained of, on Submission of Defts, without Prejudice to future Rights.

“THE Defts submitting &c., without prejudice to the right or position of the Plts or Defts respectively as regards the application to Parliament now pending on behalf of the Defts, Let the Defts &c. be perpetually restrained from executing any works upon the foreshore &c., or any part thereof, which by the (bill) it is alleged the Defts have executed or threatened to execute; And Let the Defts forthwith pull down and remove all works executed by them upon the foreshore &c., or any part thereof as aforesaid.”—Direction for taxation and payment by the Defts of the costs of suit.—A. G. v. Boyle, V.-C. W., 22 Jan. 1864, A. 313; 10 Jur. N. S. 309, altered to suit Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 438, C. A. [Form 10, p. 565].

5. Judgment establishing Right to Oyster Fishery and quieting in Possession, with Perpetual Injunction.

UPON motion, proof of title, and affidavit of service on the Defts; Declare that the Plt and his assigns, and every other the person or persons claiming or to claim under or by virtue of the will of &c., is and are entitled to the exclusive right to use the piece or parcel of ground (land), part of the soil or bed of the Straits of M—, lying and being between &c., and the water or waters covering the same, as beds or a bed for oysters or oyster spat, and to put down and replace, and to dredge, take, and carry away oyster spat and oysters therefrom; And adjudge that the Plt be quieted in the exclusive possession of the oyster fishery or oyster fisheries situate, lying, and being upon or within the said piece or parcel of ground (land), or the water or waters covering the same; And Let the Defts J., K. &c., and each and every of them, their and each and every of their agents, servants, and workmen, be perpetually restrained from using the said piece or parcel of ground (land), water or waters, and every part thereof, as beds or a bed for oyster spat or oysters, and from putting down, or dredging, taking and carrying away any oyster spat and oysters thereupon or therefrom, and from moving or in any manner disturbing the oyster spat or oysters now or at any time lying and being upon or within the said piece of ground (land), water or waters, and from interfering with or in any way hindering the enjoyment, use, or occupation by the Plt and his assigns, and every other the person or persons claiming or to claim under or by virtue of the said will of the said &c., of the said piece or parcel of ground (land), and the water or waters covering the same, as an oyster bed or oyster fishery.—Bulkeley v. Jones, M. R., 23 July, 1856, A. 1560.

For declaration that Plts were entitled against the Deft to the benefit of the decree dated, &c., made in the cause in the pleadings mentioned, establishing their right to toll on coals; with a perpetual injunction to restrain the Deft from disputing, denying, putting in issue, or calling in question in, by, or at, or upon the occasion of the trial of the action in the pleadings mentioned, or any other action, suit, or proceeding whatsoever, the right of the Plts, as owners of —, to demand and receive toll, &c.; but without prejudice to any other question which the said Deft might or ought to be at liberty to raise by or at the trial of the said action, &c., according to his pleadings therein, and the due course of law in that behalf; and Deft to pay Plts' costs of suit, see Corp. of Rochester v. Owlett, V.-C. S., 24 Feb. 1853, B. 469; and see Corp. of Rochester v. Lee, 2 D. M. & G. 427, where Plts' right had been established on an issue.

NOTES.

DISCHARGING INJUNCTION.

An application to discharge an injunction must be by motion on notice; and an injunction until answer "or further order" was not ipso facto dissolved by putting in a sufficient answer: Ooddeen v. Oakley, 2 D. F. & J. 158; and see Mollett v. Enequist (2), 26 Beav. 467.

An application by a stranger to the suit who is injuriously affected, might, it seems, be properly made by petition: Bourbaud v. B., 12 W. R. 1024; 10 L. T. 781.

Pending a motion for production of documents, the Court refused to hear a motion to dissolve an ex parte injunction: Storer v. Jackson, 12 Sim. 503.

Upon motion to dissolve, a new injunction in terms different from those originally prayed cannot be granted: Burdett v. Hay, 4 D. J. & S. 41.

For forms of notice of motion, see D. C. F. 835.

As already stated (sup. p. 525), on applications ex parte for injunctions, there must be uberrima fides; and injunctions obtained ex parte on misrepresentation, suppression of, or omission to bring forward material facts, will on that ground, without reference to merits, be discharged: Hilton v. E. Granville,

4 Beav. 130; Dalglish v. Jarvie, 2 Mac. & G. 236; Wood v. W., 10 Eq. 193, 207; even where Plt swore that he was not aware of the importance of, or forgot, the facts misstated, concealed, or omitted: Dalglish v. Jarvie, sup.; Clifton v. Robinson, 16 Beav. 355; Sheard v. Webb, 2 W. R. 343; and see Thorpe v. Hughes, 3 My. & C. 742; White v. Steinwacks, 19 Ves. 83; Brown v. Newall, 2 My. & C. 558.

And this rule has been applied when the cause in which the ex parte injunction was thus improperly obtained had been transferred to another branch of the Court: Sturgeon v. Hooker, 1 D. & S. 484; or where the injunction had been granted by the L. C. in vacation, with leave to move before a V.-C. to dissolve it: Pinchin v. L. & Bl. Ry., 5 D. M. & G. 851.

Where an ex parte injunction has been dissolved on the ground of concealment or suppression of material facts, the Plt may again apply for an injunction on the merits: Fitch v. Rochfort, 18 L. J. Ch. 458; Joyce, 1267; and where on motion for an injunction or, in the alternative, to continue an interim order, it appears that the interim order was obtained by suppression, the Court may discharge the ex parte order, though there is no cross notice of motion, and, upon evidence, grant the injunction asked for: Boyce v. Gill, W. N. (91) 108; 64 L. T. 824.

A solr who in applying for an ex parte injunction suppressed a fact which he thought immaterial, but which in the result rendered the undertaking in damages worthless, was held personally liable both in costs and under the undertaking: Schmitten v. Faulks, W. N. (93) 64.

A motion to discharge an ex parte injunction as having been obtained by misrepresentation, may be properly made, though the injunction is about to expire: Wimbledon Local Bd. v. Croydon San. Authority, 32 Ch. D. 421, C. A.

An ex parte injunction, granted on an undertaking to amend the writ which was not fulfilled, was dissolved on motion: Spanish Agency v. Spanish Corporation, W. N. (90) 158; 63 L. T. 161.

On dismissal of the action, the injunction is dissolved: Green v. Pulsford, 2 Beav. 75; as also, formerly, on allowance of a demurrer, even with leave to amend: Schneider v. Lizardi, 9 Beav. 461, 468; and see Harding v. Tingey, 10 Jur. N. S. 873; 34 L. J. Ch. 13; 10 L. T. 323; 12 W. R. 817.

The bankruptcy of a sole Plt did not dissolve an injunction previously obtained, but the Deft might apply to have the bill dismissed without costs if the trustee did not adopt the suit within a reasonable time; if this were not done, the injunction would be dissolved: Joyce, 1275; Robson, 595.

An injunction granted on the merits was not in general dissolved by a subsequent amendment of the bill, though the amendment was made without expressly saving the injunction: Harvey v. Hall, 11 Eq. 31; unless the record was changed, e.g., by adding a Plt: A. G. v. Marsh, 16 Sim. 572; or the equity on which the injunction was obtained was displaced or materially altered by the amendment: Kerr, 635.

And though it has been the common practice, it is not necessary for the order giving leave to amend to state that the amendment is made "without prejudice to the injunction": Warburton v. L. & Bl. Ry., 2 Beav. 253; and see Pickering v. Hanson, 2 Sim. 488; Pratt v. Archer, 1 S. & S. 433.

For cases in which an injunction has been granted, with leave to apply to dissolve if circumstances should occur to make its continuance unreasonable, see Ecc. Commrs v. Kino, 14 Ch. D. 213, C. A.; or upon the rendering of an account directed by the order: Macleod v. Jones, 24 Ch. D. 289, C. A.

Delay and acquiescence in an injunction may deprive a Deft of his right to dissolve: Glascott v. Lang, 3 M. & Cr. 451; 2 Ph. 310; Feistel v. King's Coll., Camb., 10 Beav. 491; Bell v. Hull & Selby Ry., 1 Ry. Ca. 616; Gordon v. Chelt. Ry., 5 Beav. 229.

A motion to dissolve was not allowed to stand over to enable Plt to cross-examine Deft's witnesses: Normanville v. Stanning, 10 Ha. xx.; and see Morg. 185.

As to the costs of a motion to discharge an injunction, which, as in all proceedings in the High Court, are, by O. LXV, 1, now in the discretion of the Court, see Norton v. Nichols, 4 K. & J. 475; Spottiswoode v. Clarke, 2 Ph. 154; Cory v. Yarmouth Ry., 3 Ha. 593; Dan. 1371.

PERPETUAL INJUNCTIONS.

Injunctions are made perpetual at the trial for the purpose of protecting the Plt when his right has been established in the action by putting an end to harassing and vexatious litigation, and preventing the continuance or repetition of illegal and unauthorized acts; or wherever this form of injunction is applicable to the nature of the relief to which the Plt may be entitled: Kerr, 132; Dan. 1373; Joyce, 1315.

Perpetual injunctions have been granted—

- against “setting up a legal estate to overturn a decree for performance of trusts”: see Askew v. Poulterers’ Co., 2 Vez. 89; Acherley v. Vernon, 2 Eq. Ca. Ab. 527;
- against repeated litigation of the same question at law: see E. Bath v. Sherwin, Prec. Ch. 261; 4 Bro. P. C. 373;
- to prevent multiplicity of suits in equity in respect of the same subject-matter: see Sheffield Waterworks v. Yeomans, 2 Ch. 8; Weale v. W. Middlesex Co., 1 J. & W. 358; Ellis v. D. of Bedford, (1899) 1 Ch. 494, C. A., sup. p. 600;
- to quiet possession after verdict, and account of mesne profits: Edwin v. Morris, L. C., 25 Jan. 1747, A. 217; Allen v. Donnelly, 5 Ir. Ch. 236;
- against disturbing any person nominated to an incumbency pursuant to the right established by verdict, and staying further proceedings in prohibition: Hodgson v. Benison, L. C., 31 Jan. 1747, A. 310; and see sup. Form 1, p. 721.

Injunctions have also been made perpetual at the hearing to prevent the repetition of acts for which the Deft has no legal authority, as—

- in copyright cases: see Macklin v. Richardson, sup.; Delfe v. Delamotte, 3 K. & J. 584;
- and in trade mark cases: see Cartier v. Carlile, 31 Beav. 292; Collins Co. v. Walker, 7 W. R. 222; Henderson v. Jorss, sup., Sect. VI., Form 5, p. 624;
- in cases of threatened acts of trespass and spoliation in assertion of an alleged right to property: see Lowndes v. Bettie, 12 W. R. 399; Re Davies, 21 Q. B. D. 241.

And see on this head of equitable relief, Kerr, 132—136; Joyce, 1317; and for further instances, see this chapter, passim.

As a general rule, the injunction cannot be made perpetual except at the trial: see Day v. Snee, 3 V. & B. 170; but it may be done on motion by consent: Morrell v. Pearson, 12 Beav. 284; and in Hume v. Beale, 31 Jan. 1838, MSS., the only object of the suit being an injunction, the Court, at Deft’s instance, made it perpetual, and stayed all further proceedings in the cause on payment of Plt’s costs of suit, though Plt opposed the motion.

A perpetual injunction was not granted in aid of a legal right, unless clear, except by consent, before trial at law: Mayor of Cardiff v. C. W. Co., 4 D. & J. 596; and see this question discussed in A. G. v. Boyle, 10 Jur. N. S. 309; 10 L. T. 290; 12 W. R. 368; sup., Form 4, p. 740.

The fact that the injunction has been acquiesced in, without repetition of the acts complained of, is no objection to the injunction being made perpetual at the hearing: D. Beaufort v. Morris, 6 Ha. 340, 350.

SECTION XXIII.—BREACH OF INJUNCTION.

1. Committal or Attachment for breach of Injunction—O. XLII, 7.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c. [recite order for injunction], Now upon motion &c., and upon [if the Deft appears, hearing counsel for the Deft and] reading [if the Deft does not appear, an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the Deft] the said order, the affidavit of &c. [enter evidence]; And this Court being of opinion, upon consideration of the facts disclosed by the said affidavit of &c. [or the said affidavits], that the said Deft has been guilty of a contempt of this Court by a breach of the said injunction, doth order that the said Deft A. do stand committed to Holloway prison for his said contempt [or that the Plt A. be at liberty to issue a writ of attachment against the Deft B. for his said contempt].

The order for committal for breach of an injunction should state the affidavit of service of the injunction or restraining order, and either the affidavit of service of notice of motion to commit, or the appearance of counsel for the Deft on that motion: Stephens v. Workman, 11 W. R. 503; 8 L. T. 232; Gooch v. Marshall, 8 W. R. 410.

Since Re Van Sandau, 1 Ph. 605, it is usual to insert in the order an express adjudication on the contempt, as held the better form in a case of special contempt; but such adjudication is not essential: S. C.; and for orders not containing any, see Wilson v. Colson, L. C., 26 Sept. 1850, B. 1210; Truefitt v. Umpieby, V.-C. K. B., 3 July, 1851, A. 894; Belt v. Hustwick, V.-C., 12 July, 1815, A. 1165.

For order to show cause against committal for breach of injunction, see Blanchard v. Cawthorne, 6 Sim. 156.

And for committal for breach, both sides appearing, see St. John's Coll. v. Carter, V.-C., 8 Feb. 1839, B. 173; 4 M. & C. 497.

2. Order for Committal for various Periods of Persons disobeying Injunction.

WHEREAS by the order dated, 15 July, 1896, it was ordered that the Deft G. P., his undertenants, agents, and servants, should be perpetually restrained from doing, or suffering to be done anything which might interfere with the full and quiet enjoyment by the Plt Wm. Seaward, or his undertenants of the premises in the order mentioned; Now upon motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon hearing counsel for E. M., hereinafter named, and G. S. hereinafter named in person, no one appearing for the Deft, although he was duly served with notice of such motion as by affidavit appears, and upon reading the said order, the following affidavits &c. [enter evidence], an affidavit of &c. being an affidavit of service of the said order on the Deft; This Court being of opinion, upon consideration of the facts disclosed by the evidence aforesaid, that the Deft and the said G. S. have been guilty of a contempt of this Court by a breach of the said injunction, and that the said E. M. has been also guilty of a contempt of this Court in aiding and abetting in such breach; Doth order that the Deft G. P. and the said G. S., and the said E. M., do stand committed to Holloway prison for the said contempt for the following periods, the Deft and the said E. M. for one calendar month and the said G. S. for fourteen days. Deft and the said G. S. and E. M. to pay to the Plts their costs of this motion, to be taxed by the taxing master.—Seaward v. Paterson, North, J., 9 Feb. 1897, A. 464; S. C., C. A. 16 Feb. 1897; (1897) 1 Ch. 545.

3. Order condoning Contempt—Deft paying Costs of Motion.

THIS Court being of opinion that the Defts have committed (been guilty of a contempt of this Court by) a breach of the said injunction, doth order that the Defts, the Mayor &c., do pay unto the Plts their costs of this motion, to be taxed &c. (but at the suggestion of the Plts' counsel this Court doth not make any further order thereon).—Bigg v. Mayor, &c. of London, V.-C. B., 17 Nov. 1870, A. 2828; and see Witt v. Corcoran, V.-C. B., 12 Nov. 1875, B. 1798; 2 Ch. D. 69.

4. Sequestration against Local Board for Breach of Injunction.

RECITAL as in Form 1.—“And this Court being of opinion, upon consideration of the facts disclosed by the said affidavits, that the Local Board of Health of L—, in the county of &c., have been guilty of a contempt of this Court by a breach of the said injunction, doth order that a commission of sequestration do issue directed to certain commrs to be therein named to sequester the personal estate, and the rents, issues, and profits of the real estate of the said Local Board of Health of &c., until the further order of this Court.”—Deft W., as the clerk of the said Local Board, to pay Plt's costs of the application.—Heath v. Wallington, V.-C. W., 17 Jan. 1867, A. 210.

In this case the local board were sued by their clerk, as public officer, and were not named as the Defts in the record.

For similar order, see Spokes v. Banbury Board of Health, V.-C. W., 25 Nov. 1865, B. 2452; 1 Eq. 42. In this case the local board were made Defts, and the bill had before the hearing been dismissed against the clerk.

See also Goldsmid v. Tunbridge Wells Commrs, M. R., 1 Aug. 1867, A. 2538.

5. Sequestration against Railway Company for breach of Undertaking.

WHEREAS by an order &c., the Defts, the M. &c. Co. by their counsel, undertaking &c. (recite the order); Now, upon motion this day made &c., who alleged that it appears by the affidavit of &c., that the Defts have not complied with their said undertaking, by permitting the Plts to use their said railway and conveniences connected therewith from C. to S., and upon hearing counsel for the Defts, and reading the said affidavits and the affidavit of &c.; And this Court being of opinion that the Defts, the M. &c. Co., have committed (been guilty of) a contempt of this Court in not complying with their said undertaking to &c. in the said order dated &c. mentioned, doth order that a commission of sequestration do issue &c. [Form 3].—G. N. Ry. v. Manchester Ry., V.-C. K. B., 19 July, 1850; Aug. 1850, Order varied, A. 1153, 1778, 1785.

See also A.-G. v. G. N. Ry., V.-C. K. B., 12 Nov. 1850, 4 D. & S. 89; and for further order on appeal, on Deft undertaking and paying Plt's costs, to stay proceedings, except to enforce the undertaking and payment of the costs, Ib. 96.

NOTES.

By O. XLII, 7, "a judgment requiring any person to do any act other than the payment of money, or to abstain from doing anything, may be enforced by writ of attachment or committal;" and by r. 24, "every order of the Court or a Judge in any cause or matter may be enforced against all persons bound thereby in the same manner as a judgment to the same effect."

An order for an injunction or interim restraining order must be implicitly obeyed: Harding v. Tingey, 12 W. R. 684; 34 L. J. Ch. 13; 10 Jur. N. S. 872; 10 L. T. 323; Daw v. Eley, 1 Eq. 42; even though the order may not have issued regularly, in which case the party affected should move to discharge it: Robinson v. L. Byron, Woodward v. King, 2 Dick. 703, 797; 3 Swa. 626; or, in the case of a writ of prohibition, have been improvidently issued: Iveson v. Harris, 7 Ves. 255.

It is open to the party charged with breach of an injunction to show that the order is no longer in force, e.g., by the determination of a patent in restraint of a breach of which the injunction was granted: see Daw v. Eley, 3 Eq. 496.

If the injunction goes beyond the terms in which others have been granted, or the reach of the principle, the party should apply to the Court to alter the terms: see M. Downshire v. L. Sandys, 6 Ves. 109.

But on application against persons guilty of a breach, the Court gives them the benefit of the fact that the order should not have been made: Drewry v. Thacker, 3 Swa. 546; Partington v. Booth, 3 Mer. 149.

It must be conclusively shown on a motion to commit that there has been an actual breach of the order: Mann v. Stephens, 15 Sim. 377; Dawson v. Paver, 5 Ha. 415, 424.

And see Daugars v. Rivaz, W. N. (66) 301; 14 L. T. 348; 15 L. T. 196.

To constitute a breach of the injunction it is not necessary that the order should be actually served; service of the signed minutes is sufficient, or even notice in writing, but the order should be served as soon as it can be obtained: see sup. p. 523. But there must be no delay in drawing up the order: Bateman v. Wiatt, 11 Beav. 587; and see Joyce, 1325.

Notice by telegram that the order has been made is sufficient: Re Bryant, 4 Ch. D. 98; The Seraglio, 10 P. D. 120; but in order to fix with contempt a person disregarding such a notice, it must be shown beyond reasonable doubt that he had, in fact, notice of the order: Exp. Langley, 13 Ch. D. 110; United Telephone Co. v. Dale, 25 Ch. D. 788; and if his bonâ fide belief that no injunction has been granted is not, in the circumstances, unreasonable, he will not be committed for breach: Exp. Langley, sup.

A person committing a breach of an undertaking is liable to be punished in the same way (by committal, or by payment of the costs occasioned by his breach) as if he had committed a breach of an injunction: L. & Birm. Ry. v. Grand Junction Canal Co., 1 Ry. Ca. 224; Lawford v. Spicer, 2 Jur. N. S. 564; G. N. Ry. v. Manchester Ry., sup. Form 5, p. 745; Neath Canal Co. v. Ynisarwed Resolven Co., 10 Ch. 450; Callow v. Young, 56 L. J. Ch. 690; 55 L. T. 543.

Undertakings, whether positive or negative, are to be enforced by committal, and not by attachment (notwithstanding Halford v. Hardy, W. N. (99) 243; 81 L. T. 721); service of the order embodying the undertaking is not necessary: D. v. A. & Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 484.

The Court refused to enforce that part of an undertaking which had been given by mistake: Mullins v. Howell, 11 Ch. D. 763; and see Scott v. Moxon, 81 L. T. 774.

As to enforcing an undertaking by a solr given out of Court, see Re Woodfin and Wray, 51 L. J. Ch. 427; 30 W. R. 422; and as to the nature of an undertaking by solr to enter an appearance, and that an application for attachment for breach should be intitled in the matter of the solr, see Re Kerly, Son & Verden, (1901) 1 Ch. 467, C. A.

An undertaking to make a road was enforced by giving the other party liberty to do the work, and apply to the Court for repayment of the expense: Mortimer v. Wilson, 31 W. R. 927.

In practice an actual committal is seldom pressed for or directed, the more usual order being that Deft do pay the costs of the application: see Form 3, p. 745.

And, à fortiori, when the breach is not wilful, the parties will not be committed, but be ordered to pay costs: Bullen v. Ovey, 16 Ves. 144; Leonard v. Attwell, 17 Ves. 386; and so when the injunction issued irregularly: Partington v. Booth, 3 Mer. 149; Drewry v. Thacker, 3 Swa. 546; or the Deft has taken some steps to put himself in the right: Cornish v. Upton, 4 L. T. 862; but motions to commit for the mere purpose of obtaining an apology and costs will not be encouraged: Plating Co. v. Farquharson, 17 Ch. D. 49; and see Re Martindale, (1894) 3 Ch. 193, ante, pp. 466, 467.

Deft is entitled to appeal from such an order, which is virtually a decision against him on the merits, and not an order as to costs only within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 49: Witt v. Corcoran, 2 Ch. D. 69; Stevens v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., 29 Ch. D. 60.

And an appeal lies from a refusal to commit for contempt: Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493, C. A.; explaining Ashworth v. Outram (No. 2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.

A party enjoined from doing a certain act, who is afterwards present aiding and abetting it when done, acts in breach of the injunction: St. John's Coll. v. Carter, 4 M. & Cr. 497.

Though an injunction does not embrace "servants and agents," if an agent knowingly aids in the breach, he may be committed for contempt, as obstructing the course of justice: L. Wellesley v. E. Mornington, 11 Beav. 180, 181; Smith-Barry v. Dawson, 27 L. R. Ir. 558; although not a party to the action: Seaward v. Paterson, (1897) 1 Ch. 545, C. A. (q. v. as to distinction between committals for breach and for aiding and abetting); and see Hodson v. Coppard, 29 Beav. 4, that an injunction to restrain A., his servants and agents, from carrying on a particular trade will not affect A.'s tenants; and Avery v. Andrews, 51 L. J. Ch. 414; 46 L. T. 279; 30 W. R. 564; where an appointment of new trustees was held to be a device to evade an injunction against existing trustees.

A Deft who has no notice of the order is liable to pay the costs of motion (to commit) for a breach of the order by his servants: Rantzen v. Rothschild, 14 W. R. 96; 13 L. T. 399; and see Burgess v. Hills, 26 Beav. 244, 249, that the right to an injunction carries costs.

A husband is not liable for the breach of an injunction (against himself and wife) committed by the wife living separate and apart from him: Hope v. Carnegie (1), 7 Eq. 254; and in such case he is entitled to an order for her to appear separately in all further proceedings in the suit: S. C. (2), 7 Eq. 263.

The breach of an injunction by a public body, or by persons having the privilege of Parliament, will be punished by sequestration: see Spokes v. Banbury Board, 1 Eq. 42; Heath v. Wallington, sup. Form 4; Robinson v. L. Byron, 2 Dick. 703; Rantzen v. Rothschild, 14 W. R. 96; though cases of gross contempt by privileged persons, or individual acts of setting the order of the Court at defiance by members of a public body, may be punished by committal: Lechmere Charlton's case, 2 M. & Cr. 316; Wellesley's case, 2 R. & M. 639; Cumberland v. Richards, M. R., 8 June, 1859, B. 1776 (order to commit members of the Croydon Local Board individually for breach of injunction issued against the board generally).

And generally as to breach of injunction, see Kerr, 637—646; Joyce, 1321; Dan. 1373 et seq.

SECTION XXIV.—COSTS OF ACTION FOR INJUNCTION.

In order to entitle a Plt to costs of action for an injunction in pursuance of a legal right (e.g., copyright), he is not bound to give any preliminary notice to the Plt: Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; Witmann v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 260.

In general, an infringer of a legal right is liable to pay the costs of an action for an injunction although he has acted innocently: Upmann v. Forrester, 24 Ch. D. 231; Witmann v. Oppenheim, sup.; but where a full and sufficient undertaking is offered by the Deft, the Plt ought to accept it: Jenkins v. Hope, (1896) 1 Ch. 278; and where in a patent action the Plt notwithstanding such an offer persisted, the Court, on the Deft's giving the undertaking, declined to grant an injunction, but gave to Plt costs down to the date of the offer and the costs of the day's appearance, and to the Deft the other costs subsequent to the offer: Jenkins v. Parker, 12 Ch. D. 293.

20. Either of the Parties to propose himself, and to act without Salary.

And either of the parties is to be at liberty to propose himself as such receiver and manager to act without salary.—Pilling v. P., M. R. 3 Dec. 1861, B. 2109.

The order in this form is not to be considered as a direction to the Master to appoint either party: see Hamer v. H., M. R., 15 Dec. 1876, Reg. Min. 275.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 862.

21. The like, as to Defendant only, without Salary or Security.

LET the Deft A. be at liberty to propose himself as such receiver without giving security, he by his counsel undertaking to act without salary in case he shall be appointed.

It has been usual to continue the receiver at the trial; but there appears to be no foundation for the motion that the powers and authority of a receiver cease at the trial, if not then continued: per M. R. in Crane v. Smith, (C. A.), 10 Dec. 1879; and see Re Underwood, U. v. U., 37 W. R. 428; 62 L. T. 384; and where on an interlocutory order a receiver and manager has been appointed as receiver generally, and manager until a fixed date, the judgment in the action merely extends the time during which the receiver may act as manager, as he is still in office as receiver by reason of the former order: *Davies v. In a subsequent stage of this case (C. A., 14 Ap. 1880, B. 780; 14 Ch. D. 645, C. A.), the order for the appointment of a manager upon the application of a judgment creditor was “without prejudice to any application by the directors to be appointed managers by the Court.”

NOTES.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER.

By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), a receiver may be appointed by an interlocutory order of the Court in all cases in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient that such order should be made; and the order may be made either unconditionally or upon such terms and conditions as the Court shall think just; and see sect. 24, sub-sect. 7, enabling the Court in every cause or matter pending to grant, either absolutely or on reasonable terms, all such remedies as the parties may appear entitled to in respect of any and every legal or equitable claim brought forward therein.

The expression "interlocutory order" includes orders made after as well as before final judgment: Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75, C. A.; and the power given by section 25 can be exercised at the trial of the action as well as upon an interlocutory application: Re Prytherch, P. v. Williams, 42 Ch. D. 590; and so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied the action is "pending" within sect. 24, sub-sect. 7: Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, C. A.; Hart v. H., 18 Ch. D. 670, 680; but after final foreclosure of property, subject to an equitable charge, though an assignment of the mortgaged premises to the Plt (not required by him) remains to be settled, the action is at an end, and the Plt cannot obtain the appointment of a receiver: Wills v. Luff, 38 Ch. D. 197; and as to the extensive nature of the power conferred by the Act, see Re Coney, C. v. Bennett, 29 Ch. D. 993, and cases inf. Section II., pp. 793 et seq.

By O. L, 6, an application for a receiver may be made to the Court or a Judge by any party. If the application be by the Plt, under sect. 25, sub-sect. 8, it may be made either ex parte or with notice, and if by any other party, on notice to Plt, and at any time after appearance by the party applying. The application ex parte may be made before service of the writ or appearance: see Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302, sup. Form 7; Re H.'s Estate, H. v. H., 1 Ch. D. 276, sup. p. 749; Colebourne v. C., 1 Ch. D. 690; and may be entertained in cases of emergency, e.g., for receiver of estate of supposed lunatic, pending an application for an inquisition: Re Pountain, 37 Ch. D. 609, C. A.; and see Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711, where a judgment creditor of husband and wife was, on his application ex parte, appointed receiver of the income of the wife's reversionary interest; but, even after judgment, the order ought not to be granted ex parte, except in cases of emergency: Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 127, 134. The Court of Bankruptcy has jurisdiction under sect. 25 (8) of the Jud. Act, 1873, to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution for enforcing orders for payment of money to the trustee in bankruptcy, but will not, as a general rule, do so on an ex parte application: Re Goudie, Exp. Official Receiver, (1896) 2 Q. B. 481.

Under O. L, 6, a receiver may be appointed, on the application of either party, either before or after judgment: Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, C. A.; Bryan v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; Anglo-Ital. Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75, C. A. The Deft, therefore, may now, before judgment, apply for a receiver: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600; though this was not the case under the old practice: Robinson v. Hadley, 11 Beav. 614; Hiles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 175; Barlow v. Gains, 8 Beav. 329; from which it appears that the Deft could not apply for a receiver before decree, and that his application should have been made by petition.

In any case of urgency an ex parte application may be made; and such an application may be made by a Deft under sect. 25, sub-sect. 8, notwithstanding the provision of r. 6 as to notice to Plt: Hick v. Lockwood, W. N. (83) 48.

Although under the old practice a receiver might, under special circumstances, be appointed before appearance (Ramsbottom v. Freeman, 4 Beav. 145; Meaden v. Sealey, 6 Ha. 620; Dowling v. Hudson, 14 Beav. 423, 424, n.), and before service, when service could not be effected by reason of the Deft having absconded (L. & S. W. Bank v. Facey, 19 W. R. 676; 24 L. T. 126), a receiver was not appointed before decree unless the bill prayed such appointment; and leave to amend would not in general be granted: Pare v. Clegg, 29 Beav. 589; secus at the hearing: Osborne v. Harvey, 1 Y. C. C. 116; or, in a case of urgency, on motion after decree: Thomas v. Davies, 11 Beav. 29; Bowman v. Bell, 14 Sim. 392; Wright v. Vernon, 3 Drew. 112.

But although, under the new practice, if the appointment of a receiver is a substantial object of the action, the writ should be so indorsed, the indorsement may be amended under O. XXVIII, 1, and upon such amendment an interim receiver (or injunction) may be obtained: Colebourne v. C., 1 Ch. D. 690; and also though not claimed by the indorsement of the writ, original or amended: Norton v. Gover, W. N. (77) 206; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, C. A.

Where a Deft has not appeared and an application is made for the appointment of a receiver, it is not sufficient to file the summons at the Central Office under O. LXVII, 4, but it must be served on the Deft or leave must be obtained for substituted service: Tilling, Ld. v. Blythe, (1899) 1 Q. B. 557, C. A.

Leave cannot be granted for service out of the jurisdiction of a summons after judgment calling on Deft to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed: Weldon v. Gounod, 15 Q. B. D. 622; distinguishing Crédit Gerundense v. Van Weede, 12 Q. B. D. 171; v. sup. Chap. II., p. 18.

The order should state distinctly over what property the receiver is appointed: Crow v. Wood, 13 Beav. 271; or else refer to the pleadings or some other document describing it.

A receiver may be appointed in an action commenced by summons: Re Francke, Drake v. F., 57 L. J. Ch. 437; 58 L. T. 305; Weston v. Levy, W. N. (87) 76; and see Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; or where the application is by consent: Blackborough v. Ravenhill, 16 Jur. 1085; 1 W. R. 56; or where a vacancy occurs by the decease or otherwise of a receiver already appointed: Grote v. Bing, 9 Ha. App. 1; Booth v. Coulton, 16 W. R. 683; 18 L. T. 384.

And for the appointment, upon ex parte motion, of a receiver in place of one deceased, see Molloy v. Hamilton, 1 R. 8 Eq. 499; Re Stone, ib., 9 Eq. 404.

As to the appointment of a receiver in an admon action commenced in a district registry, see Re Capper, 26 W. R. 434.

The costs of a motion for a receiver are sometimes reserved until the hearing: Chaplin v. Young, 6 L. T. 97; even though the application is refused: Coope v. Cresswell, 12 W. R. 299.

The Court has jurisdiction under sect. 25, sub-sect. 8, of the Jud. Act, 1873, to appoint a receiver in an action to recover land although the title is legal and the Deft is in possession, but a case must be made to justify such appointment: Foxwell v. Van Grutten, (1897) 1 Ch. 64, C. A.; John v. J., (1898) 2 Ch. 573, C. A.

The jurisdiction is discretionary, and the Court will have regard to all the circumstances, e.g., the interest of the tenants, the pecuniary position of the Deft, and the probability of the Plt's title proving to be superior: John v. J., sup.

On the question of the jurisdiction to appoint a receiver over estates in Ireland or out of the jurisdiction, which seems upon the authorities cited to be in the nature of a recommendation to the Irish Court rather than an appointment by this Court directly of such receiver, see Re Trant, 2 Sol. Jour. 11; S. C., M. R., in Chambers, 8 July, 1857, B. 1366, and cases collected on the subject in Penn v. L. Baltimore, 1 L. C. Eq. 755; Houlditch v. M. Donegal, Beat. 146; 8 Bli. N. S. 301. The mere order of the English Court does not put the receiver into possession of foreign property (e.g. a debt which is to be treated as locally situate abroad), so as to constitute foreign process a contempt of the English Court: Re Maudslay, Sons & Field, (1900) 1 Ch. 602.

As to the power of the Court to appoint a receiver and stay all further proceedings, with a view to a reference to arbitration, see Compagnie du Senegal v. Smith, 53 L. J. Ch. 16, 166; 49 L. T. 527; 32 W. R. 111, and sup. p. 408.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to appoint a receiver and manager of property in the colonies or abroad, see inf. Section V. pp. 810 et seq.

PERSON TO BE APPOINTED.

The right to the appointment of a receiver belongs in the first instance to the parties interested in the suit, and not to a stranger: A. G. v. Day, 2 Mad. 246; but the selection is matter for the discretion of the Court: Morison v. M., 4 M. & Cr. 216.

The most fit person should be appointed, without regard to which party may propose him: Lespinasse v. Bell, 2 J. & W. 436; but generally the person having the carriage of the order has the right of nominating, and effect will be given to his nomination, unless good cause to the contrary is shown by the other side.

Where debentures comprised special securities which could not be realized otherwise than by a commercial liquidator, the receiver appointed by the debenture holders, was as to those assets substituted for the official receiver who had been appointed by the Court below: British Linen Co. v. South American and Mexican Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 108, C. A.

Leave of the Court must be obtained before a party to the suit can propose himself as receiver: see Davis v. D. Marlborough, 2 Swa. 118.

A person whose duty it is to watch and check the receiver when appointed is ineligible: Sutton v. Jones, 15 Ves. 584. Thus the Plt's solicitor will not be appointed, even by consent: Allen v. Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447, C. A.; and as to the next friend or guardian of an infant being ineligible, see Simpson, 438.

The selection of a receiver by a Judge will not be disturbed by the Court of Appeal, except in extreme cases, or on some objection in point of principle: Cookes v. C., 2 D. J. & S. 526; Perry v. Oriental Hotels Co., 5 Ch. 450; Nothard v. Proctor, 1 Ch. D. 4; Ley v. L., 27 L. T. 267; 25 L. J. Ch. 600.

Except in very special cases (see Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 400; Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302), one of the parties to the action will not be appointed receiver without the consent of the other party: see Allen v. Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447, 451. But in the case of a partner continuing the business (especially if he has the larger share) it is frequently done.

SALARY AND ALLOWANCES.

The usual allowance was formerly 5*l.* p. c. on the gross rental of the estates: Day v. Croft, 2 Beav. 488; but 3*l.* p. c. is now very commonly given. There is, however, no settled scale: Prior v. Bagster, 57 L. T. 760; W. N. (87) 194; and the amount must depend on the circumstances of the particular case.

Where the rental is very considerable, a percentage at a lower rate has been allowed, or a fixed salary may be given; and if there is any special difficulty in collecting the rents, the allowance has been increased; if facility, diminished: Day v. Croft, sup.

The scale allowed to liquidators is no guide: Prior v. Bagster, 57 L. T. 760; W. N. (87) 194.

By Order as to Supreme Court Fees, 1884, Sched., item 72, the Court fee on taking an account of a receiver or consignee is 1s. for every 100l. or portion of 100l. of the amount found to have been received, without deducting any payment.

A receiver may be entitled to an allowance beyond his salary for extraordinary trouble and expenses: Potts v. Leighton, 15 Ves. 276; but not without previous order: Re Ormsby, 1 Ba. & B. 189.

He is not entitled to expenses of journeys abroad and proceedings there, without the Court's express sanction, though they may be allowed where the proceedings are successful; and for the practice of the Court as to extraordinary allowances, see Malcolm v. O'Callaghan, 3 M. & Cr. 52. And see, as to receiver in bankruptcy, Exp. Izard, Re Bushell, 23 Ch. D. 75, C. A.

He has been held entitled to repay himself such sums as have been reasonably expended in the collection of rents (including a salary or percentage to a collector), before applying the rents in satisfaction of the arrears of interest on mortgages: Gilbert v. Denely, 3 Scott, N. R. 364.

When a trustee is appointed on his own undertaking to act as receiver of the trust property, he is not ordinarily entitled to a salary, though the words "without salary" ought, it seems, to be inserted in the order: Pilking-ton v. Baker, 24 W. R. 234; but there is no inflexible rule that a trustee can only be appointed receiver of the trust estate on the terms of his receiving no remuneration: Re Bignell, B. v. Chapman, (1892) 1 Ch. 59, C. A.

A receiver and manager appointed without salary or remuneration is entitled to be allowed in his account premiums paid by him to a guarantee society as his surety: Harris v. Sleep, (1897) 2 Ch. 80.

A receiver and manager is entitled to be paid for special services, but he ought to ask the Court for the allowance of wages, and if he does not he incurs great risk: Harris v. Sleep, (1897) 2 Ch. 80, C. A. (where 2l. a week was allowed to a receiver and manager as wages for manual work done in the business by him).

Receivers and managers appointed in the winding-up of a co. who incurred expenses in completing the contracts of the co.'s business as builders, were held entitled to be indemnified out of the assets of the business in priority to persons who had advanced money under a consent order providing that the advances were to be a first charge on the assets of the co.: Strapp v. Bull, Sons & Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 1, C. A., Form 47, sup.; and see Lathom v. Greenwich Ferry Co., 72 L. T. 790; W. N. (95) 77 (where the costs of realization to which the receiver was held entitled in priority were limited to those of the actual sale exclusive of the costs of preserving the property; and see also Ramsay v. Simpson (1899), 1 I. R. 194, C. A., as to costs of realization).

A party interested proposing himself is usually required to act without salary, unless by consent; v. sup. pp. 757, 758.

In bankruptcy, the receiver is entitled to his costs next after the costs of realizing the estate: Exp. Royle, 23 W. R. 908.

SECURITY.

By O. L, 16, when an order is made directing a receiver to be appointed, unless otherwise ordered, he is first to give security to be allowed by the Court or a Judge, and taken before a person authorized to administer oaths, duly to account for what he shall receive as such receiver, and to pay the same, as the Court or Judge shall direct; and the person so to be appointed shall, unless otherwise ordered, be allowed a proper salary, or allowance. The above directions, formerly inserted in the order to appoint a receiver, are therefore now omitted.

The security is to be by recognizance of the receiver (see R. S. C. App. L., 20A, 21; D. C. F. 864). In Poole v. Wood, V.-C., 21 Dec. 1832, leave was given to pay part of the sum to be secured into Court, and to give security for the rest.

By O. L, 17, where a named receiver is appointed in Court, the Court or a Judge may adjourn to Chambers the cause or matter then pending, in order that the person named as receiver may give security, and may thereupon direct the judgment or order to be drawn up.

Where a receiver is appointed merely for the purpose of securing a charge, e.g., by way of equitable execution, security may be dispensed with: Hewett v. Murray, 54 L. J. Ch. 572; 53 L. T. 380; and see Forms 2, 3, inf. p. 792; and for the preservation of property pending an appeal, the Plt was appointed interim receiver and manager of a farm without security on his undertaking to abide by any order of the Court: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309, C. A.; and see Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302, C. A.; Gardner v. Blane, 1 Ha. 381.

After reference the Court will not dispense with the usual security, even with the consent of the parties interested. If the parties desire it, they should nominate of their own authority, and then apply that the receiver appointed by themselves shall not be required to give security: Manners v. Furze, 11 Beav. 30; Ridout v. E. Plymouth, 1 Dick. 68. And the parties so applying must be sui juris: Tylee v. T., 17 Beav. 583.

And for the appointment under special circumstances of a receiver on his own recognizance only, see Hibbert v. H., 3 Mer. 681; C. Carlisle v. L. Berkley, Amb. 599.

In Bainbrigg v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421, the receiver was discharged on the trustees undertaking, without recognizance, to account half-yearly like a receiver.

The security is usually for double the annual rental; though two sureties are usual, the number may be increased, to reduce the amount of each.

It was questioned whether the bond of an incorporated guarantee association (though sufficient as a security for costs: Plestown v. Johnston, 2 W. R. 3), would be accepted instead of the usual recognizance: Manners v. Furze, 11 Beav. 30; but see Clarke v. Thornton, inf. Sect. III., Form 6, p. 806; Carpenter v. Solicitor to Treasury, 7 P. D. 235; Colmore v. North, 42 L. J. Ch. 4; 27 L. T. 405; 21 W. R. 43; and such a bond is commonly accepted now. For form, see D. C. F. 866.

Money due from a receiver, whether an ascertained balance or not, is, so long as the recognizance is existing, a debt of record: Seagram v. Tuck, 18 Ch. D. 296, C. A.

By O. LXI, 14, no recognizance shall be enrolled after six months from the acknowledgment thereof, except under special circumstances, and by an order made by the Court or a Judge upon motion for the enrolment thereof after that time. Leave may be given to enrol it nunc pro tunc: Bothomley v. Fairfax, 1 P. W. 334, 340; Vaughan v. V., 1 Dick. 90; for such order, see Marchant v. M., M. R., 3 Nov. 1853, B. 15; but it will be made so as not to prejudice intervening incumbrances: Bothomley v. Fairfax, sup.; and see Fothergill v. Kendrick, 2 Ver. 234.

By O. LX, 4, where, by the practice of the Ch. Div., recognizances are required to be given, such recognizances are to be given to the two senior chief clerks (now Masters) for the time being of the Judge to whom the cause or matter is assigned; and when the same are, by any judgment or order, directed to be vacated, the proper officer shall, on due notice thereof, attend one of the said chief clerks (Masters), who shall thereupon vacate such recognizances in the usual manner.

The sureties must be resident within the jurisdiction: Cockburn v. Raphael, 2 S. & S. 453; and upon any event, such as death or bankruptcy, happening, which would prevent the recognizance being effectually put in force against them, an order will be made at Chambers on summons, directing the receiver to give a new security.

Additional security has been required when the property over which the receiver has been appointed has since increased in value: Spence v. Hangford, M. R., in Chambers, 17 Feb. 1865.

EFFECT OF APPOINTMENT.

The appointment of a receiver, so far as it affects the rights of creditors or third parties, dates not from the order appointing him, but from the completion of the security required to be given by the order; and, accordingly, until the appointment has been perfected by certificate that the security has been completed, a judgment creditor is not debarred from proceeding to execution: Edwards v. E., 2 Ch. D. 291; and see Exp. Evans, Re Watkins, 13 Ch. D. 252, 255. But if no security is required (which should appear on the face of the order), the appointment is complete upon possession being taken under the order: Morrison v. Skerne Ironworks Co., 60 L. T. 588.

His liability to account in respect of moneys received and expended by him as receiver at once arises, whether the security has been completed or not: Smart v. Flood, 49 L. T. 467.

His possession is the possession of the Court, and the effect of his appointment is to remove the parties to the suit from possession: Russell v. E. Ang. Ry., 3 Mac. & G. 104; Ames v. Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 350; and, as against the subsequent trustee in bankruptcy, to exclude the doctrine of reputed ownership: Taylor v. Eckersley, 5 Ch. D. 740; and as to the appointment of a receiver and manager of a co. operating as a discharge to the co.'s servants, see Reid v. Explosives Co., 19 Q. B. D. 264, C. A.

He is entitled to rents in arrear when he is appointed: Codrington v. Johnstone, 1 Beav. 524; and his right to collect a sum admitted to be due to the estate cannot be disputed by the person making the admission: Wood v. Hitchings, 2 Beav. 294.

Money due to him in his character of receiver was a debt, legal or equitable, upon which a debtor's summons might be grounded under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, ss. 6, 7 (see now Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 4, 6, sub-s. 1 (d)); Exp. Harris, 2 Ch. D. 423.

He is not "owner" within the Public Health Act, 1875, and, consequently, service on him of notices as to improvement expenses, under sect. 150, is bad: see Corp. of Bacup v. Smith, 45 Ch. D. 395.

A solr receiving rents must pay them over to the receiver without reference to any lien for costs, though it might have been proper for him to receive them: Wickens v. Townshend, 1 Rus. & M. 361, 363.

But the right of the receiver to collect will not prevent payment of money into Court by a debtor to the estate, on the petition of parties interested, to save the receiver's poundage: Haigh v. Grattan, 1 Beav. 201.

As against a receiver appointed by the Court, an exor cannot retain a debt due to him: Davenport v. Moss, 14 W. R. 453; Re Jones, Calver v. Laxton, 31 Ch. D. 440 (following Re Birt, 22 Ch. D. 604; Richmond v. White, 12 Ch. D. 161); and v. inf. Chap. XLIV., p. 1531.

A partner who had got in debts adversely to the receiver was ordered, within a week, to make an affidavit of the amount, and pay such amount to the receiver, or in default to be committed: Parker v. Pocock, 30 L. T. 458.

A receiver who has been appointed under the ordinary power in a mortgage deed is in possession for all purposes as the agent of the mortgagor: Jefferys v. Dickson, 1 Ch. 183; Law v. Glenn, 2 Ch. 634; Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 24, sub-s. 2; and see Owen v. Cronk, (1895) 1 Q. B. 265, C. A.; Re Hale, Lilley v. Foad, (1899) 2 Ch. 107, C. A.; and a distress by the mortgagor without the receiver's authority is illegal: Woolston v. Ross, (1900) 1 Ch. 788.

But where debentures give the holders a power to appoint a receiver without indicating that he is to be the agent of the co., he must (semble) be treated as agent of the debenture holders: Re Vimbos, (1900) 1 Ch. 470.

If the mortgagors are a co. which is afterwards wound up, the receiver after the winding-up order ceases to be the agent of the co., but does not necessarily become the agent of the mortgagees: Gosling v. Gaskell, (1897) A. C. 575, H. L.; reversing C. A., (1896) 1 Q. B. 669.

A receiver appointed by will is a proper party to an admon suit: Consett v. Bell, 1 Y. & C. C. 569.

The right of a Plt to damages for detention of property by the Deft is not lost by the appointment of a receiver of the property by consent pending the trial of the action: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 42 Ch. D. 166 (see S. C., on appeal, 43 Ch. D. 316, C. A.); following Williams v. Peel River Co., 55 L. T. 689.

The receiver's possession does not alter the rights of parties as regards the Statute of Limitations: Harrison v. Duignan, 2 Dr. & War. 295.

Money in the hands of a receiver is not in custodiâ legis, as it is in the hands of a sequestrator. The rights to it must be decided on a consideration of all the circumstances, and in particular the nature of the action and the object of the appointment of the receiver: Re Hoare, H. v. Owen, (1892) 3 Ch. 94.

AS REGARDS PERSONS CLAIMING BY PARAMOUNT TITLE.

Leave is given to persons claiming by title paramount to the receiver to pursue their remedies, provided there has been no delay in the assertion of their rights: Fish. Mort. s. 868; Robbins, 948.

As to the rights of a landlord after the appointment of a receiver as against the tenant or sub-tenant, see Sutton v. Rees, 9 Jur. N. S. 456; 1 N. R. 464; Hand v. Blow, 70 L. J. Ch. 687. The landlord should ask the Court for authority to distrain, notwithstanding the possession of the receiver. If the landlord gives the receiver notice of his claim for rent, but takes no other steps, and the receiver sells the furniture, the landlord has no priority over other creditors in the proceeds: S. C.

His right to distrain for rent is limited by the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 42, as amended by the Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 28, to six months' rent accrued due prior to the order of adjudication, including an order for the admon of the estate of a debtor whose debts do not exceed 50*l.*, or of a deceased person who dies insolvent: Exp. Cochrane, 20 Eq. 282; Exp. Till, 16 Eq. 97.

The appointment of a receiver of the tolls, profits, and income of a railway in a suit on behalf of rent-charge holders was held not to affect the right of the owner of a rent-charge to distrain for his arrears on the goods and chattels of the promoters of the undertaking, given by the L. C. C. Act, 1845, s. 11: Eyton v. Denbigh, &c. Ry., 6 Eq. 14; see also Ib. 488 (on a similar application in the same co.).

And see Bowen v. Brecon Ry., 3 Eq. 541, where, upon a petition (after the appointment in a debenture holder's suit of a receiver of a railway undertaking) by a debenture holder for leave to issue execution on his judgment, an inquiry whether it would be for the benefit of the debenture holders that any proceedings should be taken by the receiver for the purpose of making such judgment available for them, was directed.

A mortgagee whose interests are not provided for in the order for the receiver may apply to be examined pro interesse suo: Hunt v. Priest, 2 Dick. 540; so also if a receiver has been improperly, or by mistake, put in possession of goods, the proper course for the judgment creditor of the owner is not to apply for leave to levy execution, but to move to discharge the order, or apply to be examined pro interesse suo: Fowler v. Haynes, 2 N. R. 156; and see Kerr, Recrs., 166—168; and sup. Chap. XXVII., "EXECUTION," p. 421.

The creditor of a party to whom a receiver appointed by the Court was directed to pay the rents was allowed, on petition, to sue out and execute such writs as advised: Gooch v. Haworth, 3 Beav. 428. But a judgment creditor recovering merely under an order at law money of his debtor in a receiver's hands, had to repay it, and he, and the receiver who had not resisted, had to pay costs; a party interested may apply at once to stay such payments: De Winton v. Mayor of Brecon, 28 Beav. 200.

In Neate v. Pink, 15 Sim. 450, an inquiry went on petition by a stranger to the suit to ascertain his right to rent paid into Court by the receiver; but see Wastell v. Leslie, Ib., 453, n.; Blundell v. B., W. N. (86) 125; explaining Neate v. Pink, and deciding that a judgment creditor, not a party to an action, has no locus standi to apply for payment of money to him by a receiver, though the debt be one properly payable out of the funds in the receiver's hands: Brocklebank v. E. London Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 839.

Where, after appointment of a receiver in a partnership action, a creditor of the firm obtained judgment, an order was made giving him a charge on the partnership moneys coming to the receiver, upon his undertaking that the charge was to be dealt with according to the order of the Court: Kewney v. Attrill, 34 Ch. D. 345; and see Re Cowan's Estate, Rapier v. Wright, 14 Ch. D. 638, where a receiver in an admon action, who had been directed to pay to a legatee a quarterly sum, was ordered to pay the debt and costs of judgment creditors of the legatee.

And as to the remedies of a judgment creditor, or prior incumbrancer against the owner and the receiver, as to surplus rents, or the establishment of his rights, see Lewis v. L. Zouche, 2 Sim. 388; Smith v. E. Effingham, 2 Beav. 232; 7 Beav. 357.

If a receiver has exceeded his authority, the person injured thereby ought not, without leave of the Court, to bring an action against the receiver, but should apply for relief in the action in which the receiver was appointed: Searle v. Choat, 25 Ch. D. 723.

Rent received by the receiver before the mortgagee took possession, but not paid to her till after, was (under the circumstances of the case) assumed to go in discharge of interest due when she took possession; secus, as to rent which did not appear to have been received before she took possession: Horlock v. Smith, 1 Coll. 287.

If the receiver has paid to the tenant for life money which he ought to have paid into Court for the benefit of creditors, and is afterwards compelled to pay the same amount into Court, the receiver's right to the surplus which may remain after satisfaction of the creditors will have priority over any claim by the tenant for life; but if the wrongful payment has been made by the solr in the cause as his agent, the receiver's right to the surplus is subject to all liabilities between the solr and the person wrongly paid: Gurden v. Badcock, 6 Beav. 157.

INTERFERENCE WITH RECEIVER.

The Court will not allow its receiver to be interfered with, though erroneously appointed: Ames v. Birkenhead Dock, 20 Beav. 332; Randfield v. R., 1 Dr. & S. 310. But leave to try a right which is claimed against the receiver will not be refused, unless the claim is clearly without foundation: S. C., on appeal, 3 D. F. & J. 766; Lane v. Capsey, (1891) 3 Ch. 411.

Interference with a receiver appointed by the Court (e.g., by advertisements tending to prejudice the management of a business carried on by a receiver and manager under order of the Court) is a contempt punishable by a committal: Helmore v. Smith (2), 35 Ch. D. 449; Hawkins v. Guthercole, 1 Drew. 12; which, after notice from the receiver, renders the persons interfering, whoever they may be, and even though enforcing legal rights, liable for the consequences of their contempt: and see Exp. Cochrane, 20 Eq. 282; but it is not interference with the receiver of a co. to apply for leave to issue execution against him, upon judgments recovered against the co., in respect of money due from him in his capacity of shareholder: Re West Lancashire Co., W. N. (90) 165; 63 L. T. 56.

It may be punished by committal by order absolute in the first instance: Broad v. Wickham, 4 Sim. 511; but more usually, as in the case of breach of an injunction, by payment of all costs and expenses occasioned by such improper conduct: Lane v. Sterne, 3 Giff. 629.

And the particular act of interference may be restrained by injunction, which, in a proper case, may be obtained ex parte: Tink v. Rundle, 10 Beav. 318; Evelyn v. Lewis, 3 Ha. 472; Randfield v. R., 1 Dr. & S. 310. And in Bayly v. Went, 51 L. T. 764, an injunction was granted to restrain a mortgagor from distraining for rent, on the allegation that the receiver appointed by the mortgagee had been negligent in collecting it; and see Woolston v. Ross, (1900) 1 Ch. 788; v. sup. p. 778.

A motion to commit for disturbance of a receiver's possession, made for the purpose of extorting costs, rather than to protect such possession, will not, however, be encouraged: Ward v. Swift, 6 Ha. 312.

Whether the sheriff may be committed for the act of his under-sheriff in seizing property in the possession of a receiver appointed by the Court, see Russell v. E. Anglian Ry., 3 Mac. & G. 104; Fish. Mort. s. 866; Robbins, p. 943.

In that case the sheriff, who had seized, under a fi. fa., property in the hands of the receiver, was ordered to withdraw, and to pay the costs and expenses of the seizure, and was restrained from proceeding against the receiver to compel him to interplead; and the order went on to enjoin the execution creditors from taking proceedings at law against the sheriff, in relation to the property seized by him, or any other property in the possession of the receiver: see 3 Mac. & G. p. 120.

And the sheriff who executes process upon property over which a receiver has been appointed, will not be protected against adverse claims to the proceeds by the landlord and the receiver: Try v. T., 13 Beav. 422; see also Rock v. Cook, 2 Ph. 691; Onyon v. Washbourne, 14 Jur. 497, that the sheriff levying under a fi. fa., under the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 V. c. 110), was not, like a sequestrator, an officer of the Court, so as to be entitled to protection under 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 58, s. 6.

And see, as to the effect of appointing a receiver, Dan. 1684; Kerr, Receivers, 147 et seq.; Robbins on Mortgage, 943 et seq. See also Exp. Rylands; Exp. Cooper, 6 Ch. D. 57, 255; Exp. Evans, 27 W. R. 712.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVER AND MANAGER.

A receiver, unless specially empowered so to do, is not at liberty to carry on a business (Lindley, 531), and accordingly a manager, as distinct from a receiver, is usually appointed with a view to a sale of property as a going concern: Whitley v. Challis, (1892) 1 Ch. 64, C. A.; In re Victoria Steamboats, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 158; Marshall v. South Staffordshire Trams Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 36, C. A.; ex. gr., in the case of a mortgage of a colliery where the business of the colliery is included (as it usually and presumably is) in the security: County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry Merthyr Colliery Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629, C. A.; Campbell v. Lloyd's Bank, (1891) 1 Ch. 136, n.; 58 L. J. Ch. 424; Gibbs v. David, 20 Eq. 373, inf. p. 788; or of a hotel where the goodwill is comprised in the security: Truman v. Redgrave, 18 Ch. D. 547 (but not otherwise: Whitley v. Challis, sup.; and see County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry Merthyr Colliery Co., sup.); or of debentures of a co. even though no principal money is due, if the security is in jeopardy as, for example, by proceedings by execution creditors: Makins v. Percy Ibbotson and Sons, (1891) 1 Ch. 133; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, (1893) 1 Ch. 574; In re Victoria Steamboats, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 158; or of the business of a partnership with a view to realization on dissolution: Taylor v. Neate, 39 Ch. D. 538; Collins v. Barker, (1893) 1 Ch. 578; sup. p. 753; Harris v. Sleep, (1897) 2 Ch. 80, C. A.; and v. inf. p. 787.

A manager may be appointed in a proper case notwithstanding that the mortgagee has taken possession: County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry Merthyr Colliery Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629, C. A.; but an appointment will not be made where debenture holders (as in the case of a tramway co. under the Tramways Act, 1870) are not entitled to enforce their charge by sale: Marshall v. South Staffordshire Trams Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 36, C. A. (commenting on and disapproving of previous cases); and see Blaker v. Herts and Essex Waterworks Co., 41 Ch. D. 399.

The appointment of a manager is made for a limited period only, varying according to the circumstances of the case: In re Victoria Steamboats, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 158; Securities and Properties Corp. v. Brighton Alhambra, 62 L. J. Ch. 566; and is sometimes coupled with a special intimation by the Court: ex. gr., that the person appointed is only to carry on the business in its ordinary course so far as it is necessary to protect the assets: Melson v. Isle of Wight Brewery Co., Kekewich, J., 7th Feb. 1899.

The receiver is usually appointed manager, it being found inconvenient to appoint different persons to act in the two capacities: Collins v. Barker, (1893) 1 Ch. 578; but the Court may direct the receiver to avail himself of the services of a named person to act in the management: v. sup. pp. 755, 756.

Leave to the manager to borrow money in priority to existing incumbrances will only be given, if at all, by way of salvage or to secure an advantageous sale: Securities and Properties Corp. v. Brighton Alhambra, 62 L. J. Ch. 566.

Where the appointment of a receiver and manager has been made on an interlocutory application, the order made on the hearing should extend the time during which the receiver is to act as manager: Davies v. Vale of Evesham Preserves, 43 W. R. 646.

And for further instances of appointment of receiver and manager, v. inf. pp. 784, 786, 787, 788. See also D. C. F. 887, note.

IN WHAT INSTANCES, AND OVER WHAT PROPERTY, A RECEIVER MAY BE APPOINTED.

Powers having been conferred by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), on every Division of the High Court, of appointing a receiver in all cases "in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient," many of the questions which have arisen as to the right to obtain a receiver, especially on behalf of persons claiming as against a legal title, and where the remedy afforded by the Courts of ordinary jurisdiction was inadequate (see Kerr, Recrs. 2 et seq.), will no longer arise.

The appointment of a receiver is a remedy designed for the preservation of property until the question between the parties claiming it shall have been decided, but without prejudice to the right of possession (as in the case of first mortgagee as against equitable incumbrancers) of a party claiming by an interest paramount to the litigants': Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 648; Dalmer v. Dashwood, 2 Cox, 378; and see Harris v. H., 56 L. J. Ch. 754; 56 L. T. 507; 35 W. R. 710; Re Wells, Molony v. Brooke, 45 Ch. D. 569.

Independently of sect. 25 of the Judicature Act, 1873, and on the principle of Kearns v. Leaf, 1 H. & M. 681, a receiver may be appointed to protect a fund in the hands of trustees out of which costs are payable: Cummins v. Perkins, (1899) 1 Ch. 16, C. A.

Formerly a receiver would not be appointed where the title was in dispute, even in a case of vacant possession: see Talbot v. Hope-Scott, 4 K. & J. 96, 139; Carrow v. Ferrier, 3 Ch. 719; but since the Jud. Act, 1873 (s. 25), the Court has power to appoint a receiver where the title to the property is disputed: Foxwell v. Van Grutten, (1897) 1 Ch. 64, C. A.; John v. John, (1898) 2 Ch. 573, C. A. (v. sup. p. 774); Berry v. Keen, 51 L. J. Ch. 912.

Real and Personal Assets:—

By the Court of Probate Act, 1857 (20 & 21 V. c. 77), ss. 70, 73—75, jurisdiction was given to the Probate Court to appoint a temporary admor; and by ss. 71, 72, a receiver of realty. And when such appointment had been made, a Court of Equity would not interfere by appointing a receiver: Veret v. Duprez, 6 Eq. 329; Hitchen v. Birks, 10 Eq. 471.

Pending litigation in the Ecclesiastical Court (or while litigation was "impending:" Grimston v. Turner, 18 W. R. 724); or in a creditors' action for admon before grant of probate or admon, notwithstanding the absence of lis pendens (see Re Parker, Dearing v. Brooks, 54 L. J. Ch. 694; In the goods of Moore, 13 P. D. 36); but not in an ordinary admon action where there was no lis pendens, but only a caveat against a will warned: Salter v. S., (1896) P. 291; or pending an application for admon de bonis non to deceased Deft (the exor): Re Parker, Cash v. P., 12 Ch. D. 293; there being a party before the Court entitled to and undertaking to take out such admon (see Re Sheppard, Atkins v. S., 43 Ch. D. 131, 136, C. A.); an interim receiver has been appointed in the Ch. D. of personal estate; and also of the rents of the realty, when neither the devisee nor the heir-at-law was in actual possession: Parkin v. Seddons, 16 Eq. 34.

But as to the propriety of making application in such case to the P. D., see Re Parker, sup., In the goods of Moore, sup.; Re Mallalieu, 91 L. T. Jo. 398; Re Green, W. N. (95) 69 (where Kekewich, J., stated that, where litigation was pending in the P. D., the application for receiver ought to be made there).

And when, pending litigation between the parties interested, a receiver had been appointed by the Court of Chancery, with authority to collect the outstanding personal estate of an intestate until admon, and with liberty to apply for letters of admon, a general grant of admon was made to the receiver: Re Mayer, L. R. 3 P. & M. 39, followed in In the Goods of Moore, (1892) P. 145.

See also Tichborne v. T., 1 Ib. 730, where the receiver appointed by the Court of Chancery was appointed admor pendente lite; and see In the Goods of Evans, 15 P. D. 215.

As by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 16, the Probate Court, with the Admiralty and Divorce Courts, has been constituted a Division of the High Court, any conflict of jurisdiction between the Probate Court and the Court of Chancery as to the appointment of a receiver is now at an end; and, pending proceedings in the Probate Division, an application for the appointment of a receiver should in general be made in that Division: Barr v. B., W. N. (76) 44; Re Parker, Dearing v. Brooks, 54 L. J. Ch. 694.

The bankruptcy (Smith v. S., 2 Y. & C. 353) or insolvency (Stainton v. Carron Co., 18 Beav. 146) of an exor or admor is not in itself a ground for appointing a receiver of the assets, and before judgment in a creditor's action a receiver will not be appointed unless a case is shown of the assets being wasted: Harris v. H., 56 L. J. Ch. 754; 56 L. T. 507; 35 W. R. 710 (following Philips v. Jones, 28 S. J. 360, dissenting from dictum of Jessel, M. R., in Re Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733); Re Wells, Molony v. Brookes, 45 Ch. D. 569; nor merely because the exor will probably exercise his right of retainer to the prejudice of the creditors generally: S. C.; and the Court has jurisdiction to restrain an exor who has become bankrupt since the death of the testator from further acting as exor; and if there is a co-exor willing to continue to act will not require the appointment of a receiver: Bowen v. Phillips, (1897) 1 Ch. 174.

For the appointment of a receiver on the bankruptcy of a sole exor and trustee since an order for administering the estate, though his assignees were not before the Court, see Re Johnson, 1 Ch. 325.

And see Watkins v. Brent, 1 M. & C. 97, 103, for the cases in which the Court interfered by appointing a receiver, i.e., where from the representation being in contest, there was no proper person to receive the assets. In such cases the Court appointed a receiver pending litigation as to probate or admon to protect the property: B. de Feuchères v. Dawes, 5 Beav. 110; Newton v. Ricketts, 10 Beav. 527; Parkin v. Seddons, 16 Eq. 34; and see, as to the effect of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, where one exor has not proved, In Re Pawley and London and Provincial Bank, (1900) 1 Ch. 58.

Where from his bankruptcy an exor has been deprived of the conduct of an admon action, and a receiver has been appointed, it is not the practice to give the conduct to the receiver: Re Hopkins, Dowd v. Hawtin, 19 Ch. D. 61.

And before the grant of admon a manager and receiver may be appointed to carry on an intestate's business: Blackett v. B., 19 W. R. 559; 24 L. T. 276; Steer v. S., 13 W. R. 225.

Though a receiver might be appointed to protect a testator's estate until a legal pers. represve had been appointed, the addition of a prayer for admon of the estate was irregular and demurrable: Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175; Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458.

Where the exor was abroad, and no account could be obtained from the person in charge of the estate, a receiver was appointed: Dickens v. Harris, 14 L. T. 98.

The costs of a suit for a receiver pending litigation in the Ecclesiastical Court, as it was never brought to a hearing, were disposed of on motion: Barton v. Rock, 22 Beav. 81, 376.

Tenancy in Common:—

A receiver will be appointed on the application of an equitable tenant in common: Sandford v. Ballard, 30 Beav. 109; Hargrave v. H., 9 Beav. 549.

And on evidence that the tenant has been excluded by his co-tenants, the appointment will be extended to the whole estate: Sandford v. Ballard (2), 33 Beav. 401; and see Holmes v. Bell, 2 Beav. 298; Tyson v. Fairclough, 2 S. & St. 142.

And, although there is no exclusion, an interim receiver may be granted in a partition action, unless the co-owner in occupation elects to pay an occupation rent: Porter v. Lopes, 7 Ch. D. 358.

Landlord and Tenant:—

An interim receiver was appointed in an action by landlord against tenant under a proviso for re-entry, the premises having been sub-let to numerous tenants at weekly rents: Gwatkin v. Bird, 52 L. J. Q. B. 263 (where the form of order as drawn up is given at p. 264).

Legal Title:—

The general rule of the Court has been not to appoint a receiver against a person in possession under a legal title, except in cases of fraud or danger to the estate: Lloyd v. Passingham, 16 Ves. 59; but as to the practice since Jud. Act, v. sup. p. 774.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee:—

On the principle that Courts of Equity would not assist a person who had a full legal remedy, a receiver would not formerly be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee who had the legal estate (Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 648), or of an annuitant, or equitable incumbrancer, with power to dis-train given by deed (Buxton v. Monkhouse, G. Coop. 41; Kelsey v. K., 17 Eq. 495), or superadded by stat. 4 G. II. c. 28 (Sollory v. Leaver, 9 Eq. 22), or except under special circumstances: see Ackland v. Gravener, 31 Beav. 482; or where the arrears could not have been recovered by distress: Foster v. F., 2 Ver. 386; Cupit v. Jackson, 13 Pri. 721; Manly v. Hawkins, 1 D. & Wal. 363; Beamish v. Austen, 1 R. 9 Eq. 361.

Under the extended powers given by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), a receiver may now be appointed over property of which the Plt is both legal and equitable mortgagee, without prejudice to the right of prior incumbrancers to take possession under their security: Pease v. Fletcher, 1 Ch. D. 273; see also Habershon v. Gill, W. N. (75) 231.

A legal mortgagee of business premises, prevented from taking possession by the mortgagor, may obtain the interim appointment of a receiver and manager, and an injunction restraining the mortgagor from interfering with the management: Truman & Co. v. Redgrave, 18 Ch. D. 547; but not an injunction before judgment restraining the mortgagor from remaining in occupation: Taylor v. Soper, 62 L. T. 828. And a receiver has been appointed so as to relieve a mortgagee from the liabilities incurred by taking possession: Mason v. Westoby, 32 Ch. D. 206; but the mortgagee has no absolute right to have such an appointment made, and if he has assumed the responsibility of taking possession, the Court will not in general assist him to relinquish it: Re Prytherch, P. v. Williams, 42 Ch. D. 590.

At the instance of a mortgagee of a share, a receiver of the whole has been appointed: Sumsion v. Cruttwell, 31 W. R. 399; and in the case of collieries held under leases containing working covenants, a receiver and manager of the property and business was appointed, although the business was not specifically referred to in the mortgage: Campbell v. Lloyd's Bank, 58 L. J. Ch. 424; (1896) 1 Ch. 136, n.; and see County of Gloucester Bank v. Rudry Merthyr Steam and House Coal Colliery Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 629, C. A.; and sup. p. 781.

And by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 19 (1) (iii), a mortgagee, where the mortgage is made by deed, has by virtue of that Act power (to the same extent as if in terms conveyed by the mortgage deed, but no further), when the mortgage money has become due, to appoint a receiver of the income of the mortgaged property, or any part thereof. Notwithstanding this power, a mortgagee may still obtain a receiver by application to the Court: Tillett v. Nixon, 25 Ch. D. 238; and where an action is pending it is desirable that the appointment should be made by the Court: Ibid.

As to the measure of the mortgagee's responsibility when a receiver is so appointed, and that the mortgagee is bound only to give credit for sums which reach his hands, see Re Della Rosella's Estate, 29 L. R. Ir. 414.

By sect. 24 (1), a receiver shall not be appointed by a mortgagee under the above power until he has become entitled to exercise the power of sale conferred by the Act. The powers, remuneration and duties of the receiver are stated in sect. 24, sub-sects. 2—8.

Where the receiver is appointed under the Act with a special provision empowering him to manage and carry on a mortgaged business, he has authority to continue paying instalments of a business debt, and such payment, if made by him, may take the case out of the Statute of Limitation, but quære whether a receiver appointed under the Act simpliciter would have such authority: Re Hale, Lilley v. Foad, (1899) 2 Ch. 107, C. A. And as to the position of mortgagee's receiver as agent of the mortgagor, v. sup., p. 778.

As to the rights of the mortgagee's receiver to sue for rent in the name of the mortgagee's heir at law, on giving him indemnity, see Fairholme v. Kennedy, 24 L. R. Ir. 498; and that mortgagor distraining for rent will be restrained from such interference: Bayly v. Went, 51 L. T. 764.

Where a mortgagor is in possession, a receivership order, containing no direction that he attorn or deliver up possession, does not make his possession wrongful, nor can he be fixed with an occupation rent before demand made by the receiver: Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Mullan, 35 Ch. D. 125.

The rule of the Court is not to appoint a receiver at the instance of a second mortgagee or incumbrancer against a prior legal mortgagee, or against an incumbrancer of later date who has acquired the legal possession, to whom anything remains due. Such prior mortgagee, &c. is entitled to retain possession until he is fully paid, or he has rendered it impossible, from his negligence in keeping his accounts, to ascertain what is due to him: see Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 647; Codrington v. Parker, 16 Ves. 469; Hiles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 175; Bates v. Brothers, 2 Sm. & G. 509.

When, however, there are prior mortgagees or incumbrancers who are not in possession, a receiver may be appointed without prejudice to such incumbrancers taking possession (leave to do which is granted almost as of course): Forms 24, 25, sup. pp. 759, 760; Underhay v. Read, 20 Q. B. D. 209, C. A.; Bryan v. Cormick, 1 Cox, 422; Dalmer v. Dashwood, 2 Cox, 383; Norway v. Rowe, 19 Ves. 153.

After judgment for foreclosure absolute, Plt (mortgagee) cannot obtain the appointment of a receiver: see Wills v. Luff, 38 Ch. D. 197.

In a suit by second mortgagee to redeem first mortgagee, who, by his deed, had power to appoint a receiver, the Court appointed a receiver, giving the nomination to first mortgagee: Bord v. Tollemache, 1 N. R. 177.

As against the mortgagor in possession, a receiver may be appointed on the application of an equitable mortgagee: Aberdeen v. Chitty, 3 Y. & C. 379.

As between a vendor, and a purchaser and his mortgagee, a receiver was appointed on bill by mortgagee: Dawson v. Yates, 1 Beav. 301.

And against a purchaser in possession: Osborne v. Harvey, 1 Y. & C. C. 116.

Trust Estate :—

The cases in which a receiver of a trust estate may be appointed are collected in Lewin, 1198 et seq.

As a general rule, the trustees or exors will not, on slight grounds, be dispossessed of the trust property by the appointment of a receiver: Barkley v. L. Reay, 2 Ha. 308; Wiles v. Cooper, 9 Beav. 294; Whitworth v. Whyddon, 2 Mac. & G. 52.

On the appointment of new trustees, a receiver who had been appointed in the place of improper trustees was discharged on their undertaking, without recognizance, to pass their accounts half-yearly: Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421.

If the trustee consents, a receiver may be appointed at the instance of all the cs. q. t.: Brodie v. Barry, 3 Mer. 695; but the usual recognizances will be required: Manners v. Furze, 11 Beav. 30.

If the trustee has been guilty of misconduct or waste, or has not shown himself impartial between conflicting claims (E. Talbot v. Hope-Scott, 4 K. & J. 139; Anon., 12 Ves. 5), or the property is endangered from the bankruptcy, insolvency, or great poverty of the trustee (Scott v. Beecher, 4 Price, 346; Gladdon v. Stoneman, 1 Madd. 143; Everett v. Prytherch, 12 Sim. 367; and v. sup. p. 783), or if he is incapacitated from acting (Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421), or is of bad character or drunken habits (Everett v. Prytherch, sup.), a receiver may be appointed at the instance of any one c. q. t.

As also when, from disputes between the trustees, the rents have fallen into arrear: Wilson v. W., 2 Ke. 249.

Loss of part of trust funds is also ground for appointing a receiver: Evans v. Coventry, 5 D. M. & G. 911; 3 Drew. 75.

Or investments by two of the trustees in their own names without the consent of the third: Swale v. S., 22 Beav. 584.

On the disclaimer of one of two trustees, a receiver was appointed, with leave to either trustee to propose himself: Tait v. Jenkins, 1 Y. & C. C. 492; though in Browell v. Reid, 1 Ha. 434, the disclaimer, inactivity, or absence abroad of one of several trustees was not held sufficient ground.

Where trustees of leaseholds were directed by the will to repair according to the lessee's covenants out of rents, a receiver was appointed for the purpose of enforcing the obligation against the tenant for life: Re Fowler, F. v. Odell, 16 Ch. D. 723; secus, as between tenant for life and remainderman, where there was no such direction: Re Courtier, Coles v. Courtier, 34 Ch. D. 136, C. A.

Married Woman's Separate Estate :—

A receiver may be appointed by way of equitable execution of a married woman's separate estate: see Peace v. Waller, 24 Ch. D. 405; Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; inf. Sect. II. p. 795; and independently of sect. 25 of the Jud. Act, 1873, and on the principle of Kearns v. Leaf, 1 H. & M. 681, a receiver may be appointed to protect a fund out of which costs are payable; and accordingly where an action by a married woman had been dismissed with costs to be taxed and "payable out of her separate property, but not otherwise," the Court appointed a receiver of a fund coming to her under a will as her separate property: Cummins v. Perkins, (1899) 1 Ch. 16, C. A.

Infant's Estate :—

A receiver may be appointed of an infant's estate when there is no guardian: Hicks v. H., 3 Atk. 274; or the guardian is abroad: Westly v. W., 2 C. P. Coop. 210; or when the estate is being mismanaged: Aburrow v. A., 10 Sim. 602; Bennett v. Colley, 5 Sim. 181; and on petition or summons without suit: Re Leeming, 20 L. J. Ch. 550; Re Reynolds, 19 L. T. 311; Re Goode, 1 Ir. Ch. 256; and the rules that apply to appointing a receiver of a trust estate are applicable where the person beneficially interested is an infant, with this addition, that the Court considers chiefly what will be most beneficial to the infant's interests: see Simpson, Law of Infants, 433 seq.

Partnership :—

A receiver will be appointed of partnership property in cases of misconduct of one or more of the partners involving violation of the partnership contract, risk to the property, or the exclusion of the others or other from the right of personal intervention, or other unrighteous act whereby the due winding up of the affairs of the partnership might be endangered; but mere quarrels and disagreements are not a sufficient ground: Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Sw. 481; Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 J. & W. 589; Marshall v. Colman, 2 J. & W. 266; Hale v. H., 4 Beav. 369; Blakeney v. Dufaur, 15 Beav. 40; Baxter v. West, 28 L. J. Ch. 169.

The effect of appointing a receiver is to exclude all the partners from the management, and not, as in the case of an injunction, the misconducting members of the firm only; and therefore an injunction may be granted in cases where a receiver will not be appointed, and the refusal of a receiver does not prevent the granting of an injunction: see Lindl. 525; Kerr, Recrs. 77; Baxter v. West, sup., where Kindersley, V.-C., said that in such a case the Court would not appoint a receiver unless it saw that there was an actual present dissolution arising from the act of the parties, or that, at the hearing, it would, upon the merits, dissolve the partnership.

A receiver will be more readily appointed than a manager, as the Court will not interfere with the management of a partnership except for the purposes of winding up the concern and dividing the assets: Const v. Harris, T. & R. 517; Waters v. Taylor, 15 Ves. 13; Goodman v. Whitcomb, sup.; or until sale as a going concern, or for the purpose of preserving assets, carrying out contracts, and entering into necessary (but not speculative or onerous) contracts: Taylor v. Neate, 39 Ch. D. 538; see Form 28, sup. p. 761.

But the Court cannot confer on such a receiver greater powers than a partner could have had, e.g., to accept shares in a co., though fully paid, in satisfaction of a debt due to the firm: Niemann v. N., 43 Ch. D. 198, C. A.; explaining Weikersheim's case, L. R. 8 Ch. 831.

And where the object of the suit is not to dissolve, but to continue a partnership, the rule is not to appoint a receiver and manager, though there may be cases for such interim appointment: Hall v. H., 3 Mac. & G. 79; 12 Beav. 414, 416, n.; Roberts v. Eberhardt, Kay, 148; Rowlands v. Evans, 30 Beav. 302; see also Peek v. Trinsmaran Mining Co., 2 Ch. D. 115. Such an appointment (with direction for payment of debts) does not entitle a creditor, though his debt is ascertained and undisputed, to come to the Court for an order that the receiver should pay his debt: Blundell v. B., W. N. (86) 125.

As to the right of one partner to a receiver as against his co-partners, with or without reference to a dissolution, see Smith v. Jeyes, 4 Beav. 503; and cases collected, Lindl. 537.

After dissolution, the right of one partner to a receiver for the protection of his interests as against the others is recognized in Thomson v. Anderson, 9 Eq. 533, in which case security was given by the Defts to answer any demand Plt might establish with respect to the partnership dealings and transactions: and see Taylor v. Neate, 39 Ch. D. 538.

In Collins v. Barker, (1893) 1 Ch. 578, the solvent partner was held entitled, as against the trustees in the bankruptcy of his co-partners, to be appointed receiver and manager, but was required to give security, pass his accounts, furnish the trustees with proper accounts, allow them all reasonable access to the books, and pay the balances in his hands, as and when they reached a certain amount to be agreed upon, into Court or into a joint banking account of the trustees and himself.

If the existence of the partnership is questioned, a receiver will not usually be appointed: Fairburn v. Pearson, 2 Mac. & G. 144; and see Walker v. Hirsch, 27 Ch. D. 460.

A retired partner who had advanced the capital, and was liable for the debts, was appointed receiver without salary: Hoffman v. Duncan, 18 Jur. 69.

On the decease of one partner, a receiver may be appointed against the survivors who insist upon employing the assets of the deceased in the business: Madgwick v. Wimble, 6 Beav. 495.

A receiver of partnership debts will be appointed upon motion by solvent partner against the other's assignees: Freeland v. Stansfeld, 2 Sm. & G. 479.

As to the right of a deceased partner's repesve to a receiver, see Clegg v. Fishwick, 1 Mac. & G. 294; Davis v. Amer, 3 Dr. 64.

In general, where disputes arise between the trustee of a bankrupt partner and a solvent partner, the latter will be appointed receiver: Collins v. Barker, (1893) 1 Ch. 578, 584; Lindley on Part. 688.

Where part of the assets of a deceased consisted of his share of a partnership business, the Probate Court would not, against the wish of the surviving partner, appoint an admor pendente lite unless on a strong case of improper dealing with the business: Horrell v. Witts, L. R. 1 P. & M. 103.

If part owners of a mine cannot agree as to the working, the Court will appoint a manager and receiver: Jefferys v. Smith, 1 J. & W. 298; and see Lees v. Jones, 3 Jur. N. S. 954.

For the appointment of a receiver and manager of a colliery on the application of a purchaser in possession, who sought to rescind his contract on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentation, see Gibbs v. David, 20 Eq. 373.

Where tenants in common work a mine in partnership, or it is partnership property, the Court will not appoint a receiver and manager at the suit of one partner not seeking to dissolve; nor, if so seeking, before the hearing merely for non-co-operation; the managing partner can defray all necessary working expenses from profits: Roberts v. Eberhardt, Kay, 148.

Where a receiver has been appointed in a solrs' partnership which has expired by effluxion of time, the Deft (the former managing partner) will not be compelled to deliver over to the receiver the partnership books and accounts, if free access for examination of the books, &c. in the office be offered by the Deft: Dacie v. John, M'Cl. 206.

The remuneration of a receiver and manager appointed by partners to wind up their business is to be quantum meruit, and is not governed by any scale: Prior v. Bagster, W. N. (87) 194; 57 L. T. 760.

There is no jurisdiction to restrain a manager of a business, after his official position has ceased, from soliciting orders from the customers on his own behalf: Re Irish, I. v. I., 40 Ch. D. 49.

And see as to the appointment of receivers of partnership property, Lindl. 531 et seq.

Companies:—

The Court has jurisdiction, at the instance of an unpaid vendor, or mortgagee or debenture holder of a co. or corp., to appoint a receiver and manager, for the protection of the property or security: Boyle v. Bettws Colliery Co., 2 Ch. D. 727; Peek v. Trinsmaran Iron Co., Ib., 115; Hopkins v. Worcester, &c. Canal, 6 Eq. 437; Makins v. Ibotson & Sons, (1891) 1 Ch. 133; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, (1893) 1 Ch. 574; and where the debenture-holders' security is in jeopardy through the insolvency of the co., a receiver may be appointed, though the principal money is not immediately payable, and there has been no default in payment of interest:

McMahon v. North Kent Ironworks Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 148; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, sup.; Wildy v. Mid. Hants Ry. Co., 16 W. R. 409; 18 L. T. 73; Re Victoria Steamboats, Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 158; but as the appointment of a manager is made only with a view to the probable necessity of realization it should extend for a limited period only: In re Victoria Steamboats Ltd., (1897) 1 Ch. 158.

But where debentures constitute merely a charge upon a public undertaking, such as a railway or waterworks co., and confer no power to sell or stop the undertaking, the Court will not (in the absence of express stipulation or statutory enactment) appoint a manager at the instance of a debenture holder: Blaker v. Herts and Essex Water Co., 41 Ch. D. 399, 406; Gardner v. London, Chatham and Dover Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 201, 212; Potts v. Warwick and Birmingham Canal, Kay, 142; Re Yerbury; Ker v. Dent, 62 L. T. 55; and the holders of debentures issued by a tramway co. governed by the Tramways Act, 1870, are, in the event of default by the co., entitled only to the appointment of a receiver of the undertaking of the co. and the net earnings thereof; not to an order for the sale of the undertaking, or the appointment of a manager: Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 36, C. A., disapproving Bartlett v. West Metropolitan Tramways Co., (1893) 3 Ch. 437; (1894) 2 Ch. 286.

The independent jurisdiction of the Court is not affected by the Cos. Cl. Act, ss. 53, 54, providing that the appointment of a receiver on behalf of mortgagees of an undertaking shall be by two justices: see Fripp v. Chard Ry., 11 Ha. 241.

Similar provisions for the appointment of a receiver on behalf of debenture holders in railway and other joint stock cos. whose interest is in arrear, are contained in the Cos. Cl. Act, 1863 (26 & 27 V. c. 118), ss. 25, 26.

The case of a colliery co. rests upon a special footing, v. sup. p. 784.

A receiver and manager of a joint stock co. was appointed, while there was no properly constituted governing body, until a meeting could be called: Trade Auxiliary Co. v. Vickers, 16 Eq. 298; 21 W. R. 836; and see sup. Chap. XXXI., p. 710.

In winding-up, the official liquidator is in the position of the receiver of the property of the co. appointed by the Court for the benefit of all parties interested: Campbell v. Cie. Gen. de Bellegarde, 2 Ch. D. 181; Perry v. Oriental Hotels Co., 5 Ch. 420.

In the absence of special circumstances, he will generally, when a receiver is applied for in a debenture-holders' action, be the person appointed: Giles v. Nuttall, W. N. (85) 51; and although there is no general rule that a receiver already appointed must be displaced by the liquidator (see Bartlett v. North Avenue Co., 53 L. T. 611, 612), a receiver appointed before winding up has been removed, and the liquidator appointed in his place: Tottenham v. Swansea Zinc Co., 51 L. T. 61; 53 L. J. Ch. 776; 32 W. R. 716; Perry v. Oriental Hotels Co.; Campbell v. Cie. Gen. de Bellegarde, sup.; Palm. Comp. Prec. 625; and this course will ordinarily be taken where there are outstanding assets which can be more expeditiously and inexpensively got in under the winding-up machinery provided by the Companies Acts: Re Stubbs, Barney v. Stubbs, (1891) 1 Ch. 475, C. A.

But where, after a winding-up and appointment of a liquidator, debenture holders, having under their deed power to appoint a receiver to carry on the company's business, and manage and dispose of their undertaking and property, appointed a receiver, the Court held that the right of the debenture holders ought not to be interfered with, and gave leave to the receiver to take possession, but without prejudice to any question as to his powers other than of taking possession and selling the property: Re Pound, Son & Hutchins, 42 Ch. D. 402, C. A.; citing Re David Lloyd & Co., 6 Ch. D. 339; and see Re Stubbs, sup.; Strong v. Carlyle Press, (1893) 1 Ch. 268, C. A.

Where in each of the debentures a special power was given to a corp. (one of the debenture holders) to appoint a receiver, the corp. were held to be trustees of this power for all the debenture holders and bound to exercise it in their interest alone, so that an appointment made in the interest of the shareholders could not stand, and the Court had jurisdiction to interfere to carry out the trust and to appoint its own receiver: Re Maskelyne British Typewriter, Ltd.; Stuart v. M., (1898) 1 Ch. 133, C. A.

Where the Judge has refused to displace the receiver, the Court of Appeal will not interfere with his discretion in the absence of special circumstances: Re Stubbs; Barney v. Stubbs, (1891) 1 Ch. 475, C. A.

After a winding-up, the power to make calls is vested exclusively in the liquidator, but the receiver, where the debentures extend to uncalled capital, may be empowered to take proceedings in the name of the liquidator for getting in calls: Fowler v. Broad's Patent Night Light Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 724.

By the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, s. 4 (6), where an application is made to the Court to appoint a receiver on behalf of the debenture holders or other creditors of a company, the official receiver may be so appointed.

For a case in which an order was made that the receiver of a co. in liquidation, on his undertaking to leave the books of the co. in the possession of the liquidator, and indemnifying him against costs, should take proceedings necessary for getting in calls, using for that purpose the liquidator's name, and, if necessary, the name of the co., see Harrison v. St. Etienne Brewery Co., W. N. (93) 108; q. v., also, that in general it is better that the liquidator should be the person to take proceedings.

Under special circumstances, the unpaid vendor of an insolvent company in voluntary liquidation was appointed receiver without security or salary: Boyle v. Bettws, &c. Co., 2 Ch. D. 726; and in Budgett v. Improved Furnace Syndicate, W. N. (01) 23, the Plt, a director, was appointed receiver and manager subject to evidence that all the other debenture-holders consented.

The costs and remuneration of the receiver and manager in a debenture-holder's action have priority over the costs of the Plt: Batten v. Wedgwood Coal Co., 28 Ch. D. 317.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to authorize expenditure by the receiver and manager, prospectively or otherwise, (1) with a view to the sale of the property as a going concern and the carrying on of the business of the co. until sale; and (2) by way of salvage, to prevent imminent danger of loss of property, and as to the principles which ought to guide the Court in the exercise of such jurisdiction, see Securities and Properties Corp. v. Brighton Alhambra, Ltd., W. N. (93) 15; 62 L. J. Ch. 566; 68 L. T. 249; and Greenwood v. Algeiras Ry. Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 205, C. A.

The principle of Gardner v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Ch. 201, does not prevent the levying by distress of penalties imposed on a tramway co. for non-repair of their rails, and leave to distrain will be granted though a receiver has been appointed: Pegge v. Neath District Tramways Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 508.

As to the right of an unpaid vendor to an injunction and a receiver for enforcing his lien against a railway co., see sup., Chap. XXXI., pp. 720, 721.

Railway Companies Act, 1867:—

The Ry. Cos. Act, 1867 (30 & 31 V. c. 127), s. 4, which takes away from the judgment creditor of a railway co. the right of taking in execution the rolling stock and plant of the co., enables him to obtain the appointment of a receiver, and, if necessary, of a manager of the undertaking of the co., on application by petition: see Re The Scarborough and Whitby Ry. Co., Form 44, p. 769; Re Manchester and Milford Ry. Co., 14 Ch. D. 645, C. A. For form of petition, see D. C. F. 1118.

Applications under the Ry. Cos. Act, 1867, s. 4, are regulated by Gen. Ord. 24 Jan. 1868 (see L. R. 3 Ch. xxxv.), which provides (r. xxxi.) that every order appointing a receiver and manager under this section shall direct such accounts and inquiries as the Court may think fit for ascertaining the debts of the co., and the rights and priorities of the persons interested in the moneys to come to the hands of such receiver and manager.

The effect of this section is that a judgment creditor of a railway co., whose debt is unsatisfied, is entitled as of right to the appointment of a receiver, and, if the business of the co. is to be continued as a going concern, a manager will be appointed: Re Manchester and Milford Ry. Co., 14 Ch. D. 645, C. A.

No priority is gained by the judgment creditor who obtains an order under the section; but his receiver will not be discharged until all judgment creditors, whose judgments were so recovered as to entitle them to a receiving order have been satisfied, and a second receiver will not be appointed while there is a receiver already in possession: Re Mersey Ry. Co., 37 Ch. D. 610, C. A.

The provisions of the section apply to "every co. constituted by Act of Parliament for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and working a railway either alone or in conjunction with any other purpose" (sect. 3), even though the railway is merely ancillary, and not the primary object of the co. (e.g., a dock co., with power to construct a short line connecting the dock with other railways): Re E. & W. India Dock Co., 38 Ch. D. 576, C. A.; G. N. Ry. Co. v. Tahourdin, 13 Q. B. D. 320.

But a co. which has never commenced to acquire the land or construct the line authorized by the Act is not an "undertaking" of which a receiver can be appointed: Re Birming. and Lichfield Junc. Ry. Co., 18 Ch. D. 155.

The section (semble) does not affect rights of judgment creditors until the railway is open for public traffic, and until then the Court will not appoint a receiver: Re Knott End Ry. Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 8, C. A.

As a general rule, the directors, or secretary, or some of them, will be appointed managers, when they are acting fairly: Re Manchester and Milford Ry. Co., sup.; and while the concern is going the debenture holders have no voice in the management: Re Hull, Barnsley, &c. Ry. Co., 57 L. T. 82.

Where a scheme of arrangement under the Act has been filed, a judgment creditor who has previously served a notice of motion for equitable execution will not be regarded as in an exceptional position: Devas v. E. & W. India Dock Co., 58 L. J. Ch. 622; 61 L. T. 217.

The protection of the rolling stock continues, although the railway is afterwards closed for traffic: Midland Wagon Co. v. Potteries Ry. Co., 6 Q. B. D. 36.

The moneys received by such a receiver must be applied in the first place in providing for "working expenses": Re Eastern and Midland Ry. Co., 45 Ch. D. 367, C. A.; and as to the meaning of that expression, see S. C., and Re Wrexham, &c. Ry. Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 261, C. A.; Re Wrexham, &c. Ry. Co., No. 2, (1900) 2 Ch. 436; but where proceedings have been taken for the benefit as well of the debenture holders as of the other creditors of the co., the Court has power to order the costs to be paid by the receiver and manager in priority to their claims: Re Wrexham, &c. Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 261, C. A.

As to the effect of the appointment of a receiver of the tolls, profits, &c. of the undertaking, see Eyton v. Denbigh, &c. Ry., 6 Eq. 14, sup., p. 779.

Rates :—

According to Drewry v. Barnes, 3 Russ. 94, there can be no receiver of (parish) rates which are to be assessed at a future period; for until the assessment there is nothing to collect. See also Preston v. Corp. of Yarmouth, 7 Ch. 655, negating the right of creditors secured by bonds on the rates, and paid off by periodical drawings, to obtain immediate payment, or a receiver of the rates.

But in Gibbons v. Fletcher (cited 11 Ha. 251), Lord St. Leonards affirmed the right of mortgagees, under a special Act, of parish rates to a receiver.

Ship :—

See Burn v. Herlopson, 56 L. T. 722; 6 Asp. M. C. 126, C. A.; The Amphill, 5 P. D. 224.

Benefice, Office :—

A receiver may be appointed of the profits of a college fellowship: Feistel v. King's Coll., 10 Beav. 602; though in the earlier case of Berkeley v. King's Coll., Ib. 602 (V.-C., 6 Aug. 1830), the incumbrancer's motion for a receiver was refused with costs.

And see Grenfell v. Dean of Windsor, 2 Beav. 544, for the appointment of a receiver of a canonry without cure of souls.

But as a benefice with cure of souls cannot be charged (see 13 Eliz. c. 20, repealed by 43 G. III. c. 84, but revived by 57 G. III. c. 99, and unaffected by 1 & 2 V. c. 110; Kerr, 111), there cannot be a receiver of the profits of an ecclesiastical benefice: Hawkins v. Gathercole, 6 D. M. & G. 1; or of a pension allowed to a retiring incumbent under the Incumbents' Resignation Act, 1871 (34 & 35 V. c. 44), and thereby charged upon the revenues of the benefice: Gathercole v. Smith, 17 Ch. D. 1; secus, sums payable by way of compensation to a retired incumbent under the Union of Benefices Act, 1860 (23 & 24 V. c. 142), which can be validly mortgaged, and semble a receiver of which can be appointed: McBean v. Deane, 30 Ch. D. 520; and see Bates v. Brothers, 2 Sm. & G. 509.

A receiver of the office of master forester of the royal forest of Wyersdale was granted, with an injunction to stay owners of land in the forest from sporting therein: Blanchard v. Cawthorne, 4 Sim. 566; 6 Sim. 155.

Newspaper :—

Receiver and manager of, may be appointed until the hearing, on undertaking to print, publish, and edit the paper in the meantime, and forthwith to register himself as proprietor according to the statute: Chaplin v. Young, 6 L. T. 97; Kelly v. Hutton, 17 W. R. 425; 20 L. T. 201.

Pension or Salary :—

A receiver may be appointed of a government pension: Noad v. Backhouse, 2 Y. & C. C. 529; Molony v. Cruise, 30 L. R. Ir. 99; or it may be sequestrated: Willcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 323; Dent v. D., L. R. 1 P. & D. 366; v. sup., p. 454, provided the pension has not been made inalienable by the legislature (e.g., under the Army Act, 1881, 44 & 45 V. c. 58, s. 141): Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 127; Birch v. B., 8 P. D. 163; Heald v. Hay, 3 Giff. 467.

In respect of an annual allowance in the nature of fees payable by the Treasury, for which no action could be maintained, a receiver was refused: Cooper v. Reilly, 1 R. & M. 560; 2 Sim. 560; and see Ib. 564, n.

Pending an inquiry as to the validity of the assignment, a receiver of the profits of the office of clerk of the peace of the county was appointed: Palmer v. Vaughan, 3 Sw. 173.

A receiver of a national schoolmaster's salary may be appointed: Picton v. Cullen (1900), 2 I. R. 612, C. A.

SECTION II.—RECEIVER BY WAY OF EQUITABLE EXECUTION.

1. Appointment of Receiver by way of Equitable Execution—Receiver to act before Security given.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft, and upon reading the judgment dated —, 19—, and the Plt by his counsel undertaking to be answerable for the receipts and payments of the receiver [undertaking following Form 4, sup. p. 750], This Court doth appoint A. B., of &c., to receive the rents and profits of the real estate of the Deft in the said judgment mentioned; but this appointment is to be without prejudice to the rights of any prior incumbrancers upon the said estate who may think proper to take possession of the same by virtue of their respective securities, or if any prior incumbrancer is in possession, then without prejudice to such possession; And it is ordered that the said A. B. do, on or before the — day of —, 19—, give security as such receiver pursuant to O. L, 16; And it is ordered that the tenants of the said real estate do, subject as aforesaid, attorn and pay their rents in arrear and growing rents to the said A. B. as such receiver; And it is ordered that such receiver be at liberty, if he shall think proper (but not otherwise), out of the rents and profits to be received by him, to keep down the interest upon the prior incumbrances according to their priorities and be allowed such payments (if any) on passing his accounts; And it is ordered that the said A. B. as such receiver do pass his accounts and pay his balances appearing due on such accounts, or such part thereof as shall be certified as proper to be paid by him in or towards payment of what shall for the time being be due in respect of the said judgment; And it is ordered that the costs of this order and of the receivership be paid out of the sums received by the receiver, but not to be added to the judgment debt as against the debtor, and any of the parties are to be at liberty to apply in Chambers as they may be advised.

2. Another Form.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft and for C. D., Let X., the receiver in this action, appointed by an order dated &c., and who by the said order dated &c., was appointed interim receiver of the share and interest hereinafter mentioned, be continued as such receiver without further security to receive the share and interest of the Deft in a syndicate or joint undertaking known as &c., and of and in the property or effects belonging in equity to the persons comprising such syndicate, by way of equitable execution for enforcing against the Deft the said order dated &c., whereby the Deft was ordered to pay into Court &c., Deft to hand over to such receiver all scrip and other papers relating to such share and interest.—Usual directions to pass accounts and pay balances as the Judge shall direct.—Re Coney, C. v. Bennett, Chitty, J., 12 June, 1885, A. 1849.

3. Another Form—Taxed Costs.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plt, and upon hearing &c., for the Deft C. D., This Court doth appoint A. B., of &c., without salary or security to receive the taxed costs of C. D. in an action of &c. in the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster, which, by an order in that action, are directed to be paid to C. D., and to satisfy thereout (so far as the same will extend) £—, the amount of principal &c. remaining unsatisfied payable to the Plt in this action under the judgment dated &c. Liberty to receiver to apply to Palatine Court for payment of such costs to himself. Injunction against C. D. applying for, dealing with, or receiving the said costs payable to him under order of Palatine Court until payment of the said £—.—Westhead v. Riley, Chitty, J., 21 Dec. 1883, B. 1684.

4. Another Form—Receiver appointed on Application of a Judgment Creditor.

UPON motion for judgment &c., Let a proper person be appointed to receive the rents and profits of the real estate set forth in the third paragraph of the defence of the Deft I. J., but without prejudice to the rights of any prior incumbrancer, and if any prior incumbrancer is in possession, then without prejudice to such possession; And the tenants of the said real estate are, subject as aforesaid, to attorn and pay their rents in arrear and growing rents to such receiver. Receiver to pass his accounts and pay balances as the Judge shall direct.—Wells v. Kilpin, M. R., 25 May, 1874, B. 1590; 18 Eq. 298.

See, as to attornment clause in this form, Hewett v. Mansell, M. R., 16 April, 1880, 24 Sol. J. 485 (that if first receiver be in possession no attornment clause should be inserted in the order).

5. Another Form—Undertaking not to act on the Order without the Judge's Direction—Liberty for Receiver at his Discretion to keep down Interest on prior Incumbrances.

UPON motion &c., and the Plt by his counsel undertaking on behalf of himself and F. S. (the receiver) that they will not act under this order except by the direction of the Judge, This Court doth appoint F. S. of &c. without security to receive the rents and profits of the freehold and leasehold estates of the Deft situate at &c., but this appointment is to be without prejudice to the rights of any prior incumbrancers upon the said estates who may think proper to take possession of the same by virtue of their respective securities, or if any prior incumbrancer is in possession, then without prejudice to such possession; Tenants of the said freehold and leasehold estates to attorn; Receiver is to be at liberty if he shall think proper (but not otherwise) out of the rents and profits to be received by him to keep down the interest on the prior incumbrances according to their priorities, and to be allowed such payments (if any) in passing his accounts.—Receiver to pass his accounts and pay his balances as the Judge shall direct.—See Hewett v. Murray, V.-C. Bacon, 13 Feb. 1885, A. 725; 54 L. J. Ch. 572.

NOTES.

JURISDICTION TO APPOINT.

Previously to the Jud. Acts, and to the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 V. c. 110), a Plt "having a judgment which, owing to legal impediments, could not be enforced at law, came into equity, not for the purpose of enforcing such a right by way of charge as is given by the Act of 1 & 2 V. c. 110, but to have what is called equitable execution; that is to say, to have the lands delivered in execution to him in equity when he would have got them at law in the ordinary process but for certain difficulties existing": Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275, 290, C. A., per Cotton, L. J., referring to Neate v. The Duke of Marlborough, 3 My. & C. 407; and in such a case relief was given by granting a receiver.

Equitable execution was most commonly required in cases where the judgment debtor was entitled to an interest in land not extendible under the writ of elegit. For an historical statement of the law on this subject, and as to judgments against cs. q. t., see Lewin, 976 et seq.

Under the extensive power of appointing receivers conferred on the Court by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), this form of relief is of frequent occurrence; and the remedy by appointment of a receiver may now be regarded as available not merely—(1) for its primary purpose of the preservation of property, but (2) as a method of enforcing in many cases the judgments of the Court.

Where the issue of an elegit, fi. fa., or the like process, would be ineffectual for obtaining payment of the judgment debt, the Court, since the Jud. Acts, which in this respect confirm and expand, where defective, the remedies of judgment creditors, will grant equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver on the application of a judgment creditor (by application in the action and not upon petition or summons, under 27 & 28 V. c. 112, and O. LV, 9b, see Re Nixon, W. N. (86) 191): Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. 743, 749;

Exp. Evans, 13 Ch. D. 252; Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275, C. A.; as also where (a) sequestration, see Whiteley v. Learoyd, 56 L. T. 846; Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; (b) writ of attachment (in case of defaulting trustee), see Coney v. Bennett, 29 Ch. D. 993, would be the ordinary remedy, but could not be enforced.

But this mode of procedure, though called equitable execution, is in truth not execution, but equitable relief: Re Shephard, Atkins v. S., 43 Ch. D. 131, C. A.; and is only available where there is some impediment in the way of execution at law, and special circumstances make the appointment "just or convenient" within the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8): Hatton v. Haywood, 9 Ch. 235; Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Co. v. Parkinson, 22 Q. B. D. 173, C. A.; Re Shephard, Atkins v. S., sup.; Holmes v. Millage, (1893) 1 Q. B. 551, C. A.; Re Hartley, Nuttall v. Whittaker, 66 L. T. 588 (q. v. as to making application in Chambers); and would have enabled the Court of Chancery to make the appointment before the Jud. Act; and the Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver merely because it would be a more convenient mode of obtaining satisfaction of a judgment than the usual mode of execution: Harris v. Beauchamp Bros., (1894) 1 Q. B. 801, C. A.

Where the circumstances are exceptional (as, e.g., if it is shown that there is immediate danger to the property, and that the receiver will do nothing to prejudice the rights of the other side) the appointment may be made on an ex parte application: Minter v. Kent, Sussex, and General Land Soc., 72 L. T. 186, C. A.

A receivership order, though apparently made in a case where execution could have been had by elegit, was held to operate as a "taking in execution by process of law" within the meaning of a forfeiture clause in a will: Blackman v. Fysh, (1892) 3 Ch. 20, C. A.

By O. L. 15a, "in every case in which an application is made for the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution, the Court or a Judge, in determining whether it is just or convenient that such appointment should be made, shall have regard to the amount of the debt claimed by the applicant, to the amount which may probably be obtained by the receiver, and to the probable costs of his appointment, and may, if they or he shall so think fit, direct any inquiries on these or other matters before making the appointment": see also J. v. K., W. N. (84) 63.

By the Judgments Act, 1864 (27 & 28 V. c. 112), s. 1, no judgment entered up after the 29th of July, 1864, is to affect any land (of whatever tenure) "until such land shall have been actually delivered in execution by virtue of a writ of elegit or other lawful authority in pursuance of such judgment." But this section as from 1st July, 1901, is repealed by the Land Charges Act, 1900 (63 & 64 V. c. 26), v. inf. Vol. III. p. 2071.

Formerly, before equitable execution was applied for, it was necessary to issue a writ of elegit, and the practice continued after the 27 & 28 V. c. 112; but it has been decided that the appointment of a receiver, although not perfected by the giving of security (Exp. Evans, Re Watkins, 13 Ch. D. 252, C. A.), amounts to actual delivery in execution by a lawful authority within the meaning of the section: Hatton v. Haywood, 9 Ch. 229; Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. 743, C. A.; and that it is therefore not necessary to issue a writ of elegit: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275, C. A.; Exp. Evans, sup.; and if the land has been actually delivered in execution by the appointment of a receiver or other "process of execution," registration of such process is not necessary to give the creditor a charge on the land in priority to persons claiming under the debtor, including a purchaser for value without notice: Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. 743, C. A.; but such registration is requisite before a summary order for sale can be obtained under s. 4 of the same Act: S. C.; and as to the remedy by sale, v. inf. Chap XLVII., "MORTGAGES."

The appointment of a receiver, however, will not amount to an "actual delivery in execution" of a legal remainder in real estate within the meaning of sect. 1 of the Judgments Act, 1864, so as to entitle the judgment creditor to a sale under s. 4: Re Harrison and Bottomley, (1899) 1 Ch. 465, C. A.; and see Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, (1895) 2 Ch. 411.

PROCEDURE SUBSEQUENTLY TO JUDICATURE ACTS.

Since the Jud. Acts it is not necessary for a creditor who has obtained judgment in a pending action to institute another action for the purpose of obtaining equitable execution; but application should be made in the action in which judgment was obtained: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275, C. A.; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, C. A.; though the writ contains no claim for a receiver, and though final judgment has been given, as the action is "pending" within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (7), so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied, and the expression "interlocutory order," in s. 25 (8), is not confined to orders before final judgment: Salt v. Cooper, sup.; Hart v. H., 18 Ch. D. 670, 680; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75, C. A.; and a receiver may be appointed to enforce payment of costs in proceedings for taxation under the Solicitors Act, 1843, s. 45: In re Peace and Waller, 24 Ch. D. 495, C. A.

Where there is an existing receiver, the judgment creditor may obtain the benefit of his appointment; and where a receiver had been appointed in a partnership action in the Ch. D., a creditor who had recovered judgment against the firm in the Q. B. D. obtained an order in the Ch. D. giving him a charge on the partnership moneys coming to the receiver, but upon a submission that the charge was to be dealt with according to the order of the Court: Kewney v. Attrill, 34 Ch. D. 345; and see Hope v. Croydon and Norwood Tramways Co., 34 Ch. D. 730 (where upon judgment in a debenture holder's action, the powers of the existing receiver were extended so as to give the Plt equitable execution against property not comprised in the debentures); and the Court may appoint another receiver, but not to act until the earlier receiver has been discharged: Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544.

Where before judgment in an admon action, a creditor obtained judgment against the executor, the receiver in the action was directed to pay the debt and costs without prejudice to the question whether they were to be allowed the executor: Re Womersley, Etheridge v. W., 29 Ch. D. 557.

A receiver by way of equitable execution has been appointed to receive so much of a legacy to which a judgment debtor was entitled in expectancy as, when receivable, would satisfy the debt and costs: Macnicoll v. Parnell, 35 W. R. 773; of an equitable reversionary interest in personal estate: Tyrrell v. Painton, (1895) 1 Q. B. 202, C. A.; of a married woman's reversionary interest under a will: Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; and of her separate property, in the absence of the trustees in proceedings by her for taxation of costs: Re Peace and Waller, 24 Ch. D. 405, C. A.; of the share of the debtor as one of the next of kin of a deceased intestate to whom admon had not been taken out: Mullane v. Ahern, 28 L. R. Ir. 105; of a life interest in settled funds: Oliver v. Lowther, 28 W. R. 381; 42 L. T. 47; of debts or sums of money payable to the judgment debtor to which garnishee proceedings were not applicable: Westhead v. Riley, 25 Ch. D. 413; Form 3, sup. p. 792; e.g., a deposit receipt held in the joint names of the judgment debtor and another, even though the whole beneficial interest was in the former: O'Donovan v. Goggin, 30 L. R. Ir. 579; of the tolls and earnings of a railway co.: Kingston v. Cowbridge Ry. Co., 41 L. J. Ch. 152; of the rents and profits of land used as a theatre, secus of moneys paid by the public for entrance to the theatre: Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, (1894) 3 Ch. 338, C. A.; or secus, the pension of a retired officer, which is rendered inalienable by the Army Act: Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 127; and as to the jurisdiction under s. 53, sub-s. 2, of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, to order payment of a pension which is made inalienable by Indian legislation to the trustee in bankruptcy of the holder, see Re Saunders, Exp. S., (1895) 2 Q. B. 424, C. A.; or where it depends on the discretion of trustees whether anything should be paid to the judgment debtor: Reg. v. Judge of Lincolnshire County Court, 20 Q. B. D. 167; and there is no jurisdiction to declare a charge on reversionary personalty: Flegg v. Prentis, (1892) 2 Ch. 428; or the future earnings of the judgment debtor: Holmes v. Millage, (1893) 1 Q. B. 551, C. A.

Where a defaulting trustee ordered to pay money into Court was out of the jurisdiction, a receiver was appointed of his equitable interest in this country, notwithstanding O. XLII, 4, which, even apart from r. 8, is not to be deemed exhaustive: Re Coney, C. v. Bennett, 29 Ch. D. 993; and see Re Whiteley, W. v. Learoyd, W. N. (87) 37; 56 L. T. 846.

If the receiver is required merely for the purpose of giving a charge, and it is not intended he should take possession, the appointment may be made without security, on the judgment creditor and receiver undertaking that he shall not act without the leave of the Court: Hewett v. Murray, 54 L. J. Ch.

But as the equitable relief can be granted only when proper parties are before the Court, a receiver of the property of a deceased person, though upon application made before the death, cannot be appointed in the absence of any person to represent the estate: In re Shephard, Atkins v. S., 43 Ch. D. 131, C. A.; and quære whether at law execution can be issued against the estate of a deceased person without any leave of the Court: Ib.

The receivership affects only the interest of the debtor: Wills v. Luff, 38 Ch. D. 200; and the judgment creditor cannot, by giving notice to the trustees, obtain priority over prior incumbrancers of a chose in action: Arden v. A., 29 Ch. D. 702; Scott v. Lord Hastings, 4 K. & J. 633.

Judgment creditors having obtained equitable execution against property subject to a lien gained priority over a subsequent foreign liquidation which occurred before the lien was paid off: Levasseur v. Mason and Barry, (1891) 2 Q. B. 73, C. A.

For cases in which injunctions have been granted in aid of equitable execution, see Westhead v. Riley, 25 Ch. D. 413; Oliver v. Lowther, 28 W. R. 381; Archer v. A., W. N. (86) 66; 42 L. T. 47. In the case of a reversionary interest in personal estate, where a judgment creditor has obtained a receivership order, the Court has no jurisdiction to make a declaration of charge in his favour with a view to a sale: Flegg v. Prentis, (1892) 2 Ch. 428; De Peyrecase v. Nicholson, 71 L. T. 255.

A form of relief analogous to but in substance distinguishable from equitable execution exists by the appointment of a receiver to protect a fund out of which costs are payable: see Cummins v. Perkins, (1899) 1 Ch. 16, C. A.; Kearns v. Leaf, 1 H. & M. 681, ante, pp. 782, 786.

Before the Jud. Acts, the Court of Chancery would give assistance to a judgment creditor by way of equitable execution to recover money under the control of the Court which could not be reached by a fi. fa.: Watts v. Jeffryes, 3 M & C. 412; and since the Acts a charging order can be made, without the appointment of a receiver, upon cash in Court; and having regard to S. C. F. R. r. 99, notice to the paymaster is sufficient, and no stop order is required: Brereton v. Edwards, 21 Q. B. D. 488, C. A.

As against a railway co., a judgment creditor to whom the land has been delivered under an elegit is entitled to a receiver of the tolls and earnings: Kingston v. Cowbridge Ry., 41 L. J. Ch. 152.

A receiver will not be appointed in favour of a judgment creditor of the rents of lands charged with a sum payable at the death of the tenant for life in esse: Kenney v. K., Ir. Rep. 4 Eq. 181.

The appointment of a receiver of the goods of the judgment debtor without power to realize is not an equitable execution, and does not make the judgment creditor a "secured creditor" within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 9: Exp. Charrington, 22 Q. B. D. 187; Re Potts, Exp. Taylor, (1893) 1 Q. B. 648; Re Lough Neagh Ship Co. (1896), 1 I. R. 29; nor does it amount to putting in force an execution within sect. 163 of the Companies Act, 1862, and therefore the Court will not under sect. 87 allow further proceedings thereunder: Croshaw v. Lyndhurst Ship Co., (1897) 2 Ch. 154. See also as to effect of receivership order, Levasseur v. Mason and Barry, (1891) 2 Q. B. 73, C. A.

The appointment of a receiver of a reversionary interest in the proceeds of sale of real estate does not create a charge, but it operates as an injunction to restrain the Deft from himself receiving the proceeds of sale: Tyrrell v. Painton, (1895) 1 Q. B. 202, per Lindley, L. J.

An ex parte order for a receiver of a share of residuary estate devolving on a judgment debtor, though notice is given to the executor, does not confer a "mortgage charge or lien" so as to make the creditor a secured creditor within sects. 9 and 168 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883: Re Potts, Exp. Taylor, (1893) 1 Q. B. 648.

The practice of granting an ex parte injunction restraining dealing with property over the return of a summons for a receiver has not been adopted in the Chancery Division.

SECTION III.—POWERS OF MANAGEMENT—SPECIAL DIRECTIONS.

1. Tenant to attorn and pay Rent.

UPON motion &c., and upon reading an order [or orders] dated &c. [If so, and the Master's certificate dated &c.], whereby it appears that A. has been duly appointed receiver of &c.; and an affidavit of the said A. and of B., filed &c., of personal service of the said order [or orders] [If so, and certificate], and of notice in writing, signed by the said A. on C. of &c., requiring the said C. to attorn to him as such receiver for the [Describe the property], occupied by him, situate at —, being part of the said estates, and to pay his rent in arrear and growing rent for the same to the said receiver; and of the said C.'s refusal [or neglect] to attorn to and become the tenant of the said receiver, or to pay any rent to him; and an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the said C.; Let the said C., within (eight) days after service of this order, attorn to and become the tenant of the said A., the receiver appointed in this action in respect of the &c., occupied by the said C., situate at —, part of the estate of the testator &c.

For such order, see Garlick v. Locke, V.-C. W., 18 Dec. 1844, A. 462.

For order for committal of person for obstructing receiver in collecting the rents, and persuading tenants not to attorn and pay their rents, and for distraining after notice of order, see Marsh v. Goodall, M. R., 13 Jan. 1857, B. 288.

For forms of application, see D. C. F. 874.

2. If Payment of Arrears ordered.

AND Let the said C., also within &c., pay to the said A., the receiver, the sum of £—, being the amount due from him for arrears of rent in respect of the said —, to the — day of —.

3. Separate Accounts of Rents and Personalty.

AND Let such receiver keep separate accounts of the said rents and profits, and of the said personal estate, and from time to time pass his accounts, and pay the respective balances which shall be certified to be due from him as the Judge shall direct.

For like direction that receiver keep separate account of real and personal estate, see Hill v. Hibbit, 18 L. T. 553.

4. Receiver to distrain.

“LET C., the receiver of the rents and profits of the estates of &c., be at liberty to distrain upon the goods and chattels of the several tenants named in the said affidavit, for the several amounts of rent due and owing from the said tenants; And Let such distrains be made in the name of the Deft A., in whom the legal estate in the said &c. is vested.”—Gee v. Atherton, V.-C. E., 8 May, 1844, MSS.

For orders for receiver to distrain for rents in arrear, and for growing rents, if not paid within two months after every half-year, see Lambrozzo v. Francia, L. C., 16 April, 1746, B. 310; 30 July, 1747, B. 425.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 875.

5. Receiver to bring Action for Rent, and Tenants to attorn.

LET &c., the receiver of the rents and profits of the charity lands in &c., be at liberty, in the names of the Defts, to bring actions in the (proper County Court) against the several persons named in his said affidavit, for recovery of the arrears of rent due from them respectively to the said charity; And Let R. &c., in the said affidavit named, who are respectively in possession of part of the said estates, respectively [If on notice, on or before &c., or within &c.] attorn tenants to the said receiver.—A. G. v. Phipps, M. R., in Chambers, 2 Aug. 1853, A. 1367.

For order for receiver to present petition in the name of trustees of testator's will, and take other necessary proceedings, to recover a sum in Court in another matter, the parties to be indemnified out of the estate, see Turner v. T., V.-C. K., in Chambers, 11 June, 1858, B. 1291.

6. Receiver to keep down Interest.

“LET such receiver, out of the rents and profits to be received by him, keep down the interest and payments in respect of the said incumbrances according to their priorities, and be allowed the same on passing his accounts.”—Direction to pass accounts and pay balances as the Judge shall direct.—Davis v. D. Marlborough, L. C., 5 March, 1818, A. 873; 2 Swa. 115; 1 Swa. 74.

If the order only directs that the interest on the mortgage be kept down, the surplus rents will go to the mortgagor, and not be applied in reduction of principal: see Gresley v. Adderley, 1 Swa. 573.

7. Receiver to distribute Balances.

UPON the application &c.—Let the said W. H., within such time as shall be fixed by the Master's certificate of the allowance of his account, pay the balances that may be certified to be due from him in respect of the said houses and premises so bequeathed to A. E., deceased, for her life, with remainders over as follows, that is to say, one half part of one third part thereof to W. J. H., and the other half part of such third part to J. A. H., being the two children of the late Deft by S. H., one third part of one other third part thereof to the Plts J. H. and F. S. his wife, and the remaining two third parts of such third part to C. P. as the assignee of the Plts G. H. S. the younger and H. G. S.; and as from the date of the death of the late Deft M. T., one half part of the remaining third part thereof to J. E. C., and the remaining half part of such third part to W. C. and E. C. his wife, the said J. E. C. and E. C. being the only two surviving children of the late Deft M. T. named in the will of J. A. the testator living at the date of the death of their mother, the said M. T., formerly M. C., afterwards M. W., both of whom have attained the age of twenty-one years.—Holland v. Allsop, M. R., 31 May, 1876, A. 1114.

8. Receiver to expend a Limited Sum in Repairs.

LET the receiver appointed &c., be at liberty to expend a sum not exceeding £— in the repair of the hereditaments at &c., part of the estates in question in this action, such repairs to be done according to the specification and plan marked A. in the affidavit of M. (surveyor) referred to, and to the satisfaction of the said M.; and the said receiver is to be allowed what he shall so expend in passing his accounts.—Dyer v. D., V.-C. S., in Chambers, 10 May, 1859, A. 1622.

9. Receiver to repair Farm Buildings in accordance with Specification.

LET the works and repairs on the farm in the occupation of &c., at &c., mentioned in the affidavit of &c., be done and executed by &c., according to the specifications and estimates contained in the exhibits marked K. and L. in the said affidavit referred to: And Let the said works and repairs be done and executed under the direction and superintendence of the Deft T., the receiver of the rents and profits of the trust estates in question in these actions; And Let, upon the said works and repairs being certified to have been properly executed according to the said several specifications and estimates, the said receiver be at liberty to pay to the said &c., the sum of £—, and be allowed the same on passing his accounts; And Let timber of the value of £— be taken off the said trust estates for the said repairs and works.—Thellusson v. Woodford, M. R., in Chambers, 12 April, 1855, B. 714; and see Dolman v. Curling, V.-C. K., in Chambers, 28 July, 1853, A. 1325.

For order for receiver to lease and rebuild, using timber, see Unwin v. U., V.-C. K., in Chambers, 16 March, 1853, B. 676.

For order for receiver to accept a surrender of a lease of part of the estates, on paying up arrears of rent and rates and taxes, see Dyer v. D., V.-C. S., in Chambers, 20 May, 1859, A. 1622.

For order for receiver to grant a licence to get clay and brick earth on a part of the estate, and to manufacture bricks thereon, the licensee paying a rent according to the number of bricks made, see Mellor v. Woodward, V.-C. S., in Chambers, 10 May, 1859, 1858, B. 1622.

10. Receiver to cut and sell Timber.

LET W., the receiver appointed in this action, be at liberty to cut down the timber and other trees mentioned in the affidavit of &c., filed &c., and to sell the same, and include the proceeds thereof in his accounts as such receiver; And Let the said receiver pay and retain out of such proceeds the costs, charges, and expenses of the applicants properly incurred of this application, and of cutting down and selling the said timber and other trees, such costs, charges, and expenses to be ascertained at Chambers, and allowed the receiver in his accounts.—A. G. v. Boothby, V.-C. K., in Chambers, 7 Feb. 1860, A. 659.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 876.

11. Inquiry as to cutting Timber, with consequent Directions.

LET an inquiry be made whether there are any and what timber or other trees standing or growing on the estates &c., which are fit to be cut down; And Let such timber and other trees as shall appear to be fit to be cut down be cut down and sold with the approbation of the Judge; And Let a proper person, upon his giving security, be appointed to receive the proceeds of such sale, and be at liberty to pay and retain thereout such costs, charges, and expenses of surveying, valuing, and selling such timber and other trees as the Judge shall allow.—Direction to pass accounts and pay balances as the Judge shall direct.—See Hitchcock v. H., V.-C., 10 Feb. 1827, A. 589.

12. Receiver to pay off Advance for renewing Leasehold.

AND Let the said receiver pass his accounts &c.; And Let the balances of the receiver's accounts be from time to time applied in paying the interest of the sum so to be advanced for such renewal as aforesaid, at the rate of £5 p. c. per ann., and in redeeming and paying off the principal of such last-mentioned sum, so far as the same will from time to time extend; And Let such payments be allowed to him in passing his accounts.—Direction to pass accounts and pay balances as the Judge shall direct.—See Long v. E. Macclesfield, 28 Nov. 1796, MSS.

13. Receiver to pay Widow's Annuity.

LET W., the receiver appointed &c., be at liberty, out of the moneys from time to time received by him on account of the rents and profits, interest, dividends, and annual produce of the real and personal estate of L., the testator in &c., to pay to F. the annuity of £— bequeathed to her by the will of the testator during her widowhood; And Let the receiver be allowed such payments in passing his accounts.—Cranswick v. Pearson, M. R., in Chambers, 1 March, 1862, A. 415.

14. Receiver to pay Annuities.

LET the receiver appointed &c., out of the rents and profits of the real estates of H., the testator in &c., pay to the annuitants in his will named the arrears now due (to them in respect) of their several annuities, and also (keep down the growing payments of) such annuities, as the same shall from time to time become due, at the times and in the manner in the said will mentioned; such payments to be allowed in his accounts.—Hopkins v. Walker, V.-C. K., 7 May, 1853, A. 1129.

For order for receiver to pay interest of mortgages, and annuitants, without prejudice, they agreeing to refund, should the Court so order, see Reynolds v. James, V.-C., 29 May, 1834, B. 1099.

As to duty of mortgagee's receiver under s. 24 (8), of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, to pay arrears of interest due to mortgagee, see National Bank v. Kenny, (1898) 1 I. R. 197.

15. Inquiry as to Rent-charges, and Receiver to pay the same pari passu.

UPON motion &c.—Let, in addition to the inquiry directed by the order dated &c. [see sup., Section I., Form 45, p. 770], the following inquiries be made, that is to say; 2. An inquiry what rent-charges have been granted by the Defts, the M. and M. Ry. Co., to vendors to them of lands purchased for the purposes of their undertaking; 3. An inquiry who are now entitled to such rent-charges respectively; 4. An inquiry how such rent-charges respectively are secured; 5. An inquiry what is now due in respect of such rent-charges respectively; And Let, notwithstanding the said order dated &c., the receiver appointed by that order apply any balances now or hereafter in his hands after payment of the working expenses of the railway in meeting arrears of rent-charges, and the accruing payments thereof rateably pari passu so far as the same will extend; And Let the Plt be at liberty to attend the proceedings under the said order dated &c.—Forster v. The Manchester and Milford Ry. Co., V.-C. H., 9 Dec. 1875, A. 2037.

16. Liberty to pursue Remedies in respect of Right of Way notwithstanding Possession of Receiver.

LET the applicants be at liberty, notwithstanding that the receiver is in receipt of the rents of the property, to pursue any remedies, or do any acts which they may lawfully pursue or do in respect of the rights of way to which the applicants claim to be entitled over the paths coloured &c., referred to in the said judgment, dated &c. (the applicants by their counsel undertaking not to do any more injury to the property than 40s. without further leave of the Court).—Reserve costs.—Liberty to apply.—Lane v. Capsey, Chitty, J., 5 Aug. 1891, B. 1083; (1891) 3 Ch. 411.

NOTES.

POSSESSION OR ATTORNMENT.

If the appointment is of the rents of real or leasehold estate, the owner, if in possession, will be ordered to deliver possession to the receiver: Griffith

v. G., 2 Ves. 401; Davies v. D. of Marlborough, 2 Swa. 116; Baylies v. B., 1 Col. 548.

A writ of assistance, for which the writ of possession has been substituted (see O. XLVII, 2), might be issued to put a receiver in possession of land: Sharp v. Carter, 3 P. Wms. 379, n.; A. G. v. Tastett, V.-C. K., 31 Jan. 1855, Reg. Min. H. T. 125; but not to aid a receiver in distraining for rent: White v. Phipps, Sau. & Sc. 88; and for the purpose of recovering possession of, and preserving, chattels which have been ordered to be delivered to a receiver, the writ may still be issued: see Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165; Cazet de la Borde v. Othon, 23 W. R. 110.

If the owner is not in possession, the tenants will be ordered to attorn and pay their rents in arrear and growing rents to the receiver: see sup. Form 1, p. 749; but this direction should be omitted where the estates are out of England (see as to Ireland, Re Trant, M. R., in Chambers, 8 July, 1857, B. 1366; S. C., 2 Sol. Jour. 11; from which it appears that, on reconsideration, the M. R. considered the direction to tenants of Irish estates to attorn should not have been inserted).

For form where there are other incumbrancers, see Form 24, p. 759.

By the Distress for Rent Act, 1737 (11 G. II. c. 19), s. 11, attornments by tenants to strangers were made void, unless made in pursuance of a judgment (at law, or) decree or order (of a Court of Equity).

If the person in possession refuses to attorn, application should be made that he do: Reid v. Middleton, 1 T. & R. 455; the order is without costs; but if his tenancy appears, an order may be obtained that he deliver up possession, or pay an occupation rent: Hobhouse v. Hollcombe, 2 D. & S. 208; and a tenant who had not attorned was ordered to pay arrears in fourteen days, with costs: Hobson v. Sherwood, 19 Beav. 575; but the Court will not, by an interlocutory order before the hearing, charge a party in possession, and ordered to pay an occupation rent, with such rent previous to the date of the order: Lloyd v. Mason, 2 M. & Cr. 487.

And where the possession, as of the mortgagor, is rightful, occupation rent will be payable from the date of demand by the receiver, and not from the date of the order appointing the receiver: Yorkshire Bldg. Co. v. Mullan, 35 Ch. D. 125.

The further order to attorn and pay rent should be on notice, and should limit a time: O. XLI, 5; and may be enforced by attachment: O. XLII, 7, 26; and for order to turn over to the Queen's (Holloway) prison a tenant, brought up by habeas after attachment, for not attorning, see Masterman v. Prance, V.-C. P., 12 July, 1852, B. 906.

As to the effect of an attornment as creating a tenancy by estoppel between the tenant and receiver, but that it does not enure for the benefit of the person ultimately found to be entitled to the legal estate, see Evans v. Mathias, 7 E. & B. 602; Kerr, 177.

LETTING.

Subsequently to 15 & 16 V. cc. 80, 86, and Cons. Ord. 24, r. 1 (see now O. LV), a direction to manage or set and let has not been inserted, the Judge having power to give any direction as to the management.

When a receiver of the tolls and stallages of a corp. has been appointed at the instance of their mortgagees, such appointment will not be allowed to affect the powers of letting the stalls, &c. given to the corp. by their special Act, under which the mortgages were authorized: De Winton v. Mayor of Brecon, 26 Beav. 533, 542.

The power of a receiver to grant leases is limited to such parol leases as are authorized by the Stat. of Frauds (29 Car. II. c. 2), s. 2: Kerr, 187, 188; but in an ordinary case a receiver may, without applying for the sanction of the Judge, let for a year certain, or less, or for any term not exceeding three years: Shuff v. Holdaway, M. R., in Chambers, 27 March, 1863, Dan. 1443.

According to the older cases, a receiver could not let even for one year or turn out tenants, or bring ejectment, without (the Master's) approbation: Wynne v. L. Newborough, 1 Ves. jun. 165; though he had power to determine tenancies from year to year by notice to quit: Doe v. Read, 12 East, 57.

The Court would not even direct an inquiry whether it would be for the benefit of an infant entitled in remainder for the receiver to lease for years : Gibbins v. Howell, 3 Mad. 469.

But see Re Bell, 6 Ves. 419, where, the property being small, an order was made without reference for a trustee of an infant's estate to let with the Master's approbation during the infant's minority.

And it has been held (Wilkinson v. Colley, 5 Burr. 2694; Doe v. Read, 12 East, 57, recognized in Jones v. Phipps, L. R. 3 Q. B. 567, 572), that notice given in his own name by a receiver appointed by the Court is a valid notice to quit.

DISTRAINING BY OR AGAINST.

Orders have been made that receivers might be at liberty to distrain : ante, p. 797; Shelly v. Pelham, 1 Dick. 120; Mitchell v. D. Manchester, 2 Dick. 787. But, it seems, if the tenants have attorned an order is unnecessary : see Raincock v. Simpson, 1 Dick. 120, n.; Hughes v. H., 1 Ves. 161; 3 B. C. C. 87; Pitt v. Snowden, 3 Atk. 750. In Brandon v. B., 5 Mad. 473, the practice was stated to be for a receiver to distrain upon his own discretion for rent in arrear within the year; but if in arrear for more than a year, that then an order was necessary.

In Parkyns v. P., 19, 21 Dec. 1750, B. 92, 110, after inquiry, an order was made to compound for rents in arrear.

A receiver who defended actions arising out of a distress, without the Court's leave, was not allowed his costs : Swaby v. Dickon, 5 Sim. 629.

A receiver was not allowed, as solr, to bring actions against tenants, with the Master's approbation, in the name of a trustee who opposed it : Della Cainea v. Hayward, M'Cl. & Y. 272.

The receiver was held entitled to distrain where, by the mortgagee's concurring in appointing, and the mortgagor's attornment to a receiver, the relation of landlord and tenant was created between the receiver and mortgagor : see Jolly v. Arbuthnot, 4 D. & J. 224.

And as to the right to distrain as incident to a lease by a receiver, see Dancer v. Hastings, 12 Moo. 34; cited in Morton v. Woods, L. R. 3 Q. B. 658, 668; and see Re Threlfall, 16 Ch. D. 274, C. A.

Where a receiver and manager of a business, appointed by the Court by an order which does not direct delivery up of possession to him, enters upon the premises, there is no change of occupation within sect. 16 of the Poor Rate Assessment and Collection Act, 1869 (32 & 33 V. c. 41), and the goods remain liable to distress for the parish rates, and this right of distress prevails as against the equitable charge created by debentures which contain no assignment of chattels. But quære whether, if the order directed delivery up of possession there would be a change of occupation : In re Marriage, Neave & Co.; North of England Trustee Debenture and Assets Corp. v. Marriage, Neave & Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 663, C. A.

But where a receiver duly appointed under a power contained in a mortgage deed of floating charge enters into possession and carries on business, there is a change of occupation within sect. 16 of the Act of 1869, and the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 211, sub-s. 3 : Richards v. Overseers of Kidderminster, (1896) 2 Ch. 212.

There is no preferential charge in respect of rates on effects of a co. in the hands of a receiver for debenture holders when the co. is being wound up : S. C.

And similarly as regards the supply of gas, the relation of receivers and managers appointed by the Court to the co. is not that of incoming and outgoing tenant, but of caretaker and owner, and the former are in no better position against the gas co. than the latter were, and cannot claim a supply of gas except on payment of arrears : Paterson v. Gas Light and Coke Co., (1896) 2 Ch. 476, C. A.

A distress for rent levied before the commencement of the winding up of a co. and before a receiver is effectively appointed on behalf of the debenture holders is valid against them : Re Roundwood Colliery Co., Lee v. R. C. C., (1897) 1 Ch. 373, C. A.

The principle of Gardner v. L. C. & D. Ry. Co. (L. R. 2 Ch. 201) does not prevent the levying by distress of penalties imposed on a tramway co. for non-repair of their rails, and leave to distrain may be granted, although a receiver has been appointed: Pegge v. Neath District Tramways Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 508. As to illegality of distress by mortgagor after appointment of a receiver by the mortgagee, see Woolston v. Ross, (1900) 1 Ch. 788.

As to the effect of an attornment clause in a mortgage, v. inf. Chap. XLVII.

EXPENDITURE IN RESPECT OF ESTATE.

Since the Court of Chancery Act, 1852 (15 & 16 V. c. 80), applications as to the management of the estate, including directions as to repairs, letting, cutting, and selling timber, are made to the Judge in Chambers, where the matter is inquired into without previous order before the particular act is authorized to be done.

A receiver was not entitled formerly to lay out any money on the estate at his own discretion, and without order of the Court, but the rule was relaxed; and where money was laid out by him without previous order, it was usual to direct an inquiry if the transaction was beneficial to the parties, and, if so, he was allowed the money laid out: Tempest v. Ord, 2 Mer. 56; and see A. G. v. Vigor, 11 Ves. 563; Blunt v. Clitherow, 6 Ves. 799.

And before advancing money a receiver and manager should apply to the Court for authority, and the Court, on granting it, generally allows him interest (at 5 p. c.) on the sum which it authorizes him to advance, and gives him a charge on the assets: Exp. Izard, Re Bushell, 23 Ch. D. 75, C. A. (per Jessel, M. R.).

And generally it is improper for a receiver, guardian, or trustee to do, without the sanction of the Judge, anything that may involve the estate in expense. The limit of the amount which may be applied without sanction is stated to be in general 30*l.* a year: Dan. 1444.

As to the duties of receivers of rents and profits in reference to insurance and repairs, see Re Graham, G. v. Noakes, (1895) 1 Ch. 66.

APPLYING FOR DIRECTIONS.

Except in cases of necessity, a receiver should not originate any proceedings, but should apply to the Plt or to the parties having the conduct of the proceedings to make any necessary application to the Court; but on their default he may be justified in himself applying: Parker v. Dunn, 8 Beav. 497; Ireland v. Eade, 7 Beav. 55; and see Armstrong v. A., 12 Eq. 614, that a receiver, by proving without leave against the estate of a bankrupt legatee, a debtor to the estate, thereby discharges the debt, and entitles the legatee whose bankruptcy has been annulled to his legacy.

As to the liability of a liquidating debtor's solr at whose instigation receiver refrains from collecting debts, see Exp. Hayward, Re Plant, W. N. (81) 115; 43 L. T. 326.

An application by a receiver of real estate appointed by the Probate Court for directions as to letting and management was referred to the registrar of the Probate Court: Neale v. Bailey, 23 W. R. 418.

A receiver will not be allowed the costs of unsuccessfully defending actions without leave: Swaby v. Dickon, 5 Sim. 629; though, if successful, he may be entitled to be indemnified against extra costs incurred: Bristowe v. Needham, 2 Ph. 190.

A receiver in an admon action will not be permitted to carry on another admon action in the name of a bankrupt exor or admor: Re Hopkins, Dowd v. Hawtin, 19 Ch. D. 61, C. A.

A receiver was allowed to retain out of a fund in his hands his costs (solr and client) occasioned by an adverse application, which failed, made against him by a Deft who was unable to pay costs: Courand v. Hanmer, 9 Beav. 3.

And, generally, as to the receiver's functions and the management of estates, see Dan. 1442 et seq.; Kerr, Receivers, 186 et seq.; Fish. Mort. 389 et seq.; Robbins, pp. 943 et seq.

SECTION IV.—ACCOUNT AND PAYMENT.

1. Receiver to bring in Account.

“LET C., the receiver appointed in (this action), on or before the — day of — [or within — days after service of this order], leave in the Chambers of the Judge his (fifth) account as such receiver, pursuant to the order dated &c., and on or before the — day of —, leave in the said Chambers his (sixth) account as such receiver.”—Receiver to pay costs of application.—Cave v. C., M. R., in Chambers, 18 Feb. 1860, A. 351.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 883.

2. Account and Payment by one Surety, with leave to sue the other and the Receiver.

“LET an account be taken of what is due from J., the receiver &c., in respect of his receipts and payments, as such receiver, since &c.; And Let the Petr D., one of the sureties of the said receiver, be at liberty to lodge in Court, as directed in the Lodgment Schedule hereto, what shall be certified to be due from the said receiver upon taking such account, and the sum of £—, the balance certified to be due from the said receiver by the (report) dated &c., so that the same together do not exceed £500, the amount of the said receiver's recognizance; But in case the same shall exceed £500, then Let the said Petr D. be at liberty to lodge in Court &c. the sum of £500, subject &c.; And Let the said J. be discharged from being such receiver; And Let the Petr be at liberty, in the names of the proper parties, to take such proceedings as he may be advised against the said J. and S., as the legal pers. repesve of V. the other surety of the said J., or either of them, upon the said recognizance, to compel the said J. to reimburse the Petr what he may pay as such surety, and to compel the said S., as such legal pers. repesve, to contribute a proportionate share of what the Petr may be compelled to pay in satisfaction of the said recognizance.”—All parties' costs of the application to be taxed, and paid by the Petr.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 5.]—See Shackel v. D. Marlborough, V.-C., 13 Jan. 1844, B. 409.

In this case the receiver had absconded to avoid attachment for non-payment of a balance reported to be due.

The discharge of the receiver should not be conditional on payment.

For order for one surety to pay in balance, and Plt to put recognizance in suit against the receiver and other surety, see Stewart v. Hoare, L. C., 8 March, 1796, B. 215.

For order by consent for one of the sureties to pass the final account and pay in balance, see Hook v. Symon, 31 May, 1875, A. 1408.

3. Receiver to account at District Registry.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., in the presence of counsel for the Plt and the Deft, This Court doth appoint A. B. to receive &c.;

And Let such receiver pass his accounts and pay his balances as the Judge of the B. District Registry shall direct.—See Re Dunn, Graham v. Halliday, Chitty, J., 11th June, 1885, A. 1770.

4. Putting Recognizance in Suit.

LET the Plts (and the Deft C., the trustees of the will of P. the testator in &c.) be at liberty to put in suit the recognizance entered into by B., the late receiver in this action, together with D. and E., his sureties, dated &c.—Ingle v. Neale, V.-C. E., 22 April, 1844, B. 1198; Arthington v. Hardcastle, L. C., 25 July, 1745, A. 490; Radcliffe v. R., M. R., 12 April, 1749, B. 313.

For order, where the receiver was in contempt for non-payment, to put recognizance in suit, in the name of the exors of the deceased, upon the petrs' recognizance to indemnify his estate, see Blair v. Toppitt, M. R., 1 Aug. 1829, A. 2784.

For form of summons, see D. C. F. 884.

5. New Surety, instead of one Deceased or Bankrupt.

LET a new security, to be given by B., the receiver appointed in this (action), duly to account for what he shall receive of the rents and profits of the estates in question &c., under the order dated &c., be approved by the Judge; And Let the said B. pass his accounts &c. up to the date of the new security, and lodge the balance that shall be certified to be due from him in Court, pursuant to the said order dated &c.; And Let upon such new security being given and lodgment of the said balance in Court being made, the recognizance dated &c. be vacated.—See Blandy v. B., 1847, A. 1350; Peach v. Pigou, 1847, B. 1628; Johnstone v. J., 1814, A. 361; Thellusson v. Woodford, M. R., in Chambers, 12 April, 1855, B. 714.

For like order in case of bankruptcy, see Franklyn v. Masson, 1817, A. 786; and within a month, the surety having absconded, Jones v. Tiffen, V.-C. S., 30 June, 1854, A. 1227.

For forms of application, see D. C. F. 886.

6. Subsequent Order.

AND the Judge having directed J. A., the receiver appointed by the said order dated &c., to give a new security in the place of W. H., deceased, and E. H., the sureties named in the said recognizance dated &c., and the said E. H. by his solr desiring to retire, and the said J. A. having given such new security by entering into a recognizance dated &c., and also a bond, together with the Guarantee Society as his sureties dated &c., which recognizance and bond have been approved by the Judge and duly enrolled; Let the appointment of the said J. A. as such receiver be continued; And Let him pass his accounts, and lodge his balances as directed by the said order dated &c.; And Let the said J. A. also pass his accounts as such receiver up to &c., and lodge the balance which shall be certified to be due from him in Court

&c. as directed by the said order dated &c.; And thereupon Let the recognizance entered into by the said J. A., together with W. H. and E. H. as his sureties, dated &c., be vacated.—Clarke v. Thornton, M. R., 5 May, 1876, A. 1606; and see Freeman v. F., 31 Jan. 1876, A. 194.

For order disallowing a receiver's poundage, and charging him with interest at 5 p. c. on the balances during the time the same were in his hands, see Bristowe v. Needham, 11 W. R. 926; 8 L. T. 652; 9 Jur. N. S. 1168; 2 Ph. 190.

ACCOUNTING.

By O. L. 18, the Court or a Judge is to fix the days on which receivers are annually, or at longer or shorter periods, to leave and pass their accounts and pay the balances appearing due on the accounts left, or such part as shall be certified to be proper to be paid by them; on their neglect, the Judge may, on their subsequent accounts, disallow their salaries and charge them with 5 p. c. interest on such balances, while in their hands, by yearly or half-yearly rests: see Potts v. Leighton, 15 Ves. 273; — v. Jolland, 8 Ves. 72; Fletcher v. Dodd, 1 Ves. J. 85; and this rule applies after a receiver has been discharged: Harrison v. Boydell, 6 Sim. 211; Re Edwards, 31 L. R. Ir. 242.

By r. 19, receivers' accounts are to be in Form 14, App. to R. S. C.; D. C. F. 879, with such variations as circumstances may require.

By r. 20, every receiver shall leave in the Chambers of the Judge to whom the cause or motion is assigned his account, together with an affidavit verifying the same, as in Form 22, App. L.; D. C. F. 877. An appointment shall thereupon be obtained by the Plt or the person having the conduct of the cause for the purpose of passing such account.

By r. 21, on default of a receiver in leaving or passing any account, or making any payment, the parties may be required to attend at Chambers, and directions there given for his discharge, and appointing another, and payment of costs.

And by r. 22, a certificate of the Master, stating the result of a receiver's account, is from time to time to be taken. For form of certificate, see D. C. F. 881.

A receiver may be directed to bring in his account, or pay his balance, by a four-day order, obtainable on summons, and not by a fi. fa.: Whitehead v. Lynes, 34 Beav. 161; 12 L. T. 332 (on appeal). The order must be indorsed, under O. XLI, 5, and served personally, and may be enforced, under O. XLII, 7, by attachment or committal, or, without any leave from the Court, by writ of sequestration against his estate and effects: Sprunt v. Pugh, 7 Ch. D. 567; Re Bell's Estate, 9 Eq. 172, 173; Re H. A. Grey, (1892) 2 Q. B. 440, 451; Davies v. Cracroft, 14 Ves. 143, 144.

A receiver bringing in irregular accounts was ordered to bring them in in a stated form, and to pay the costs of the application: see Bertie v. L. Abingdon, 8 Beav. 53, and for the inquiry as to former balances, Ib. 60.

Though a receiver passes his accounts and pays his balances regularly, he cannot make interest, for his own benefit, of such sums as may from time to time be in his hands: Shaw v. Rhodes, 2 Russ. 539.

And a receiver depositing money with a bank, so as to part with the absolute control, though in sureties' names, to prevent its misapplication, was liable for the loss: Salway v. S., 2 Russ. & M. 215; White v. Baugh, 3 Cl. & F. 44; but a receiver depositing money to a separate account is not liable for the banker's failure; secus, if in default in passing his accounts, and although not in default, if taking interest: Drever v. Maudesley, 8 Jur. 547.

The fraudulent receipt and appropriation of trust money places the receiver under the same liability as the trustee from whom he received it (and the right of the party defrauded is not affected by anything done or omitted so long as he was ignorant of the fraud): Rolfe v. Gregory, 4 D. J. & S. 576.

Persons interested may at once apply to prevent the misapplication by a receiver of funds in his hands, without waiting until he passes his accounts to get the particular items disallowed: De Winton v. Mayor of Brecon, 28 Beav. 200.

The share of a defaulting bankrupt receiver being unduly paid into Court, his assigns were entitled to receive the whole: Brandon v. B., 1 D. & S. 16, 19.

After the bill was dismissed, or the proceedings ordered to be stayed (Paynter v. Carew, Kay, App. xxxvi.), a receiver was ordered to pass his accounts and pay the balance to Deft: Pitt v. Bonner, 5 Sim. 577; and see Hutton v. Beeton, 9 Jur. N. S. 1339.

The objection, under O. L. 18, to allowing the receiver's poundage and costs must be raised by the parties on taking the account: Ward v. Swift, 8 Ha. 139.

In Drever v. Maudesley, V.-C. E., 3 Dec. 1842, A. 235; S. C., sup., an order was made for payment of a balance, the receiver having brought in his account but not sworn to it, and that he should swear to it. But if he neglects to verify his account he should be disallowed the items charged by him against the estate as disbursements, and directed to pay in the full amount of his receipts.

In passing a receiver's accounts in Chambers, when the same solr appears for the receiver and one of the parties to the suit, only one copy of the accounts will be allowed between them on taxation: Sharp v. Wright, 1 Eq. 635.

A receiver's accounts though passed have been ordered to be reviewed on application by a late ward of Court, stating errors and neglect: Wildridge v. M'Kane, 2 Moll. 545; and a settlement of accounts, between the infant two days after coming of age and the receiver, did not prevent the receiver from being charged with interest at 4 p. c. from the decree until the infant came of age, on surplus rents omitted to be inserted pursuant to direction: Hicks v. H., 3 Atk. 274.

The Court has no jurisdiction to make a summary order to account against the represves of a deceased receiver: Jenkins v. Briant, 7 Sim. 171; Ludgater v. Channell, 15 Sim. 479; though it seems that if the balance has been ascertained, the order may be made on petition that his recognizances be put in force against his real and pers. represves and against his sureties: S. C., 3 Mac. & G. 175.

But where, on their application to pass his accounts, and pay in the balance, it had been so ordered in 1812, they were not allowed in 1841 to object want of assets: Gurden v. Badcock, 6 Beav. 157.

And see Dan. 1446 et seq.

Personal liability of receiver.—The position of a receiver or manager in respect of personal liability differs according to the nature and mode of his appointment.

A receiver appointed by the trustees of a debenture trust deed which provides that he is to be in the same position as a receiver duly appointed under the Conveyancing Act, 1881, and carrying on the co.'s business in the co.'s name, is a mere agent for the co. while it continues as a going concern, and does not incur any personal liability: Owen v. Cronk, (1895) 1 Q. B. 265, C. A.

If in such a case the co. is wound up the receiver ceases to be the agent of the co., but in the absence of any authority from the trustees to him to act as their agent they cannot be held personally liable for goods ordered by and supplied to him: Gosling v. Gaskell, (1897) A. C. 575, H. L. reversing C. A., (1896) 1 Q. B. 669.

But receivers and managers appointed by the Court, unless there is any provision to the contrary in the order appointing them, must be taken to be pledging their personal credit, looking for indemnity to the assets of the business, and are therefore personally liable for the price of goods supplied to them: Burt, Boulton & Hayward v. Bull, (1895) 1 Q. B. 276, C. A.

A receiver appointed by way of equitable execution, and ordered to pay specified sums to creditors, will be held personally liable if, instead of paying the creditors personally, he hands over the money received to the solr of the plt: Ind, Coope & Co. v. Kidd, 63 L. J. Q. B. 726.

SURETIES.

The surety is answerable to the extent of the amount of the recognizance for whatever sum, principal, interest, or costs, the receiver has become liable, and also for the costs of his removal and of appointing a new receiver: Exp.

Maunsell, 3 J. & Lat. 251; Re Lockey, 1 Ph. 509; Smart v. Flood, 49 L. T. 467; Dawson v. Raynes, 2 Russ. 466, though under the particular circumstances of this case payment of interest was not required from the sureties of a bankrupt receiver.

In ascertaining this liability the Court treats the surety as answerable (to the amount of the penalty) for all sums of money which the receiver himself was properly liable to pay into Court or to account for; ex. gr., in the case of a receiver of "rents and profits" of real estate, for moneys for insurance received and misapplied, for dividends received on consols representing proceeds of sale of real estate, and for money representing personal estate to be spent in repairs under an order of the Court: Re Graham, G. v. Noakes, (1895) 1 Ch. 66.

It has been held that the precise amount due must be shown by the certificate (report) before the recognizance could be put in suit: Ludgater v. Channell, 15 Sim. 479, 481. But on appeal (3 Mac. & G. 175) it was held that the recognizance might be enforced against the surety as well as against the real and personal represves of the deceased receiver without the amount due having been actually ascertained, and that the order might be made on petition.

The recognizance, after it has been allowed by the Master by signing a memorandum in the margin, is sent from Chambers to the Enrolment Office, and receipt taken for it from the Clerk of Enrolments.

Enrolment will not be allowed after six months from acknowledgment except under special circumstances, and by order made by the Court or a Judge upon motion for enrolment after that time: see O. LXI, 14.

An amount due from a receiver is a debt of record so long as his recognizance remains in force, so that the Statute of Limitations only begins to run from the time when the recognizance is vacated: Seagram v. Tuck, 18 Ch. D. 296.

For the practice as to putting recognizances in suit, and as to vacating them when the receiver has passed his final account, see Dan. 1454.

An action having been brought against a surety on his recognizance, an order by consent was made, on payment by the surety of the costs of the application, and of subsequent proceedings consequent thereon, for a reference to see what was due from the receiver, payment by instalments of the amount, not exceeding the amount of the recognizance, and an injunction to stay proceedings in the action: Walker v. Wild, 1 Madd. 528, 1815, B. 1125.

The surety is entitled to stand in the receiver's place, and be indemnified out of a balance in Court due to him: Glossop v. Harrison, G. Coop. 61; 3 V. & B. 134.

Accordingly, a receiver's shares of an estate which was being administered in Court, though excepted from a mortgage given as an indemnity to his surety, were liable to recoup the surety the amount paid by him for the receiver: Brandon v. B., 3 D. & J. 524.

They will not be discharged at their own request, unless under special circumstances: Griffith v. G., 2 Vez. 400; in Swain v. Smith, V.-C., 13 July, 1827, B. 1447, a surety was discharged on his own application, having become such in breach of his partnership articles.

On payment by surety to solr of Plt proceeding against him in the Petty Bag, and on notice of the application to Plt, his recognizance was discharged: Mann v. Stennett, 8 Beav. 189.

A surety was held answerable for costs of attachment against receiver for not accounting, and costs of appointing new receiver, and ordering tenants to pay rent to him: Exp. Maunsell, 3 J. & Lat. 251.

And the surety who has paid the debt of the receiver (his principal) is entitled to enforce the recognizance against his co-surety: Woods v. Creaghe, 2 Hog. 51; Kerr, Receivers, 245.

And as to the liabilities and rights of a receiver's sureties, see Dan. 1455; Kerr, Receivers, 241 et seq.

By the West Indian Incumbered Estates Act, 1862 (25 & 26 V. c. 45), s. 3, power is given to the commrs appointed under the W. I. Incumbered Estates Acts, 1854, 1858, when they shall have made an absolute order for sale of any lands under the Acts, to appoint a receiver of the rents and profits of any lands within the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, in a suit relating to such lands; and the receiver so appointed shall have and possess all the powers, authorities, rights, and privileges possessed by receivers appointed by the Court of Chancery in England.

By the W. I. Incumbered Estates Act, 1864 (27 & 28 V. c. 108), s. 5, the power to appoint receivers, given by the Act of 1862, was extended by including live and dead stock, machinery, utensils, and other chattels and effects in the property of which a receiver might be appointed; and the appointment might be made after a conditional order for sale.

From the difference between a plantation and an estate in England, the former being in the nature of a business or trading concern requiring a large investment of capital and skilful management, the rights and liabilities of receivers and managers of West Indian property differed in many respects from those of an ordinary English receiver: see Daniel v. Trotman, 11 W. R. 717, 719; 1 Moore, P. C. N. S. 123; 9 Jur. N. S. 583; 8 L. T. 522; Cust, W. I. Estates, 9.

In some of the earlier cases it appears that the manager of West Indian property was not required to give security; and in Forrest v. Timms, L. C., 1789, A. 128, the appointment was "on his giving security to be approved, &c., for his duly managing the plantation and estates, and for his duly accounting for what he should receive, and for his consigning the produce of the said plantation, as far as the due management of the said estates required it, to the person, &c., to whom the Court had directed, or should direct, the consignments to be made."

See also S. C., nom. Morris v. Elme, 1 Ves. jun. 139; Cockburn v. Raphael, 2 Sim. & S. 453.

And in Rutherford v. Wilkinson, sup. p. 812, 9 July, 1825, Lord Gifford, M. R., in making the order under the circumstances without security, said that in general, in order to dispense with security, it should appear that no manager could be found who would give security, or that the proposed person was fit to be appointed without, but made the order under the circumstances without security, by consent of such parties as could consent; but on a subsequent application in the same cause security was required: and see Wedderburn v. Clark, sup. p. 812; and so in Cobham v. C., V.-C., 30 April, 1841, A. 1801.

In the case of receivers of West Indian property appointed under the W. I. Incumbered Estates Acts, 1862 and 1864, the appointment is made "upon their first giving security": see Forms in Cust, W. I. Estates, pp. 147, 149.

The lien of a consignee of West Indian property (not only on the produce, but also on the corpus of the estate: see Cust, 275) for the balance due to him in respect of advances made by him for supplies, or for the interest of incumbrancers, takes priority not only over the interest of the owner, but over all estates, interests, and incumbrancers whatever; and he will be allowed interest at 4 p. c. on the balances due: Re Greatheed, W. I. Estate Commrs., 12 May, 1859; Cust. 219; Re McDowall, Ib. 300; but this lien arises by implication of law, and may be limited or excluded by his taking a security containing express stipulations: Leith's Estate, Chambers v. Davidson, L. R. 1 P. C. 296.

And see Morison v. M., 7 D. M. & G. 214; 2 Sm. & G. 564; Scott v. Nesbitt, 14 Ves. 438; Sayers v. Whitfield, 1 Knapp, P. C. 133.

The consignee is not bound to see to the application of moneys advanced by him under an agreement: Daniel v. Trotman, 11 W. R. 717; Re Harriott, Cust, 271, 277.

A receiver and manager appointed at the instance of a mortgagee of a W. I. estate is not entitled to the produce shipped, prior to his appointment, to the consignee, though it had not at the time of the order been received by the consignee: Codrington v. Johnstone, 1 Beav. 520.

When employed as manager by the owner of the incumbered estate, unless his possession has been so recognized by the mortgagees that he can be considered as acting on their behalf and for their benefit, he has not, as a general rule, any lien on the inheritance for advances which he has made for its cultivation: Fraser v. Burgess, 13 Moo. P. C. 340; but see Bertrand v. Davies, 31 Beav. 436, in which case the rule as to the lien of a manager appointed by the owner is somewhat differently stated.

When appointed as manager by a trustee in possession of the estate on behalf of all parties interested, or when appointed by the Court of Chancery, he is entitled to his ordinary commission and allowances, as against all persons interested in the estate, for the balance that shall be due to him on taking his accounts: Bertrand v. Davies; Fraser v. Burgess, sup.; Re Harriott, W. I. Commrs, July, 1863, Cust, 271.

See also Scott v. Smith, Burge, Col. Law, vol. viii. 357.

So long as he resides in the colony and acts personally in the management of the property, the manager is entitled to a commission as a reward for personal care and trouble: Forrest v. Elwes, 2 Mer. 68; Chambers v. Goldwin, 5 Ves. 834; 9 Ves. 254; Kerr, Receivers, 256; and to reasonable payments made to others for the management during his absence: S. C.

SECTION VI.—DISCHARGE OF RECEIVER.

1. Discharge and Payment.

LET A., the receiver of &c., appointed by the order dated &c., be discharged; And Let him pass his final account, and lodge the balance which shall be certified to be due from him in Court as directed by the said order dated &c. [or to (the Plt) B. or &c.]; And thereupon Let the recognizance dated &c., entered into by the said A., together with C. and D., his sureties, be vacated.

For forms of application, see D. C. F. 885.

2. Payment by Receiver's Executors.

LET J., the surviving exor of L., the receiver appointed in this action, be at liberty to carry in and pass the accounts of the receipts and payments of the said L., as such receiver, from the foot of his last account to the time of his decease, and lodge the balance which may be certified to be due from the estate of the said L. in Court as directed in the Lodgment Schedule hereto [or to (the Plt) B. or &c.]; And thereupon &c. [Form 1].—Costs of the application and consequent thereon, as between solr and client, to be taxed and retained by the exor and allowed in his accounts.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 5.]—See Holmes v. H., V.-C. E., 25 Nov. 1843, A. 159.

For like order, by consent, and to appoint new receiver, see Littleboy v. Spooner, V.-C., 14 June, 1826, B. 1516; and see, on this case, Ludgater v. Channell, 15 Sim. 479, 483.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 884.

3. Receiver discharged as to Part, and Plt, on giving Security, let into Possession.

“By consent of the Defts B. and E., the trustees of the testator’s will, Discharge receiver as to such of the real estates in the pleadings mentioned as are not comprised in the term of — years created by the will of the testator.”—Receiver to pass his final account of the rents and profits thereof, and lodge the balance certified to be due in Court &c., as directed in the schedule hereto; Continue the receiver as to such of the said real estates as are comprised in the said term &c.—“And by consent of the said Defts, Let the Plt W. be let into receipt of the rents and profits of the estates not comprised in the said term, on giving security; And Let him cause his account to be delivered into (left in) the Chambers of the Judge on or before &c., and on the same day in each succeeding year, and lodge in Court, as directed in the schedule hereto, the balance (if any) which may from time to time be certified to be due from him in respect of the rents and profits of the said estates, or such part thereof as shall be certified to be proper, within fourteen days after passing his said accounts; And Let the Plt W. be at liberty from time to time to retain out of the said rents and profits, until he shall have attained the age of twenty-five years, or until further order, the annuity or clear yearly sum of £— allowed to him by the will of the said testator by equal quarterly payments, to be due on &c., and be allowed the same on passing his accounts.”—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 5.]—See Wilkinson v. Bewicke, M. R., in Chambers, 2 July, 1860, B. 1475.

For like order to discharge the receiver, and for tenant for life to be let into possession, see Tewart v. Lawson, V.-C. H., 12 June, 1874, B. 1776; S. C., 18 Eq. 490.

For form of order for discharge of receiver, where money remains in his hands, see Holt & Co. v. Bogle, 55 L. T. 592, 11 Nov. 1886, A. 3034.

NOTES.

A receiver appointed for the benefit of all parties interested will not be discharged on the ex parte application of the party at whose instance he was appointed: Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Ha. 204; Merc. Inv. &c. Co. v. River Plate, &c. Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 303; Bainbrigge v. Blair, 3 Beav. 421.

But when the object of his appointment has been fully effected (see Tewart v. Lawson, 18 Eq. 490), or his continuance becomes unnecessary, he will be discharged.

Where the legal estate was in dispute, the receiver was not discharged on the appointment of new trustees: Reeves v. Neville, 10 W. R. 335.

And where appointed for infants he was not discharged on one of them attaining twenty-one; and a petition to discharge him was dismissed with costs: Smith v. Lyster, 4 Beav. 227.

He will not in general be discharged on his own application without showing special grounds: see Dan. 1453; Kerr, 233.

Where he had been wrongfully appointed over property of a person not a party to the action, he was discharged, although there had been an abatement by the death of the sole Deft: Lavender v. L., I. R. 9 Eq. 593.

On petition to discharge receiver and pay over balances, though served, he should not appear, and will not be allowed his costs of appearance: Herman v. Dunbar, 23 Beav. 312.

When the receiver has passed his final account, and paid his balances, his recognizances will be vacated: see O. LX, 4; Dan. 1454.

But where money due from him has not been brought into account, he is a trustee of the money, and cannot (unless, possibly, in some cases under the Trustee Act, 1888, s. 8) set up the Statute of Limitations: Seagram v. Tuck, 18 Ch. D. 296; and after his discharge payment may be enforced against him by attachment, as a person in a fiduciary position within sect. 4 of the Debtors Act, 1869: Re Gent, Gent-Davis v. Harris, 40 Ch. D. 190; and v. sup. p. 468.

The application to discharge and to vacate the recognizances may be by petition, or motion, or summons, or the direction may be given in the order on further consideration; and the recognizances will be vacated on a proper affidavit of payment to the party entitled to receive the balance, or on the Paymaster's or Master's certificate; the rule to the contrary, as stated in Lawson v. Ricketts, 11 Beav. 627, is not now followed.

In case of an infant's estate, it is said the recognizances should not be vacated till a year after the party attains twenty-one: see 2 Madd. Ch. 298; and for a statement of the rule (Lord Alvanley's) by L. C. Hart, see Kilbee v. Sneyd, 2 Mol. 233.

Discharged receiver, not paying in balance by time fixed, was ordered to pay it in, and the amount of his salary, with interest at 5l. p. c. on both sums from the day appointed, and the costs of the motion: Harrison v. Boydell, 6 Sim. 211.

Where suit by third mortgagee was stayed, on motion by subsequent mortgagee, on payment of what was due to Plt and his costs, and the costs of the co-Defts, balances in the receiver's hands belonged to the person in possession, when he was appointed, and the receiver was discharged: Paynter v. Carew, Kay, xxxvi., 18 Jur. 417.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

PROHIBITION OF PROCEEDINGS IN INFERIOR COURTS.

1. Order for Writ of Prohibition directed to an Ecclesiastical Court.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the above-named B., who alleged that pleas or actions in which the title to any corporeal or incorporeal hereditaments is in question cannot be impleaded or brought or adjudicated upon in the above-mentioned Consistorial Court of Llandaff, and that the above-named I. and H. have impleaded or cited the ministers, parishioners, and inhabitants of the parish of L., and all others in several having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in the premises, to show cause why a licence or faculty should not be granted to the said I. and H., the churchwardens of the said parish (for the purpose of new flooring and reseating the church of L. aforesaid, and of removing the present gallery in the said church, and also of taking down portions of the north wall and re-erecting the same on the same site, and placing two windows in the same north wall), in the said Episcopal and Consistorial Court of Llandaff aforesaid, wherein the title to certain hereditaments is in question, that is to say, the title to certain pews and seats in the church of the said parish of L., claimed to be part of and appurtenant to a certain freehold mansion-house, and a certain freehold farmhouse, and hereditaments of or to which B. is or claims to be seised or entitled; and upon reading an affidavit of W. in support of the said allegation filed &c., and the exhibits therein referred to, this Court doth order that the chancellor of the diocese of Llandaff and the said I. and H. be prohibited from further proceeding in the said pleas or action in the said Consistorial Court of the diocese of Llandaff, and that a writ of prohibition do issue accordingly.—Exp. Bateman, V.-C. J., 8 Feb. 1870, A. 195; 9 Eq. 660.

For order, on application of judgment creditor, prohibiting the bishop from executing writs of sequestrari facias against a vicarage, at the instance of subsequent judgment creditors, and enjoining them from proceeding with such writs, or on their judgments, see Hawkins v. Gathercole, 1 Sim. N. S. 75, 150; 1 Drew. 12; 6 D. M. & G. 1, 2, n., 16.

For order prohibiting the Consist. Court of Exeter from entertaining a proceeding as to tithes, see Re Magor, V.-C., 6 Dec. 1822, B. 61, T. & R. 314; and for the mandatory part of the writ, ib. 316, n. In this case the writ was afterwards superseded, on the ground that it had been granted without the affidavit required by 2 & 3 Edw. 6, c. 13, s. 14: Ib. 319. And for order superseding the writ with costs, see Newsom v. Cooper, L. C., 33 May, 1803, B. 443.

For ex parte order, but on affidavit of the facts, that a writ of prohibition issue, prohibiting the Insolvent Debtors' Court from adjudicating on or dealing with the surplus fund in the affidavit mentioned, except so far as was necessary under the Judgments Act, 1838 (1 & 2 V. c. 110), s. 92, to give effect to the deed in the affidavit mentioned, see Re Dyson, L. C., 5 Aug. 1856, A. 1582. A petition for payment of same fund into Court was subsequently dismissed: Cooke v. Sturgis, C. A., 21 Dec. 1859; S. C., 3 D. & J. 506.

For order absolute in the first instance against the Mayor's Court, see Jacobs v. Friedburg, V.-C. M., 7 Jan. 1873, A. 12.

2. Order Nisi against Official Principal of the Arches Court of Canterbury.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for A. B., Let the Right Honourable James Plaisted Baron Penzance, the official principal of the Arches Court of Canterbury, and C. D., the promoter of the office of the Judge in a certain suit of Combe v. De La Bere in the said Arches Court of Canterbury, upon notice of this order to be given to the said official principal, or to his registrar, and the said C. D. or his solr show cause on &c., why a prohibition should not issue directed to the said official principal to prohibit him from carrying into execution, or otherwise giving effect to the sentence of deprivation pronounced in the said suit by the said official principal on &c., against the said A. B., such sentence being one which he had no jurisdiction to pronounce, and pronounced without jurisdiction and in excess of jurisdiction.—Re De La Bere, M. R., 14 Jan. 1881, A. 14.

3. Prohibition Nisi to Police Magistrate.

UPON motion &c., by &c., who alleged that two summonses involving questions relating to the validity of the issue of certain shares which appeared upon the register of the B. Association, Limited, were, upon the application of B. B., issued by J. V., Esq., one of the magistrates of the Bow Street Metropolitan Police Court; that upon the return of the said summonses, counsel for the association took the preliminary objection that the magistrate had no jurisdiction; and upon reading an affidavit of &c., Let the said J. V. and other the magistrate or magistrates at the Bow Street Metropolitan Police Court be prohibited from further proceeding with the said summonses until this order shall be made absolute or be discharged; And the said B. B. is, on &c., to show unto this Court good cause why the said prohibition should not be made absolute.—And it is ordered that a writ of prohibition do issue accordingly.—Re Boaler, Stirling, J., 25 April, 1888, A. 534.

For orders nisi and absolute against the Railway Commrs, see The Great Western Ry. Co. v. The Waterford and Limerick Ry. Co., M. R., 14 Feb. 1881, A. 183; C. A. 9 April, 1881, A. 697; also East and West India Dock Co. v. Shaw, Chitty, J., 6 July, 1888, A. 1051.

NOTES.

PROHIBITION—NATURE OF WRIT—INFERIOR COURTS.

The writ of prohibition is a writ issued out of the High Court to restrain inferior Courts from exceeding their jurisdiction by “intermeddling with or executing anything which by law they ought not to hold plea of”: 2 Inst. 602, cited in Mayor of London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 239, 254; Dan. 1391.

For the history of this jurisdiction, and an exposition of the law and practice of the superior Courts relating to it, and as to the distinction between superior and inferior Courts, see S. C.

For form of writ of prohibition, see R. S. C. App. J. 11; Chitty's Forms, p. 785; D. C. F. 848.

Although by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5), “no cause or proceeding at any time pending in the High Court, or before the Court of Appeal, shall be restrained by prohibition or injunction,” the inferior Courts, such as the County Courts, the Mayor's Courts, and the Diocesan Courts, not being branches of the Supreme Court (see Jud. Act, 1873, s. 3), are not affected by this provision, and prohibition will still lie to restrain them from exceeding their jurisdiction.

Before the Jud. Acts prohibition might be directed to the Admiralty Court, although for some purposes the powers and jurisdiction of a superior Court were given to that Court by 24 V. c. 10: see James v. S. W. Ry., L. R. 7 Ex. 187; Smith v. Brown, L. R. 6 Q. B. 729.

But the Admiralty Court having, by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 16, been constituted one of the Divisions of the High Court, prohibition will no longer lie in respect of Admiralty proceedings.

For cases in which prohibition has gone to restrain the Railway Commrs from executing their powers, see Warwick Canal Co. v. Birmingham Canal Co., 5 Ex. D. 1; G. W. Ry. Co. v. Waterford and Limerick Ry. Co., 17 Ch. D. 493, C. A.; Shortt, pp. 483, 484.

As to the constitution and jurisdiction of the present Railway Commission, and as to appeals from the decisions of the Commrs to the superior Courts of Appeal, and by leave to the House of Lords, see the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 25), ss. 2, 8, 17; Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1894 (57 & 58 V. c. 54), ss. 1, 2.

An application before the Jud. Acts for prohibition to the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy was refused, that Court being a superior Court: Re Marcus Davis, L. C., 23 Feb. 1873, Reg. Min. 150.

And prohibition against the issue by a bishop of a commission of inquiry under the Church Discipline Act (3 & 4 V. c. 86) until the status of the promoter should have been inquired into, was refused: Exp. Edwards, 9 Ch. 138.

An examination into the affairs of a joint stock co. by an inspector appointed by the Board of Trade, under sect. 56 of the Cos. Act, 1862, is not a judicial proceeding, and therefore prohibition will not lie in respect of it either to the Board of Trade or the inspector: Re Grosvenor & W. End Ry. Terminus Hotel, 76 L. T. 337, C. A.

Where there is irregularity rather than excess of jurisdiction, the matter is one for appeal and not for prohibition: Hooper v. Hill, (1894) 1 Q. B. 659, C. A.; and where an order has been made under circumstances which would give jurisdiction to issue a prohibition, the party aggrieved is not thereby deprived of his right to appeal in the ordinary way: Sweetland v. Turkish Cigarette Co., 47 W. R. 511.

And for an enumeration of the Courts to which prohibitions have issued, see Shortt, p. 431.

PROCEDURE TO OBTAIN WRIT.

To obtain the writ, a want of jurisdiction in the inferior Court to decide the case must be shown: Burder v. Veley, 12 A. & E. 263; Mayor of London v. Cor, L. R. 2 H. L. 239, 279.

The writ was obtained at law by special application to the Court on affidavit: see 1 Will. 4, c. 21, and not, as before that Act, by mere suggestions: Ib. 279.

In Chancery, upon production of a proper affidavit, the writ formerly issued as of course without an order: see Jacobs v. Brett, 20 Eq. 1; but since 1885 the writ has issued out of the Crown Office Department pursuant to the order of a Judge: see D. C. F. 847 et seq.

The writ must be indorsed with the names and addresses of the solrs issuing it, and must state whether they issue it on behalf of the Plt, Deft, garnishee, or any other person.

The affidavit must show clearly and distinctly that the inferior Court has not jurisdiction, or has gone beyond it, and must, on the Crown side, be intituled "In the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench Division": Crown Office Rules, 1886, r. 7; Shortt, 488.

But in Chancery the order and affidavit have been entitled, "Ex parte (the applicants) in the matter of the suit in the Consistory Court": see Re Bateman, sup. p. 817, and see Re Dashwood, sup. p. 817, where the order and affidavit were entitled in the matter of the applicant.

For the form of the affidavit in support of the application for the writ to a County Court, of the summons, order for the writ to issue, and of the rule nisi, see Chitty's Forms, 782, 783.

By O. LIV, 12, prohibitions (as included in the orders mentioned in Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8)) are excepted from the jurisdiction of the Masters of the Queen's Bench, and of the registrars of the Probate, &c. Divisions.

The application for the writ may be made either by a party to the proceedings in the inferior Court or by a stranger, or, as stated in Jacobs v. Brett, 20 Eq. 5: "Either the Crown or any subject may intervene and inform a superior Court that an inferior Court is exceeding its jurisdiction, and it is the duty of the superior Court, when so informed, to confine the inferior Court within the limits of its jurisdiction." See also Oram v. Brearey, 2 Ex. D. 436.

For the grant of a writ of prohibition by the M. R. during the summer circuit to stay a County Court Judge from entertaining proceedings relating to the title to land, see Wright v. Cattell, 13 Beav. 81.

The difficulty that occurred in this case was remedied by 13 & 14 V. c. 61, s. 22, and now by 51 & 52 V. c. 43, s. 127, providing that any Judge of the High Court may as well during sittings as in vacation hear and determine applications for writs of prohibition directed to any County Court.

The practice in Chancery has been to grant an order absolute in the first instance, leaving it to the parties affected to move to dissolve it: Re Bateman, 9 Eq. 660; Re Dashwood, and other cases cited, sup. pp. 817, 818; though in Re Dyson, L. C. and L. J., 3 March, 1860, on subsequent motion to commit the Judge for disobedience to the writ, this was doubted.

An application to a Judge at Chambers for a prohibition not being a matter of practice and procedure within the Jud. Act, 1894, s. 1, sub-s. 4, an appeal from his order lies in the first instance to the Divisional Court and not to the Court of Appeal: Watson v. Petts, (1899) 1 Q. B. 54, C. A.

WHEN GRANTED.

The writ is granted ex debito justitiæ to a party to the proceedings who is aggrieved; but on the application of a stranger, even when he shows with reference to the law and the facts that the inferior Court is exceeding its jurisdiction, the interference of the superior Court is discretionary: Chambers v. Green, 20 Eq. 552; Re Forster, 4 B. & S. 187; Reg. v. Twiss, L. R. 4 Q. B. 407; Mayor of London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 239, 280; Broad v. Perkins, 21 Q. B. D. 533, C. A.; but the rule does not affect the right of the Crown to claim a writ of prohibition at any stage: S. C., at p. 533.

But where total absence of jurisdiction appears on the face of the proceedings the Court is bound to issue prohibition, although the applicant has acquiesced in the jurisdiction of the inferior Court: Farquharson v. Morgan, (1894) 1 Q. B. 552, C. A.

And generally for a review of the authorities as to whether the grant of prohibition is discretionary, and if so, to what extent, see Shortt, 441 et seq.

Where the objection to the jurisdiction is capable of being waived, and has been waived, by the applicant, prohibition will not be granted: Moore v. Gamgee, 25 Q. B. D. 244; Mouflet v. Washburn, 54 L. T. 16; In re Jones v. James, 19 L. J. Q. B. 257.

As to the distinction between cases where there is a total want of jurisdiction, and where the jurisdiction is contingent (ex. gr., on leave to sue being obtained under the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 74), see Moore v. Gamgee, sup.

When the writ has been improperly granted in the first instance on the application of a stranger, and it does not appear that the inferior Court is exceeding its jurisdiction, both with reference to the facts and to the law, the superior Court has jurisdiction to set it aside: Chambers v. Green, 20 Eq. 552.

A prohibition to the Mayor's Court (formerly issued out of the Petty Bag Office, which is now merged in the Central Office: R. S. C. Jan. 1889), might be set aside on the ground that the order for the goods and the delivery both took place within the jurisdiction of that Court: see Taylor v. Jones, 1 C. P. D. 87 (following Dunlop v. Higgins, 1 H. L. C. 381; Evans v. Nicholson, 32 L. T. 778, that the letter containing an order speaks from the place where and the time when it was posted).

But though the writ has been improperly issued, it must be obeyed until superseded: Iveson v. Harris, 7 Ves. 225.

As to the jurisdiction of a Judge at Chambers to set aside a writ of prohibition issued out of the Petty Bag Office (merged since R. S. C. Jan. 1889, in the Central Office), see Amstell v. Lesser, 16 Q. B. D. 187; and see Shortt, 490.

Under the former procedure, the Courts of Chancery and Common Law had concurrent jurisdiction to grant the writ, but—except as to applications for prohibitions directed to the County Court Judges, which, by 13 & 14 V. c. 61, s. 22, might be made and determined in vacation as well as in term time—the application for the writ during vacation could only be made in Chancery: see Re Buteman, 9 Eq. 660, and cases there cited.

By Crown Office Rules, 1886, r. 229: "All writs on the Crown side shall be issued at the Crown Office Department of the Central Office."

As to the preparation, teste and return of such writs, see rr. 230—232.

FORM OF ORDER.

As to the form of order, see G. W. Ry. Co. v. Waterford and Limerick Ry. Co., 17 Ch. D. 493, 511; E. and W. India Dock Co. v. Shaw, Savill and Albion Co., 39 Ch. D. 524, 533.

In lieu of granting prohibition, the Court will, where it is "just or convenient," within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), grant an injunction inter partes, e.g., to restrain a landowner from taking proceedings before justices on an irregular notice under the Land Drainage Act, 1861 (24 & 25 V. c. 133): Hedley v. Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498.

At Common Law a rule nisi in the first instance for a prohibition was granted on application to either of the superior Courts or to a Judge in Chambers: Chit. Arch. (Prentice) 1727; and see 19 & 20 V. c. 108, s. 40.

COUNTY COURT.

For the practice as to prohibitions directed to the County Courts, see Pitt-Lewis, County Court Practice, 130 et seq.; Annual County Court Practice, p. 76; County Courts Practice, 216; Pollock & Nicol, 249; and for the cases in which the writ will and will not issue, see Chit. Arch. (Prentice) 1543; Shortt, 475 et seq.; Annual County Court Practice Index, tit. "PROHIBITION."

By the County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 43), s. 127, any Judge of the High Court, as well during sittings as in vacation, may hear and determine applications for writs of prohibition to any County Court, and make such orders as might have been made by the High Court.

By sect. 128, when an application is made to the High Court or a Judge thereof for a writ of prohibition to be addressed to a County Court Judge, the matter shall be finally disposed of by rule or order, and no declaration or further proceedings in prohibition shall be allowed.

The County Court Judge is not to be served with notice of the application, nor, except by order of the High Court Judge, to be required to appear, or liable to any order for payment of costs, but the application is to be heard in the same manner as a County Court appeal. As to service of the order on, or lodgment of the writ (if granted on an exp. application) with, the registrar of the County Court, see sects. 129, 130.

By O. LIX, 8a, every application for a prohibition to a County Court, other than an application by the A. G., shall be brought by notice of motion served on the parties to the proceedings in the County Court, or such of them as may not be applicants for the prohibition. The mode of procedure under this rule is alternative to that of applications in Chambers under sect. 127, sup.: King v. Charing Cross Bank, 24 Q. B. D. 27.

And by sect. 132, if the writ be refused by one Court or Judge, no other Court or Judge may grant it; but the right of appealing from the Judge to the High Court itself is not affected, nor the right to make a second application to the same Court on different grounds.

The decision of the Judge in Chambers, if not appealed from, is conclusive in the County Court on the question of value: Symons v. Rees, 1 Ex. D. 416.

An appeal lies without leave from the decision of a divisional Court upon an application for a prohibition to a County Court, as sect. 128, sup., is to be read as referring solely to applications to the High Court: Lister v. Wood, 23 Q. B. D. 229, C. A.

A prohibition was granted against proceedings in the County Court to restrain an amalgamation of a friendly society under 38 & 39 V. c. 60, before any special resolution had been passed founding the jurisdiction under the Act: Jones v. Slee, 32 Ch. D. 585, C. A.; and for cases in which prohibition went in respect of excess of jurisdiction by a County Court, see Reg. v. Lincolnshire County Court, 20 Q. B. D. 167; Reg. v. Shropshire County Court, 20 Q. B. D. 242; Reg. v. Greenwich County Court, 37 W. R. 132; 60 L. T. 248; Kenyon v. Eastwood, 57 L. J. Q. B. 455.

Under the Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 63), s. 1, sub-s. 6, the County Court Judge in a winding-up has the powers of the High Court, and therefore prohibition will not lie for an alleged excess of jurisdiction by him: New Par Consols, Ltd., (1898) 1 Q. B. 669, C. A.

The City of London Court, notwithstanding the County Courts Act, 1888, has jurisdiction to try an action when the Deft has employment within the city though he does not dwell or carry on business there: Kutner v. Phillips, (1891) 2 Q. B. 267.

As to the jurisdiction of the Salford Hundred Court, where the want of jurisdiction is not pleaded under the Salford Hundred Court of Record Act, 1868 (31 & 32 V. c. cxxx.), see Payne v. Hogg, (1900) 2 Q. B. 43, C. A.

MAYOR'S COURT, LONDON.

The jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court has been somewhat restricted by recent decisions to the effect that in order to give that Court jurisdiction the cause of action must arise, and the garnishee reside within the city: Read v.

Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 128, C. A.; Cooke v. Gill, L. R. 8 C. P. 107, 110; Mayor of London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 239; Banque de Crédit v. De Gas, L. R. 6 C. P. 142; Robinson v. Emanuel, L. R. 9 C. P. 414.

Or, again, that to enable the Plt to resist prohibition, he must show that the whole of the cause of action, or every material fact essential to constitute it, occurred within the jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court: Gold v. Turner, L. R. 10 C. P. 149; Whinney v. Schmidt, L. R. 8 C. P. 120; Bowler v. Barberton Development Syndicate, (1897) 1 Q. B. 164, C. A.

And see Washer v. Elliott, 1 C. P. D. 169, for prohibition to the Mayor's Court from proceeding on an order for committal under the Debtors Act in respect of a debt on which judgment had been recovered in a Superior Court, the debtor not residing or carrying on business within the jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court when the summons issued.

On the other hand, the Superior Court is not bound to prohibit an action in the Mayor's Court unless satisfied that no one entire cause of action arose within the jurisdiction: Taylor v. Nicholls, 1 C. P. D. 242 (explaining Evans v. Nicholson, 32 L. T. 778; Wallace v. Allan, 23 W. R. 703).

An order by telegraph from without the city being accepted within it, there was a contract of agency made within the city: Cowan v. O'Connor, 20 Q. B. D. 640.

A clerk employed by a solr at offices in the city does not carry on business there within the Mayor's Court Procedure Act, 1857: Lewis v. Graham, 20 Q. B. D. 780; 22 Q. B. D. 1, C. A.

The process of foreign attachment in the Mayor's Court of London cannot be issued against a corp. aggregate as garnishees: Corp. of London v. London Joint Stock Bank, H. L. 6 App. Ca. 393. Such attachment, being merely process to compel appearance, does not suspend the operation of a garnishee order: Richter v. Laxton, 48 L. J. Q. B. 184; 39 L. T. 499; 27 W. R. 214.

When the Mayor's Court is proceeding without jurisdiction—notwithstanding the interpretation put upon the Mayor's Court Procedure Act, 1857 (20 & 21 V. c. clvii.), s. 15, in Manning v. Farquharson, 30 L. J. Q. B. 22; Baker v. Clark, L. R. 8 C. P. 121—the Deft in the Mayor's Court or even any stranger, may obtain a writ of prohibition: Jacobs v. Brett, 20 Eq. 1; Mayor of London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 259; and see Bridge v. Branch, 34 L. T. 905.

Sect. 89 of the Jud. Act, 1873, empowering inferior Courts to grant in any proceeding relief, redress, or remedy as fully as the High Court might in the like case, refers to the judgment, and not to the means of obtaining it. Thus, the Mayor's Court cannot, on motion for a new trial, direct judgment to be entered as a Judge of the High Court can under O. XL, 10; and where, judgment having been so entered in the Mayor's Court, there was an error on the face of the proceedings, appeal lay to the Court of Appeal (as successors of Exch. Chamber): Pryor v. City Offices Co., 10 Q. B. D. 504, C. A.

In cases within the Mayor's Court Procedure Act, 1857, s. 12 (debt under 50*l.*, and Deft carrying on business and cause of action arising within the City), the jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court is extended so as to exclude prohibition: Hawes v. Paveley, 1 C. P. D. 418, C. A.

After the abandonment by Plt in the Mayor's Court of items in the action not arising within that jurisdiction, the prohibition may be discharged, but without costs: Ellis v. Fleming, 1 C. P. D. 237.

An action having been brought in the Mayor's Court and a counter-claim set up which is beyond the jurisdiction of that Court, that Court has no power to deal with the counter-claim to the extent of the amount of the Plt's claim: Davis v. Flagstaff Silver Mining Co., 3 C. P. D. 228.

And as to the practice in prohibition to the Mayor's Court, see also Chit. Archb. 1546; Shortt, 471.

COSTS.

The costs of proceedings in prohibition were regulated by 1 W. IV. c. 21, s. 1 (repealed by 46 & 47 V. c. 49). It was held that where the rule for a prohibition was made absolute without pleadings, there was no "judgment" within that section, so as to entitle to costs : Exp. Everton Overseers, L. R. 6 C. P. 245 ; Rez v. Keeling, 1 Dowl. 440 ; but see Evans v. Wills, 1 C. P. D. 229 ; and though the Court was not bound to award costs on making absolute or discharging the order, it might do so if it thought proper : Wallace v. Allen, L. R. 10 C. P. 607 ; Shortt, 497.

As to the proper mode of procedure in a case where a police magistrate is exceeding his jurisdiction, see In re Briton Medical and General Life Association, 39 Ch. D. 61.

The right to grant prohibition not being a jurisdiction belonging exclusively to the Crown side of the K. B. D., the High Court, in making a rule absolute for a prohibition without pleadings, may make an order for costs : Reg. v. Justices of County of London and London County Council, (1894) 1 Q. B. D. 453, C. A. ; Dan. 1393.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

TRANSFER, CONSOLIDATION, AND REMOVAL.

SECTION I.—TRANSFER OF CAUSES AND ACTIONS IN THE HIGH COURT.

1. Order for Transfer of Cause or Action from one Judge to another in Chancery Division—by Consent of Parties—O. XLIX, 1.

UPON the petition &c., and the solrs for &c., having subscribed the said petition signifying their consent to the prayer thereof, It is ordered that this cause [or action], which has been assigned to Mr. Justice A., be transferred to Mr. Justice B., and that the same, when so transferred, be hereafter considered as a cause [or action] originally assigned to Mr. Justice B.

For order with costs, on the motion of Plt in the first of two creditors' admon actions, for a transfer of the second action to the Judge by whom the decree had been made in the first action, see Re Sharp, Bentall v. S., L. C., 16 Nov. 1876, B. 1738.

For various forms of application for transfer, see D. C. F. 989 et seq.

2. Transfer from one Judge to another of the Chancery Division on Motion before the Lord Chancellor.

Court of (have been assigned to) Mr. Justice A., be respectively transferred to the Court of Mr. Justice B. 4. Transfer from King's Bench to Chancery Division—O. XLIX, 1, 3.

UPON hearing the solrs on both sides, and by consent, I do order that this action be transferred to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, and be assigned to the Court of Mr. Justice B., if the President of the Division shall consent thereto.—(Signature of Judge.)
—North Eastern Ry. Co. v. Spark, 5 Jan. 1876.

Consent of Lord Chancellor.

THE Lord Chancellor, as President of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, consents to the transfer to that Division of this action.
(Signature of Principal Secretary.)

5. *Transfer from the Chancery Division to another Division—
O. XLIX, 3.*

UPON the application of &c., and upon reading the Plt's statement of claim, It is ordered that this action, commenced in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, be transferred to the Q. B. &c. Division of that Court, if the President of that Division shall consent thereto.—Giffard v. Corp. of Wolverhampton, Kay, J., at Chambers, 1 May, 1885, A. 611.

6. *Transfer from King's Bench Division to Chancery Division—
O. XLIX, 5.*

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Deft, and upon hearing counsel for the Plt, Let the action of A. v. B., 18— &c., commenced in the King's Bench Division, be transferred to the Chancery Division of this Court, and be assigned to (name of Judge).—See Re Robinson, Whitaker v. R., V.-C. H., 17 July, 1877, B. 1258; W. N. (1877) 201; Re The New Hollingbourne Paper Mills Co., Ltd., North, J., 20 Dec. 1887, B. 1610.

7. Transfer of Summons under O. XLIX, 6.

UPON the application of the Deft under O. XLIX, 6, and upon hearing the solrs for the applicant, and for A. B., and the said A. B. by his solr consenting, Let the summons issued on the — day &c., in which

A. B. is Plt and C. D. is Deft for the administration &c., the reference to the record of which summons is &c., and is improperly marked with the name of Mr. Justice A., be transferred to Mr. Justice B.—And the costs of the said A. B. of the said action are to be dealt with in this action.—Re Bright, Smith v. Druce, Kay, J., at Chambers, 22 July, 1884, A. 1365.

8. Transfer from the Chancery Division to County Court—Bankruptcy.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for A. B. and C. D., creditors of E. F., deceased, and upon hearing counsel for the Deft, Let, pursuant to section 125 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, without prejudice to any application in Bankruptcy in respect of the rents of the estate, received by the said A. B. and C. D. since the death of the testator, E. F., this action, which is attached to the Court of Mr. Justice A., be transferred to the County Court of &c., holden &c.; and that all original documents filed herein be transmitted to the said County Court.—Costs in action.—Re York, Atkinson v. Powell, Stirling, J., 2 July, 1887, B. 945.

For a like order, see Re Edwards, Lovell v. E., 24 Sept. 1886, A. 1404.

9. Removal of Action from District Registry—O. xxxv, 13.

UPON motion &c. by counsel for the Plt, This Court doth order that this action be removed from the district registry at Derby to London.—Buckston v. Rose, M. R., 18 Jan. 1876, A. 42.

Rule 13 does not apply to a proceeding commenced by originating summons: Re Thwaites, W. N. (90) 218; 68 L. T. 747; D. C. F. 993.

10. Transfer by Court of Appeal from Lancaster Palatine Court to High Court of Justice, Chancery Division—Jud. Act, 1873, s. 18.

LET this action be transferred to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, and be assigned to the Court of Mr. Justice A., and the Defts T. and B. are to be at liberty to apply to the Vice-Chancellor of the Court of the Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster for an order directing the payment out of that Court to them of the money standing to the credit of this action, they undertaking to pay the same into Court to the credit of this action when so transferred.—And the costs of this application and of such application to the Vice-Chancellor are to be costs in the action.—Phipps v. Tod, C. A., 10 Nov. 1886, B. 1260.

TRANSFER OF CAUSES AND ACTIONS.

The transfer of causes is provided for by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 36, and by Jud. Act, 1875, s. 11, and O. XLIX.

By sect. 36, any cause or matter may at any time and stage, and with or without application from any party, be transferred, by such authority and in such manner as the rules may direct, from one Division or Judge of the High Court to any other Division or Judge, or may be retained in the Division in which the same was commenced, though not the proper Division to which it should have been assigned.

By O. XLIX, 1, causes or matters may be transferred from one Division to another of the High Court, or from one Judge to another of the Chancery Division by an order of the L. C., but no transfer is to be made from or to any Division without the consent of the President of the Division.

By r. 3, "any cause or matter may, at any stage, be transferred from one Division to another by an order made by the Court or any Judge of the Division to which the cause or matter is assigned: provided that no such transfer shall be made without the consent of the President of the Division to which the cause or matter is proposed to be transferred."

By r. 6, "when any summons under O. LV, 3, 4, shall have been marked with the name of a Judge other than the Judge by r. 11 of the same order prescribed, such last-mentioned Judge shall, unless cause shall appear to him to the contrary, without any further consent, order the transfer to such Judge of the summons so improperly marked."

By r. 7, "any cause or matter transferred from any other Division to the Chancery Division shall, by the order directing the transfer, be assigned to one of the Judges of that Division to be named in the order."

By r. 8, "causes or matters pending in the same Division may be consolidated by order of the Court or a Judge in the manner in use before the commencement of the Jud. Act, in the Superior Courts of Common Law."

Applications for the transfer of an action from one Division of the High Court to another (which are usually made under r. 3) should be on notice, and the sanction of the President of the Division to which the action is to be transferred must be obtained before actual transfer: Humphreys v. Edwards, 45 L. J. Ch. 112.

The jurisdiction formerly exercised by the Court of Appeal in Chancery to direct a transfer from one Judge of the Court to another no longer exists, even as to suits or matters pending before the new procedure: Re Hutley, Re Boyd's Trusts, 1 Ch. D. 11, 12, C. A.; and see Goddard v. Thompson, 47 L. J. Q. B. 382; 38 L. T. 166; 26 W. R. 362.

Whether the Court of Appeal can order a transfer without the consent of the Presidents of both the Divisions, i.e., from and to which the transfer is made, quære: Storey v. Waddle, 4 Q. B. D. 289, C. A.

In the case of a transfer to the Chancery Division, the L. C. will direct the transfer on a written application to his secretary, accompanied by the written consent of all parties. When the parties do not consent, the application must be made to the L. C. personally: see Memorandum, 1 Ch. D. 41.

The application is usually in the form of a petition to the L. C., which is left with the secretary after the written consents of all parties have been obtained. When the L. C.'s fiat has been obtained, the petition is taken to the senior registrar, who draws up the order, which is then left at the Writ Department, Central Office, for entry in the cause book. Where the application is opposed it is usually made by motion: see Dan. 1615; D. C. F. 990, 991.

By the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 125 (4), where proceedings have been commenced for the admon of a deceased's debtor's estate, jurisdiction is conferred without the application of any creditor (see Bankruptcy Act, 1890, s. 21), on proof that the estate is insolvent, to transfer the proceedings to the Court exercising jurisdiction in bankruptcy.

The exercise of this jurisdiction is discretionary: Re Baker, Nichols v. B., 44 Ch. D. 262, C. A.; and semble, the applicant must, before the order can be made, have proved his debt: Re Weaver, 29 Ch. D. 236; but the transfer may be ordered after judgment for admon: Re York, Atkinson v. Powell, 36 Ch. D. 233; Senhouse v. Mawson, 52 L. T. 745.

The existence of an exor's right of retainer, or the fact that he has exercised his liberty not to plead the Statute of Limitations, are not grounds for ordering a transfer: Re Baker, 44 Ch. D. 262, 271, C. A.

On transfer from the K. B. Division the proper officer of the Writ Department will, on production of the order, send a receipt to the Master, who will file the order and receipt, and transmit the proceedings filed with him to be filed in the Chancery Division.

A similar course will be pursued on a transfer from the Chancery to another Division.

On an application under O. XLIX, 1, for the transfer of an action in the Chancery Division to another Judge of that Division, the L. C. has not jurisdiction to stay the action, but simply to determine whether or not it is to be transferred: Re Sharp, Bentall v. S., L. C., 16 Nov. 1876, Reg. Min. Fo. 112.

Although it was stated (2nd Nov. 1876) that a transfer from the Chancery to the Q. B. Division would not be ordered merely because the action was one for trial by jury, or for damages only (see Cannot v. Morgan, 1 Ch. D. 1), actions involving questions of fact proper for the decision of a mercantile jury will not, it seems, be retained in the Chancery Division: see China, &c. Co. v. Marine Insurance Co., W. N. (81) p. 89. So also, actions for an account, being properly triable in the Chancery, will not be transferred to the K. B. D.: Ladd v. Puleston, 31 W. R. 539, 802; 52 L. J. Ch. 816; but a petition for revocation of patent, where an action between the parties was pending in the Q. B. D., was transferred to that Division: Re Edge, 38 W. R. 698; 63 L. T. 370.

The fact that the action is by A. G. does not preclude transfer, as the choice of forum is primâ facie left to the relator: A. G. v. Wilson, W. N. (01) 5, C. A.; 83 L. T. 646; 49 W. R. 195.

A transfer from the Q. B. D. to the Ch. D. has been ordered in an action by a purchaser for a return of deposit where there was a counter-claim by Deft for specific performance involving an inquiry as to title: Holloway v. York, 2 Ex. D. 333, C. A.; London Land Co. v. Harris, 13 Q. B. D. 540; in an action to recover land where Deft counter-claimed for specific performance of a contract to grant a lease: Hillman v. Mayhew, 1 Ex. D. 132; though the mere fact that there is a counter-claim for specific performance is not a sufficient ground for ordering a transfer: Storey v. Waddle, 4 Q. B. D. 289, C. A.; and in an action against an exor for devastavit: Re Timms, 47 L. J. Ch. 831; 38 L. T. 679; 26 W. R. 692; in an action for accounts and winding-up of partnership: Leslie v. Clifford, 50 L. T. 590; but see contra, Warne v. Dell, W. N. (75) 259; and against a married woman on a guaranty to charge her separate estate: Anon., W. N. (76) 22.

But in an action by reprieve of deceased mortgagee for balance of money lent, a transfer was refused on the ground that the accounts could be more conveniently taken before the official referee than before the chief clerk: Newbould v. Steade, 49 L. T. 649.

That the ground of action and the principles on which it is to be decided are not altered by the transfer, see Noble v. Edwardes, 5 Ch. D. 378, 393, C. A.; The Gertrude, 13 P. D. 105, 109, C. A.

By O. LIV, 12 (c), the removal of actions from one Division or Judge to another is excepted from the jurisdiction of the Masters of the K. B. D., and from that of the registrars of the Probate, &c. Division.

A transfer from the Palatine Court to the High Court was ordered where the principal Deft, whose conduct was specially impeached, had ceased to reside within the jurisdiction of the former Court: Cooke v. Smith, 44 Ch. D. 72, C. A.

The jurisdiction to transfer from the Palatine Court of Lancaster to the High Court is vested in the Court of Appeal by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 18.

COMMERCIAL CAUSES.

The (so-called) Commercial Court was established not for the trial of all commercial causes, or of short causes only, but of causes which are likely to be more speedily, economically, and satisfactorily tried by a Judge specially versed in mercantile transactions; accordingly, a cause will not be transferred from the Ch. D. to the K. B. D. merely because it is a commercial cause: Buerlein v. Chartered Mercantile Bank, (1895) 2 Ch. 488, C. A.

The Court has not originated under the authority of the Rule Committee, but by a practice agreed upon by the Judges of the Q. B. D., who have the right to deal, by convention amongst themselves, with the mode of disposing of the business of their Courts: see judgment of Esher, M. R., Barry v. Peruvian Corp., (1896) 1 Q. B. 208, C. A., at p. 209.

An appeal will lie against an order for entry of a cause in the commercial list: Sea Ins. Co. v. Carr, (1901) 1 K. B. 7, C. A.

REMOVAL OF ACTION FROM DISTRICT REGISTRY.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 65, any party to an action in which the writ shall issue from any district registry may apply to the Court, or a Judge of the Division to which the action may be assigned, to remove the proceedings from such district into the High Court; and the Court or Judge may grant such application, and any proceedings or documents filed therein shall, on receipt of such order, be transmitted by the district registrar to the proper office of the said High Court, and the action shall thenceforth proceed there.

By O. xxxv, 13, "In any action which would, under the foregoing rules, proceed in the district registry, the action may, subject to r. 14, be removed from the district registry as of right in the cases, and within the times following:—

- "(1.) Where the writ is specially indorsed, under O. III, 6, and the Plt does not, within four days after the appearance of such Deft, give notice of an application for an order against him, under O. xiv, then such Deft may remove the action as of right at any time after the expiration of such four days, and before delivering a defence, and the expiration of the time for doing so;
- "(2.) Where the writ is specially indorsed, and the Plt has made such application, and the Deft has obtained leave to defend under O. xiv, then such Deft may remove the action as of right at any time after leave to defend, and before delivering a defence, and the expiration of the time for doing so;
- "(3.) Where the writ is not specially indorsed, under O. III, 6, any Deft may remove the action as of right at any time after appearance, and before delivering a defence, and before the expiration of the time for doing so."

By r. 14, a party desirous to remove an action as of right under r. 13 may do so by serving the other parties to the action, and delivering to the district registrar a notice, signed by himself or his solicitor, that he desires the action to be removed to London, and the action shall be removed accordingly: Provided that the Court or a Judge, if satisfied that the Deft giving such notice is a merely formal Deft, or has no substantial cause to interfere in the conduct of the action, or that there is other good cause for proceeding in the district registry, may order the action to proceed in the district registry notwithstanding such notice.

By r. 16, in any case not provided for by rr. 13 and 14, any party to a cause or matter proceeding in a district registry may apply to the Court or a Judge, or to the district registrar, for an order to remove the action from the district registry to London, and the Court, Judge, or registrar may order it, if satisfied there is sufficient reason, upon such terms, if any, as shall seem just.

By r. 17, any party to a cause or matter proceeding in London may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order to remove the cause or matter from London to any district registry, and such Court or Judge may order it, if satisfied that there is sufficient reason, upon such terms, if any, as shall seem just.

By r. 18, where a cause or matter is removed from a district registry, the Deft shall, upon such removal, give notice to the Plt of an address for service in London in all respects as if the appearance had been originally entered in London; and by r. 20, when a Deft appears in London, to a writ issued out of a district registry.

When the proceedings are commenced by originating summons, r. 16 applies: In re Thwaites, Yerburch v. Aston, W. N. (90) 218; 63 L. T. 747 (in which case, an important part of the property being in Lancashire, and three of the trustees appointed by the will being Lancashire men, transfer to London was refused).

Chancery actions commenced in district registries ought to be tried in London before the Judge of the Division to whom they have been assigned: Re Smith, Hutchinson v. Ward, 6 Ch. D. 692; and, except under special circumstances, the costs of such actions will be taxed by the taxing master in London: Day v. Whitaker, ib. 734; Re Wilson, W. v. Alltree, 27 Ch. D. 242 (q. v. at p. 244 as to the practice where an order for taxation in the district registry is made).

(in a due course of admon); And Let the said A. be at liberty to go in under the said judgment, and prove his claim against the assets of the said C.; If assets denied, And Let the said A. be at liberty to add his costs to his claim against the assets of the said C., and to go in and prove the same, and the amount of his said costs, when taxed, under the said decree, dated &c.].—Deft's costs of the application to be costs in the first-mentioned cause.—See Canham v. Neale, M. R., 7 July, 1858, A. 1798; S. C., 13 Dec. 1858, A. 397; 26 Beav. 266; West v. Swinburne, V.-C. K. B., 6 Dec. 1849, B. 478; 19 L. J. Ch. 81; Duffort v. Arrowsmith, 7 D. M. & G. 434; and see Re Clark, inf. Form 2.

For forms of application, see D. O. F. 986, 987.

LET all proceedings in this action be stayed; And Let the costs of the Plt W. of this action, up to and including this application, be taxed &c.; And Let the said costs when taxed be paid to the said Plt W. by the Deft C., the executrix of the testator &c. out of his assets (in a due course of admon); And Let the Plt W., be at liberty to go in under the judgment dated &c., made in &c., and prove his claim against the assets of the testator.—Costs of executrix to be costs in the action.—See Re Clark, Cumberland v. C., V.-C. S., 24 Jan. 1867; S. C., 4 Ch. 412.

On the appeal the words “in a due course of admon” were treated as being expressed. See judgment of L. J. Selwyn, 4 Ch. p. 413.

3. Proceedings stayed in First Action after Judgment in the Second—Carriage of Judgment given to Plt in the First.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts in the first-mentioned action, and upon hearing counsel for the Plts in the secondly-mentioned action, and for the Defts (executors) in both actions, and upon reading the judgment dated &c., made in the secondly-mentioned action, and an affidavit of &c., This Court doth order that all further proceedings in the first-mentioned action be stayed; and that the Plts in that action be at liberty to attend all proceedings under the judgment in the secondly-mentioned action; and that the carriage of the said judgment and of the said secondly-mentioned action be committed to the Plts in the first-mentioned action; And it is ordered that the costs of the Plts and Defts in the first-mentioned action of that action, including their costs of this application, and the costs of the Plts in the secondly-mentioned action of this application, be costs in the secondly-mentioned action.—See Drury v. Thorn, V.-C. W., 26 June, 1873, A. 1669.

For order staying a creditor's admon action, and giving the conduct of the admon to the exors, who had first obtained in a subsequent action a full admon decree, with liberty for the creditor to come in and establish his claim in the exors' action, see Re Smith's Estate, M'Murray v. Mathew, V.-C. B., 27 Jan. 1876, B. 283; 33 L. T. 804.

M.*, Willyams v. M., V.-C. B., 26 May, 1876, 45 L. J. Ch. 711.

For order to stay creditor's suit, after decree in suit by residuary legatees, and the exors not making affidavit of no assets to pay the creditor's costs up to notice of the decree, see Golder v. G., 9 Ha. 278; S. C., note.

For order giving Plt in first action (in Palatine Court) the conduct of the second action (in the High Court), and in which a decree was first obtained for admon of the same estate, he giving an undertaking to stay proceedings in the first action, see Re Swire, Mellor v. S., 19th April, 1882, B. 895; 21 Ch. D. 647, C. A.

4. On Motion for Stay and Motion for Judgment—Order for Consolidation of Causes—Additional Inquiry.

UPON motion by Defts for stay of the secondly-mentioned action, and that the Plt in that action might attend the proceedings in the first-mentioned action—and upon motion for judgment in the secondly-mentioned action.—Direction that the trusts of the testator's will be performed; And Let the judgment made in the action of H. v. C., dated &c., and the accounts and inquiries thereby directed, and the several proceedings thereunder, be carried on and prosecuted in the first-mentioned action, and in the secondly-mentioned action of G. v. C. at the same time; And Let, in addition to the inquiries directed by the said judgment, the following further inquiry be made, that is to say, An inquiry in whom the shares of the children or grandchildren of the testator, or any interest therein, are now vested.—Adjourn further consideration; And Let both actions be heard on further consideration together.—Costs of motion (to stay) to be costs in both actions.—Liberty to apply.—Hoskins v. Campbell, and Gibbon v. Campbell, V.-C. W., 9 Feb. 1864, A. 280; 2 H. & M. 43.

5. Order upon Motion to Consolidate, with Directions as to Trial.

UPON motion &c., that these actions might be consolidated, or that the said actions might be ordered to come on for trial together, and upon hearing &c., and the above-named A. &c., by their counsel undertaking to give notice as of to-day to the above-named W. to plead in the secondly-mentioned action, Let any of the parties to the above-mentioned actions be at liberty to use the evidence taken in any one of the said actions in any other of the said actions; And Let all further proceedings in the thirdly-mentioned action be stayed, except so far as that all the said actions shall come on to be heard at the same time.—Liberty to Deft E. to amend statement of defence.—Costs to be costs in the actions.—Debenham v. Lacey, Smith v. Whichcord, Evans v. Debenham, V.-C. H., 29 June, 1876, A. 1297; 24 W. R. 900.

For forms of application, see D. C. F. 985 et seq.

6. Parties consenting to Add an Inquiry, Conduct of Inquiry given to Plaintiff in Second Action.

LET the said order dated &c., be discharged; And the said S. by his counsel undertaking to procure, and the Plt and the Defts in this action by their counsel undertaking to assent to the addition of the following inquiry to the judgment in S. v. T., that is to say, an inquiry whether &c., Let the Plt in this action have the conduct of the said inquiry; And Let all proceedings in this action be stayed.—All costs to be dealt with by the Judge of the Palatine Court.—Townsend v. T., C. A., 23 Feb. 1883, B. 293; 23 Ch. D. 100, C. A.

7. Test Action—Enlargement of Time for Statement of Claim.

UPON motion &c., by counsel for the Plts in all the above-mentioned actions, and upon hearing counsel for the Defts in the said actions, and the Plts in all the said actions by their counsel undertaking that, so far as they are respectively concerned, the above-mentioned action of A. v. B. shall be treated as a test action, and decide their rights in all the other actions respectively as against themselves, but if the Defts in any of the other actions decline to accept the judgment in the said action of A. v. B. as deciding the said other actions, or any of them, as to any other of such of the said other actions in which the said Defts shall decline to accept the judgment in the said action of A. v. B., such other actions are to go to trial respectively, and the Plts and Defts are both to be at liberty, if they think fit, to use as evidence at the trial of such actions respectively any evidence used at the trial of the said test action, and the Plts in the said test action, and in the action of C. v. D., by their counsel undertaking that the said actions shall be prosecuted with due diligence, Let the time for the delivery of the statement of claim in the above-mentioned actions (other than the said test action and the action of C. v. D.) respectively be enlarged until fourteen days after the judgment shall have been given in the said test action on the trial thereof.—Amos v. Chadwick, V.-C. M., 23 Feb. 1877, A. 585; and see Bennett v. Lord Bury, 5 C. P. D. 339, at p. 340.

NOTES.

JURISDICTION.

The effect of the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 24 (5), is to take away the right formerly exercised in Chancery of granting an injunction to stay proceedings at law, or in another Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction: see Garbutt v. Fawcus, 1 Ch. D. 155, C. A.; and, under the present practice, when two actions relating to the same subject-matter have been commenced in different Divisions, they will be consolidated in that Division to which the real question at issue has been assigned by Jud. Act, 1873, s. 34: Holmes v. Hervey, 25 W. R. 80; 35 L. T. 600; Hillman v. Mayhew, 1 Ex. D. 132; Holloway v. York, 2 Ex. D. 333, C. A.

But in winding-up cases, the power given by the Cos. Act, 1862, ss. 85, 138, to stay proceedings against a co. by creditors after the presentation of a winding-up petition, or after the commencement of a voluntary winding-up, is unaffected by the prohibition contained in s. 24 (5), and falls within the subsequent proviso which gives power to stay proceedings upon some ground which is unconnected with the cause of action or counter-claim (e.g., a winding-up order): see Garbutt v. Fawcus, 1 Ch. D. 159, C. A.; Needham v. Rivers Protection Co., 1 Ch. D. 253; Re Stapleford Colliery Co., 24 W. R. 173; United Kingdom, &c. Co., 24 W. R. 546, 593.

And the exercise of this power is not confined to the Ch. D.: Rose v. Garden Lodge Co., 3 Q. B. D. 235; Walker v. Banaghar, &c. Co., 1 Q. B. D. 129; Moore v. City and County Bank, W. N. (75) 240.

The application for a stay of proceedings is to be made to the Division in which the action or proceeding to be restrained is pending: Re Artistic Colour Printing Co., 14 Ch. D. 502; Buckley, 260, 261; and this rule has not been altered by the Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890: In re General Service Co-operative Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 496.

As to the power generally of restraining proceedings against the co. after the presentation of a winding-up petition (Cos. Act, 1862, ss. 85, 197, 201), or after the commencement of a voluntary winding-up (ss. 133, 138), see Buckley, 259 et seq.

WINDING-UP OF COMPANY.

By O. XLIX, 5, "where an order has been made by any Judge of the Chancery Division for the winding-up of any co., or for admon of the assets of any testator or intestate, the Judge in whose Court such winding-up or admon shall be pending shall have power, without any further consent, to order the transfer to such Judge of any cause or matter pending in any other Court or Division brought or continued by or against such co., or by or against the exors or admors of the testator or intestate whose assets are being so administered, as the case may be."

As to the alteration effected by this rule, which substitutes "cause or matter" for "action" in the former rule (O. LI, 2a), so as now to enable a Judge who has made an order on one petition to direct the transfer to his own branch of the Court of a petition pending in another branch of the Court, see Buckley, 281; Chadw.-Healey, 533.

Transfer or stay of an action against a liquidator personally, though in respect of the business of the co., will not be ordered: Re Original Hartlepool Collieries Co., 51 L. J. Ch. 508; Re Thames Steam Ferry Co., 27 W. R. 503; 40 L. T. 422; secus, an action in respect of a rent-charge affecting land vested in liquidators in their official names, under an order of the Court: Graham v. Edge, 20 Q. B. D. 683, C. A.

On an application to stay proceedings in an action against a co. in voluntary liquidation, the Judge and the Master in Chambers have jurisdiction to order the Plt to pay the costs of the application: Freeman v. General Publishing Co., Ltd., 42 W. R. 539.

As the rule only applies when the order "has been made," the order for transfer should not be comprised in the judgment for admon: Re Poole, P. v. P., 55 L. T. 56.

PROCEEDINGS IN CRIMINAL COURT.

Proceedings in a criminal Court would not be restrained by the Court of Chancery, unless the criminal proceeding was of the same nature, and for the same identical purpose, as the suit in Chancery: Saull v. Browne, 10 Ch. 64; Kerr v. Preston Corp., 6 Ch. D. 463; nor proceedings before magistrates, when by the legislature they have been appointed the special tribunal for determining the matter in hand: Stannard v. St. Giles' Vestry, 20 Ch. D. 190, O. A.; unless in very special circumstances: Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Hampton Urban District Council, (1898) 2 Ch. 331; Lord Auckland v. W. District B. W., 7 Ch. 597.

But under the Cos. Act, 1862, s. 85, the Court has power to restrain proceedings at the police court to recover penalties under the Cos. Act, 1862, and Life Assur. Cos. Act, 1870, pending a petition for winding up the co.: Briton Mutual Assce. Assoc., 32 Ch. D. 503.

PRACTICE GENERALLY.

With respect to staying and consolidating causes, the practice, which in this respect is not substantially altered, has been that where two or more suits relating to the same subject-matter are pending in different branches of the Court, proceedings in one or more of them have been stayed: see Dan. 1664; Morg. 446.

Or a suit commenced in one branch of the Court, when another relating to the same subject-matter is pending in another branch, will be transferred to the latter. And the Plt who, knowing of the first, has instituted the second suit, must pay the costs of the application to transfer; but, before moving, the Plt in the first should apply for a consent to the transfer: Lyall v. Weldhen, 9 Ch. 287; Sayers v. Corrie, ib. 52; Orrell v. Busch, 5 Ch. 467. And the application of this rule is not affected by the circumstance that a decree has been made in the second suit: Lucas v. Siggers, 7 Ch. 517.

So also a party who refuses on insufficient grounds to consent to the transfer from one Court to another may be ordered to pay costs, if the notice of motion asks for them: Cocq v. Hunasgeria Co., 4 Ch. 415; Re Sharp, S. v. Bentall, sup. pp. 825, 829; Houseman v. H., 1 Ch. D. 535.

Where both the consolidated actions proceed, the titles of both are retained, but only one set of pleadings is delivered: see Martin v. Martin & Co., (1897) 1 Q. B. 429.

When by general order a cause has been transferred from one Judge (of the Chancery Division) to another, a retransfer will not be ordered, except by consent, where it would delay the hearing: Platt v. Walter, 1 Ch. 471.

The application to consolidate is by motion or under the summons for directions: Dan. 26.

ADMINISTRATION ACTIONS.

The question of consolidating concurrent actions in respect of the same subject-matter by a transfer to the same branch of the Court (Division), or by directing which action shall proceed, and of staying the others, arises most frequently, in the Chancery Division, in admon proceedings. A decree for admon of assets being in the nature of a judgment for all the creditors, under which they may all come in and obtain payment, a creditor was stayed from proceeding at law to recover his debt: Paxton v. Douglas, 8 Ves. 521; Jackson v. Leaf, 1 J. & W. 231; Drewry v. Thacker, 3 Swa. 541; but a creditor who has obtained judgment against the exor before judgment in an admon action cannot be restrained from enforcing his judgment: Re Womersley, Etheridge v. W., 29 Ch. D. 557; the receiver in that action being, however, directed to pay the debt and costs, without prejudice to the question whether they were to be allowed to the exor: S. C.; and see Pennell v. Roy, 3 D. M. & G. 126; Carron Co. v. Maclaren, 5 H. L. C. 416, 440, for a statement of the principles on which a creditor's action after admon decree was stayed. And similarly, to prevent the estate from being wasted by a multiplicity of litigation, more than one action for admon of the same estate will not be allowed to proceed.

The practice has been to allow that action in which a decree has first been obtained to proceed, and to stay the other unless such decree has been "snapped" or unfairly obtained, or the second action has been improperly instituted: Harris v. Gandy, 1 D. F. & J. 13; Frost v. Ward, 2 D. J. & S. 70; Rhodes v. Barret, 12 Eq. 479; or unless more complete and beneficial relief is sought by and can be obtained in the second action: Re McBae, Forster v. Davis, 25 Ch. D. 16; Budgen v. Sage, 3 M. & Cr. 683; Taylor v. Southgate, 4 M. & Cr. 203; Underwood v. Jee, 1 Mac. & G. 276; Pickford v. Hunter, 5 Sim. 122 (in which case the decree in the first suit, being less beneficial than that which could be obtained in the second, was not allowed to be pleaded in bar); Plunkett v. Lewis, 11 Sim. 379; Re Yates, 3 D. J. & S. 402; Hoskins v. Campbell, 2 H. & M. 43; Re Smith's Estate, M'Murray v. Mathew, 33 L. T. 804; or unless questions other than those of simple admon, e.g., breaches of trust or charges of wilful default, are raised in the action in which a judgment has not been first obtained: see Zambaco v. Cassavetti, 11 Eq. 439.

A second and more comprehensive suit has been stayed upon the Deft in the first (the admor) undertaking not to object to any additions to the decree thought fit to be made by the Judge in Chambers: Gwyer v. Peterson, 26 Beav. 83; Matthews v. Palmer, 11 W. R. 610; and see Vanrenen v. Piffard, 13 W. R. 425; 11 L. T. 766; and Form 6, sup.

And where infants are Plts, that suit will, cæteris paribus, be preferred in which the mother is next friend: Harris v. H., 10 W. R. 31; or that which is most for their benefit: Virtue v. Miller, 19 W. R. 406; and see Frost v. Ward, 2 D. J. & S. 70.

Two admon suits having been instituted, one in the Palatine Court in which a decree was first made, and the other in the Court of Chancery, the latter Court refused to stay the proceedings before it, as the entire property to be administered was not within the jurisdiction of the Palatine Court, though if it had been, a stay would, it seems, have been granted: Wynne v. Hughes, 26 Beav. 377; and see Bradley v. Stelfox, 1 N. R. 221.

Where an admon action and a partnership action by testator's surviving partner were in different branches of the Court, the partnership action was transferred: Davis v. D., 48 L. J. Ch. 40.

An admor whose title after obtaining an admon decree has been displaced, will be liable, by not submitting to an application to stay proceedings in his suit, to the costs of such application, and will not get the costs of his own suit: Houseman v. H., 1 Ch. D. 535.

CONDUCT OF ACTION.

After consolidation of actions for the same object, and difference of opinion between the joint Plts as to the course to be adopted, the conduct was given to those of the Plts who had not been the first to take steps for severance, though their interest in the subject-matter was smaller: Holden v. Silkstone Co., 30 W. R. 98; 45 L. T. 531.

If the first action is stayed by reason of a decree in a second action first obtained, the conduct of the proceedings will generally be given to the Plt in the first action: Zambaco v. Cassavetti, 11 Eq. 439; Kenyon v. K., 35 Beav. 300; Belcher v. B., 2 Dr. & S. 444; Frost v. Ward, 2 D. J. & S. 70; and this rule applies though the first action was in the Palatine Court, and the second (in which the decree was obtained) in the Chancery Division: Re Swire, Mellor v. S., 21 Ch. D. 647, 655, C. A.; and see Townsend v. T., 23 Ch. D. 100, C. A.

And the order has been made upon terms of adding to the judgment inquiries in respect of questions raised in the action stayed: see Matthews v. M., 34 L. T. 718; Townsend v. T., 23 Ch. D. 100, C. A.; Form 6, sup. p. 833; Drury v. Thorn, sup., Form 3, p. 831.

In applying the rule, special circumstances will be regarded, e.g., the amount of the interest of the Plt in the first action, and his object in bringing it: Re Swire, sup.; but the fact that the first Plt was a purchaser of reversionary interests, and that some of the purchases were disputed, was not ground for depriving him of the conduct.

Or the first suit may be partially stayed, with liberty to Plt to prove under the decree in the second for what he might eventually establish in the first:

Dryden v. Foster, 6 Beav. 146; see also Smith's Estate, M'Murray v. Mathew, 33 L. T. 804; Crowle v. Russell, 4 O. P. D. 186.

And see, on this question, "ADMINISTRATION," Chap. XLIV., inf. p. 1524.

In the case of cross actions, there is no inflexible rule in favour of the first Plt: Thomson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 320, C. A., where the action by the Plts, on whom the burden of proof lay, was allowed to proceed.

For form of summons for conduct of action, see D. C. F. 538.

TEST ACTION.

The practice of selecting which of several suits shall proceed has been also adopted in patent cases, sup. pp. 649, 650; and when the patentee is suing several infringers simultaneously, one suit has been selected as a test suit, and proceedings in the others stayed upon an undertaking by the several Defts to abide the result of the selected suit: Foxwell v. Webster, 4 D. J. & S. 77; Amos v. Chadwick, 4 Ch. D. 869, sup. p. 833. Although the order contained no express provision to that effect, the Court has power to substitute another of the actions as the test action, where the original action has by some accident failed to be a real trial of the matters in issue therein: S. C., 9 Ch. D. 459; followed in Bennett v. Ld. Bury, 5 O. P. D. 339, where thirty-eight actions had been brought against the Defts as directors of a co. in respect of sums deposited for investment; and see Colledge v. Pike, 56 L. T. 124.

Upon neglect of Deft in a test action to appeal, another Deft in another action was substituted: Briton Medical Life Assur. Soc. v. Jones, 60 L. T. 637. And see Bovill v. Crate, 1 Eq. 388.

PREVALENCE OF PRACTICE.

The practice of consolidating proceedings has also been adopted:

SECTION III.—REMOVAL OF CAUSES AND ACTIONS FROM AND TO INFERIOR COURTS—CERTIORARI.

1. Order for Removal of Cause from Equity side of Mayor's Court into Chancery, under 20 & 21 V. c. 157, ss. 20 and 52—Consolidation of Causes—Receiver continued in Consolidated Causes.

"LET the above-mentioned cause of B. v. P., now pending on the Equity side of the Mayor's Court of London, and the decree made in the said cause, and all proceedings had therein, be, pursuant to the provisions in that behalf of the Mayor's Court of London Procedure Act, 1857, removed from out of the Equity side of the said Mayor's Court into the Chancery Division of this Court, and be assigned to the V.-C. —; And Let the original proceedings filed in the said Mayor's Court of London, or office copies thereof, be brought into and placed on record in this Court, and filed with the record in the said cause of N. v. P., 1875, N. 49; And Let the said cause be henceforth prosecuted, and the decree therein be carried into effect in this Court, as if the same had been originally made by this Court, and been intituled in both the said causes of B. v. P. and N. v. P.; And Let the said causes be consolidated, and be henceforth carried on as if they were one cause; And Let the conduct thereof and the carriage of the said decree be committed to the Plt N.; And Let the costs of all parties of both the said causes, including the costs of the motion of the Plt N. in B. v. P., in the Mayor's Court, be costs in the said consolidated causes; And Let E., the receiver appointed in the said cause of N. v. P., be continued as receiver in the said consolidated causes."—Directions that the receiver leave in Chambers his annual account as receiver, and pay his balances into Court to the credit of the said consolidated causes of N. v. P., 1875, N. 49, and B. v. P., instead of in manner directed by the order dated &c.; And that the receiver appointed in B. v. P. be discharged, and that he pass his accounts and pay any balance certified to be due from him into Court to the credit of the said consolidated causes of N. v. P. &c., and B. v. P.; And that upon such payment, or if no such balance is due, his recognizance be vacated.—Nothard v. Proctor and Blewitt v. Proctor (in the Mayor's Court), V.-C. B., 16 Nov. 1875, B. 2872; Vickers v. Stevens, V.-C. B., 29 W. R. 562.

The proceedings in Nothard v. Proctor were not stayed, but were consolidated in order not to disturb the continuing receiver's security already given in that suit.

For forms of application, &c., in reference to removal from Mayor's Court, see D. C. F. 1002 et seq.

2. Order for Writ of Certiorari on Ex parte Motion to remove Proceedings from the Mayor's Court into Chancery.

UPON motion &c., Let a writ of certiorari issue directed to the Lord Mayor of the City of London and his brethren the Aldermen of the said city, commanding them to certify and remove (the bill of complaint in the Plt's bill mentioned), with the process and all proceedings thereon, into this Court, and to stand to, observe, and perform such order and decree therein as the circumstances of the case shall require.—Tracy v. The Open Stock Exchange, L. C., 12 Dec. 1870, B. 3035.

For like order, and for service of the writ, and of the bill on the Deft's solr, see Davies v. MacHenry, L. C., 25 Nov. 1867, A. 2258; 3 Ch. 200.

For further order on ex parte motion that the writ and proceedings returned therewith be filed on the record; and that an inquiry be made whether the Plt is able to prove the suggestions made in the bill in Chancery, see Davies v. MacHenry, V.-C. W., 11 Jan. 1868, A. 41; 3 Ch. 202.

And for the final order, on summons, to vary the certificate and ex parte motion to retain the bill, that the certificate be considered as varied by stating that the Plt has proved the suggestion made in her bill that neither the Plt nor the Deft were resident within the jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court; and that the said suit be retained, see Davies v. MacHenry, V.-O. W., 31 Jan. 1868, A. 202; 3 Ch. 202.

3. Further Order to retain Suit in Chancery, on return of Writ, without Inquiry.

UPON motion &c., Let the said writ and the proceedings returned therewith from the Mayor's Court of the City of London in a suit of Billing and others v. Tracy and others, instituted in that Court by the Defts F. B., G. H., and C. H., and the Open Stock Exchange, Limited, against the Plts &c., be filed on the record of this Court; and it appearing by the bill filed in the said Mayor's Court that the Plts (in that suit) are resident out of the jurisdiction of that Court, Let the said suit of Billing and others v. Tracy and others, be retained in this Court.—Tracy v. Open Stock Exchange, V.-C. M., 22 Dec. 1870, B. 3129; 11 Eq. 556.

For the like order, see Jones v. Hay, V.-C. J., 20 July, 1869, A. 1964; S. C., 17 W. R. 996.

For a further order by consent after the removal, for transfer of a fund in Court in the cause in the Mayor's Court, into Chancery, see Billing v. Tracy, V.-C. M., 11 Jan. 1871, A. 73; 11 Eq. 557.

For like order by consent, see Evans v. Hicks, Field, J., in Chambers, 22 Aug. 1876, A. 1627.

6. Certiorari Nisi to remove Action from County Court to High Court.

UPON the appeal of P. and L., this day made unto this Court from the order dated &c., and upon hearing counsel for the appellants, Let, unless the Plt S. do on the — day of —, 18—, or so soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, show sufficient cause to the contrary before the Court of Appeal, a writ of certiorari issue to remove this action into the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice, on the ground that the said action raises a question of the validity of a certain contract for sale of real estate, and that an action is pending in the said Chancery Division, in which the appellants are Plts and the said S. is a Deft, for specific performance of the same contract.—Simons v. Pearce, C. A., 12 March, 1885, B. 343.

For forms of application, &c., for removal of action, see D. C. F. 997 et seq.

7. Certiorari to remove Plaint from County Court to the High Court.

Rust*, M. R. at Chambers, 18 Nov. 1879, A. 2174.

9. Cause to proceed in County Court notwithstanding Subject-matter exceeds Limit.

By consent, Let this suit be carried on and prosecuted in the County Court of &c., holden at —, notwithstanding the subject-matter thereof

NOTES.

REMOVING PROCEEDINGS FROM INFERIOR COURT—CERTIORARI.

For the practice as to bills of certiorari in Chancery where an equitable right was sued for in an inferior Court, and by reason of the limited jurisdiction the Deft could not have complete justice, or the cause was not within such jurisdiction, see Dan. 1628; L. Red. p. 60 (ed. 1847).

And as to the bond to be entered into, and where the facts did not appear, the inquiry whether the suggestions of the bill were proved, see Dan., 5th ed., p. 1431; and as to obtaining the certificate enlarging the time, and applying to vary it, see Ib. 1432, and Davies v. MacHenry, 3 Ch. 200, and cases there cited; and see Lord Bacon's Orders, r. 19; 1 Sanders, 112.

Under the Jud. Acts the proceeding by bill of certiorari is abolished by O. 1, 1; and the practice as to issuing this writ in Chancery is now similar to that of the other Divisions of the High Court: see Re Royal Liver Friendly Soc., 35 Ch. D. 332.

For the practice hitherto followed as to issuing this writ, the effect of which is instantly to suspend the power of the inferior Court in the cause which it removes; and the proceedings under it in the Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster; and for the form of the writ, and in what cases bail is required, and when leave to issue the writ is necessary, see Ib. Chit. Arch. 1557, &c.

As to quashing the writ of certiorari and awarding a procedendo, which is a judicial writ issuing from the superior Court commanding the Judge of the County Court to proceed with the cause, see Chit. Arch. 1560.

As to the removal of plaints from the County Courts by certiorari or otherwise, see Chit. Arch. 1562; Annual County Court Practice, Chap. V., 230.

And as to removing causes from inferior Courts after judgment for the purpose of obtaining execution only, see Chit. Arch. 1569; 51 & 52 V. c. 43, s. 151, inf. p. 844.

When so removed, the superior Court has no jurisdiction to inquire into the merits or the regularity of the proceedings below: Williams v. Bolland, 1 C. P. D. 227.

For the forms of the affidavit to obtain a certiorari from a superior to an inferior Court, and of the writ, and other proceedings thereunder, see Chitty's Forms, 798—817; D. C. F. 999 et seq.

As to the removal of a cause from an inferior Court by writ of habeas corpus, where the Deft is in custody, see Chit. Arch. p. 1555.

Proceedings in an action commenced against a friendly society in the County Court by members for a declaration that a payment was ultra vires were removed by certiorari, the provisions in the Friendly Societies Act, 1875, ss. 22 (d) and 30, sub-a. 10, as to reference of disputes to the County Court, being held to be permissive only: Re Royal Liver Friendly Society, 35 Ch. D. 332.

AS TO THE MAYOR'S COURT.

By the Mayor's Court of London Procedure Act, 1857 (20 & 21 V. c. clvii.), s. 16, no cause in which the debt or damages shall not exceed 50*l.* is to be removed by Deft before judgment into any of the superior Courts, except by a Judge's order, or on giving security: but the Judge may direct a certiorari to issue without security; and as to such removal, see sects. 17, 18, 19.

By sect. 54, "superior Courts" mean any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster; but by the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 16, this jurisdiction is transferred to the High Court of Justice, and may be exercised by any Division thereof.

By the 20 & 21 V. c. clvii. s. 20, no suit on the Equity side of the Mayor's Court is to be removed into Chancery without the special order of the L. C., M. R., or one of the V.-C.'s, on application for that purpose; nor then, if the Judge considers the question fit to be tried in the Mayor's Court.

By sect. 52, no cause is removable from the Court otherwise than by certiorari, or by the order of a Judge of a superior Court, or by special order of the L. C., M. R., or one of the V.-C.'s; and every writ of certiorari is to be returnable immediately. For the practice as to the removal of causes from, and generally as to proceedings in, the Mayor's Court, see Glyn and Jackson, 133.

Under clause 12 of the schedule to 35 & 36 V. c. 86 (applied to the Mayor's Court by Order in Council of June 26, 1873), a Deft cannot have his action removed merely because it is "fit to be tried in the Superior Court." He must satisfy the Judge that it ought to be so tried, or is more fit to be so tried than in the inferior Court: Banks v. Hollingsworth, (1893) 1 Q. B. 442, C. A.

The Plt, upon obtaining the writ of certiorari, was put upon an undertaking to justify the issuing the writ; and an inquiry was directed whether Plt had proved the suggestions in his bill: Davies v. MacHenry, 3 Ch. 202. But if the want of jurisdiction as to parties or subject-matter appears on the face of the proceedings in the inferior Court, the writ of certiorari will, it seems, be granted, and an order made ex parte, without further evidence or any reference to Chambers, that the suit in the Mayor's Court be retained in Chancery: Tracy v. Open Stock Exchange, 11 Eq. 556; Jones v. Hey, 17 W. R. 996. The more convenient course, however, under the above Act is to move at once for the removal of the cause, as in Nothard v. Proctor, sup. p. 838, and the motion should, as in that case, be on notice.

Under the old practice, and also in Davies v. MacHenry, sup., the writ of certiorari issued from the Petty Bag Office (now merged in the Central Office: R. S. C., Jan. 1889), the proceedings in which were regulated by the 12 & 13 V. c. 109; but in Jones v. Hey, and Tracy v. Open Stock Exchange, sup., the writ issued from the Record and Writ Office.

As to removal of a judgment in the Mayor's Court, whether under or over 20*l.*, into the superior Court for the purposes of execution, see sect. 48 of the 20 & 21 V. c. clvii.; Paine v. Slater, 11 Q. B. D. 120, C. A.; Glyn and Jackson, 133.

And see Dan. 1635 et seq.

COUNTY COURT—TRANSFER FROM HIGH COURT TO COUNTY COURT.

By County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43), s. 69, any action or matter pending in the Chancery Division which might have been commenced in a County Court, may, on the application of any of the parties in Chambers to the Judge to whom the action or matter is attached, be transferred to the County Court in which the same might have been commenced, and the proceedings are thereupon to be carried on in the County Court, with the usual right of appeal.

After an order for transfer has been made the High Court retains jurisdiction until the transfer has been completed by all necessary steps: David v. Howe, 27 Ch. D. 533, C. A.; but thenceforward the jurisdiction of the High Court is at an end: Duke v. Davis, (1893) 2 Q. B. 107; (1893) 2 Q. B. 260, C. A.; Harris v. Judge, (1892) 2 Q. B. 565, 567, 568.

Where, in any action of contract brought in the High Court, the claim indorsed on the writ does not exceed £100, or where such claim, "though it originally exceeded £100, is reduced by payment, an admitted set-off, or otherwise, to a sum not exceeding £100," either party may at any time, on application in Chambers, obtain an order that such action be tried in the County Court, unless there is good cause to the contrary (51 & 52 V. c. 43, s. 65).

The "payment" reducing the claim must be payment before action brought: Hodgson v. Bell, 24 Q. B. D. 525, C. A.; and see Foster v. Usherwood, 3 Ex. D. 1; secus, under the repealed Act (19 & 20 V. c. 108), where the words were "payment, payment into Court, admitted set-off, or otherwise": Gray v. Hopper, 21 Q. B. D. 246, C. A.

The set-off, being admitted on the writ by the Plt, is an admitted set-off: Lovejoy v. Cole, (1894) 2 Q. B. 861.

Any action of tort, upon affidavit by any person sued, "that the Plt has no visible means of paying the costs of the Deft should a verdict be not found for the Plt," may be sent to the County Court, unless the Plt gives full security for costs, or satisfies the Judge that he has a cause of action fit to be prosecuted in the High Court: 51 & 52 V. c. 43, s. 66.

The Court has power to remit although there is a counter-claim for unliquidated damages: Guilford v. Lambeth, (1895) 1 Q. B. 92, C. A.

The action remains in the High Court until the Plt has lodged the original writ and the order with the registrar of the County Court in accordance with the section; and consequently until that has been done the High Court still has jurisdiction to make an interlocutory order in the action: D'Errico v. Samuel, (1896) 1 Q. B. 163, C. A.; and see Delobel-Flipo v. Varty, (1893) 1 Q. B. 663.

By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 67 (and the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 187), sects. 65, 66, and 69 of the County Courts Act, 1888, are rendered applicable to "all actions commenced or pending in the High Court of Justice in which any relief is sought which can be given in a County Court."

The enactment is to be construed so as to extend, rather than limit, the powers of the Court: see Stokes v. S., 19 Q. B. D. 419, C. A., where it was held that an action of slander, though it could not be commenced in the County Court, might be remitted there.

The County Court has no jurisdiction to make a vesting order as to stock standing in the name of a lunatic: Re Noyce, (1892) 1 Q. B. 642.

Where an action has been remitted to the County Court, s. 118 does not affect a solr's right to recover the costs previously incurred in the High Court: Cubison v. Mayo, (1896) 1 Q. B. 246, C. A.

And see Dan. 1622 et seq.

TRANSFER FROM COUNTY COURT TO HIGH COURT.

By the County Courts Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 43), s. 67, the jurisdiction of the County Court in actions or matters for admon of estates, execution of trusts, foreclosure, redemption, or enforcement of charges, specific performance, or reformation, delivery up, or cancellation of agreements for sale, purchase or lease, under the Trustee Acts, as to the maintenance or advancement of infants, as to partnership, or relief against fraud or mistake, extends to cases in which the subject-matter as defined by the Act does not exceed £500 in amount or value, as the case may be.

By sect. 68, if during the progress of any such action or matter, it is made to appear to the Judge that the subject-matter exceeds the prescribed limit, the validity of any order already made is not to be affected, but it becomes the duty of the Judge to direct the action or matter to be transferred to the Chancery Division; and the whole of the procedure in the action or matter when so transferred is to be regulated by the rules of the Supreme Court. But any party may apply to a Judge of the Chancery Division at Chambers for an order authorizing and directing the action or matter to be carried on and prosecuted in the County Court, notwithstanding such excess in amount, and the Judge, if he shall deem it right to summon the other parties, or any of them, to appear before him for that purpose, after hearing such parties, or on default of appearance of all or any of them, shall have full power to make such order.

A transfer will not be ordered under the section where the administration has been substantially completed in the County Court: Pragnell v. P., 62 L. J. Ch. 346.

By the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 124, no judgment or order of a County Court Judge, nor action or matter in his Court, is to be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any other Court whatever, except in the manner in the Act mentioned. By sect. 126, the High Court or a Judge thereof is empowered to order the removal into the High Court, by writ of certiorari or otherwise, of any action or matter commenced in the County Court, if it is deemed desirable that the action or matter should be tried in the High Court, and any terms may be imposed as to payment of costs, giving security or otherwise. By sect. 129, the grant of an order or summons to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not issue, is, if the High Court or Judge so directs, to operate as a stay of proceedings, until determination of such order or summons or further order. By sect. 132, when the grant of a writ of certiorari has been refused by the High Court or Judge, no other Court or Judge may grant such writ, but this does not affect the right of appealing, or of making application for the writ on different grounds.

By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 90, it is provided that where in any proceeding before any inferior Court any defence or counter-claim of the Deft involves matter beyond the jurisdiction of such Court, it shall be lawful for the High Court, or any Division or Judge thereof, to order that the whole proceeding be transferred from such inferior Court to the High Court, or to any Division thereof; and in such case the record in such proceeding shall be transmitted by the registrar or other proper officer of the inferior Court to the High Court; and the same shall thenceforth be continued and prosecuted in the High Court as if it had been originally commenced therein. Accordingly, after transfer from the County Court to the Chancery Division, the Plt is not entitled to discovery and production except according to the rules and practice of the High Court: Davies v. Williams, 13 Ch. D. 550; and service out of the jurisdiction is thenceforth regulated by O. XI, and not by the County Court Rules, 1889, O. LI, 23: Wood v. Middleton, (1897) 1 Ch. 151. As to jurisdiction of inferior Courts in counter-claims, see Jud. Act, 1883, s. 18.

The practice as to the transfer of proceedings from the County Court to the High Court under these provisions is now regulated by County Court Rules, 1889, O. XXXIII.

For instances of a transfer from the County Court to the Court of Chancery, under 28 & 29 V. c. 99, s. 3, see Baker v. Wait, 9 Eq. 103; Birks v. Silverwood, 14 Eq. 101; Thomson v. Flinn, 17 Eq. 415.

The effect of the order of transfer is to put an end to the jurisdiction of the County Court Judge, who cannot, after directing a transfer, go on to give directions as to the costs: Hares v. Lea, 10 Eq. 683.

So, also, when a testamentary cause had been transferred from the Probate to the County Court, the Probate Court had no power to make an order as to costs incurred before the transfer: Macleur v. M., L. R. 1 P. & M. 604.

By the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 151, if a Judge of the High Court is satisfied that a party against whom a County Court judgment for more than £20 has been obtained has no goods or chattels which can be conveniently taken in satisfaction, he may order a writ of certiorari to issue to remove the judgment into the High Court, and when so removed it is to have the same force and effect, and the same proceedings may be had thereon, as in the case of a judgment of the High Court.

Certiorari does not lie to bring up an order of a County Court Judge made when exercising bankruptcy jurisdiction: Skinner v. Northallerton County Court Judge, (1899) A. C. 439, H. L.; (1898) 2 Q. B. 680, C. A.

As to the transfer of winding-up proceedings from the County Court under the Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890 (53 & 54 V. c. 63), s. 3, see Re Laxon & Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 31.

4. Order remitting Case back for Error.

THIS action coming on for further consideration &c., and upon hearing the judgment &c., and the opinion of the High Court of &c., in &c., upon the case and questions of (Hindoo) law submitted to the said Court pursuant to the said order dated &c., read; And it being suggested that an error has by accident crept into the answer contained in such opinion to the 8th of such questions, and that the words "her heirs" have, by a clerical error, been substituted for "his heirs"; Let the hearing of this action on further consideration stand over; And Let the said case and opinion be remitted back to the said Court of &c., in &c.; And the said Court is hereby requested to pronounce a further opinion on the 8th of such questions upon the law administered by the said Court as applicable to the facts contained in the said case.—Login v. Princess of Coorg, M. R., 29 April, 1864, B. 1086.

5. Order on Case sent from Scotland—22 & 23 V. c. 63, s. 1.

UPON the petition of A. B., C. D. &c., and upon hearing counsel for the Petr and for the respondents, and upon reading the said petition, the case approved by the Lord Ordinary in an action of multiple poinding and exoneration, in the first division of the Court of Sessions at the instance of A. B., pursuer and real raiser, and E. F., defender, and an interlocutor dated &c. in the same action, remitting the same to the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice in order that an opinion of the Court might be obtained upon the questions of law stated in the case.—Declare &c.—Re Sprot, Chitty, J., 30 March, 1887, B. 505.

NOTES.

By the British Law Ascertainment Act (22 & 23 V. c. 63) s. 1, in any action within H. M.'s dominions, the Court may have a case prepared setting forth the facts, and settle the questions of law, and make an order remitting the same to a superior Court in any other part of H. M.'s dominions for its opinion; and any party may by petition obtain the opinion of such Court; by sect. 2, copies of such opinion are to be certified by its officer; by sect. 3, any party may lodge such copy with the Court sending the case, and give notice of motion to act upon it; and such Court may act on it, as on a case reserved or special verdict, or, if before trial, submit it, as there mentioned, to a jury; by sect. 4, if such action is appealed to H. M. in Council, or the House of Lords, such opinion may be reviewed, if a judgment of the Court may be; sect. 5 defines "action" and "superior Courts."

Under this Act the Court has declined to decide on a case sent from Scotland on a point on which the Scotch law was the same: Brodie v. Johnson, 30 Beav. 129.

The Foreign Law Ascertainment Act, 1861 (24 & 25 V. c. 11), is a similar Act, for better ascertaining the law of any foreign State or country with whom H. M.'s Government may have made a convention for that purpose, when pleaded in Courts within H. M.'s dominions.

The Court takes judicial cognizance of the boundaries of foreign States: Foster v. Globe Venture Syndicate, (1900) 1 Ch. 811, sup. p. 155.

For formal parts of case and opinion, see D. C. F. 982, 983.

The costs of the hearing in the County Palatine Court are taxed by the district registrar of that Court; but the costs of an appeal are taxed by the taxing master of the Supreme Court: see *Kevan v. For an order on appeal, with direction to tax the Plt (appellant) his costs of suit and of the appeal, including therein the costs of transcribing the shorthand writer's notes, and of printing such notes and the evidence for the purposes of the appeal, the Deft to pay such costs when taxed, see Bigsby v. Dickinson, C. A., 20 Nov. 1876, A. 2033; 4 Ch. D. 24, C. A.

Where costs of shorthand notes are given by the Court of Appeal, the order should extend to "costs of the appeal and of shorthand notes of the evidence and judgment": Singer, &c. Co. v. Loog, 31 W. R. 392; 52 L. J. Ch. 288; 49 L. T. 484.

Spence's Patent is invalid on the grounds stated in the particulars of objections to be delivered with their amendment"; and the Plts by their counsel undertake, if they so amend, to allow the Defts on the question of the validity of the patent, to begin and have a reply; And Let the Plts, if they so amend, pay to the Defts their costs occasioned by this appeal to be taxed &c. as between solr and client, and also all costs incurred by the Defts and thrown away in consequence of the amendment hereby authorized not having been made on the day after the date of the order dated &c., including the costs (if any) caused by any adjournment of the action rendered necessary by reason of the said amendment being made or authorized, such costs to be taxed &c., as between solr and client; And if the Plts do not amend their statement of claim as hereinbefore authorized, Let the Plts pay to the Defts their costs occasioned by this appeal.—*Kurtz v. NOTES.

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT OF APPEAL.

By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 4, the Court of Appeal is to have and exercise appellate jurisdiction, with such original jurisdiction as after mentioned as may be incident to the determination of any appeal. By sect. 18, there is transferred to this Court all jurisdiction and powers of the L. C. and Court of Appeal in Chancery in the exercise of his and its appellate jurisdiction, and of the same Court as a Court of Appeal in Bankruptcy; of the Court of Appeal in Chancery of the County Palatine of Lancaster; of the Court of the Lord Warden of the Stannaries and his assessors; of the Court of Exchequer Chamber; and of the Privy Council on appeal from any judgment of the High Court of Admiralty; or from any order in Lunacy.

And by sect. 19, the Court has jurisdiction to hear and determine appeals from any judgment or order of the High Court, or any Judge or Judges of it, subject to the provisions of the Act and Rules of Court, and for the purposes of the hearing and determination of any appeal, and of the amendment, execution, and enforcement of any judgment or order made on any such appeal, has all the power, authority and jurisdiction vested by the Act in the High Court of Justice.

As to the meaning and effect of the section, and the jurisdiction conferred by it in cases of habeas corpus, see Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Ca. 506, 528, 529; Reg. v. Barnardo, Jones' Case, (1891) 1 Q. B. 194, C. A.; S. C. (nom. Barnardo v. McHugh), (1891) A. C. 388; Barnardo v. Ford, Gossage's Case, (1892) A. C. 326.

Where a person has been discharged from custody under an order for a habeas corpus, there can be no appeal: Cox v. Hakes, sup.; but an appeal lies from an order of the Q. B. Division for habeas corpus to bring an infant before the Court, in order to the determination of the right to custody: Reg. v. Barnardo, Jones' Case, sup.

By the Jud. Act, 1899 (62 & 63 V. c. 6), sect. 1: "Notwithstanding anything in sect. 12 of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1875, or in sect. 1 of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1890, if all parties to an appeal or motion before the hearing file a consent to the appeal or motion being heard and determined before two Judges of the Court of Appeal, the appeal or motion may be heard and determined accordingly, subject nevertheless to the same right (if any) of appeal to the House of Lords as if the hearing and determination had been before three Judges. Provided that in all causes or matters to which any infant or person of unsound mind, whether so found by inquisition or not, or person under any other disability is a party, no such consent shall be given by the next friend, guardian, committee, or other person acting on behalf of the person under disability, so as to have the same force and effect as if such party were under no disability and had given such consent, unless with the previous consent of a Court or a Judge, nor so as to make such consent valid as between any committee of a lunatic and the lunatic, unless with the previous sanction of the Lord Chancellor or Lords Justices sitting in Lunacy."

"And provided also that if two Judges having heard an appeal or motion shall differ in opinion, the case shall, on the application of any party to the appeal, be reargued and determined by three Judges of the Court of Appeal before appeal to the House of Lords."

For the first case heard before two Judges of the Court of Appeal under this Act, see Re Hope, De Cetto v. Hope, (1899) 2 Ch. 679; W. N. (99) 113, C. A. For form of consent, see D. C. F. 733.

The original jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal is purely incidental to its appellate jurisdiction: Flower v. Lloyd, 6 Ch. D. 297, 301, C. A.; Glover v. Greenbank, &c. Co., W. N. (76) 157; Falcke v. Scottish Imperial Ins. Co., 57 L. T. 39; 35 W. R. 794 (where the question was considered whether the jurisdiction of the old Court of Chancery to entertain an application for leave to institute proceedings by way of bill of review has been taken away); and accordingly, on an appeal from a winding-up order, the Court of Appeal cannot hear an original winding-up petition by another creditor together with the appeal: Re Dunraven, &c. Co., 24 W. R. 37; 33 L. T. 371; and see Brown v. Collins, 25 Ch. D. 57.

And when an order has been perfected and expresses the real decision of the Court, the C. A. has no jurisdiction to alter it by way of rehearing on the ground of misrepresentation: Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup & Sons, (1895) 1 Ch. 141, C. A.

The appellate jurisdiction conferred by these sections is wholly unaffected by the enrolment of any judgment or order, as enrolment no longer affects the right of appeal: Hastie v. H., 2 Ch. D. 304, C. A.; and the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to order an enrolment to be vacated, this power now belonging to the L. C. alone: Allan v. El. Telegraph Co., 24 W. R. 898; 45 L. J. Ch. 336; 34 L. T. 707.

By O. LVIII, 1, all appeals are to be by way of rehearing. The power of rehearing is now part of the appellate jurisdiction, and no Judge of the High Court has any power to rehear an order: Re St. Nazaire Co., 12 Ch. D. 88, C. A.; Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, (1895) 1 Ch. 141, C. A., and as to the power of the Court to rectify mistakes in judgments or orders, v. sup. p. 191 et seq.

The jurisdiction of the old Court of Chancery as to allowing proceedings by way of review is still exercisable by the Ch. D. of the High Court, but an action of review can now, it seems, be commenced without leave: Re Scott and Alvarez, (1895) 1 Ch. 596, per Kekewich, J.

The Court of Appeal grants relief according to the law in force at the time of the hearing of the appeal: Quilter v. Mapleson, 9 Q. B. D. 672, C. A.

Appeals from judgments by default will not in general be entertained, as the party against whom judgment has been given in his absence can apply to the Court of first instance: Vint v. Hudspeth, 29 Ch. D. 322, C. A.

The Court of Appeal does not regard itself as bound by a previous decision as to which the Judges of Appeal were equally divided: The Vera Cruz, 9 P. D. 96, C. A.

By the Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 17, the Court of Appeal has all the powers conferred by the Act on the Court or a Judge as to references under orders of the Court.

By the Chancery of Lancaster Act, 1890, s. 3, the jurisdiction of the Lancaster Chancery Court is assimilated to that of the High Court, and by sect. 4, the Court of Appeal is, as to all judgments and orders of the Lancaster Chancery Court, to have the like appellate and original jurisdiction as the Court of Appeal now has or may have under any future Act of Parliament not enacting to the contrary with respect to judgments and orders of the High Court or any Judge thereof.

As to appeals from the Court of Chancery of the County Palatine of Durham, see Palatine Court of Durham Act, 1889, and as to appeals from the Railway Commissioners, Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, and R. S. C., 10th April, 1889.

Under sect. 10 of the Liverpool Court of Passage Act, 1893 (56 & 57 V. c. 37), an appeal from the judgment in an action in that Court lies to the C. A.: Anderson v. Dean, (1894) 2 Q. B. 222, C. A.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to make a supplemental order imposing conditions as to costs or otherwise, see Re Scowby, S. v. S., (1897) 1 Ch. 741, C. A., sup. p. 126; and that an appeal will lie from an order entering a cause on the commercial list, see Sea Ins. Co. v. Carr, (1901) 1 K. B. 7, C. A., sup. p. 829.

By the Jud. Acts (see Jud. Act, 1873, s. 19, and Jud. Act, 1894, s. 1), an appeal is given from every judgment or order of the High Court, with the following exceptions (see R. v. Walsall, 3 Q. B. D. 457, 460, C. A.):—

1. Jurisdictions final by Statute.—By the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 59), s. 20, no appeal is to lie from the High Court or any Judge thereof to the Court of Appeal in cases where it is provided by Act of Parliament that the decision of any Court or Judge, whose jurisdiction is transferred to the High Court, shall be final.

By Jud. Act, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 68), s. 9, appeals under the Divorce Act (20 & 21 V. c. 85), s. 55, are to be brought to the Court of Appeal (thereby substituted for the full Court of Divorce), whose decision is to be final, except when the decision is upon the grant or refusal of a decree on petition for dissolution or nullity, or for a declaration of legitimacy, or upon a question of law on which the Court of Appeal gives leave to appeal.

2. Appeals from Inferior Courts.—By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 45, the determination of appeals from inferior Courts by a Divisional Court is to be final, unless special leave to appeal is given by the Divisional Court.

The provisions of this section are not affected by the Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876, s. 20: Crush v. Turner, 3 Ex. D. 303, C. A.; Thomas v. Kelly, 13 App. Ca. 506.

The Mayor's Court being an inferior Court (Mayor, &c. of London v. Cox, L. R. 2 H. L. 239), no appeal lies from the decision of a Divisional Court on an appeal from the Mayor's Court, unless by special leave: Appleford v. Judkins, 3 C. P. D. 489, C. A.

As to appeals from the Mayor's Court on demurrers, see Mors le Blanche v. Reuter's Telegram Co., 34 L. T. 691.

An appeal will lie with the leave of the K. B. D. from an order of that Division upon a writ of certiorari, affirming an order of quarter sessions as to the validity of a rate: Walsall Overseers v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 4 App. Ca. 30, reversing R. v. Walsall, 3 Q. B. D. 457, C. A.

An appeal will not lie from an order of the Divisional Court refusing leave to appeal from a County Court: Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343, C. A.

By the Jud. Act, 1894, s. 1, sub-s. 5, "in all cases where there is a right of appeal to the High Court from any Court or person, the appeal shall be heard and determined by a Divisional Court constituted as may be prescribed by Rules of Court; and the determination thereof by the Divisional Court shall be final, unless leave to appeal is given by that Court or by the Court of Appeal."

A motion to review the findings of the official referee and to enter judgment accordingly is "an appeal to the High Court from any Court or person" within the meaning of the foregoing enactment, and the decision of the Divisional Court is therefore final, unless leave be given to appeal: Daglish v. Barton, (1900) 1 Q. B. 284, C. A.; Dan. 1043.

By O. LIX, 4, "every Judge of the High Court of Justice for the time being shall be a Judge to hear and determine appeals from inferior Courts, under sect. 45 of the principal Act. All such appeals (except Probate and Admiralty appeals from inferior Courts, and from justices, which shall be to a Divisional Court of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division) shall be entered in one list by the officers of the Crown Office Department of the Central Office, and shall be heard by such Divisional Court of the Queen's Bench Division as the Lord Chief Justice of England shall from time to time direct."

3. Criminal Matters.—By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 47, no appeal lies from any judgment of the High Court in any criminal cause or matter, except for some error of law apparent on the record, as to which no question shall have been reserved.

The provision has reference not to the criminality of the act which originates the proceedings, but to the fact of the cause or matter in which the order is made being in the nature of a criminal proceeding: Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305, C. A.

"The intention of the Jud. Act was that the Court of Appeal should not interfere in the criminal matters of the country": Exp. Schofield, (1891) 2 Q. B. 428, 432, per Bowen, L. J.

This section is not confined to appeals from the High Court when sitting as a Court for the consideration of Crown cases reserved, but extends to all criminal cases; and therefore it has been held that there is no appeal from an order of the Q. B. Division, discharging a rule to review a taxation of the costs of the Defts upon a criminal information: R. v. Steel, 2 Q. B. D. 37, C. A.; or discharging a rule for a certiorari to bring up to be quashed a summary conviction for trespass in pursuit of game: R. v. Fletcher, 2 Q. B. D. 43, C. A.; or from a decision of the Divisional Court, reversing a conviction for keeping a common gaming-house, even though the Divisional Court has granted leave to appeal in accordance with sect. 45: Blake v. Beech, 2 Ex. D. 335, C. A.; or refusing to grant a mandamus to compel a magistrate to state a case in proceedings as to a nuisance under the Public Health Act, 1875: Exp. Schofield, (1891) 2 Q. B. 428, C. A.; or to hear a summons under sect. 25 of the Weights and Measures Act, 1878 (41 & 42 V. c. 10): Reg. v. Young, 61 L. J. M. C. 42; or from an order of justices under the Public Health Act, 1875, directing works to be done for the abatement of a nuisance: Reg. v. Whitchurch, 7 Q. B. D. 534, C. A.; or an information for contravening the bye-laws of a school constituted under the Elementary Education Act, 1870 (33 & 34 V. c. 75): Mellor v. Denham, 5 Q. B. D. 467, C. A.; or an order for attachment for contempt in publishing comments calculated to prejudice the fair trial of an action: O'Shea v. O'S., 15 P. D. 59, C. A.

But informations in the nature of quo warranto (R. v. Collins, 2 Q. B. D.

30), or an information under the Parliamentary Oaths Act, 1866 (29 V. c. 19), s. 5, to recover penalties (A. G. v. Bradlaugh, 14 Q. B. D. 667, C. A.); an order for attachment for disobedience to a writ of habeas corpus (Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305, C. A.); S. C. (nom. Barnardo v. McHugh), (1891) A. C. 388; Barnardo v. Ford, Gossage's Case, (1892) A. C. 326; or, semble, for disobedience to an order to attend before an examiner: Re Evans, E. v. Noton, (1893) 1 Ch. 252, C. A.; or an order striking a solr off the roll made under the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Court (Re Hardwick, 12 Q. B. D. 148, C. A.); or under 6 & 7 V. c. 73, s. 32, for permitting his name to be used on account of an unqualified person (Re Eade, 25 Q. B. D. 228, C. A.); or an order discharging a rule for certiorari to remove an order of justices for maintenance of a pauper into the High Court (Reg. v. Pemberton, 5 Q. B. D. 95, C. A.); or an order to enforce payment of a general district rate under the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 256 (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Hampton Urban District Council, (1899) 1 Q. B. 273, C. A.); or an order discharging a person from custody under a writ de contumace capiendo issued in a suit against a clerk for ecclesiastical offences under the Church Discipline Act (Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Ca. 506), are not criminal matters within the exemption; and an appeal has been entertained from a decision of the Divisional Court, on a conviction in a penalty, at the instance of the Inland Revenue Board, for breach of the excise laws: Howes v. Inland Revenue Board, 1 Ex. D. 385, C. A.

As to the right of a bankrupt to appeal under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, ss. 24, 103, 104, from an order committing him for contempt, see Genese v. Lascelles, 13 Q. B. D. 901; Re Ashwin, 25 Q. B. D. 271, C. A.

4. Order as to Costs.—By the Jud. Act, 1873, s. 49, no order of the High Court or any Judge of it made by consent, or as to costs only, which by law are left to the discretion of the Court, is subject to appeal except by leave of the Court or Judge making it.

As to appeals from orders made by consent, v. sup. pp. 124—127.

The rule against appeals for costs only applies especially to the dismissal of an action without costs: Harris v. Aaron, 4 Ch. D. 749, C. A.; even though, by reason of a cross appeal or other matter, the whole case has been heard before the Court of Appeal: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490, C. A.; and to orders in interpleader proceedings: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82, C. A.; where an action is dismissed for want of prosecution: Snelling v. Pulling, 29 Ch. D. 85, C. A.; to an order for inspection of Deft's property, with costs to be paid by Plt: Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co., 10 Q. B. D. 457, C. A.; or giving out of a fund in Court the costs of an unsuccessful application reasonably made for the purpose of ascertaining the fund: Butcher v. Pooler, 24 Ch. D. 273, C. A.; or ordering a third party to pay the costs of an unsuccessful Deft: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329, C. A.; or depriving of costs a Plt who has recovered 40s. damages: Florence v. Mallinson, 65 L. T. 354; or as to costs of examination of judgment debtor under O. XLII, 34, and of garnishee proceedings: Adlington v. Conyngham, (1898) 2 Q. B. 492, C. A.

But where the appeal is for substantial relief, the Court of Appeal may make any such order as might have been made by the Court below, including an order as to the costs of the original hearing: see Powell v. Jewesbury, 9 Ch. D. 34, C. A., and Form 1, sup. p. 848; Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 472, 490, C. A.; Kevan v. Crawford, 6 Ch. D. 29, 40, C. A., Form 4, sup. p. 849, O. LVIII, 5; and an appeal will be entertained if the Court of Appeal is satisfied that the Judge has not exercised his discretion but has applied some rule which he considered as excluding it: Bew v. B., (1899) 2 Ch. 467, C. A. (following The City of Manchester, 5 P. D. 221; and not following Charles v. Jones, 33 Ch. D. 80).

And an order allowing costs, charges, and expenses to a trustee is not within the rule, inasmuch as it deals with distinct claims between trustees and c. q. t., not merely with costs necessarily incident to proceedings in the High Court, and therefore in its discretion: Re Chennell, Jones v. C., 8 Ch. D. 500, C. A.; nor an order directing Deft executor to pay costs on the ground that he has caused litigation by refusing accounts: Re Pugh, Lewis v. Pritchard, 57 L. T. 858; or allowing a trustee costs of incidental litigation, being substantially charges and expenses in the admon of the trust: Re Beddoes, Downes v. Cottam, (1893) 1 Ch. 547, C. A.; or depriving a Plt residuary legatee of his right (prior to Rules of 1883) to costs of admon action out of the estate: Farrow v. Austin, 18 Ch. D. 58, C. A.; Re M'Clellan, M. v. M., 29 Ch. D. 495, C. A.; secus, in the case of a hostile action seeking to charge Deft with costs, on the ground of misconduct: Williams v. Jones, 34 Ch. D. 120, C. A.; and that a trustee is entitled ex debito justitiæ to his costs out of the trust fund, unless some special ground is shown for depriving him of them, see Turner v. Hancock, 20 Ch. D. 303, C. A.; disapproving Re Hoskins' Trusts, 6 Ch. D. 283, C. A.; and see Re Knight's Will, 26 Ch. D. 82, C. A.; 32 W. R. 336, 417.

And an appeal will lie to the Court of Appeal from an order of the Lords Justices directing that the costs of an inquiry into the mental condition of an alleged lunatic should be paid out of his estate: Re Cathcart, (1893) 1 Ch. 466, C. A.

But an appeal from an order for payment of "costs, charges, and expenses" will not lie as to "costs" only, if the order is right as to "charges and expenses": Bew v. B., (1899) 2 Ch. 467, C. A. (following Charles v. Jones, 33 Ch. D. 80; and not following In re Chennell, 8 Ch. D. 492).

So also costs properly incurred by a mortgagee in enforcing or in relation to his security, are not within the rule: Re Rio Grande del Sul Co., 5 Ch. D. 282, C. A.; Cotterell v. Stratton, 8 Ch. 295; Johnstone v. Cox, 19 Ch. D. 17, C. A.; Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 33 Ch. D. 76, C. A.; but if the Court allows them there can be no appeal by the mortgagor: S. C.; and an appeal lay from an order against Deft mortgagees to pay the costs of beneficiaries improperly made parties by the Plts: Re Cooper, C. v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611, C. A.; and from an order determining priorities of incumbrancers, but directing costs of all parties to be first paid out of the fund: Johnstone v. Cox, 19 Ch. D. 17, C. A.; and see Butcher v. Pooler, 24 Ch. D. 273, C. A.

And where persons are made parties to an action in a purely representative character, and no relief is claimed against them personally, they may maintain an appeal for costs: Etherington v. Wilson, 1 Ch. D. 160, 167, C. A.

An order, on a motion to commit for contempt, that the person alleged to be in contempt pay the costs of the motion may be appealed against by him as involving a decision that he is in contempt: Witt v. Corcoran, 2 Ch. D. 69, C. A.; and as being "an appeal against the finding by which the Judge clothes himself with jurisdiction to inflict costs": Stevens v. Met. Dist. Ry. Co., 29 Ch. D. 60, C. A.; and see Re Milton, 53 L. J. Q. B. 65; 50 L. T. 170; 32 W. R. 238; Re Bradford, Thursby and Farish, 15 Q. B. D. 635, C. A.; but not by the applicant, when costs are to be costs in the action, as this is not an appeal against a decision, but is either an appeal for costs only, or an appeal against the Judge's discretion: Ashworth v. Outram (No. 2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.

An appeal will lie from an order making Deft pay the whole costs of an action, although the Plt has no right to sue: Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76, C. A.; or imposing payment of costs as the condition of a new trial: Met. Asylum District v. Hill, 5 App. Ca. 581; or ordering costs of application to be paid by the solr personally: Re Bradford, &c., sup.; or exor to pay costs of admon action, as having been caused by his refusal to furnish accounts: Re Pugh, Lewis v. Pritchard, 57 L. T. 858; or an order of a Master in interpleader proceedings dealing extra jur. with costs of action: Hansen v. Maddox, 12 Q. B. D. 100.

And an appeal will lie upon the question whether special grounds exist, arising out of the nature and importance, or out of the difficulty or urgency of a case, to justify the allowance of costs on the higher scale under O. LX, 9: Paine v. Chisholm, (1891) 1 Q. B. 531, C. A.

Where the Judge gives leave to appeal, the Court of Appeal will still regard his discretion, and not overrule it, except for disregard of principle and misapprehension of facts: Re Gilbert, G. v. Hudleston, 28 Ch. D. 549, C. A.

5. Orders in Chambers.—By Jud. Act, 1873, s. 50, every order made by a Judge in Chambers (except in exercise of such discretion as is mentioned in s. 49, sup.) may be set aside or discharged upon notice by any Divisional Court, or by the Judge in Court, according to the course and practice of the particular Division, and no appeal shall lie from any such order, to set aside or discharge which no such motion has been made, unless by special leave of the Judge by whom such order was made, or of the Court of Appeal.

In the K. B. Division (except in matters of practice or procedure, as to which v. inf.) an appeal from a Judge in Chambers is to be to a Divisional Court (O. LIV, 23) by motion within eight days after the decision appealed against; or if no Court to which such appeal can be made shall sit within such eight days, then on the first day on which any such Court may be sitting after the expiration of such eight days.

If the Divisional Court sits within the eight days, but not for the purpose of hearing motions on the eighth day, the motion must be made within the eight days: Stirling v. Du Barry, 5 Q. B. D. 66, C. A.; the last clause of the rule being only intended to give relief where no Court is sitting to which an application can be made for extension of time (under O. LXIV, 7): S. C.

When no Court is sitting within the eight days, the extension of time should be almost as of course: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Ca. 685.

Two clear days' notice of motion being required by O. LII, 5, the notice must be given within five days after the decision; and it must be for a day within the eight days, although no Divisional Court sits within such days: Steedman v. Hakim, 22 Q. B. D. 16, 21, C. A.

Notice for a day out of sittings is good: Re Coulton, Hamling v. Elliott, 34 Ch. D. 22, C. A.; Maullin v. Rogers, 55 L. T. 121; 55 L. J. Q. B. 377; 34 W. R. 592; overruling Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53; and see Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180, where amendment of such a notice was allowed.

Sect. 50 does not give a right to appeal from an order in Chambers under an Act which provides that there shall be no appeal: Dodds v. Shepherd, 1 Ex. D. 75.

If a party appealing to a Divisional Court does not appear, he cannot afterwards appeal to the Court of Appeal against the judgment given in his absence: Walker v. Budden, 5 Q. B. D. 267, C. A.

By Jud. Act, 1894 (57 & 58 V. c. 16), s. 1, sub-s. 4, "in matters of practice and procedure, every appeal from a Judge shall be to the Court of Appeal."

A summons for review of taxation of a solr's bill of costs: Re Oddly, (1895) 1 Q. B. 392, C. A.; an appeal from a Judge at Chambers making a garnishee order absolute: Hockley v. Ansah, 44 W. R. 666; an appeal against an order of a Judge at Chambers giving leave to Plt to enter final judgment under O. XIV, r. 1: Cannon Brewery Co. v. Gilby, 75 L. T. 407; a summons asking for an interim injunction until the trial of the action: McHarg v. Universal Stock Exchange, (1895) 2 Q. B. 81; and a summons in Chambers for leave to revoke a submission to arbitration: Re Portland Urban District Council and Tilley & Co., (1896) 2 Q. B. 98; are respectively matters of practice and procedure within the section: secus, an application to a Judge in Chambers for a prohibition to restrain an inferior Court from exceeding its jurisdiction, as the words "practice and procedure" mean practice and procedure in the High Court: Watson v. Petts, (1899) 1 Q. B. 54, C. A.; an application by a Deft to discharge an order at Chambers, made ex parte, giving leave to serve the writ upon him out of the jurisdiction, or to set aside the service, should be made by a summons at Chambers and not by motion in the Divisional Court or in the Court of Appeal: Black v. Dawson, (1895) 1 Q. B. 848, C. A.

Notwithstanding the above enactment an unsuccessful litigant in Chambers in the Ch. D. has still three alternatives, viz., either (1) to move before the Judge in Court to discharge the order made in Chambers, or (2) to have the matter adjourned into Court, or (3) to obtain leave from the Judge to go to the C. A. direct upon his certificate that no further argument is required; but with a view to preventing delay and expense, the Court will, as far as possible, discourage motions to discharge orders made in Chambers: Boake v. Stevenson, (1895) 1 Ch. 358.

Where either or both parties do not intend to accept the decision of the Judge in Chambers as final, the proper course is to ask at once to have the summons adjourned into Court for argument, and thus save time and avoid having arguments both in Chambers and in Court: Forrester v. Jones, W. N. (99) 78.

As to appeals in interpleader proceedings, v. sup. Chap. XXIX. p. 508.

In the Chancery Division the motion to discharge should be made within fourteen days after the order was pronounced, or the moving party first had notice of it, by analogy to O. LVIII, 15, as to appeals from interlocutory orders: Heatley v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 326, C. A.; Re Lewis, L. v. Williams, 31 Ch. D. 623, C. A.; Re Norwich Equitable Co., Brasnett's Case, 33 W. R. 270; Re Hardwidge, W. N. (84) 204; 52 L. T. 40; Re Elham Valley Ry. Co., Dickson's Case, 12 Ch. D. 298; Dickson v. Harrison, 9 Ch. D. 243, C. A.; and this whether such order was interlocutory or final: Re Giles, Real and Personal Advance Co. v. Mitchell, 43 Ch. D. 391, C. A.; Re Johnson, Manchester Bank v. Beales, 42 Ch. D. 505.

Following the same analogy, the fourteen days are to be computed from the date of refusal, when no order is made, or from the date of signing and entering or otherwise perfecting the order: Heatley v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 326.

A motion to discharge an order made in Chambers is not an "appeal," but a re-hearing: Boake v. Stevenson, (1895) 1 Ch. 358.

Notice of motion to discharge an ex parte order for public examination under sect. 8, sub-sect. 3, of the Cos. (Winding-up) Act, 1890, ought to be given within a reasonably short time: Re Civil, Naval and Military Outfitters, Ltd., (1899) 1 Ch. 215, per Wright, J.; whether the time for giving such notice is fixed by O. LVIII, 15, quære: S. C.

After a summons has been fully heard by the Judge personally in Chambers, further evidence will not be received on motion to discharge: Re Munns and Longden, 50 L. T. 356; 32 W. R. 675.

Where the only objection to an order is as to whether it can be made on summons under a particular rule, its validity must be questioned at the time when it is made: Dyott v. Neville, W. N. (87) 35; Horton v. Bosson, W. N. (99) 38.

Under the old practice an appeal could be brought direct from an order made by the Judge in Chambers: Saunders v. Druce, 3 Drew. 139; if an order had been drawn up: Vyse v. Foster, 10 Ch. 236; or if the Judge certified that the case had been sufficiently argued before him in Chambers: Warrant Finance Co.'s Case, 5 Ch. 88; Stroughill v. Gulliver, 1 D. & J. 113; or declined to adjourn it: Ridgway v. Newstead, 4 D. & J. 15; Young v. Thomas, (1892) 2 Ch. 134, C. A.; Snowdon v. Metropolitan Railway, 1 D. J. & S. 408 (sed v. McVeagh v. Croall, 11 W. R. 385; 1 D. J. & S. 399); and leave to appeal direct from an order made in Chambers without counsel was obtained from the Court of Appeal, and not from the Judge in whose Chambers the order was made: Allen v. Jarvis, 4 Ch. 616; Warrant Finance Co.'s Case, 5 Ch. 88.

In order to save expense in the Ch. D. it was the practice to entertain appeals from orders made in Chambers without any formal application for leave, if it appeared by a certificate of the Master or by the order (Murr v. Cooke, 24 W. R. 756), or otherwise, that the matter had been fully argued before the Judge: Re Elsom, Thomas v. E., 6 Ch. D. 346; Dickson v. Harrison, 9 Ch. D. 243, C. A.; or if the order related to a mere point of practice, and was ex debito justitiæ: Northampton, &c. Co. v. Midland Waggon Co., 7 Ch. D. 500, C. A.; but now an appeal from an order made in Chambers in the Ch. D. or P. D. will not be entertained by the Court of Appeal unless the Judge gives leave to appeal direct, or a certificate (which in practice is rarely granted, see Dan. 797) that he does not wish to hear the case further argued: Re Smith, Rigg v. Hughes, 9 P. D. 68; but in the absence of a certificate the appeal was entertained where it was apparent that the case had been fully argued before the Judge in Chambers: Strong v. Carlyle Press, (1893) 1 Ch. 268, C. A.

Where all parties have been heard by counsel in Chambers, the Master will give the certificate (for form, see D. C. F. 512), and upon it the parties may go direct to the Court of Appeal: A. G. v. Llewellyn, 58 L. T. 367; W. N. (88) 88; and in such a case it is not necessary or proper to move to discharge the order: S. C.; but where an order had been made in Chambers by way of final judgment against an exor on originating summons, and all parties had not been represented by counsel, the proper course was to move to discharge such order: Re Somerville, Downes v. S., 56 L. T. 424; W. N. (87) 79; and see Re Butler's Wharf Co., 21 Ch. D. 131 (where it was said that application should be made to the Judge in Chambers to adjourn the summons into Court), not following Holloway v. Cheston, 19 Ch. D. 516 (where it was said that the proper course was to give notice of motion to discharge the order, so as to enable the Judge to give his reasons).

There cannot be any appeal direct from a certificate merely approved by the Judge: Rhodes v. Ibbetson, 4 D. M. & G. 787; Briggs v. Wilson, 5 D. M. & G. 12; 2 Eq. Rep. 153.

Appeals from an exercise of discretion by a Judge in Chambers will not be entertained by the Court of Appeal: Golding v. Wharton, &c. Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374; 24 W. R. 423.

In Rhodes v. R., 1 Ch. 483, an appeal as to the rejection of evidence on an inquiry in Chambers was ordered to stand over to come on with any motion to vary the certificate.

By O. LVIII, 15, no appeal from an interlocutory order is, except by special leave of the Court of Appeal, to be brought after the expiration of fourteen days, to be calculated from the time at which it is signed, entered, or otherwise perfected, or in case of the refusal of an application, from the date of such refusal.

There is no right of appeal to the House of Lords from the refusal of the Court of Appeal to give special leave under this order: Lane v. Esdaile, H. L., 40 W. R. 65.

Whether a Judge can rehear in Chambers an order previously made there, but not drawn up, quære: Re Eyton, Exp. Charlesworth, 36 Ch. D. 299, C. A.; and see A. G. v. Llewellyn, W. N. (88) 88; 58 L. T. 367.

The order on motion to discharge is in all Divisions subject to appeal like any other interlocutory order: Dickson v. Harrison, 9 Ch. D. 243, 245, C. A.; and see Fox v. Wallis, 2 C. P. D. 45, C. A.

6. Extension of Time.—By the Jud. Act, 1894 (57 & 58 V. c. 16), s. 1, sub-s. 1 (a), “no appeal shall lie from an order allowing an extension of time for appealing from a judgment or order.”

7. Interlocutory Orders or Judgments.—Leave to appeal.—By the Jud. Act, 1894, s. 1, sub-s. 1 (b), no appeal lies “without the leave of the Judge, or of the Court of Appeal, from any interlocutory order or interlocutory judgment made or given by a Judge, except in the following cases, namely:—

- (i.) Where the liberty of the subject or the custody of infants is concerned; and
- (ii.) Cases of granting or refusing an injunction or appointing a receiver; and
- (iii.) Any decision determining the claim of any creditor, or the liability of any contributory, or the liability of any director or other officer under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, in respect of misfeasance or otherwise; and
- (iv.) Any decree nisi in a matrimonial cause, and any judgment or order in an Admiralty action determining liability; and
- (v.) Any order on a special case stated under the Arbitration Act, 1889; and
- (vi.) Such other cases, to be prescribed by Rules of Court, as may, in the opinion of the authority for making such rules, be of the nature of final decisions.”

By sub-sect. 2, “an order refusing unconditional leave to defend an action shall not be deemed to be an interlocutory order within the meaning of this section.”

By sub-sect. 3, “No appeal shall lie from an order of a Judge giving unconditional leave to defend an action.”

By sub-sect. 6 “an application for leave to appeal may be made ex parte or otherwise, as may be prescribed by Rules of Court.”

A motion to discharge an order of a single Judge of C. A. is not an “appeal”: Boyd v. Bischoffsheim, (1895) 1 Ch. 1, C. A.; an order refusing to commit for breach of an undertaking does not “concern the liberty of the subject” within sect. 1, sub-sect. 1: Bowden v. Yoxall, (1901) 1 Ch. 1, C. A.

8. Judgments obtained by Fraud.—Where a decision of the Court of Appeal is impeached as having been obtained by fraud, the proper course is not to apply for a rehearing, but to commence an original action in the High Court to set aside the judgment on the ground of fraud: Flower v. Lloyd, 6 Ch. D. 297, C. A.; Cole v. Langford, (1898) 2 Q. B. 36; and it seems that a judgment will not be set aside merely on the ground of perjury or falsification of evidence: S. C., 10 Ch. 327, C. A.; Baker v. Wadsworth, 67 L. J. Q. B. 301.

9. Orders within the Discretion of the Judge.—In matters within the discretion of the Judge of the Court below, the Court of Appeal has complete jurisdiction, but declines to interfere except in extreme cases, or where the Judge has clearly proceeded on a wrong principle: Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380, 383; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365, C. A.; Waltingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Ca. 685; Bew v. B., (1899) 2 Ch. 467, C. A., sup. p. 855; and therefore appeals will not, in general, be entertained from orders on applications to strike out pleadings: Exp. E. & W. India Dock Co., Re Clarke, 17 Ch. D. 759, C. A.; Golding v. Wharton Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374, C. A.; Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380, C. A.; and see Cashin v. Cradock, 3 Ch. D. 376, C. A.; unless the pleading is embarrassing, so that the order is ex debito justitiæ: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; nor from an order that the question at issue be stated in the form of a special case: Met. Bd. of Works v. New River Co., 2 Q. B. D. 67, C. A.; or tried in a particular manner: Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558, C. A.; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, sup.; Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 551, C. A.; explaining Jenkins v. Bushby, (1891) 1 Ch. 484, C. A.; or referred to an official or special referee: see Ormerod v. Todmorden Mill Co., 8 Q. B. D. 664, C. A.; nor from an order for security on a debtor's summons: Exp. Marshall, 5 Ch. D. 873, C. A.; nor from a refusal to commit for contempt: Ashworth v. Outram (No. 2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.; nor an order for examination of persons deemed to be capable of giving information under sect. 115 of the Companies Act, 1862: Re Gold Co., 12 Ch. D. 77; nor an order refusing to displace debenture-holders' receiver by the liquidator of the co.: Re Stubbs, Barney v. S., (1891) 1 Ch. 475, C. A.; nor an order by a Judge in Chambers for the trial with assessors of an issue requiring scientific investigation: Swyny v. North Eastern Ry. Co., 74 L. T. 88, C. A.; nor an order reviewing the decision of a taxing master, where no principle is involved: Real and Personal Advance Co. v. McCarthy, 18 Ch. D. 362; nor an order allowing taxation of a bill after payment on the ground of "special circumstances," where the amount involved is small: Re Cheesman, (1891) 2 Ch. 289; 39 W. R. 497; and see Re Harrison, 33 Ch. D. 52, C. A.; Exp. Stevenson, (1892) 1 Q. B. 609, C. A.

As to the competency of appeals from committals for contempt, see Reg. v. Jordan, W. N. (88) 152; 57 L. T. Q. B. 483; 36 W. R. 796; Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493, C. A.; Ashworth v. Outram (No. 2), 5 Ch. D. 943, C. A.; or from a direction for trial by an official referee, see Ormerod v. Todmorden Mill Co., sup.; Dan. 1045.

On a question of privilege for documents, no appeal will be allowed from a decision of the Judge at Chambers to whom the documents have by consent been submitted: Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423, C. A.

On the question whether an appeal will lie from the opinion of the K. B. D. on a case stated by an arbitrator under the C. L. P. Act, 1854, s. 5 (now sect. 7 of the Arbitration Act, 1889), see Jones v. Victoria Dock Co., 2 Q. B. D. 314, C. A.

Leave to appeal to the House of Lords on a question of discretion will not be granted: Re Clarke, Exp. E. and W. India Dock Co., 17 Ch. D. 759, C. A.

10. Order in exercise of consultative jurisdiction.—No appeal lies from a decision of the High Court of Justice upon questions submitted to it under sect. 29 of the Local Government Act, 1888 (51 & 52 V. c. 41), the jurisdiction under that section being consultative only, and not judicial: Exp. County Council of Kent, (1891) 1 Q. B. 725, C. A.; and where a special case raises for decision questions of fact only, the judgment of the Court is in the nature of an arbitrator's award, and an appeal will not lie: Burgess v. Morton, (1896) A. C. 136, H. L. (where H. L. reversed the judgment of C. A. on such a special case as extra cursum curiæ).

WHO MAY APPEAL.

In the absence of any special provisions in the Jud. Acts and Rules of Court the former practice remains unaltered on this point.

In the case of suits in the Court of Chancery, all persons parties to the suit, or served with or bound by the decree, might appeal from it: Bruff v. Cobbold, 7 Ch. 217; Ellison v. Thomas, 2 D. J. & S. 18; Giffard v. Hort, 1 Sch. & L. 386, 409; Crawcour v. Salter, 30 W. R. 329; and see Osborne v. Usher, 2 Bro. P. C. 314; Dan. 1041.

One of several Plts can appeal against his co-Plts: Jopp v. Wood, 2 D. J. & S. 323; and alone without his co-Plts: Beckett v. Attwood, 18 Ch. D. 54, C. A.

In a representative action, a dissentient member of a class represented by the Plt cannot appeal from an order in favour of the class, but, semble, should apply in the Court below to be made a Deft: Watson v. Cave, 17 Ch. D. 19, C. A.

Where the appellant is not a party to the record, he can only appeal by leave to be obtained on motion ex parte from the Court of Appeal: Parmeter v. P., 2 D. F. & J. 526; Hodgson v. Clarke, 1 D. F. & J. 394; 2 D. F. & J. 526; Re Markham, M. v. M., 16 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; and see Bruff v. Cobbald, 7 Ch. 217; Dan. 1054; D. C. F. 732; In re Securities Insurance Co., (1894) 2 Ch. 410, C. A., where the leave was refused to creditors who had not opposed a scheme under the Joint Stock Cos. Arrangement Act, 1870 (33 & 34 V. c. 104), at the meeting of creditors, nor appeared before the Judge when the order sanctioning it was applied for. An executor of a deceased party who has given notice of appeal may prosecute the appeal under the common order of revivor: Ranson v. Patton, 17 Ch. D. 766, C. A.

Leave to appeal will not be given to a person not a party, unless his interest is such that he might have been made a party: Crawcour v. Salter, 30 W. R. 329; Re Madras Irrigation Co., 23 Ch. D. 248, C. A.; Re Youngs, Doggett v. Revett, 30 Ch. D. 421, C. A.

A Deft who has since the trial become bankrupt may appeal from an order for an injunction without the trustee: Deuce v. Mason, 41 L. T. 573.

Where a trustee had not been appointed, a notice of appeal by the receiver in bankruptcy was ordered to be amended by adding the petitioning creditor, and the debtor: Exp. Chalmers, 11 Ch. D. 911, C. A.

As to the principles upon which leave to appeal has been granted to liquidators under the winding-up of cos., see Re Silver Valley Mines, 21 Ch. D. 381, C. A.; Re City and County Investment Co., 13 Ch. D. 475, C. A.; Buckley, 342.

Under the present practice an uncertificated bankrupt cannot appeal against an order establishing a money demand which had been proved against his estate: Vale v. Oppert, 5 Ch. D. 969, C. A.

An appeal involving a question of status was allowed to proceed notwithstanding the appellant's bankruptcy: Gordon v. Merricks, 10 App. Ca. 171 (Sc.).

A person summoned as a witness under sect. 115 of the Companies Act, 1862, has (semble) no locus standi to appeal against the order directing his attendance: Re Gold Co., 12 Ch. D. 77, C. A.

In a test action on neglect of Deft to appeal, a Deft in one of the other actions may be substituted: Briton Medical and General Life Assce. Soc. v. Jones, 60 L. T. 637.

MODE OF APPEALING—MOTIONS BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEAL.

1. Appeal Motions.—By O. LVIII, 1, all appeals are to be by way of rehearing, and are to be brought by motion in a summary way, and no formal proceeding is necessary other than notice of the motion, thus substituting a uniform mode of appeal for the several modes by which appeals were brought before the Jud. Acts—i.e., petition of rehearing in the case of a decree or decretal order, appeal petition in the case of an order on petition, and appeal motion on a two days' notice in the case of an order on motion or in Chambers.

Appeal motions under the new practice are perfectly distinct from appeal motions before the Jud. Acts and from original motions, and are solely regulated by the subsequent rules of O. LVIII. For form of notice, see D. C. F. 732.

As to cross appeals under the new practice, v. inf. p. 872.

2. Original Motions in Pending Appeals.—Applications in pending appeals are to be made by original motion under O. LVIII, 17, 18.

By r. 17, every application which under these rules may be made either to the Court below or a Judge thereof, or to the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof, is to be made in the first instance to the Court or Judge below; and by r. 18, every application to a Judge of the Court of Appeal is to be by motion under the provisions of O. LII.

Motions under these rules which are to be made before the Court of Appeal in the first instance, and in respect of which the Court therefore has original jurisdiction, have been distinguished from applications which are to be made first before the Court or Judge below, in respect of which the Court of Appeal has an appellate jurisdiction; but in both cases the practice in the Court of Appeal is the same as that on original motion: see A. G. v. Swansea Co., 9 Ch. D. 46, C. A.; Cooper v. C., 2 Ch. D. 492, C. A.; Form 12, inf. p. 877.

3. Ex parte Applications.—By O. LVIII, 10, it is provided that when any ex parte application has been refused by the Court below, an application for a similar purpose may be made to the Court of Appeal ex parte within four days from the refusal, or such extended time as a Judge of the Court below or of the Appeal Court may allow.

NOTICE OF APPEAL.

By O. LVIII, 1, the appellant may, by notice of motion, appeal from the whole or part only of any judgment or order, and the notice of appeal is to state whether the whole or part of the judgment or order is complained of, and if part only, is to specify such part.

Under this rule service of the notice constitutes the appeal: Exp. Viney, 4 Ch. D. 794.

Mere communication of an intention to appeal is not a sufficient notice of appeal: Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484, C. A.; Re Blyth and Young, 13 Ch. D. 416, C. A.; and see Re Manchester Economic Building Soc., 24 Ch. D. 488, C. A.

A notice otherwise regular is not bad because the solrs are inaccurately described, and whether the notice should be signed by solrs, qu.: Kettlewell v. Watson, 52 L. J. Ch. 818; 48 L. T. 840; 31 W. R. 709.

The above rule applies only in cases of original appeals, cross appeals being provided for by rr. 6, 7: v. inf. p. 872.

A notice of appeal may be withdrawn and a fresh notice given if within time: Norton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 13 Ch. D. 268, C. A.; and see Watson v. Cave, 17 Ch. D. 19, C. A. As to withdrawal of appeal by consent, see Dan. 1064.

Notice of discontinuance of an action ipso facto vacates an appeal by the Plt: Conybeare v. Lewis, 13 Ch. D. 469, C. A.

Where a four days' notice of appeal was given instead of a fourteen days' notice, the time for appealing was extended, the applicant having given in proper time a distinct notice of appeal: Re Crosley, Munns v. Burn, 34 Ch. D. 664, C. A.

By r. 2, the notice is to be served on all parties directly affected by the appeal, and it is not necessary to serve parties not so affected; but the Court of Appeal may direct notice of the appeal to be served on all or any parties to the action or proceeding, or upon any person not a party, and in the meantime may postpone or adjourn the hearing upon such terms as may seem just, and give such judgment or make such order as might have been given or made, if the persons served had been originally parties.

A third party who has been served by a Deft, and has obtained leave to appear at the trial, was held not to be a person directly affected: Re Salmon, Priest v. Uppleby, 42 Ch. D. 351, C. A.; diss. Cotton, L. J. The Court, however, in its discretion, directed service on the third parties: S. C.

As to the meaning of the expression "directly affected," see Re A Debtor, (1901) 2 K. B. 354, C. A.

Under this rule it was held that where a Deft appealed against an order discharging a rule for a new trial after a verdict against him and in favour of his co-Deft, the Court could not entertain the appeal in the absence of the co-Deft, and had jurisdiction to order service on him: Purnell v. G. W. Ry. Co., 24 W. R. 720, 909.

So, too, where any one of three persons might, according to the construction to be put on a will, be entitled to a fund, the notice of appeal of one of them was ordered to be served on the others: Hunter v. H., 24 W. R. 504.

The usual practice in these cases is not to draw up any order; when service has been effected the appeal is replaced in the paper by the proper officer, or, if necessary, on application to the Court.

Notice of appeal from a refusal to annul an adjudication must be served on the trustee in bankruptcy as well as the petitioning creditor: Exp. Ward, Re Ward, 15 Ch. D. 292, C. A.

An order for substituted service of a notice of appeal may be made in a proper case: Exp. Warburg, Re Whalley, 24 Ch. D. 364, C. A.; Re London County Council, W. N. (01) 7, C. A.

A party affected, but not served with notice, may appear gratis on the appeal, and obtain his costs if the appeal is dismissed, though for irregularity: Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484, C. A.

By r. 2, any notice of appeal may be amended at any time as to the Court of Appeal may seem fit; and, accordingly, where a four days' notice of appeal had been given, instead of fourteen days, which the Court held to be required under r. 3, the notice was amended at the hearing: Re Stockton Iron Furnace Co., 10 Ch. D. 335, C. A.

By r. 3, notice of appeal from any judgment, whether final or interlocutory, or from a final order, is to be a fourteen days' notice, and notice of appeal from an interlocutory order is to be a four days' notice.

FINAL OR INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENTS OR ORDERS.

Every decision of the High Court is, for the purpose of appeal, either final or interlocutory: Standard Discount Co. v. Lagrange, 3 C. P. D. 67, 69, C. A.

The distinction between "final" and "interlocutory" judgments and orders is important, under O. LVIII, with reference (1) to the time for appealing (r. 15); (2) to the length of the notice of appeal (r. 3); (3) to the composition of the tribunal before which the appeal is heard (Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12); and (4) to the admissibility of further evidence on the appeal (r. 4).

A precise definition of the meaning of these terms cannot be given (see Re Lewis, L. v. Williams, 31 Ch. D. 623, C. A.; per Chitty, J., at p. 627); but, in general, a judgment may be said to be final when it is necessarily conclusive as to the matter in dispute, whether given in favour of Plt or Def: see Standard Discount Co. v. La Grange, 3 C. P. D. 67, 69, C. A.; Salaman v. Warner, (1891) 1 Q. B. 734, C. A.; Jones v. Insole, 64 L. T. 703; 39 W. R. 629.

But orders which do not determine rights (Re Stockton Iron Furnace Co., 10 Ch. D. 349, C. A.), or which merely direct how declarations of right already given are to be worked out (Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, C. A.), or which, though in fact finally determining the action, would, if a contrary decision had been given, have not determined it (Salaman v. Warner, sup.), are interlocutory.

And a judgment or order may be final within r. 3 or r. 4 as to the length of notice of appeal required or the admissibility of further evidence, but not so within r. 15 as respects the time for appealing; e.g., an order adjudicating on a claim against the estate in an admon action: Re Crosley, Munns v. Burn, 34 Ch. D. 664, C. A.; Re Compton, Norton v. C., 27 Ch. D. 392, C. A.; Re Lewis, L. v. Williams, 31 Ch. D. 623, C. A.; Pheysey v. P., 12 Ch. D. 305, C. A.

Orders on demurrer, under the former practice: Trowell v. Shenton, 8 Ch. D. 318, 321, C. A.; Fitzgerald v. Dawson, 24 W. R. 129; an order striking out a statement of claim on the ground that it discloses no cause of action: Jones v. Insole, sup.; judgments at the hearing: Internat. Soc. v. City of Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch. D. 241, C. A.; judgments in default of pleading under O. XXVII: Whistler v. Hancock, 3 Q. B. D. 83; Wallis v. Hepburn, 3 Q. B. D. 84, n.; but see Gossett v. Campbell, W. N. (77) 134; or on admissions in the pleadings under O. XXXII, 6: A. G. v. G. E. Ry. Co., 11 Ch. D. 449; 48 L. J. Ch. 428; Re Emmet, E. v. E., 13 Ch. D. 484, 489; and see Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 696; Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686, 689, C. A.; and orders on further consideration: Cummins v. Herron, 4 Ch. D. 787, C. A.; but see Re Johnson, inf.; an order on a summons in an admon action to adjust loss from breach of trust: Chillingworth v. Chambers (No. 2), W. N. (95) 136 (6); an order under O. xv in form of a foreclosure judgment: Smith v. Davies, 31 Ch. D. 595, C. A.; on special case stated by an arbitrator, where the decision necessitated the entering of final judgment: Shubrook v. Tufnell, 9 Q. B. D. 621, C. A.; an order confirming chief clerk's certificate as to damages by trespass: A. G. v. Tomline, 15 C. D. 152, C. A.;

an order at a trial by jury depriving a successful party of costs: Marsden v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. Co., 7 Q. B. D. 641, C. A.; are final.

The decision of a Divisional Court on a case stated by the Inland Revenue Commrs, under sect. 19 of the Stamp Act, 1870, is not a "judgment" but an "order," and therefore to be appealed from within fourteen days: Onslow v. Inland Revenue, 25 Q. B. D. 465, C. A.

But as an originating summons under O. LV, 3, is an action, an order on such a summons, equivalent to judgment in the action, is appealable within three months: Re Fawsitt, Galland v. Burton, 30 Ch. D. 231, C. A.; Dan. 1057.

Orders on applications for leave to sign judgment under O. XIV, 1: Standard Discount Co. v. La Grange, 3 C. P. D. 67, C. A.; dismissing an action upon the hearing of a point of law under O. XXV, 2, 3, before trial: Salaman v. Warner, (1891) 1 Q. B. 734, C. A.; findings on interpleader issues: McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701, C. A.; orders on creditors' claims in admon actions: Trail v. Jackson, 4 Ch. D. 7, C. A.; allowing set-off of costs consequent upon the dismissal of an appeal with costs: Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, C. A.; in a creditor's action directing distribution of funds, but made on application of Deft administratrix with a view to payment of her costs: Re Lewis, L. v. Williams, 31 Ch. D. 623, C. A.; on summons by Plts, after further consideration in an admon action, declaring certain annuities to be charged on the residue: In re Gardner, Long v. Gardner (No. 2), W. N. (94) 159, C. A.; 71 L. T. 412; (semble) by a Judge of the Ch. D. holding the claim of a person claiming to be a creditor of a testator, and to administer his estate, to be valid: In re Abdy, Rabbeth v. Donaldson (No. 1), W. N. (95) 12, C. A.; upon a special case stated by an arbitrator preliminary to his making an award: Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 368, C. A.; upon case stated under sect. 19 of the Stamp Act, 1870: Onslow v. Inland Revenue, 25 Q. B. D. 465, C. A.; in a winding-up, and an action, quâ a person having no such interest in the action as that he could have been made a party to it: Wood v. Madras Canal Co., 23 Ch. D. 248, C. A.; in Chambers, on further consideration, leaving part of the fund to be subsequently dealt with, and reserving liberty to apply: Re Johnson, Manchester Bank v. Beales, 42 Ch. D. 505; on motion to vary special referee's report: Dunkirk Colliery v. Lever, 9 Ch. D. 20; 26 W. R. 841; directing review of taxation: Exp. Phillips, 19 Q. B. D. 234, C. A.; are interlocutory.

An order made under the L. C. Act declaring the construction of a will and directing inquiries, was held to be a final order for the purposes of appeal, but as the parties were out of the jurisdiction, the time to appeal was enlarged, to give time to communicate with them: Re Leonard Jacques, 18 Ch. D. 392, C. A.

Orders on motion for trial by jury: Swindell v. Birm. Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127, C. A.; or on motion for new trial after trial by jury in a Common Law Division: Rooth v. M. S. & L. Ry. Co., 39 L. T. 412, n.; Highton v. Treherne, 27 W. R. 245; 48 L. J. Ex. 167; 39 L. T. 411; even though the action be pending in the Ch. D.; or findings on a trial by a Judge of the Common Law Division without a jury: Krehl v. Burrell, 10 Ch. D. 420, C. A.; or on interpleader issues: McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701, C. A.; or an order empowering Plt to sign judgment on writ specially indorsed: Standard Discount Co. v. La Grange, 3 C. P. D. 67, C. A., are interlocutory; and see Oastler v. Henderson, 2 Q. B. D. 575, C. A.; Hunt v. London Real Property Co., 3 Q. B. D. 19, C. A.

A finding of fact by a Judge of the Ch. D., if prior to his judgment, even though only one order is drawn up, is interlocutory: Krehl v. Burrell, 10 Ch. D. 420, C. A.; but this only applies where at the commencement of the trial it is arranged that distinct issues of fact be tried: Lowe v. L., 10 Ch. D. 432, C. A.; Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 154, 212, C. A.

An appeal from a refusal to set aside or remit an award is analogous to an application for a new trial, and is therefore an interlocutory appeal: Re Delagoa Bay Ry. Co. and Tancred, 37 W. R. 578; 61 L. T. 343.

Orders in bankruptcy, or in any proceeding under the Cos. Acts, including the original winding-up order: Re National Funds Assurance Co., 4 Ch. D. 305, C. A.; or in any other matter not being an action, including orders under the statutory jurisdiction of the Ch. D.: Re Baillie's Trusts, 4 Ch. D. 786, C. A.; Re National Funds Assurance Co., 4 Ch. D. 305, 314, C. A.; are treated as interlocutory with reference to the leave for appealing: O. LVIII, 9; and inf.

But an appeal from a winding-up order must be entered in the final list: Re Globe, &c. Co., 29 S. J. 66.

Interlocutory decisions are either interlocutory judgments or interlocutory orders: see O. LVIII, 3, sup. p. 863.

Under r. 3, orders upon appeal from a judgment of a County Court on an interpleader issue: Hughes v. Little, 18 Q. B. D. 32, C. A.; and under r. 4, an order on summons by a creditor in an admon action: In re Compton, Norton v. C., 27 Ch. D. 392, C. A., were held final; secus, under r. 4, a refusal by a Judge to order a writ of sequestration to issue against Deft co. for breach of injunction: Spencer v. Ancoats Vale Rubber Co., 58 L. T. 363; W. N. (88) 86.

An order in a matter, and therefore treated as interlocutory under O. LVIII, 9, which is final as to the rights of the parties to it, is an interlocutory judgment within O. LVIII, 3, so as to require fourteen days' notice of appeal: Re Stockton Iron Furnace Co., 10 Ch. D. 335, 342, C. A.; and see Memorandum, 1 Ch. D. 41; which, however, is not to be regarded as defining what is meant by an interlocutory order: see Phesey v. P., 12 Ch. D. 305, C. A.

Orders on points of practice, or procedure, or interim injunctions, or orders for receivers, not finally deciding questions of right, are interlocutory orders.

The following table may be of use as indicating broadly the chief points of difference between the several classes of decisions with respect to the practice on appeals under O. LVIII:—

1. In the case of a final judgment or order—
 - (a) three months are allowed for appealing, if in an action; if not, fourteen days: r. 15;
 - (b) fourteen days' notice of the appeal is required: r. 3;
 - (c) not less than three Judges must sit to hear the appeal: Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12; except by consent, under 62 V. c. 6, v. sup. p. 852;
 - (d) further evidence is admissible only as to subsequent matter or by special leave: r. 4.
2. In the case of an interlocutory judgment—
 - (a) fourteen days are allowed for appealing: r. 15;
 - (b) fourteen days' notice of the appeal is required: r. 3;
 - (c) in some, if not in all, cases three Judges must sit to hear the appeal: Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12; except by consent as above;
 - (d) further evidence is apparently admissible only as to subsequent matter or by special leave: r. 4.
3. In the case of an interlocutory order—
 - (a) fourteen days are allowed for appealing: r. 15;
 - (b) four days' notice of the appeal motion is required: r. 3;
 - (c) not less than two Judges must sit to hear the appeal: Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12;
 - (d) further evidence is admissible: r. 4.

On the history and meaning of the term "interlocutory" under the former practice of the Court of Chancery, see Seton, 4th edit. p. 2.

TIME FOR APPEALING.

By O. LVIII, 9, the time for appealing from any order or decision in the matter of the winding-up of a co., or in the matter of any bankruptcy, or in any other matter not being an action, is to be the same as that limited for appeal from an interlocutory order under r. 15.

This includes original winding-up orders, and any order under the statutory jurisdiction of the Court: Re National Funds Assurance Co., 4 Ch. D. 305, 314, C. A.; Re Baillie's Trusts, 4 Ch. D. 785, C. A.

By r. 15, no appeal to the Court of Appeal from any interlocutory order or from any order, whether final or interlocutory, in any matter not being an action, shall, except by special leave of the Court of Appeal, be brought after the expiration of fourteen days, and no other appeal shall, except by such leave, be brought after the expiration of three months.

In all cases the material date is the date of service of the notice of appeal, and in calculating the time, Sundays, and days when the offices are closed, are to be reckoned: Exp. Viney, 4 Ch. D. 794, C. A.; Exp. Saffery, Re Lambert, 5 Ch. D. 365, C. A.; Christopher v. Croll, 16 Q. B. D. 66, C. A.; and see O. LXIV, 2.

Every decision, not being a final judgment or order in an action, is, or under r. 9 is to be treated as, an interlocutory order within the meaning of r. 15, so as to be subject to appeal during the shorter period only, though it is combined with a final order, or though it may decide a question of right, or even the substantial question at issue between the parties: Standard Co. v. La Grange, 3 C. P. D. 67, C. A.; McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701, C. A.; White v. Witt, 5 Ch. D. 589, C. A.; Cummins v. Herron, 4 Ch. D. 787, C. A.; McNair v. Audenshaw Paint Co., (1891) 2 Q. B. 502, C. A.; so as to be an interlocutory judgment within r. 3; but under O. LVIII, 15a, the time of appealing against an order made on further consideration of a cause, and on the hearing of a summons to vary the certificate on which such order is made, is to be the same as the time for appealing against the order on further consideration; and this rule applies although two orders are drawn up instead of one: Marsland v. Hole, 40 Ch. D. 110, C. A.; Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, C. A.

An appeal from an order or summons under the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874, must be brought within the fourteen days: Re Ricketts and Avent, W. N. (90) 16.

COMPUTATION OF TIME.

By O. LVIII, 15, the respective periods of fourteen days and three months are to be calculated, in the case of an appeal from an order made in Chambers, from the time when such order was pronounced, or when the appellant first had notice thereof, and in all other cases from the time at which the judgment or order is signed, entered, or otherwise perfected, or, in the case of the refusal of an application, from the date of such refusal.

The time runs from the refusal of an application, even though there is an order as to costs, which must be drawn up and entered; for this makes no difference in the refusal of the application, whereas the exact terms of the order when an application is granted may be very material: Swindell v. Birm. Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127, 133, C. A.; and see Berdan v. Birm. Small Arms Co., 7 Ch. D. 24, 25, C. A.; Re Smith, Hooper v. S., 26 Ch. D. 614, C. A.; but an order containing an expression of opinion binding the rights of the parties is not a simple refusal: Re Clay and Tetley, 16 Ch. D. 3, C. A.

If the appeal is from the refusal of part of an application, or from an order which is silent as to that part in respect of which the appeal is brought, the time runs from the date of the refusal: Berdan v. Birm. Small Arms Co., 7 Ch. D. 24, C. A.; Trail v. Jackson, 4 Ch. D. 7, C. A.; secus, where the part refused is not clearly separable from the rest, e.g., application for unsealing twelve classes of documents refused as to nine: Jones v. Andrews, 58 L. T. 601.

Where the order appealed against directed payment of a fund in moieties to the appellant and respondent, and the appellant's title to his moiety was not disputed, it was held that the appeal was not from the refusal of an order, but from an order with which the appellant was dissatisfied: Re Michell's Trusts, 9 Ch. D. 5, C. A.

The dismissal of a suit at the hearing is the "refusal of an application" within the rule: Internat. Society v. City of Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch. D. 241, C. A.

A refusal of leave to amend at the trial forms part of the judgment, and it is unnecessary to appeal separately from it: Laird v. Briggs, 16 Ch. D. 663, C. A.

A disallowance of a creditor's claim in answer to advertisements is a refusal: Re Claggett, Fordham v. C., 20 Ch. D. 134, C. A.

The order of a Judge settling the form of a conveyance is subject to appeal: Pollock v. Rabbits, 21 Ch. D. 466, C. A.

Appeals from the County Palatine are subject to the limitations of time provided by O. LVIII, 15: Lee v. Nuttall, 12 Ch. D. 61, C. A.; and by virtue of the Chancery of Lancaster Act, 1890, s. 4, to the provisions of the Jud. Act, 1894 (v. sup. p. 859): Dowson v. Drosophor, 39 S. J. 262, C. A. From divorce cases appeals to the House of Lords under Jud. Act, 1881 (44 & 45 V. c. 68), s. 9, are to be brought within one month after the decision appealed from has been pronounced by the Court of Appeal, if the House of Lords is then sitting, or within fourteen days after it next sits.

Where the time has expired, leave to appeal must be obtained on motion after notice: Re Lawrence, Evennett v. L., 4 Ch. D. 139, C. A.

EXTENSION OF TIME.

On the expiration of the time limited for appealing, the successful litigant acquires a right to his judgment: Collins v. Paddington Vestry, 5 Q. B. D. 368, C. A.; and special circumstances must be shown in order to induce the Court to extend the time: S. C.; but it is not essential that such circumstances should arise out of the conduct of the respondent: Re Crosley, Munns v. Burn, 34 Ch. D. 664, C. A.; Re Manchester Economic Building Society, 24 Ch. D. 448, C. A.; Re Blyth and Young, 13 Ch. D. 416, C. A. (disapproving McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701, 705, C. A.); Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484, C. A.; and the matter is one of judicial discretion: Re Manchester Economic Soc., sup.; Cusack v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., (1891) 1 Q. B. 347, C. A.

The mere fact that the intention to appeal has been communicated is not a ground for extension of time: Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484, C. A.; Re Blyth and Young, 13 Ch. D. 416, C. A.; nor that a declaration was made as to future rights, all parties interested being adult and before the Court: Curtis v. Sheffield, 21 Ch. D. 1, C. A.; and see Fussell v. Dowding, 27 Ch. D. 237, 241; nor that the appeal was dismissed through non-appearance of the appellant: Re Lamb, 23 Q. B. D. 477, C. A.; nor a mistake as to the construction of the rules of Court: International Society v. Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch. D. 241, 247, C. A.; Highton v. Treherne, 48 L. J. Ex. 176; 27 W. R. 245; 39 L. T. 411; nor that of a registrar's clerk misleading the solr as to the time allowed: Exp. Viney, 7 Ch. D. 794; and an extension will not be granted when an order deciding rights has been acted on for many years: Peareth v. Marriott, 22 Ch. D. 182.

But the leave has been granted where there was a bonâ fide mistake as to the validity of a resolution for a voluntary winding-up: Re Manchester Economic Building Soc., sup.; where a notice of appeal was withdrawn by mistake and immediately renewed: Taylor's Case, 8 Ch. D. 643, C. A.; where a final order made on petition was within the letter but not within the spirit of r. 15: Re Leonard Jacques, 18 Ch. D. 392, C. A.; where a person not a party but affected by the order, applied as soon as he became aware of it: Re Padstow Total Loss Assoc., Exp. Bryant, 20 Ch. D. 137, C. A.; where the decision which had been followed was overruled and the fund in question was still under the control of the Court: Re Normanton Iron and Steel Co., 29 W. R. 300; 50 L. J. Ch. 223; and where, several persons having been held liable, those who primâ facie were primarily liable appealed on the very last day without the knowledge of the others: Re Clayton Mills Co., 37 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

The fact that the decision appealed from has been overruled by a subsequent decision of the Court of Appeal is not in itself sufficient ground for extending the time for appeal, unless the subsequent decision is clear, and special circumstances are shown: Craig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 249, C. A.; and see Re Lawrence, Evennett v. L., 4 Ch. D. 139, C. A.; and though a judgment of the Court of Appeal determining the applicant's rights was subsequently reversed by the House of Lords on an appeal by another litigant, yet, under the circumstances (a compromise having been carried out by Act of Parliament), an extension was refused: Esdaile v. Payne, 40 Ch. D. 520, C. A.

But where a fund still remains in Court undistributed, or otherwise the rights of the parties are unaffected, an extension of time may be granted on less cause, at least in cases where the shorter period only is allowed: M. R., in Craig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 251, C. A.; Re Baillie's Trusts, 4 Ch. D. 785, C. A.; Re Normanton Iron Co., 29 W. R. 300; 50 L. J. Ch. 223.

And that clients ought not to be allowed to suffer through a bonâ fide mistake of their legal advisers, where the other side can be replaced in their former position; see Highton v. Treherne, 27 W. R. 245; 48 L. J. Ex. 176; 39 L. T. 411; and observations of Bramwell, L. J., in Collins v. Paddington Vestry, 5 Q. B. D. 368, 378.

SETTING DOWN APPEALS.

When the notice of appeal has been duly served the appellant must proceed to set down the appeal for hearing.

This must be done before the day named for the hearing in the notice, and in default the appeal will be dismissed as an abandoned motion; and such dismissal is not a ground for extending the time for bringing a fresh appeal: Re Mansel, Rhodes v. Jenkins, 7 Ch. D. 711, C. A.; Re National Funds Assurance Co., 4 Ch. D. 305, 308, C. A.; Donovan v. Brown, 4 Ex. D. 148; but the respondents having the carriage of the order appealed from cannot under this rule take advantage of their own delay in drawing up the order: Re Harker, Goodbarne v. Fothergill, 10 Ch. D. 613.

If after service the appeal is not set down, the respondent must make an original motion for his costs, there being no appeal before the Court: Webb v. Mansel, 2 Q. B. D. 117, C. A.; Re Oakwell Collieries, 7 Ch. D. 706, C. A.; and see Rep. of Costa Rica v. Strousberg, 21 March, 1879, Reg. Min. fo. 261; but the costs of such a motion will not be allowed unless it has been preceded by a demand for the costs of an abandoned appeal: Griffin v. Allen, 11 Ch. D. 913, C. A.

If the notice of appeal was not served in due time, and leave has not been obtained to appeal after the time, the appeal may still be set down without prejudice to any right of the respondents to raise the objection; and if necessary an order for this purpose may be obtained on an ex parte application: Re National Funds Assurance Co., sup.; Norton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 11 Ch. D. 118, C. A.

By O. LVIII, 8, the party appealing from a judgment or order is to produce to the proper officer the judgment or order, or the office copy of it (except in the case of an appeal from the refusal of an application, when this direction does not apply, though the order provide for the costs of the application: Smith v. Grindley, 3 Ch. D. 80, C. A.); and is also to leave with him a copy of the notice of appeal to be filed, and the officer is thereupon to set down the appeal by entering it in the proper list of appeals; and it is to come on to be heard according to its order in such list, unless the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof shall otherwise direct, but so as not to come into the paper for hearing before the day named in the notice of appeal.

Three copies of all material documents, the construction of which is involved in the appeal, must be supplied for the use of the Court: Canot v. Oppenheim, 38 W. R. 1; Re Randell, 56 L. T. 8; Notice 21 Nov. 1881; W. N. (81) 501, Misc.; Mem. W. N. (97) 8.

If leave to appeal is necessary, proof of such leave having been given must be produced: Dan. 1062.

Where the continuance of an injunction which may cause irreparable damage, or the dissolution of an injunction restraining such damage is involved, the hearing of an appeal will be advanced: Lazenby v. White, 6 Ch. 89; L. C. & D. Ry. Co. v. Imp. Merc. Credit Assoc., 3 Ch. 231. For form of notice of motion, see D. C. F. 739.

And as to a stay of proceedings on similar grounds, v. inf. p. 880.

HEARING OF APPEALS.

By the Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12, every appeal is, when the subject-matter is a final order, decree, or judgment, to be heard before not less than three Judges of the Court sitting together, and when the subject-matter is an interlocutory order, decree, or judgment, is to be heard before not less than two Judges of the Court sitting together.

For the provisions of the Jud. Act, 1899 (62 V. c. 6), as to the hearing of appeals by two Judges of C. A. by consent of parties, v. sup. p. 852.

By the Judges' Memorandum, 1 Ch. D. 41, "all summonses finally settling the rights of parties, such as summonses in winding-up orders, or in admon suits, are to be heard before the full Court of Appeal."

The distinction here taken appears to approximate very closely to that made in O. LVIII, 3, between interlocutory judgments and interlocutory orders: v. sup. p. 863.

If, when the appeal is called on, the appellant does not appear, the respondent is entitled to have the appeal dismissed with costs, without proving service of the notice of appeal upon him: Exp. Lows, 7 Ch. D. 160; and see James v. Crow, 7 Ch. D. 410, C. A.

But if the respondent does not appear, it is presumed that the appellant must prove service upon him, as in the case of non-appearance of a Deft at the trial of an action: see Cockshott v. London Cab Co., 26 W. R. 31; 47 L. J. Ch. 120; W. N. (97) 24.

A party affected, but not served with notice, may appear gratis on the appeal, and obtain his costs if the appeal is dismissed, though for irregularity: Re New Callao Co., 22 Ch. D. 484, C. A.

Postponement of an appeal set down will not be granted as of course because all parties agree: Bird v. Andrew, W. N. (87) 181; 36 W. R. 1. See Dan. 1068.

The rule that a respondent cannot be heard by counsel in support of the appellant's case was relaxed in favour of a trustee supporting an appeal by tenant for life under sect. 10 of the Settled Land Act, 1890: Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estate, (1892) 1 Ch. 506, C. A.

The rehearing on appeal of a case tried by a Judge without a jury is not governed by the rules applicable where there has been a trial and verdict by a jury. The Court of Appeal must act on its own considered conclusion on questions of fact as well as law: Coghlan v. Cumberland, (1898) 1 Ch. 704, C. A.; but see Colonial Securities Trust Co. v. Massey, (1896) 1 Q. B. 38, C. A., to the effect that in cases of doubt the Court of Appeal will presume that the decision of the Judge on the facts was right, and will not disturb it unless the appellant can satisfactorily make out that it was wrong; and see The Gairlock (1899), 2 I. R. 1, C. A.

EVIDENCE ON APPEAL.

By O. LVIII, 11, the evidence taken in the Court below bearing on any question of fact involved in an appeal, is to be brought before the Court of Appeal, as to printed affidavits, by the production of printed copies, as to affidavits not printed, by the production of office copies, and as to oral evidence, by production of a copy of the Judge's notes, or such other materials as the Court may deem expedient.

By r. 12, where evidence has not been printed in the Court below, the Court, or a Judge below, or the Court or a Judge of Appeal, may order the whole, or any part of it, to be printed, for the purpose of the appeal. Any party printing evidence for the purpose of an appeal without such order is to bear the costs of it, unless the Court or a Judge of Appeal shall otherwise order.

Costs of shorthand notes of the judgment of the Court below are allowed by the Court of Appeal in every case, and are only referred to in the order when disallowed: Re Medland, Eland v. M., 41 Ch. D. 476, C. A.; Humphrey v. Sumner, W. N. (86) 182; 55 L. T. 649; Ashworth v. Outram, 9 Ch. D. 483, C. A.; The Swallow, 36 L. T. 231; Re De Falbe, (1901) 1 Ch. 523, C. A.; notwithstanding that the case in the Court below has been reported in the Law Reports: Re Cathcart, W. N. (93) 107; and on deciding as to the construction of a will, the Court, not being furnished with any information as to the reasons given by the Judge in the Court below, declined to make any order as to the costs of the appeal: Re M'Connell, Saunders v. M., 29 Ch. D. 76, C. A.

Shorthand writer's notes of Judge's summing up were not allowed, the case not being exceptional: Andrews v. Mockford, (1896) 1 Q. B. 372, C. A. at p. 385, n.

Costs of shorthand notes of evidence in the Court below are not allowed, except in very special cases: Kelly v. Byles, 13 Ch. D. 682, C. A.; Glasier v. Rolls, 38 W. R. 116; 58 L. J. Ch. 820; 62 L. T. 305; Yorkshire Laundries v. Pickles, W. N. (01) 28, C. A.; or where taken by agreement with consent of the Judge in the Court below: S. C.; and see Castner Kellner Alkali Co. v. Commercial Development Corp., (1899) 1 Ch. 803, C. A., where the costs of transcript of shorthand notes of evidence were allowed in a difficult patent case; and application for such allowance should be made at the hearing, and a special direction inserted in the order: Earl De la Warr v. Miles, 19 Ch. D. 80, C. A.; Glasier v. Rolls, sup.; Ashworth v. Outram, 9 Ch. D. 483, C. A.

Shorthand notes of evidence have been allowed in solr and client taxation, as extra costs on appeal: Re Nation, N. v. Hamilton, 57 L. T. 648; and see Bidder v. Bridges, W. N. (87) 208.

A shorthand note of evidence taken by a clerk to the solr of one of the parties cannot be used: Ellington v. Clark, 38 Ch. D. 332, C. A.

The costs of transcribing and printing, but not of taking the notes, were allowed by the Court of Appeal: Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24, 32, C. A.

In ordinary cases the Judge's notes, supplemented by those of counsel, are sufficient for the use of the Court of Appeal: Walker's Case, C. A., 16 Dec. 1878, Reg. Min. fo. 233; Krehl v. Burrell, C. A. 21 March, 1879, Reg. Min. fo. 263; Earl De la Warr v. Miles, sup.; Yorkshire Laundries v. Pickles, W. N. (01) 28, C. A.; and see Re Gee, Laming v. G., 28 W. R. 217.

Judge's notes are obtained on a request lodged fourteen days at least before the case is likely to be in the paper with the Judge's clerk (for form, see D. C. F. 736), who sends the notes to the Scrivenery Department. Copies for each Judge of C. A. are there made, returned to the clerk, and by him forwarded to proper officer of C. A. As to the former practice, see Re Batt & Co.'s Trade Marks, Re Carter's Application, (1898) 2 Ch. 701, C. A.

As to the duty of the appellant to procure such notes, see Ellington v. Clark, 38 Ch. D. 332, C. A.; and see Lumb v. Teal, 22 Q. B. D. 675.

As to the power of the Court of Appeal to admit any evidence which has been improperly rejected, see Dollman v. Jones, 12 Ch. D. 553, C. A.

By r. 13, on any question as to a Judge's ruling or direction to a jury or assessors, the Court of Appeal is to have regard to verified notes, or other evidence, and to such other materials as the Court may deem expedient.

By r. 4, the Court of Appeal has full discretionary power to receive further evidence upon questions of fact, either by oral examination in Court, by affidavit, or by deposition taken before an examiner or commissioner. Such further evidence may be given without special leave upon interlocutory applications, or in any case as to matters which have occurred after the date of the decision appealed from. Upon appeals from a judgment after trial or hearing of any cause or matter upon the merits, such further evidence (save as to matters subsequent as aforesaid) is to be admitted on special grounds only, and not without special leave of the Court.

Further evidence means any evidence whatever not used at the hearing in the Court below: Re Chennell, Jones v. U., 8 Ch. D. 492, 505, C. A.

Special grounds for admitting evidence on appeals are afforded by the rejection of the evidence in the Court below on purely technical grounds: Re Chennell, sup.; or where the judgment of the Court below is founded on mistake, misapprehension, or surprise: Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24, C. A.

But such further evidence is not by any means to be admitted without strong reason: Re Chennell, sup.; and see Sanders v. S., 19 Ch. D. 373, C. A.; Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 28 Ch. D. 38, C. A.; Evans v. Benyon, 37 Ch. D. 345, C. A.; and will not be admitted where there has been no surprise, and the evidence has not been discovered since the hearing: Exp. Carnforth Co., 4 Ch. D. 115, C. A.; Weston's Case, 10 Ch. D. 579, C. A.

A new issue as to negligence was not allowed to be brought forward in P. C. on appeal in a case grounded on fraud: Connecticut Fire Insurance Co. v. Kavanagh, (1892) A. C. 473.

Notwithstanding the great weight due in cases of conflict of viva voce evidence to the decision of a Judge of first instance who has seen the manner and demeanour of the witnesses, the Court of Appeal will act upon its own view of conflicting evidence: Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24, C. A.; The Glannibanta, 1 P. D. 287, C. A.

Where the proposed further evidence is documentary, the proper course is to give notice to the other side that the Court will be moved at the hearing of the appeal to give special leave to adduce further evidence: Hastie v. H., 1 Ch. D. 562, C. A.; Justice v. Mersey Co., 24 W. R. 199; and see Re Chennell, sup.; but where it is proposed to examine fresh witnesses, the application for leave must be by motion before the hearing: Dicks v. Brooks, 13 Ch. D. 652, C. A. For form of notice, see D. C. F. 737.

Where it was proposed to adduce affidavit evidence which the witness declined to swear, the Court gave leave on motion to serve him with a subpoena to attend at the hearing of the appeal without prejudice to any question as to the admissibility of the evidence, and intimated that the applicant must explain why it was not sooner adduced: Gover's Case, 24 W. R. 36.

The words "judgment after trial or hearing of the cause or matter upon the merits," appear to include not only final judgments, but also interlocutory judgments, as distinct from interlocutory orders: v. sup. p. 865; and that applications for such judgments are not within O. XXXVIII, 3, as to evidence on information and belief, see Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. D. 259, C. A.

An order on summons by a creditor in an admon action is final as regards reception of further evidence: Re Compton, Norton v. C., 27 Ch. D. 392, C. A.; secus, a refusal by the Judge to order sequestration against Deft co. for breach of injunction: Spencer v. Ancoats Vale Rubber Co., 58 L. T. 363; W. N. (88) 86.

And where at the trial witnesses have been examined orally, further affidavit evidence by them will not, in general, be admitted on appeal: Taylor v. Grange, 15 Ch. D. 165, C. A.

A respondent who objects to a further affidavit being used on appeal should not file affidavits in reply, but wait till the hearing and then apply for time: Mitchell v. Condy, W. N. (81) 83.

Whether the rule applies where the party seeking to adduce further evidence adduced none in the Court below, quære: Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 98, C. A.

If a note of oral evidence has been lost, the Court may allow the evidence to be re-taken: Exp. Firth, Re Cowburn, 19 Ch. D. 419, C. A.

For case in which further evidence was adduced by consent, and the hearing of the appeal treated as the trial of the action, see Harris v. De Pinna, 33 Ch. D. 255, C. A.

POWERS OF THE COURT OF APPEAL.

By O. LVIII, 4, the Court of Appeal is to have all the powers and duties, as to amendment and otherwise, of the Court of first instance, and is to have power to give any judgment and make any order which ought to have been made, and to make such further or other order as the case may require—(including (r. 5) the power of setting aside the verdict and judgment, and directing a new trial on the hearing of an appeal from a judgment on the verdict or finding of a jury, or of a Judge without a jury, varying the practice as stated in Yetts v. Foster, 3 C. P. D. 437, C. A.; Etty v. Wilson, 3 Ex. D. 359, C. A.; Davies v. Felix, 4 Ex. D. 32, C. A.),—and may exercise these powers notwithstanding that the notice of appeal may be that part only of the decision may be reversed or varied, or in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although they may not have appealed from or complained of the decision.

Although the Court has the full powers of the Court below as to amendment, they will not be exercised so as to allow an appellant to raise upon appeal a case totally inconsistent with his original case: Exp. Reddish, 5 Ch. D. 883, C. A.; Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700, C. A.; Hipgrave v. Case, 28 Ch. D. 356, 361, C. A.; or a point not taken in the Court below, and as to which contradictory evidence might have been adduced: Exp. Firth, Re Cowburn, 19 Ch. D. 419, C. A.; and see The Tasmania, 15 App. Ca. 223, 225; nor where some of numerous Plts were unavoidably absent at the trial, but it did not appear why they did not instruct their solr to give such evidence as he could, or as would enable him to apply for adjournment: Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 98, C. A.; and after judgment on appeal the Court refused leave to amend so as to give relief against third parties, which had not been asked for at the trial: Edison and Swan, &c. Co. v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28, C. A.; and quære whether the Court of Appeal has jurisdiction to give judgment for an injunction and damages against third parties as if they were Defts: S. C.

Where an application at the trial for leave to amend pleadings is refused, the Court of Appeal has power to give leave to amend: Laird v. Briggs, 16 Ch. D. 663, C. A.

Liberty to amend after the time for appealing had long expired was granted under special circumstances on special terms: Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, C. A.

Where a jury found issues in favour of the Plt, for whom a general verdict was given, and judgment was afterwards given for the Deft, the Court of Appeal, on affirming the judgment, amended the record by entering the verdict for the Plt on the issues only: Clack v. Wood, 9 Q. B. D. 276, C. A.

As to rectification of accidental slip, whereby evidence really before the Court on the hearing of the appeal was omitted from the order, see Exp. Banco de Portugal, Re Hooper, 14 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

The Court will not readily allow an appellant whose notice of appeal affects part of an order only, to ask that the whole may be discharged; and in cases where such an application is allowed, the omission to give a proper notice in the first instance will usually be a ground for a special order as to costs: per James, L. J., in Cracknull v. Janson, 4 March, 1879.

CROSS APPEALS.

By O. LVIII, 6, a respondent need not give notice of motion by way of cross appeal, but if he intends upon the hearing of an appeal to contend that the decision of the Court below be varied, he is to give notice (which is, subject to special order, to be an eight days' notice in the case of an appeal from a final judgment, and a two days' notice in the case of an appeal from an interlocutory order: r. 7) of his intention to any parties who may be affected by his contention. The omission to give such notice is not to diminish the powers conferred by the Jud. Acts upon the Court of Appeal, but may, in the discretion of the Court, be a ground for an adjournment of the appeal, or for a special order as to costs. For form of notice, see D. C. F. 735.

A notice by a respondent under r. 6 need not be given within the time limited by r. 15: Exp. Bishop, Re Fox, Walker & Co., 15 Ch. D. 400, C. A.

A respondent seeking a variation of the order on a point in which the appellant has no interest, must give a separate notice of appeal: Re Cavander's Trusts, 16 Ch. D. 270, C. A.; and where action and counterclaim are founded on separate and distinct causes of action, the procedure by cross appeals is applicable: National Soc. of Electricity v. Gibbs, (1900) 2 Ch. 280, C. A.

A respondent may give notice under r. 6 to a co-respondent: Exp. Payne, Re Cross, 11 Ch. D. 539, C. A.

Where an appellant withdraws his appeal, a respondent who has given such notice is entitled to elect whether he will continue or withdraw his cross appeal: The Beeswing, 10 P. D. 18, C. A.; if he continues, the appellant may give a notice renewing his original contention: S. C.

COSTS OF APPEAL.

By O. LVIII, 5, the Court of Appeal shall have power to make such order as to the whole or any part of the costs of an appeal as may seem just.

By the Judge's memorandum, 1 Ch. D. 41, the rule of the Court of Chancery that a successful appellant is not entitled to costs, is no longer to be acted upon; and in all cases of appeals commenced under the new practice, the successful appellant is to be entitled to costs, unless in the particular case the Court shall otherwise direct.

This rule is one of general application: The Batavier, 15 P. D. 37, C. A.; Olivant v. Wright, 45 L. J. Ch. 1; and includes salvage cases: The City of Berlin, 2 P. D. 187; and has been adopted in the case of appeals to the Chief Judge in bankruptcy: Exp. Masters, 1 Ch. D. 113.

But the Court has a discretion (see O. LXV, 1; Jud. Act, 1890, s. 5), and a successful appellant may be refused costs where he fails to prove allegations of fraud: Exp. Cooper, 10 Ch. D. 313, C. A.; or succeeds on a point not raised in the Court below: Hussey v. Payne, 8 Ch. D. 670, C. A.; Chard v. Jervis, 9 Q. B. D. 178, C. A.; Dye v. D., 13 Q. B. D. 147, C. A.; or one point only out of many: Elliot v. Lord Rokeby, 7 App. Ca. 43; or on fresh evidence: Exp. Hauxwell, 23 Ch. D. 643, C. A.; Arnot's Case, 36 Ch. D. 702, C. A.; and respondents whose conduct had justified the appeal were refused costs: Paterson v. Provost of St. Andrews, 6 App. Ca. 833 (Sc.); and a respondent who, having a preliminary objection, knowingly allows appellant to incur costs in preparing for an appeal, may be deprived of his costs: Re Blyth and Young, 13 Ch. D. 416, C. A.; Re Speight, Exp. Brooks, 13 Q. B. D. 42; but see Exp. Stead, Re Mundy, 15 Q. B. D. 331, C. A.

An order as to costs was refused where the Court was not furnished with information as to the reasons of the Judge below: Re McConnell, Saunders v. M., 29 Ch. D. 76, C. A.

Where a trustee in bankruptcy adopts the action and abandons an appeal, it will be dismissed with costs: Borneman v. Wilson, 28 Ch. D. 53, C. A.

Where two Defts appealed jointly and one succeeded, both appellants were allowed their costs of appeal, a cross appeal having failed, and the costs not having been increased by the joint appeal: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490, 495, C. A.

And a wife, party to an appeal in respect of her separate estate, was entitled to her costs though joined with her husband in the appeal, in a case where the husband was bankrupt: Kevan v. Crawford, 6 Ch. D. 29, C. A.; but see Wright v. Chard, 4 Drew. 702.

Cost of an unsuccessful appeal out of a fund in Court will only be allowed under very special circumstances: Re Barlow, Barton v. Spencer, 36 Ch. D. 387.

Where an appeal has been abandoned, it will be dismissed with costs though not set down: Charlton v. C., 16 Ch. D. 273, C. A.; but before application for costs of an abandoned appeal is made, there should be a previous demand for payment of them: Griffin v. Allen, 11 Ch. D. 913, C. A. See Dan. 1063.

An abandoned appeal will not be dismissed with costs on the ex parte application of the appellant: Ormerod v. Bleasdale, 54 L. T. 343.

Where an appeal is dismissed on the objection of the respondent that the notice of appeal is too late, the appellant will not be made to pay costs of the respondent's affidavits filed after the appeal was set down: Exp. Fardon's Vinegar Co., Re Jones, 14 Ch. D. 285, C. A.

Where an appeal is simply dismissed after a cross appeal by the respondent the costs occasioned by the cross appeal are to be deducted: The Lauretta, 4 P. D. 25, C. A.

Where one of two respondents gave a cross notice affecting his co-respondent, the appeal failing and cross appeal succeeding, costs were apportioned: Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Ry. Co., 18 Ch. D. 334, C. A.; but where the costs have not been materially increased by the cross appeal, there will be no apportionment: Robinson v. Drakes, 23 Ch. D. 98, C. A.

Third parties, who in reality fought the Plts and failed, were ordered, together with the Defts, to pay the costs both of appeal and in Court below: Edison and Swan, &c. Co. v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28, C. A.

In an admon action where several respondents to an unsuccessful appeal were in the same interest, the Court allowed one set of costs against the appellant, and directed these costs to be paid to the respondent who had the conduct of the proceedings in the cause: Harbin v. Masterman, (1896) 1 Ch. 351, C. A.

The common law practice to have only one taxation in an action does not apply where costs are given to a party on appeal, and if there is no direction postponing taxation and payment, the party is entitled to taxation and payment forthwith: Phillips v. P., 5 Q. B. D. 60, C. A.

The solr of an appellant may be ordered to indemnify his client against the costs of an appeal, prosecuted not in the interests of the client, but for the purposes of the solr: Harbin v. Masterman, (1896) 1 Ch. 351, C. A.

8. Security for Costs by Deposit—O. LVIII, 15.

UPON motion this day made &c.; This Court doth order that the Plt H. do lodge the sum of £— in Court to the credit of this action [or matter] &c., "Security for the costs of the Plt's appeal," as directed in the lodgment schedule hereto to answer costs in case any shall be awarded to be paid by the Plt on his appeal against the order dated

&c.; And it is ordered that in the meantime, and until such lodgment is made, and notice thereof given to the solr of the Deft, all proceedings in this appeal be stayed.—[Add lodgment schedule, Form 1.]—See Re Ivory, Hankin v. Turner, C. A., 2 Nov. 1878, A. 3243; 10 Ch. D. 372; and see Form 11, inf.

It is not the practice to fix a time in the order, but if the security is not given within a reasonable time an immediate order of dismissal is made: see Washburn and Moen Manufacturing Co. v. Patterson, 29 Ch. D. 48, C. A.; Polini v. Gray, 11 Ch. D. 741, C. A.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 734.

9. The like, by Bond, with Option to deposit a Sum in Court.

UPON motion this day made &c., And upon reading &c., This Court doth order that the Plt J. do procure some sufficient person in his behalf to give security, by bond to the respondent, in the penal sum of £—, conditioned to answer any costs occasioned by the Plt's appeal against the judgment &c., in case any costs shall be awarded to be paid by the Plt; And it is ordered that in lieu of such security the Plt J. be at liberty to lodge the sum of £— in Court to the credit of &c., "Security for the costs of the Plt's appeal" as directed in the lodgment schedule hereto; And the Plt's appeal is not to be placed in the paper for hearing until — days after such security has been given, and notice thereof given to the Defts; [or And in the meantime all proceedings in this appeal are to be stayed;] And the costs of the Plts and Defts of this application are to be included in the costs of the appeal.—[Add lodgment schedule, Form 1, p. 206.]—See Judd v. Green, C. A., 25 April, 1876, A. 1017; S. C., 4 Ch. D. 784, C. A.; Nantyglo and Blaina Ironworks Co. v. Grave, C. A., 22 May, 1878, B. 1524.

For like order, see Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, C. A., 31 May, 1876, B. 1700; 2 Ch. D. 811, C. A.

For order directing a Plt to pay to the Deft his costs of an abandoned appeal, and to give security by bond for the costs of a fresh appeal in the same action, and staying the prosecution of the appeal in the meantime, see Waddell v. Blockey, C. A., 18 Dec. 1878, B. 2273; 10 Ch. D. 416, C. A.

10. Appeal dismissed for want of Prosecution in Default of Security.

WHEREAS by an order dated &c., it was ordered that &c. (Recite order in Form 9, sup., verbatim); Now upon motion this day made unto this Court by counsel for the Deft, who alleged that the Plt hath not lodged the said sum of £— in Court as directed by the said order, and therefore prayed that the appeal of the Plt might be dismissed with costs; And no one appearing for the Plt [or And upon hearing &c.]; And upon reading &c. [if so, and an affidavit of &c., filed &c., of service of notice of this motion on the Plt]; This Court doth order that the said appeal of the Plt do stand dismissed; And it is ordered that the Plt H. do pay to the Deft T. his costs occasioned by the Plt's notice of appeal, including the costs of the said order dated the 2nd day of November, 1878, and of this application, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master.—See Re Ivory, Hankin v. Turner, C. A., 27 Nov. 1878, A. 2075; 10 Ch. D. 377, C. A.

For like order, see Judd v. Green, C. A., 2 Feb. 1877, A. 234; 4 Ch. D. 784, C. A.; and see Harris v. Fleming, 30 W. R. 555; Polini v. Gray, 11 Ch. D. 741, C. A. For form of application, see D. C. F. 735.

SECURITY FOR COSTS OF APPEAL.

When required.

By O. LVIII, 15, such deposit or other security for the costs to be occasioned by any appeal shall be made or given as may be directed under special circumstances by the Court of Appeal.

In all cases where the Court of Appeal directs security for costs to the amount of 20*l.* or under, the amount must be deposited in Court; if the amount is larger the appellant has the option of giving security.

The former practice under which a deposit of 20*l.* was required in all cases where a petition of rehearing or appeal petition was presented, is thus abrogated: see Wilson v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 67; 24 W. R. 421.

The rule includes bankruptcy appeals: Exp. Isaacs, 9 Ch. D. 271, C. A.; and appeals under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897 (60 & 61 V. c. 37): Hall v. Snowdon, Hubbard & Co., (1899) 1 Q. B. 593, C. A.

The poverty of the appellant is a special circumstance within the meaning of the rule: Harlock v. Ashberry, 19 Ch. D. 84, C. A.; and insolvency is prima facie reason for requiring security for costs: see per Brett, L. J., in Exp. Isaacs, 9 Ch. D. 271, 273, C. A.; per Cotton, L. J., in Re Ivory, Hankin v. Turner, 10 Ch. D. 372, C. A., Forms 8, 10, sup.

Poverty, even though it amounts to insolvency, may not by itself be a sufficient ground for making the order; the nature of the action, and the manner in which it is prosecuted, are to be considered: Usil v. Brearley, 3 C. P. D. 206, C. A. But mere want of means is not a sufficient ground for dispensing with security from a bankrupt wishing to appeal: Exp. Grepe, Re Grepe, W. N. (87) 83.

Non-compliance with a bankruptcy notice is evidence of insolvency: Nixon v. Sheldon, 53 L. J. Ch. 624; 50 L. T. 245.

Security was required where an insolvent appellant alleged that letters of admon had been wrongfully granted to the respondent, and sought to restrain the admon of the estate, but took no steps to try the question in the Probate Division: Re Ivory, Hankin v. Turner, 10 Ch. D. 372, C. A.; where an irregular and vexatious appeal had been brought, even though a substantial (but not novel) question was to be tried: Waddell v. Blockey, 10 Ch. D. 416, C. A.; where three appeals were brought when one would have been sufficient: Usil v. Brearley, 3 C. P. D. 206, C. A.; and where the appellant was a foreigner domiciled abroad, and not having assets in England: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 2 C. P. D. 430, C. A.; or resident out of the jurisdiction: Re Kathleen Mavoureen, &c., W. N. (78) 215; Wegmann v. Corcoran, 19 Mar. 1879, Reg. Min. fo. 250; or an insolvent solr appealing from an order to strike him off the rolls, and directing an account against him: Re Strong, 31 Ch. D. 273, C. A. (quære, whether so, if the order were simply to strike off the rolls: S. C.); or a co. appealing alone from a winding-up order: Re Photographic Artists' Co-operative Co., 23 Ch. D. 370, C. A.; Re Diamond Fuel Co., 13 Ch. D. 400, C. A.

The mere fact that a novel question of law is involved is not a ground for refusing to require security from an insolvent appellant: Farrer v. Lacy, Hartland & Co., 28 Ch. D. 482, C. A.; explaining Rourke v. White Moss Colliery Co., 1 C. P. D. 556, where the insolvency arose from the alleged wrong complained of.

Where bankrupt Defts appealed against an injunction which interfered with their future power of gaining a livelihood, an order was made dismissing the appeal, unless within a certain time they gave security, or the trustee in bankruptcy made himself a party: United Telephone Co. v. Bassano, 31 Ch. D. 630, C. A.

In Wilson v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 67, C. A., which has been cited as an authority for the proposition that the poverty of an appellant is alone a ground for requiring security for costs, the evidence was of an enormous length: see S. C., 24 W. R. 421; Stock v. Hooper's Telegraph Works, W. N. (76) 230; but see Harlock v. Ashberry, 19 Ch. D. 84, C. A., where Jessel, M. R., said that the practice before the Jud. Acts should not be lost sight of, and ordered security to the extent of 30*l.*; and see also Whittaker v. Kershaw, 44 Ch. D. 296, C. A.

Where a pauper appellant has failed, or will probably fail, to pay the costs in the Court below, sufficient security for the costs of an appeal will be directed: Exp. Isaacs, 9 Ch. D. 271, C. A.

And non-payment of such costs is, it seems, a special circumstance within the meaning of r. 15: Re Tees Bottle Co., 20 S. J. 584; Clarke v. Roche, 25 W. R. 309; 46 L. J. Ch. 372; 36 L. T. 78.

An exor, made a party by revivor, is entitled to security for costs of an appeal, though his testator (to whom costs were due) would not have been so entitled: Re Knight, K. v. Gardner, 38 Ch. D. 108, C. A.

In a salvage case, the fact that the appellants have obtained a stay of execution and the release of their ship on a bail-bond, not including the costs of an appeal, is not sufficient ground for requiring security for such costs: The Victoria, 1 P. D. 280.

The respondent should first apply to the appellant for security, and, if no reasonable offer is made, may then apply to the Court to order security to be given: The Constantini, 4 P. D. 156, C. A.

A married woman having no separate property which she was not restrained from anticipating and appealing without a next friend, was ordered to give security: Whittaker v. Kershaw, 44 Ch. D. 296, C. A.; and see Weldhen v. Scattergood, W. N. (87) 69.

The fact that an appellant is resident abroad is not of itself a sufficient ground for requiring security, and though the property of an appellant co. was of a fluctuating character and easily removable, security was not required, there being no reasonable doubt that if the appeal was dismissed there would be ample goods of theirs on which execution might be levied: Re Apollinaris Co.'s Trade Mark, (1891) 1 Ch. 1, C. A.

As to abuse, actual or threatened, of the process of the Court being ground for ordering security, see Weldon v. Maples, Teesdale & Co., 20 Q. B. D. 331, C. A.

Where the appeal was from refusal of an order in the nature of a mandamus against a County Court Judge, the nature of the appeal was material in favour of the application for security: Clarke v. Roche, 46 L. J. Ch. 372; 25 W. R. 309; 36 L. T. 78.

Where Defts are prejudiced by an appeal being brought by one of several Plts, their remedy is to apply for security: Beckett v. Attwood, 18 Ch. D. 54, C. A.

PROCEDURE IN REFERENCE TO SECURITY.

The application for an order for security is to be made by original motion before the Court of Appeal, on notice to the appellant, which may be given without leave of the Court: Grills v. Dillon, 2 Ch. D. 235, C. A.; Exp. Isaacs, 9 Ch. D. 271, C. A.; Clarke v. Roche, 25 W. R. 309; 46 L. J. Ch. 372; 36 L. T. 78.

The application must be made promptly: Re Indian Kingston Gold Mines, 22 Ch. D. 83, C. A.; Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 33 Ch. D. 76, C. A.; and in general before a time is actually fixed for the hearing of the appeal: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 1 C. P. D. 143, C. A.; but even though the appeal was in the day's paper, the application was granted on satisfactory explanation given: Ellis v. Stewart, 35 Ch. D. 459, C. A.; and see Re Clough, Bradford Bank v. Cure, 35 Ch. D. 7.

If the deposit is not made or security given within a reasonable time after the date of the order, the appeal will be peremptorily dismissed: Washburn and Moen Co. v. Patterson, 29 Ch. D. 48, C. A.; Judd v. Green, 4 Ch. D. 784, C. A.; Re Ivory, Hankin v. Turner, Form 10, sup. p. 874. Thus appeals have been dismissed after a period of nine months from the order for security: Judd v. Green, sup.; or after four months: Vale v. Oppert, 5 Ch. D. 633, C. A.; Kanitz v. Scarborough, W. N. (78) 216; and in general three months is more than a reasonable time: Washburn, &c. Co. v. Patterson, sup.

But the Court will not, in the first instance, order the security to be given within a specified time, and in default the appeal to be dismissed: Wilson v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 67, C. A.; United Telephone Co. v. Bassano, 31 Ch. D. 730, C. A.; Polini v. Gray, 11 Ch. D. 74, C. A.; though proceedings may be stayed until the security is given: Vale v. Oppert, 5 Ch. D. 633, C. A.

Where the required security was given after service of notice of motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, but before the hearing of the motion, the appellant was ordered to pay the costs of the motion before the appeal was heard: Exp. Isaacs, 10 Ch. D. 1, C. A.

The amount of the security is proportionate to the probable costs of the appeal, not the value of the property at stake: see Morecroft v. Evans, W. N. (82) 189; nor such as will cover all the costs of appeal, but a reasonable sum: see Aberdare Co. v. Hankey, 32 S. J. 644.

For cases in which security for costs beyond the amount of £20 was required before the Jud. Acts, see Mayor, &c. of Hastings v. Ivall, 9 Ch. 758.

On application to the Court of Appeal for new trial, the practice formerly prevailing in the Q. B. D. has been adopted, and security for costs will not in general be ordered: Hecksher v. Crosley, (1891) 1 Q. B. 224.

11. Stay of Execution pending an Appeal on Payment into Court— O. LVIII, 16.

UPON the application &c., And the Applicant A. by his solr undertaking to lodge in Court the sum of £—, it is ordered that the said A. do on or before &c., lodge in Court to the credit of &c., the said sum of £— as directed in the Lodgment Schedule hereto; And it is ordered that upon such lodgment in Court being made, no proceedings be taken to enforce the order dated &c., as to the said sum of £— pending the appeal of the said A.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 1.]

For form of notice of motion to stay, see D. O. F. 728.

12. Stay of Execution for Costs on payment into Court, after refusal of the Application in the Court below on original Motion— O. LVIII, 17, 18.

UPON motion this day made &c., This Court doth order that the Deft C. do within (twenty-one days) after the taxing master shall have made his certificate pursuant to the judgment dated &c., lodge the amount of the costs thereby directed to be taxed, including the costs of the Deft H., in Court to the credit of this cause &c., to an account to be entitled "The taxed costs of the Plt and the Deft H.," as directed in the schedule hereto, instead of paying the same as directed by the said judgment; And it is ordered that upon such lodgment being made, all proceedings under the said judgment to enforce payment of such costs be stayed until after the appeal of the said Deft C. from the said judgment has been disposed of.—Deft to pay to the next friend of the Plt the Plt's costs of the application, to be taxed &c.—[Add Lodgment Schedule, Form 1.]—See Cooper v. C., C. A., 12 April, 1876, A. 1049; 2 Ch. D. 492, C. A.

13. Appeal to the House of Lords—Stay of Execution for Costs refused on Personal Undertaking of Solicitor to refund.

UPON motion this day made &c., And upon hearing &c., And N., of the firm of B. & Co., the solr for the Defts other than the W. & R. Ry. Co., personally undertaking, in the event of the order dated &c., being reversed on appeal to the House of Lords, to abide by any order which this Court may make as to their refunding to the Plts the costs by the said order directed to be paid to them by the Plts, This Court doth not think fit to make any order on this motion, but doth order that the Plts B. &c., pay to the Defts E. &c., their costs of this application, to be taxed by the taxing master.—See Beattie v. Lord Ebury, L.JJ., 24 Feb. 1873, A. 442; 28 L. T. 458.

For order on like motion that the Deft should pay into Court a sum certified to be due in respect of the Plt's liability in respect of — shares in the G. Co., and that the same should be invested in Cons. £3 p. c. Anns, and the dividends as they accrued invested in like anns; and that all further proceedings under the order appealed from should be stayed until after the hearing of the petition of appeal to be presented to the House of Lords pursuant to a notice served by the Deft on the Plt, and that the Deft should pay the costs of the application, see Merry v. Nickalls, L. C. and L. JJ., 29 Jan. 1873, B. 334; 8 Ch. 205.

And for subsequent order on summons, after dismissal of the appeal by the House of Lords, directing the stock and accumulations to be sold, and the proceeds paid to the Plt or his nominee, see S. C., V.-C. B., at Chambers, 5 Aug. 1875, B. 2013.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS PENDING APPEAL GENERALLY.

Applications to stay proceedings on appeal must be founded on two points, which are essential: first, that a serious injury will result to the party applying if the application is not granted; secondly, that he has come promptly to make it: Nawab Khan v. Rajah Oojoodhyaram Khan, L. R. 1 P. C. 8, 12.

The principles on which such applications will be granted vary according to the nature of the proceedings to be stayed, but as a general rule the Court will stay all such proceedings as would render a successful appeal nugatory: Wilson v. Church, 12 Ch. D. 454, C. A.; Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438, C. A.

Stay of Execution for Costs.

Where the order appealed from directs the appellant to pay costs, the costs must be paid according to the order, on the personal undertaking of the respondent's solr to refund if the appeal is successful: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, C. A.; Morgan v. Elford, 4 Ch. D. 352, C. A.; Merry v. Nickalls, 8 Ch. 205; Beattie v. Lord Ebury, 28 L. T. 458, Form 13, sup.; Gibbs v. Daniel, 4 Giff. 41, n.; Polini v. Gray, 28 W. R. 360.

Under special circumstances, e.g., where the respondents are resident abroad, so that the solr would be the only person liable to refund, his personal undertaking has been held insufficient without satisfactory security: Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 453.

If the undertaking is not given, or the security is not found, execution will be stayed on payment of the amount into Court: see Cooper v. C., 2 Ch. D. 492, Form 12, sup.; Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 453, 455; and if the undertaking is refused, it is not of course to stay proceedings as to costs: A. G. v. Emerson, 24 Q. B. D. 56, C. A.

And payment of costs will not be stayed with a view to a possible set-off as the result of pending proceedings in the same action: Grant v. Banque Franco-

Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, C. A.; or after an order of the Court of Appeal has given the opposite party a present right to receive costs: Automatic Weighing Co. v. Combined, &c. Weighing Co., 58 L. J. Ch. 647; 61 L. T. 536; 37 W. R. 636.

The application of these rules is not affected by a possibility of future costs becoming payable by the respondent to the appellant at some subsequent stage of the case: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, C. A.

An application for a stay, unless made immediately after judgment, must be supported by an affidavit showing special circumstances: Tuck v. Southern Counties Deposit Bank, 42 Ch. D. 471.

Stay of Execution for Payment of Money.

The practice in error, or on appeal, as between the Court of Appeal and the House of Lords, remains unaffected by the Jud. Acts and Rules: Justice v. Mersey, &c. Co., 1 C. P. D. 576.

Therefore, in the case of an action pending in the Q. B. Division, a stay of execution, pending an appeal to the House of Lords, is, on bail being given under the C. L. P. Act, 1852 (15 & 16 V. c. 76), s. 151, a matter of right: S. C.

In the case of an action pending in the Chancery Division, the converse practice on appeal from the Court of Chancery is still in force, whether the appeal be to the Court of Appeal or to the House of Lords: Cooper v. C., 2 Ch. D. 492, C. A., Form 12, sup.; Morgan v. Elford, 4 Ch. D. 352, C. A. The amount is to be paid to the respondent on his giving security to refund in case of the success of the appeal, or in default of security execution will be stayed on payment of the amount into Court: Merry v. Nickalls, 8 Ch. 205; Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 453; Barrs v. Fewkes, 1 Eq. 392; Topham v. D. of Portland, 1 D. J. & S. 603; Mackintosh v. G. W. Ry. Co., 11 Jur. N. S. 705; 13 L. T. 155; 13 W. R. 1029; Mayor, &c. of Gloucester v. Wood, 1 Ph. 493; 3 Ha. 150; Touche v. Met. Ry. Warehouse Co., 40 L. J. Ch. 496; O'Reilly v. Walsh, 1 R. 7 Eq. 253.

But where an amount ordered to be paid by a judgment had been paid into Court pending an appeal, and on appeal the judgment was reversed, the fund was not retained in Court pending an appeal to the House of Lords against the order reversing the judgment: Atherton v. British Nation Co., 5 Ch. 720.

Stay of Proceedings in Chambers.

Generally speaking, the Court never stays the taking of an account, and does not direct security for the result of an account, either on appeals to the Court of Appeal or to the House of Lords: Gwynn v. Lethbridge, 14 Ves. 506; Nerot v. Burnand, 2 Russ. 55, 58; Murray v. Clayton, 15 Eq. 117, 121; unless irreparable injury would be caused, as by disclosing the names of customers: Adair v. Young, 11 Ch. D. 136, C. A.

But a sale will be suspended: Rowley v. Adams, 9 Beav. 348; Nerot v. Burnand, 2 Russ. 55, 58; Dan. 1049.

Distribution of a fund in Court, or payment of a fund out of Court, will not be stayed, pending appeal in the absence of special circumstances: Bradford v. Young, Re Falconar's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 23, C. A.; but the persons to receive the money must, if required, give security to restore it if the order is reversed, and in default of such security the money will be retained in Court: Lord v. Colvin, 1 Dr. & Sm. 475; Swift v. Grazebrook, 3 Mac. & G. 6; Way v. Foy, 18 Ves. 452; Waldo v. Cayley, 16 Ves. 213; Bourne v. Buckton, 35 L. J. Ch. 851.

A sale of consols in Court was stayed on the undertaking of the appellant, in case his appeal was unsuccessful, to make good the difference between the income actually produced and interest at £4 p. c.; and to pay the costs of the sale and re-investment: Brewer v. Yorke, 20 Ch. D. 669, C. A.; and where a Plt to whom a fund had been ordered to be paid out had been abroad for two years, and his address was not known, the fund was retained in Court on the applicants giving a similar undertaking: Bradford v. Young, sup.

Where the order appealed from is for leave to do an act, e.g., for a trustee in bankruptcy to disclaim a lease, application for a stay of proceedings must be made immediately, as after the act is done there can be no withdrawal of the leave: Exp. Sadler, Re Hawes, 19 Ch. D. 122, C. A.

SUSPENSION OF INJUNCTIONS AND OTHER ORDERS.

In these cases the usual course is to stay proceedings pending an appeal only when the proceedings would cause irreparable injury (not mere inconvenience or annoyance), as by destroying the goodwill of a business: Walford v. W., 3 Ch. 812; Story v. Lord Lennox, 1 My. & Cr. 685; and see Flower v. Lloyd, W. N. (77) 81; Hyam v. Terry, 29 W. R. 32.

The same principle applies in the case of dissolving or postponing injunctions: Walburn v. Ingilby, 1 My. & K. 84; Penn v. Bibby, 3 Eq. 308.

Where an injunction is suspended by Court of Appeal for a certain time an application for its further suspension may be made to and disposed of by the Judge of the Court below: Shelfer v. City of London Electric Light Co.; Meux's Brewery Co. v. Same, (1895) 2 Ch. 388, C. A.

A decree for specific performance will be enforced, with the exception of the directions to execute the conveyance: Gwynn v. Lethbridge, 14 Ves. 185; or if the conveyance is to be executed, notice of the pending appeal will be indorsed on the deed: Wilson v. West Hartlepool Co., 34 Beav. 414; and for a case in which the execution of the decree was suspended, see Price v. Salusbury, 11 W. R. 1014.

An order for specific delivery of chattels will be enforced, pending an appeal, on the undertaking of the respondent to restore them if the order should be reversed: Harrington v. H., 3 Ch. 575, 576.

On the question when discovery or production of documents under the practice of the Court of Chancery would be stayed, see Walburn v. Ingilby, 1 My. & K. 84; Drake v. D., 3 Ha. 528.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS PENDING APPEALS TO THE COURT OF APPEAL.

By O. LVIII, 16, an appeal is not to operate as a stay of execution or of proceedings under the decision appealed from, except so far as the Court or a Judge below or the Court of Appeal may order; and no intermediate act or proceeding is to be invalidated except so far as the Court appealed from may direct.

Applications for a stay of proceedings under the rule are to be made, in the first instance, to the Court below: A. G. v. Swansea Co., 9 Ch. D. 46, C. A.; Goddard v. Thompson, 47 L. J. Q. B. 382; 26 W. R. 362; 38 L. T. 166; by summons or motion on notice: see Form 11, sup. p. 877; Rep. of Peru v. Weguelin, 24 W. R. 297; even though the action has been dismissed, if the application is for stay of proceedings under the order of dismissal, e.g., for payment of costs: Otto v. Lindford, 18 Ch. D. 394, C. A.; but an application which the Court below, having dismissed the action, cannot grant, as for an injunction to restrain interim dealings with property, will be entertained by the Court of Appeal: Wilson v. Church, 11 Ch. D. 576, C. A.; 12 Ch. D. 454, C. A.; Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438, C. A.

If this application is refused in the Court below it may be renewed by motion in the Court of Appeal; and in such cases the practice and the form of the order is the same as on original motions, though the jurisdiction of the Court is properly appellate: Cooper v. C., 2 Ch. D. 492, C. A.; Form 12, sup. p. 877; A. G. v. Swansea Co., 9 Ch. D. 46, C. A.

The application must be supported by special circumstances where a stay has been refused by the Judge at the trial: Monk v. Bartram, (1891) 1 Q. B. 346, C. A.

The rule gives full discretion to the Court against whose decision an appeal is pending to refuse a stay of proceedings: A. G. v. Emerson, 24 Q. B. D. 56, C. A. The jurisdiction under the rule is concurrent, and an application to the Court of Appeal for a stay refused by the Court below is an original application to be brought within a reasonable time, but not necessarily within twenty-one days from the refusal: Cropper v. Smith, 24 Ch. D. 305, C. A.

A master has jurisdiction to stay execution on a judgment pending an appeal to the Court of Appeal: Oppert v. Beaumont, 18 Q. B. D. 435, C. A.

The Court of Appeal will not grant a stay of proceedings on reversing an order refusing a rule for a new trial, in which case the stay of proceedings should be obtained on summons in Chambers from the Judge of the Court below: Goddard v. Thompson, 26 W. R. 362; 47 L. J. Q. B. 382; 38 L. T. 166.

The costs of such an application are, as a rule, to be paid by the applicant: Cooper v. C., 2 Ch. D. 492, C. A.; but the Court has a discretion: Adair v. Young, 11 Ch. D. 136, 139, C. A.; and the costs may be made costs in the appeal or action.

A similar rule was followed under the practice before the Jud. Acts: Richardson v. Bank of England, 1 Beav. 153; Topham v. D. of Portland, 1 D. J. & S. 603; Merry v. Nickalls, 8 Ch. 205; but not invariably: E. Shrewsbury v. Trappes, 2 D. F. & J. 172; Walford v. W., 3 Ch. 812; Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 453.

Where the appeal was against a Scotch co., resident out of the jurisdiction, stay of execution was refused, as the order of the Court of Appeal would be enforceable in Scotland under s. 122 of the Cos. Act, 1862: Re Queensland Merc. Co., Exp. Union Bank of Australia, W. N. (91) 132.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS PENDING APPEALS TO THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

The mode of application for a stay of proceedings pending an appeal to the House of Lords is, in the case of a stay on bail in error under the O. L. P. Act, 1852 (15 & 16 V. c. 76), s. 151, by summons in Chambers: Justice v. Mersey, &c. Co., 1 C. P. D. 575, C. A.

In the case of stay of execution for costs the application is to be made by motion to the Court of Appeal: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, C. A.; Morgan v. Elford, 4 Ch. D. 388, C. A.; Gibbs v. Daniel, 4 Giff. 41, n.

In the case of stay of execution or of proceedings under any order on appeal from the Chancery Division, the application is to be made by motion to the Court of Appeal: Merry v. Nickalls, 8 Ch. 205; Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 453; Walford v. W., 3 Ch. 812; Harrington v. H., 3 Ch. 575; Topham v. D. of Portland, 1 D. J. & S. 603; Mackintosh v. G. W. Ry. Co., 13 W. R. 1029; The Khedive, 28 W. R. 364; Hamill v. Lilley, 19 Q. B. D. 83, C. A.; Dan. 1082. For form of notice of motion, see D. C. F. 739.

For cases in which similar motions were made to a Court of first instance, see Price v. Salusbury, 11 W. R. 1014; Rowley v. Adams, 9 Beav. 348.

The appeal must be actually pending, or the applicants must give an undertaking to present an appeal within a limited time: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, C. A.

The appeal must include the order under which the proceedings to be stayed are being carried on: Rowley v. Adams, 9 Beav. 348.

If the application is refused, it seems that it may be renewed to the House of Lords, and that the House will in that case exercise its jurisdiction to order a stay of proceedings until the appeal is heard: see Gwynne v. Lethbridge, 14 Ves. 585, 586; Denison & Scott, pp. 77, 78.

Where the order appealed from dismisses an action, and it is sought to preserve the benefit of the relief sought by the action, not merely to stay execution for the costs of action pending the appeal, the order must be drawn up so as to maintain the jurisdiction of the Court for this purpose, notwithstanding the termination of the action by dismissal: Galloway v. Mayor, &c. of London (No. 2), 3 D. J. & S. 59; Oddie v. Woodford, 3 My. & Cr. 625; this may now be done by the Court of Appeal under Jud. Act, 1873, s. 25 (8), and O. LII, 3, on an application, made before the order of dismissal is passed and entered, to frame the order accordingly: Polini v. Gray, C. A., 23 July, 1879; the decision in Price v. Salusbury, 11 W. R. 1014, not being followed.

In the absence of special circumstances, the applicant must pay the costs of the application, inasmuch as he asks for an indulgence: Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202, 205, C. A.; Merry v. Nickalls, 8 Ch. 205; Topham v. D. of Portland, 1 D. J. & S. 603.

But there is a discretion in the Court to order, under special circumstances, the costs to abide the result of the appeal: Burdick v. Garrick, 5 Ch. 455;

Walford v. W., 3 Ch. 812, 815; 5 Ch. 455, n.; and see E. Shrewsbury v. Trappes, 2 D. F. & J. 172.

Where success on an appeal would be useless if interim protection were not given, an injunction will be granted or proceedings stayed: Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438, C. A.; Wilson v. Church, 12 Ch. D. 454, C. A.; but the appellants will be put on terms to speed the appeal, and the Court will not interfere if the appeal appears to be not bonâ fide: Wilson v. Church, sup.

Trial of issues of fact will not be stayed pending appeal to the House of Lords on a question of law: Re Palmer, 22 Ch. D. 88, C. A.

Execution for costs pending appeal to the House of Lords will not be stayed unless it is shown that the respondent would be unable to repay: Barker v. Lavery, 14 Q. B. D. 769, C. A.

A stay of execution will not be granted to enable a party dissatisfied with the damages assessed by a jury to decide whether he shall appeal to the House of Lords: Webber v. L. B. & S. C. Ry. Co., 51 L. J. Q. B. 154.

14. Order of the House of Lords made an Order of the Court.

WHEREAS by an order, dated &c., made by the Rt. Hon. the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled, after hearing counsel on the — day of — (and also on the — day of —), upon the petition and appeal of &c., from the order dated &c., made on the hearing of the appeal of the (Plt) in this action from the judgment &c., It was ordered and adjudged by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament assembled, that &c. [Recite order of the House of Lords]; Now upon motion &c., by counsel for &c., and upon producing the said order of the House of Lords, This Court doth order, that the said order be made an order of this Court; [If the order of the House directs accounts or inquiries, add, And it is ordered, that the following accounts (and inquiries) be taken (and made) &c.; And if costs are to be taxed here, And it is ordered, that the costs of &c. be taxed by the taxing master, and be paid by &c., to &c.]

—See Mann v. Ricketts, V.-C. K. B., 22 May, 1849, B. 1553; 3 D. & S. 446; affd. L. C., 26 Feb. 1852, B. 556; Blakemore v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., V.-C. S., 5 Dec., 1870, A. 2955; V. Holmesdale v. Sackville-West, V.-C. J., 16 June, 1870, A. 1651.

For form of application, see D. C. F. 756.

If the order of the House of Lords reverses or varies the order appealed from, it should be made an order of the Court, so that the order appealed from may not remain as unrepealed on the records of the Court: see L., alias H. v. H., L. R. 1 P. & M. 294.

And if anything is ordered to be done under the direction of the Court below, the order of the House must be made an order of Court before it can be carried into effect.

But where a judgment is simply affirmed, it is not necessary to make the order an order of the Court: A. G. v. Scott, 1 Ves. 419.

The order is to be obtained on motion as of course from the Court or the Judge where the action is pending, or to which or to whom it has been transferred: Man v. Ricketts, 3 D. & S. 446.

The motion may be ex parte: Wentworth v. Lloyd, 13 W. R. 146; British Dynamite Co. v. Krebs, 27 W. R. 575; 11 Ch. D. 448; on production of an office copy of an order of the House signed by the clerk of Parliament: but see L., alias H. v. H., L. R. 1 P. & M. 293.

An order of the House annulling a bankruptcy may be made an order of the Court in its appellate jurisdiction in bankruptcy; and the successful appellant was allowed his costs of an application for this purpose: Exp. Harding, 14 W. R. 825.

Where the order of the House directs payment of costs, the order may be enforced by the House, if sitting: see Denison & Scott, 172; Wentworth v. Lloyd, 13 W. R. 146; 11 L. T. 365; 10 Jur. N. S. 1113; 5 N. R. 65.

If the order has been made an order of Court, it may be enforced by the process of the Court: Man v. Ricketts, 3 D. & S. 446; Wentworth v. Lloyd, sup.

And an action may be brought on the order of the House for the costs awarded by it without making it an order of the Court: Marbella Co. v. Allen, 38 L. T. 815; 47 L. J. C. P. 601.

And where the costs are payable by an appellant who has entered into recognizances for payment of the respondent's costs, the recognizance may be estreated, and, notwithstanding the Debtors Act, 1869 (32 & 33 V. c. 62), the appellant may be imprisoned on process issued by the Q. B. Division: Re Smith, 2 Ex. D. 47.

Where no order as to the costs of the proceedings was made by the House, the Court below could not subsequently make any such order: L., alias H. v. H., L. R. 1 P. & M. 293; and see Gann v. Johnson, L. R. 6 C. P. 461.

And the Court below has no jurisdiction to make any order as to interest upon the costs of an appeal to the House: Lanc. & Yorks. Ry. Co. v. Gidlow, L. R. 9 Ex. 35; 7 H. L. 517.

No appeal lies to the House of Lords from an order of the Court of Appeal refusing leave to appeal: Lane v. Esdaile, 64 L. T. 666; or from an interlocutory order of the Q. B. D. in Ireland, or an order on appeal therefrom by the Court of Appeal in Ireland: E. of Gosford v. Irish Land Commrs., (1899) A. C. 435, H. L. Ir.; or from an order on a special case raising questions of fact only: Burgess v. Morton, (1896) A. C. 136, H. L.

The House of Lords will not disturb a finding of fact in both Courts below, unless clearly shown to be erroneous: The P. Caland v. Glamorgan Steamship Co., (1893) A. C. 207; McIntyre v. McGavin, (1893) A. C. 268, 275, 279.

For forms of proceedings on appeal to H. L., see D. C. F. 739 et seq.; and as to procedure, Dan. 1082 et seq.

partition upon the affidavit of surveyors with evidence showing the fairness of the proposed division, the infant was declared a trustee for the Plts within the Act, and one of the Defts was appointed to convey the premises on his behalf. And see Bowra v. Wright, 4 De G. & S. 265; Eaton v. Hanwell, V.-C. S., 13 March, 1855, and Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES," sup. p. 1266.

The same course was adopted, to save expense, where the shares were numerous and complicated, of declaring by one and the same order each party a trustee under the Act for the others, and vesting the whole estate in a new trustee to convey the several shares: Shepherd v. Churchill, 25 Beav. 21.

If any of the parties interested is a lunatic the course is similar, except that the order to vest or convey must have been obtained upon application to the L. C. or other persons intrusted with the care of lunatics' estates: see Re Bloomar, 2 D. & J. 88; 6 W. R. 178; which case came before the L. JJ. upon an application in Lunacy, and under the Trustee Act, 1850, to carry into effect an order of the V.-C. S., made in the partition suit of Singleton v. Hopkins, 4 W. R. 107; 25 L. J. Ch. 150; 1 Jur. N. S. 1199 (in which the application was intituled), declaring the lunatic to be a trustee, and charging the costs upon the respective shares.

In Re Molyneux, 4 D. F. & J. 365, where the committee declined to take any steps to complete, the L. JJ. gave effect to a decree for the partition of an estate in which a lunatic was interested, and had been declared a trustee within the Act, by making a vesting order under sect. 30; and in Re Sherard, 1 D. J. & S. 421, an order was made in Lunacy and in Chancery, directing the committee of a lunatic tenant in tail to take all necessary steps and execute all assurances, &c., for giving effect to the partition.

Where a person of unsound mind not so found was interested in the partitioned property, the decree, after allotting the portions in severalty, directed mutual conveyances by the parties sui juris to each other and to the person of unsound mind, and declared him a trustee within the Trustee Act, 1850, s. 30, for the parties sui juris. On application to the L. C. in Lunacy a subsequent order was made appointing the guardian ad litem to convey and execute all proper deeds, and convey the parts allotted to the persons sui juris for all the estate and interest therein of the non compos: Moorehead v. M., 1 R. 2 Eq. 492.

And upon the question whether the application should be in Chancery or in Lunacy, or concurrently under both jurisdictions, see Chap. XLI., "TRUSTEES," pp. 1258, 1259.

TITLE DEEDS.

A judgment for partition generally contains a direction that after the partition shall have been made such of the title deeds, &c. in the custody or power of any of the parties as relate exclusively to any part of the allotted premises shall be delivered to and retained by the party to whom such part has been allotted.

The deeds are sometimes ordered to be deposited in the Central Office for the mutual benefit of the parties: see Trodd v. Downs, 2 Atk. 304, 8 May, 1742 (1741), B. 406, cited 2 Ves. jun. 568. But except in the case of such of the deeds as relate to an infant's share (see Form 2, sup. p. 1883), this does not appear to be the proper form of order: see Jones v. Robinson, 3 D. M. & G. 910.

If the parties are all equally interested, the Plt, but if not, then the party entitled to the share or estate of greatest value, is generally entitled to the custody of the deeds on entering into a covenant (or acknowledgment of liability, v. sup. p. 1883) to produce and allow copies to be taken when required; or on an undertaking to abide by any order the Court may make as to the same, with liberty to either party to apply for directions concerning the same: see Elton v. E., 27 Beav. 632; Jones v. Robinson, sup.; and it seems that on giving that undertaking the person in whose custody the deeds are will be allowed to retain them: S. C.; Lord Cardigan v. Montagu, L. C., 6 June, 1755, A. 406.

Where several persons were interested in the estate the partition deed was directed to be enrolled at the expense of all parties, with liberty for any person interested to have a duplicate at his own expense: Elton v. E., sup.

PARTITION UNDER THE INCLOSURE ACTS, 1845—1876.

By the Inclosure Act, 1848 (11 & 12 V. c. 99), ss. 13, 14, the provisions of the Inclosure Acts, 1845, 1846, and 1847 (8 & 9 V. c. 118, 9 & 10 V. c. 70, and 10 & 11 V. c. 111), are extended to partitions; and on the application of the parties interested the Inclosure Commrs (now Board of Agriculture) are empowered to make partition of land held in undivided shares, though such land is not subject to be inclosed under the principal Act (8 & 9 V. c. 118).

By the Inclosure Act, 1857 (20 & 21 V. c. 31), ss. 6—11, inequality in value may be compensated by a rent-charge in the case of an exchange or partition under the authority of the Acts, where the deficiency does not exceed one-eighth of the actual value.

By the Inclosure Act, 1859 (22 & 23 V. c. 43), s. 10, it is not necessary for lessees, being persons jointly interested within the provisions of the Acts in land or other subject-matter of partition, to join in the application to the commrs for partition; and by sect. 11, the statutory provisions as to notice of dissent shall not apply where persons interested to the extent of two-thirds in value shall have made the application.

By the Commons Act, 1876 (39 & 40 V. c. 56), s. 33, the provisions of the Inclosure Act, 1845, s. 105, relating to the validity after confirmation of an award of inclosure of the exchanges and partitions set forth in such award shall apply to orders of exchange, partition and division of intermixed lands, carried into effect in pursuance of the Inclosure Acts, 1845—1868 (mentioned in the schedule), by separate orders, and not included in an award of inclosure.

For a statement and summary of the several Inclosure Acts, 1845—1868, see Elton, Copyholds, 105.

Commrs having by law or by the consent of parties authority to hear, receive, and examine evidence, may administer oaths: Evidence Act, 1851 (14 & 15 V. c. 99), s. 16; Taylor on Evid., 8th ed. 1178.

PARTITION UNDER SETTLED LAND ACTS.

The principal provisions of these Acts in reference to partition are as to the powers of the tenant for life generally, S. L. A. 1882, s. 3, sub-s. iii., and s. 4, sub-s. 2 (sup. p. 1822); as to contracts by the tenant for life, sect. 31 (1) (v. sup. p. 1840); as to shifting of incumbrances, s. 5 (sup. p. 1824); as to raising money for equality of partition, s. 18 (sup. p. 1822); as to notices to be given to trustees, sect. 45 (sup. p. 1824), and as to creation of easements, S. L. A. 1890, s. 5 (sup. p. 1822).

SECTION III.—ASCERTAINING BOUNDARIES.

Ascertaining Boundaries of Land at Suit of Grantee of Rent-Charge thereon.

THIS action coming on for trial &c., Let, in the event of the parties not being able to agree, the following inquiries be made, that is to say: 1. An inquiry what are the lands charged with the rent-charges of £— and £—, and if they cannot be ascertained, 2. An inquiry what other lands of the Deft A. B. are of the same extent in each case as the land so charged; And Let lands of the Deft A. B. of the same extent in each case to answer the said rent-charges respectively be set out under the direction of the Judge in Chambers; And Declare that the land subject to the rent-charge of £— consists of &c. [particulars].—Searle v. Cooke, Kay, J., 10 July, 1889, B. 1002; S. C., 43 Ch. D. 519, C. A.

For form of order for commission to ascertain boundaries, and for compensation, apportionment and account of rents, and of timber cut, see Seton, 5th ed., Form 1, p. 1571; Winton v. Newland, M. R., 6 Aug. 1813, B. 1510; Abergavenny v. Thomas, L. C., 21 May, 1739, B. 294; West, 649; Barker v. B., L. C., 1 July, 1795, A. 467; and A. G. v. Penruddocke, M. R., 28 April, 1856, A. 1302. And for form of order for commission to issue to distinguish freehold and copyhold lands, compensation, deeds, account of rents, costs, see Seton, 5th ed., Form 3, p. 1572; and Habergham v. Stansfeld, L. C. and two Judges, 25 July, 1793, A. 548; 10 Ves. 278.

For decree for commission to set out the boundaries and limits of two collieries, and the several closes and parcels of ground thereto respectively belonging, and the commrs to look into both the collieries, and see how the one intermixed with and ran into the other, and to set down temporary marks and boundaries to distinguish the one from the other, see Collingwood v. Jenison, L. C., 5 May, 1708, A. 366; and for the further order, reciting that the commrs made a certificate, which, on the 12th Feb. 1709, on a motion to discharge the same, they were ordered to review, and that they thereupon made a second certificate, certifying that they had divided the collieries, and set up posts as temporary marks, and to which they annexed a map, survey, or draught thereof; directing the first certificate to be set aside, and the second certificate and the divisions and allotments therein contained to be confirmed, and the several collieries of S. and B. to be held and enjoyed accordingly; and granting perpetual injunction against altering the bounds, S. C., 20 May, 1710, A. 347.

For decree for commission to ascertain charity lands, and set out freehold from copyhold, see A. G. v. Peach, L. C., 25 July, 1754, A. 541; freehold and leasehold: Pearshall v. Wallar, L. C., 4 June, 1722, B. 523; Norris v. Le Neve, L. C., 17 July, 1742, B. 473; 3 Atk. 32, 33.

For reference to Chambers, by consent, to ascertain boundaries, see Spike v. Harding, Fry, J., 25 Feb. 1878; 7 Ch. D. 871; 26 W. R. 420.

For declaration of Plt's right to proportionate part of rents, and inquiry as to boundaries, though confused by fault of the party through whom he claimed, see Hicks v. Hastings, 3 K. & J. 701, 706.

For order of reference to an engineer, to make a plan of the medium line of high water of the sea-shore in question, such plan to be deposited with the clerk of records, &c., to be inspected by the parties, see A. G. v. Chambers, 4 D. & J. 58.

NOTES.

Courts of Equity will grant commissions, but it is more usual, as in the case of partition, to direct an inquiry at Chambers to ascertain boundaries: see Spike v. Harding, 7 Ch. D. 871; D. C. F. 765.

To obtain this relief it must be shown that the Plt has clear legal title to land of which the Deft, against whom such relief is sought, is in possession: A. G. v. Stephens, 6 D. M. & G. 121 (reversing 1 K. & J. 724, and dismissing the information on failure of such proof); Godfrey v. Littell, 1 Russ. & M. 59; 2 Ib. 630; and that without the assistance of the Court the boundaries cannot be found: Miller v. Warmington, 1 J. & W. 491.

The grounds on which this relief was granted in equity are stated to have been where the soil itself was in question, or in order to avoid multiplicity of suits, or where some equity arose by the misconduct or acts of the Defts, as fraud, or confusion, or the like: see Wake v. Conyers, 2 L. C. Eq. 6th ed. 438, 443; 1 L. C. Eq. 7th ed. 170; Speer v. Crawler, 2 Mer. 418.

All persons having interests were necessary parties to the suit: Rayley v. Best, 1 Russ. & M. 659.

A tenant is bound to preserve the boundaries between his landlord's and his own property, and if he permits them to be destroyed so that the landlord's land cannot be ascertained, he is bound at the end of the term to restore it specifically, or to substitute land of equal value, to be ascertained by commission: A. G. v. Fullerton, 2 V. & B. 264; and this relief is given not only against the party guilty of the neglect, but also against all who claim under him: see A. G. v. Stephens, 6 D. M. & G. 111, 133; Hicks v. Hastings, 3 K. & J. 701; and see Brown v. Wales, 15 Eq. 142.

Similarly, a copyhold tenant is bound to keep the boundaries of his tenements distinct; and if he neglects to do so, the Court will direct an inquiry for ascertaining the boundaries, and if that should be impossible, will order land of equal value to be set out in substitution. If the tenement is enfranchised, the obligation to preserve the boundaries ceases, but the tenant is still liable for default which had happened before the enfranchisement: Searle v. Cook, 43 Ch. D. 519, C. A.; and see form of order, sup. p. 1892, and the lord, having a rent-charge, and the grantees of the rent-charge claiming under him, do not lose their rights by reason of his omission to have the boundaries ascertained on enfranchisement under 15 & 16 V. c. 51 (see now the Copyhold Act, 1894, 57 & 58 V. c. 46, s. 52): S. C.

The Court has entertained suits to settle boundaries of real estate in the colonies: Tulloch v. Hartley, 1 Y. & C. C. 114; but the jurisdiction has been based upon contract made in this country, enabling the Court to act in personam: Penn v. L. Baltimore, 1 L. C. Eq. 755; and see Paget v. Ede, 18 Eq. 118; Pike v. Hoare, 2 Eden, 182.

It has been held that hearsay evidence is admissible on a question of parochial or manorial boundaries, but not as to boundary between two private proprietors: Nicholls v. Parker, 14 East, 331; Clothier v. Chapman, Ib.; Taylor on Evidence, 557, 558.

A tithe commutation map is not admissible in evidence as showing boundaries in a case of disputed title: Wilberforce v. Hearfield, 5 Ch. D. 709; and as to the evidence afforded by entries in parish books and receipts for rent, see A. G. v. Stephens, 1 K. & J. 724; 6 D. M. & G. 111.

The division will be by metes and bounds: Winton v. Newland, sup. p. 1893; Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 32; and the commission, which is nearly in the same form and of the same nature as a commission of partition, is sued out, executed, and returned, and the certificate of the commrs is objected to, confirmed, or quashed in the same manner: see Dan. 1121.

The costs of a commission for settling boundaries and separating freeholds and copyholds were ordered to be borne by the parties equally, though the interests were not equal: Norris v. Le Neve, 3 Atk. 81; but in Habergham v. Stansfeld, 10 Ves. 278, sup. p. 1893, the costs of all parties were directed to be paid out of the testator's estate rateably in proportion to the value of the freeholds and copyholds.

Under the Inclosure Acts, 1845—1876, the Inclosure Commrs have power, when lands are inconveniently mixed, to confirm an agreement for division made by the parties interested, and to counterchange the titles of parcels allotted on the division, and, with the consent of the lord in the case of copyhold lands, to appoint an assistant commr to make a redivision of intermixed lands: see 9 & 10 V. c. 70; Elton on Copyholds, 108; Scriven on Copyholds, 326 et seq.
